132971
SEP 11 19

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA
Raymond P. Shafer, Governor

Debates of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention of 1967-1968

VOLUME II

Journals of the Convention
February 12 to February 29, 1968
and Index

THE PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION
Hon. Raymond J. Broderick, President
John W. Ingram, Executive Director
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania
December, 1969

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
Law Library
PITTSBURGH, PA.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT

Special acknowledgment is due Mr. George E. Zeiders, Legislative Printing Clerk of the Pennsylvania General Assembly, for his invaluable assistance in the preparation for printing of the contents of this publication.

Copies May be Purchased From Department of Property & Supplies
10th & Market Street
Division of Documents
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania 17125

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 Monday, February 12, 1968 Number 41

The Convention was called to order at 1:30 p.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND FRANCIS CARR, of the Church of the Resurrection, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

In the Name of the Father, and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. Amen.

We wish to thank Thee, Almighty God, for a safe journey back to the Capitol today. During this past weekend each delegate has had the privilege of praying to You in his own particular place of worship.

Whilst Your only Son was on earth, He assured us that: "Where two or more are gathered together in My Name, there will I be in the midst of them." Creator of the World, we are gathered in this assembly in Your Name today.

Throughout history God has chosen particular persons for specific duties, whether great or small. Moses was the chosen instrument to lead the Israelites out of the bondage of Egypt into the promised land of milk and honey. The only begotten Son of God was chosen to lead the world out of the darkness and slavery of sin. Abraham Lincoln was the chosen instrument to lead this country out of slavery.

You have chosen men and women as delegates to this Convention who have a full and an unselfish love of God and their fellowmen in their hearts. The remarkable progress that they have accomplished in this Convention has been a source of admiration, not only to the people of Pennsylvania, but to all the States of this Union.

Bless their efforts, Lord. Let Your parting blessing on the closing day of this Convention to each member of this Convention be, "Well done, good and faithful servant. Because thou hast been faithful in a few things I will appoint thee over many things."

In Nomine Patris, et Filii, et Spiritus Sancti. Amen

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the Secretary, Delegate Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, the following members have made requests for leaves of absence:

The delegate from the 36th District, DELEGATE TATE, for February 12;

The delegate from the 33rd District, DELEGATE GOUGER, for February 12;

The delegate from the 48th District, DELEGATE HORNE, for February 13;

The delegate from the 37th District, DELEGATE REA, for February 12;

The delegate from the 45th District, DELEGATE CAPUTO, for February 9;

The delegate from the 35th District, DELEGATE CUNNINGHAM, for February 15 and 16.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Secretary Michener.

Is there any objection to the leaves of absence?

The Chair hears none, and the leaves are granted.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now take the roll call to determine if a quorum is present. The delegates will indicate their presence by voting "aye."

The roll was recorded as follows:

Allison	Cunningham	Keller, M	Richter
Amsterdam	Curran	Kelly	Roberts
Aurentz	Dailey	Krill	Sahli
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leach	Scales
Baldus	Devlin	Lee, L	Scarlett
Baldwin	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Scott
Banes	Erwin	Leonard	Sebastian
Barron	Fagan	Levin	Shapiro
Barry	Fawcett	Manderino	Sharp
Bashoff	Feather	Mangery	Shettig
Benedict	Filson	Markley	Shively
Benfield	Fineman	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Bloom	Fleming	McGeary	Shrager
Braham	Fohl	McGlynn	Silverman
Brennan	Forster	Meyer	Solomon
Broderick	Fortney	Michener	Sprogell
Brown	Gehrlein	Miller, D	Stout
Buck	Goldstein	Miller, R	Strickler
Bunting	Griffith	Moorhead	Swope
Burkholder	Hannum	More	Thomson
Butera	Harding	Morton	Thornburgh
Cain	Hatter	Nelson	Tomascik
Camardella	Heyburn	O'ban	Tully
Caputo	Himes	O'bin	Van Sant
Caron	Hocker	Otto	Waldron
Casey	Hook	Pelletier	Warman
Clark	Horne	Popil	Welsh
Clinger	Huggins	Pott	Westerberg
Conley	Irvis	Powell	Whittum
Corey	Jirolamo	Prendergast	Wilcox
Cortese	Johnson	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Cosetti	Kauffman	Redick	Woodring
Croop	Keller, J.	Reynolds	Woodside

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. One hundred and thirty-two delegates having been recorded, a quorum is present.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Aberman	Gray	Michael	Quiles
Fay	King	Murray	Rovner
Gerber	Laputka	O'Donnell	Ruth
Goldman	Lee, K.	Pasquerilla	Stroup

SCHEDULE FOR THE WEEK

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would just like to make a brief announcement and state that today we are going to continue in session until about 7 o'clock this evening. Tomorow and every day this week, we will start at 9 a.m. and continue until around 7 or later, depending upon the desire of the delegates.

This week we must complete the second consideration of all our proposals. There have been many very excellent suggestions that have been considered and made to the Rules Committee for expediting our work. Your officers agree with the Rules Committee that we can complete this job on schedule without making drastic changes and debating changes in our rules. Debate and discussion are absolutely necessary if we are going to produce understanding, but I implore you, please be brief. Remember, today being Lincoln's birthday, do not forget the Gettysburg Address was only 10 sentences long. If he could do it, so can we.

CALENDAR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 4 ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 12, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania specifying audit control of public moneys and establishing and regulating a balanced State budget for the next fiscal year and financial plans for the succeeding five years.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

LEONARD AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We now take up Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12. Will the Convention agree to advance Proposal No. 4 to third consideration?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, I read in place an amendment to Proposal No. 4.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In accordance with our procedure that we discussed, Delegate Leonard and Delegate Woodring, it would be appreciated if you would come up forward and take the mike, either the forward one to the right or the left, because I think it will expedite the conduct of the work in connection with amendments.

Will the clerk please read the amendment?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 1, lines 11 to 15 by striking out "(a) The affairs of the Commonwealth," in line 11, all of lines 12 to 14 and "audited regularly." in line 15 and inserting: All fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth, including those of any body created, funded, or financially aided by the Commonwealth shall be audited regularly.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 2, lines 2 to 19 by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 2, line 23 by striking out "Budget" and inserting: Budgets

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 2, lines 27 and 28 by striking out "debt service, authority rentals and"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 2, line 28 by striking out "by" and inserting: for

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec 26), page 2, line 29 by inserting after "programs": and

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 2, line 30 by striking out "receipts" and inserting: revenues

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, lines 1 and 2 by striking out "Proposed expenditures shall not exceed the estimated receipts"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, line 2 by striking out "receipts" and inserting where it appears the second time: revenues

Amend Sec 2 (Sec 26), page 3, line 5 by striking out "receipts" and inserting: revenues

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec 26), page 3, line 8 by inserting after "financed": by appropriations

Amend Sec 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, line 9 by striking out "appropriations"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, line 16 by striking out "debt service, authority rentals and"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, line 17 by inserting after "EACH": proposed

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 26), page 3, line 18 by striking out "receipts," and inserting: revenues,

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, lines 22 to 25 by striking out "and Financial" in line 22, all of lines 23 and 24 and "fiscal year" in line 25 and inserting: —(a)

Amend Sec 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, line 26 by striking out "receipts" and inserting: revenues

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, line 27 by inserting after "appropriations.": Legislation authorizing borrowing by any authority or agency shall be considered an appropriation.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec 27), page 3, line 28 by striking out "(2) Approve" and inserting: (b) The General Assembly shall approve

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, lines 29 and 30; page 4, lines 1 and 2 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: (c) All estimates of anticipated receipts from any source whatsoever shall be as finally certified by the Governor

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard to make his statement.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Thank you, Mr. President

This amendment, incidentally, is being cosponsored—if there is such a thing as sponsoring amendments—by Judge Woodring and Delegate Wilcox, who is the co-chairman of the subcommittee that developed this proposal, and Delegate Pott, who is the co-chairman of the Taxation Committee. These are the matters we have had a chance to speak to in our own committee, and I feel certain that we can get pretty close to unanimous consent on agreement to this amendment.

After Thursday's session, with the discussion we had on the questions, I gave the matter a lot of thought and I have spoken to many people about some of the wording that was in this proposal. Some of the wording would create technical problems and other wording, as I could see, would have created problems that we had not been looking for. Therefore, I spent time in developing this amendment.

Now what it is intended to do is this: It is intended to eliminate some of the technical problems that apparently have arisen with respect to the amendment. It eliminates what some may have called "legislation" even though initially we did not think that it was. We feel, the way the comments and questions were going, that there were some who felt there was legislation in here so we eliminated that portion which we thought may have been considered legislation. We also eliminated something that unfortunately was getting to be considered as having political overtones, and this was done so that we would not have anything of such a divisive nature come before this Convention.

What we now have is this: We have an audit provision that will require or make all government fiscal affairs to be audited, and it will require these audits to be in accordance with high standards. I am satisfied at this point that the legislature will move expeditiously to implement this section of the Constitution when it becomes adopted.

No. 2, it leaves in the requirement for a balanced budget, which requirement we must have because Proposal No. 3, our state debt proposal, does not require the kind of balanced budget that the former section of the Constitution dealing with state debt had required by way of case law. So Section 26 is left in there, substantially. We changed the word "receipts" to "revenues" just for the sake of clarity.

It provides, of course, for a capital budget and it provides that the Governor shall submit a five-year financial plan.

Also, the amendment eliminates as a requirement of the General Assembly that they approve a balanced budget and it eliminates the requirement that the General Assembly approve the five-year financial plan. It was generally developed, and now I believe it is generally conceded, that it would be of no value for the General Assembly to go through the motions of approving a balanced budget or approving a five-year financial plan because the appropriation bills are the manner in which the General Assembly appropriates money for a budget, and since each appropriation bill must be balanced, we have achieved our purpose there. We are having the capital budget approved by the General Assembly on an annual basis and it would be of no avail to require the General Assembly to approve a five-year plan which in the next year they would not approve or would change around. It is certainly proper, and would be proper, for the General Assembly to approve the five-year plan if it saw fit, but we do not want to make it as a constitutional requirement.

It also clarifies the fact that any money spent for capital improvements would have to be spent as a result of appropriation. I do not think there is much of a question that money spent by the government can only be spent by appropriation, but it was not as clear as it could be in this proposal that money spent for capital improvements would have to be spent by appropriation.

Particularly with respect to the authorities, it was considered that there may have been a loophole inadvertently left in here that the authorities can still be used for debt. Even though such debt is within the debt limit of the Commonwealth, it conceivably could have been—I do not say it would have—that the General Assembly would have authorized debt to the authority; therefore, the spending of that money would not have been by way of appropriation.

Finally, over on the last page, page 4, we say, "all estimates and anticipated revenues or receipts from any source whatsoever as finally certified by the Governor," rather than to say "shall be made only by the Governor," which is maybe a little difficult. Anybody can make estimates of revenues if they so wish, but the ones that will count will be only those as finally certified by the Governor. There is no time limit in here as to when such certification shall take place but, hopefully, it is the intent and was the intent of our committee that the certification of revenues by the Governor would take place prior to the time that the budget was adopted or that the appropriation bill was adopted. This is not now clearly stated in this amendment. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Chairman Leonard.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman

DELEGATE FINEMAN Mr. President, on Friday of this past week, Chairman Leonard was good enough to meet with me at considerable length to discuss committee Proposal No. 4. I had the benefit of his thinking during that meeting and he had the benefit of my thinking and what little experience in this field I could bring to bear on the subject matter. Many of the amendments that are being offered today by Chairman Leonard are the result of that conversation. But quite frankly, these amendments are very extensive amendments, and in all candor I must say to the Chair that I am not in any intelligent position to decide whether or not these amendments are proper amendments, simply because I have not had an opportunity to review them. I see them, as do all of the delegates here, for the first time as they were handed to me just moments ago Notwithstanding that we are operating on a very tight time schedule, I do not believe that we should be called upon to cast a vote on something that we have not had an opportunity to intelligently review and look at, and the exigencies of the short remaining period of time allowed to us to turn out a work product is certainly no excuse for turning out something that does not reflect the best thinking on the subject matter.

It may very well be that these amendments are in good order, although I immediately see something that would cause me to raise an eyebrow and it may very well be that they are not in good order. For instance, I bring to your attention that one of the first amendments on the first page says that all fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth, including those of any body created, funded or financially aided by the Commonwealth shall be audited regularly. This is a clear mandate to audit, by the Commonwealth, all of the many bodies that are beneficiaries of state moneys. This could create an impossible auditing task. We give every school district in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania money; we give towns, cities, boroughs and counties, money; we give institutions of all kinds money—hospitals, universities, colleges. From where would the manpower come if there was a clear mandate in the Constitution that they must be audited? I recall telling Chairman Leonard very clearly that I agreed that anybody who is the beneficiary of state moneys should be audited if the Commonwealth can do the job, but the authorization should be in the law. But to clearly mandate that they shall be audited might create an impossible auditing job. I would suggest that we might think twice about language such as this which would clearly mandate such an audit. This, on a brief, hurried reading immediately comes to my attention, and there may be other things in these amendments.

I would suggest that it would be in good order and might make for a much more intelligent amendment that we could vote upon if this amendment would not be put before the delegates at the present moment for determination and would be held over until later this afternoon or until an opportunity has been given to those delegates who are interested in Proposal No. 4 to look at the amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Fineman, do I take it you are making a request that this matter of the Leonard amendments be held for awhile today until the delegates have had an opportunity to go over them? Does anybody have objection to that?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I would like first to interrogate Chairman Leonard.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is it on this question?

DELEGATE HOCKER. In respect to the question, yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that our chairmen have all agreed to be interrogated so you may proceed.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. Leonard, I would ask you what you have done with Section 1, paragraph B, in respect to your amendments on pre and post?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Eliminated it.

DELEGATE HOCKER. You have eliminated it entirely?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, sir.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Well that sounds real good. I am very happy.

MOTION TO PASS OVER AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, he gave me a very lovely answer and I liked it very much, but I would like to go a little further than my good friend, Delegate Fineman. I would like to make a motion that this proposal and the amendments go over until tomorrow to give us time to look at the amendments and the proposal in the new light. That is a motion, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is seconded by Delegate Fineman.

As I understand your motion, you want Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12, with the amendment just offered to go over until tomorrow.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Yes, sir, to give us a chance to sleep, not on it but with it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me ask the delegate if he would consider it sufficient sleeping time if he would have three or four hours on it today?

DELEGATE HOCKER. No, sir, that is not time enough for me.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have all heard the motion by Delegate Hocker, and it has been seconded by Delegate Fineman, that this Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12, go over until tomorrow for the purpose of considering the amendments that have just been offered by Delegate Leonard.

Is there any objection to that motion?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I think it would be helpful to the delegates if we could have some reading on what kind of additional amendments are in the hopper for this particular Section 4. We would then be able to judge better, I believe.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. My understanding is that the Chair can answer that. We have up here at the podium two amendments that were offered last week by Delegate Amsterdam, one by Delegate Murray and one by Delegate Goldman. I am not sure whether those amendments are going to be offered now in view of the amendment that has just been offered by Delegate Leonard. Is there any way we could get a count on that? May I ask Delegate Amsterdam if his amendments are going to be pursued further?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I would have no idea until I have an opportunity to study the amendments that have been suggested by the chairmen. When we have an opportunity to look those over, they may very well have been covered by the amendment now being offered.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has asked that a clean copy of this amendment by Delegate Leonard be prepared and worked right into the proposal so that you will be able to read it, and that will be distributed in about two or three hours. That will aid you in your determination of the effect of these amendments.

The Chair is going to ask again and I will not put it to a vote unless there is an objection—does anyone have an objection to the motion offered by Delegate Hocker?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, you are bending my motion. My motion is that it will go over until tomorrow. Now you are talking about two or three hours. That is not tomorrow, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No, we are not changing your motion. Two or three hours is when we are going to give them the clean copy so that they will be able to sleep with it.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Fine, I like this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I knew that was the part of the motion that you wanted to remain in.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Before the motion is voted upon, is it possible for me to ask the chairman of the committee why some of the changes were made? I would like to have some information to sleep on.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed, he is there to answer your questions.

DELEGATE CARON. If Mr. Hocker would be kind enough to bear with me, I have one question that I do not understand.

I was a member of the subcommittees that were involved here and I presume there is a very logical and good reason for the elimination of the discussion with reference to postaudit and preaudit. I was curious as to whether or not you would be kind enough to comment on it.

DELEGATE LEONARD. The reason that it was eliminated was it got to be way out of proportion to its original intent. The original intent was that there would not be any offices named in the Constitution, that there merely be a separation of the powers of preaudit and postaudit. It stumbled through committee and came out with a couple of constitutional names. Then it got to the amendments that were being proposed on the floor, which would have made it a little bit more involved. I thought that instead of resolving the problem, we may have been creating a tremendous problem and I thought I would suggest it be deleted. We have the guidelines in the first paragraph, and I feel quite certain that there has been enough said on this that the legislature, when it reconvenes, will consider appropriate legislation to take care of this problem.

DELEGATE CARON. As long as that is in the record, I have no particular quarrel with the thing, except that I feel very strongly that at this moment—Mr. Leonard used the word "political," so I will use it—if political aspects were involved in suggesting that this be removed, I feel very strongly that the political aspects involved have a direct responsibility to the people that when the legislature reconvenes, they act accordingly in a manner of attempting to evaluate the problem of postaudit and preaudit.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Caron.

PROPOSAL No. 4 PASSED OVER

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The motion is before the floor that this Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12, go over until tomorrow.

I say again, does anyone object?

The Chair hears no objection; therefore, the motion is unanimously carried and the proposal will go over until tomorrow.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I think I should make just one observation on the last remarks made here giving the impression that political overtones are behind the changes that have been placed before this Convention on Committee Proposal No. 4.

Let me assure you that I have considerable knowledge of what these political overtones are supposed to be, and I want to say that they are not. There are no partisan, political overtones in this matter; there are, certainly, practical professional overtones in this matter, and this is why I questioned the language that was in Committee Proposal No. 4.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Swope.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 5 ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 5, Printer's No. 14, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania further regulating exemptions from taxation and providing for the taxation of real property of public utilities.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now move to the next number on the calendar, which is Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14.

Will the Convention agree to advance Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14, to third consideration? That is the question before us and I understand that we have a list up here at the desk of about 20 amendments to Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14.

I am going to ask that the chairmen of the committee, Chairmen Leonard and Woodring, remain at the forward mike on the right, and we will recognize the delegates for the introduction of amendments. We have here a list of those which have been prepared.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. First of all, we have Delegate Camardella. You have an amendment here. Do you wish to offer it?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I wish to withdraw my amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will mark it "withdrawn."

SHOEMAKER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have an amendment here by Delegate Shoemaker, which is an amendment we have marked tentatively as No. 2 for the purpose of expediting business. It is to amend Section 1-A, page 2.

I understand you have No. 1, but this is the one we would like to take up now, if that is agreeable to you.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. It is, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. An amendment is offered by Delegate Shoemaker to Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, lines 25 to 28, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 29, by striking out "(5)" and inserting: (4)

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker. Do you wish to make a statement in connection with this amendment?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I do, Mr. President.

I will try to be in accord with the comment the Chair made earlier, being in agreement that words are like leaves, where they most abound, much fruit or sense beneath is rarely found.

The amendment which I propose is merely to delete that special provision for veterans' organizations, granting them something that other organizations of similar character do not have.

Like many other people who have been here on the floor, I, too, have served in the armed services of the United States and I suspect I love my country just as much as each of you do.

I agree with the premise that being a citizen creates, in addition to the rights that we get from our country, a certain duty and obligation to our country, and having fulfilled that duty by serving in the armed forces, I do not conceive of anything in our Constitution or the concept of our country that should then give me an additional benefit or an additional right for having done so. I think you all must concur that the nature of veterans' organizations has changed somewhat over the years and is perhaps no longer such an important part of our society as we would be led to believe by placing a specific amendment in the Constitution granting a special favor to those who served their country.

I, therefore, feel that we should strike this clause from the proposed proposal as indicated in the amendment. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, I would like to speak to a point of personal privilege as well as on this amendment, if I may.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you speak on the amendment first?

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Yes, sir.

Mr. President, members of the Convention, I believe that the amendment offered by our delegate is perhaps well taken from his point of view, but from those of us who have had the onus or the burden of taking care of those who have borne the battle, and their children, we have seen the likes of this amendment and this type of expression in our public life ever since we returned from Service. In this regard I do not have to point out to you that once the battle was over, forces within our country under the guise of the Hoover Commission, and others, attempted to equate veterans' suffering, the treatment of wounded and disabled veterans as something beneath contempt. In this regard, Mr. President, it was my intention to rise and ask the chairman, Judge Woodring, whether or not he fully intended to take away from our paraplegics the benefit given to them by constitutional amendment by the people of this Commonwealth, exempting their real estate from property tax. I do understand that Judge Woodring at this point said that it was his intention that this constitutional amendment provision giving to those of our men who suffered the misfortune of losing one or more members of their bodies in Service exemptions from the real estate property tax. The word "infirm," if we understand it now from what the delegate has said, would not protect those who have been singled out by their State as having rendered meritorious service and be given this exemption.

I now say to you that it is not intended that what has been given by the Commonwealth to our paraplegics be then incorporated within Proposal No. 5 and not be left to an assembly that might, perhaps, in the future, equate veterans' sufferings with general sufferings.

I think that any of you who have spent any time with the people of this State should know that there is something different about those who suffer and have infirmities, both physical and mental, by reason of having served in the armed forces. They have always been the beneficent objects of the bounty of this Commonwealth and of this Country and we would like to preserve it.

When I oppose the amendment I am not interested in or worrying about any bar or anything else in the State. I say to you, if it were not for the veterans' organizations within this State, the type of hospitalization and care which our men are now receiving would not be given to them under the name of economy.

Mr. President and members of this Convention, only last week I had my son here, recently returned from Vietnam; I am speaking perhaps to my own self interests. They are coming back the same way—wounded, disabled and in need of treatment. They will not get this treatment unless we have organizations such as the American Legion, the VFW, the Jewish War Veterans, the DAV to stand behind them after the battle is over and they have been forgotten. I had a very fine friend once who spoke to the Fifth Army as I was about to leave for England. Her name was Clair Booth Luce. She was of another party. Here is what she said:

> Our God and our soldiers we alike adore
> On the brink of danger
> And not before.
> After deliverance, both alike we requited
> Our God is forgotten
> And our soldiers slighted.

Vote Mr. Shoemaker's amendment down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Mr. President, I say amen to that. I would just like to call attention to the fact that many of us have comrades who fought in the various wars of this country and we have had a good many in our generation who were denied the privileges and the niceties of home life for many years during the wars. When they came back they wanted a home of their own and a place where they could assemble, a place where they could carry on their Americanism programs. I say to you that there are no organizations in this country that do more for Americanism than the veterans' organizations. I think it would be a shame, when we have recognized them as we have in the past, to now at this Convention say that times have changed, in the midst of this war that we are engaged in in Vietnam. These boys coming home from Vietnam will have an opportunity to become members of these various organizations. They want a place to go; they want to be among friends. I think it is absolutely ridiculous to even think of considering an amendment of this sort.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I might say I am almost shocked to find it necessary to speak on this amendment in opposition. I, too, am a veteran of the Second World War and I was 50 years of age when I volunteered and went to boot camp. I am associated with many of the veterans' organizations which have a long and honorable career in the life of our country. If anybody wants to know how well they are thought of, ask the President of the United States and ask the Members of Congress of the United States and they will tell you to a man that they are happy and glad that these veterans' organizations do exist so that they can give benefits to the man who has borne the battle, who has left his legs on the battlefield, or who laid down his life, so that his widow and his orphans may have some benefits put through the Congress and signed by the President of the United States.

To say that this is unusual is not saying quite what is the fact. From the time of the American Revolution, when this small nation along the seacoast of the Atlantic Ocean fought for its freedom from the mother country, all the way down through all the wars in the history of our Republic, the men who have volunteered and who otherwise got into the armed service of our country have been given some recognition of gratitude and thankfulness on the part of the people of the United States. I say to you that these organizations have helped hundreds of thousands of veterans, who were due to have benefits under the laws of our country; to obtain those benefits because many of them did not have enough knowledge of the laws that were enacted in their behalf to get these benefits. If it were not for these little posts all over the State of Pennsylvania and throughout the United States from top to bottom from east to west and from north to south, a lot of these men who have privileges coming to them from the government would never have known about it except for the service officers of these various veterans' organizations.

Mr. President, I regret that it is necessary for us to speak here today in order to preserve this benefit for the men of our country who have fought and died in battle.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I do not want to quarrel with my good friend, Delegate Strickler. The only expression I want to give to this is the fact that this thing we are dealing with now, this amendment, is not 90-some years old, Mr. President; this was done by an amendment to the Constitution in the last 40 years, and the people have spoken. The people have said, this is what we want to do. This is not Benjamin Franklin, John Hancock and the other people who wrote the original Constitution; this is a mandate by the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I hope there will not be too much conversation on the part of this amendment. I hope it will be voted down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. President, I think it is a shame that we should even speak on such an amendment. I think I say "Amen" to the previous speakers, that is understood.

But I want to call your attention to another factor here, and that is that there has been nobody in this Convention more anxious than I to see a sweeping reform in the matter of tax exemptions. As a matter of fact, if you will examine the proposal I made, you will see a proposal to rip them all out. If that would have carried, of course, that would have answered the whole problem. Here we are singling out from existing tax exemptions a single, small factor in the whole picture of tax exemptions, a very small factor percentagewise or dollarwise. To single out for that punishment the veterans' organizations of Pennsylvania, who certainly have served the citizens of Pennsylvania and the nation, to me seems very despicable.

I hope there are very few votes for this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leinbach.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, I could not sleep tonight if I did not rise in opposition to this amendment.

It just bears out what I have said several times here that too many Americans have a short memory of the sacrifices of those who shed their blood on the field of battle.

I hope this amendment will be soundly defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bagenstose.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. Mr. President, honorably discharged servicemen and servicewomen have given dedicated service to our God and country to help those who are in need. They have contributed to disabled veterans, given scholarships to students, supported parades on all holidays, conducted military funerals and have aided in many other community affairs. The least we can do is to continue this exemption for these people who have given our State the safety of the world.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Bagenstose.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President and delegates, being a past leader of the Veterans of Foreign Wars in Allegheny County, I could stand at this microphone and talk to you for possibly a day or two on this. I realize it is wrong, Mr. President, I promise you I will not.

I would like to go on record and also ask the good friends of mine here assembled to defeat this amendment.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sahli.

DELEGATE SAHLI. Mr. President, the comradeship known only to veterans can best be expressed through the means of their various veterans' associations. As a past commander of the American Legion Post, I can say that only through these organizations do the veterans in need receive the care and the attention and the interest that is due them.

I would urge opposition to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I move we close discussion and go to an immediate vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you Are the delegates ready for the question?

The Chair wishes to recognize Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, at the risk of being procedurally out of order, I think it is necessary for the committee to state the intent on one point, namely, that brought up by Delegate Solomon, whether or not this provision, which is subsection (c) of Section 1A, beginning on line 22 of page 2, excludes the blind veterans, the paraplegics and other specified types of wounded and disabled veterans and I say, without fear of contradiction, for the committee that the intent which this expresses, or was intended to express, is to include and continue the exemptions for such people which were put into effect back in 1923 by special referendum of the people of the Commonwealth.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, we have Judge Woodring's statement and we have it on record in this Convention. The fact of its having been a constitutional amendment, I believe, should have some place either in this proposal or in the spread of the schedule as an expression of intent so that a later Assembly need not act upon that. We would like to have that affirmatively in this. I do want to say, Mr. President, that when I rose I did not know what the delegate's amendment was, but I was trying to get back to our blind and paraplegics. It was just a happenstance that I was where I could be called.

If it is possible, Judge Woodring, to use some language of preservation before this proposal comes up on the third reading, I would be very happy. I know this was your intention but I wanted to make sure it would be so interpreted by those who would come after us.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shoemaker?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—12

Baldus	Filson	Michener	Shoemaker
Bunting	Hook	Morton	Sprogell
Dumbauld	Michael	Sebastian	Thornburgh

NAYS—120

Aurentz	Desmond	Kelly	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Devlin	Krill	Richter
Baldwin	Erwin	Laputka	Roberts
Banes	Fagan	Lee, L.	Rovner
Barron	Fay	Leinbach	Sahli
Barry	Fawcett	Leonard	Scales
Bashoff	Feather	Levin	Scarlett
Benedict	Fineman	Mangery	Scott
Benfield	Fleming	Markley	Shapiro
Bloom	Fohl	Mattioni	Sharp
Braham	Forster	McGeary	Shettig
Brennan	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Broderick	Gehrlein	Meyer	Shrager
Brown	Gerber	Miller, D.	Solomon
Buck	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Stout
Burkholder	Gray	Moorhead	Strickler
Butera	Griffith	More	Stroup
Cain	Hannum	Nelson	Swope
Camardella	Harding	O'Donnell	Thomson
Caputo	Hatter	Orban	Tomascik
Caron	Heyburn	Orbin	Tully
Casey	Himes	Otto	Van Sant
Clark	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Clinger	Horne	Pelletier	Warman
Corey	Huggins	Popil	Westerberg
Cortese	Jaroiamio	Pott	Whittum
Cosetti	Johnson	Prendergast	Wilcox
Cunningham	Kauffman	Quiles	Wilmarth
Curran	Keller, J.	Rappaport	Woodring
Dalley	Keller, M.	Redick	Woodside

NOT VOTING—31

Aberman	Gabreski	Lane	Powell
Allison	Goldman	Leach	Rea
Amsterdam	Gouger	Lee, K.	Ruth
Baldrige	Henderson	Manderino	Scranton
Conley	Hostetler	Musselman	Silverman
Croop	Irvis	Murray	Tate
Donaldson	King	Pechan	Welsh
Donolow	Kline	Percey

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

RAPPAPORT AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now the Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport who I understand has an amendment.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I might say in introduction that I voted "nay" on the previous amendment and agree very heartily with the sentiments expressed by my learned friend, the delegate from Butler County.

I have an amendment to the same section involving veterans' posts. After granting the exception it would read, "provided that no exemption hereunder shall be granted for that part of such premises which is regularly used for the sale and/or consumption of alcoholic beverages." We have a constant problem of not the legitimate veterans' posts—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would Delegate Rappaport yield until we have the clerk read his amendment?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Surely. I am very sorry.
PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?
DELEGATE RAPPAPORT offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 28, by removing the semi-colon after "purposes" and inserting: , provided that no exemption hereunder shall be granted for that part of such premises which is regularly used for the sale and/or consumption of alcoholic beverages:

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, this amendment is not directed at legitimate veterans' activities. We are all aware of them. They perform great services. I know of several posts that spend great amounts of money every year entertaining veterans at the Valley Forge Hospital and at the Philadelphia Naval Hospital. Such activities should be encouraged and are in the public interest.

This amendment is directed rather at those taprooms which operate under the guise of a veterans' post whose only raison d'etre is to be open on Sunday and to sell whiskey cheaper than a neighboring taproom can and thus are in competition with private industry. A privately-owned taproom has to pay considerable taxes every year to the Commonwealth, both real estate taxes directly or indirectly and license fees, and is very strictly supervised by the Pennsylvania Liquor Control Board. These speakeasies exist, hiding behind the flag of patriotism when they have no right to and perform no social purpose.

I would, therefore, ask that my amendment be adopted. I state specifically, it is directed only to limit the exemption to those parts of the premises which are used for the proper patriotic purposes of the veterans' organizations. Any place where alcohol is regularly consumed or sold loses its exemption pro rata. This is not directed at the occasional party, but at the regular business of sale and consumption of alcoholic beverages.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I would like to call on the chairman of the subcommittee, Delegate Gerber.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber, do you wish to be recognized?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, in response to Delegate Rappaport's statement, I would suggest that he may not be fully aware of all the facts. The good work done by the various veterans' organizations in our Commonwealth was eloquently spoken about by former Lieutenant Governor Strickler, former Congressman Swope, Delegate Redick, Delegate Solomon, Delegate Bagenstose, former Representative Hocker, and the many others. I think it should be noted that the funds from much of this work come from the opportunities that these organizations have to maintain this place of sociability. Were they not able to have this bar, as Delegate Rappaport calls it, they would not have the funds, you see, to be able to function in the eleemosynary manner in which they do. The laws of our Commonwealth no longer permit them to have slot machines to work the way they did many, many years ago before it was illegal. At the present time the only funds that the veterans' organizations have is the legitimate operation of the bar.

I must add something else, too. These bars are also licensed under a club license. These bars are also watched, these bars are also disciplined by the State Liquor Control Board. I might also add they do not have a monopoly to function on Sunday. They are not speakeasies; they are legitimate, legal bona fide licensed liquor-selling establishments. Other legal, bona fide liquor-selling establishments also are open on Sundays, whether it be the Moose, the Eagles or the Elks or private country clubs or various private clubs, which Delegate Rappaport may be more familiar with in the city of Philadelphia in view of the fact that he is a city boy, such as, the Locust Club, the Racket Club or the Union League.

I think it would be rather unfair to single out the veterans' organizations who use these moneys initially for the benefit of the various enterprises, described much more eloquently than I could, by General Strickler and the other men who spoke earlier. I think these facts should be made known.

Finally, a third point: Our committee did a little bit of study here. We also learned that in many of these veterans' posts the only room they have is where the bar is. Now when do we decide what is going to be tax exempt? Only during the hours when the bar is open? Only during the hours when the bar is closed? They use that same room for meeting purposes and for planning of their various functions at the Valley Forge General Hospital or Coatesville or the various other institutions of that nature that this Commonwealth is fortunate enough to have in its midst. Therefore, fellow delegates, Mr. President, I would urge the defeat of this amendment on the basis of the deep, in-depth and sound study by our committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Mr. President, I rise as a member of the Subcommittee on Taxation and as a member of the Committee on Taxation and State Finance. I would like to state my understanding of what the intention of the committee was in adopting the language that is now proposed to be amended. I participated in the drafting of the language of Section 4 on page 2 of the printer's number before us. It was my understanding that this language was intended to restrict the exemption only to that property which is used for benevolent, charitable or patriotic purposes. As I understood our discussion, there was never any understanding that property used regularly and continually for the sale of alcoholic beverages was property used either for benevolent, charitable or patriotic purposes. I, therefore, state that it is my understanding that the Committee on Taxation and State Finance, in adopting the language which is now before us in the committee proposal, would accomplish the very objective that is proposed by the amendment being offered by Mr. Rappaport.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, may I answer Delegate Baldus's statement one moment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. Do you stand to be interrogated, Delegate Baldus, by Delegate Gerber?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes.

DELEGATE GERBER. Delegate Baldus, is it not true that the words of that portion which you stated dealt with the situation where the bar was solely for the purpose of liquor-selling and sociability and in no way had anything connected with the purpose of the organization in its veterans' activities?

DELEGATE BALDUS. The language states in the proposal, Delegate Gerber, "actually and regularly used for benevolent, charitable or patriotic purposes". It was my understanding that the intent was that if a bar, as is the case in many veterans' clubs, is used solely for that purpose or 95 per cent of the time for that purpose, that it would not be entitled to an exemption. However, when the property is used less frequently than that for the sale of alcoholic beverages, then I think it would be a case for the court to decide.

DELEGATE GERBER. Thank you. That is the point I wanted to make. Thank you very much, Delegate Baldus.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. After 45 years or 50 years of experience with veterans' clubs, I know that in our neighborhood particularly—and I can speak for my neighborhood and the veterans' clubs that I have been in—I do not see how on earth you can tax the premises used for alcoholic beverages. I think we are undertaking something here of an imaginative nature which could not be done because most of these clubs—I would say about, if I had to make an estimate, 50 to 75 per cent or better than that, or 80 per cent—are clubs that you could not segregate the premises used for the sale of alcoholic beverages and for club purposes.

I think the greatest thing that has been overlooked in this entire matter is the fellowship which is created here in these clubs by having the alcoholic beverages. I doubt very much if this patriotic spirit, which we all have and of which we now speak, could be carried on by these clubs, by these veterans' organizations, if you taxed them or if you segregated it, and it would be just the same as cutting off their right arm for carrying on their patriotic purposes. I would absolutely ask the delegates here to vote this down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Reynolds.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. Mr. President, I rise to oppose that amendment by Delegate Rappaport. The Liquor Control Board supervises the action of all clubs and they see to it that these clubs are operated for members only; that is their job. If you are going to take away from them their social rooms—I do not like to call them bars—I do not believe we ought to say that our veterans' clubs are bars. I think they are social rooms for their families and for themselves to have a place where they can go and will not be exposed to the high prices of a taproom. A taproom is not in competition with them, because they are not allowed to sell at certain hours that the taprooms are. The small profit they make out of that will help to keep them going. As Delegate Bloom said, you cannot segregate the bar or the social room from the other places in these small clubs because sometimes it is just one room partitioned off.

I think it is a shame that we would even come here and try to reduce the pleasure that they would have with their friends and with their families. I hope that we will vote it down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Fawcett.

DELEGATE FAWCETT. Mr. President, I call for the question.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I rise to a question of personal privilege, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may, Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. On the last amendment, my light flashed on and then off and the clerk informs me that no vote was recorded. May I please be recorded as "no," and may an engineer be sent up to check the button.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall have the engineer sent up there immediately and shall spread your remarks on the record.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Fawcett.

DELEGATE FAWCETT. Mr. President, may I correct my statement? I call for the end of the debate, a vote on the debate.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. Are the delegates ready for the question?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, may I have 30 seconds?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Rappaport is entitled to have 30 seconds to answer and then we are going to vote on the question. Proceed.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I wish to state that we have discussed this very thoroughly. I do not want to answer the debate, although I note that there is apparently a very serious disagreement on the committee. However, I might say in response to Delegate Gerber that I am not a member of any club which serves alcoholic beverages on Sunday. I might also state that I am not a member of the Union League; I am not a member of the Rittenhouse Club; I am not a member of the Philadelphia Club; I am not a member of the Locust Club; and I am authorized by Delegate Gray to state that he is not a member of any of these clubs either.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We now unlock the voting machine. The question is,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Rappaport?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—15

Baldus	Cunningham	Hook	Sebastian
Barry	Dumbauld	Michael	Shapiro
Conley	Filson	Michener	Shoemaker
Cosetti	Himes	Rappaport

NAYS—115

Allison	Curran	Kelly	Redick
Amsterdam	Dailey	Krill	Reynolds
Aurentz	Desmond	Laputka	Richter
Bagenstose	Devlin	Leach	Roberts
Baldwin	Erwin	Lee, K.	Rovner
Banes	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Sahli
Barron	Fay	Leinbach	Scales
Bashoff	Feather	Manderino	Scarlett
Benedict	Fineman	Mangery	Scott
Benfield	Fleming	Markley	Sharp
Bloom	Fohl	Mattioni	Shettig
Braham	Forster	McGeary	Shively
Brennan	Fortney	McGlynn	Shrager
Broderick	Gehrlein	Meyer	Stout
Brown	Gerber	Miller, D.	Strickler
Buck	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Swope
Bunting	Gray	Moorhead	Thomson
Burkholder	Griffith	More	Thornburgh
Butera	Hannum	Morton	Tomasacik
Cain	Hatter	Murray	Tully
Camardella	Heyburn	Nelson	Van Sant
Caputo	Hocker	O'Donnell	Waldron
Caron	Huggins	Orban	Warman
Casey	Irvis	Orbin	Westerberg
Clark	Jirolamo	Otto	Whittum
Clinger	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Wilcox
Corey	Kauffman	Popil	Woodring
Cortese	Keller, J	Poit	Woodside
Croop	Keller, M	Prendergast

NOT VOTING—33

Aberman	Henderson	Musselman	Scranton
Baldrige	Horne	Pechan	Silverman
Donaldson	Hostetler	Pelletier	Solomon
Donolow	King	Percey	Sprogell
Fagan	Kline	Powell	Stroup
Gabreski	Lane	Quiles	Tate
Goldman	Leonard	Rea	Welsh
Gouger	Levin	Ruth	Wilmarth
Harding

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CARON AMENDMENTS TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CARON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 18, by striking out "regularly stated"

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, I would like to have each amendment taken as it comes and disposed of before doing all of them.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, we are going to take them one at a time. The first amendment is the one that was just read by the clerk. Is that correct?

DELEGATE CARON. Yes, sir.

When I came to this Convention I was warned there was a considerable number of lawyers who made up the body of this group and I just want to announce publicly that I have received my law degree since being here.

The reason that I have suggested the elimination of the words "regularly stated," which, in effect, returns this phrase back to the original Constitution, is that essentially the purpose of some of the thoughts and thinking was to tighten up on the exemptions as now interpreted, and in this particular case the insertion of the words "regularly stated" tends to loosen rather than tighten same.

Under the circumstances I feel that if we return to the original wording as is indicated in the constitution now in effect, we are not only maintaining the present status but also are keeping the exemptions where we think they should be.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Has the chairman of the committee any comment in connection with this amendment?

The Chair recognizes Chairman Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President and fellow delegates, the 1873 Constitution permits the General Assembly to exempt actual places of religious worship. I think that provision must be read in its historical context and that when that constitutional provision was adopted, a place of religious worship was usually a very modest building on a commons or at a corner of the municipality or a country road intersection and was a very modest little holding. Today the growth of the holdings of religious institutions has attained a place that was thoroughly unforeseen in past generations to the point that there is a definite squeeze and hardship on the tax base of the various municipalities.

The reason that the committee by a rather generous majority included the words "regularly stated" places of religious worship is in an effort to restrict the exemption to the purpose of the institutions as it was originally understood. Therefore, Mr. President, as one of the chairmen of the committee, I oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Only the fact that rather than restricting it, as the Judge has indicated, in actuality, according to the legal interpretations that I have heard, it loosens it. So it does not do what we thought it would do.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Caron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—40

Allison	Caputo	Filson	Michener
Amsterdam	Caron	Fleming	More
Barron	Casey	Gehrlein	Murray
Barry	Cunningham	Harding	Nelson
Benedict	Curran	Heyburn	Otto
Benfield	Dailey	Huggins	Sebastian
Broderick	Desmond	Irvis	Strickler
Buck	Dumbauld	Markley	Swope
Bunting	Fawcett	Mattioni	Van Sant
Burkholder	Fay	McGlynn	Tully

NAYS—86

Aurentz	Feather	Lee, K.	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fineman	Lee, L.	Ruth
Baldus	Fohl	Leinbach	Sahli
Baldwin	Forster	Leonard	Scales
Banes	Fortney	Levin	Scarlett
Bashoff	Gerber	Manderino	Scott
Bloom	Goldstein	Mangery	Shettig
Braham	Gray	Meyer	Shively
Brennan	Griffith	Michael	Shoemaker
Brown	Hannum	Miller, D.	Solomon
Butera	Hatter	Miller, R.	Sprogell
Cain	Himes	Moorhead	Stout
Camardella	Hocker	Morton	Thomson
Clark	Hook	Orban	Tomascik
Clinger	Horne	Pasquerilla	Warman
Conley	Jirolamo	Pott	Westerberg
Corey	Johnson	Powell	Whittum
Cortese	Kauffman	Prendergast	Wilcox
Croop	Keller, J.	Redick	Wilmarth
Devlin	Keller, M.	Reynolds	Woodring
Erwin	Krill	Richter	Woodside
Fagan	Leach

NOT VOTING—37

Aberman	Kelly	Pechan	Shapiro
Baldrige	King	Pelletier	Sharp
Cosetti	Kline	Percey	Shrager
Donaldson	Lane	Popii	Silverman
Donolow	Laputka	Quiles	Stroup
Gabreski	McGeary	Rappaport	Tate
Goldman	Musselman	Rea	Thornburgh
Gouger	O'Donnell	Rovner	Waldron
Henderson	Orbin	Scranton	Welsh
Hostetler

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CARON offered an amendment which was read by the clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 19, by striking out "Actual places" and inserting: Places

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, lines 21 and 22, by striking out all of said lines and inserting a semi-colon

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

DIVISION OF AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Again I would like to express my thinking to the group here. The word "actual," as I interpret it, could create serious problems. Over a period of many, many years the courts have upheld what we mean by places of burial. I also understand that any time you insert another word, theoretically you give it a new meaning or at least a different intent. The problem with the use of the word "actual" is that at this point it becomes confusing. What does it really mean? Does it mean only the place where you put the body? Does it mean the roadway that leads to the burial place of the body? Therefore, I think that in the interpretation of the words "actual place of burial" we create a real problem for the courts to decide in the years ahead.

The other portion of it is pertaining to the language whereby an organization or person derives no profit from the operation of the cemetery. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, while the copies are being distributed, I would like to point out that this proposed amendment by Delegate Caron does two things: One, it endeavors to delete the word "actual" in the definition of burial places; and secondly, it strikes out a rather long clause at the end of the provision.

If it is in order, Mr. President, I would like to move or suggest that we vote on these two propositions. I think they are entirely separate and I think that we might consider them separately, if that is not out of order.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I would make the same motion. It was my intention when I stood up to have them voted on separately if possible.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you explain again

how you want them separated, Delegate Woodring. Do you want to vote on Section 1 first? Delegate Caron, this is your amendment. Would you have any objection to having it considered as two separate amendments?

DELEGATE CARON. No, sir. I have another amendment ready. I would accept the suggestion of voting on line 19, the word "actual".

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Will the Convention agree to consider this as two amendments in order to expedite the work of the Convention? Is there anyone who objects? The Chair hears no objection so we will now consider these two amendments being offered by Delegate Caron. The first amendment would be the first sentence: "Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 19, by striking out 'Actual places' and inserting 'Places' ". Is that correct?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I spoke to this at some length during the interrogation period on Friday morning last. I endeavored to explain that it has come to the attention of the committee during the public hearings and otherwise that in not a few instances throughout the Commonwealth, rather substantial holdings of real estate exist wherein one or a few bodies are buried and, perhaps, a small portion of that tract will actually be developed as a burial ground while the balance of the premise might be sold off as a development area or otherwise. The committee, therefore, felt very strongly on the need to insert the word "actual" before the words "places of burial," "actual places of burial." I stated last Friday that it was the intent of the committee that this would, of course, include the gateway into the burial grounds; it would include the lanes and roads, the paths leading to the various graves and portions of the cemetery; but that only those portions which are actually used as a cemetery or place of burial would be exempt under this provision.

I, therefore, in view of the expressed intent of the committee, would recommend that we vote "no" on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I am waiting for the second section of this proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, I have one question which maybe you could clarify, Delegate Woodring.

I am concerned as to whether, for example, the roads and the administration building would be exempt under this present proposal?

DELEGATE WOODRING. The answer is yes.

DELEGATE MORTON. They may be considered actual places of burial then?

DELEGATE WOODRING. They would be considered as a part of the establishment of the actual place of burial.

DELEGATE MORTON. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Thank you.

The only answer I have to that is that others in the legal profession have interpreted otherwise when you start saying that actual place of burial is where you put the body.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise in support of this amendment.

I am sure that we are getting again, by inserting this word, into an area which is legislative and not constitutional. The legislature has ample authority to make restrictions in the laws pertaining to exemptions of these burial places. I fear very much that by voting on this particular question to allow the word "actual" to be inserted here again, we are invading the province of the legislature.

I am sure that death and taxes and maybe polluted water and sewage are things that we can no longer avoid, but certainly we should have the greatest reverence and respect for places of burial.

I am sure that the particular evil to which Delegate Woodring refers could be very easily cured by legislation.

I also want to add that the Internal Revenue Service has a close tie and rope and hold on the corporations involved in the administering of burial places. I, therefore, respectfully ask the delegates to support this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Just a brief word in answer to that, the word "actual" was borrowed from the 1873 Constitution which starts out: "Actual places of religious worship, places of burial," and so on, it being a word of art in the 1873 Constitution as it pertains to places of religious worship, the committee saw fit to borrow it and insert it in this connection.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Caron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—49

Allison	Cortese	Goldstein	Morton
Banes	Cunningham	Harding	Murray
Barron	Curran	Hook	Nelson
Brennan	Dailey	Huggins	Orban
Brown	Desmond	Irvis	Reynolds
Buck	Devlin	Jirolamo	Sahli
Bunting	Dumbauld	Kauffman	Scales
Burkholder	Erwin	Keller, J.	Sebastian
Butera	Fay	Mandarino	Solomon
Camardella	Filson	Mattioni	Strickler
Caputo	Fleming	Meyer	Swope
Caron	Gehrlein	More	Tully
Casey

NAYS—84

Amsterdam	Feather	Lembach	Rovner
Aurentz	Fineman	Levin	Ruth
Bagenstose	Fohl	Mangery	Scarlett
Baldus	Forster	Markley	Scott
Baldwin	Fortney	McGlynn	Sharp
Barry	Gerber	Michael	Shively
Bashoff	Griffith	Michener	Shoemaker
Benedict	Hannum	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Benfield	Hatter	Miller, R	Stout
Bloom	Heyburn	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Braham	Himes	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Broderick	Hocker	Otto	Van Sant
Cain	Horne	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Clark	Johnson	Pelletier	Warman
Clinger	Keller, M.	Popil	Welsh
Conley	Kelly	Pott	Westerberg
Corey	Krill	Powell	Whittum
Cosetti	Laputka	Prendergast	Wilcox
Croop	Leach	Redick	Wilmarth
Fagan	Lee, K	Richter	Woodring
Fawcett	Lee, L.	Roberts	Woodside

NOT VOTING—30

Aberman	Henderson	Orbin	Shapiro
Baldrige	Hostetler	Pechan	Shettig
Donaldson	King	Percey	Shrager
Donolow	Kline	Quiles	Silverman
Gabreski	Lane	Rappaport	Stroup
Goldman	Leonard	Rea	Tate
Gouger	McGeary	Scranton	Thomson
Gray	Musselman

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we consider the second part of this amendment which you have before you.

The second part reads:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, lines 21 and 22, by striking out all of said lines and inserting a semicolon.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron who proposed the amendment.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, that amendment I would like to suggest we drop because of another amendment which you should have. I am not sure the rest of them do. It is one in which the committee will agree to the wording.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are, therefore, withdrawing this amendment?

DELEGATE CARON. The second part has been substituted with this one here, which you also have.

I will read that if I may.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Just a minute until we see if we have that one.

DELEGATE CARON. It is the fourth one down which says: "and no substantial part of whose activity consists".

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Just a minute, Delegate Caron. I do not think we have that amendment you are talking about.

First of all, is there any objection to Delegate Caron's withdrawing the second part of this amendment that has been distributed?

The Chair hears none.

We will consider the second part withdrawn.

We do not have the amendment as yet to which you are referring. Would you offer the next amendment and then we will come back to it?

The clerk will now read the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CARON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 21, by striking out "and not regularly engaged" and inserting: and no substantial part of whose activity consists

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. When you receive this, please strike out the first three lines including the word "places". The amendment being offered at this time by Delegate Caron starts out with "Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, line 21, by striking out 'and not regularly engaged' and inserting 'and no substantial part of whose activity consists' ". Is that correct?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Clinger.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Mr. President, just a point of inquiry. What amendment was withdrawn? I thought that was the one that was withdrawn.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No, he withdrew the second part of the last amendment that we voted on. We had divided it into two halves and the second half of it he withdrew.

DELEGATE CLINGER. It is my understanding that that is precisely the one that we have now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am told that it is not. It does not read exactly the same.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. The reason for the suggested change in terminology from "and not regularly engaged" to "and no substantial part of whose activity consists" again is by reason of a legal interpretation. I have been advised by those who know that this terminology that I have suggested as an amendment more explicitly explains and defines the fact that what we are really getting at is tightening up on those engaged in the work, and if we establish this terminology, we eliminate the profit motive that currently occasionally gets by under the present interpretation.

Therefore, I would like to suggest that the body approve to change the words from "and not regularly engaged" to read "and no substantial part of whose activity consists".

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, I think it is appropriate that we in the Convention deal with the article concerning burial after we hear the public opinion toward our Convention to this date. I think it is also appropriate that we think in terms of some things that were raised probably in the committee but maybe should be made more specific to the delegates here in this hall.

Pennsylvania has three types of cemetery associations: those directly managed by churches and synagogues, nonprofit cemeteries and profit-motivated corporations. All three of these associations in the State have opposed this proposal on the basis of the limitations of the sale of personal property, for instance, burial vaults, memorials and flowers. Do not let that sway you. You are in the Convention. Nobody is going to give us a memorial. But I do think that we need to realize that such sales are by tradition normal and necessary to proper cemetery management; that cemeteries sell only to themselves in the same manner as cooperatives, motor clubs and similar organizations and not to the general public. Many cemeteries by their endowment have contractual agreements with their lot owners to supply these items as part of the service. Sales of these items are convenient and a satisfaction to lot owners. Certain cemeteries with insufficient income from land or services need such additional income to meet the mounting costs that we are trying to place upon them, and the cemetery receives the smallest portion of the burial dollar and that is the only one who gives continued service beyond those final moments with the flowers and the nice words with which I am familiar in my profession.

I think this amendment is necessary in this document that we are trying to write for the future. I do not think we can stifle or suffocate an organization and I do not think that we can really make only those pay who could afford to pay, for at the same time in doing this we are going to make those suffer who can ill afford to suffer.

It is for this reason that I support the amendment offered by Delegate Caron.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Thank you, Mr. President, I would direct a question to the chairman of the committee, if I could, with regard to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Proceed with your question.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Am I not correct that the profit-making corporations which operate cemeteries are now taxable under the present Constitution and the present law?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes, Delegate Shoemaker, that is correct.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Then this exclusion would not affect them in any event?

DELEGATE WOODRING. No.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Caron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—100

Allison	Cunningham	Jirolamo	Orban
Amsterdam	Curran	Johnson	Otto
Aurentz	Dailey	Kauffman	Pasquerilla
Bagenstose	Desmond	Keller, J.	Pelletier
Baldus	Devlin	Krill	Popil
Baldwin	Dumbauld	Laputka	Pott
Banes	Erwin	Leach	Prendergast
Barron	Fagan	Lee, K.	Reynolds
Barry	Fawcett	Lee, L	Richter
Beshoff	Fay	Lembach	Ruth
Benedict	Filson	Levin	Scott
Benfield	Fineman	Mangery	Sebastian
Brennan	Fleming	Markley	Sharp
Brown	Fohl	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Burkholder	Gehrlein	McGeary	Shrager
Butera	Gerber	McGlynn	Solomon
Cain	Goldstein	Meyer	Stout
Camardella	Griffith	Michael	Strickler
Caputo	Hannum	Michener	Swope
Caron	Harding	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Casey	Hatter	More	Tully
Clinger	Hook	Morton	Welsh
Corey	Horne	Murray	Westerberg
Cortese	Huggins	Nelson	Wilmarth
Cosetti	Irvis	O'Donnell	Woodside

NAYS—33

Bloom	Forster	Moorhead	Thomson
Braham	Fortney	Powell	Thornburgh
Broderick	Heyburn	Roberts	Van Sant
Buck	Himes	Rovner	Waldron
Bunting	Hocker	Sahli	Warman
Clark	Keller, M.	Scales	Whittum
Conley	Kelly	Scarlett	Wilcox
Croop	Miller, D.	Shively	Woodring
Feather

NOT VOTING—30

Aberman	Henderson	Orbin	Scranton
Baldrige	Hostetler	Pechan	Shapiro
Donaldson	King	Percey	Shettig
Donolow	Kline	Quiles	Silverman
Gabreski	Lane	Rappaport	Sprogell
Goldman	Leonard	Rea	Stroup
Gouger	Mandarino	Redick	Tate
Gray	Musselman

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now I understand Delegate Caron has another amendment.

The clerk shall read that amendment.

I am told that copies of this have been distributed.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CARON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Section 1, (Sec. 1A), page 2, lines 29 and 30 by striking out: but in the case in line 29 and all of line 30

Amend Section 1, (Sec. 1A), page 3, lines 1 and 2, by striking out all of said lines and inserting a period.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Caron?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. As a member of the subcommittee of this particular group since its inception when we first discussed these various problems, I have been concerned with the wording and terminology that we came up with in relation to institutions of purely public charity. The longer I listened to all the experts, the more confused I got and the more I realized that at least in my book I have the deep conviction that most of the problems created throughout the Commonwealth are created by local choice. In most cases, as far as I can determine, our people have been with complete authority to levy taxes or to grant exemptions or to not grant them, depending upon the law and the circumstances, and yet time after time, by reason of local public pressure or local public opinion, exemptions have been given which have not been spelled out within the provisions of the Constitution. Consequently, I think that basically our problem here is one of local enforcement rather than of changing the language of the Constitution.

I am also concerned, as some of the other delegates are, that in the use of this new terminology we are actually opening the door for not covering—or at least for a determination by the courts as to whether they will be covered—the YMCA and the campsites, the Boy Scouts and things like this which, in my opinion, may or may not be under this particular terminology. Therefore, in order to again go back to the established practices that have been built up by a long series of court cases over the years, I have suggested that we return to the original language, providing for tax exemptions to institutions of purely public charity, and I will allow it to stand on the merits of yesterday for the future of tomorrow.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I am obliged to resist the motion for this amendment and to suggest that we vote against it and defeat it. I am glad that the amendment was offered, however, because it affords me an opportunity to correct a statement which I made to the Convention in good faith last Friday when I told you that, in my opinion, the exemptions of fraternity houses might be denied and that they might become taxable. When I went home Saturday night, in my local paper I found an article in which the Supreme Court, by not acting, affirmed a decision which the Superior Court refrained to make because it divided evenly; thereby, a decision of Thomas F. Lansberry, presiding specially in courts of Lehigh County, ruled that fraternity houses form an integral part of the educational function, and therefore continued the exemption which they had theretofore enjoyed.

This subsection 5 on which the amendment is now offered has to do with such charities, purely public charities, "institutions of purely public charity," which are the constitutional words from the 1873 document. However, the committee is well aware, as I have formerly briefly referred to, of the fact that municipalities are losing more and more of their tax rolls and the breadth of their tax base. This latter clause which the amendment would delete was deliberately inserted by the committee in order to avoid and eliminate some of the abuses which have crept into the exemption clause for institutions of purely public charity. I think that it would be a mistake to adopt this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Horne.

DELEGATE HORNE. Mr. President, may I ask Delegate Woodring a question? I think I know the answer and I believe it is apropos of this section.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE HORNE. Does this section or does this Proposal No. 5 in any way change the tax-exempt status of nonpublic schools?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the answer is no.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are there any other questions?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, again I would like to question the Judge. Under the present interpretation, as I get it, much of the property adjacent to schools used for purposes of the schools is now tax-exempt, but when you get into the use of the words "actually" and "regularly" and "only that portion thereof," again I understand that this could change the legal interpretation of what the tax exemption would be, based on today and based on the change in the terminology.

I do not pretend to be a lawyer nor an individual who has a real knowledge on this; I am only expressing the thoughts that have been expressed to me.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the intent of the Committee on Taxation and Finance concerning nonpublic schools is that their real estate will continue to be exempt as heretofore for all of their holdings which are necessary and an integral part of the institution. This would include the administration building, obviously; it would include the gymnasium; it would include the classrooms, the laboratories; it would include, according to this decision with which our Supreme Court just last week did not disagree, dormitories and other buildings for necessary housing, et cetera, et cetera, and so forth.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Mr. President, I would like to speak in opposition to this amendment. The history of exemptions, particularly for purely public charities, has been one of constant expansion. More and more real estate, in some counties enormous tracts of real estate, have been acquired by these public charities. This necessarily chips away at the tax base. It means that the individuals who retain their own homes or their own businesses then are paying all the taxes while the others ride free.

I feel that the proposal as written by the committee does help to tighten this matter up. I certainly oppose any loosening of it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does Delegate Murray wish to be recognized?

DELEGATE MURRAY. Yes, Mr. President. I would like to ask one short question here. Orphanages naturally would come under public charity. But how about the eating hall of an orphanage if it was not in the same building? Would that be exempt?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I could not hear, Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. In the line of orphanages, if the eating hall of an orphanage was not in the same building, would that be exempt?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I would think it is very definitely a part of the service which the truly public charity administers.

DELEGATE MURRAY. How about a parking lot for an orphanage?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I am advised by the chairmen of the subcommittee, both of them in unison said, "Exempt."

DELEGATE MURRAY. And the same with an outdoor playground facility?

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is certainly exempt.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I wonder if Delegate Woodring would mind being interrogated on the subject of this amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He has already agreed.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Woodring, in my county we have had two cases which may be relevant to this inquiry. One concerned the Freedoms Foundation at Valley Forge. A great part of the exemption of the Freedoms Foundation was struck off and therefore the property was subjected to tax because it was not regularly engaged and used for the purposes of the institution.

In like manner, a good part of reserve acreage acquired by the Church Farm School on Route 30 near Exton, Pennsylvania, was subjected to tax for the same reason. Based not only on these two cases but on others of which I have heard, I have the impression that under the law now, holdings by public charities which are not regularly used for the purposes of the institution are already subject to the tax. Am I in error?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I think the answer is "yes" and "no." I think there is a great disparity or lack of uniformity in the administration of the law throughout the Commonwealth. In many jurisdictions it is now taxable; in other jurisdictions it is not. One of the purposes of this amendment to our present Constitution is to make it more uniform.

Have I answered the delegate's question?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I think you have, Delegate Woodring. My problem is that the Supreme Court has had approximately 90-some odd years to forge out the precise limits and precise meaning of the present language. I am wondering if we are not inviting them to spend another 90 years trying to hack out precisely what this change effects.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, in an effort to give a more precise answer to the delegate's question, I would say that I am not personally informed on the two specific examples which the delegate has stated and I would like to call on Delegate Gerber, a co-chairman of the subcommittee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, Chairman Woodring, Delegate O'Donnell, fellow delegates, I think the answer to the question of Delegate O'Donnell is that with specific reference to the Freedoms Foundation case, I am sure you recall that the Freedoms Foundation used only a very small portion of a rather large estate for the facility of the Freedoms Foundation, so it was determined that because of that the entire estate should not be deemed exempt and that portion of it which was not should continue on the county tax assessment rolls as a ratable.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes, and I helped to participate in that case to make it subject to tax. I thought I understood the law to be just exactly as here.

DELEGATE GERBER. I think, unfortunately, Delegate O'Donnell, that in certain counties it is not as it was, due to your efforts as a counselor in that case.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Caron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—39

Allison	Curran	Harding	Pelletier
Barry	Desmond	Levin	Scott
Brennan	Devlin	Manderino	Sebastian
Bunting	Dumbauld	Mattioni	Shrager
Burkholder	Fay	McGlynn	Solomon
Butera	Feather	More	Stout
Caputo	Filson	Murray	Tully
Caron	Gehrlein	Nelson	Welsh
Casey	Goldstein	O'Donnell	Woodside
Cortese	Hannum	Orban

NAYS—87

Amsterdam	Dailey	Kelly	Richter
Aurentz	Erwin	Krill	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fagan	Leach	Rovner
Baldus	Fawcett	Lee, K.	Ruth
Baldwin	Fineman	Lee, L.	Sahli
Banes	Fohl	Leinbach	Scales
Barron	Forster	Mangery	Scarlett
Benedict	Fortney	McGeary	Shapiro
Benfield	Gerber	Meyer	Sharp
Bloom	Griffith	Michael	Shively
Braham	Halter	Michener	Shoemaker
Broderick	Heyburn	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Brown	Himes	Miller, R	Strickler
Buck	Hocker	Moorhead	Thomson
Camardella	Hook	Morton	Thornburgh
Clark	Huggins	Orbin	Van Sant
Clinger	Irvis	Otto	Westerberg
Conley	Jirolanio	Popil	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Pott	Wilcox
Cosetti	Kauffman	Powell	Wilmarth
Croop	Keller, J.	Rappaport	Woodring
Cunningham	Keller, M	Reynolds

NOT VOTING—37

Aberman	Gray	Markley	Scranton
Baldrige	Henderson	Musselman	Shettig
Bashoff	Horne	Pasquerilla	Silverman
Cain	Hosteller	Pechan	Stroup
Donaldson	King	Percey	Swope
Donolow	Kline	Prendergast	Tate
Fleming	Lane	Quiles	Tomascik
Gabreski	Laputka	Rea	Waldron
Goldman	Leonard	Redick	Warman
Gouger

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BURKHOLDER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Burkholder.

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. Mr. President, I read in place and offer the following amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 2, by inserting after "institution.": That portion of summer campsites owned by recognized public charities which are used each summer for camping purposes shall be deemed to be "regularly used" within the meaning of this clause.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Burkholder.

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. Mr. President, this is the YMCA and the Boy Scout camping amendment. It is designed for the purpose of being sure that campsites, which are regularly used in the summer by the Boy Scouts and the YMCA to provide camping facilities for the needy boys and girls at low prices, can be free of tax.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I believe I speak for the committee when I say that this amendment should be denied and defeated. There is nothing especially harmful in the amendment, but when it is stated that it is to cover the Boy Scouts and the Girl Scouts, also I would suggest the YMHA and a great many other institutions, by including the campsites by a rule of construction, with which Delegate Burkholder is thoroughly familiar, more so than I, perhaps by reason of his seniority in office, I would suggest that we exclude, or we very possibly might exclude, many other institutions and worthy causes. I think for that reason alone the motion ought to be denied and defeated. However, in accordance with statements made at the interrogation period on this proposal last Friday, it was thoroughly understood, and the intent of the committee and the intent of the proposal was stated, that if campsites of charitable institutions are regularly used or used with some degree of regularity, they should be included in the exemption clause.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Burkholder.

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. Mr. President, I would just like to point out that the camps of the YMCA and the camps of the Boy Scouts and the camps of all the other organizations that Delegate Woodring mentioned provide means for camping for youngsters who do not have the money to go to professional camps, which are very expensive. It is this type of activity that, after at least 30 years of YMCA experience, I have learned is one of the best tools for character building among young people. In spite of the fact that at the interrogation Judge Woodring said that such places would be exempt, I do not feel that judges in the future necessarily would have to exempt them because most of those places are used in summer months; they certainly are not used in midwinter months. There may be some activity in the late spring and early fall, but they are not regularly used and, therefore, it seems to me that this Convention should not remove from the exemption rolls types like that which are presently exempt.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I would like to interrogate Delegate Burkholder.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you stand for interrogation, Delegate Burkholder, by Delegate Jirolanio?

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. Yes indeed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Delegate Burkholder, would this amendment protect the same public charities if they also used camps in the wintertime for their own purposes?

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. If they were used regularly, undoubtedly it would protect them, but most of the equipment which YMCAs, for example, have do not lend themselves for use in the wintertime; they do not have the heating facilities and they do not have the protection. A lot of the camping is done in tents or in shelters which are open at the sides and are not suitable for winter camping. The time for camping is summertime.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Would not this amendment actually take away from a public charity if they had a winter camp? This language would designate that all they would be interested in would be summer camps and not winter camps. You would be taking something away from the very groups that you would like to help. Is that not so?

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. I had not intended it that way.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Look at it once.

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. I see the word "summer."

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Would you not be hurting your own public charity? Why not strike out the word "summer" and just use the word sites owned by them regardless of whether it is summer or winter?

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. If you will move to amend the amendment by striking out "summer," I will second the motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the amendment and call the attention of the Convention to a fact that has not been brought forth in this particular amendment, and that is, the great, great majority of the property to be exempted under this exemption is located in those local governments in Pennsylvania which are the smallest, the poorest and the least able financially to stand these exemptions. I think the amendment should fall.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Burkholder?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—24

Allison	Benedict	Dumbauld	Sahli
Amsterdam	Benfield	Fagan	Sebastian
Aurentz	Bunting	Gehrlein	Shapiro
Banes	Burkholder	King	Strickler
Barron	Butera	Michener	Stroup
Barry	Clinger	Otto	Warman

NAYS—108

Baldus	Fleming	Leonard	Reynolds
Bloom	Fohl	Levin	Richter
Braham	Forster	Manderino	Rovner
Brennan	Fortney	Mangery	Ruth
Broderick	Gerber	Markley	Scales
Brown	Griffith	Mattioni	Scarlett
Camardella	Hannum	McGeary	Scott
Caputo	Harding	McGlynn	Sharp
Caron	Hatter	Meyer	Shively
Casey	Heyburn	Michael	Shoemaker
Clark	Himes	Miller, D.	Shrager
Conley	Hocker	Miller, R.	Solomon
Corey	Hook	Moorhead	Sprogell
Cortese	Horne	More	Stout
Cosetti	Irvis	Morton	Thomson
Croop	Jirolanio	Murray	Thornburgh
Cunningham	Johnson	Nelson	Tomascik
Curran	Kauffman	O'Donnell	Tully
Dalley	Keller, J.	Orben	Van Sant
Desmond	Keller, M.	Orbin	Waldron
Devlin	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Erwin	Krill	Pelletier	Westerberg
Fawcett	Laputka	Popil	Whittum
Fay	Leach	Pott	Wilcox
Feather	Lee, K.	Powell	Wilmarth
Filson	Lee, L	Prendergast	Woodring
Fineman	Lembach	Redick	Woodside

NOT VOTING—31

Aberman	Donolow	Huggins	Rea
Bagenstose	Gabreski	Kline	Roberts
Baldrige	Goldman	Lane	Scranton
Baldwin	Goldstein	Musselman	Shettig
Bashoff	Gouger	Pechan	Silverman
Buck	Gray	Percey	Swope
Cain	Henderson	Quiles	Tate
Donaldson	Hosteller	Rappaport

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

HANNUM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum, who, I understand, has an amendment. If you will hand it up I will ask the clerk to read the amendment. As soon as it is ready, you may make a statement.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HANNUM offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1, (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 4 by inserting after "forest": and conservation

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, this morning I conferred with Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, the Secretary of Forests and Waters, who most of us know is certainly one of the ablest public servants in the United States and he has served under four great Governors, Governors Leader, Lawrence, Scranton and Shafer.

These additional two words merely contemplate conservation in its broadest sense, an open space for the next century. By open space I mean water and fields, also game sanctuaries. I have spoken with Chairman Woodring; I have spoken with Delegate Nelson, and Delegate Nelson suggested that the words be "and/or". However, the gentlemen who assisted in drafting this proposal tell me that, as drafted, this contemplates forests by itself and conservation in addition.

The only possible objection, fellow delegates, that I could visualize or contemplate in connection with this is that it would be possible for some selfish person to abuse this for tax avoidance. But this is true in any other situation and although people sometimes do play tax games, they do not do it for long in this country.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring for a statement.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, if this amendment were sponsored by anybody other than His Honor, I would oppose it vehemently, because the reason for which the exemption is granted is that forest lands are lacking on the question of conservation. Therefore, they are two entirely different concepts.

The great majority of land which is truly held for conservation is owned by the Commonwealth. In not a few of the so-called northern tier counties, the majority of the land in those counties is actually owned by the Commonwealth or its various departments, such as Forests and Waters. Those lands, of course, are already conservation lands. Some of them are forest lands. All of those lands are already exempt because they are public lands used for a public purpose.

I am informed by the Department of Forests and Waters that in fact the department does make a token payment to the municipalities in lieu of some taxes. However, I am also told it is a very nominal sum and is not the equivalent of the tax to which the municipalities are entitled.

However, as I stated at the outset, it is not my purpose to personally resist this amendment. If the Convention feels that it is safe to include the term "conservation," I will abide by it.

I think I must say, in all honesty, I personally will vote against the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, I most completely respect the comments of Committee Chairman Woodring. However, I would say, sir, that possibly I have additional information which I received this morning and I am privileged to say that Dr. Goddard has suggested to me that this would be a proper amendment and, in Dr. Goddard, I think we can have the utmost confidence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the secretary, Delegate Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, I am deeply confused by this amendment and I wonder if the learned Judge would consent to a couple of questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you consent to interrogation by Secretary Michener?

DELEGATE HANNUM. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman may proceed.

SECRETARY MICHENER. In my township we have two hunt clubs which have taken up a good deal of private land; they have done fine things with it, but they are men who are well able to pay their taxes. They are men who use this land only very occasionally, and I understand that if they put a $500 dam anywhere in this hunt club, they can take 300 or 400 acres of land out of taxation because they can then call it a conservation project and not a hunt club.

My only concern is, how do we protect ourselves against that frank misuse of land by people who are well able to pay their own way.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. Secretary, I can only say this to you, sir: I do not believe that anyone who would try to use this particular amendment to some personal advantage, some hunt club or some other special interest group, would get away with it insofar as the legislature or courts are concerned. This is truly, sir, and I assure you, a bona fide suggestion for opportunity into the next century, and the century beyond that, for private enterprise to get its back and its effort into bona fide conservatism.

As I said earlier, sir, it is always possible for some special interest group to abuse something for a short time, but under our system, they will not get away with it.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Would we look then to the legislature to protect the definition of conservation here?

DELEGATE HANNUM. I believe, yes, sir, and then following the legislature, the courts.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Mr. President, I wish to plead a little surprise at what the most learned Judge has raised in his question and in his amendment because our committee requested the presence of Dr. Goddard. He was set up to come, but due to a conflict in schedule, he could not come. He sent his chief deputy or chief counsel and it was their recommendation, the department's recommendation, that this not be changed, and it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that we leave it as is and so it is in the provision or in the committee proposal.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I would ask leave to interrogate the learned gentleman who presented the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Hannum, would you stand for interrogation by Delegate Jirolanio?

DELEGATE HANNUM. Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He indicates that he will. You may proceed.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I had better do it now before he gets on the bench because I will not be able to interrogate him then. Well, I have to appear before him yet.

I would appreciate if you would define for me just exactly what you mean by the term "conservation."

DELEGATE HANNUM. Delegate Jirolanio, by that, sir, I mean conservation in the broadest possible sense; that is, water, game sanctuaries, cover for birds, things that are over and above our forest areas—marshland, for example. Does that explain it to you, sir?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. No, it does not go far enough. Does it also include the lake where you have fish?

DELEGATE HANNUM. It could, yes, sir.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. If you would have a private lake with fish in it and you would later use it commercially, that would be exempt. Is that what you would want it to be?

DELEGATE HANNUM. Sir, you would not use it privately. You would use it for conservation. It might be just as they have up in New York with these conservation easements where private people permit the public generally to come in to fish because they want to preserve open space and water and marshes, and the like.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. But at these private fishing lakes, they would restrict the general public from coming in to fish and would allow only those persons to come in whom they would want. Would not that be so?

DELEGATE HANNUM. No, sir, that is not in contemplation that it would be used for any private interest.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. But could it be, sir?

DELEGATE HANNUM. Sir, there are always people who can abuse things, but this we do not believe they would do in spirit.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, I wonder if I might interrogate Delegate Hannum a moment.

Delegate Hannum, in the area that I come from there are sizable quantities of land which, following the extraction of the coal by the open-pit method of mining, are in turn backfilled and then planted. Is it your thought that these areas would fall within the conservation areas that you have talked about so that they in turn could be classified as tax exempt by the General Assembly?

DELEGATE HANNUM. Delegate Sharp, in answering your question, I am not familiar enough to speak with competence on this particular example that you suggest. If, in the public good, in the areas of conservation within that formula or that micrometric measure your suggestion would fit into that, I would say I firmly believe that this is contemplated, but it is not contemplated for anything that is in private or for any selfish interests, I assure you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Nelson.

DELEGATE NELSON. Mr. President, in support of the Judge's amendment, I would like to call attention to the fact that in this particular subdivision the language differs from the other exemptions. This is not an authorization to exempt by general law. It is merely an authorization to set up standards and qualifications for private forest preserves and make special provision for taxation thereof. It is quite different from the language of these other subsections.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Nelson.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Hannum?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—44

Barron	Dumbauld	Meyer	Ruth
Brennan	Goldstein	More	Sahli
Brown	Hannum	Murray	Scales
Buck	Harding	Nelson	Sebastian
Bunting	Hatter	Orban	Shapiro
Clark	Heyburn	Orbin	Shettig
Cortese	Horne	Otto	Shoemaker
Curran	King	Pasquerilla	Strickler
Dailey	Laputka	Prendergast	Stroup
Desmond	Mangery	Reynolds	Waldron
Devlin	McGlynn	Roberts	Warman

NAYS—87

Amsterdam	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Rovner
Aurentz	Fay	Leinbach	Scarlett
Baldus	Feather	Leonard	Scott
Baldwin	Filson	Levin	Sharp
Banes	Fineman	Manderino	Shively
Barry	Fohl	Markley	Shrager
Bashoff	Forster	Mattioni	Sprogell
Benedict	Fortney	McGeary	Stout
Benfield	Gerber	Michael	Swope
Bloom	Griffith	Michener	Thomson
Braham	Himes	Miller, D.	Thornburgh
Broderick	Hocker	Miller, R.	Tomaselk
Camardella	Hook	Moorhead	Tully
Caputo	Irvis	Morton	Van Sant
Caron	Jirolanio	O'Donnell	Welsh
Casey	Johnson	Pelletier	Westerberg
Conley	Kauffman	Popil	Whittum
Corey	Keller, J.	Pott	Wilcox
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Powell	Wilmarth
Croop	Kelly	Rappaport	Woodring
Cunningham	Krill	Redick	Woodside
Erwin	Leach	Richter

NOT VOTING—32

Aberman	Donaldson	Gray	Peehan
Allison	Donolow	Henderson	Percey
Bagenstose	Fagan	Hostetler	Quiles
Baldrige	Fleming	Huggins	Rea
Burkholder	Gabreski	Kline	Scranton
Butera	Gehrlein	Lane	Silverman
Cain	Goldman	Lee, K.	Solomon
Clinger	Gouger	Musselman	Tate

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella, who has an amendment to offer.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 10, by inserting after "provisions.": Any real estate with an assessed valuation of ten thousand dollars or less which is owned by a person sixty-five years of age or older, which has been owned by such person for at least the ten years prior to attaining age sixty-five and which is used as the principal homestead of such person shall be exempt from all local real estate taxes. The General Assembly may by general law provide for the carrying out of this subsection.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I yield to Judge Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. It is his proposal, sir. I think the delegate had better speak in favor of it because I am going to speak against it.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Let your conscience be your guide.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I feel obliged on behalf of the committee to ask the Convention to defeat this proposal. It was considered at length. It is substantially the same proposition that was considered at length by the committee. The committee rejected it and adopted subsection (c) of Section 5, which permits the General Assembly to establish as a class or classes of subjects of taxation the property or privileges of persons who, because of age, disability, infirmity or poverty, are determined to be in need of tax exemption. We feel that this is a more proper disposition of this subject. We feel that it is broader than the amendment which is now offered. I would like to be in favor of this amendment, Delegate Camardella, because of the specified age—I notice that I would qualify—but I feel morally obliged to oppose it.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise here to submit this proposal for all intents and purposes not to have this as a case of need or a case of want or welfare for our senior citizens; I rise at this time to appeal to the delegation of this Convention to make this a case of right for our senior citizens. Too many times and too often have our senior citizens had to give up their homes because of their taxations by the local government. I believe that it is a moral obligation of this Convention to vote on my proposal and to accept my proposal and to make this a case of right rather than a case of need or welfare. I plead to the delegates to vote in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Camardella.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, fellow members of the Convention, it is a great temptation to want to approve every such proposal as this because it is in the aid of the old and the infirmed. We must remember, however, that the thing we are concerned here with is preserving a broad tax base for the Commonwealth. Obviously a great deal of the public funds is now being invested in the support of the aged people. The alarming thing about this proposal is that now we are eroding that tax base from the other side in limiting the areas in which the Commonwealth can collect its moneys.

I want to call to the attention of the delegates the change which has taken place in modern times in the treatment of the aged. When I was young, as I remember it, there was no recourse for the aged except the poor farm. The old gentleman and old lady who had reached the end of their earning period might have their house and lot and no more, but they could not eat house and lot. They could live on it; perhaps they could get a mortgage and use that money; perhaps they could get a little second lien and use that money; but shortly they were at the end of their resources.

In modern times, much more justly, we consider whether these people are really in need and then endeavor to provide for that need. They are allowed to live in the property which they own. Now I am told that it is not the custom of the public authorities to sell for taxes these lands. I have been able to pay my own taxes up to the present time and I can assure you they have not sold mine, but I have talked with some of the mayors here and other knowledgeable persons and they tell me it is not the custom to sell the lands of these aged people so long as they occupy them. Therefore, it would appear that under the present tolerant provisions of the law, these old people can come to the end of their lives living in their homes which they enjoy.

Now we are asked to suspend or to forgive all taxes on those lands. Since the old people are living in their homes and not being disturbed, is it not apparent that this provision is not in the aid of the aged persons; it is in the aid of heirs of aged persons. In other words, why should we enable them to preserve their lands free to pass over to their descendants? As the law now is, the government can take what they have left, so that in modern times the old people can really eat up the last dollar of their own property and still be retained in some semblance of dignity to the end. That is no reason why we should forgive the taxes so that the property would go to their descendants free from taxes. The utmost that ought ever to be done is to allow a postponement of taxes, and I believe that even that is not warranted in these circumstances.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Co-Chairman Woodring, if I may.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Chairman Woodring, a question by Delegate Barry. Proceed.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, you said that this provision broadens the suggested proposal. If the proposal's language is adopted, could not the General Assembly pass language similar to this proposed by Delegate Camardella?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes, the General Assembly may pass anything appropriate to the subject.

DELEGATE BARRY. In other words, they could pass this exact language or even broader language? This is just an example of what the General Assembly could do.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Is the gentleman suggesting that the subject matter of this amendment is legislative and not constitutional?

DELEGATE BARRY. No, I am suggesting that perhaps your statement that this is broader in your language is not correct. Actually your language is much broader in the proposal here.

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is not my opinion nor is it the intent of the committee. The committee intended to pass a broad opportunity to the General Assembly to adopt classes and standards on a needs basis, not on an age basis and not on a basis of assessed valuation. The proposed amendment says, "the assessed valuation of ten thousand dollars". Mr. President, I might point out to the members of the Convention that in not a few municipalities the assessment rate is 30 per cent, so that a $10,000 assessment might mean a $30,000 piece of real estate. It would be my opinion that the General Assembly would usurp its function if it starts granting exemptions for $30,000-parcels of real estate.

DELEGATE BARRY. But may I ask you, even in the example you give, since the General Assembly may, under the proposal, establish classes as to age, that they could do this very thing?

DELEGATE WOODRING. On a needs basis. The purport, the language and the committee intent of this portion of the proposal is that whatever exemption or whatever standards for exemption would be adopted would be primarily on a needs basis.

DELEGATE BARRY. I ask you again, if that is your intention, is not your language at fault then because you say of age, disability, infirmity or poverty? So age itself is one of the criteria the proposal suggests.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the delegate fails to read the concluding clause in the sentence, those people under the classes which have been enumerated who "are determined to be in need of tax exemption or of special tax provisions." If the need is there and if they otherwise qualify, then the General Assembly might grant the municipalities to grant exemptions or special tax provisions, but it is all based on a needs basis and not an arbitrary classification of age or valuation of property or any other arbitrary classification.

DELEGATE BARRY. Let me ask you another question. Does a paraplegic have to show need?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes, under this provision he would.

DELEGATE BARRY. In other words, if he is able to make his own income and livelihood and is successful financially, he is not entitled to the exemption as a paraplegic?

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, Judge Woodring has touched briefly on the point I wanted to raise concerning this amendment, that is, disregarding the result that Delegate Camardella is trying to reach.

I think the amendment is very dangerously written in that the standard seems to relate to assessed valuation. It is unnecessary to point out to the delegates here, I think, that most counties have different ratios of assessed valuation to market value.

In my particular county, for instance, the ratio is somewhere between 20 per cent and 25 per cent which, in effect, would exempt a person owning a home in excess of $40,000 market value from paying taxes. I am not exactly sure that this is the kind of person you want to exempt.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Westerberg.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Delegate Camardella, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be interrogated, Delegate Camardella?

He indicates that he will stand for interrogation.

The gentleman may proceed.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, have you made a study at all of how much tax base this would take out of local subdivisions, cities, boroughs and townships?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I have not made a thorough study of it, but it is not a sizable amount. To my knowledge, it will only apply to a new account.

May I add a little more to this. If I can amend my amendment and instead of the word "assess" use "market valuation," I think that would be the proper language to put into this amendment.

As far as the cost to the local government, I have not made a survey; I have not gone into it too deeply, but I am sure this can be absorbed by the local government or the State, which will fall back to the local government.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. That answers my question somewhat, but let me get to my next question. If this is put at market value, then could you give me any figures as to the percentage of tax money which would be taken out of local subdivisions?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. This is an unknown fact to me or anyone else, sir.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. I am not sure whether it is an unknown fact to anybody else because there have been studies made on this. In lots of third class cities, townships and boroughs, it would take at least 30 per cent of the local tax assessments out of their local coffers, or local taxes out of their local coffers. Before anyone should vote for this amendment, I believe they should also think of where this money is going to come from and go into this and replace this, because it seems to me that when we do this, right away we are throwing all the tax burden onto the middle-aged people, and I guess I am a little above that right now, but those with the mortgages, paying for cars, paying for their children to go to college and now we are adding more tax burden onto them by relieving others.

I think that this is a very fine idea, and I assure you that the legislature has been working on this and trying to come up with a solution, but I do not believe that we are ready to replace this tax money right now. I would like to see you add to your amendment where this money is going to come from. Then I believe I would be more ready to vote for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Westerberg.

The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. Mr. President, I have no objection at all to the purpose of this proposal, but whether it is market value or assessed value, it seems to me a mistake to put $10,000 in the Constitution.

We have made fun of the million dollars they put in as a debt limit back in 1874, and 50 years from now they might make fun of us for putting in $10,000 which then may be worth about a thousand.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate McGeary.

Are we ready for the question?

Do you wish to be heard, Judge Braham?

DELEGATE BRAHAM. I just want to call attention to one bill which is before the legislature now, which is House bill No. 1424 in the session of 1967, third reading, House of Representatives, August 8, 1967. That provision was that the residents of the Commonwealth over the age of 65 years who receive less than a specified amount of income annually may be exempt in whole or in part from the payment of per capita, wage or income taxes that the General Assembly may provide and, further, that the General Assembly may provide for the postponement or delay in whole or in part of local taxes on real estate on which they reside.

I am opposed to this proposition because it represents a taking from the public of taxing power the large amount of the tax which may be realized on real estate.

If we must do this for these aged persons, we had better do it from one side. Increase the grant to them, rather than begin by exempting whole classes of population from liability for taxation.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, I would like to place an amendment to the amendment.

Any real estate owned by a person 65 years of age or older which is used as the principal homestead of such person may be exempted from local real estate taxes or have these taxes reduced.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Will the gentleman come forward and if he wishes to offer that as an amendment to the amendment, we are going to have to have it prepared?

Do you wish to offer it as an amendment or a separate amendment?

If there is no objection, we shall lay Delegate Camardella's amendment on the table until we have the Redick amendment to it prepared and we shall then proceed with the next amendment and come back to it.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to table the amendment?
It was agreed to.

WILCOX AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilcox.

DELEGATE WILCOX. Mr. President, I offer an amendment at this time.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE WILCOX offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 2, lines 22 to 30; page 3, lines 1 and 2, by striking out all of said lines, and inserting: property in connection therewith, that portion of public property which is actually and regularly used for public purposes; that portion of the property owned and occupied by any branch, post or camp of honorably discharged servicemen or servicewomen which is actually and regularly used for benevolent, charitable or patriotic purposes; institutions of purely public charity, but only that portion of real property of such institution which is actually and regularly used for the purposes of the institution: Provided, That no exemptions shall be allowed under this clause (2) unless a method is established whereby the authority levying the tax may collect a fair and equitable payment in lieu of taxes from the owner or user of the classes of property enumerated in this clause (2); and further provided that in no event shall such fair and equitable payment exceed twenty-five percent of the real estate taxes which the authority levying the tax otherwise could have imposed upon such real estate in the preceding year if it were not so exempted.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

DELEGATE WILCOX. Mr. President, may I speak on this amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. I understand, Delegate Wilcox, that copies have been distributed and we would like you to speak on it now.

DELEGATE WILCOX. This amendment is proposed by myself and Delegate Powell. I shall try to be brief, as Mr. Lincoln's example was.

When I first read my Taxation and Finance Manual prepared by Dr. Kurtzman, I was astonished to learn of the amount of tax-exempt property in our communities throughout the State. Particularly this was true in Pittsburgh where the amount was 33 per cent, in Philadelphia where it was 28-point-something per cent, and in some communities throughout the State where the exempt property is now over 50 per cent. We all recognize that these charities do fine work. I am involved in many of them myself and I feel it would not be the same State if we did not have their services.

But that is not exactly the question. These same charities pay for their light bills and their heat and they expect to, and they do, receive from the municipal areas around them a good deal in the way of services. Their roads are provided; their garbage disposal is provided; they all have police protection; they all have fire protection; and some of them get many other services.

In line with this, when the exemptions committee first came out to our overall committee with its proposal, it had a proposal, which I think was voted nine to one in favor of a governmental services proposition whereby these institutions of charity and all of the exempted people in this category with the sole exception of the actual place of worship, with the sole exception of the sanctuary, would pay a governmental services fee.

This was taken up by the overall committee and I believe I am right in saying that it passed by a vote of 22 to four. Then the committee heard from some groups which were affected by this and I think it reversed itself finally by a vote of 19 or 20 to 10, and hence the proposal as you have it in Proposition No. 5 was passed.

There is a considerable body of opinion, I think, which believes that these institutions, worthy as they are, should pay or pay something on the services they receive. The local taxing authorities are limited in the assets which they can reach for local tax purposes through real estate and through certain other catch-all provisions.

I noticed this last week in the Philadelphia Inquirer that the City Council of Philadelphia is negotiating now with the University of Pennsylvania trying to get some tax-exempt property back on the rolls or to make a compromise because the tax shelter in some cases may be being used for benefit to the university not exactly in line with the purposes.

I have nothing against the University of Pennsylvania; I went to school there. It is a great institution. But the same principle applies to all these things. Somebody has to pay for the firemen, for the police, for some of these other services which we all receive.

This amendment has the additional factor in it to reassure these institutions that never would the tax to which they would be subjected be larger than 25 per cent of the tax they would otherwise pay. All of these, I understand, are assessed now, although they are exempt; they are given an assessment which goes on the rolls and which is reported to the State. This would mean they would be guaranteed a 75 per cent tax break, and in many communities it might be a good deal more, depending on the services which that local community did give and felt that it was entitled to have.

I urge the adoption of this amendment to give the local units something in the way of compensation, for example, where a borough or a town has a large state institution or lots of public property or lots of charitable property. Let us give them something of a break.

I think that Delegate Powell also has something to say on this subject.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, it is difficult to speak against this amendment because it is sponsored, among others, by Delegate Wilcox, who is a subchairman of one of our committees and who has been a very faithful and loyal member of our committee. This question, however, has been debated and discussed and the committee has drawn its recommendation one way and then we have reconsidered and changed it and changed back again. We have given a great deal of time and thought and study and deliberation to this phase of our work. It was the consensus of the committee that, one, it would be impracticable to try to administer this type of a rebate. It is difficult to know just how much or how little should be contributed by any of these institutions that are purely public charities.

A sounder argument, I think, is that these institutions of purely public charity exist by reason of the alms giving, if we call it this, by the contributions that the men and women of this Convention make 12 months in the year, and the people all over the Commonwealth. The thoughtful, good citizens of our Commonwealth support and maintain these institutions of purely public charity.

To tell these institutions then, which are living by the benevolence that is given to them, that they must pay taxes and, thereby, increase the sum which they actually need in order to continue their charitable purposes, it seemed to the committee—it seems to me personally—that this is not logical and it is not practicable in administration.

Therefore, speaking on behalf of the committee, I do oppose it and recommend the proposed amendment be denied and defeated.

I would like in this connection to call upon one of my subchairmen of this Taxation Committee, Delegate Pott.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Thank you. Mr. President, Judge Woodring, I think it is only fair to tell the delegates that what Delegate Wilcox has said is absolutely true. Our subcommittee did put out a proposal, Proposal No. 1067, and this was done for a purpose. We wished to determine the feeling of the delegates to this Convention and also to the public; we wanted to hear from the people. Strange as it may seem, our proposal went through this Convention and it went through the public hearings, and it did not come back to us with any degree of feeling until January 15. At that time we were deluged by hospitals, all forms of charities, the universities, colleges, private schools, parochial schools, orphanages—everything that deals with and in the field of charity, public institutions—came to our committee and the people were heard. It was at that time when we were in debate with the standing committee and the debate became very hot and heated that I took the floor and said that it was very possible that because of this particular amendment, which we have put through, on the so-called service charge, the emotions which were aroused thereby and therefrom, that the whole work of this Convention could be defeated.

I am one who feels definite in my own mind, and I believe that I speak for many of the committee and the standing committee, that this would bring a disservice to the public charities and the educational institutions, both public and private. We would probably be increasing the amount of taxation which the individual taxpayers throughout the Commonwealth would have to bear if we were to place these real properties on the tax ratables.

Therefore, speaking, I believe, for the great majority of the standing committee, we would recommend that this amendment be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I would like to interrogate Delegate Wilcox.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Wilcox, would you stand for interrogation? He indicates that he will. You may proceed.

DELEGATE HOOK. Midway through your proposal you used the following language: ". . . clause (2) unless a method is established . . ." do we read into this language that you are going to have the General Assembly establish a method.

DELEGATE WILCOX. Yes, that is the intent.

DELEGATE HOOK. Now, Delegate Wilcox, is it also your intent that all forms of local government, including counties, school districts and other subdivisions have the right to levy such a tax?

DELEGATE WILCOX. Yes, that is the intent also.

DELEGATE HOOK. You are not limiting this to only those who provide services?

DELEGATE WILCOX. No, that is right.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. In reference to this amendment, I rise, of course, to support it and read from an editorial from the Bulletin which refers to our original amendment of the standing committee and subcommittees and proposal 1067 which was introduced and passed:

> The Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention's Taxation and State Finance Committee has premised its deliberations on a quite obvious fact. Shrinking municipal tax bases weaken local government, and nothing shrinks these bases faster than exemptions from payment of real estate taxes, prime sources of municipal income.

It refers to a tax-exempt study made in 1957. In keeping with this study, I received a copy of this study and quickly— and bear with me on this—analyzed the districts the delegates came from and tied in the municipalities that have more than a 50 per cent exemption tax base into the delegates of this Convention. If I can quickly read through these, I will continue.

District 9. Delegates Desmond, Heyburn and Harding.
Thornbury in Delaware County.
District 13. Delegates Forster, Strickler and Burkholder.
West Donegal and Martic in Lancaster County.
District 15. Delegates Hocker, Woodside and Swope.
Susquehanna and Williams in Dauphin County.
District 18. Delegates Clark, Jirolanio and Woodring.
East Stroudsburg in Monroe County.
District 20. Delegates Lee, Wilmarth and Roberts.
Susquehanna, Lanesboro, Brooklyn and Ararat

in Susquehanna County; Hunlock in Luzerne County; Palmyra in Pike County; Canaan in Wayne County.

District 23. Delegates Himes, Wilcox and Dailey.
Mansfield, Wellsboro, Charlestown, Bloss, Elk and Lawrence in Tioga County; Clinton and Brady in Lycoming County.

District 25. Delegates Clinger, Westerberg and Gabreski.
Tionesta, Howe and Green in Forest County; Polk in Venango County; Watson, Farmington and Conewago in Warren County.

District 27. Delegates Croop, Fortney and Percey.
Kelly and Hartley in Union County; Penn in Snyder County; Mahoning in Montour County.

District 28. Delegates Michael, Shoemaker and Ruth.
Loganville, Fawn and Fairview in York County.

District 30. Delegates Nelson, Orban and Dumbauld.
Hollidaysburg and Allegheny in Blair County; Hyndman and Liberty in Bedford; Casselman in Somerset County.

District 33. Delegates Barron, Keller and Gouger.
Green and Quincy in Franklin County; Smithfield in Huntingdon County.

District 34. Delegates McGeary, Shively and Sharp.
Logantown in Clinton County; State College, Rush and College in Centre County.

District 35. Delegates Pasquerilla, Cunningham and Shettig.
Daisytown and Loretto in Cambria County.

District 41. Delegates Baldrige, Leach and Filson.
Farmington and Limestone in Clarion County; South Bend in Armstrong County.

District 42. Delegates Waldron, Cosetti and Fagan.
Crescent and Moon in Allegheny County.

District 46. Delegates Bloom, Hook and Stout.
Rimersberg in Clarion County; Rices Landing in Greene County; Cecil in Washington County.

I also made a quick analysis of the counties that are over 33 per cent exempt. The counties are Centre County, 74 per cent exempt; and Clinton County, 36 per cent exempt. They are represented by Delegates McGeary, Shively and Sharp. Dauphin County, 40 per cent exempt; Forest County and Warren County, 56 per cent and 72 per cent exempt; Montour County and Union County, 70 per cent and 40 per cent exempt; Susquehanna County, 33 per cent exempt; and, of course, Tioga County, 36 per cent exempt.

There are a number of cities that are over 33 per cent exempt: Pittsburgh, for one, Johnstown, for another, and I could go on to five or six others.

I would like to point out, gentlemen, that we all have this problem. Most of us right here in this assembly have this problem of exemption in our own bailiwicks. I hope, if you determine this is not the method to solve it, that we come up with a solution to the problem.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilcox.

DELEGATE WILCOX. In short summary, I would like to say that this does not change the exemptions themselves and it does have a 75 per cent tax-free matter in it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. On behalf of the committee, I think two things should be made clear that I do not think have been touched upon at this point.

In the last 15 years, to my knowledge—maybe it was 20 years—there have been two commissions that have studied the provisions of the Pennsylvania Constitution. These commissions are known as the Woodside Commission—Judge Woodside is here as a delegate—the second commission is known as the Scranton Commission—former Governor Scranton is here as a delegate. Neither of these commissions recommended changing the provisions of exemptions for institutions of purely public charity in any way and certainly not going as far as the Wilcox-Powell Amendment.

Secondly, I might add that our study shows clearly that to permit this amendment would only create a situation in the Commonwealth that would cost the taxpayers more money because by imposing this rather difficult method of money collection, which may seem sound in principle but rather impractical in practice, could drive certain charities out of business and would put the responsibility of fulfilling this need on the General Assembly through its appropriations.

I, therefore, on behalf of our subcommittee and standing committee, in conjunction with Co-chairman Pott and Chairman Woodring, respectfully urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President and delegates, since part of my district was brought into this discussion and when only a part of a statement is made and not the entire statement, we are most liable to draw a wrong conclusion.

Danville, in Montour County, happens to be fortunate in having within its confines of Mahoning Township two great hospital institutions. One is the great State mental hospital, one of the largest in the State, doing an exceptional job, the other is the great Geisinger Memorial Hospital, doing one of the outstanding jobs in the United States in the medical field. Certainly these two institutions could not be called upon to contribute taxes to any community because it takes millions and millions of dollars to support them.

In Union County we are talking about Bucknell University and we are talking about the Federal Penitentiary. These are the exceptions. Where are you going to get any contribution from these to supply the 25 per cent? I just want to point this out because they are in my district. I have to mention Bloomsburg State College, which is in Columbia County. Bloomsburg is part of my district. This distorts the facts without telling what these institutions are.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, as a representative and delegate from one of the districts which was mentioned by the distinguished delegate in his most interesting compendium of facts, I would suggest that in my district, while we are not unlearned and we have a college, we have hospitals as well. I would point out that I am most heartily in favor of this motion as a theory; however, Mr. President, since I have been to this Convention and have been thinking about the subject, I have failed to conceive —and that does not surprise me a bit—and no delegate has been able to conceive a practical means of accomplishing the purpose of this amendment. I suggest that like the Gordian knot it defies solution and that the solution is not summarily to slice it through as this amendment proposes.

I would, accordingly, for the reasons that I have suggested and those of the other speakers opposed to this amendment, suggest that it be defeated.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, may I interrogate Delegate Gerber for a moment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Delegate Gerber, sometime ago your committee brought in a proposal on exemptions and I was very much in favor of it. It was roughly the Powell and Wilcox amendment. I heard it discussed then, and I, myself, I must say, did not see any booby trap in it. I objected that night, if you remember, to another proposal which has since been voted down, I am glad to say. I was not smart enough to see the problem here, but after your committee released this I received some 40 telegrams,—more perhaps—60 telephone calls and letters galore on the impropriety of the State of Pennsylvania removing certain things from taxation exemption. Mr. Gerber, did other delegates have that same experience of great pressure from our society, or was that merely because I happen to be the secretary?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. Secretary, I would like to change the word from pressure to information, but I think that we all received the communications that you speak of. I know that as co-chairman of the committee I received in excess of some 200 communications, and I know that Chairman Pott, Chairman Woodring and Chairman Leonard did as well.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Would it be your considered judgment, Chairman Gerber, that if this amendment were adopted that entire pressure would again fall on all of us?

DELEGATE GERBER. There is no question that it would, Mr. Michener. I would go so far as to say that we had the opportunity to hear from the institutions of higher education, various hospital groups, orphanages, private schools, YMCAs, YWCAs, the Boy Scouts, Jewish Community Centers, and various other institutions of purely public charities who informed us that they do not feel that they could continue to exist and fulfill their responsibilities to society in the way that they have and in the way they would like to continue if this amendment were passed.

DELEGATE MICHENER. And you would hold that what your committee has brought on the floor in Proposal No. 5 is a reasonable solution to this problem?

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now the Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I had assured myself that I would keep my peace, but now I find I must try to get some information. First of all, initially, may I say, Mr. President, that the problem of charges in lieu of services is one with which the local government committees and the Local Government Commission have contended over the past number of years without much success. One phase of our entire problem in this entire proposal that has bothered me is the provision on page 3, Section c, of reimbursement out of the General Fund. I think now I must say something about that because if that provision would stand, all these tax exemptions which we are now writing into the Constitution will come out of the General Fund eventually to be reimbursed to the local districts. So I direct this question—and perhaps Delegate Gerber can answer me—if this amendment now proposed, the propriety of which I doubt, were not adopted, is there any prohibition which would keep the General Assembly from passing such a law known generally as "an in lieu of service law"?

DELEGATE GERBER. Delegate Stroup, to my knowledge, no. As I understand the Constitution as it presently is written, it is permissive. The constitutional language is permissive to the General Assembly. Therefore, the General Assembly, continuing the permissive language, would be able to function within that latitude. Now I am not a member of any court, nor have I ever been, so I cannot guess what the language of the General Assembly will pass and how it will stand up under a court fight. But it would seem to me that you have the latitude to initiate legislation within the framework.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I thank the gentleman. He has confirmed my own suspicions on this particular subject.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now the Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to the Powell-Wilcox amendment. We all know that this is a serious problem, that is, the exemption of real estate. However, the picture is always not as bad as has been painted by the statistics which were cited a few minutes ago. For example, Moon Township in Allegheny County was cited as an example where this is a very unfair working of the laws. In Moon Township is located the Allegheny County Airport. When it was first constructed back in the early '50s, it was out, of course, in the countryside with only a few country roads directed in and around the area. Today, even though the airport itself is exempt, there are literally hundreds of businesses which have been built up as satellites around that particular complex, so rather than being injurious to that community, there has been a bonanza because of the businesses, motels, all types of commercial enterprises. I am sure if we would look at some of these other areas which have been cited where there are colleges, where there are hospitals, where there are other facilities which are exempt, we would see that rather than having taken away, these particular types of institutions have brought business and employment to these communities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kelly.

DELEGATE KELLY. I would like to ask Delegate Gerber a question, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber, would you please answer Delegate Kelly's question?

DELEGATE GERBER. I would be delighted, sir.

DELEGATE KELLY. Maybe you can clear up this question for me. I thought it was pretty well cleared up before. I wrote a letter to a hospital in Philadelphia, a private hospital, the Misericordia, not too large, since they all were so much interested in this tax-exemption problem. I asked why they should be exempted, what did they offer in the way of services that they were not paid for. The answer came back to me in this respect. She said, "To your question as to how much free clinical service we gave last year, according to our audit for the fiscal year ending June 1967, we rendered free care for the fiscal year to a total amount of $504,000 in- and out-clinic performance."

I want to know, since it seems so many people want to find out, what is causing all this service and how much they should receive for it. I think this is a pretty free estimate of what we get back from these hospitals.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I do not know what the question is. I agree with the study Delegate Kelly has come up with and our committee has gone into this study on these facts, but I do not know what the question is. I did not hear a specific question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you have a question, Delegate Kelly, that you would like Delegate Gerber to answer?

DELEGATE KELLY. Yes, the question is: Are we steering away from this now? I thought it was settled before.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President and Delegate Kelly, no, we are not steering away from it in the committee's proposal; however, the amendment will mitigate against these institutions and will make it more difficult for them to provide the free care that you accurately described that Misericordia Hospital in Philadelphia does and, I might add, that most all of our hospitals in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania do provide, as Delegate Croop stated is provided up in his district and in various other districts throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words, Delegate Gerber has been talking against the amendment being offered by the delegate.

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes. I repeat again, for the benefit of the delegates, and if I have confused anyone—I hope I have not—it is the position of Delegate Woodring, Delegate Pott and myself that we respectfully urge the delegates here assembled to vote "nay" on the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I wonder if I may interrogate Delegate Gerber a bit further. I am confused by one of his answers.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I agree to be interrogated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have a prior agreement that the chairmen of the committees will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Gerber, I thought I understood this until you answered Senator Stroup's question. I note in subsection C, appearing on the third page of Committee Proposal No. 5, specifically on line 19, you indicate that no exemption from any tax upon real estate shall be granted "hereunder" except by laws providing for reimbursement. When I read this at first, I read the word "hereunder" to refer to exemptions granted under subsection C only.

DELEGATE GERBER. That is correct.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. In other words, you would then as a committee state the intent of your committee to be that there shall be no exemption granted under subsection C except where there will be reimbursement to the local taxing authority. Is that correct?

DELEGATE GERBER. That is correct.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. In other words, on the general subject of the exemption applicable to institutions of public charity, there is no requirement that the General Assembly reimburse local taxing units?

DELEGATE GERBER. That is correct.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. I only have a few words to say. It seems to me that this is a very serious subject. I think our country was founded upon charity. I can remember the days when we did not have all these institutions and everybody took care of their neighbors. Today the State is called upon to take care of our neighbors and we have gone into that particular phase, and I guess necessity has made us do it. But I think we would be destroying one of the greatest elements of our democracy if we tax those who give to these charities. The government gives us an exemption because we give; we do not have to pay any income tax on it. I think this would be a terrible precedent if we put into our Constitution to allow the legislature to tax any of our charities for any of the services that are now rendered by our government, county or state, and so forth.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Wilcox?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—11

Baldwin	Himes	Michener	Wilcox
Buck	Hook	Powell	Whittum
Bunting	Michael	Shoemaker

NAYS—123

Aberman	Dalley	Krill	Richter
Amsterdam	Desmond	Laputka	Roberts
Aurentz	Devlin	Leach	Rovner
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Ruth
Baldus	Erwin	Leonard	Sahli
Banes	Fagan	Levin	Scales
Barron	Fawcett	Manderino	Scarlett
Barry	Fay	Mangery	Scott
Bashoff	Feather	Markley	Sebastian
Benedict	Fineman	Mattioni	Shapiro
Benfield	Fohl	McGeary	Sharp
Bloom	Forster	McGlynn	Shively
Braham	Fortney	Meyer	Shrager
Brennan	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Solomon
Broderick	Gerber	Miller, R.	Sprogell
Brown	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Burkholder	Griffith	More	Strickler
Butera	Hannum	Morton	Stroup
Cain	Harding	Murray	Swope
Camardella	Halter	Nelson	Thomson
Caputo	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Thornburgh
Caron	Hocker	Orban	Tomasclk
Casey	Horne	Orbin	Tully
Clark	Huggins	Otto	Van Sant
Clinger	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Conley	Johnson	Popil	Welsh
Corey	Kauffman	Pott	Westerberg
Cortese	Keller, J.	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Croop	Keller, M.	Rappaport	Woodring
Cunningham	Kelly	Redick	Woodside
Curran	King	Reynolds

NOT VOTING—29

Allison	Goldman	Lane	Quiles
Baldrige	Gouger	Lee, K.	Rea
Cosetti	Gray	Lee, L.	Scranton
Donaldson	Henderson	Musselman	Shettig
Donolow	Hostetler	Pechan	Silverman
Filson	Irvis	Pelletier	Tate
Fleming	Kline	Percey	Warman
Gabreski

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

REDICK AMENDMENT TO CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand we have ready the amendment being offered by Delegate Redick to the Camardella amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE REDICK offered the following amendment to the Camardella amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend page 1 of the amendments by striking out lines 1 to 11 and inserting in lieu thereof: Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 10, by inserting after "provisions.": Any real estate owned by a person sixty-five years of age or older, which is used as the principal homestead of such person may be exempt from local real estate taxes or have these taxes reduced.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, my purpose for this amendment to the amendment was to remove the "shall" mandatory and these fantastic figures out and to make it permissive to a local government. At this time I would like to yield to my cosponsor, Charles Murray.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has looked over this amendment being offered by Delegate Redick and it is apparent that it is, as written, an amendment that stands on its own and not really an amendment to the Camardella amendment. I, therefore, rule that we should vote on the Camardella amendment and then vote on the Redick amendment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, the description that was handed out was the rewording of the Camardella amendment with the changes. This was done in the back. I think it is a typing item. The actual changes to the Camardella amendment, if I may have the permission to read them, was taking the Camardella amendment, and on the first line striking out "with an assessed valuation" and on the second line striking out "of ten thousand dollars or less", then going down to the fourth line and striking out "which has been owned by such persons for at least ten years prior to attaining age sixty-five and" and then dropping down and striking out the word "shall" on the eighth line and replacing it with the word "may" and also on the eighth line striking out the word "all", then dropping down to the ninth line and striking out "the General Assembly may by", striking out the tenth line and the eleventh line and adding to the rear of the section, "or have these taxes reduced."

It is, in effect, an amendment to the amendment. Unfortunately the preparation is a little confusing.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me talk to the Parliamentarian to see what we have here. The Chair will accept it as an amendment to an amendment after hearing the explanation. We will proceed. Do you want to make a statement in connection with this, Mr. Redick?

DELEGATE REDICK. No, with the exception of the statement I made. I would like to yield to my cosponsor, Delegate Murray. He has a few remarks to make.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President and fellow delegates, there is a very serious desire on the part of many of the delegates to help our senior citizens. I think that should be put in the right light.

The amendment by which we propose changing Delegate Camardella's amendment, we feel does just that. It is flexible, workable, and above all, it is permissive.

Property values will change. Therefore, we felt that that item should not be in the Camardella amendment.

Living in a homestead for 10 years is an intangible item. People could have their property condemned; they could be forced to move for many, many reasons. Therefore, this item would be basically permissive as far as tax reduction or tax exemption is concerned.

Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, on behalf of the committee, I think it is appropriate to argue against, or at least to state a position against, the amendment to the amendment.

It states, as the Camardella amendment itself, an entirely different concept than was subscribed to by the Committee on Taxation.

Therefore, we oppose it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN. I would like to ask a question of Delegate Murray or Delegate Redick, either one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you stand to be interrogated, Delegate Murray, by Delegate Cain?

DELEGATE MURRAY. It would be my pleasure, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman may proceed.

DELEGATE CAIN. I am concerned about what type of formula you had in mind when you say, "or have these taxes reduced". You leave this open; it is not a finished statement. What type of formula did you have in mind for that?

DELEGATE MURRAY. The intent was that it would be left open to the individual conditions of the local taxing authorities.

DELEGATE CAIN. With all type of flexibility?

DELEGATE MURRAY. That is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Without wishing to prolong debate, I merely want to point out and urge defeat of this amendment to the amendment, because, perhaps, the most obsolete number that is in it is the 65 years of age. Ten or 20 years from now we may find senior citizens 95 years old.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Thank you, Mr. President.

I might point out that there are already senior citizens 95. I want to say here, I think the amendment is sound, based on other constitutions and not in such a specific way as that of our sister State of New Jersey, or of one which has been on the records for a number of years, the State of Florida, concerning homestead provisions for people on retirement.

I will have to speak for this, because I think the key to it is permissive, which gives the local unit the option to decide whether a tax break would be given or not. I think, too, constitutional respect and not legalistic poverty control means much more to someone on pension than the present wording of the amendment suggested by the Committee on Taxation and Finance.

I think, Mr. President, that a man walks tall when his respectability is maintained. Retirement is, in our tradition, respectable, but it will not be if it is interpreted under the heading of poverty or sickness or illness as the present article reads.

We may veto this amendment based on the curious assumption that this expedient item is one that isolates a section of our population. Not everyone can retire as an executive or as one of a chosen and honored profession. Not everyone can be assured of maintaining their respectability of first-class citizenship on a second-class salary.

I think that a majority of our citizens have and will retire on incomes less than respectability allows. I do not know anybody on retirement who wants to go to a poverty program to ask for help, and I do know too many people on pension who want to sell their homes so they can maintain some kind of a thread of respectability.

I do not think this particular amendment, in any way, threatens anybody. It is leaving it at local option—permissive. I think, too, that it adds a decent shred of respectability to something which now is strictly amendment procedure and isolated from the responsibility and respectability of being a person.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, will Delegate Huggins be interrogated?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Oh, yes, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE GERBER. Would Delegate Huggins read line 9 and line 10 on page 3?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. On page 3, lines 9 and 10, "infirmity or poverty are determined to be in need of tax exemption"? Yes, sir.

DELEGATE GERBER. Delegate Huggins, is it your position that the clause "are determined to be in need of tax exemption or special tax provisions" places those classes of people described by the amendment in a strictly poverty test?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Categorically, yes.

DELEGATE GERBER. Is it your position, Delegate Huggins, that the word "poverty" as a word is not in keeping with the language you like to see in the Constitution?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. I think "poverty" is a word which has been overplayed to defrock the personhood of man's character, and I think it has been used in a legalistic and political sense to do less for a man than man should have done.

DELEGATE GERBER. Delegate Huggins, do you have any suggestions for a word which would be synonymous with the spirit of subsection (c) that would not violate such spirit?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. A suggestion for a word other than "poverty"? Yes, sir.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I think the committee understands Delegate Huggins's position. I want to make it clear that the committee is not lacking in empathy or sympathy with the words expressed by Delegate Huggins earlier, but many of us, maybe have less of a command of the English language and might not be able to express ourselves nearly as well. I do not mean to be cute when I say that.

The point here is that we do understand the problem, but this was the best way that we thought we could approach it. If there is a better way to approach it, we have no pride of authorship on any specific word.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. I think "taxing exemption for the maintenance of dignity" might even [illegible] than this.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I [illegible] respond, I appreciate the spirit of Delegate [illegible] expression. However, there are no words of ardent meaning in our structure, either in case law or the statutory law, that would give the courts of the future an opportunity to understand what those words mean. Therefore, possibly lacking the vocabulary we should have, we are stuck with this word until we can find one that the courts would understand to express this meaning. We do appreciate the spirit expressed by Delegate Huggins because it is precisely this spirit that gave birth to subsection (c).

DELEGATE HUGGINS. May I reply, Mr. President? I would say that I think it is extremely gratifying to hear of your concern in dealing with words, which mean a great deal in law, but I do not think words ever replace people. I think that it might be good to struggle through with something which at least caters to a person's integrity, such as this amendment, than to mess around with one which is coddled to one's breast like "poverty." I think people are more important than words, regardless of how historically beautiful they are.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I am constrained to rise and state why I cannot support this amendment. I do this because I am totally sympathetic to the philosophy that is contained within the amendment, namely, to give aid to our elderly citizens who are in need of aid in the form of tax relief. But I have to look at this amendment from the standpoint of whether or not it is a workable proposition as a practical matter.

I do not believe it is a workable proposition. I think the language is vague; it invites litigation and confusion. For instance, it says: "Any real estate owned by persons sixty-five years of age or older". What is the situation where you have a husband and wife owning real estate as tenants by the entireties, with the husband 65 and the wife 60? Is there an exemption to be provided there? Does that qualify or does it not qualify?

It says this real estate can be exempt if it is used as the principal homestead. I have some worry about what constitutes a "principal homestead." For instance, a residence is used in Bucks County during the warm months of the year, for six months, by one family who also has another residence in, let us say, an urban area for the other six months of the year. Which of these two residences constitutes the "principal homestead"?

I am also concerned that the blanket exemption is in no way related to the question of need. There are many persons 65 years of age or older who, from the standpoint of income, are not in need of this kind of tax relief, and I would be hesitant about affording a blanket exemption to this kind of taxpayers.

And so for these reasons, I must vote against this proposal, although I am totally sympathetic to the purpose that is sought to be accomplished.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I am sympathetic also, but if I can still read, I think, Mr. Fineman—and I hope he agrees with me once—it reads: "The General Assembly may, by general laws establish as a class or classes." Now that is all you need in order for you to proceed. Prior to this I do not think you could set up class or classes. And then it goes on to say, "of taxation the property or privileges of persons who, because of age, disability. . .' You would, Mr. Fineman, if I read this properly, do just what this says, only in maybe more clarifying language, on the floor of the House and the Senate, and I would prefer that to writing it in the Constitution. I think that this amendment, although I agree with it, is legislation. I do not think that it belongs in the Constitution of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michael.

DELEGATE MICHAEL. Mr. President, I think Mr. Hocker made the point I was about to make. The objections brought up by Mr. Fineman, concerning assessments refer to things that should not go into the Constitution. Mr. Hocker has pointed out we are making provisions here for the General Assembly to do this for people who are aged, infirmed, poverty stricken. These things can be done and can be worked out in greater detail then we can do here on the floor of the Convention where we do not have the actual information. We have expressed our feeling that these people do need the aid, and I think all of us would agree with the philosophy of both the amendment and the amendment to the amendment.

Because I feel these are not constitutional matters, that the committee has provided the constitutional method for the legislature to take care of them, we should vote against both proposals.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I have received well over 100 letters on this problem and one thing has shaken me to my roots really is that not one single letter has said the person over 65 who needs help should get it. Every single letter has said that when a person reaches 65 he should be exempt from taxation. That is the thought that is circulating and, if we adopt this amendment, it will be an invitation for everybody in the State to put dreadful pressure upon his agencies of local government. It may be that what the people who wrote to me had in mind was that people over 65 who needed it should have this relief, but that is not what they are saying. They are viewing the happy day when age 65 comes and they are released from all taxation. Therefore, I read both the Camardella amendment and the Redick amendment to the amendment as an extension of that thought and I can only see a situation in which, under both of these, in a few short years I am going to be eligible for complete exemption of taxation of everything I own. Frankly, I do not need it and I believe that a majority of the citizens of this State do not need it and they do not want it. I think we had better follow the good advice of Mr. Fineman and follow a legislative pattern, not a constitutional pattern.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. At this time, Mr. President, I would like to move the question.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Redick to the Camardella amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—12

Camardella	Fagan	Murray	Otto
Harding	Mangery	O'Donnell	Powell
Huggins	McGlynn	Orbin	Redick

NAYS—121

Aberman	Cunningham	King	Sahli
Amsterdam	Curran	Krill	Scales
Aurentz	Dalley	Laputka	Scarlett
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leach	Scott
Baldus	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Sebastian
Baldwin	Erwin	Leonard	Shapiro
Banes	Fawcett	Levin	Sharp
Barron	Fay	Manderino	Shettig
Barry	Feather	Mattioni	Shively
Bashoff	Fineman	Markley	Shoemaker
Benedict	Fohl	McGeary	Shrager
Benfield	Forster	Meyer	Sprogell
Bloom	Fortney	Michael	Stout
Braham	Gehrlein	Michener	Strickler
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, D.	Stroup
Broderick	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Swope
Brown	Griffith	Moorhead	Thomson
Bunting	Hannum	More	Thornburgh
Buck	Hatter	Morton	Tomasdk
Burkholder	Heyburn	Nelson	Tully
Butera	Himes	Orban	Van Sant
Cain	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Caputo	Hook	Popil	Warman
Caron	Horne	Pott	Welsh
Casey	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Westerberg
Clark	Johnson	Rappaport	Whittum
Clinger	Kauffman	Reynolds	Wilcox
Conley	Keller, J.	Richter	Wilmarth
Corey	Keller, M.	Rovner	Woodring
Cosetti	Kelly	Ruth	Woodside
Croop

NOT VOTING—30

Allison	Gabreski	Lane	Quiles
Baldrige	Goldman	Lee, K.	Rea
Cortese	Gouger	Lee, L.	Roberts
Devlin	Gray	Musselman	Scranton
Donaldson	Henderson	Peehan	Silverman
Donolow	Hostetler	Pelletier	Solomon
Filson	Irvis	Percey	Tate
Fleming	Kline

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we will immediately vote on the Camardella amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Camardella?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—11

Camardella	Harding	Orbin	Mangery
Caputo	Huggins	Otto	McGlynn
Fay	Jirolanio	Powell

NAYS—122

Aberman	Cunningham	Krill	Sahli
Amsterdam	Curran	Laputka	Scales
Aurentz	Dailey	Leach	Scarlett
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leinbach	Scott
Baldus	Devlin	Leonard	Sebastian
Baldwin	Dumbauld	Levin	Shapiro
Banes	Erwin	Manderino	Sharp
Barron	Fagan	Markley	Shettig
Barry	Fawcett	Mattioni	Shively
Bashoff	Feather	McGeary	Shoemaker
Benedict	Fineman	Meyer	Shrager
Benfield	Forster	Michael	Sprogell
Bloom	Fortney	Michener	Stout
Braham	Fohl	Miller, D.	Strickler
Brennan	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Stroup
Broderick	Gerber	Moorhead	Swope
Brown	Goldstein	More	Thomson
Buck	Griffith	Morton	Thornburgh
Bunting	Hannum	Nelson	Tomascik
Burkholder	Hatter	O'Donnell	Tully
Butera	Heyburn	Orban	Van Sant
Cain	Himes	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Caron	Hocker	Popil	Warman
Casey	Hook	Pott	Westerberg
Clark	Horne	Prendergast	Welsh
Clinger	Johnson	Rappaport	Whittum
Conley	Kauffman	Reynolds	Wilcox
Corey	Keller, J.	Richter	Wilmarth
Cortese	Keller, M.	Rovner	Woodring
Cosetti	Kelly	Ruth	Woodside
Croop	King

NOT VOTING—30

Allison	Gouger	Lee, L.	Rea
Baldrige	Gray	Murray	Redick
Donaldson	Henderson	Musselman	Roberts
Donolow	Hosteller	Peehan	Scranton
Filson	Irvis	Pelletier	Silverman
Fleming	Kline	Percey	Solomon
Gabreski	Lane	Quiles	Tate
Goldman	Lee, K.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHOEMAKER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment:

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, lines 6 to 21, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 22, by striking out "(d)" and inserting: (c)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 30, by striking out "(c)" and inserting: (d)

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I am vastly concerned by the general liberal trend which is expressed in Section (c), and what I have attempted to do here is merely to delete it. I probably should have included—and if this amendment were to pass, would do so—and should have reinserted the language in the present Constitution, or at least some of it, relating to certain classes which were intended to fall within the special Section (c), particularly that language concerning paraplegics and certain special exemptions for need.

What concerns me here is a trend which we, as a constitutional body, would be mandating—not saying the General Assembly must, but giving them the incentive and impetus to move forward and then turning right around and trying to give the General Assembly the impossible problem of finding some other source to meet this same need. It seems to me that the General Assembly should not be tied up in the position that the only way it can do anything for these classes of people is exempt their real estate. This is basically what is implied by this Section (c). Then, of course, the General Assembly right away would turn around and find some other place to tax to make up the lost dollars.

I do not think this Section (c) belongs in the Constitution and, therefore, I move to delete it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. If the Chair please, I rise in support of the amendment, and note that I have prepared an amendment myself which deletes the same provision as Delegate Shoemaker but preserves the provision relating to the blind, paraplegic, or double or quadruple amputee. I note that that provision in the present Constitution is only a couple of years old. It does have a new provision in it, as has been pointed out to me by Delegate Gerber, and I take it that Delegate Shoemaker's amendment is substantially the same as the one that I propose.

I have voted up to this point not to take away any tax exemptions that are at present in the law because I think they are part of the social fabric of our society. The Commonwealth is not ready to have exemptions taken away from charitable institutions or other worthy things as they now already exist. However, I feel that the field of tax exemption is one where there should be no further enlargement of tax exemptions and I believe that this present proposal is actually very harmful in nature.

Delegate Powell has pointed out the large number of communities that have their tax bases eroded away by tax exemptions. We cannot take away many of the things that are a part of our society now, but certainly we can preserve the tax base as it now exists.

However distasteful it is to rise and say that we do not wish real estate of elderly people to be exempted, nevertheless, I must point out that this amendment gives local communities that power to hear pleadings on the question whether or not they should exempt elderly people, for example, or poor people. I have been a solicitor for many public bodies and I find that would be an intolerable situation at any public meeting, to have very deserving people come up and plead for help and to be forced to turn them down. Tax collection is an ugly task at best. It is a necessary thing. Even Saint Matthew in the Gospels, I recall, was up in a tree when Christ first saw him and he was a tax collector.

I feel, fellow delegates, that this would be an intolerable situation to local communities. They would be hit over the head forever and a day to extend these exemptions. They could not live; there would be hanging parties every day; there would be changes of administration. How could a school board look in the eye of a 65-year-old and say, we are going to have to collect taxes from you even though you do not have children in our schools. I feel that we are putting an intolerable burden on local communities and I speak very strongly against the adoption of this proposal. I, therefore, ask support for this amendment in the form that I propose to present it, which is the same as Delegate Shoemaker's amendment with the present provision as to the blind, paraplegic and other disableds.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Woodring wishes to be recognized.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, on behalf of the committee, we oppose this amendment. The committee worked diligently, I would say, on this particular portion of the proposal. They adopted it by a vote of 30 to 0, and I would like chairman Pott of the subcommittee to speak concerning this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Mr. President, Judge Woodring, fellow delegates, we envision this provision which is new, as you all know, as something which will give those who are in need in our Commonwealth some consideration. We surmise that there will be clarification by the General Assembly; there will be some kind of a sound need-test to determine those who qualify. We believe that this is consistent with what Delegate Barry has inferred, that is, only if the local governments want to do it.

But what we have created here as far as the disabled veteran is concerned is, we have broadened that interpretation. Also, we have taken care of those, as Delegate Fineman, Delegate Camardella and everyone else who have deep concern to take care of the aged and those who are in need of some tax relief so that they will be able to live and maintain their own homes, and that they will have a sense of dignity, to which we all subscribe. This was the feeling of our committee which is very sensitive, believe me, to the social economic requirements of our citizens. Therefore, we would respectfully recommend that you leave the proposal as is and vote against this proposed amendment.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Horne.

DELEGATE HORNE. Mr. President, in behalf of Matthew, I must tell Delegate Barry that it was Zaccheus who was up in the tree.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want you to know he fooled me.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. In that same class were publicans and sinners also.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now the Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, a few moments ago I was forced to speak out against an amendment which would have broadened Section (c) so widely that it simply should not have been passed. I now find myself obligated to point out, having attended the sessions in which Section (c) was most hotly debated in Delegate Pott's committee, that this section is the conscience of this Constitution, and we should not turn our back on it lightly. This is the conscience of the Constitution in which we say we will, as a great and wealthy Commonwealth, do all we can to help the truly poor and indigent. We have broadened the base a little bit, which I think the entire committee wanted to do. I can testify to the anguish with which each word of this was weighed, from the part I took in the debate and the meetings I had with Chairman Leonard over individual words. I recommend the passage of this proposal as written with great force. I do not think we would be happy with the amendments which strike it out and tomorrow morning we would come back here and revise it ourselves, I am sure, after we thought it over.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. I am very sorry, Mr. President. Just a moment, please.

I believe that Delegate Shoemaker has brought to our attention again the reimbursement phase of this entire problem which has disturbed me.

There is presently quite a trend in the General Assembly—I believe I am quite sure of this—to grant some exemption to our elderly citizens, of one type or another. If that is done under subsection (c), then, of course, this reimbursement for such an exemption would come out of the general fund, if I read it correctly.

I would call the attention of those who have drafted this particular subsection (c) that the word "hereunder" is very, very broad. It might better be stated specifically as under subsection (c), so that there would be no question as to how broad that word "hereunder" might be as to the whole subsection (1A).

I rise to that position particularly on this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. May I briefly, Mr. President, get myself down out of the tree. As a counsel for various tax collectors, I do not want Delegate Michener's remarks about having a conscience pass by without some comment.

I, too, feel that we owe an obligation socially to the class of people mentioned in this proposal, but I do not feel it should be a responsibility of local communities or even the Commonwealth. It goes beyond the powers of the Commonwealth and the finances of the Commonwealth to substantiate such a program.

I am in favor of Medicare, of a $1,200 exemption in the Federal income tax laws for those over 65, and measures of that type, but I feel this is pernicious to the financial structure of the Commonwealth and especially to the local communities, to the counties and especially to the cities, boroughs and townships.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shoemaker?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—11

Barry	Heyburn	Shoemaker	Wilmarth
Bunting	Moorhead	Solomon	Woodside
Fawcett	Morton	Thomson

NAYS—120

Amsterdam	Curran	Krill	Reynolds
Aurentz	Dailey	Laputka	Richter
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leach	Rovner
Baldwin	Devlin	Lee, K.	Ruth
Baldus	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Sahli
Banes	Erwin	Leonard	Scales
Barron	Fagan	Levin	Scarlett
Bashoff	Fay	Manderino	Scott
Benedict	Feather	Mangery	Sebastian
Benfield	Fineman	Markley	Shapiro
Bloom	Fohl	Mattioni	Sharp
Braham	Forster	McGeary	Shettig
Brennan	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Broderick	Gehrlein	Meyer	Shrager
Brown	Gerber	Michener	Sprogell
Buck	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Stout
Burkholder	Griffith	Miller, R.	Strickler
Butera	Hannum	More	Stroup
Cain	Hatter	Murray	Swope
Camardella	Himes	Nelson	Thornburgh
Caron	Hocker	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Casey	Hook	Orban	Tully
Clark	Horne	Orbin	Van Sant
Clinger	Huggins	Otto	Waldron
Conley	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Warman
Corey	Johnson	Popil	Welsh
Cortese	Kauffman	Powell	Westerberg
Cosetti	Kelly	Pott	Whittum
Croop	Keller, J.	Prendergast	Wilcox
Cunningham	King	Rappaport	Woodring

NOT VOTING—32

Aberman	Gabreski	Keller, M.	Percey
Allison	Goldman	Kline	Quiles
Baldrige	Gouger	Lane	Rea
Caputo	Gray	Lee, L.	Redick
Donaldson	Harding	Michael	Roberts
Donolow	Henderson	Musselman	Scranton
Filson	Hostetler	Pechan	Tate
Fleming	Irvis	Pelletier	Silverman

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BARRY AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry who, I understand, has an amendment of a similar nature that he would like to offer.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRY offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, lines 6 to 21, by striking out all of said lines, and inserting: (c) Citizens and residents of this Commonwealth, who served in any war or armed conflict in which the United States was engaged and were honorably discharged or released under honorable circumstances from active service, shall be exempt from the payment of all real property taxes upon the residence occupied by the said citizens and residents of this Commonwealth imposed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or any of its political subdivisions if, as a result of military service, they are blind, paraplegic or double or quadruple amputees, and if the State Veterans' Commission determines that such persons are in need of the tax exemptions granted herein.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, fellow delegates, this proposal, in effect, preserves the provision relating to the blind, the paraplegics, double or quadruple amputees, which is, at present, in the Constitution and which is of recent origin, but takes out the other provisions of paragraph (c) on page 3 of the committee's proposal.

I believe that this is the proper way to have consideration by the electorate of an item of this type. If we wish to exempt real estate of other people who are, because of their age, disability, infirmity or poverty, in need, I think it should be by the amendment process, but I want certainly to preserve the present provision in the Constitution which is of recent origin and has been approved by the electorate.

I urge the passage of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think we have heard sufficient discussion in connection with the pros and cons of this amendment.

Are we ready for the question?

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—33

Aberman	Curran	Mangery	Shoemaker
Banes	Cunningham	Moorhead	Shrager
Barron	Dailey	Otto	Solomon
Barry	Fawcett	Powell	Stout
Bashoff	Feather	Redick	Thomson
Bloom	Himes	Richter	Warman
Braham	Hocker	Ruth	Welsh
Bunting	Laputka	Scott	Woodside
Clinger

NAYS—95

Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Leach	Reynolds
Aurentz	Erwin	Lee, K.	Rovner
Bagenstose	Fay	Leinbach	Sahli
Baldus	Fohl	Leonard	Scales
Baldwin	Forster	Levin	Scarlett
Benedict	Fortney	Manderino	Sebastian
Benfield	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Shapiro
Brennan	Gerber	McGeary	Sharp
Broderick	Goldstein	McGlynn	Shively
Brown	Griffith	Michael	Sprogell
Buck	Hannum	Michener	Strickler
Burkholder	Hatter	Miller, D.	Stroup
Butera	Heyburn	Miller, R.	Swope
Camardella	Hook	More	Thornburgh
Caputo	Horne	Murray	Tomascik
Caron	Huggins	Nelson	Tully
Casey	Jirolanio	Orban	Van Sant
Clark	Johnson	O'Donnell	Waldron
Conley	Kauffman	Orbin	Westerberg
Corey	Keller, J.	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Cortese	Keller, M.	Popil	Wilcox
Croop	Kelly	Pott	Wilmarth
Desmond	King	Prendergast	Woodring
Devlin	Krill	Rappaport

NOT VOTING—35

Allison	Fleming	Kline	Percey
Baldrige	Gabreski	Lane	Quiles
Cain	Goldman	Lee, L.	Rea
Cosetti	Gouger	Markley	Roberts
Donaldson	Gray	Meyer	Scranton
Donolow	Harding	Morton	Shettig
Fagan	Henderson	Musselman	Silverman
Filson	Hostetler	Pechan	Tate
Fineman	Irvis	Pelletier

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BALDUS AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Our next amendment is being offered by Delegate Baldus. I have been advised that copies of his amendment have been distributed.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BALDUS offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 2 by striking out "purposes" and inserting: principal purpose

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I would say on behalf of the committee that this proposed amendment by Delegate Baldus returns the form of the proposal, if this is adopted, to more nearly conform to the intent of the committee. Therefore, we are in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I, therefore, understand that the committee is in agreement with the Baldus amendment.

DELEGATE WOODRING. It is, Mr. President. This is purely correctional.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Brennan.

DELEGATE BRENNAN. No, I am sorry, it is not.

Mr. President, at the last part of the year this was passed by the committee, on January 30, 1968, yes, 21; no, 4; abstaining, 1.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We had better have Delegate Baldus talk on the amendment.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Mr. President, I have before me a paper that was presented to the members of the Taxation Committee which offered to them five alternate proposals. It was at this meeting that the delegates debated hotly the question of the breadth of the purely public charity exemptions. The language that was before the delegates on the proposal that was adopted, except for linguistic changes which are not material here and were to be worked out by the lawyers, stated "used for the principal purposes of the institution," and this language was approved by the standing committee. It was sent to a subcommittee of lawyers who met with the Attorney General's office and later came up with the present language "actually and regularly". But in the process of those changes, the words "principal purpose" were changed without a vote of the committee to "purpose".

It is for this reason that I am submitting this correctional amendment, to conform this language to the language that was agreed upon when this issue was debated and decided upon. It is correct that the paper Delegate Brennan has was approved by the committee, but this issue was never raised at that meeting, and the language that is now being offered here is the language that reflected the true intention of the committee.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, may I speak in behalf of Delegate Brennan with whom I have discussed this matter. He feels that the insertion of the word "principal" before the word "purposes" creates an uncertainty in the field of tax exemption from the present article as it now exists. He feels, for example, that dormitories of universities are now going to be taxed because the principal purpose of a university is not to house students; it is to give education. He feels at least and I feel that there is some doubt about this matter and that since this is going to create a tremendous amount of litigation to determine the exact meaning of this provision as revised, it should be let alone. This could, for example, I feel, cause the taxation of all the sleeping rooms in the YMCA because the principal purpose of a YMCA is not to house people; it is another purpose. I feel that if this is construed strictly by the courts—and there is no way now to know how it is going to be construed—there will be an adverse effect upon institutions of purely public charity which are certainly to be helped by us.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I would like to say that I hesitate to debate against Delegate Brennan, but I am satisfied that on the record on the 24th day of January, the standing committee approved this phraseology: "property of an institution of purely public charity actually and principally used for the principal purposes of the institution." You will note that the words "principal" and "principally" both occur.

For this reason and for other reasons, all of these five subdivisions were handed the language. It was then handed to a committee of attorneys who consulted with the office of the Attorney General, I believe. I am advised by our staff member that thereafter no official action was taken. The only official action taken was the last action taken by the committee, incorporating the use of "principal purpose" and, therefore, I think it is not improper to adopt this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. I rise and state that I agree with Delegate Brennan and Delegate Barry in their interpretation of this particular phrase. I do not see the materiality of what happened at the particular committee meeting when this particular problem was discussed. They are talking and reporting as to what their opinion was.

I believe definitely to add the word "principal" at this time would be a word of limitation to the intention of this particular article. It would detract and therefore open the door for litigation, as has been pointed out by Delegate Barry.

If it is a word of limitation, why should we open the door for litigation and, in effect, take away all the beautiful exemptions we have been talking about here which our delegates on the committee have brought forth, that it was their intention to allow dormitories, nurses' homes, et cetera, to be tax exempt.

If this is a word of limitation, it opens the door, and unless there is an absolute need for it, I will oppose this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I interrogate one of the co-chairmen, please?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, they will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. If the word "principal" is inserted, the principal purpose of a hospital is to heal the sick, not to feed the hungry. Would a cafeteria then in a hospital, that portion of the real estate being used for the hospital cafeteria, come within the principal purpose of the institution, and if it does, how does the word "principal" change the meaning, or is it not intended to?

DELEGATE POTT. Delegate Manderino, it was not the intention of the committee that the cafeteria or the snack bar run by the ladies' auxiliary or anything else should be taxed. Speaking maybe for some of the members of the committee and certainly for myself and, I believe, Delegate Gerber, we would just as soon see it left the way it is in the original proposal and leave the word "principal" out.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I kind of agree, but may I ask further, if the word "principal" does go in, is it the intent of those who feel that it should go in that it would not apply either, let us say, to roads or parking lots of a hospital or school, or a dormitory connected with a university? Is it the intent that those would be within the principal purpose of the institution?

DELEGATE POTT. Correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, I rise to speak in opposition to this amendment. I think it is a dangerous amendment, one which could be used to harass and tax unfairly institutions of purely public charity. It is not a grammatical change, in my opinion; it is a change in substance and, as a practical matter, this Constitution is going to mean at the local level what the local assessor says it means. The burden is going to be placed on the taxpayer to change that meaning.

I think we have changed this exemption very drastically with the language which is now in the proposal, that the property has to be actually and regularly used for the purposes of the institution.

I think it would be a mistake as a matter of policy if we were to insert the additional qualifying language "principal purpose."

I agree with Delegate Manderino that if the committee intends not to make subject to tax those facilities within the institution which are not directly related to its principal purpose, and this is what Delegate Pott says was the intention of the committee, or at least it was his intention, then I believe the language should stay as it is and this amendment should be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. I think what Delegate Casey just said is adequately demonstrated by a comparison of the language "purposes of the institution," which is now in the proposal and the language which would be substituted by the amendment "principal purpose," singular, "of the institution," which clearly is a substantive change and not just a grammatical change, in my opinion.

Therefore, I rise to speak against the amendment as well.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise to speak against the amendment, also.

Many of the things I was about to say Senator Casey enumerated. I also feel that the waiting rooms in hospitals would lose their exemption, things of this nature, with this type of wording. I think it is dangerous and should definitely be left out.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, for only one statement. The reason the wording came out the way it did prior to the amendment was to preclude against a series of litigations as questions would arise as to what is the principal purpose. I think Delegate Brennan expressed our position most cogently and most adequately. I concur with my co-chairman, Delegate Pott, and would urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Baldus?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—13

Aberman	Cosetti	Powell	Thornburgh
Baldus	Keller, J.	Shrager	Whittum
Bashoff	Michener	Thomson	Wilcox
Braham

NAYS—113

Amsterdam	Dalley	Krill	Richter
Aurentz	Desmond	Laputka	Roberts
Bagenstose	Devlin	Leach	Rovner
Banes	Erwin	Lee, K.	Ruth
Barron	Fagan	Leinbach	Sahli
Barry	Fawcett	Leonard	Scales
Benedict	Fay	Levin	Scarlett
Benfield	Feather	Manderino	Scott
Bloom	Fohl	Mangery	Sebastian
Brennan	Forster	Mattioni	Shapiro
Broderick	Fortney	McGeary	Sharp
Brown	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shively
Buck	Gerber	Michael	Shoemaker
Bunting	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Burkholder	Griffith	Miller, R.	Stout
Butera	Hannum	More	Strickler
Cain	Hatter	Murray	Stroup
Camardella	Heyburn	Nelson	Swope
Caputo	Himes	O'Donnell	Tomasetk
Caron	Hocker	Orban	Tully
Casey	Hook	Orbin	Van Sant
Clark	Horne	Otto	Waldron
Clinger	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Warman
Conley	Jirolanio	Popil	Welsh
Corey	Johnson	Pott	Westerberg
Cortese	Kauffman	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Croop	Keller, M.	Redick	Woodring
Cunningham	Kelly	Reynolds	Woodside
Curran

NOT VOTING—37

Allison	Goldman	Lane	Percey
Baldrige	Gouger	Lee, L.	Quiles
Baldwin	Gray	Markley	Rappaport

Donaldson	Harding	Meyer	Rea
Donolow	Henderson	Moorhead	Scranton
Dumbauld	Ho.tetler	Morton	Shettig
Ellson	Irv.s	Musselman	Silverman
Fineman	King	Pechan	Solomon
Fleming	Kline	Pelletier	Tate
Gabreski

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

LEVIN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Levin.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEVIN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2, page 4, line 7 by striking out "a new section," and inserting: two new sections

Amend Sec. 2, page 4, by inserting after line 27: Section 1D. Sales Tax Limitation.—No State or local sales tax may be levied on any foods, whether solid or liquid, except alcoholic beverages, or on any items of clothing actually worn and not carried as an accessory to items of clothing, nor may any State or local sales tax be levied on paper items necessary for health and sanitation, nor on any medications.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Levin to make a statement in connection with his proposed amendment.

DELEGATE LEVIN. Mr. President and delegates, just as we need exemptions from taxation, we certainly need limitations on taxation. The statement of Delegate Gerber was not convincing enough in the light of Proposal No. 5, and I have carefully studied Sections (b), (c), (d) and (e) and could not determine that it covered the problem of limitations but rather centered its attention on exemptions only.

However, if Delegate Gerber can point out the area of discussion that hits on the problem of limitation, I will be happy to withdraw my proposal. I would be remiss if I did not attempt to bring to your attention this new and different concept on taxation and problems arising thereunder. The thrust of this amendment is to put restraints on the Commonwealth and foreclose the privilege of the Commonwealth to tax basic essentials for the survival of our citizens.

We are here to develop a document which should, number one, not allow the government to abuse the people; and number two, not allow excessive demands of the people from the government. With this basic thought in mind, it is imperative that we consider the untouched field of tax limitations.

In light of the above, I would like to point out that this great Commonwealth has been reported to be one of the most prolific producers of agricultural products.

In a recent publication which I received over the weekend, the Pan American publication on productivity, there appeared a very excellent article on Pennsylvania and I want to quote just a few passages from that particular article:

> The State of Pennsylvania is agressively pushing new programs to find world markets for its wide variety of industrial and agricultural products.
>
> Pennsylvania's export sales last year neared a total of $2 billion, up from $1.5 billion in 1966.
>
> The State's agricultural products, which account for almost half the export total, will be promoted vigorously this year.
>
> While generally thought of as an industrial State, Pennsylvania is a major agricultural producer as well. Some 43% of the State's wage earners are employed in agriculture and its allied enterprises, and cash income from the production of 80,000 farms approaches the billion-dollar mark.
>
> Pennsylvania is a national leader in the production of mushrooms (about 27% of the world production), cigar leaf tobacco, sausage products, scrapple, pretzels, potato chips, Christmas trees, apples, and eggs.

In light of the tremendous production of foodstuffs in the State of Pennsylvania and in light of the fact that we must restrict the Commonwealth in taxing certain items of necessity, I submit that this particular proposal is a necessary addition to this document which we are trying to form.

In certain areas of Canada, the government set out to use its productivity to the benefit of its citizens and, in effect, some areas have become tax free.

In that particular article, and I would like to quote some of its philosophy so this can be a matter of record:

> Out of all sound philosophy flows good principles and values. All governmental policies and administrative action should be based on certain fundamental principles and values pertaining to the proper governing of men and nations.
>
> The policies, programs and institutions in which such values and principles are embodied must change with the times to meet new circumstances, but fundamental principles and values themselves can and should be conserved.

With that in mind, Mr. President, I sincerely hope that we keep the direction of this assembly in the constitutional area in which we are delegated to improve. We should, of course, stay on the limited side of legislation and stay within the constitutional principles involved.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does Chairman Woodring care to make a statement?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the committee, speaking on behalf of the committee, is in opposition to this amendment. I would like to call on Subchairman Gerber to speak to this subject.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, Chairman Woodring, Delegate Levin, fellow delegates, at the present time the General Assembly of Pennsylvania in its sales tax legislation does not tax the items listed here in this amendment and they are specifically excluded. From the best advisers that our committee was privileged to call upon for help in our efforts, we were advised that this was a legislative question and that our committee should not address itself to it specifically in consitutional language. I might add, I think it is a question that the General Assembly has treated delicately and with wisdom and that, in following the advice of our counsel, it was our committee's opinion not to dwell on sales tax questions. I had the opportunity to speak with leaders of the General Assembly who advised me the same, and in sincere respect for their wisdom and their judgment and their experience in the area, I would urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Levin.

DELEGATE LEVIN. The purpose of this amendment is to foreclose the possibility of taxing these essential items in the foreseeable future. This particular amendment is not one of the General Assembly's decisions to tax or not to tax; this is an effort to definitely foreclose that avenue for taxation.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are the delegates ready for the question?

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Levin?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—6

Bunting	Levin	Ruth	Scott
Camardella	O'Donnell

NAYS—115

Aberman	Dailey	Leach	Rovner
Amsterdam	Desmond	Lee, K.	Sahli
Aurentz	Devlin	Leinbach	Scales
Bagenstose	Erwin	Leonard	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fagan	Manderino	Sebastian
Banas	Fawcett	Mattioni	Shapiro
Barron	Fay	McGeary	Sharp
Bashoff	Feather	McGlynn	Shively
Benedict	Fohl	Michael	Shoemaker
Benfield	Forster	Michener	Shrager
Bloom	Fortney	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Brennan	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Stout
Broderick	Gerber	Moorhead	Strickler
Brown	Goldman	More	Stroup
Buck	Goldstein	Morton	Swope
Burkholder	Hatter	Mirray	Thomson
Butera	Heyburn	Nelson	Tomascik
Cain	Himes	Orban	Tully
Caputo	Hocker	Otto	Van Sant
Caron	Hook	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Casey	Horne	Pelletier	Warman
Clark	Huggins	Popil	Welsh
Clinger	Irvis	Polt	Westerberg
Corey	Jirolanio	Powell	Whittum
Cortese	Johnson	Prendergast	Wilcox
Cosetti	Kauffman	Redick	Wilmarth
Croop	Keller, J.	Reynolds	Woodring
Cunningham	Krill	Richter	Woodside
Curran	Laputka	Roberts

NOT VOTING—42

Allison	Fleming	King	Percey
Baldrige	Gabreski	Kline	Quiles
Baldus	Gouger	Lane	Rappaport
Barry	Gray	Lee, L.	Rea
Braham	Griffith	Mangery	Scranton
Conley	Hannum	Markley	Shettig
Donatdson	Harding	Meyer	Silverman
Donolow	Henderson	Musselman	Solomon
Dumbauld	Hostetler	Orbin	Tate
Filson	Keller, M.	Pechan	Thornburgh
Fineman	Kelly

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BUCK AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now we recognize Delegate Buck who has an amendment to offer.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President, I offer an amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 25, by inserting after "the": purpose of Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 25, by inserting after "development,"; construction,

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 27, by inserting after "areas": or promoting industrial or commercial development

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 28, by inserting after "economy,"; or otherwise,

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Buck for a statement in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President and fellow delegates, you will recall in the report of the Committee on Taxation and State Finance dealing with subsection (d), that it specifically empowers the General Assembly to establish certain safeguards, granting to local taxing authorities the discretion to grant special tax provisions with respect to real estate in redevelopment areas or in areas where deteriorating property could be improved through the efforts of the private sector of our economy, rather than forcing such improvement to be accomplished merely through public ownership or through governmental agencies or governmental financing.

My proposed amendment merely seeks to enlarge the scope of subsection (d) by extending it to real estate that is to be used for commercial or industrial purposes. In this connection I would like to direct a question to Judge Woodring for clarification of the meaning of the phrase in line 28 on page 3, "the medium of the private sector of the economy". Judge Woodring, would that include a nonprofit corporation organized by a community for the purpose of industrial development?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I would think so, Delegate Buck.

DELEGATE BUCK. If that clause is broad enough to include a nonprofit corporation organized by a community for industrial development purposes, I would like to delete from my proposed amendment the last two words that appear on the page, "or otherwise," and I would like to make this brief statement in support of this amendment.

As all of you know, in our State we have long recognized the importance of attracting new industries to promote the economic growth of Pennsylvania. One of the most effective agencies responsible for our success—and we have had some considerable success statewide—is the existence of nonprofit, community-organized, industrial-development corporations in virtually every community in our State. Acting in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority and financial institutions in what has become known as "The Pennsylvania 100 Percent Financing Plan for New Industry," we have brought many new industries into Pennsylvania that have meant thousands of new jobs and millions of dollars have been added to the real estate tax base. In order to enable the nonprofit industrial-development group to function effectively, an important aspect of its program is the acquisition of unimproved land that is to be held in ready reserve as industrial sites for industrial prospects. This means that the industrial development group must acquire the land, generally farm land, at prices considerably in excess of the fair market value which, as you know, is the basis of valuation for real estate tax purposes. As a result, the new purchase price establishes a higher fair market value which results in higher real estate taxes on the purchaser and much higher than circumstances justify.

The thrust of my proposed amendment will allow the legislature a further discretion to extend to industrial and commercial development the special relief provisions of section 1A (d) for a limited period of time. Such relief will, in effect, not disturb the tax base existing at the time of purchase, but in the long view, through conversion to industrial or commercial use, it will increase the local tax base and also overall employment in our State.

I, therefore, ask that this assembly support that amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the committee is of the opinion that the purpose of this amendment is laudable. It is the very purpose that is being served by the Department of Commerce of the Commonwealth and by the chambers of commerce throughout the length and breadth of our great State. However, the concept that the committee endeavored to write into subsection (d), which is now sought to be amended, was not to provide for new construction or new development but it is for the upgrading of the deteriorating property, and the upgrading of the deteriorating property up to this time has been financed almost solely through large Federal grants, with or without restrictions, and/or by the grants of the Commonwealth. In order to promote and encourage the investment of private capital into the upgrading of the deteriorating sections, subsection (d) was incorporated. If we accept the amendment proposed by Delegate Buck and his colleagues, we are changing the entire philosophy of the Taxation Committee and we, therefore, oppose it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I rise in support of this proposition, Mr. President. I quite agree with Judge Woodring that the intent shown by his committee does not include this. I believe that this matter is of much concern in the area from which Delegate Buck comes and also from which I come, due to the fact that we come from the two counties that probably have the largest public assistance rolls in the State of Pennsylvania.

This matter is of great concern to us as to industrial development and is now going at a very steady pace. Therefore, I urge the adoption of this because this definitely helps areas that are in need of such tax relief on property which we have to purchase.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I, too, rise in support of this amendment. I spoke the other day and I will not reiterate. Briefly what happened to us was that an industry was pulled out from our community. Fortunately we were reading in the skies the handwriting of what was going to happen. Our industrial committee of the community had been organized some eight or nine years prior to this happening. We bought extensive lands and brought in new industries, which was just as important as rehabilitating this old one. We are still in the process of buying real estate on which new buildings will be constructed. This is absolutely as important as rebuilding the old and it is the thing that might keep Pennsylvania in the industrial business the way that the State has tried to do it during the past five to ten years. If you do not buy this real estate when it is available, you just do not get it at a good price when you need it. We have seen the price on real estate that was a couple hundred dollars an acre go to $3,000 an acre and we were glad to get it at that price. It may be there for the next five years; it is farm land, as has been previously referred to perhaps here, but with the industrial development program that you have to work with today to keep industry in Pennsylvania, you have to do this.

I do not live strictly in the coal-mining area, but I do live in the hard-coal-mining section of Pennsylvania; we are within a few miles. You all know what has happened there. If the cities of Scranton, Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton had not gone out and bought land and brought industries in, these large communities would be in terrible shape today, whereas they are not. Our smaller communities, which are on the fringe, have had to do the same thing and put a tax burden upon our industrial committees, which are public committees representing our communities. They are nonprofit organizations of this type and they do need this relief. Fortunately, many of the taxing bodies have leaned over backwards.

Perhaps in strict interpretation, the law violated it sometimes in order to cooperate because they know that when we bring in these industries, in time they will become taxpayers. They are operators; they are owners who build new homes and become taxpayers. Actually, the ultimate is a considerable tax increase, but there is that period of adjustment when you definitely need some relief from the current taxes because of some small township or town or borough where suddenly they get greedy. Based upon the price you pay for this real estate where they come in and tax you at 33-1/3 and 35 per cent of its value, you would have a burden and no money with which to pay it. So it is a temporary relief for which your local communities will return many, many dollars in a few years' time.

I urge the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, since the last several speakers have been from the smaller communities in Pennsylvania, I should simply like to say that we have the same problem in the southeastern part of the State where we find great competition from other parts of the country, particularly in the south where tax provisions and special tax deals are made and offered to these various industries, those who are already in our part of the country and to those we are trying to bring in. We have found through our various activities, by Chambers of Commerce, and otherwise, that if the Assembly would have the power under the proper circumstances to give tax abatement and tax relief, it would be tremendously helpful, and the delegates ought to understand that this is not something that is required; it is simply giving the power to the General Assembly to make this type of tax concession where it is important to the economic health of the State.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, looking at your own serious and solemn face and looking about the hall, I appreciate that the time to bring up this amendment would probably not have been chosen with the likelihood of prognostication of dire results. Nonetheless, I would raise my small voice in seriously urging the consideration of this amendment for the laudatory purpose that it espouses.

I am, however, concerned in one area, and Delegate Buck has already alluded to that. I do not wish to prolong this any longer; I know you are hungry, and so forth. The psychology of the situation is something I cannot do anything about. However, Delegate Buck, I would ask you if you would accept an amendment to delete the last addition that you made in this particular amendment, the words being "or otherwise."

DELEGATE BUCK. Yes, I would.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. As a matter of fact, I understood that he had withdrawn those words. I think we can consider his amendment as being before you with the words "or otherwise" withdrawn.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I also rise in support of this particular amendment and urge its adoption.

In Allegheny County and our neighboring Westmoreland County, we have also had the very serious problem involving the abandonment of what was once considered invaluable real estate by some of our largest business corporations in the Nation, United States Steel, Jones and Laughlin, and others. In many communities where these companies owned millions of dollars worth of real estate and suddenly found it uneconomic to continue their operation, the devastating effect upon the local community really is difficult to spell out.

The adoption of this amendment will help provide a tool in this competitive world which we now face and I am certain that this Convention here has convened for one of the purposes, of course, to help provide for the future of this Commonwealth, a competitive environment.

I, therefore, respectfully urge the adoption of this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, Delegate Buck having withdrawn "or otherwise" I will not need to ask him publicly what he meant; I will ask him privately later this afternoon. I rise in support of the amendment. I happen to have been a close friend and personal associate of a Governor who was very instrumental in starting PIDA and I consider myself a friend of two succeeding Governors who have built up the idea. In my judgment this is the local complement to PIDA, and I think it will help to increase the usefulness and the purpose of that great movement that started here some years ago.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Mr. President, I want to tell you that Washington County says, "Amen." We need it bad; we have had a lot of developments, and if it was not for the development and the public spirit of our people there, we would be in very, very bad financial shape.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I would like to speak against the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Proceed.

DELEGATE GERBER. On behalf of the committee, I would like to point to the spirit and the purpose of Section (d).

This was for the upgrading of deteriorating property through the medium of the private sector. It is for the improvement, development, reconstruction or rehabilitation of various blighted areas.

The purpose of the committee was to bring in the question and issue of blighted areas and rehabilitating areas by private funds. We addressed ourselves to the large blighted areas in the major urban sections of the Commonwealth, as well as certain parcels of real estate that were going downhill in the small towns, in the boroughs and the townships throughout the Commonwealth, in an effort to permit the various boards of assessment throughout the Commonwealth an opportunity to stimulate a situation which would bring the community up, rather than permit it constantly to go down. This was an effort to help the old towns, the towns down in my area, such as Conshohocken, West Conshohocken, Bridgeport, and the various sections of the Commonwealth that have little towns that have been going downhill over the years that need some financial incentive in the private area to get private funds to come in and help, and, secondly, to be able to get the private home owner himself to want to fix up his own home and to maintain it at a decent level without fear of reassessment at a higher level.

I must speak also against the amendment from another point of view, notwithstanding the large array of louder, impressive speakers who have spoken on its behalf.

First of all, our committee did interview a Mr. Cole of PIDA, the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority which Delegate Swope spoke of, and he stated that we do not need the words of the Buck amendment. These words were discussed at our standing committee meeting and we feared in our standing committee, and we feared greatly, as the delegate from Philadelphia pointed out, many times the fact that speculators would come into areas, rural areas and other sections of the Commonwealth, and purchase land for commercial and industrial purposes with the hope of maintaining a low tax base, if their expectations did not materialize.

The purpose of this amendment, on behalf of the committee, is not—and I repeat, is not—to help people make money by speculating wisely or unwisely. The purpose of this amendment is to be able to help the blighted areas of the Commonwealth and to be able to help the small towns and the small townships and boroughs where they have certain sections of their community going downhill.

We felt that, if we could stimulate private enterprise to take an interest in these problems, over the years we could raise the tax base of these communities; that we could increase the tax revenues in these communities and at the same time have a more desirable place in which to live.

It was the fear—and I repeat again, it was the fear—of the committee that this might be abused. We debated this long into the night, and we felt that the Constitution was not the place to create financial opportunities for wealthy individuals to speculate. We feel that this would be detrimental. Moreover, this problem presently can be solved, the problem of which the proponents of this amendment speak. This problem can be solved by the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority. It is not as if the problem goes without a solution; rather, on the other hand, we feel that if this amendment succeeds, we are going to create economic problems whereby speculators can dominate certain communities in our Commonwealth.

On behalf of the committee, I respectfully urge the delegates here this afternoon to vote against the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, I speak against the amendment, in fact, against subparagraph (d) in the proposal. It seems to me that this type of provision is exactly what Delegate Gerber talks about, that it is an attempt by private capital to capitalize on these communities that are starting to deteriorate. The Federal Government, through redevelopment plans, and the State, with its assistance in the Federal redevelopment programs, have tried to put back into the local communities some value into their real estate. Pittsburgh, for example, is a fine example of what happened there, but it was Jones and Laughlin which extended its mill; it was National Tube in McKeesport which extended its mill; it was Equitable Gas Company which took away the whole area on the Point and built skyscrapers. They did not need support from local people; they did not need support from McKeesport, from Pittsburgh, from the school board. If they had bought the skyscrapers and the mills and got tax exemption in addition for a couple of years, it would have been a terrible blow to those local communities that are already going downhill and need that revenue and need it very badly and very deeply.

As the solicitor of one community in Allegheny County, the borough of Carnegie, which is in the throes of redevelopment, I speak with Delegate Gerber that this is a pernicious amendment and it should be carefully considered, as should the entire subsection of the proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I was a member of that Committee and, after reviewing this thing, I want to go on record in favor of this amendment. I see it basically permissive and I see a lot of good coming up out of it.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Buck.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President, fellow delegates, you know I spent three days before I finally became aware of the sense of this Convention, and because I think I am now aware of the will of this Convention, I move the question.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Buck?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—90

Aberman	Cortese	Keller, J.	Sebastian
Amsterdam	Cosetti	Keller, M.	Shapiro
Bagenstose	Croop	Kelly	Sharp
Baldus	Cunningham	King	Shettig
Baldwin	Curran	Laputka	Shoemaker
Banes	Dailey	Leach	Shrager
Barron	Desmond	Lee, K.	Solomon
Benedict	Devlin	Mangery	Sprogell
Bloom	Erwin	Miller, D.	Stout
Braham	Fagan	More	Strickler
Brennan	Fawcett	Murray	Stroup
Broderick	Fay	Nelson	Swope
Brown	Feather	O'Donnell	Thornburgh
Buck	Forster	Orban	Tomascik
Bunting	Fortney	Orbin	Tully
Burkholder	Gehrlein	Otto	Van Sant
Butera	Goldstein	Prendergast	Waldron
Cain	Hatter	Rappaport	Warman
Camardella	Hook	Redick	Westerberg
Caron	Horne	Reynolds	Whittum
Casey	Huggins	Sabli	Wilcox
Clark	Jirolanio	Scales	Woodside
Clinger	Kauffman

NAYS—40

Barry	Heyburn	McGeary	Richter
Bashoff	Himes	Michael	Rovner
Benfield	Hocker	Michener	Ruth
Caputo	Johnson	Miller, R.	Scarlett
Corey	Krill	Moorhead	Scott
Fohl	Leinbach	Morton	Shively
Gerber	Leonard	Pelletier	Thomson
Goldman	Levin	Popil	Welsh
Griffith	Manderino	Pott	Wilmarth
Hannum	Mattioni	Powell	Woodring

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Fleming	Kline	Pechan
Aurentz	Gabreski	Lane	Percey
Baldrige	Gouger	Lee, L.	Quiles
Conley	Gray	Markley	Rea
Donaldson	Harding	McGlynn	Roberts
Donolow	Henderson	Meyer	Scranton
Dumbauld	Hostetler	Musselman	Silverman
Filson	Irvis	Pasquerilla	Tate
Fineman

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

STROUP AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I read in place and present an amendment to Proposal No. 5.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE STROUP offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 19 by striking out "hereunder" and inserting: under subsection (c) hereof

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Stroup?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, just a brief statement.

I have been disturbed by the modification of the word "hereunder" in Section (c) because it occurred to me that it might very well be interpreted as referring to the whole Section 1A, and since this is a reimbursement factor that would come out of the General Fund, I want to be very positive that it is limited to the provisions of Section (c). For that reason I submit the clarifying amendment and I hope that the delegates will agree to go along with it.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I concur in what has been said by Delegate Stroup. I think it would be well if we adopt this amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Stroup?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—131

Aberman	Curran	Laputka	Rovner
Amsterdam	Dalley	Leach	Ruth
Aurentz	Desmond	Lee, K.	Sahli
Bagenstose	Devlin	Leinbach	Scales
Baldus	Erwin	Leonard	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fagan	Levin	Scott
Banes	Fawcett	Manderino	Sebastian
Barron	Fay	Mangery	Shapiro
Barry	Feather	Mattioni	Sharp
Bashoff	Fohl	McGeary	Shettig
Benedict	Forster	McGlynn	Shively
Benfield	Fortney	Michael	Shoemaker
Bloom	Gehrlein	Michener	Shrager
Braham	Gerber	Miller, D.	Solomon
Brennan	Goldman	Miller, R.	Sprogell
Broderick	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Brown	Griffith	More	Strickler
Buck	Hannum	Morton	Stroup
Bunting	Hatter	Murray	Swope
Burkholder	Heyburn	Nelson	Thomson
Butera	Himes	O'Donnell	Thornburgh
Cain	Hook	Orban	Tomascik
Camardella	Hocker	Orbin	Tully
Caputo	Horne	Otto	Van Sant
Caron	Huggins	Pelletier	Waldron
Casey	Jirolanio	Popil	Warman
Clark	Johnson	Pott	Welsh
Clinger	Kauffman	Powell	Westerberg
Corey	Keller, J.	Prendergast	Whittum
Cortese	Keller, M.	Rappaport	Wilcox
Cosetti	Kelly	Redick	Wilmarth
Croop	King	Reynolds	Woodside
Cunningham	Krill	Richter

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Fleming	Kline	Percey
Baldrige	Gabreski	Lane	Quiles
Conley	Gray	Lee, L.	Rea
Donaldson	Gouger	Markley	Roberts
Donolow	Harding	Meyer	Scranton
Dumbauld	Henderson	Musselman	Silverman
Filson	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Tate
Fineman	Irvis	Pechan	Woodring

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

SOLOMON AMENDMENTS TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, I read in place and present amendments to Proposal No. 5.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SOLOMON offered the following amendments which were read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1, page 1, line 4 by striking out "a new section is" and inserting: two new sections are

Amend Sec. 1, page 4, by inserting between lines 5 and 6: Section 1A1. Certain Disabled Veterans.—Citizens and residents of this Commonwealth, who served in any war or armed conflict in which the United States was engaged and were honorably discharged or released under honorable circumstances from active service, shall be exempt from the payment of all real property taxes upon the residence occupied by the said citizens and residents of this Commonwealth imposed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or any of its political subdivisions if, as a result of military service, they are blind, paraplegic or double or quadruple amputees, and if the State Veterans' Commission determines that such persons are in need of the tax exemptions granted herein.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendments offered by Delegate Solomon?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, delegates of the Convention, I am about to complete that portion of a sentimental journey that was started this morning.

This amendment merely reasserts that constitutional amendment which was passed by the people of Pennsylvania on November 7, 1961. This affirmatively places it in the Constitution. It is something that we not only owe to ourselves, but the state pride and its measured patriotism ought to be equal to this. I do not think that this is a matter that should be left to the General Assembly. I say to you that this will be Section 1A1. It will only state what the people of Pennsylvania indicated by their vote back in 1961, just less than seven years ago.

I would ask that all of you support this. I spoke at length this morning; there were many others who spoke. If you have any pride at all in the performance of those who gave this type of burning devotion, then I would ask you to support this amendment. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, fellow delegates, there has been considerable debate on this subject and I do not propose to take up further time. It was the conclusion of the members of the committee that subsection (c) not only provided for that which Delegate Solomon's proposal would provide, but that it ever broadens it. The original language in the present Constitution is on a needs basis for these cripples and the blind and otherwise disabled veterans. That is still on a needs basis. "If the State Veterans' Commission determines that such persons are in need of the tax exemptions"—excuse me, I am reading from the amendment—the presently effective Constitution provides that "if the State Veterans' Commission determines that such persons are in need of the tax exemptions granted herein"—and I am reading from today's Constitution. It has always been ever since this was adopted in 1923 and ever since it has been on a needs basis. Proposal No. 5, in subsection (c), puts this same thing on a needs basis.

I think that the only question before the Convention, if I may try to define the question, is whether the Constitution shall in and of itself grant the exemption without any limitations, qualifications or standards, or whether standards shall be effected and then the exemption may be granted by the General Assembly. It seems to me that is the issue here. There is no intent to deprive a worthy veteran of the exemption which he has heretofore enjoyed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, I would like to speak on this. There were other exemptions that appeared in the old Constitution, those relating to public charities and others. They have been preserved by specific language. I point to 1A, (1), (2), (3), (4) and (5). I say this to you, that 1A (c) actually speaks about the General Assembly providing by law for the reimbursement to local taxing authorities for this particular exemption given by the community to its paraplegics and its blind. There is a great deal of difference between a man who became blinded or lost his limb on the field of battle. I am saying this to you: We who worked so hard for the 1961 amendment do not want to have to go over this thing again. I say if there is any honor in this body, it will support this amendment.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I am perhaps confused, but I wonder if Mr. Solomon could explain what difference there is, if any, between the language offered by this amendment and the amendment which was previously offered by Delegates Barry and Banes and voted down?

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Delegate Thornburgh, there happens to be a very essential difference. That amendment stated first that the provision of 1A (c) shall be revoked and in its place would be this paraplegic and blind language so that this body was not interested in revoking 1A (c). I want you to know that we were promised this morning that it was the intent that blind and paraplegics were to be given special treatment and that the exemption that they had under our present existing Constitution would continue.

I say we are duty bound; it presently is in the Constitution. It depends upon the will of the legislature; it contains language about reimbursing the local municipalities for the tax moneys that are lost. I say if your conscience and your patriotism cannot be touched on this, then nothing can get to you.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, I would like to rise in opposition to the amendment and in support of the committee of which I was a member.

I think the real important point here to recognize is that Mr. Solomon in his amendment, if we go back to the old limits, the exemption is to blind, paraplegic and the double or quadruple amputees. The point made in the new section (c) is the fact that it broadens it and it covers other veterans who now are not able to be covered. Therefore, if we support the amendment, we are becoming restrictive; whereas, if we support the committee proposal, which I urge, we have actually said to our veterans, we are sorry for missing you before and now we want you back in here with the protection we can give you.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. May I speak to this? I ask Mr. Caron or any of the others who are so interested in the nicety of language to turn to section 1A (c) and show me where the word "veteran" appears in that section. It does not.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, if I may answer the question on behalf of the committee, it does not appear for the simple reason that the purpose and the thrust of section 1A (c) was on a need basis and not on a veteran test basis.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. I have one question which without getting emotional I may not be able to understand. As I understand, under the present Constitution for veterans, they get a tax exemption and the municipality bears its loss. Under your 1(c), if you granted this tax exemption, the legislature would have to reimburse the municipality. Is that correct?

DELEGATE GERBER. No, Mr. Morton, I would like to address your attention, if I might please, to line 13 where it says, "The Commonwealth, or any other taxing authority, may adopt or employ such class or classes and said standards and qualifications and, except for taxes upon the sale or use of personal property, may impose taxes, grant exemptions or make special tax provisions in accordance therewith" and therefore might I add, Mr. Morton, that this permits the local municipality to determine on its own the need test.

DELEGATE MORTON. When I read line 19 though, which says, "the General Assembly except by laws providing for the reimbursement of local taxing authorities by or through the Commonwealth for revenue losses occasioned by such exemption," I read the whole paragraph to mean that the General Assembly sets the test and if this says the veteran is exempt, then it must reimburse the local municipality. Is that an incorrect interpretation?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I do not like to use the word "incorrect" but I think it fits in this case because the intent of the committee was to create an alternative situation for the General Assembly. Keeping in mind the problems that were presented to our committee pursuant to the amount of tax-exempt property in the local municipalities, it was our thought that in view of the fact that we were broadening an exemption, if the General Assembly in its wisdom decided that it should assume the responsibility therefor, it should then reimburse the municipality. On the other hand, if the General Assembly felt that it should adopt enabling legislation which will permit the municipalities to make these decisions, it could do that as well.

What we intended to do here was to create an alternative opportunity for the General Assembly whereby in its wisdom it could determine whether or not it should pursue this course and thereby reimburse, or whether or not it should enact enabling legislation which would permit the local municipality or the local taxing authority to do it on its own, in which case there would be no reimbursement because obviously the purpose of reimbursement is only if the General Assembly determines that there should be an exemption. If a local municipality on its own volition determines that there should be an exemption, the issue does not go up to the General Assembly for reimbursement.

DELEGATE MORTON. Am I correct then—this is the first time I understood this interpretation—the General Assembly could do two things with veterans. For example, they could say, one, you are exempt from real estate taxes, in which event they would have to reimburse the local community; or they would have to say, two, you can be exempt if the local community will determine that you are exempt, and if the local community says that you are exempt, then you are exempt and they get no reimbursement from the State?

DELEGATE GERBER. When you say they get no reimbursement, you mean the municipality, and that is correct. The answer to your double-edged question is, "yes."

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Clinger.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Mr. President, I would like to have Delegate Gerber answer this question: Would there be a hiatus created here as to the veterans to whom Mr. Solomon is referring? In other words, will the General Assembly be required to enact legislation to continue their present tax-exempt status?

DELEGATE GERBER. No, Delegate Clinger, there would not be a hiatus, because it would be thought that this Convention in its wisdom would adopt a schedule—

DELEGATE CLINGER. How is that? You would include a schedule?

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes, sir, we would. And we propose to do so.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, to rely on a schedule which we have not yet seen in a matter so important as this seems to me to be a rather weak reed. This amendment is before us. It gives these particular veterans something that the people only six years ago said they should have. I can see no good reason why this particular provision should not be included and I certainly urge your support for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Nelson.

DELEGATE NELSON. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment. Note this—perhaps it has been noted—but in the present constitutional provision it says that veterans who meet the requirements shall be exempt. In the present proposal, it is purely discretionary. I think it can only be interpreted as a slap in the face to the veterans and is taking away from them something that is now guaranteed to them in the Constitution. When we think how many there are who are blind, paraplegic, double or quadruple amputees and are determined to be in need, not by the legislature, by legislative standards, but by the State Veterans' Commission, I strongly urge the support of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. President, I also rise in support of this amendment. I simply refer to a remark made by Delegate Hocker, I think it was, at the time, who said that this was a mandate of the people passed some 20 years ago, and the amendment to which he was referring, this was a mandate of the people that was passed not less than six years ago.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendments offered by Delegate Solomon?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—110

Abernan	Corey	Keller, M.	Redick
Amsterdam	Cortese	Kelly	Reynolds
Aurentz	Cosetti	King	Richter
Ragenstose	Croop	Laputka	Roberts
Baldus	Cunningham	Leach	Ruth
Baldwin	Curran	Lee, K.	Sahil
Banes	Dailey	Leinbach	Scales
Barron	Desmond	Levin	Scott
Barry	Devlin	Manderino	Sebastian
Bashoff	Erwin	Mangery	Shapiro
Benedict	Fagan	Mattioni	Sharp
Benfield	Fay	McGeary	Shrager
Bloom	Fohl	McGlynn	Solomon
Braham	Forster	Miller, D.	Spragell
Brennan	Gehrlein	Moorhead	Stout
Broderick	Gerber	More	Strickler
Brown	Goldman	Morton	Stroup
Buck	Goldstein	Murray	Swope
Bunting	Griffith	Nelson	Thomson
Burkholder	Hannum	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Butera	Himes	Orban	Tully
Cain	Hocker	Orbin	Van Sant
Camardella	Hook	Otto	Warman
Caputo	Horne	Popil	Welsh
Caron	Irvis	Pott	Wilcox
Casey	Jirolanio	Powell	Wilmarth
Clark	Kauffman	Rappaport	Woodside
Conley	Keller, J.

NAYS—18

Clinger	Johnson	Scarlett	Waldron
Fawcett	Krill	Shettig	Westerberg
Feather	Michael	Shively	Whittum
Fortney	Michener	Thornburgh	Woodring
Heyburn	Miller, R.

NOT VOTING—35

Allison	Gouger	Lee, L.	Prendergast
Baldrige	Gray	Leonard	Quiles
Donaldson	Harding	Markley	Rea
Donolow	Hatter	Meyer	Rovner
Dumbauld	Henderson	Musselman	Scranton
Filson	Hosteller	Pasquerilla	Shoemaker
Fineman	Huggins	Pechan	Silverman
Fleming	Kline	Pelletier	Tate
Gabreski	Lane	Percey

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

BARRY AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment being offered is by Delegate Barry. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment. Copies have been distributed or are now being distributed.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRY offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 30, page 4, lines 1 to 5, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President and fellow delegates, there is a famous Congressman who boasts that he has never voted against a benefit or for an appropriation. We, I think, have reached that stage of our deliberations on the tax-exemption clause. We have not narrowed any existing tax exemptions appreciably and we have broadened several others and created some new ones. This last one which relates to exempting new construction for a period up to two years is, I believe, not in the best interest of the average taxpayer who is going to pick up the tab for the home builder who builds 100 houses, we will say, and does not sell all of them or for somebody who builds an addition to his house and is granted a privilege of tax exemption for two years. It is up to us to determine where we are going to draw the line.

If you want to finance this type of thing, all right, do it deliberately and responsibly, but know what you are doing. You are paying it out of your own pocket and you are asking the other taxpayers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to pay it out of their pockets. The realtors, the Home Builders Association and other groups have an interest in this type of litigation. Just last year the court of Montgomery County declared a similar statute without this constitutional amendment to be unconstitutional.

We have here an opportunity to vote on whether we want to extend our tax exemption to something I personally feel should not be exempted.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, fellow delegates, this improvement to real estate which is contemplated in subsection (e) is restricted to residential real estate. It is limited in space of time to not more than two years. It is designed, and the committee has written it into this proposal, in order to help recondition depressed areas where owners of real estate do not see fit to build and improve, and the minute they make the improvement they get an increased tax assessment, and also for the building and development of areas where private capital is unwilling to take the risk of coming into the community because as soon as they start developing the assessment is placed upon the improved real estate. This would permit the General Assembly to set up standards and to make special tax provisions for this two-year period following improvement so that there would not be an immediate increase in the tax assessment which would thereby discourage the improvement and/or the building.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry for the purpose of asking a question.

DELEGATE BARRY. Chairman Woodring, you state that this will be used to lower assessments in depressed areas. However, this could be in any of the various counties surrounding Philadelphia or in Philadelphia, or in any area. It is not by its language confined to depressed areas. It could be anywhere, could it not?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It could be anywhere and depressed areas are not limited to Philadelphia either.

DELEGATE BARRY. No; but it could be for a $60,000 residence, could it not?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It could be and the development of such a property would probably be for the best interests, so the committee thought to promote that sort of building would be for the best interest of the community.

DELEGATE BARRY. So this is not confined to depressed areas. It could be anywhere, any type of residential construction?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It includes any kind of improvement by construction, yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rovner.

DELEGATE ROVNER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, as a member of the standing committee, I was against this proposal. And if I may, before I give you my reasons why, I would like to correct, I believe, a certain statement that was just made because, in my opinion, the preceding section takes care of the situation that was just discussed by the chairman of our committee.

The reason I am for this amendment is because, number one, I believe that this section, if it were to be placed in the Constitution, would do away with the philosophy of uniform taxation. I know that our great State has been noted for its uniform taxation and we can be very proud of the fact that we have that. Number two, it picks out one element about a private sector—that is, the home-building sector—of our community, and it gives it a special tax break. I do not believe that this is needed because it would also give a special tax break for $50,000-homes, $100,000-homes, high-rise types of apartments, and so forth.

At the present time, fellow delegates, we do have the tax assessment bodies throughout the State that provide for this. I am sure there is a time element now of lapses between the building of the home and the tax assessment.

I would like to respectfully and strongly urge all the delegates here to vote for this amendment so that we can have a uniform taxation program, and not give to any one sector, and that is the home-building association, any tax exemption because we do not give this to grocery stores to build up a milk route. This is not given so, therefore, I think it is wrong and I would be in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. Mr. President, I would like to speak in opposition to the amendment. I have had a bit of experience in this field, being a member of the board of assessment; as a matter of fact, Chairman of the Board of Assessment in Lackawanna County. My interpretation of the proposal as presented is actually to legalize what is being done presently by many, many boards throughout the Commonwealth. In conferences and in conventions with boards of assessment, certain tax provisions and certain reductions of assessment are being granted presently to home builders. During the time that a house or a group of houses are being constructed there are special tax provisions granted to that builder. When this was discussed in committee sessions, it was decided that inasmuch as this is being practiced at the present time why not make it constitutionally proper and make provisions for it in the Constitution; therefore, I would suggest that we vote "no" against the amendment as presented.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Delegate Woodring or Delegate Gerber, perhaps.

DELEGATE GERBER. I will take it, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have a volunteer. Proceed.

DELEGATE WELSH. Delegate Gerber, am I correct as I read this, for example, that Section 1A, subsections (c), (d) and (e) are basically one package?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, Delegate Welsh, no.

DELEGATE WELSH. If the answer is no, I would like to ask you to explain the difference.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, Delegate Welsh, fellow delegates, I think that the debate we have had here this afternoon on subsection (c) speaks for itself, and without attempting to bore or to keep the people here any longer, unless further questioned, I will not dwell on subsection (c), because I think that we have talked about it enough and what we hope it will do. All subsection (c) does is place the exemption test for the individuals on a needs basis.

With reference to subsection (d), the purpose of subsection (d) as drafted by the committee was to stimulate private funds into the sector of improving, developing, reconstructing and rehabilitating real estate in order to upgrade deteriorating property areas in the Commonwealth.

With reference to subsection (e), the purpose of this subsection and its discussion came about as a result of a Supreme Court decision which held an act of the General Assembly unconstitutional. Said act provided that there would be a delay on an interim reassessment of construction of residential property. That was a statewide delay or statewide abatement by the General Assembly in each of the municipalities.

What we are doing here is giving each municipality the opportunity to determine for itself whether or not it wants to stimulate residential construction within its borders. The purpose of it is this: Today inventory is being taxed, or may be taxed. This is the only area of economy where this can happen. We are concerned with the fact that you can tax the inventory of houses as they are going up, that you can tax the inventory of multiple dwellings as they are going up, because this has been a debilitating factor in introducing development in certain areas. We have heard testimony on this from many able intelligent witnesses who gave us these facts.

As Delegate Popil, who is a member of the Board of Assessment of Lackawanna, pointed out, what has happened in many counties and many areas is that the boards of assessment have turned their backs because they felt that they should stimulate this type of construction, but in so turning their backs they were committing what amounts to an illegal act. We do not want these boards of assessment to feel that they have to continue to commit what amounts to an illegal act in order to give to the construction of residential homes and that industry the same tax benefits that every other commercial industrial industry has in Pennsylvania, and that is, not to be taxed on inventory.

DELEGATE WELSH. One more question: Was this subsection (e) the result possibly of a proposal introduced by you, Delegate Gerber?

DELEGATE GERBER. It was a proposal that I introduced along with two other delegates, if I recall accurately.

DELEGATE WELSH. It seems to me—not because it is your proposal, but I am just trying to categorize the thing in my own mind—that I have to object to this and speak in favor of the amendment striking it out. In Section 1A, under exemptions, subsection (a), on one hand, it seems to me, that we are trying to tighten up the tax structure in this State, then as we get over to the next page in (c), (d) and (e), we are trying to loosen it up again.

For that reason I speak in opposition to subsection (e) and, therefore, in favor of the amendment striking it down because it seems to me it is clearly inconsistent.

Thank you, Mr. President.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, may I respond, please?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, please.

DELEGATE GERBER. On the other hand, Mr. President and fellow delegates, the purposes of (c), (d) and (e) were to create economic stimuli in Pennsylvania whereby we could have better and more tax ratables on our list in our counties. The purpose of these three sections, particularly (d) and (e), was to create a climate whereby in (d) we could bring in private funds to stimulate people who have private funds to take a part in rehabilitating and redeveloping communities. By so doing they would be given a limited delay on their tax reassessment in the hope that this would do two things.

Number 1, it would raise the standard of the community; number 2, it would give the community a higher tax base after the period expired. Pursuant to Section (e), it is found that where you have residential homes, the property on which they are located is assessed at a greater value than before the homes were built there.

If you do not have sufficient stimulation for this purpose, you are only going to keep your tax ratables at a low level. But just as important, it was our position that—unfortunately, this industry had to turn to the Constitution to gain help as a result of the Howell case. It was our opinion that the only way we could equalize the tax structure and economy pursuant to the home-construction industry, as well as other industries, was to grant them this opportunity for an exemption.

The committee proposal had tightened up (d), but the Convention loosened it up rather considerably just a few moments ago. If we are going to concern ourselves with the development of industrial and commercial land speculation, it would certainly seem to me that it would be grossly unfair to the home-building industry to put them in a unique tax position where they and only they suffer from having their inventory taxed.

DELEGATE WELSH. Just one more remark. I rise again just to make a statement to the effect that this very same thing contained in your proposal, subsections (c),

(d) and (e), are the very same things that the Local Government Committee turned down and voted down. That was only about two weeks ago.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Aberman.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. Mr. President, may I interrogate Delegate Gerber for one second?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. One of the amendments that we have just approved was Mr. Buck's amendment, Mr President, which inserted after the word "development" on line 25, the word "construction."

I am a little puzzled at this point. I rise, by the way, so you will not misconstrue my intention, to speak against the proposed amendment being offered here.

You now have inserted in (d) the words "construction of real estate," with special tax exemptions being applicable for a limited time. You now have in (e), construction of residential real estate, for two years.

I wonder whether or not, now that your scheme, as it were, for (d) has been violated—

DELEGATE GERBER. Please do not call it a scheme; call it a plan.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. I did not infer a nefarious meaning to the word "scheme." I was using the word "schematic," Mr. President. I wonder whether or not, Mr. President, you might consider the word "construction," if it was limited only in one area, for residential real estate, might not rightly remove the necessity for (e) at this point?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, in response to Delegate Aberman's question, in view of the fact the committee rejected the thoughts of the Buck amendment, it was our opinion that subsection (e) was required.

Frankly, I have not had the opportunity to give it sufficient thought on the floor today to determine whether or not the Buck amendment solves the problem that (e) hopes to solve. I do not think it does because we are directing our attention, Mr. President, to a specific problem that we think concerns the development of needed housing units for the growing population of the Commonwealth.

The information which was presented in our committee clearly showed us that Pennsylvania was in need of this type of help. The General Assembly, in its wisdom, attempted to help it. The Supreme Court in a case said they could not do it because the Constitution would not let them. What we are trying to do here is to meet the needs expressed both by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth for which, I, for one, as one of the delegates here, have a great deal of respect, and, secondly, by the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. I asked a short interrogation and got a long answer.

DELEGATE GERBER. You know me better than that, do you not?

DELEGATE ABERMAN. The answer is that you feel that (e) must be maintained and, therefore, I speak against the proposed amendment. That was the point I was trying to make.

DELEGATE GERBER. Thank you very much, Mr. Aberman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Very shortly, Mr. President, I would like to speak against the proposed amendment. I am aware of the prior legislative provision which provided such an exemption as this proposal intends to provide. I think the basic underlying theory was good. I am aware of the Agway Case which said that you could not do it. I think the principle is no different, absolutely no different—in opposition to what Mr. Rovner says—than the principle contained in Section (b) on page 3 whereby an exemption is provided for the inventory of private forest preserves.

I think the theories are exactly the same; I do not look at it as a special benefit for home builders because, as everyone knows who has ever worked in this area, this tax if assessed is passed directly along in the price of the residential home when it is sold or occupied. But I must point out that I do not necessarily agree with section (e) as drawn, and by that I mean I do not think that the exemption should be left up to the whim of the local taxing authority. It is either a good principle or a bad principle and you buy it in that fashion. If you do buy it, it is a good principle. I think it should remain and not put the home builders into conflict with the local taxing authorities. I speak against the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment for striking off this particular section.

For most of the day here we have debated and discussed the help and needs of the disabled, the poor, the poverty stricken, the rehabilitation, the improvement of real estate, and this particular section is special legislation; it is class legislation; and I think it could be termed a steal. There are no standards here which could be applicable. This would be purely for special interests.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rovner.

DELEGATE ROVNER. Mr. President, I would like to point out in addition to what I said before, number one, in Section (d) of this proposal it refers to deteriorating properties. In Section (e) of the proposal, I believe the intent is for new construction of homes or apartments which can be, as I said before, luxury apartments and also luxury homes. But I think the most important question that we have to resolve in our minds is the philosophy of the tax umbrella. Are we going to make this umbrella so large that we are going to include a private sector of our economy? Are we going to enlarge the tax umbrella that we are going to make a special class of home builders? I think if we do this, we are making a grave mistake. I would urge all the delegates here to vote "yes" for this proposal.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—40

Banes	Clinger	King	Ruth
Barron	Fagan	Mattioni	Scarlett
Barry	Fay	McGeary	Scott
Bashoff	Feather	Moorhead	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	More	Shrager
Buck	Hannum	Morton	Silverman
Bunting	Himes	Orbin	Solomon
Caputo	Hook	Powell	Welsh
Caron	Irvis	Roberts	Wilmarth
Casey	Jirolanio	Rovner	Woodring

NAYS—93

Aberman	Devlin	Leach	Richter
Amsterdam	Erwin	Lee, K.	Sahli
Aurentz	Fawcett	Leinbach	Scales
Baldus	Fleming	Leonard	Sebastian
Baldwin	Fohl	Levin	Shapiro
Benedict	Forster	Manderino	Sharp
Benfield	Fortney	Mangery	Shettig
Bloom	Gerber	Markley	Shively
Brennan	Goldman	McGlynn	Sprogell
Broderick	Goldstein	Michael	Stout
Brown	Griffith	Michener	Strickler
Burkholder	Harding	Miller, D.	Swope
Butera	Heyburn	Murray	Thomson
Cain	Hocker	Nelson	Thornburgh
Camardella	Horne	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Clark	Huggins	Orban	Tully
Conley	Johnson	Otto	Van Sant
Corey	Kauffman	Pelletier	Waldron
Cortese	Keller, J.	Popil	Warman
Croop	Keller, M.	Pott	Westerberg
Cunningham	Kelly	Rappaport	Whittum
Curran	Krill	Redick	Wilcox
Dailey	Laputka	Reynolds	Woodside
Desmond

NOT VOTING—30

Allison	Fineman	Lane	Percey
Bagenstose	Gabreski	Lee, L.	Prendergast
Baldrige	Gouger	Meyer	Quiles
Cosetti	Gray	Miller, R.	Rea
Donaldson	Hatter	Musselman	Scranton
Donolow	Henderson	Pasquerilla	Stroup
Dumbauld	Hostetler	Pechan	Tate
Filson	Kline

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I do not want to quarrel with the Chair, but if my memory serves me, I was told that we were going to adjourn or recess at 7 o'clock, Mr. President, and it is now five after seven.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, would the gentleman from Northampton yield?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would the gentleman yield to the chairman of the committee?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I would merely like to point out that this clock is a little bit fast.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want to point out something that is more serious. We have five more amendments to consider on this section and I was hoping that we could finish this proposal this evening.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Let us recess and come back after that. You are going to get everybody so groggy they would not know what they are looking at or what they are reading.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am willing to abide by the feeling of the delegates, but frankly, we have five more amendments and I think if we move this thing quickly we can be out of here by 7:30. Let us try.

WESTERBERG AMENDMENT TO PROPROSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Westerberg.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, I have an amendment here to Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14, that amends Section 1, subsection 1A, page 3, line 30 and page 4, line 1.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to Proposal No. 5 on second consideration?

DELEGATE WESTERBERG offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, line 30; page 4, line 1, by striking out "laws set up standards and qualifications by which local taxing authorities may," and inserting: law

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Westerberg?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I think the Westerberg amendment is meritorious and I would move that we vote for it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Westerberg?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—120

Baldwin	Devlin	Lee, K.	Ruth
Banes	Erwin	Leinbach	Sahli
Bagenstose	Fagan	Leonard	Scales
Barron	Fawcett	Levin	Scarlett
Barry	Fay	Manderino	Scott
Bashoff	Feather	Mangery	Sebastian
Benedict	Fleming	Markley	Shapiro
Benfield	Fohl	Mattioni	Sharp
Brennan	Forster	McGeary	Shettig
Broderick	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Brown	Gehrlein	Michael	Shoemaker
Buck	Gerber	Michener	Shrager
Bunting	Goldman	Miller, D.	Silverman
Burkholder	Goldstein	Moorhead	Solomon
Butera	Griffith	More	Sprogell
Cain	Hannum	Morton	Stout
Camardella	Heyburn	Murray	Strickler
Caputo	Himes	Nelson	Swope
Caron	Hocker	O'Donnell	Thomson
Casey	Hook	Orban	Tomascik
Clark	Horne	Orbin	Tully
Clinger	Johnson	Otto	Van Sant
Conley	Kauffman	Pelletier	Waldron
Corey	Keller, J.	Popil	Warman
Cortese	Keller, M.	Pott	Welsh
Croop	Kelly	Rappaport	Westerberg
Cunningham	King	Redick	Whittum
Curran	Krill	Reynolds	Wilcox
Dailey	Laputka	Richter	Wilmarth
Desmond	Leach	Roberts	Woodring

NAYS—3

Bloom	Huggins	Powell

NOT VOTING—40

Aberman	Dumbauld	Irvis	Percey
Allison	Filson	Jirolanio	Prendergast
Amsterdam	Fineman	Kline	Quiles
Aurentz	Gabreski	Lane	Rea
Baldrige	Gouger	Lee, L.	Rovner
Baldus	Gray	Meyer	Scranton
Braham	Harding	Miller, R.	Stroup
Cosetti	Hatter	Musselman	Tate
Donaldson	Henderson	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Donolow	Hostetler	Pechan	Woodside

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

AMENDMENTS DEFERRED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now I am going to ask the clerk to read the next amendment which is being offered by Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, at this time I would like to defer my amendment to a later time, a later date.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do I understand you do not wish to offer your amendment?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Not at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does Delegate Leinbach have an amendment?

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, I would like to defer that until tomorrow morning. There is another thing I want to look into, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Of course by deferring we are not accomplishing very much, but let us proceed to the next one.

Does Delegate Shapiro have an amendment?

MOTION TO ADJOURN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Van Sant.

DELEGATE VAN SANT. Since you admit we are not accomplishing much, I move that we adjourn.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have a motion to adjourn. It has been moved by Delegate Van Sant, seconded by Delegate Bagenstose.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENTS TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I read in place and present amendments to Proposal No. 5.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendments which were read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 10, by striking out "OR ANY OTHER SPECIAL"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 13, by inserting after "services": and not subject to local taxation

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 15, by striking out "an amount" and inserting: gross receipts tax revenues

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 18, by striking out "in the preceding year." and inserting a period

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 25 to 27, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: That real property of public utilities which is not used or useful in furnishing their public utility services shall remain subject to local taxation.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendments offered by Delegate Shapiro?

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Have we finished all amendments dealing with all issues besides that of public utilities?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We understand that we have. Is that so? Yes.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, I have one amendment which does not relate to public utility, which has not come from the drafting bureau yet.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have not received that amendment, or at least I have not seen it. We will take it when we get it.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I think that we have all lobbied for and against the utility amendments sufficiently, and I am not going to direct my attention to the merits of Section 1(c) itself.

The purpose of my amendment is primarily to deal with two problems which presently exist in 1(c), as I read it. The committee made a change in the last sentence of 1(c), which was intended, I think, to correct an oversight on the part of the committee with respect to certain particular utility properties in the city of Philadelphia and perhaps in one or two other locations in the State.

The purpose as stated by the committee when they offered the amendment was to make sure that certain real estate, which is specifically subject to tax at present, real estate of, I believe, transportation companies and railroads, that is, local transportation companies and railroads, specifically taxable at present to make sure that they would remain taxable.

However, the language adopted, I think, would also mean that real estate of utilities which is presently devoted to a purpose not within the existing exemption but, for example, either gas or electric company or telephone company property presently used as offices which is subsequently converted to a use or a purpose for which the law would presently give an exemption would, under the language adopted by the committee, I believe, remain subject to tax. I do not think this was intended by the committee. That is one of the purposes of my amendment.

The other purpose of my amendment providing for striking out the words "in the preceding years," is directed at this particular problem: The fact that the General Assembly is directed by 1(c) to provide for the annual distribution among local taxing authorities of the tax equal to the amount which local taxing authorities throughout the Commonwealth could have collected had exempt properties been instead subject to real estate tax.

This is to be based, according to the present wording of 1(c), on the taxes that could have been applied on the real estate in the preceding year. I suggest that it would be an impossibility or an impracticability, or at least very, very difficult, for any state official to collect sufficient information as to the taxes that could have been collected throughout the Commonwealth in the preceding year in time to make distribution in the following year.

I, therefore, suggest deletion of the words "in the preceding year." The balance of the amendment, I believe, will clarify and correct the language in those two respects.

LEINBACH AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leinbach.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, Delegate Shapiro's amendment takes care of what I proposed in mine.

I, therefore, withdraw my amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you. We will mark yours "withdrawn."

In connection with the Shapiro amendment, the Chair has been advised by the Parliamentarian that in connection with the first line of your amendment, amending Section 2, page 4, line 10, by striking out "or any other special", this was the wording inserted by a prior amendment. The only way that can be changed is by a motion to reconsider the vote by which that was adopted.

I understand we have the same thing in connection with the last part of your amendment, amending Section 2, subsection 1(c), page 4, striking out all of said lines and inserting "that property of public utilities which is not used or useful in furnishing their public utilities services shall remain subject to local taxation." I am advised that may already have been amended.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. May I make this suggestion: Take your comments in reverse order of comments of counsel.

I have suggested the substitution on line 13 of the words "and not subject to local taxation", which would be my reason for reinstating the original language.

Secondly, as to the first comment, I think that the same purpose could be served, if I may, by instead of striking out "or any other special" if I would insert "after taxes" in substitution for "gross receipts taxes". I think we would then get the same purpose.

MOTION TO TABLE AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, on behalf of the subcommittee and the Committee on Taxation and State Finance, I would like at this time to make a motion to table the Shapiro amendment, take up what I know to be an amendment not dealing with public utilities introduced by Delegate Barry, to vote on the package without getting into public utilities and, looking at the hour and knowing the weariness of our committee and our chairman, to take up the issue on utilities tomorrow and to conclude the rest of our debate here tonight on the section that we have dwelt on all day. I think that we would be doing a service to the Convention by giving it an opportunity to, with a fresh mind and fresh eyes, think clearly about the questions that are going to come up on the utility section, which is something of a departure from what we have been debating here today. Therefor, I move to table the Shapiro amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before you make that motion, let me just point out to you that the Chair has already ruled that the first part and the last part of the Shapiro amendment are not acceptable amendments because there should be motions to reconsider the vote by which the previous amendments adopted that language. This is the ruling of the Parliamentarian on that. My question is whether under those circumstances Delegate Shapiro wants to withdraw his amendment and resubmit it as a motion to reconsider or whether he wants to limit his amendment to the language upon which I have not commented.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I am afraid that it would not accomplish the purpose if I did the latter. I wonder if I could withdraw it at this time and submit it tomorrow?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very well, we will consider it withdrawn, which takes care of your purpose, Delegate Gerber. Do you now want to take up the Barry amendment?

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes, you are right, Mr. President. I want to thank you very much for the courtesy extended to the committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do we have the Barry amendment? While we are having copies run off, we will have the clerk read the amendment.

MEETING OF JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, while we are waiting I thought it might be appropriate to announce that there will be a meeting of the Judiciary Committee in the House Majority Caucus Room immediately following the termination of this session, assuming that we terminate within any reasonable period of time. I thought that might also encourage us to terminate at this time, because it is quite obvious that if we are going to get into the public utility amendment, it will literally be hours.

BARRY AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand the motion has been made that we consider the Barry amendment, and after the consideration of the Barry amendment the Chair will accept a motion to adjourn.

DELEGATE GERBER. That was the request of the committee, Mr. President.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRY offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1A), page 3, lines 22 to 30, by striking out "The General Assembly may by general laws set up standards" in line 22, all of lines 23 to 29 and "(e)" in line 30

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, I will be short because this is a simple proposition.

In 1965, after two sessions of the General Assembly had approved an amendment, the electorate voted an amendment to the Constitution exempting from occupational privilege taxes, at the discretion of local authorities, persons deriving less than $1,000 a year from an occupation. The tax committee has taken that out of its proposal and I find that that was intentional because they had been advised that the amount of money is very small involving these refunds to people earning less than $1,000. However, I submit to the floor that it should be reinstated; money is not the only thing at issue here.

If, for example, there is $200,000 involved statewide in a year, this means that there are 20,000 people who would be deprived of this refund of $10. I know personally of many cases where a kid will go out and work at an amusement park and earn $25. Ten dollars of that is taken out and becomes part of the occupational privilege tax. This leaves a bad taste in the mouths of a lot of people. I asked our counsel today—we did not have time to get to it, but I am sure the Legislative Journals of those two sessions when this amendment was passed are full of objections by people who are tied up in this type of thing which makes people despair of government.

I earnestly suggest to you that we reinstate this amendment. Money is not the only thing at issue; it is people in the coils of big government. We are saddled with a uniformity provision in Pennsylvania that is very restrictive. This will solve that problem.

I earnestly ask you to give a break to these people and save the legislators' already tin ears, because I am sure they will have a lot of gripes if you do not.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. Mr. President, this is another of those cases where we are trying to put a figure, an exact dollar figure, in the Constitution, which I think is entirely misplaced.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the committee considered this proposal. This was often debated in committee. We felt it was covered in subsection (c) which takes care of the right to exempt on a needs basis, which would include the college student.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—28

Amsterdam	Bunting	Fagan	Murray
Aurentz	Burkholder	Fay	Roberts
Banes	Caputo	Irvis	Shapiro
Barron	Casey	Jirolanio	Shrager
Barry	Cosetti	Mattioni	Silverman
Bashoff	Curran	McGlynn	Solomon
Braham	Dailey	Miller, D.	Warman

NAYS—100

Aberman	Fleming	Lee, K.	Sahli
Bagenstose	Fohl	Leinbach	Scales
Baldwin	Forster	Leonard	Scarlett
Benedict	Fortney	Levin	Scott
Benfield	Gehrlein	Manderino	Sebastian
Bloom	Gerber	Mangery	Sharp
Brennan	Goldman	McGeary	Shively
Broderick	Goldstein	Michael	Shoemaker
Brown	Griffith	Michener	Sprogell
Buck	Hannum	Moorhead	Stout
Camardella	Harding	More	Strickler
Caron	Heyburn	Morton	Stroup
Clark	Himes	Nelson	Swope
Clinger	Hocker	O'Donnell	Thomson
Conley	Hook	Orban	Thornburgh
Corey	Horne	Orbin	Tomascik
Cortese	Huggins	Otto	Tully
Croop	Johnson	Pelletier	Waldron
Cunningham	Kauffman	Popil	Welsh
Desmond	Keller, J.	Powell	Westerberg
Devlin	Keller, M.	Pott	Whittum
Erwin	Kelly	Rappaport	Wilcox
Fawcett	Krill	Redick	Wilmarth
Feather	Laputka	Reynolds	Woodring
Fineman	Leach	Richter	Woodside

NOT VOTING—35

Allison	Gabreski	Lee, L.	Quiles
Baldrige	Gouger	Markley	Rea
Baldus	Gray	Meyer	Rovner
Butera	Hatter	Miller, R.	Ruth
Cain	Henderson	Musselman	Scranton
Donaldson	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Shettig
Donolow	King	Pechan	Tate
Dumbauld	Kline	Percey	Van Sant
Filson	Lane	Prendergast

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

RESOLUTION

PLEDGE OF ALLEGIANCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, I have a resolution which I think is most appropriate and I would like to present it this afternoon or this evening, if in order. We did not have the time this morning to present any resolutions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will recognize you for a resolution.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President and delegates, it is an honor to have this privilege to submit this resolution at this most appropriate time today, Lincoln's birthday. As a matter of fact, it is most appropriate at any time.

Mr. President, I offer the following resolution:

In the Constitutional Convention, March 12, 1968.

The flag of our Nation symbolizes those principles, such as the freedom to live, to speak, to worship and to program our lives according to our wills and abilities for which one million Americans have sacrificed their lives since the birth of this flag. Thousands of other Americans have suffered disabilities today because they had the courage to fight for democracy. These are the thoughts we should keep in mind as we pledge allegiance to the flag; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That, the United States flag being a part of this convention, it would be appropriate that this convention go on record by adding to our opening ceremonies each day the pledge of allegiance to the flag of our Country.

JOHN J. REDICK.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Rules.

ADJOURNMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban, our Vice President, who has the adjournment resolution.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, I move that this Convention do now adjourn until Tuesday, February 13, 1968, at 9:00 a.m., e.s.t.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Orban that this Convention do now adjourn until Tuesday, February 13, 1968, at 9:00 a.m., e.s.t.

The motion was agreed to and (at 7:26 p.m., e.s.t.) the Convention was adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 | Tuesday, February 13, 1968 | Number 42

The Convention was called to order at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND R. BLAIR MOFFETT of the First Presbyterian Church, Wellsboro, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray:

Father, we have before this body a great and complex task. Not only do we deal with the body of man-made laws which are difficult enough, but even more we seek justice. So we ask for wisdom, Lord.

Each of us comes from a specific background and thus with certain pressures and preconceptions. We ask, Lord, that You will purify our motives and give us courage to stand for the best of which we are capable.

Sometimes, Father, we cherish exaggerated ideas of our own importance. When we are given authority, we tend to forget who we are and who You are.

As we look ahead, help us to remember those whose hopes for justice ride on our efforts today and grant us humility.

We pray this morning for wisdom, for courage, and for humility. Amen.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the Secretary, Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I bring you a very good omen indeed. For the first time in the history of this Convention there are no requests for leaves of absence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I wish to applaud that.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now have the roll call to determine whether a quorum is present.

All those present will please vote "yea."

The roll was recorded as follows:

Aberman	Devlin	Lee, K.	Richter
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Roberts
Aurentz	Erwin	Leonard	Rovner
Bagenstose	Fagan	Levin	Ruth
Baldrige	Fawcett	Manderino	Sahli
Baldus	Fay	Mangery	Scales
Baldwin	Feather	Markley	Scarlett
Banes	Filson	Mattioni	Scott
Barron	Fineman	McGeary	Sebastian
Benfield	Fleming	McGlynn	Shapiro
Bloom	Fohl	Michael	Shettig
Braham	Fortney	Michener	Shively
Brennan	Goldman	Miller, D.	Shoemaker
Broderick	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Shrager
Brown	Gray	Moorhead	Silverman
Buck	Griffith	More	Solomon
Bunting	Hannum	Morton	Sprogell
Burkholder	Harding	Murray	Stout
Butera	Hatter	Nelson	Strickler
Cain	Henderson	O'Donnell	Stroup
Camardella	Himes	Orban	Swope
Caputo	Hocker	Orbin	Tate
Caron	Hook	Otto	Thomson
Casey	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Clark	Irvis	Pelletier	Tully
Clinger	Jirolanio	Percey	Van Sant
Conley	Johnson	Popil	Waldron
Corey	Kauffman	Pott	Warman
Cortese	Keller, J.	Powell	Welsh
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Westerberg
Croop	Kelly	Rappaport	Whittum
Cunningham	King	Rea	Wilcox
Curran	Krill	Redick	Wilmarth
Dalley	Laputka	Reynolds	Woodring
Desmond	Leach

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The electronic roll call tabulator indicates that we have present 138 delegates, which constitutes a quorum.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Allison	Forster	Heyburn	Scranton
Barry	Gabreski	Kline	Sharp
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Lee, L.	Tomascik
Benedict	Gerber	Meyer	Woodside
Donaldson	Gouger	Quiles

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will move on to our calendar and take up the position on the calendar where we left off last night at 7:30 p.m.

We will take up Proposal No. 5, printers No. 14.

CALENDAR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 5, ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 5, Printer's No. 14, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania further regulating exemptions from taxation and providing for the taxation of real property of public utilities.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

RECOMMENDATIONS TO EXPEDITE PROCEDURE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilmarth.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Mr. President, before we go on with the business of the morning, I have some suggestions that I would like to present to the Rules Committee which might expedite what we are doing and I wonder if it would be in order if I do it at this time?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair hears no objection.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Mr. President, I am sure that not only myself but others are concerned that we are taking a great deal of time to expedite what we are trying to do in this Convention. I would like to very quickly make three proposals to the Rules Committee that might help us in our endeavors.

The first proposal is this: that every amendment should carry the signatures of 15 sponsors before being given our consideration. This is no attempt to try to throttle amendments from the floor, but I have observed, as have many others, that many of our amendments have fallen by a very few "yea" votes and a preponderance of "nay" votes. I actually feel that if our delegates would try to consolidate and get together and have enough backing, such as 15 sponsors, that we could probably expedite this and carry on our deliberations in a much quicker manner than we are presently doing.

The second proposal is that after presentation every amendment should be carried over for at least one day before debate by this body. I say this with all sincerity. I am terribly concerned that we are receiving amendments that we have to pass on with snap judgment, that we do not have ample opportunity to study, and that we are doing an injustice to this body and to our Constitution in passing on them so quickly that we, in many instances, distort the meaning of the original proposal. I think that this should be given every consideration. I honestly believe that we must have time to study these amendments.

If you will recall, the original proposal must on first reading go over at least 24 hours, and I feel that amendments are as important as is the proposal itself. Many times I am sure that they are more important. We do have ample time to study the original proposal, but we have no time to study the amendments which in many cases distort, change, perhaps by only one word, but do change the intent of the original proposal. I think that it is a terrific injustice to this body that we pass on amendments as rapidly as we do.

The third proposal is that the section amended shall be presented in its entirety in a printed form as amended. What I am actually saying is that if we have the amendment printed, that section printed that is being amended, so that we can actually look at it, then I am sure that I, and others, will stop marking up our original proposals to the place where it is impossible for us to read them. I believe, Mr. President, that these proposals would certainly expedite the action of this Constitution and we will do a better job.

I move, Mr. President, that the Rules Committee give this immediate consideration and I hope that I have a second and the backing of this delegate body.

DELEGATE BROWN. I second that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been seconded by Delegate Brown and so, therefore, we will present your suggestions immediately to the Rules Committee for their consideration. I would suggest that if you have those proposals of yours in writing that you hand it up so we can present them accurately to the Rules Committee.

SCHEDULE FOR THE DAY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before recognizing Delegate Hocker, the Chair wants to point out that today we started at 9 o'clock and we plan to keep going until 7 or 7:30 or perhaps even 8 o'clock this evening, depending on a normal time for a break. We must complete the second consideration of all proposals this week, and at the rate we went yesterday it would very much look like we will probably be here this weekend unless we step up our pace.

AMENDMENT PROCEDURE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has taken upon itself to do something to expedite the consideration of amendments. Sitting at this table down here from now on will be our First Vice President Bob Casey and our Second Vice President Frank Orban. I am going to ask them to please sit down here. They are going to serve as a committee, together with our Assistant Parliamentarian and Solicitor, Tom Balaban, and the attorney for that particular committee whose proposals are under consideration. The four of them will be there to accept amendments prior to and during the session. The purpose of this committee is to eliminate, as much as possible, duplicate amendments, to talk to delegates and advise the delegates that their amendment is similar to another's, to see if you cannot get together on a combined amendment and, also, to set up the amendments in the order of the proposal itself so that we can go through the proposal in some order. The amendments will, therefore, be handed up to the Chair from that committee. I am asking right now if Vice President Frank Orban and Vice President Bob Casey will take their positions down there with Tom Balaban, whom you now know, and Mr. Goldberg, who is the attorney for this committee, whom you also know, and in this way we hope to organize and expedite amendments.

HOCKER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now, without further waste of time, the Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker for his amendment.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I read in place and present an amendment to Proposal No. 5.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HOCKER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 8 to 27 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Section 1C. Public Utilities.—The real property of public utilities is and shall be subject to real estate taxes imposed by local taxing authorities, unless the General Assembly imposes a uniform State tax upon the real property of public utilities which is used in the production, rendition or distribution of public utility services. The annual gross amount of such State tax shall equal the total amount of real property taxes which all the local taxing authorities of the Commonwealth could have imposed upon such public utility real property in the preceding year had such property been subject to local taxation. Should the General Assembly impose such a real property tax, the proceeds after the cost of collection shall be distributed annually to the local taxing authorities, in an equitable manner to be determined by law which shall be based solely on (1) the percentage of tax exempt public utility real property in the Commonwealth which is located in each local taxing authority and (2) the percentage of the population of the Commonwealth in each local taxing authority. All real property of public utilities subject to local taxation at the time of the adoption of this section shall remain subject to local taxation.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, first of all, you and I and the Parliamentarian agreed on some changes at the top of this amendment. This is printer's No. 14. It would be section 1-C, page 4, lines 8 to 27.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are correct.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, I realize that I am swimming against the tide here, and I slept with this also last night. I guess after I am through here this morning I will not have a telephone at home—thank God for that—and I heat with electricity; that will probably be turned off, and the only gas I have will probably be on my stomach; and I probably will have to ride Greyhound instead of the railroad; and then when I get home I will not have any water to take a bath.

Mr. President, fellow delegates, I have been a member of the House, as you know, for 20 years. I have fought this same battle for 20 years and I have been unsuccessful. The reason for that is the powerful lobby that the public utilities have. Now I was hoping, and I am still hoping, that with a new set of faces, and with people who were not sent here for any specific purpose, other than to help other people in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, that I could see a little ray of hope in what I am trying to do.

First of all, my amendment, if you read it carefully, would place a real estate tax on public utilities which they have dodged or ducked since the beginning of this great Commonwealth. They have always been successful in knocking down any taxes. If the legislature fails to do this, then the local political subdivisions, the local people, will have an opportunity to do it.

The way this proposal is written in the bill I think is a raid on the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, and it would not be paid by the utilities; it would be paid by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We have a gross receipts tax, yes, but if you would follow out the mandate of the proposal, it would take $17 million out of this budget which you are insisting be presented as a balanced budget, and if you have this book, you will find that the gross receipts tax in here is a part of the balance. What would that mean? That would mean that if you take $17 million out of the general fund, they would have to go elsewhere for taxes.

I am quite sure that the utilities would be strong enough in their lobby and in their endeavors on Capitol Hill to reject an increase in the gross receipts tax. So what would this mean? You say, what is $17 million out of a $2-billion budget? Well, I shall tell you what it is.

One time, years ago, we in the legislature had to put a penny a bottle on soft drinks in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We took money from the kids to gather $25 million to balance the budget. You take $17 million out of this budget and you are going to have something either that bad or worse.

Mr. President, in my county, in Dauphin County, the utilities—and I spoke of this in the committee meetings—have an assessed value of $3 million. Now this means well over $10 million in real value. This is quite a hunk to take from the taxpayers of the Commonwealth, of Dauphin County in particular, to carry the load for these people. They demand, and rightfully so, that they shall have fire protection, that they shall have police protection, and they are entitled to it. But in return for this, Mr. President, I think they should pay the local community some form of taxation.

Mr. President, that is all I have to say at the present time and I shall stand for interrogation at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring. Did you wish to make a comment at this time as chairman of the committee?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Not at this time, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, I would like Delegate Hocker to know that while he is taking his cold bath, he will not be alone. Where I live, the man to my immediate right is chief counsel to the West Penn Power Company and the man who lives behind me is his first assistant. So I think that many of us will be subject to a little scrutiny as a result of this amendment.

It seems to me, Mr. President, if I may ask a few questions of Mr. Hocker, that there are three principal questions, as well as certain minor questions, that we as delegates need to have answered with respect to this amendment.

The first major question which I have is in relation to comparing this amendment to the committee's proposal. I would like to know how we figure out the total amount of money that will be reimbursed to local government, the method of figuring that sum.

My second question is, how is the money, the total amount, then to be distributed? What formula will be employed to distribute the money to local government under both Delegate Hocker's amendment and the committee proposal?

Thirdly, and perhaps most importantly, where does this money come from? I wish Delegate Hocker would first address himself to the question of how the total amount is figured under both of these proposals?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Delegate Scales, in answer to your question, I will yield to my cosponsor, the gentleman from Lackawanna, Delegate Ed Popil.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. Thank you very much. Delegate Scales, we know, in determining the assessed valuation of any type of property, we must first determine and establish the market value.

Each county in the Commonwealth has a board of assessment and revision of taxes. Their responsibility is, first, to establish a market value on property, and in this case the market value of property owned by utilities would be established. Then a ratio would be applied to the market value to establish the assessed valuation.

My feeling is that after the ratio has been established, this figure then will be presented to the State, to the legislature. All these figures will be compiled by the legislature. They in turn will come up with a millage rate to determine the amount of tax. I am getting a little ahead of my story.

Getting back to the local level—after the assessed valuation has been determined, then you apply the total millage rate in the particular county. You multiply that by the assessed valuation and this determines the amount of tax that the utilities should pay to the local county.

This in turn will be handed over to the legislature. They will know the amount that a particular county should receive. From that they are able to base the tax return after coming up with a total millage for the entire State based on the population of the particular county.

I presume that this percentage will be used to return to the local municipality the amount of tax due on the utilities.

DELEGATE SCALES. Is there any difference between Delegate Hocker's amendment and the committee proposal as far as this problem is concerned, determining the total figure to be used?

DELEGATE POPIL. I do not believe there is any difference.

DELEGATE SCALES. Is there any serious administrative problem in arriving at these figures, or are they figures that in the normal course of events would be easily available?

DELEGATE POPIL. Yes, they would be very easily available, because this is the responsibility of the local boards of assessment and this is a matter, of course, in determining market and assessed valuations.

I might state, which is very, very important, the Pennsylvania State Tax Equalization Board presently does have figures as far as the utilities are concerned. As a matter of fact, they have figures of all counties as to the assessed valuation of a particular county.

However, it is important that these figures be updated, because in many, many counties throughout the Commonwealth the figures for the utilities are not up to date because, actually, there was no reason to bring them up to date since they do not pay a real estate tax. I know that many of the assessment boards have been lax in determining the correct market value of a property and in turn determining the assessed valuation. So it would be very, very important in both proposals that the market value and assessed valuation figures be updated.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, as I understand the Hocker amendment, there is a significant difference between the Hocker amendment and the committee proposal in terms of how local government then receives the reimbursement and which communities get how much money. I think that is an important consideration. I wish Delegate Hocker would comment on that feature of his amendment.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Delegates Scales, I would refer you to our legal brain in this amendment, a man who I think is very capable in this field, Delegate Baldus.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Thank you, Mr. President.

The difference between the method of distribution of funds that would be paid to the State under the proposal and the amendment is quite different. I believe it is one of the strong features of the amendment being offered.

Under Proposal No. 5, the distribution to each local community will be based on the proportion of all the total tax receipts paid in the State to local government that is collected by each local taxing authority.

Stated another way, the local governments which collect the greatest dollar amount of taxes will receive proportionately the greatest share of the fund which is to be distributed from the Commonwealth.

The difficulty with the proposal distribution formula is that it takes no account for communities which have a very large percentage of their real estate tied up in exempt public utility property. For example, the community of Springdale, with which I am familiar, in Allegheny County has an assessed valuation of some $18 million; $16 million of that property is exempt.

Under the proposal of the committee, this community would receive no greater proportionate share of the total fund than would a community that had no utility property. We believe that this is a fundamental inequity and that communities which have a high percentage of utility property should receive special consideration.

So it is for this reason that the proposed amendment would change the factors to be considered by the legislature in adopting a distribution formula to include two considerations: One, the percentage of tax exempt public utility property in each community. Therefore, a community like Peach Bottom, a community like Springdale, which have a very high percentage of exempt utility property would receive special consideration. They would receive a higher return of the funds.

Second consideration that the legislature would look to would be the percentage of the total population in each community. This is a realization that the amount of exempt utility property should not be the only consideration, but that the number of people in the community and their needs should also be considered.

To give you an example of the type of formula that the General Assembly could come up with under our proposal, I suggest to you this type of decision that they might make: The General Assembly would make a decision between the weighting of the funds. If they have a total fund, they have to decide how much of this fund will be weighted for the exempt utility property and how much will be weighted for population. An example of the type of law they could pass is as follows: The percentage of tax-exempt utility property shall be weighted, as an example, 40 per cent, and the percentage of population shall be weighted 60 per cent. The figures could vary. They could be 50-50, 70-30; that would be within the discretion of the legislature. Taking, however, the example of 40 per cent weighting on utility property and 60 per cent on population, the General Assembly would then take the total fund that was collected and multiply that total fund by 40 per cent to determine the amount that would be returned on the basis of the amount of exempt utility property. Having determined what that fund was, 40 per cent of the total, for example, they would then multiply each community's proportionate share of all the exempt utility property. They would do the same with population.

We believe that this formula in the amendment provides a flexibility that would reflect the real problem that has been created by exempt utility property as well as the needs of the people, and for that reason we think is more equitable, and more fair than Proposal No. 5, which bases the return simply on the amount of tax that each local community pays. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would like now to recognize Delegate Rappaport who has been standing there at the microphone for awhile.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, Mr. President. I would like to ask the delegate from Dauphin one simple question.

Sir, is it your intent that pipelines, or other transmission companies, and other similar enterprises which may own fee simple interests for easements, for rights of way, and other interests less than fee simple, for the transmission of commodities or power, or anything of value, be included within this section as being taxable?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I would answer the gentlemen this way: Any part of it that did not fall into the category of machinery would be taxable. I would hope so, Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Is it your intent, sir?

DELEGATE HOCKER. It is my intent, yes.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Hocker a question, if I may?

Delegate Hocker, is it true that what we are intending to accomplish by this particular section is to subject the utilities to some form of local taxation under which they must accept some burden of supporting the local taxing communities?

DELEGATE HOCKER. The answer is yes.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. If that is true, Delegate Hocker, in your comments you stated—I may be paraphrasing this wrongly, but I believe you stated—that to allow the legislature to run the risk of raising the gross receipts tax would be subjecting them to an undue burden because the utilities would be able to lobby too effectively against the increase of such a tax rate. Would not the same be true in subjecting the legislature to the undue pressures of the utility companies in, say, establishing a millage rate of .01 and thereby resulting in a same inequitable or insufficient amount of tax?

DELEGATE HOCKER. In answer to the gentleman, we think we have taken care of that in here that it would be subject to the same millage they would have in the local area.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Exactly the same millage? They must be the same moneys?

DELEGATE HOCKER. I will let Delegate Baldus answer that. He has come up with all the figures. We tried to make it fair and equitable the whole way across the Commonwealth.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Delegate Goldman, the millage that would be charged by the State would, of course, not be the same as that charged by local government. The purpose of this proposal is to provide a fund that is equal to the fund that would have been collected by all the local communities had they charged their normal rate of taxation. The millage rate that would be charged by the State will be that millage rate which must be multiplied by the fair market value of all the utility property in the Commonwealth that is needed to create the fund, that would have resulted had all the local governments taxed according to their millage rates. So the millage rate would be different, but the fund would be the same.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. You are going to create in a fund, which the State will control, exactly the same amount of money that the local communities could have collected together, collectively?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes sir.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Now is not this imposing a type of tax on utilities which is not imposed upon anyone else? I am not necessarily defending utilities, but do not utilities already pay a gross receipts tax which no other type of business entity pays?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Some utilities pay a gross receipts tax, yes. Water companies do not.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Is not that imposing upon those utilities an additional tax burden that no one else, that no other type of business enterprise has the burden to accept or pay?

DELEGATE BALDUS. No other business pays gross receipts tax. All businesses other than utilities pay local real estate tax.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. They all pay income taxes, too?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I would like to elaborate on that. All your corporations within the Commonwealth pay a corporate net income tax to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and still pay real estate taxes. They do not pay a gross receipts tax, but they do pay a corporate net income tax.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Delegate Hocker, my point is this: All corporations in this State pay an income tax on their net earnings that they have received.

DELEGATE HOCKER. That is right.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. We now have a situation where all other corporations, except utilities, do pay a real estate tax; utilities are exempt from it; but in return, they are paying a gross receipts tax to the State that no other corporation pays.

What we are trying to do—and I think this is a good idea—is to equalize these types of taxes. I just wonder if you are going to charge them exactly the same tax that they otherwise would have paid, if you are then not putting them in a completely reverse position and penalizing them for then being a utility.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I do not think we are. I think—and I will go back to what I said—they have a gross receipts tax without any tax on real estate, where your corporation, such as a steel company and everybody else that is incorporated, has just another tax that falls within the different category which was set up by the legislature, which they call corporate net income.

I might say that they even go farther with them. They make them pay it. I do not know what they are paying now, but I have seen them pay 75 per cent ahead of time in order to balance our budget.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Delegate Hocker, you and I have been together in a great many issues on this. I have to speak out against the amendment. I believe we would be penalizing the utilities in imposing this type of a tax, rather than simply trying to equalize the tax problem that now exists.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Baldus a question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, I am sure he will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Delegate Baldus, would you direct my attention to the language in the committee proposal which would preclude consideration of the factors relating to distribution, which you mentioned in discussing distribution? As I read the language, it is far broader than the language of your proposed amendment.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes, the language is broader. It gives the legislature a far broader discretion.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Would not the legislature, in fact, be able to consider every one of the factors which you mentioned in support of your amendment?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I have a very simple mind. I would like to interrogate first the committee and then Delegate Baldus in connection with this proposal.

Specifically, my question is this to the committee: Is it not a fact that the 1873 Convention thought that it was abolishing the exemption from taxation which applied to utilities by simply leaving it out of the Constitution, only to find later that the Supreme Court, in effect, put it back in on the theory that it should have been specifically mentioned as no longer eligible for the exemption?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand you have a question directed to the chairman of the committee, as well as to Delegate Hocker.

Would you want to go first, Delegate Hocker?

DELEGATE HOCKER. No, let the committee answer. I have disagreed with the committee, so I will let them take on that part.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, it is true that the 1873 Convention and Constitution made no mention of the public utility exemption, but public utilities were always exempt theretofore. The Supreme Court, subsequently, held that there was no need, inasmuch as they already had been exempt, that there was no need to specifically renew that exemption. Therefore, they have been held to be exempt ever since that time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does that answer your question, Delegate O'Donnell?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes, sir, that answers the first part. Now as to the second part, I should like to know if Delegate Baldus would permit himself to be interrogated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Baldus is now recognized to answer your question.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Baldus, as I understand your proposal, the utilities would then, in effect, pay an amount which would be identical to the amount which they would have paid had they been subject to local real estate taxation. Is this not correct?

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes, sir.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. If that is correct, then why not have the utilities simply be subject to local taxation and let it go at that?

DELEGATE BALDUS. The reason that the taxation subcommittee did not make such a recommendation and that the proponents of this amendment have not adopted that position is the concern expressed by many delegates and by many other individuals, that this would permit communities which have a very high proportion of their real estate used for public utility purposes, this direct taxation would permit a windfall to those communities. That is the basis of the theory against the direct taxation by local communities, that this would be disruptive of utility procedures and it would create difficulties at a local level.

It is for that reason that the committee rejected the theory of direct taxation by local government, and rather it provided in the alternative, for a taxation at the state level with redistribution to the local communities.

The point of our proposal is that this redistribution should be based on both population and the amount of exempt property.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Just one more if I may.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Yes.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. My understanding of taxation would indicate to me, at least, that a community, for example, which had a large steel mill in it, or a large commercial property of almost any kind, under the same theory, could be considered as having enjoyed the advantage of a windfall, as the expression is given.

Why should there be a difference between my community which has an enormous steel mill and therefore enjoys a windfall and a township which adjoins my community—which is a fact, by the way—Schuylkill Township in Chester County, which has an enormous utility plant and receives no taxation from it whatever? Why should they not be entitled to the same "windfall" by virtue of the fact that they have an enormous industry right on their premises?

I am asking this question of Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. The only difference which I can see is that "windfall" by definition results from a sudden change in the status quo. A change in local taxation would create a substantial increase in the tax receipts of communities with a lot of exempt utility property. You are right and your basic theory is correct; there is no difference except for the fact that this would create a substantial change in the financial condition of the local communities that have a larger percentage of their property in public utilities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Leinbach.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, if I am in order at this point, I rise to object to this amendment. May I proceed?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. You have been recognized.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Last Thursday there was distributed to the delegates of this Convention, a statement about utility taxes. That statement alleges many facts, but does not say where they were gotten and offers no proof that they are true.

Over the weekend, I have reviewed the testimony given before our committee by people who did provide the source of the facts to which they testified. I also spoke to Chairman Bloom of the Public Utility Commission, who certainly knows what he is talking about in the field of public utilities. The only possible conclusion is that the statement has played fast and loose with the truth.

For example, the statement says that Pennsylvania utilities alone, of all utilities operating in the United States, are exempt from paying real estate taxes. I have in my hand a statement taken from the State Tax Guide published by the Thomas Clearing House which shows that there are nine States which exempt some or all utilities from real estate taxes. But aside from that error, the statement on the point is extremely misleading. It gives Ohio as an example. It says: "Ohio utilities pay both real estate taxes and gross receipts taxes." What the statement fails to tell you, however, is that Ohio utilities pay nothing to the State but corporate net income or capital stock taxes, whereas Pennsylvania utilities are paying these taxes to the tune of about $70 million a year, as shown by the Department of Revenue reports.

The statement also states that rates for power, water and gas in Ohio are lower than here, whereas telephone and railroad charges are almost identical. I have in my hand a publication of the Federal Power Commission showing the average residential bills for power in each of the 50 States. In Ohio, a householder using 500 kilowatt hours pays $10.37; in Pennsylvania, he pays $9.50. If he uses 750 kilowatt hours, he pays $14.32 in Ohio, and $13.39 in Pennsylvania.

I also have in my hand a comparison prepared by the Bell Telephone Company, showing monthly charges for telephone service in cities of comparable size in Ohio and Pennsylvania. In a city the size of Allentown, the residential subscriber in Ohio pays $5.50; in Pennsylvania he pays $4.95. For a business subscriber, the Ohio cost is $15.35; the Pennsylvania cost is $10.25.

There are no reliable statistics in water rates. Common sense should tell us that water rates differ greatly from one community to another, depending on the nearness to clean water supplies, and that there is no logical basis for saying that the water rates in one State are higher or lower than those in another State.

Another part of the statement says that water companies are perhaps the biggest land owners of all utilities, but statistics in the Public Utility Commission show that, in terms of investment, the water companies own less than seven per cent of all utility lands in Pennsylvania. The statement says that the utilities should be willing to pay their fair share of taxes the same as any other business enterprises. In statistics derived from the Department of Revenue, it was demonstrated to my committee that out of every $100 of income available to pay taxes, utilities paid $14.70 to the State; whereas, the average for other types of business enterprises is just $9.00. I cannot say what the utilities are willing to pay, but the fact is that they do pay more than their fair share of taxes now.

The statement says that the Federal income tax savings of the 1963-64 cut, or the tremendous savings they have obtained due to the seven per cent investment credit, never saw the darkness of their customers' pockets. Chairman Bloom tells me that this remark is wholly false. The Public Utility Commission requires the power companies to file statements every three months showing their earnings. Whenever those earnings are excessive, the commission demands and gets a rate cut. Numerous cuts have been made since the Federal income tax rate was reduced from 52 per cent to 48 per cent.

As for the investment tax credit, the rate for the power companies is three per cent, not seven per cent. In all cases the commission reduces the utilities' rate base by the amount of the investment tax credit so that the consumers benefit. The statement says that, with the exception of New York, New England, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa and Northern Michigan, wholesale, and in most cases, consumer rates are lower than here. I have no idea what is meant by wholesale power rates, but from the same Federal Power Commission publication I referred to earlier, I can say that as to consumer rates, the statement is simply untrue. For a residential consumer using 500 kilowatt hours per month, there are 35 States where his bill would be higher than it would be in Pennsylvania. If you use 750 kilowatt hours, there would still be 33 States where his bill would be higher than in Pennsylvania. In fact, most of the 14 or so States cheaper than Pennsylvania are those where the Federal Government has put in huge, wholly tax-free power projects.

I hold no brief for public utilities. I have no stock or other investment in them or in any other company, but I am convinced that if we further increase the tax burden on utilities and thereby increase utility rates so that they are no longer competitive in surrounding States, we will have reduced the attractiveness of Pennsylvania to the new industries and do a disservice to the people of the Commonwealth. The taxes we would gain would be a drop in the bucket to the jobs and revenues we would lose because of the discouragement to the development of new industry. Pennsylvania's entire economy would suffer and we could be cutting off our noses to spite our faces.

I, therefore, urge you, my fellow delegates, to defeat this amendment and support our committee's proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. In answer to the gentleman, and I do not know whether he wants an answer, but I would like to say that the document which he has, I had absolutely nothing to do with and I am not a disciple of Milton Shapp; I voted against him.

I yield to Delegate Scales to answer the gentleman; he has some figures.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. I do not particularly have any figures, as Delegate Hocker has suggested, but I think that Delegate Leinbach's statement really goes to the very heart of the matter. If it is true, as he has suggested, that the consumer rates may be lower, I would suggest that the reason that is true is at the expense of the local communities which provide the services for these utilities and which do not receive reimbursement.

I would like to ask you, Delegate Hocker, or some other member at his discretion, such as Delegate Baldus, exactly where the money will come from? I think that is the crucial question. Who ultimately will bear the expense and bear the cost, and what is the fairest way for that cost to be borne under these two different proposals?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Delegate Scales, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. The Chair recognizes you.

DELEGATE HOCKER. In answer to Delegate Scales, I shall yield to our good friend, delegate and professor, Delegate Cosetti.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. I am getting a bonus from this Convention. Besides getting a law degree, I am getting to be made a member of the teaching profession.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Be careful of those degrees which Delegate Hocker confers.

DELEGATE COSETTI. As I see these two proposals, the committee's proposal places the incidence of the tax in the first instance on the general fund of the Commonwealth. It requires the General Assembly to appropriate the funds to reimburse the local communities. They have some discretion as to how they do that; they could do it from the gross receipts tax. But the incidence in the first case is on the General Assembly and the general fund.

As I see it in the amendment which is being presented, the incidence would be on a uniform real estate tax to be imposed by the General Assembly upon the utilities clear across the State.

I am not talking about the final incidences of the tax, but in the initial incidence, the amendment would be upon the utilities, and in the committee's proposal, it would be on the general fund, as I see it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Amsterdam, who is right there at the microphone.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Thank you, Mr. President.

I, as a director and member of the executive committee of one of the important utilities in the State, the Philadelphia Electric Company, requested certain information from them with regard to the very matter which we are discussing today. I would like to ask the gentlemen who are proposing the amendment whether they find anything wrong with the information which was given to me as follows.

I am told that a local real estate tax on electric utilities would divert a disproportionate amount of the tax revenue into sparsely settled communities, because the utilities have very large and growing investments in steam-, hydro-, and nuclear-electric-generating facilities. As an example, I am told that in Peach Bottom Township, York County, which is a community in which the Philadelphia Electric Company has recently built a nuclear-generating station and is building two additional nuclear-generating stations, they have a population of 1,325 citizens. If they were subject to local real estate taxes on these facilities, it would produce tax revenue in that township which is estimated at $850 per capita, compared with a statewide average of real estate taxes which amounts to $72 per capita; that is for the year 1963.

So that one of the elements that is propounded by the amendment, which is based on the real estate actually in the community to the extent that that is made a part of the General Assembly's formula, would make a very disproportionate amount of tax available to a small community, where really very little in the way of services is demanded by that facility because the company itself provides the facility, taking the water directly out of the river, and all the rest of it.

I am told further that this same situation applies on a very much larger scale to the Keystone and Conemaugh generating stations in central Pennsylvania, with customers in the eastern part of the State, the southeastern part primarily, being required to pay for taxes on these projects without receiving any tax benefit whatsoever, to the extent that any part of the formula is based on the real estate actually in the taxing community.

I am further informed that the residential rates of Pennsylvania electric utilities are lower than the national average and lower than those prevailing in the other major centers of the United States.

It is for this reason that we have been able in southeastern Pennsylvania to attract a great many manufacturing institutions and companies to the great benefit of the area. We have been enabled to have substantial increase in employment and have really used that as one of the main bases for having utility users, ordinary corporations, come into our part of the country.

I am told that the imposition of these additional taxes which will be required under the amendment which is proposed here today would result in higher rates or deferral of rating decreases. This would have the effect, according to the company that is giving me this information, of practically wiping out the differential between residential rates in Pennsylvania and the national average and, thus, greatly narrowing the favorable differential compared with the major centers shown for other States.

I wonder whether the proponents of the amendment have any reason to believe that any of these facts are inaccurate?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Delegate Amsterdam, in answer to you I would ask Delegate Cosetti, if he is available, to answer you. I think he has these figures.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. I was just going to say that neither of the proposals would permit a windfall to apply to local communities, so that in neither of these proposals is that question at issue, I think, because both of these proposals require that the State only return to the local community in the aggregate the amount that the local communities would have collected if a local tax were imposed. Both of them limit the amount of distribution to the amount that would have been taxed locally.

The difference between the two proposals, as I see it, is that the committee's proposal looks to the General Assembly to reimburse the local communities by some method, this same amount. I think the amount being talked about at the committee meetings came from an estimate, I believe, by Mr. Dunlap who said that in the survey which he took he believes that the utilities would have paid approximately $17 million to local communities in the State if they were taxed at the same rate that the local communities tax other properties. That $17 million—I do not know whether that is accurate or not—but presuming that it is accurate, both of these proposals speak to that $17 million. They say, in effect, that $17 million should be returned to the local communities. The committee's proposal makes the assumption that it should come from the gross receipts tax which the utilities are now paying. The amendment says that the General Assembly should levy a uniform tax to collect an additional $17 million from the utilities and then distribute them.

There would be no windfall, as I see it, in either proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I am sorry but I do not understand the response. I understood that the committee proposal did not require that a real estate tax should be imposed on a utility in addition to the gross receipts tax, which means, if I understand it correctly, that the amendment, which does have such a proposal in it, would require an additional sum of money, either $17 million or some other sum of money, to be paid by the utility which would, of course, have to be passed on to the users of electricity in favor of it being distributed in the areas that the amendment talks about, one of the two elements being where the real estate is located. It seems to me that the amendment does exactly what this memorandum given to me indicates. I do not understand whether Delegate Cosetti is agreeing with it or disagreeing with it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. The committee's proposal says "gross receipts or any other special taxes imposed by the Commonwealth." It would actually permit the General Assembly to levy another tax in the future if it were not called a gross receipts tax. It would permit the General Assembly to levy a special tax in lieu of local taxes. The amendment specifically suggests that it should be a real estate tax. From an economic point of view, there is some merit to that. As an economist we are always talking about the allocation of resources and that you should never attach special taxes to certain resources and not attach them to others. In effect, what the Commonwealth's tradition has done is the fact that if we do not tax the real estate of utilities, we are unfairly treating that resource in that all the costs attendant to the use of real estate are not paid by those people who use it. Consequently, the committee's amendment addresses itself to that question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bagenstose.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. Mr. President, I rise against this amendment because the gross receipts tax presently enforced is a good vehicle to collect this tax since it would avoid implementing of a new and costly tax-collecting procedure in our Commonwealth.

Since the General Assembly has the authority to increase the gross receipts tax to cover the $17 million package by reimbursing the local taxing authorities, I have faith that they will do their job.

I would like to ask two questions of Delegate Hocker.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Hocker will respond.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. Delegate Hocker, did you consider this high additional expense which your proposal would trigger?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I see no high additional expense. All the figures that are needed are available on Capitol Hill today. They are over in the State Tax Equalization Board. Each assessor turns in both taxable and exempt property. Those figures are here. You also have a disbursing group within the Department of Revenue that returns—or within the Department of Insurance, I do not know which—that returns two per cent out-of-state insurance tax. If the administration in its wisdom wanted to do this, it could do it very efficiently and at a minimum cost.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bagenstose.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. I do not agree with you in this respect, that this would require a lot of separate, additional billing, whereas, the gross receipts tax as presently enforced, if the General Assembly would increase that said tax to offset this $17-million package, it would just be a matter of multiplication as far as the taxpayers are concerned. Whereas, under your proposal this would require a separate billing and a lot of additional employes and expense. I would just like to ask you, in your opinion, is the mission of taking care of the local taxing authorities provided for in the committee proposal at a lower cost to the taxpayers?

DELEGATE HOCKER. I do not think so. I cannot see any difference in the two proposals. You are dealing with the same amount of money. You are going to have to return it one way or another. The State is going to have to collect either one of them and return it to the political subdivisions.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. I just say in conclusion it is my personal opinion that this proposal would increase the cost substantially to do the same work that is already being done by the present gross receipts tax in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Miller.

DELEGATE R. W. MILLER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. If this amendment is approved the people of Pennsylvania will be the losers. To illustrate, utilities will have to go to the Public Utility Commission for a rate increase. If it is not approved the utilities will be forced to cut costs in the areas of maintenance and service. Many of you who are served by small, independent public utilities are aware of the inferior services rendered by these firms. This is due in part to the fact that the public utilities are now paying more and higher taxes than any other group in the Commonwealth and funds are, therefore, not available to improve these facilities and services. If we subject utilities to property taxation, I can see nothing but further deterioration of the services to the people. On the other hand, if the rate increase is approved, the very people we have tried to help in the exemption section of this proposal will be paying for this tax through a rate increase. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, unless Delegate Kauffman wants to answer the gentleman directly as to cost, I think Delegate Aberman would like to answer Delegate Miller in respect to his direct question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Aberman.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. Thank you, Delegate Hocker. I think that the preceding argument makes one fundamental assumption which everyone should keep very clearly in mind because I think it is fallacious, and that is, the only recourse for the public utility is to increase its rate. If we are correct, and I think the economics of this are correct, there is another way and that very simply is to give them a larger return on their invested capital, and that does not require a rate increase. Do not be confused by a chaotic argument that we are going to create havoc in the Commonwealth. All we are debating, and it is the old saying about keep your eye upon the doughnut, is whether or not this exemption should be taken away from a public utility. This will not create chaos and havoc if it is done in an orderly manner, which is what these proposals say or what these proposals propose. The critical question is, there are other ways of accomplishing what we are attempting to do here and it does not necessarily presuppose a rate increase.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Hocker a question or two.

Delegate Hocker, is it not a fact that public utilities today pay the corporate net income tax?

DELEGATE HOCKER. No, I think they are exempt from corporate net income tax. They pay gross receipts.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Delegate Hocker, I suggest that you investigate that because my information is that all public utilities pay the corporate net income tax.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I do not know whether they pay corporate net and gross receipts or not.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Is it not a fact, Delegate Hocker, that all utilities pay the capital stock tax?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Yes.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. And is it not a fact that the only entities who pay the gross receipts tax are public utilities?

DELEGATE HOCKER. And all of them do not pay that.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Well, but the only ones who do are public utilities?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Yes, you are correct, but all of them do not pay it, Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Is it not also correct, Delegate Hocker, that public utilities are assessed for the operating expenses of the Public Utility Commission?

DELEGATE HOCKER. That is correct, it is prorated.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Is it not correct then that public utilities also pay real estate taxes on their nonoperating real estate?

DELEGATE HOCKER. That is correct. If they buy a farm and cut a right-of-way through it, the right-of-way is exempt and the rest of the farm is taxable.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Then if my information is correct, and I am sure that you are going to check me on that, Delegate Hocker, the public utilities pay the corporate net income tax, they pay the capital stock tax, they pay the gross receipts tax, they contribute to the Public Utility Commission expenses and they pay real estate taxes on their nonoperating real estate. The only thing they do not pay directly now today is the local real estate taxes on their operating properties. However, they are the only entities in the Commonwealth that pay the gross receipts tax. Now would this not be grossly unjust to impose the tax which this proposed amendment would impose without abolishing or repealing the gross receipts tax?

DELEGATE HOCKER. That would be up to the wisdom of the legislature. If they think somebody is being abused, they could, in their wisdom, change it around anyway they wanted. In fact, the legislature has the right today to do exactly what we are trying to do right now with this amendment, but so far over a period of 100-some years, they have failed to do it.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. To follow Delegate Aberman's suggestion and keep our eye clearly on the ball, however, is it not a fact that, if this proposal were to become law, the public utilities in this Commonwealth would be discriminated against by paying a gross receipts tax and contribution to the Public Utility Commission expenses, which no other corporate entity in the entire Commonwealth would be called upon to pay, unless the legislature acted?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Unless the legislature acted, that would be true. I would hope that they would act, and I am not trying, Delegate Kauffman, to get any more money out of these people for state government. I am trying to get some money back in the political subdivision where they are furnishing the services for the utilities.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Mr. President, I now rise to oppose this proposed amendment for many reasons, which I think the answers to the questions make obvious, but for the additional reason that I think we have to realize what we are considering here is not the proposed amendment as against nothing. We are considering the proposed amendment as against the committee proposal. One of the arguments that has been made in favor of this proposed amendment is that it will provide more income through tax dollars to the local communities in which these public utility facilities are located.

As I read this proposed amendment, that problem is very well taken care of by the language that such distribution shall be made by an equitable method having due regard for the proportion which the tax receipts of each such taxing authority bears to the tax receipts of all such taxing authorities.

In other words, there is no desire, as I understand this committee proposal, to favor public utilities. However, there is, in my opinion, the just desire to make certain that public utilities are not singled out and discriminated against.

Therefore, I urge that this proposed amendment be defeated.

Thank you, Mr. President.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I would like to draw to Delegate Kauffman's attention that if the present article, the committee's suggestion, stands, then the same people will be exempt who are exempt now on the gross receipts tax, which are the water companies in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, which have vast holdings, vast holdings of land for reservoirs and other types that go along with our utilities.

We are trying to include them all, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, will the chairman of the committee stand to be interrogated?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think so. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Delegate Woodring, under your proposal, Section 1C, we have heard statements here that all public utilities are paying gross receipts taxes. Is that correct?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I do not know whether it is correct that you heard that or not, Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I heard a few minutes ago, somebody—

DELEGATE WOODRING. I think the statement is incorrect.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The statement is incorrect. Therefore, we are to assume, if it is incorrect, that all public utilities are not paying a gross receipts tax?

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is correct, in that water companies presently do not.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Are there any other gas companies or water companies combined which do not pay gross receipts tax?

DELEGATE WOODRING. This I cannot answer.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Does the Philadelphia Gas pay a gross receipts tax?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I think I can help out a little on that. It is my understanding that the Philadelphia Gas Works, which is a municipal facility, is not subject to the tax. I think that is a fact.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Thank you for the correction. This is true for most of the Philadelphia utilities.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Who operates the Philadelphia Gas Company, Mr. Amsterdam? Would you mind answering that?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes. It is operated by a private company, the UGI, under a contract with the city of Philadelphia.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Does the private company make any profit?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I have not the slightest idea.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I would imagine if it were a private concern, would you say that they are in the business to make a profit?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. All I can say is, if they are not, God help them.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Thank you.

Delegate Woodring, under your proposal, those companies which do not pay gross receipts taxes, are they liable to pay other real estate taxes?

I think the whole crux of the problem that is facing us to make a decision is, is there an inequity or an unfairness in the fact that all public utilities are not paying gross receipts tax and has the committee's proposal limited the taxes to be rebated to local government to only those utilities who pay a gross receipts tax?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I think it might be appropriate at this moment to endeavor to define the position of the committee's proposal. We have heard a lot now, for about one hour and 25 minutes, about the purposes of the amendment which is proposed in counter-distinction to Proposal No. 5.

The primary purpose of Proposal No. 5 is to assist the municipalities, to obtain some money for them, not only by reason of public utility operations, but because their tax base has been shrinking for some several generations. In order to do this, Proposal No. 5, by its language, makes real estate of all public utilities taxable at the local level. As has been stated by several speakers, the collection of such a tax at the local level is not highly desirable. In fact it is highly undesirable for a number of reasons, such as the windfall situation, such as the fact that if a tax is imposed at the local level, the local municipality would receive the entire tax, whereas the people in a very much wider area or larger area, the people who are served by that utility would be paying for the tax by increased rates.

For a number of other reasons, therefore, the committee saw fit to propose in Section 1C that a fund which is already earmarked, which is already in effect, which is already collected, and the facilities for it are implemented, that we take a portion of this fund and return it to the local municipalities in order to afford some redress to the local municipalities, generally, but not specifically, by reason of the public utilities.

Leaving that for a moment, I think that maybe further answer ought to be made to the question which was raised by Delegate O'Donnell to Delegate Baldus: What is the difference between the taxing of a utility at the local level and taxing of a steel mill at the local level? Of course, the answer is very obvious although we do not have it on the record as yet, but the taxation on the steel mill is a local tax on local property by a company that operates purely locally. The tax on the public utility is a local tax by a local municipality on an installation or a very large, valuable property which does not operate locally, but it is situated, it happens by conincidence to be situated, in that particular municipality but it serves a very wide radius of our population, both geographically and per capita. Therefore, there is a big difference, and the treatment of the two properties should be considered separately.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I still would like to have an answer to my question, a very simple yes or no. Will public utilities that are not now paying gross receipts tax be paying real estate taxes the same as the other public utilities, which are to be deducted, under the proposal, from gross receipts?

DELEGATE WOODRING. The question, Mr. President, is veiled in some indefiniteness.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. This is the problem I am having, Mr. President.

DELEGATE WOODRING. If the question pertains, Mr. President, to the water company, the water utility, the answer is that if the General Assembly does not impose a gross receipts tax upon such public utilities, then the properties will become taxable at the local level, because Section 1C starts out: "The real property of public utilities"—and that means all public utilities—"shall be subject to real estate taxes imposed by local taxing authorities."

The only reason that some utilities would not pay the local receipts tax would be if the gross receipts tax is in lieu thereof, which is in the next following sentence.

Presently, water companies do not pay a gross receipts tax, therefore, they would immediately become taxable—when I say immediately, I mean in accordance with any schedule that is adopted in connection herewith, but they would, according to schedule, become taxable—at the local level for all their real estate, unless the General Assembly would invoke and impose a gross receipts tax on their properties.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. What would happen if the General Assembly would abolish the gross receipts tax?

DELEGATE WOODRING. On all utilities?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Yes.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Then all the real estate of public utilities would become taxable at the local level because it is so provided in the very first sentence of section 1C: "The real property of public utilities shall be subject to real estate taxes imposed by local taxing authorities."

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you think we are about ready for the question here? As soon as we hear from the delegates who are on their feet, we are going to put the question. Let us see if we cannot expedite this.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Rovner.

DELEGATE ROVNER. Mr. President, I assure you that I shall keep this brief.

First of all, I would like to correct something that was stated here before about the Philadelphia Gas Company. In reading from the Commonwealth's general fund budget, as submitted by our Governor, it states in there that the gas company, and only the gas companies, effective the first of July, 1968, would be exempt from the gross receipts tax. When this would happen, immediately, the Philadelphia Gas Works would be subject to the local taxation of the city of Philadelphia. Therefore, I think that problem would be resolved.

I also, reading from the same manual, would like to point out that, effective July 1 of last year, your gross receipts taxes were raised from 14 to 20 mills, which, in dollars and cents, made an $18-million increase which would be approximately the same amount of money that would go back to the local governments in lieu of real estate taxes.

I am against this amendment and for the committee's proposal because I feel that the committee's proposal protects the consumer, and protects the average person here in the State of Pennsylvania.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, this question has been extensively debated and I must admit that I am still dumbfounded by the so-called "windfall" argument. As Delegate Woodring indicates, Jones & Laughlin or the plant in Fairless Hills or the Phoenix Steel Company in Phoenixville or Lukens in Coatesville pay a local tax imposed by a local municipality. But if they were utilities, they would not pay a local tax imposed by a local municipality on the theory that they serve a larger area. But does not all large industry everywhere serve a larger area? Certainly no one would suggest that the products of the Fairless Hills plant are consumed in Fairless Hills proper.

It would seem to me that there is no valid distinction whatever between a major industrial plant, whose products flow out through the length and breadth of the Commonwealth and the nation as a whole, and a utility whose services and products flow out over a larger area. The fact is, it strikes me, that the utility which comes and locates itself in my community, or in yours, enjoys the advantage of police protection, fire protection and other community services, the highway network, and the like, and brings to that community a great deal less than its brother industry. It brings less because, for some reason, the utility does not bring employment to the area as a general rule. A utility, for example, is a very, very modest employer.

I could give you some indications. We have two utility plants in Schuylkill Township which adjoins Phoenixville. One plant is an $18-million establishment that has 15 employes. We have another which has only three permanent employes. Therefore, our community does not receive the advantage of the earned income tax from those employes and does not enjoy the advantage of the occupation tax levied by the school district.

Consequently, the utility, it strikes me, uses the area's land and takes away a substantial part of the municipality's tax base without making a proportionate contribution.

Let us approach for a moment, if we may, the question of the gross receipts tax. It is true that a utility pays all the taxes that a normal corporation pays, as Delegate Kauffman has very well pointed out. It is equally true that only the utility pays a gross receipts tax, but remember something else, the utility enjoys an advantage which is unique, because only the utility has a guaranteed annual income. Only the utility is guaranteed by law to make a profit, a return on its investment. No other industry in the country enjoys a similar advantage. Every other industry rises or falls on the economic facts of life.

I suggest that the fundamental question comes down to this—and I have in mind the factors which Delegate Amsterdam mentioned. I have in mind—that a removal of the local tax exemption will almost unquestionably result in a rate increase, a factor which industry must consider when it contemplates locating in Pennsylvania. But is it not also a fact that if the present gross receipts tax is now turned over to the local municipalities in the form of payments in lieu of local taxation, that our legislature is going to have to do one of two things, either increase the gross receipts tax to replace that state revenue or it is going to have to find some other taxation source to replace that tax revenue and that inexorably will fall on the people of Pennsylvania, taken as a whole. In other words, the very same people who would pay the rate increase, therefore, the same factor that an industry desirous of locating in Pennsylvania would have to consider.

In conclusion, sir, I would say this: I am going to vote against this amendment despite the fact that I agree with the philosophy that utilities should be taxed. I have in here, myself, an amendment simply eliminating the tax on utilities.

I would ask this body to vote in favor of that, so that the municipality which has the utility within its borders will receive a fair, equal and just compensation by normal, economic laws as contrasted with the complicated, gymnastic formulas that are involved in both the committee proposal and in the amendment now on the floor.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I was disappointed to hear Delegate O'Donnell's punch line because all the statements which he made, I think, are good reasons to vote for this amendment.

I speak on behalf of it as a cosponsor of it. I would like to make three brief points which I think need emphasis and have not been brought out here very much this morning.

One, and it is a point which Delegate O'Donnell just began to touch on, is that the historical basis of the gross receipts tax, as I understand it, is that it is a tax on the right to have a monopoly. Delegate O'Donnell talked about this in terms of the right to a guaranteed income. It is the tax on the right to have, own, operate and derive profits from a monopoly. Therefore, it stands on a different basis than the real estate tax or other taxes which have been discussed here this morning.

Secondly, as Delegate O'Donnell also touched briefly upon, the committee's proposal would deprive the Commonwealth general fund of substantial tax revenues. These tax revenues would have to be made up from other sources, whether it was an increase in the gross receipts tax or otherwise. The taxpayers of Pennsylvania would have to bear the burden ultimately to make up this deficit.

Thirdly, I would like to speak personally as a shareholder in some of these utilities that, in my mind, many of these utilities in Pennsylvania have been deriving a profit, which, in view of their special tax benefits, I think is unconscionable. I find it unconscionable as a shareholder; I find it unconscionable as a citizen of Pennsylvania; and I urge the support of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President. I rise in support of the amendment. Mr. President, I think the people feel very strongly that the public utilities should pay more taxes. We are dealing with investors who own protected monopolies and the government guarantees them a profit. To compare them with other businesses and industries is wrong. They have no risk of loss; they have an absolute guarantee of profit.

I think that the paper that was handed out expressed the feelings of the people—the Milton Shapp paper—when it said, "It is time for Pennsylvania's sacred cow to give some more milk."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Powell, do you wish to be heard?

DELEGATE POWELL. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are going to put the question just as soon as we hear from Delegate Powell, Delegate Levin, Delegate Leonard and Delegate Woodring. We will give Delegate Hocker a closing statement, although he has had about a dozen of them.

DELEGATE HOCKER. You never get too much.

DELEGATE POWELL. I will wait to hear from Delegate Hocker. I will sit down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you. We recognize Delegate Levin who has been standing for a short statement.

DELEGATE LEVIN. Mr. President and delegates, I submit that the entire paragraph from the word "unless" to the end is unconstitutional since it violates the uniformity clause in Article VIII. I would like an opinion from counsel.

I make this statement under one assumption, that all assessed value property to the real value ratio is different in every county within our Commonwealth and, therefore, any tax imposed by the State would have a variation as to the dollar return in any instance of its application. Delaware County has, I believe, 22.2 per cent of real value as the assessed value; Chester County differs and so do other counties. Therefore, this particular formula is inapplicable and unconstitutional, in my opinion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Levin, I would appreciate it if you would talk to counsel. They are right here at the table and they will discuss it with you and give an opinion.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard, who, I understand, wants to make a summary for the committee.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I do not want to make the summary for the committee, I will just speak as one of the co-chairmen, just to put this back into focus as to what the committee was trying to do.

Number one, the committee was not trying to levy a tax. We felt very definitely that the power to levy taxes rests with the General Assembly and that to do otherwise would be an infringement on their powers and way beyond the thought of what should be done constitutionally.

Number two, the thinking of the committee was that the local governments require revenue to take the place of that revenue which they are not getting from certain real property. Local governments have one tax base and that is a real estate tax base. This has been eroded over the years for good reasons as was discussed yesterday. What the committee was trying to do in proposing its amendment was to return to local government something that it should have had. The committee was not trying to penalize the utilities; they were trying to return to the local government that tax which the Commonwealth over the years has collected from utilities and only from utilities.

I, therefore, would hope that we would defeat the amendment that is on the floor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am going to violate my own rule and recognize Delegate Hook because he had been up there several times.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, thank you. I would like to interrogate Judge Woodring on one question.

Judge Woodring, there is a question in my mind and it has not been explained thoroughly enough for me to understand it. I talked to you earlier about your first sentence, "Real property of public utilities shall be subject to real estate taxes." I understand this to include all utilities. Is this correct?

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is correct. The statement of real property of public utilities without qualification means that there is no qualification; therefore it applies to all.

DELEGATE HOOK. This would take care of private water companies, the Philadelphia Gas Company, and any other municipally owned authority or company that operates?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It would apply to all types of public utilities.

DELEGATE HOOK. Then at the same time in your next sentence where it starts off, "Gross receipts or any other special taxes," this would mean that a company that does not pay gross receipts tax, the General Assembly would have to levy another type of tax against these particular companies.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, it could operate that way. The reason that the committee put in its own amendment "or any other special" was in the event that 20 years from now, some period of time in the indefinite future, the General Assembly, of course, could abolish the gross receipts tax and adopt some other special type of tax. In that contingency we wanted it covered so that even whether there was a gross receipts tax or not, this provision would continue to apply, and we, therefore, included the words "or any other special," meaning gross receipts or any other special types of taxes.

DELEGATE HOOK. From this explanation now, I am of the opinion that the legislature would have the authority to go ahead and levy a real estate tax against any type of authority, water company and so forth that is not presently covered by the gross receipts tax.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Let us be more specific. Let us talk about the water companies which presently are not subject to gross receipts tax. As I said previously, Mr. President, if they are not subject to gross receipts tax, they are by this proposal subject to local real estate tax. Therefore, the legislature would have the alternative to impose or see to it that a local real estate tax was imposed or to adopt a gross receipts tax as to those companies.

DELEGATE HOOK. As to those particular companies? Is that correct?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes.

DELEGATE HOOK. Then we are doing something by a constitutional amendment that the legislature has failed to do in the past. Is that correct?

DELEGATE WOODRING. That is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want to ask if Delegate Woodring has any other comments before we have Delegate Hocker sum up?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I would like to make a brief statement on a subject that has not been covered. I think it is appropriate and I think it should be said, and that is, that traditionally the public utilities, which serve all the people of the Commonwealth and the Commonwealth itself, are, in effect, partners. For this partnership the Commonwealth receives a gross receipts tax which is not imposed on any other type of corporation, and a very substantial one, $37 million, almost $40 million. The public utilities, on the other hand, the other side of the partnership, for its service, for its payment through its partner, receives a guaranteed right of reasonable profit on the invested capital, namely, about six percent. This is policed by what I have reason to believe, from personal experience and observation, to be a very competent Public Utility Commission, which is the watchdog over all the public utilities.

If one deals honorably one does not try to cheat one's partner. A partnership prospers if both partners cooperate and cooperate fairly and honestly. This has been the situation in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for these many scores of years.

There always arises a false prophet who tells the people that we will impose large taxation upon the real estate of public utilities, but we will not increase the rate. I say this is poppycock. It was endeavored to be answered this morning in a statement that there would be larger returns on invested capital. This might be correct, but it will take a keener brain and a younger mind than I have before I can realize it.

I envision the resources of the public utility as a glass of water and if the glass is filled to the brim, if there is another penny of expense imposed upon the operation of the public utilities, that drop of extra expense is going to run over into increased rates for the consumer. This is as true as though you continue to put additional drops into an already filled glass of water. It is bound to spill over.

Any increase to the tune of $17 million, $19 million, or $20 million of real estate on the public utility is going to mean that the public, the consumer, the citizens of the Commonwealth, are going to pay that additional amount in increased rates.

We had before our committee one whom I would call an independent economic expert and the one word of advice that I heard him give the members of the committee, in addition to supplying them with all the facts and figures and statistics which they sought, was, do not penalize, do not endeavor to punish. It is not the purpose of the Constitution of the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to punish anyone, certainly not a public utility which is one of the partners of the Commonwealth.

I say to you, delegates to this Convention, that this proposed amendment is an effort to penalize and to punish the utilities which have been faithfully serving us and constantly reducing our rates.

I say with all the sincerity at my command, we should vote this amendment down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I would just like to answer the judge first. If we are all partners, some of us are getting cheated a little.

Mr. President, may I submit my attorney? I think Delegate Baldus can sum up what he wants to say in a minute and a half or two minutes and then I shall conclude. He is my lawyer, you know, and I think he is entitled to be heard.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Mr. President, I shall be brief. I would like to respond to only two points. On the question of penalizing the utilities, I think this is an improper statement of what this amendment proposes to do. It has been suggested that it would be unfair to charge a gross receipts tax and a local real estate tax on the property of utilities. There are 24 other States in this nation which do just that; they charge a gross receipts tax and a local real estate tax on the property of utilities.

The discrimination in the past has been in favor of the utilities. This amendment will bring Pennsylvania in line with other States in our Nation.

The second point is, people are concerned that if a tax is imposed on utilities, this may be passed on to the consumers. There is no question it may be passed on, but the important thing is that we, through careful research in our committee, made a determination of how much it would cost the consumers in their utility bills if this tax were passed on. Our analysis shows that telephone rates would increase .6 of 1 per cent; it would increase electric utility bills 1.1 per cent; and the gas bills, if all of this tax were passed on, would increase by .2 of 1 per cent.

I submit that the amount of tax is a drop in the bucket. The amount that it would affect the consumers' bills is very slight, and I urge the adoption of this amendment because I believe it places the burden of paying this money where it belongs and that it provides for more equitable distribution of these funds.

I thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hocker for a quick summary.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I shall be very quick, Mr. President. This all boils down to a very simple thing to me. It boils down to these two points: Do you want the public utilities to pay a tax or do you want to raid the general fund to the tune of $17 million? I was a legislator and I know how difficult $17 million is to come by. This is the only problem involved here.

I understand, and I was just told and was amazed to find out, that under the old utility law—and if anyone can dispute this, I wish he would rise in his place—in the city of Pittsburgh and in the city of Philadelphia, under the old law, the railroad company does pay taxes, or in lieu of taxes, on their buildings in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. Now I never knew this, and if anyone can dispute this, I wish he would. It was given to me by a very able person.

Mr. President, the other argument is that everybody is crying for the public utilities and how bad they are going to be hurt. Well, I want to tell you something. You give me a monoply like they have in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, give me a territory that nobody can transgress on my business and it is not a competitive business, and I shall shout "Hallelujah" and I shall not cry.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment presented by Delegate Hocker?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—49

Aberman	Feather	McGlynn	Rappaport
Baldus	Filson	Michael	Redick
Baldwin	Fineman	Michener	Reynolds
Banes	Henderson	Morton	Scales
Barry	Himes	Murray	Scott
Camardella	Hocker	O'Donnell	Shettig
Caputo	Huggins	Orbin	Shrager
Casey	Irvis	Pasquerilla	Silverman
Conley	King	Percey	Solomon
Cosetti	Kline	Popil	Stout
Donaldson	Mangery	Powell	Swope
Fagan	Mattioni	Quiles	Tate
Fay

NAYS—101

Allison	Desmond	Kelly	Rovner
Amsterdam	Devlin	Krill	Sahli
Anrentz	Dumbauld	Laputka	Scarlett
Bagenstose	Erwin	Leach	Sebastian
Baldrige	Fawcett	Lee, K.	Shapiro
Barron	Fleming	Lee, L.	Sharp
Benedict	Fohl	Leinbach	Shively
Benfield	Forster	Leonard	Shoemaker
Bloom	Fortney	Levin	Sprogell
Braham	Gehrlein	Markley	Strickler
Brennan	Gerber	McGeary	Stroup
Broderick	Goldman	Meyer	Thomson
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Thornburgh
Buck	Gouger	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Bunting	Griffith	Moorhead	Tully
Burkholder	Hannum	More	Van Sant
Butera	Harding	Nelson	Waldron
Cain	Hatter	Orban	Warman
Caron	Heyburn	Otto	Welsh
Clark	Hook	Pelletier	Westerberg
Clinger	Jirolanio	Pott	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Prendergast	Wilcox
Croop	Kauffman	Rea	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Richter	Woodring
Curran	Keller, M.	Roberts	Woodside
Dailey

NOT VOTING—13

Bashoff	Gray	Lane	Pechan
Cortese	Horne	Manderino	Ruth
Donolow	Hostetler	Musselman	Scranton
Gabreski

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

COSETTI AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. I read in place and present the following amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE COSETTI offered the following amendments which were read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 19 to 21, by striking out "having due regard for the" in line 19, all of line 20, and "bears to the tax receipts of all such taxing authorities." in line 21, and inserting: based solely on (1) the percentage of tax exempt public utility real property in the Commonwealth which is located in each local taxing authority and (2) the percentage of the population of the Commonwealth in each local taxing authority.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Mr. President, I shall be extremely brief. This is the second half of the amendment which I think just failed. It allocates the amount on two bases: on the basis of the tax-exempt public utility property in that community and, two, on the population of that community. The committee's proposal bases the allocation on the taxes already collected by that community. I wish to say nothing further; it has all been said. I think I am ready for a vote, unless the committee wishes to make a statement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the vote, unless the committee wants to make a statement.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I have no strong feelings one way or the other on this. It seems to me that in the committee proposal such distribution shall be by an equitable method, having due regard for the proportion which the tax receipts of each taxing authority bears to the total tax receipt. It seems to me that the committee proposal is more desirable because it gives the General Assembly the opportunity to consider all the factors. This proposal adds one factor, id est, population, but there might be many other factors and by expressing one perhaps you exclude the others. Therefore, I would suggest that, in my own opinion, the committee proposal is desirable.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Cosetti?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—46

Aberman	Fay	Michener	Redick

Baldus	Filson	Morton	Roberts
Baldwin	Gehrlein	Murray	Scalce
Banes	Hocker	Orbin	Shettig
Barry	Hook	Otto	Shrager
Camardella	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Silverman
Caputo	Kelly	Percey	Solomon
Casey	Kline	Popil	Sprogell
Clinger	Mangery	Powell	Stout
Conley	Mattioni	Quiles	Tate
Cosetti	McGlynn	Rappaport	Thornburgh
Dumbauld	Michael

NAYS—97

Allison	Devlin	Krill	Sahli
Amsterdam	Donaldson	Laputka	Scarlett
Aurentz	Erwin	Leach	Scott
Bagenstose	Fagan	Lee, K.	Sebastian
Baldrige	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Shapiro
Barron	Feather	Leinbach	Sharp
Benedict	Fleming	Leonard	Shively
Benfield	Fohl	Levin	Showmaker
Bloom	Forster	Markley	Strickler
Braham	Fortney	McGeary	Stroup
Brennan	Gerber	Meyer	Swope
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, D.	Thomson
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Buck	Gouger	Moorhead	Tully
Bunting	Griffith	More	Van Sant
Burkholder	Hannum	Nelson	Waldron
Cain	Harding	Orban	Warman
Caron	Henderson	Pelletier	Welsh
Clark	Heyburn	Pott	Westerberg
Corey	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Whittum
Croop	Johnson	Rea	Wilcox
Cunningham	Kauffman	Reynolds	Wilmarth
Curran	Keller, J.	Richter	Woodring
Dailey	Keller, M.	Rovner	Woodside
Desmond

NOT VOTING—20

Bashoff	Gabreski	Hostetler	Musselman
Butera	Gray	Irvis	O'Donnell
Cortese	Hatter	King	Pechan
Donolow	Himes	Lane	Ruth
Fineman	Horne	Manderino	Scranton

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment:

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA offered the following amendments which were read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 24, by inserting after "taxation.": That real property of public utilities which is not used or useful in furnishing their public utility services shall remain subject to local taxation.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 25 to 27, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, this amendment denotes no difference and means nothing different than that which Delegate Hocker and Delegate Cosetti said, but by the mood of this Convention and the delegates, I call for an immediate vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Burkholder.

DELEGATE BURKHOLDER. Mr. President, I understood that yesterday you ruled that the provisions in the last paragraph on page 4 were there by reason of the adoption of an amendment and that, therefore, any change in those lines would have to be made on a motion to reconsider.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are absolutely right. Let us check this.

Delegate Burkholder, the parliamentarian rules that you are correct. This is the same language that we put in by virtue of an amendment and I want to rule as to the Camardella amendment which has been distributed. This would have to be in the form of a motion to reconsider the vote by which that language was adopted in the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, as I understand it, the original changes to this were committee recommendations to the wording. If my recollection is correct, yesterday an amendment was brought in by Delegate Leonard on the audit control, which was a subsequent amendment to wording amendments recommended by the committee. It is also my understanding that that amendment was accepted and was tabled. I would say that perhaps this would fall in the same category. I may be wrong, but I would like the parliamentarian to reconsider his judgment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In connection with this language here, it was offered by the committee, but it was offered as an amendment and this Convention adopted this particular language here.

DELEGATE POWELL. My point is that the committee recommendations were simply wording changes, if my recollection is correct, and that subsequently we accepted the same type of amendment yesterday after wording changes to the audit proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The parliamentarian said that that is not his understanding of it, and as far as this is concerned—and I would like to stick to this Camardella amendment here—this will have to be on the basis of a motion to reconsider because this language was adopted. This is the same language that was offered yesterday by Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE POWELL. Does that mean that when we take off the table the amendment to the audit proposal that we will have to have a reconsideration on that also?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. When we come to that we will rule on it. We want to stick to this one right now, if we may, Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. I bow to the parliamentarian.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, I move then to have this amendment reconsidered and put back into its original language as it was, and I call for a vote, if necessary.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I do not want to speak on Delegate Camardella's proposal one way or the other, but I think as a matter of clarification, the committee came out with a proposal; several days later it intended to correct its proposal. The group here voted unanimously to accept it as a correction to the committee proposal, and it was not unanimously voted upon as an amendment. In all consideration, I think it should be ruled in that fashion, because it would appear to me then that every committee could come here with that understanding and insert corrections in their committee proposals and reconsider them as amendments and they would pass unanimously. I believe we voted unanimously to insert and make these changes as a part of a committee change, not as an amendment to the original proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Pasquerilla, it is the recollection of the parliamentarian and the ruling of the parliamentarian the committee submitted amendments. The committee referred to them as correctional amendments and this body adopted them as amendments to the committee proposal. We will now recognize the motion of Delegate Camardella to reconsider the vote by which this amendment was adopted, in particular, the language which is set forth in this amendment.

Delegate Camardella, do you have a second to your motion?

POINT OF ORDER

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I would like to raise a point of order, if I may. I would like to reflect and support the point made by Chairman Pasquerilla. I was one of those voting in favor of the correctional amendment brought out to us by the committee. I did so, I must confess, without really considering the merits of it, but as a matter of courtesy to the committee. It had done its homework and felt that there were some technical changes that had to be made. I would, therefore, unless the Chair is prepared to change its ruling, believe that the Convention should have an opportunity to vote on this as to whether the recollection of the parliamentarian is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, in an effort to avoid parliamentary entanglements, might I call on Delegate Gerber to explain the reason why lines 25 to 27 have been inserted? I think that the Convention might be satisfied with the reason why this was put in and it might obviate further argument and entanglement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I have no objection if they want an explanation. I just want to know that right now we have a motion on the floor. It is the motion of Delegate Camardella, which has been seconded by Delegate Shoemaker, and you may now speak, Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, a point of order. We have a motion on the floor, and it is my opinion that we act on that motion now.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I yield.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you restate? I could not hear. They were both talking, Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, there is a motion on the floor that has been duly seconded. I call for a vote at this time without any explanation from anyone. I think I am in order. I insist on it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have the motion; it is on the floor. It has been made and seconded and that motion is debatable. Now anybody that wants to be heard can be heard.

Does any one want to be heard on the motion to reconsider?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, I am in deep sympathy with Delegate Camardella's predicament. I think the Chair has made an unfortunate ruling. I think the ruling may be somewhat of a proscript to the committees in the future from making house-cleaning amendments to their proposals. I am not in favor of the substance of Delegate Camardella's amendment, but I do think that he should have a chance to introduce the same and should not be prohibited because the Convention a few days ago was in sympathy with the committee, and, therefore, I would vote in favor of the motion to reconsider.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want Delegate Curran to know that this is the procedure: a motion to reconsider is in essence adopting or not adopting the amendment.

Now does Delegate Bagenstose wish to be heard?

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. Mr. President, I would just like to hear Delegate Gerber speak. He yielded and I think what he has to say might be important to all of us.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I rise to speak on behalf of Delegate Camardella's position here, which is this: When we originally came before the Convention, we came here with certain correctional amendments which we wanted to discuss in substance subsequently thereto. Therefore, I think it is only fair to Delegate Camardella or to anyone else, for that matter, who has substantive amendments to present to direct themselves to the corrections that we as a committee made. I think we would benefit the Convention and expedite the situation if we were able to proceed to the substance of the issue.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard? The question is on the motion to reconsider the vote by which this Convention adopted the amendment as set forth here in the language of the amendment offered by Delegate Camardella.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the motion to reconsider?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—108

Aberman	Donaldson	Kline	Redick
Amsterdam	Erwin	Leinbach	Richter
Baldrige	Fagan	Levin	Roberts
Baldus	Fay	Manderino	Rovner
Baldwin	Feather	Mangery	Sahli
Banes	Filson	Markley	Scales

Barron	Fineman	Mattioni	Scarlett
Barry	Fleming	McGeary	Scott
Brennan	Fohl	McGlynn	Shapiro
Brown	Forster	Meyer	Sharp
Buck	Fortney	Michael	Shettig
Bunting	Gehrlein	Michener	Shoemaker
Burkholder	Gerber	Moorhead	Shrager
Cain	Goldman	More	Silverman
Camardella	Gouger	Murray	Solomon
Caputo	Hannum	O'Donnell	Sprogell
Caron	Harding	Orbin	Stout
Casey	Himes	Otto	Swope
Conley	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Tate
Corey	Hook	Pelletier	Tomascik
Cortese	Huggins	Percey	Tully
Cosetti	Irvis	Popil	Waldron
Cunningham	Jirolanio	Powell	Welsh
Curran	Johnson	Prendergast	Whittum
Dailey	Keller, J.	Quiles	Wilcox
Desmond	Keller, M.	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Devlin	Kelly	Rea	Woodring

NAYS—36

Allison	Croop	Lee, K.	Sebastian
Aurentz	Dumbauld	Lee, L.	Shively
Bagenstose	Fawcett	Miller, D.	Strickler
Benedict	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Stroup
Benfield	Griffith	Morton	Thomson
Bloom	Heyburn	Nelson	Thornburgh
Braham	Krill	Orban	Van Sant
Broderick	Laputka	Pott	Warman
Clark	Leach	Reynolds	Westerberg

NOT VOTING—19

Bashoff	Gray	Kauffman	Musselman
Butera	Hatter	King	Ruth
Clinger	Henderson	Lane	Scranton
Donolow	Horne	Leonard	Woodside
Gabreski	Hostetler	Pechan

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The motion to reconsider is carried.

The question is on the Camardella amendment. Are we ready for the question, or does someone wish to be heard?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. On behalf of the committee, I would like to point out a few basic facts and the reason why we presented the correctional amendment.

The words as they appear on lines 21 through 24, which are the very words of the Camardella amendment, would have precluded the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh from being able to continue to tax certain real estate owned and operated by public utilities. This was brought to our attention; we studied the language and the law, and as a result thereof, we amended to come out with the language that one sees between lines 25 and 27.

This language, therefore, includes not only the language of lines 21 through 24, but also continues the status quo in the cities of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh where there are certain special tax provisions that are permitted by the cities to tax certain properties owned and operated by public utilities.

What we are attempting to do in lines 25 and 27 is to maintain, consistent with the present tax structure, and not delete anything. If we accept the Camardella amendment, we shall be deleting certain properties from the tax rolls of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh. This is not the intent of the subcommittee and of the standing committee.

Therefore, on behalf of the subcommittee and the standing committee, I urge the defeat substantively of the Camardella amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard before we vote?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Enough has been said on the subject, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question is,

Will the Convention adopt the amendment offered by Delegate Camardella?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—18

Barry	Fay	Orbin	Shapiro
Buck	Gouger	Rappaport	Shoemaker
Burkholder	Hocker	Scarlett	Solomon
Bunting	Huggins	Scott	Warman
Camardella	Mangery

NAYS—120

Aberman	Devlin	Leach	Rea
Allison	Donaldson	Lee, K.	Redick
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Lee, L.	Reynolds
Aurentz	Erwin	Leinbach	Richter
Bagenstose	Fagan	Leonard	Roberts
Baldrige	Fawcett	Levin	Sahli
Baldwin	Feather	Markley	Scales
Banes	Filson	Mattioni	Sebastian
Benedict	Fineman	McGeary	Sharp
Benfield	Fohl	McGlynn	Shettig
Bloom	Forster	Michael	Shively
Braham	Fortney	Michener	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, D.	Silverman
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, R.	Sprogell
Brown	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Butera	Griffith	More	Strickler
Cain	Hannum	Morton	Stroup
Caputo	Harding	Murray	Swope
Caron	Heyburn	Nelson	Thornburgh
Casey	Himes	Orban	Tomascik
Clark	Hook	O'Donnell	Tully
Conley	Irvis	Otto	Van Sant
Corey	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Cortese	Johnson	Pelletier	Welsh
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Percey	Westerberg
Croop	Kelly	Popil	Whittum
Cunningham	King	Pott	Wilcox
Curran	Kline	Powell	Wilmarth
Dailey	Krill	Prendergast	Woodring
Desmond	Laputka	Quiles	Woodside

NOT VOTING—25

Baldus	Gehrlein	Kauffman	Pechan
Barron	Gray	Keller, J.	Rovner
Bashoff	Hatter	Lane	Ruth
Clinger	Henderson	Manderino	Scranton
Donolow	Horne	Meyer	Tate
Fleming	Hostetler	Musselman	Thomson
Gabreski

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

LEINBACH AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall now take up the Leinbach amendment. I am asking the clerk to get a copy of the Leinbach amendment and I am asking the pages please to see that the Leinbach amendment is distributed to everyone.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEINBACH offered an amendment which was read by the clerk as follows:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 10, by striking out "Gross receipts OR ANY OTHER SPECIAL taxes" and inserting: The gross receipts tax

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 18, by striking out "in the preceding year." and inserting a period

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leinbach in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, I think the amendment speaks for itself. I call your attention mainly to the second portion "in the preceding year." Figures for use in the current year cannot be gotten in time from the preceding year. I think we should make that correction.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does the chairman of the committee wish to make a statement? Are we ready for the question? The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I would request that we take this amendment in two pieces. I think they are severable and I think it would be a fairer reflection of our consideration if we did so. The first part is a rather dramatic change; the second part, I think, is not so dramatic and perhaps would give more latitude. I think they should be considered separately. I would, therefore, request the Chair to divide these two pieces.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is going to be up to the proposer of the amendment, Delegate Leinbach, whether he wishes the amendment to be considered as two amendments or as one amendment, in view of the suggestion.

DELEGATE LEINBACH. Mr. President, it is all right with me to consider it as two.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall, therefore, consider the Leinbach amendment as having been broken down into two amendments, the first part of which shall end with "the gross receipts tax," and the second amendment will start with Section 2 on page 4.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, the first amendment would strike out the words "gross receipts or any other special taxes."

The committee has purposely inserted those words and, therefore, we must be against this portion of the amendment.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE FORSTER. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Is the Chair ruling that the motion to reconsider which passed with respect to Delegate Camardella's amendment also applies here, because this was similarly amended in the housekeeping amendments proposed by the committee?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The parliamentarian has ruled that there are other words that are included here, and these make a different type of amendment and present a different question.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, I would like to ask Chairman Woodring what he means or what the committee meant by the words "or any other special taxes?"

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, we endeavored to state our position on this last Friday morning during the interrogation and again this morning. So long as the legislature continues to impose a gross receipts tax, we would not need any other words, but we cannot contemplate or we cannot envision in this Convention today what is going to happen in the future.

Therefore, we added "or any other special tax" as a catchall in case the gross receipts tax would come to be known by some other name or might be repealed or some other tax substituted, and so forth. We thought it was desirable to put something there to protect the municipalities against some legislative change which we are not now able to contemplate.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. You do not anticipate that, by court interpretation, meaning corporate net income taxes, corporate franchise taxes?

DELEGATE WOODRING. No, it is the intent of the committee that those are regular taxes and no special taxes.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I would like to ask the judge a question. I am not an attorney and I have a little difficulty here.

If you take out "any other" or "any other special tax," Judge Woodring, and the legislature, in its wisdom, would cease to call this a gross receipts tax and would call it by some other name, then, in your opinion, would that give the local political subdivision the right to tax?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes, because the first sentence of 1C makes the real estate taxable: "In lieu of." The gross receipts tax or any other special tax may be distributed in lieu of the collection of those local taxes.

DELEGATE HOCKER. If they erased the name "gross receipts," if this amendment goes in, then it falls back to the political subdivision, in your opinion? It gives them the right?

DELEGATE WOODRING. If we strike out "or any other special," yes, and then it reads only "gross receipts," and if the legislature would abolish the gross receipts, then the real estate of utilities would become immediately taxable.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Suppose they do not strike out "gross receipts" and use some other name, then it would also become applicable, right?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It would become immediately taxable.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the first part of the Leinbach amendment which ends with the term "The gross receipts tax?"

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—4

Cunningham	Barron	Bunting	Leinbach

NAYS—129

Allison	Erwin	Leonard	Richter
Amsterdam	Fawcett	Levin	Roberts
Aurentz	Feather	Mangery	Sahli
Bagenstose	Filson	Markley	Scales
Baldrige	Fineman	Mattioni	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fleming	McGeary	Scott
Banes	Fohl	McGlynn	Sebastian
Benedict	Forster	Michael	Shapiro
Benfield	Fortney	Michener	Sharp
Bloom	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Shettig
Braham	Gerber	Miller, R.	Shively
Brennan	Goldman	Moorhead	Shoemaker
Broderick	Goldstein	More	Shrager
Brown	Griffith	Morton	Silverman
Buck	Hannum	Murray	Solomon
Burkholder	Henderson	Nelson	Sprogell
Butera	Harding	O'Donnell	Stout
Cain	Heyburn	Orban	Strickler
Camardella	Himes	Orbin	Stroup
Caputo	Hook	Otto	Swope
Caron	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Tomascik
Casey	Irvis	Pelletier	Tully
Clark	Jirolanio	Percey	Van Sant
Conley	Johnson	Popil	Waldron
Corey	Kauffman	Pott	Warman
Cortese	Keller, J.	Powell	Welsh
Cosetti	Kelly	Prendergast	Westerberg
Curran	Krill	Quiles	Whittum
Dalley	Laputka	Rappaport	Wilcox
Desmond	Leach	Rea	Wilmarth
Devlin	Lee, K.	Redick	Woodring
Donaldson	Lee, L.	Reynolds	Woodside
Dumbauld

NOT VOTING—30

Aberman	Fay	Keller, M.	Pechan
Baldus	Gabreski	King	Rovner
Barry	Gouger	Kline	Ruth
Bashoff	Gray	Lane	Scranton
Clinger	Hatter	Manderino	Tate
Croop	Hocker	Meyer	Thomson
Donolow	Horne	Musselman	Thornburgh
Fagan	Hostetler

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PART TWO OF LEINBACH AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am going to ask the clerk to read the second part of the Leinbach amendment.

The CLERK. Amend Section 2 (Sec 1C), page 4, line 18, by striking out "in the preceding year" and inserting a period.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the second part of the Leinbach amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. Speaker, on behalf of myself, I have no objection to this. I think it is legislative, and, therefore, the legislature should not be bound.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. This is part of what was in my amendment that I presented and then withdrew yesterday. The point is, as the proposal of the committee now stands, you are calling upon the legislature to distribute a fund, the composition of which would require information and computations from all of the various local taxing authorities throughout the Commonwealth to compute the amount of tax or the amount that would be assessed as taxes and would, therefore, be distributed.

That computation and that information, I submit, may not be available that quickly. This was my reason for including the deletion of this phase in my proposed amendment.

I would like to suggest that you give the legislature a little more leeway by adopting this amendment. I, therefore, propose that we adopt it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the second part of the Leinbach amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—121

Aberman	Dalley	Laputka	Roberts
Allison	Desmond	Leach	Sahli
Amsterdam	Devlin	Lee, K.	Scales
Bagenstose	Donaldson	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Baldrige	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Scott
Baldwin	Erwin	Leonard	Sebastian
Banes	Fawcett	Levin	Shapiro
Barron	Feather	Manderino	Sharp
Barry	Filson	Mangery	Shettig
Benfield	Fineman	Mattioni	Shively
Bloom	Fleming	McGeary	Shoemaker
Braham	Forster	McGlynn	Shrager
Brennan	Fortney	Michael	Silverman
Brown	Gehrlein	Michener	Solomon
Buck	Gerber	Moorhead	Sprogell
Bunting	Goldman	Murray	Stout
Burkholder	Goldstein	O'Donnell	Strickler
Butera	Gouger	Orban	Stroup
Cain	Hannum	Otto	Swope
Camardella	Harding	Pelletier	Thomson
Caputo	Heyburn	Percey	Tomascik
Caron	Himes	Popil	Tully
Casey	Hocker	Pott	Van Sant
Clark	Hook	Powell	Warman
Clinger	Huggins	Prendergast	Welsh
Conley	Irvis	Quiles	Westerberg
Corey	Jirolanio	Rea	Whittum
Cortese	Kauffman	Redick	Wilcox
Cosetti	Kelly	Reynolds	Woodring
Croop	Krill	Richter	Woodside
Cunningham

NAYS—17

Aurentz	Henderson	Miller, D.	Orbin
Benedict	Johnson	Miller, R.	Rappaport
Broderick	Keller, J.	Morton	Waldron
Curran	Markley	Nelson	Wilmarth
Fohl

NOT VOTING—25

Baldus	Griffith	Kline	Pechan
Bashoff	Hatter	Lane	Rovner
Donolow	Horne	Meyer	Ruth
Fagan	Hostetler	More	Scranton
Fay	Keller, M.	Musselman	Tate
Gabreski	King	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Gray

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

O'DONNELL AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now take up the next amendment which is the O'Donnell amendment and ask the clerk to read the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 10 to 27 by strik-

ng out "Gross receipts OR ANY OTHER SPECIAL taxes" line 10 and all of lines 11 to 27

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I have already spoken my viewpoint on this and I would at this me yield to any other delegate who may wish to address himself to it with the privilege, I would hope, of mming up.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, very briefly, I oted in favor of the Hocker amendment because it had ertain virtues in terms of assuring an equitable allocaion of the fund which would have been realized had that mendment passed. At the same time, I think that amendent suffered from an infirmity that perhaps raised a uestion in the minds of many of us with regard to the omplex language which it used. I would submit that he present proposal of the committee is subject to the me infirmity; that is to say, I think there is a question the minds of many of us as to precisely how the money ould be raised and how it would be distributed.

Philosophically it seems to me that this is uniquely a unction which perhaps is better left to the General Assembly if the General Assembly is to participate in the rocess at all. The only other alternative which I see, nd which is presented very simply by Mr. O'Donnell's mendment, is to make utility property subject to tax it the local level. I must admit that I cannot appreciate he logic which says that a windfall will result to local ommunities if the tax is placed at the local level. As as been pointed out here earlier this morning, the same rgument can be used with regard to other types of roperty owned by large corporations in this Commonealth other than utilities. It would seem to me that what has not been mentioned is the benefit which would ccrue locally in many of our counties if public utility roperty were taxable at the local level. I think the each Bottom example and the others that have been sed are perhaps not typical in the sense that they overtate just one part of the problem.

Philosophically the thing that concerns me most about committee Proposal No. 5 in its present form is that we pent many hours yesterday discussing the feasibility and he advisability of cutting down and limiting and circumscribing the existing exemptions enjoyed by churches nd other forms of public charity.

Conversely, Section 1(C) in its present form seems o me to take the other approach and to take a very eak approach, if I might say this, where the public tilities are concerned. As a basic matter of philosophy, troubles me that the committee has said, on the one and, we must cut back now or limit the exemptions n charitable institutions and, on the other hand, we ust open up, so to speak, the latitude given to public tilities as far as the imposition of taxes is concerned. he question is a very simple one. Are we going to make tilities subject to real estate taxes or are we not?

Section 1(C) in Proposal No. 5 seems to have given an affirmative answer to that question in the first sentence and then seems to give a negative answer to that question in everything that follows. The O'Donnell amendment presents the issue very simply in a very clear-cut fashion.

Committee Proposal No. 5, if I understand the report of the committee, came about because of the fact that the local owners of property all across the Commonwealth are now sorely burdened with the imposition of taxes. Perhaps I appreciate the fine logic of some of the preceding speakers, but I would have great difficulty in explaining to a real estate property owner who pays occupational privilege tax, who pays federal income tax, who pays all kinds of local taxes and state taxes and federal taxes and a real estate tax, that a utility should be exempt from paying a local real estate tax because it pays tax A and tax B and tax C and tax D.

This, to my way of thinking, does not make good sense. It should not be the fundamental tax policy of this Commonwealth. I think it is right morally and equitably and every other way that a utility should pay real estate tax at the local level. I am not impressed with the argument that the utilities will be discriminated against or will be treated unfairly or will be penalized. This is not my intention. I must say when I was in the Senate, the utilities were very well able to take care of themselves. This amendment is designed to protect the property owners of this Commonwealth who are now carrying a disproportionate load of the tax burden and who, even if a rate increase were imposed, would not be burdened to the extent that they are burdened right now.

I intend to vote in favor of this amendment.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would like to ask Delegate O'Donnell one question if he would consent.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The delegate indicates he shall.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Delegate O'Donnell, I realize that you have a tremendous problem in Chester County with pipeline companies and transmission line companies. They condemn an interest, reduce the taxable value of real estate which they go through and then do not pay real estate taxes themselves. Does your amendment intend to apply also to these types of companies and to force them to pay real estate taxes on easements or the rights-of-way or whatever they have?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Of course, Delegate Rappaport as a very accomplished attorney, you know as well as I that the intent of necessity will stand or fall upon the language. If the courts of the future were going to address themselves to what I said here, the answer is, yes, it does intend to do that, and I hope it will work.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I am not equipped and therefore shall not try to discuss the philosophy.

However, I would like to discuss the business aspects of what we are talking about this morning. I wonder why it is so difficult to understand that a utility is quite different from other types of enterprises, and the difference is very simple. The difference is that although they are not guaranteed any profits, such as have been indicated by Delegate O'Donnell—quite to the contrary—during the course of a year we see many of them on occasion that fail to meet their needs and therefore have had to go into bankruptcy. But that is not the point. The point is, the utilities may because of the fact that they are the chosen instrument in the particular area, pass on to the users of the particular service those costs which they are required to pay.

As I indicated earlier in my memorandum from the Philadelphia Electric Company, the very fact that they have this installation at Peach Bottom would result in something like an $850 per year tax payment for each citizen in the community instead of $72. Now this is obviously unfair, but that is exactly what would happen if the amendment which we are now considering were to be adopted. It seems to me that it is quite clear in the case of the utility that the difference is that if the U. S. Steel Company were in there and there were that type of a windfall, the people of Philadelphia, the users of the property of the Philadelphia Electric Company, would not be required to make up that windfall on behalf of this little community. In the case of the Philadelphia Electric Company, they will be required, the city of Philadelphia and the citizens of the city of Philadelphia will be required, by paying additional rates to make up for that windfall that is being given to that small community, and it does not happen except in the case of utilities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Mr. President, I think it vitally important to clearly and accurately define what the issue is here. I find myself in complete disagreement, much to my dissatisfaction, with Delegate Casey, who declared the issue as he just did a moment ago. The issue is not whether utilities are going to be taxed. I think the figures have adequately demonstrated that utilities are taxed and that overall they pay their fair share of taxes. The only question is, what governmental body is going to levy those taxes and how are they going to be distributed? In my opinion, the serious issue, the vital issue, is how is that going to be done most equitably for the greatest number of people in Pennsylvania. Now I am not in favor of discriminating for or against utilities. If the figures are accurate, they are taxed now. They are paying their fair share of the total tax burden of this Commonwealth. Again, the only question with which we as delegates here are faced, as I see it, is whether or not the local taxing authorities are going to levy this tax, or whether or not the State is going to levy it and distribute it in the most equitable way possible for the greatest number of citizens in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I, therefore, feel that this amendment ought to be defeated and that the committee proposal is the most equitable, fair, just solution that I have seen to this problem and will redound to the greatest benefit of the biggest number of Pennsylvanians.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, I have to concur with Delegate Casey and support the O'Donnell amendment.

What he has said is absolutely hitting the target in the bull's eye, I think. Dr. Kurtzman, in his blue pamphlet that we have all been through in the last three months, says precisely the same thing in these words: If you want to keep the exemption, put it in the Constitution; if you want to do away with the exemptions, put that in the Constitution because it is not going to be done any other way.

I would also like to refer to the Constitution of 1873 about which I read the testimony on the exemption article. In there, the assumption was by all the delegates that any previous exemptions would no longer exist. That amendment was made to say that but failed because of the question of redundancy. The assumption was that no exemptions would continue after that Constitution passed.

I rise in support of this and hope that we vote for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment.

Delegate Kauffman's comments were very much the same as I would have made. I would like to add just one further statement to it.

We are now faced with the problem of an inequity. We recognize that inequity and we are attempting to solve that inequity. However, if we make utilities subject to every single tax to which everyone else is subject and a utility gross receipts tax that no one else pays, then we reverse the problem. Where we now have a problem of an inequity with the utilities not absorbing perhaps their fair share of local taxation, we will then have them bear their full share of local taxation and impose an additional tax in this gross receipts tax that no one else pays. That is just as much of an inequity.

I believe the committee proposal clearly settles that inequity and to approve this amendment would put us right back on the same problem but on the other side of the fence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I do not claim the eloquence of the former speakers, but I would like to remind you of the man whose birthday we celebrated yesterday. He was involved in litigation many, many years ago as to whether or not a bridge should be built across the river, and the people who ran the boats up and down said, this is terrible because it will result in our not being able to run our boats. The answer of the people who wanted the railroad bridge, as I recall it, was that it was more important to go across. So the question was whether or not it is more important to go up and down the river or go across the river.

This is what we are talking about here. We are talking about whether or not to tax. This is what Delegate Casey has said. Really, we are not talking about whether the utility is going to pay an additional tax; we are talking about whether or not the local real estate owners are going to continue to pay a tax, the real estate tax, which will pick up a portion of the tax not being borne by the utilities, or whether all of the users of this particular service are going to pick up and help to pay their portion of local government expense.

We have heard a great deal about the Peach Bottom plant and its fantastic windfall of $850 per capita, I believe was the figure. But this argument does not impress me, because it carries with it the impression that local government and the local governing bodies are totally irresponsible. I do not think this has been borne out by history; I do not think it will be borne out in the future. Obviously, if a township or a borough or a city would be fortunate enough to have such a massive installation and it were taxable, the result would be that they would reduce all of the real estate taxes. The utility, the industry, would share in the benefit of that reduced tax in the same way as if you have a township and General Motors goes in and builds a huge installation. The tax base has been broadened widely and the taxes are reduced.

I say this is a logical and practical amendment and I will support it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caputo.

DELEGATE CAPUTO. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I accept and adopt the argument made by Delegate Keller and Delegate Casey, but I do want to call the attention of the delegates here to something which has been touched upon but apparently forgotten.

We are not dealing here with ordinary corporations or municipal entities; we are dealing here with utilities which have been given privileges by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. They have been monopolistic in their nature; they have the right of eminent domain and, therefore, they should pay their share of the taxes for local distribution.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I think the subject has been debated rather fully on both sides, not only on this amendment, but all morning long. I will only say that this amendment of Delegate O'Donnell does violence to the intent of the committee. Therefore, I strongly urge the defeat of the amendment.

I would like to call on, at this time, Subchairman Pott to make a further statement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Mr. President, I would like to yield to the gentleman here.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fay.

DELEGATE FAY. I would like to read this report of the Department of Revenue of October 13, 1966.

It says, "Corporate income tax, $39 million; capital stock, $17 million; franchise, $4 million, and utility gross receipts, $28 million; and total taxes paid into the Commonwealth in 1966 were $90 million." I do not think that is a fair share when you take the grand revenue of all the utilities which runs well over $1 billion in this thing. I must disagree that they are paying a fair share of their taxes in this Commonwealth.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I think we are belaboring the issue. I think there are too many clouds in the sky in this and that we have not addressed ourselves directly to the problem.

When you tax public utilities or any other agency in the local communities, you have to tax them at a uniform rate. Therefore, if there is a large public utility installation in township X and not in township Y, and township X taxes at the local level, the people in township Y and everybody else are going to have to pay for their rebate on realty in taxes for which they will have a windfall; and for all consumers throughout the length and breadth of whatever public utility it is, that is, the people who are being served, the rates are going to go up. This was not, I repeat, was not the intention of our committee to provide an unequal distribution of taxes.

I would like to remind Senator Casey that lines 8 through 10 of the committee proposal do impose a real estate tax by local taxing authorities. I think it is most important that we bear in mind and keep in mind what Delegate Amsterdam has referred to, and I think we should also keep in mind that the public utilities do serve the people and rates are going to be determined by the people's representatives through the Governor's appointments to the Public Utilities Commission.

We in our committee faced this issue squarely. We could have ducked it; we could have ducked the whole tax-exemption provision. There was no urgent pleading on the part of the public, on the part of the government, on the part of local communities or anything else at the time of the call of the Convention that we take up this matter of exemptions. We were told, principally through our news media and everything else, that the important thing was state debt. But our committee faced this problem and we have tried to tighten up the exemptions. We have receognized our obligation, we feel, to the local communities where public utilities do exist by providing in this section an opportunity for them to get some money back on a fair and equitable basis, fair and equitable to all the consumers and all the taxpayers of Pennsylvania. This is all we are trying to do. We think we have an excellent proposal; we think we have satisfied everybody; and we respectfully urge your keen consideration of this, bearing in mind what is best for all the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, including the consumers of public utility functions.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, in speaking about public utilities today, we seem to be laboring under one false assumption which I would like to expose at this time. It may be presumed that everyone in this Commonwealth has the opportunity to avail himself of electric service. I suggest that in my own county this is false. If you are close enough and sufficiently convenient and if the line will make a profit for the utility, service will be provided. However, if those three conditions are unfulfilled, you will not have such service.

In regard to telephones, the situation is precisely the same; not everyone in my county—and I am sure that this is true in every rural county in Pennsylvania—can avail himself of telephone service even if he wants it.

Natural gas and illuminating gas, as distinguished from natural gas, are not available in my county beyond the immediate confines of Lewistown, which represents less than one-third of the population in the county.

The same is true with municipal water. If you happen to be close enough to the water line and if it is economically feasible, the utility will serve you with municipal water.

The railroads, of course, we know full well, do not care to carry passengers any more, and the upshot is that unless you are a cow or a pig, you are not welcome to ride on the new Penn-Central Railroad. The situation is very clear that there is a marked difference between the word "consumer" and "taxpayer." He is not, in every instance, the same person.

Finally, I am most concerned about the second thrust, and that is one which I am sure has been overlooked. This legislation in the guise of helping local government —and local government in my area greatly needs help— will only substitute the removal of $17 million in revenue, bringing it back to my local government through the hands of the tax collector with his two, five or 10 per cent commission or whatever the expense may turn out to be, and it will, instead, require the raising of $20 million or perhaps $22 million to substitute moneys already being allocated for statewide purposes from a statewide-collected tax.

I urge you that the utilities are a breed of cats the difference of which is that for their monopoly they are permitted to serve a certain selected class of consumer. They do not, have not, and probably never will serve everyone. For this reason, let them share that fair share of local burden; let the state tax pattern be not upset by the proposed legislation.

I do not often agree with Delegate O'Donnell, but in this instance I am most pleased to agree, and I urge your concurrence as well.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Barron.

Are we ready for the question?

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate O'Donnell?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—53

Aberman	Fineman	Mangery	Roberts
Bagenstose	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Scales
Baldus	Gerber	McGlynn	Scott
Baldwin	Himes	Morton	Sharp
Barron	Hocker	Murray	Shrager
Barry	Hook	O'Donnell	Solomon
Benfield	Huggins	Orbin	Sprogell
Camardella	Irvis	Percey	Stout
Caputo	Keller, J.	Popil	Swope
Casey	Kelly	Powell	Tate
Cosetti	King	Quiles	Thomson
Fay	Kline	Rappaport	Thornburgh
Feather	Manderino	Redick	Welsh
Filson

NAYS—90

Allison	Cunningham	Kauffman	Rea
Amsterdam	Curran	Keller, M.	Reynolds
Aurentz	Dailey	Krill	Sahli
Baldrige	Desmond	Laputka	Scarlett
Banes	Devlin	Leach	Sebastian
Benedict	Donaldson	Lee, L.	Shapiro
Bloom	Erwin	Leinbach	Shively
Braham	Fawcett	Leonard	Shoemaker
Brennan	Fleming	Levin	Silverman
Broderick	Fohl	McGeary	Strickler
Brown	Forster	Meyer	Stroup
Buck	Fortney	Michael	Tomasetik
Bunting	Goldman	Miller, D.	Tully
Burkholder	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Van Sant
Butera	Gouger	Moorhead	Waldron
Cain	Griffith	More	Warman
Caron	Hannum	Nelson	Westerberg
Clark	Harding	Orban	Whittum
Clinger	Hatter	Otto	Wilcox
Conley	Henderson	Pelletier	Wilmarth
Corey	Heyburn	Pott	Woodring
Cortese	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Woodside
Croop	Johnson

NOT VOTING—20

Bashoff	Gray	Pasquerilla	Richter
Donolow	Horne	Pechan	Rovner
Dumbauld	Hostetler	Markley	Ruth
Fagan	Lane	Michener	Scranton
Gabreski	Lee, K.	Musselman	Shettig

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

HOCKER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that Delegate Hocker has another amendment to offer at this time.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HOCKER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Title, page 1, line 2, by inserting a period after "taxation" where it appears the first time

Amend Title, page 1, second and third lines of title, by striking out "and providing for the taxation of real property of public utilities."

Amend Sec. 2, page 4, lines 6 to 27, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I consider this a correctional amendment.

Mr. President, I think there are some people in this body who do not like what is in the proposal; they did not like anything else that was offered. All this amendment will do is wipe it out entirely and put it back where it was before, in the hands of the legislature, and then let the political subdivisions warm them up a little next session. Maybe they will go for a tax.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I think no comment is necessary. The committee is unalterably opposed to the amendment.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Not all of the committee. We never were with you, Judge. You are not going to get us now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there anyone else who wishes to be heard, either pro or con, before we vote?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hocker. Do you wish to be heard?

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, the only reason I presented this, I still quarrel with the idea of taking $17 million out of the General Fund. I do not think they can afford it; we are short of money in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania now. They are going to have to have additional taxes. I quarrel with this type of an operation and that is the reason for my amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The question recurs,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Hocker?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—29

Aberman	Filson	McGlynn	Redick
Baldus	Fineman	Michael	Shrager
Barron	Hocker	Morton	Silverman
Barry	Hook	Orbin	Solomon
Camardella	Irvis	Popil	Sprogell
Caputo	Kline	Quiles	Stout
Conley	Mangery	Rappaport	Stroup
Cosetti

NAYS—110

Allison	Dailey	Kelly	Richter
Amsterdam	Desmond	Krill	Roberts
Aurentz	Devlin	Laputka	Sahli
Bagenstose	Donaldson	Leach	Scales
Baldrige	Erwin	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fawcett	Leinbach	Scott
Banes	Fay	Leonard	Sebastian
Benedict	Feather	Levin	Shapiro
Benfield	Fleming	Manderino	Sharp
Bloom	Fohl	Markley	Shively
Braham	Forster	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Brennan	Fortney	McGeary	Strickler
Broderick	Gehrlein	Meyer	Swope
Brown	Gerber	Miller, D.	Tate
Buck	Goldman	Miller, R.	Thomson
Bunting	Goldstein	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Burkholder	Gouger	Murray	Tomascik
Butera	Griffith	Nelson	Tully
Cain	Hannum	Orban	Van Sant
Caron	Harding	Otto	Waldron
Casey	Hatter	Pasquerilla	Warman
Clark	Henderson	Percey	Welsh
Clinger	Heyburn	Pott	Westerberg
Corey	Himes	Powell	Whittum
Cortese	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Wilcox
Croop	Johnson	Rea	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Kauffman	Reynolds	Woodring
Curran	Keller, J.

NOT VOTING—24

Bashoff	Horne	Lee, K.	Pelletier
Donolow	Hostetler	Michener	Rovner
Dumbauld	Huggins	More	Ruth
Fagan	Keller, M.	Musselman	Scranton
Gabreski	King	O'Donnell	Shettig
Gray	Lane	Pechan	Woodside

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Shapiro.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 11, by inserting after "imposed": in lieu of gross receipts taxes
Amend Sec 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 15, by striking out "an amount" and inserting: such gross receipts or other special tax revenues

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the primary purpose of this amendment is to make sure that the Commonwealth is not forced to distribute to local communities any more than it received from utilities in the form of gross receipts taxes or other special taxes levied in lieu of gross receipt taxes.

A secondary purpose of the amendment is to verbally put into the proposal what the committee chairmen have stated is inherent in it, and that is, that the reference to other special taxes is intended solely to encompass other special taxes which may be levied at some point by the legislature in lieu of gross receipts taxes. I have submitted a copy of this to the co-chairmen of the committee and I would trust that they may concur in this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Speaking as a co-chairman and personally, I have no objection to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now are we ready for the question?

The Chair wishes to recognize Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. It would seem to me, Mr. President, that what this amendment is doing is giving the public utilities an exemption. In the event that there is no gross receipts tax collected or it is done away with, the public utilities are given an exemption in this case. Is that true, Judge Woodring?

DELEGATE WOODRING. I would yield to the sponsor of the amendment.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I would submit that, at the present time, if no gross receipts taxes are collected, as the proposal now stands there would be nothing to distribute to the communities. The sole intent so far as the change in language that I have offered is, if the collection is $37 million, that we not distribute to the local communities any more than $37 million even if the amount that would be taxable as local real estate taxes might exceed that figure. I simply do not want to have the State in the position of distributing any more than it actually receives from this source.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell again.

DELEGATE POWELL. In other words, Delegate Shapiro, if the gross receipts tax is $17 million and the amount that should equitably be distributed is $40 million, they would only distribute $17 million. Is that correct?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I would assume that is correct. But I want to point out that it is not my amendment solely that does what he originally stated to be his objection. My amendment does not grant an exemption to utilities. If there is an exemption granted to utilities, it would be done by the legislature. All my amendment does is to make sure the legislature does not have the right to distribute more than it gets from utilities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. I would have to oppose this amendment due to the fact that I think there is a possibility of this amendment resulting in an exemption totally to the public utilities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. I have no objection. I have already said that, in my opinion, it is all right, sir.

The question recurs,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shapiro?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—52

Aberman	Cunningham	Lapufka	Sharp
Banes	Curran	Lee, L.	Shettig
Barry	Fawcett	Leinbach	Shively
Benfield	Feather	Leonard	Sprogell
Bloom	Filson	Markley	Stout
Braham	Fineman	McGeary	Stroup
Bunting	Forster	Michael	Swope
Burkholder	Fortney	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Butera	Gerber	Moorhead	Tomascik
Caputo	Goldman	Otto	Tully
Clinger	Johnson	Prendergast	Van Sant
Corey	Kauffman	Rea	Warman
Croop	Kelly	Shapiro	Woodring

NAYS—83

Amsterdam	Donaldson	Levin	Richter
Aurentz	Erwin	Manderino	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fay	Mangery	Sahli
Baldrige	Fleming	Mattioni	Scales
Baldus	Fohl	McGlynn	Scarlett
Baldwin	Gehrlein	Meyer	Scott
Barron	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Sebastian
Benedict	Griffith	Morton	Shoemaker
Brennan	Hannum	Murray	Shrager
Broderick	Harding	Nelson	Silverman
Brown	Hatter	Orban	Solomon
Buck	Henderson	Orbin	Strickler
Camardella	Heyburn	Pasquerilla	Tate
Caron	Himes	Pelletier	Thomson
Clark	Hocker	Popil	Waldron
Conley	Hook	Pott	Welsh
Cortese	Jirolanio	Powell	Westerberg
Cosetti	Keller, J.	Quiles	Whittum
Dailey	King	Rappaport	Wilcox
Desmond	Kline	Redick	Wilmarth
Devlin	Krill	Reynolds

NOT VOTING—28

Allison	Gabreski	Keller, M.	O'Donnell
Bashoff	Gouger	Lane	Pechan
Cain	Gray	Leach	Percey
Casey	Horne	Lee, K.	Rovner
Donolow	Hostetler	Michener	Ruth
Dumbauld	Huggins	More	Scranton
Fagan	Irvis	Musselman	Woodside

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand we have another amendment being offered by Delegate Shapiro.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 13; by removing the period after "services" and inserting: and not specifically subjected to local taxation by statute.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 25 to 27, by striking out all of said lines and inserting after "authorities." in line 21: That real property of public utilities which is not used or useful in furnishing their public utility services shall remain subject to local taxation.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this amendment addresses itself to a supposed correctional change made by the committee in its proposal. The committee changed the last sentence of its proposal with the intention, I believe, of making sure that certain real estate owned by local transportation companies and by railroads in Philadelphia and in Pittsburgh, which is presently subjected to tax by statute, specifically subjected to tax by statute, would not be exempted from tax by this amendment.

However, I submit that the change made by the committee's change in language might also cover a situation such as this. If the telephone company, for example, has a property which is presently subject to tax because it is being used as an office building or in some manner other than the manner defined by "used or useful in the furnishing of services" and, if, at a later date, after the passage of this amendment, the use of that building were changed so that, instead of being an office building, it were used for something that would fall within the existing exemptions, such as, a telephone exchange, for example, the language which the committee proposes might very well, unintentionally but nevertheless tax that real estate after it has been converted to its use.

I have, therefore, suggested that the committee restore or that we restore the original committee language and cover the problem of real estate tax, specifically tax by statute, by using the appropriate language in the earlier portion of the committee's proposal where it defines what the gross receipts tax is in lieu of, so that it reads, "will be in lieu of local taxes on that real property which is used or useful in furnishing their public utility services" and not specifically subjected to local taxation by statute.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shapiro, in connection with your amendment, the last portion of it is the same language which we had with Delegate Camardella, which we said had been originally put in by an amendment. As far as the last portion of your amendment is concerned, it will require a motion to reconsider, and we have already reconsidered it once.

Would you like to make another motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. No, I would not make a motion to reconsider it, but I would point out that your ruling is inconsistent with the ruling you made on another amendment which was offered a short time ago and after Delegate Camardella's amendment.

I would also like to point out, Mr. President, that what you are inviting, if this kind of ruling continues, would be the refusal of this body to act on committee amendments which are handed to us at the end of a long and tedious day, or you might be inviting motions to reconsider amendments which are adopted in that fashion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shapiro, the Chair wishes to say that when amendments are handed in by the committee or anyone else, whether it is at the beginning of a day or at the end of a day, they are still amendments, and if they are adopted by the body, they should be considered by the body, of course, very carefully.

The parliamentarian has ruled and, I think, consistently, in connection, at least, with the Carmardella ruling that the last part of your amendment would have to be on a motion to reconsider. Do you want to consider the first part of it?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. No, it would not be worth considering if you separate them. My proposal to change the last sentence would have to be accompanied by the rest of the amendment, and that is why I think it is not a reconsideration.

Earlier today you had a proposed amendment to the very beginning of this section in which language was restored to virtually what it had been initially. If you still rule that this is a reconsideration, I will withdraw it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shapiro, we are asking the parliamentarian and counsel to determine whether the first of yours is so connected with the last part that it could be considered as an amendment.

The parliamentarian is still of the opinion that the latter part of your amendment would require a motion to reconsider. In view of that, do you want the delegates to vote on the first part as an amendment?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, before I answer that question, may I ask just what has really happened with respect to the motion to reconsider? What was the nature of the motion to reconsider that was made by Delegate Camardella? What was the effect of that motion? Was it not to remove from the proposal the language which was originally presented and amended by the suggestion of the committee?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No. We had a motion to reconsider, which was voted, and then the language was turned down.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Just on the motion to reconsider, what did we reconsider?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We reconsidered the vote by which this language was originally adopted as to whether or not the delegates wished to then reconsider, and they did and they turned down the amendment which was offered by Delegate Camardella, which is the same language that is being offered here.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. It is true that they turned down the language which was offered by Delegate Camardella, but it seems to me that the motion to reconsider did, in effect, reinstate the language that I am proposing at this point.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We did not reinstate the language at all. The motion to reconsider was merely to open the door as to whether or not the delegates wished to reconsider that language, and they voted on it. They turned it down.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. When they voted to reconsider the language, did they not, in effect, restore the original language presented by the committee?

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No. No, that was not in the motion.

In the interest of saving time, do you wish to make a motion to reconsider?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I withdraw the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I would ask that you reconsider what you just said with your parliamentarian. As I understand it, that motion to reconsider was on everything that was put in by the committee, and we have never acted on that again. That is still held some place in limbo until something is done on it. That is the only point I want to make without getting into a quarrel about whether I support Delegate Shapiro or not.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. My parliamentarian tells me, Delegate Kline, that the motion to reconsider, since we had an affirmative vote on it, simply opened it up to accept or reject the language that was being offered by Delegate Camardella. We, therefore, voted to reject it, which closed that issue at least for that time.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I submit your parliamentarian is wrong, or you misunderstood him. When you reconsider a vote by which an amendment was passed and agree to reconsider it, then you neither have an amendment passed nor one that has failed; the whole matter is up for reconsideration and has to be resubmitted again for consideration by the body. That is the point I make, and I think it is an important one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. According to our parliamentarian, he says that, because we received a negative vote on the Camardella amendment, in effect, we agreed to leave the language as it was in the original amended proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, it is my impression that the motion to reconsider was unfortunate in that it should have been more logically an appeal from the Chair's ruling. Once it was a motion to reconsider, we were, therefore, without any language from lines 22 to 27. It was my impression that the committee would then introduce their language in lines 25 to 27.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. This is not in accordance with the parliamentarian's ruling. Of course, I have explained the ruling of the Parliamentarian, and this language, as far as we are concerned, is still in the amended proposal.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, may I have the privilege of interrogating Delegate Gerber?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber, would you stand for interrogation?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, yes, I will.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Delegate Gerber, referring to your Committee Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14, on page 4, line 25 to line 27, I am somewhat in a state of confusion and I wonder whether or not you have had the opportunity to re-read those last three lines and whether an amendment should be placed in that particular paragraph, especially after the words "All real property of public utilities." As you read that paragraph it seems to me that you are allowing the local taxation on the property which they now own. What happens to the property which will be erected in the future?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. Jirolanio, the purpose of the committee's verbiage in lines 25 to 27 was to assure that the property of public utilities presently subject to local taxation at the time of the adoption of this provision should remain subject to local taxation. I see the question that you raised and it seems to me possibly that if we inserted between the words "utilities" and "subject" the two words, which are—"All real property of public utilities which is subject to local taxation at the time," the point being the subject matter—you are talking about the subject matter continuing, not just the specific parcel. Am I correct?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Yes, sir. Would you be willing to amend this particular paragraph?

DELEGATE GERBER. We would be willing to amend it consistent with the spirit that the nature of the property presently taxed on the local level, the current property presently taxed on the local level, would so continue to be taxed. If we could insert language which would assure a clear understanding that this is the import of the committee, I would be willing to amend same.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. That satifies me, Mr. President.

DELEGATE GERBER. One question, does the delegate from Northampton County have any specific language which he feels, in his experience, which I know is greater than mine, would be much clearer than any language that I might think of?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I bow to the intelligence of Mr. Gerber and especially to the chairman of that committee who was a judge over me for 20 years, and I certainly do not have any better language than the judge and you both have.

DELEGATE GERBER. Thank you very much, Mr. President and Delegate Jirolanio.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. At this time we have completed the amendment process in connection with Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14. Under our rules this proposal will lie over for printing and appear on tomorrow's calendar under second consideration.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I hesitate at this hour to interrupt the procedure of the Chair, but I am obliged morally and every other way to ask leave to make a motion to reconsider a matter that was adopted yesterday. Therefore, if we are about ready to take our noon recess, I would suggest that this matter be held over until after recess before you allocate this to the calendar for tomorrow.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If this is the only matter, the Chair would like to suggest that we clear up everything in connection with Proposal No. 5 before recess so that immediately after lunch we can start on Proposal No. 4.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER WESTERBERG AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, if you please and if the Convention pleases, returning to the Westerberg amendment of yesterday, which was adopted, it is on page 3, line 30, at the bottom of the page, subsection (c), and it would strike out the words "laws set up standards and qualifications by which local taxing authorities may", and insert in lieu thereof the word "law".

This amendment was adopted. It was adopted on my statement and I felt this was correctional. I thought what we were doing was eliminating a lot of verbiage that the legislature should set up standards and classifications, et cetera, et cetera, and substituting therefor the word "law". With that I was in favor. A copy of the amendment was not on my desk when I made that statement. When the copy came and we had suddenly voted on it and I had voted in the affirmative, Mr. President, I find that it also deleted "local taxing authorities may", and this destroys the very context of the provision. The thought of the committee and the recommendation of the committee proposal was that, on authorization by the General Assembly, local taxing authorities may or may not; it would be discretionary with the local taxing authorities. This amendment would remove the permissive quality to the local taxing authorities. It would make it mandatory, if adopted, by the General Assembly. This was not intended. It was passed in error; I voted for it in error. I would move, Mr. President, that we reconsider the vote by which this was adopted.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that you are making a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Westerberg amendment was adopted yesterday. Is there a second to your motion?

DELEGATE POTT. I second it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is seconded by Delegate Pott.

We now recognize Delegate Westerberg who probably wishes to be heard in connection with the motion that is on the floor.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, I never thought I would be in a position of fooling a judge, and I just did not think I had that much ability. However, I do not believe that 120 people in here were fooled by this amendment, and I want to assure you that I was not trying to put anything over on the local taxing authorities.

In checking with the associations of the boroughs, the first class townships, second class townships and the League of Third Class Cities, I found that they were not opposed to this amendment because they felt that this would, in the end, bring more tax moneys into their localities with a lot less trouble.

I believe that this was debated to a certain extent under the Barry amendment, and when I say that the local government groups are not in disfavor of this amendment, they are not because they realize that any program that will in any way generate new home building will help them in the end in their tax structure.

I do ask that this vote for reconsideration be voted "no," because I believe this is a good amendment, a fair amendment, and is not hurting any of the local governing authorities.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, I rise in favor of reconsideration of this subject.

If I recall, yesterday this thing passed in about 37 seconds, and I voted "no" on it, and I think there was a lot of other persons who went along with me.

It is my feeling that the local government officers whom Delegate Westerberg is talking about are not cognizant of what this does to them. If they are cognizant, it is my opinion that perhaps we need some other local government officers in these associations.

I just want to see it opened up for discussion so we could clearly define what this means and what effect it is going to have on the local government unit.

POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Van Sant. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE VAN SANT. I rise to a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE VAN SANT. Repeatedly I hear the Chair say, well, we will take this up at the last minute and in five minutes more we will be out of here because we want to save time.

I ask the Chair, how much time did we save by rushing through this amendment yesterday?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, may I come to the rescue of the Chair and assume full responsibility for this?

As I said in my opening remarks, I listened to the reading clerk as the Westerberg amendment was read, and I grasped the early portions of it as a correctional amendment. I promptly jumped to the mike and said that I had no objection to it; I thought it was a good idea; I thought we were cleaning up the verbiage. I did not know that we were removing the prerogative of the local municipal authorities to pass upon or reject the exemption which is contemplated by this section. Therefore, I think it ought to be reconsidered.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I am now asking the chair if the motion that has now been made is to a reconsideration, is that so?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question is whether we should reconsider the vote by which the Westerberg amendment was adopted.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. May I ask a further question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. If a vote is in the affirmative, that would only go toward the vote upon that which was passed, is that so?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If the vote is in the affirmative, we will then reconsider it; if it is in the negative, we will not reconsider.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Reconsider what?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The amendment. We will then reconsider the amendment.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. In other words, you have to have two votes, one to reconsider, and that is exactly what I am talking about.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is right, two votes.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I agree with the Chair.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is the position of the Chair.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, my mind is not very orderly at this point because that was not the position of the Chair three minutes ago.

If this motion passes, that amendment is neither adopted nor does it fail; it is just up for reconsideration.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We agree with you.

DELEGATE KLINE. That is correct in this case, but to my prior question, that was not your ruling.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I thought it was my ruling, Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. It was not your ruling, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If I may restate it in the other case, we voted to reconsider, and that was on the basis of Delegate Camardella's amendment. We then voted on the Camardella amendment and it was voted down. We are going to do the same thing right now, I assume, in connection with Delegate Westerberg's amendment.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I agree with what you said up to a point. First of all, you ruled the amendment that Delegate Camardella put in was not an appriate amendment, that the only way he could approach this subject would be to vote to reconsider the vote by which the earlier amendment had been passed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That was the ruling of the parliamentarian.

DELEGATE KLINE. He agreed to that, and his motion was to reconsider. The Convention agreed to reconsider, and I submit to you that at that point none of those amendments had either passed or fallen. Then we proceeded to consider his amendment alone, but we never ever reconsidered the original amendment presented that was supposed to be cleaning up technical language. That is the point I made, and I think it is important because we are apparently going to use this parliamentary device in other areas. We ought to get it settled now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The parliamentarian says he sticks to his ruling.

DELEGATE KLINE. If that is the ruling of the Chair, I appeal it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Kline, in connection with the Camardella amendment, I was just advised that perhaps you did not realize, or perhaps you do, that the Camardella language was the original language.

DELEGATE KLINE. Then I submit to you, Mr. President, that still stands because you have never reconsidered the amending language.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want to point out that we then voted on the Camardella amendment which was the original language.

DELEGATE KLINE. Which was defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. May I try to contribute something to this problem, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed.

DELEGATE STROUP. The motion to reconsider opened up the vote by which that particular amendment had been adopted, and then we opened that up. Identical language was then proposed for reconsideration in the amendment which becomes the same as if you had voted upon that vote which was held before and reconsidered. In other words, you had an unusual situation. It is very seldom than an amendment is offered to a vote to reconsider which is identical with the problem which you had before, and that is what is confusing our entire Convention.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Stroup.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I share the viewpoint of Delegate Kline. I think the ruling of the Chair is so blatantly wrong that I do not know how the conclusion was arrived at and I would ask this question: What was the status of the amendment after the vote for reconsideration was passed?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The status of the Camardella amendment?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, the status of the amendment which we reconsidered. What was the status of that amendment when we voted to reconsider it?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The status was we were then going to reconsider whether to submit the original language which was being offered.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, no, no. That is a secondary step. There is a first step, reconsideration. What was the status of the amendment that we voted to reconsider after we voted in the affirmative?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Fineman, the ruling of the parliamentarian, with which the Chair agrees, was that when we voted in the affirmative to reconsider, we were reconsidering the language that Delegate Camardella wished to offer, which I want to point out was the original language which was in the proposal. We then voted as to whether or not we were going to put that back or leave it as it was.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Let us assume that Delegate Camardella is out of this completely and someone made a motion to reconsider a vote by which an amendment passed. Now that vote passes. What is the status of the subject matter that we have voted to reconsider after we have voted?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is then up for a vote as to what is to be offered at that time.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. You mean that it moves back to the status it had before we last voted on it? In other words, if you vote to pass a bill from first to second reading and then after you have done that you move to reconsider the vote by which it passed first reading, it no longer is on second reading. You have to move it back to first reading and take a new vote as to whether to move it to second reading. The effect is the same with this amendment. Once we have voted to reconsider, it is the same as if we had never voted initially on the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I would agree with you on that statement that we never voted initially on the amendment. Therefore, the next action of this delegation was to vote on the Camardella amendment, which would have restored the language, and the delegates voted to vote down that language to keep the proposal amended as it was.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. When we voted on Delegate Camardella's proposal, that was an entirely separate subject matter. We voted that down. You are now back, however, at the point in voting where you were before you passed the amendments originally, and we have to vote again on those amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is not the ruling of the Chair.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, I would like to just clear up something, if I may, for my own mind. If I understand Delegate Fineman correctly, he is saying that a motion to reconsider, if it passes, has the effect of an erasure and that we start with a blank tablet. Is that correct?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That is absolutely correct.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, may I respectfully remind the Chair that there is a motion and a second before the Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, could the floor overrule the parliamentarian on this? Senator Kline is absolutely right on this thing. I think it is the feeling of most of the delegates.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, it seems to me that this Convention can either debate itself into history or talk itself into oblivion. I feel that at the present time we are in grave danger of the latter. As Judge Woodring has said, there is a motion which has been seconded. I would, therefore, move the question so that we can proceed with order and dispatch.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Is there not an appeal pending on the floor?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We had the motion on the floor before the appeal was taken. We will have to have a ruling of the parliamentarian on that.

I am advised by the parliamentarian that Delegate Woodring's motion takes precedence and that is what we are debating at the present time. Your motion is that we reconsider the vote by which the Westerberg amendment was adopted. That was seconded by Delegate Pott.

Does anyone wish to be heard on that?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, would you, for the Convention, tell us precisely what the status of the proposal would be if this motion passes?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If this motion to reconsider passes, then we are in a position to reconsider the Westerberg amendment. In other words, we will vote again on whether we want to accept it or reject it.

DELEGATE KLINE. Supposing we do neither, then does the language of the original proposal prevail at that moment until we do something with it? This is the question I want to be made clear.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised by the parliamentarian that we should take two votes, and the second vote is that you either vote it down or vote it up again on the Westerberg amendment. Are we ready for the question?

MOTION TO RECONSIDER WTHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRNG. Mr. President, the chairman is not ready for the question and I would like to withdraw the motion, and Delegate Pott withdraws his second for reconsideration. We will strike it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Then do we have a motion to appeal or do we recess for lunch?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Is there not an appeal pending?

DELEGATE KLINE. If I may have the privilege, Mr. President, of coming back after lunch with the right to appeal again, I shall withdraw the appeal at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Apparently there has been no ruling if the motion at this time is withdrawn, but if we have it again, of course, you have the right to appeal.

I understand there is another amendment. Is that right? Whose amendment is this?

Delegate Barron and Delegate Aberman have an amendment which I understand will be the last amendment. Is that correct?

DELEGATE GERBER. No, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Are you suggesting that the motion to reconsider can be brought up again after lunch or has it been abandoned?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Oh, it can be brought up after lunch, certainly.

DELEGATE CURRAN. It can be brought up by anyone?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Certainly.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. There is one other correctional amendment which Delegate Jirolanio brought to my attention with which the committee is in agreement, in addition to the amendment of which you spoke, which Delegate Aberman and Delegate Barron intend to introduce, which has to do with the language in lines 25, 26 and 27 which we have agreed correctionally to amend, sir.

That amendment I have here, and it should be ready for distribution because it has been signed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. I understand, however, we have another amendment here, which is the amendment offered by Delegate Aberman. Would you read the amendment, please?

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE ABERMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 10 to 21, by striking out "gross receipts or any other special taxes" in line 10; all of lines 11 to 21, and inserting: "And the state shall levy an excess profits tax on privately owned public utility companies on all earnings determined by the Public Utility Commission to be in excess of legal return on investments, and such tax shall be returned to local subdivisions in lieu of local property taxes."

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Aberman in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. We have not received the amendment yet, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The amendment is being distributed now.

MOTION TO RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I move that we recess for lunch and take this up when we come back. A bunch of skinny, starved delegates is not going to do you any good later on in the day. Let's come back at two o'clock.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved and seconded that we recess for lunch until two o'clock.

What is the will of the delegates?

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.

RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now declares a recess until two o'clock.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the Convention was called to order.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are still accepting amendments to Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 14, and first we are going to call on Mr. Shapiro for his amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, line 13, by removing the period after "services" and inserting: and not specifically subjected to local taxation by statute.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 25 to 27, by striking out all of said lines and inserting after "authorities." in line 21: That real property of public utilities which is not used or useful in furnishing their public utility services shall remain subject to local taxation.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. It is my understanding, or it became my understanding during the noon hour, that the ruling of the Chair on this amendment was based on an erroneous impression that it really was two separate amendments?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is correct.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. This is not two separate amendments. I would not offer to amend by inserting the language "and not specifically subjected to local taxation by statute" without also requesting that the original last sentence of the committee proposal be restored in place of the last sentence which now appears, for the simple reason that inserting the new language would have no effect if the last sentence remained. The two are interdependent. I understand that the Chair is prepared to rule differently with that understanding?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is correct. Since your first part and second part are connected and dependent with each other and since the last part is an integral part of your first, the parliamentarian and counsel have both indicated that it can be offered at this time as an amendment.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. At the risk of boring the delegates, I want to repeat what I said earlier with respect to this amendment. What has happened is that the committee came forward with an amendment to its own proposal to take care of a specific situation in the city of Philadelphia and in the city of Pittsburgh where, by statute, there are certain properties of railroads and of local transportation companies which are by statute subject to tax at the present time. The committee's change was intended to make sure that those properties would remain subject to tax.

As I stated earlier, unfortunately the language which they adopted would be susceptible of a different interpretation. It would be susceptible of the interpretation that property which is presently subject to tax, not by reason of specific statute but by reason of its present use, would remain subject to tax even though that use would change to a use which is presently not subject to tax.

I, therefore, offer this amendment in order to overcome that difficulty.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does Delegate Gerber wish to make a statement in connection with this amendment being offered?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Delegate Shapiro briefly if I might, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you stand for interrogation?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I certainly will.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. Shapiro, I fail to understand why the language on the last three lines 25, 26 and 27 creates any problem and where your language meets the need that we attempted to meet by inserting those lines. Would you please explain it?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. My illustration, perhaps, will explain it. If the Bell Telephone Company presently has property in Norristown which is being used as an office building, that property is being taxed and is subject to tax because of the present use of the property and would continue so under either proposal—under either the original proposal or my amendment. However, if the Bell Telephone some years from now were to discontinue the use of that building as an office building and instead change its use to something like an exchange, for example, install automatic signaling equipment or some other equipment which was used solely for the purpose of transmitting messages, which is the service offered by that utility, under the language that the committee proposes that might very well remain subject to tax although under existing law it would not be subject to tax. I do not think it was the intention of the committee to freeze a particular property as being always taxable because of its present use. My amendment proposes to permit an exemption if the use is changed to what is now an exempt use.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, Delegate Shapiro, fellow delegates, it was not the intent of the committee to freeze any parcel of ground as a taxable or as a nontaxable parcel of real estate.

Mr. President, I consulted with Delegate Woodring, Delegate Leonard and Delegate Pott, and we have no objection to the correctional change introduced by Delegate Shapiro, in view of the fact that it expresses the spirit of the committee.

We have a question here, I believe, by Delegate Popil.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. Yes, I would like to use the same example. Let us take that Bell Telephone Company, which presently is exempt under the existing laws. They are exempt, but two, three or four years from now they will take that same building and turn it into an office building. Under the present rules, this building can now be taxed. Will it under the new language?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I would say it would be taxed either under the language submitted by the committee or the language which I have submitted.

DELEGATE POPIL. All right, thank you.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, with Delegate Popil's permission, if this does not meet his objection as a member of the committee, then we would accept it as a correctional amendment. I would like to know what he thinks, in view of his experience.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. I have no objection to it if the intent is that utilities which will not be used in the future for utility purpose, whether they will be subject to local tax, to local real estate tax.

A Bell Telephone Company building which is presently used as a utility building and performs the services of a utility, however, two, three, five years hence, they discontinue that service and rent that building but it is still owned by the utility, will it be subject to a local real estate tax?

DELEGATE GERBER. It certainly ought to be, Delegate Popil. I would hope that our language in no way limits taxation if the use is changed. I think the thrust is at the use rather than the ownership. I think this is the same expression Delegate Shapiro wanted, the thrust at the use rather than the ownership?

DELEGATE POPIL. If this is the intent, I have no objection.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, may I interrogate Mr. Shapiro?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, he will stand for interrogation. Proceed to the question.

DELEGATE HOOK. Delegate Shapiro, what is your intent on line 1r by substituting the language "gross receipts tax revenues"?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I do not think you are looking at the amendment that we are working with.

DELEGATE HOOK. I am sorry.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. You are referring to an amendment which the body has already voted on, unfortunately.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shapiro?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—128

Aberman	Dumbauld	Krill	Redick
Allison	Erwin	Laputka	Reynolds
Amsterdam	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Richter
Aurentz	Fay	Leach	Roberts
Baldus	Feather	Leinbach	Ruth
Baldwin	Filson	Leonard	Sahli
Banes	Fineman	Levin	Scales
Barron	Fohl	Manderino	Scarlett
Barry	Forster	Mangery	Scott
Benedict	Fortney	Mattioni	Sebastian
Bloom	Gabreski	McGeary	Shapiro
Braham	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shettig
Brennan	Gerber	Meyer	Shively
Broderick	Goldman	Michael	Shoemaker
Brown	Goldstein	Michener	Shrager
Buck	Gouger	Miller, D.	Silverman
Bunting	Griffith	Miller, R.	Solomon
Burkholder	Hannum	Moorhead	Sprogell
Butera	Harding	Morton	Stout
Cain	Hatter	Nelson	Strickler
Camardella	Henderson	O'Donnell	Swope
Casey	Heyburn	Orban	Tate
Clark	Hocker	Otto	Thornburgh
Clinger	Hook	Pasquerilla	Tully
Corey	Irvis	Pelletier	Van Sant
Cortese	Jtrolanio	Percey	Warman
Croop	Johnson	Popil	Welsh
Cunningham	Kauffman	Pott	Westerberg
Curran	Keller, J.	Powell	Wilcox
Dailey	Keller, M.	Quiles	Wilmarth
Desmond	Kelly	Rappaport	Woodring
Devlin	King	Rea	Woodside

NAYS—4

Benfield	Caputo	Conley	Cosetti

NOT VOTING—31

Bagenstose	Gray	Markley	Scranton
Baldrige	Himes	More	Sharp
Bashoff	Horne	Murray	Stroup
Caron	Hostetler	Musselman	Thomson
Donaldson	Huggins	Orbin	Tomascik
Donolow	Kline	Peehan	Waldron
Fagan	Lane	Prendergast	Whittum
Fleming	Lee, K.	Rovner

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

ABERMAN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that we have an amendment being offered by Delegate Aberman.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Aberman.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. Mr. President, so that there will be no undue confusion, the amendment which is presently on the desks of the delegates is to be destroyed. It is to be replaced by the correct amendment which is now being distributed.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE ABERMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 1C), page 4, lines 8 to 27, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Section 1C. Public Utilities—The real property of public utilities shall be subject to taxes. The General Assembly may impose such taxes, and nothing contained in this Article shall limit the method by which the General Assembly may enact any such tax.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have heard the amendment read, and now we recognize Delegate Aberman.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I sat this morning through an entire discussion and found out at luncheon-time that we have never voted on the issue of whether or not we should end the exemption granted to public utilities. I found this out by asking someone whether or not the net result of the O'Donnell amendment, which we considered at great length this morning, really meant what we thought it meant.

I read you the language which I have presently submitted, along with a number of other people, in order to reach the issue, that our intention throughout this entire discussion has been to limit the exemption which was fallaciously, in my opinion created by a court decision. It must be remembered, if you think very long and hard about this, there is nothing in the Constitution of 1874 that says the real estate of public utilities should be exempt. It came from a court decision which says that somewhere prior to 1874 there was an exemption.

Starting from that premise, I then asked: "Did the O'Donnell amendment in fact say that this exemption should be ended?" The response of one member and the chairman of the taxation committee was, "No, lines 8 through 10 were never intended to end the exemption." I was completely puzzled by that and I thought to myself, well, if that is the case, let us now discuss the problem. The problem is very simply this: There are two major arguments raised by the O'Donnell amendment. One is, who gets the benefit of the "windfall"? The answer to that question is, no one has to and no one should. The only question you first determine is whether or not the exemption should be ended.

Then if you say that the exemption shall be ended, the method of distribution becomes a function of the General Assembly. I cannot see where in Proposal No. 5, Section 1C, we must legislate a method of distribution. I have been unable to find a question that has been satisfactorily answered as to why such a method of distribution must be inserted if we simply end the exemption; the General Assembly can then come to grips with the problem. If they do not determine to tax the real estate of the public utilities, let them not tax it.

But let there not be any doctrine extant in our Constitution or outside of our Constitution which now says the real property of public utilities cannot be reached.

It is the purpose of this amendment finally to come to grips with what I thought we were talking about all morning, and I now find out we have never been talking about it; we have been talking about a "windfall" and a method of distribution.

We must examine the question of whether or not we are going to limit an exemption. This is the purpose of this amendment. I have been joined by a number of other delegates in this consideration, because we feel we have not dealt with it.

Therefore, I ask your consideration.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, as the presiding officer sometimes says, "The question recurs." This is another ripper; we have dealt with three or four of them this morning and each time the Convention has voted them down and defeated them.

This is another effort to rip out Section 1C which the committee has recommended and which the Convention has voted to adopt. I suggest that we defeat this one as well as the others.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now the Chair recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Mr. President, may I interrogate the sponsor of the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. I would like to ask you, if the legislature fails to act, can the property of public utilities be taxed by local municipalities in the meantime?

DELEGATE ABERMAN. It is the opinion of the sponsors, Delegate Strickler, that we are not dealing in a vacuum and we must consider the local government article, which is Proposal No. 6, which is going to come before us. The thrust of that local government article is to, in certain events, move the residual powers from the General Assembly down to a local government unit. It is entirely possible that if the residual power were to be transferred to a borough or a first or second class township, they could act.

We are saying that the General Assembly may impose such tax and could, if it desires, reserve that tax unto themselves. There is nothing here which creates a "windfall", which was the argument directed against the O'Donnell amendment. It simply says that the exemptions which exist in a vacuum as far as the sponsors of this proposal are concerned do not and are no longer, from the effective date of this Constitution, in existence; the exemptions no longer exist.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. We do not know what is going to happen to Proposal No. 6. In case it is not adopted at all, then what happens?

DELEGATE ABERMAN. If Proposal No. 6 is never adopted and this language is adopted, the exemption ends as of the effective date of this article and the General Assembly may deal with the public utilities as it deems fit.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, as Judge Woodring indicated, this is simply another effort to do what we have been working on all morning. I do want to point out, however, this disregards all the history of the last 90 years. As a matter of recent history, I sat as a member of the Governor's Tax Committee recently and recommended to the Governor that the gross receipts tax be increased from the 14 mills that was then in existence to the two per cent which is now in existence. The reason for it was that we felt the utilities of the State ought to be bearing a fair share, their fair share, of the total cost of operating in the State, and it was for that reason that that amendment was subsequently approved, I am sure, by the General Assembly.

What we are doing is, after we have acted in accordance with the regulations that were then in effect; we are now saying that having done that, we are going to add this new tax on top of all the rest. I think it will be tremendously unfair to the people who are paying the utility bills of the State of Pennsylvania.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. Mr. President, in response may I say that the delegate's remarks, in all due deference, are what I classically call "the old red herring." There is nothing in the first sentence that says anything at all about the poor people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It simply says that we now say the exemption is over. If the General Assembly wants to rearrange the taxing structure of the public utilities in this Commonwealth, let them do it, but let us come to grips with the problem without the smoke-screen. We are not discussing a distribution scheme; we are not acting as a legislature; we are simply raising the question, is there an exemption or is there not? No one as yet has spoken to the question, shall there not be an exemption.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. President, I wish to interrogate the sponsor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, he will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE RUTH. So that you will understand the question more clearly, I wish to indicate that I am probably for the amendment; however—

DELEGATE ABERMAN. You do not have to apologize for interrogating me.

DELEGATE RUTH. However, I wonder whether or not, by use of the words as you have them in line two of your amendment, "the General Assembly may impose such taxes", that you thereby, by exclusion, imply that no other local government could impose taxes if the General Assembly does not take the prerogative.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. The state of the law, as I understand it, having checked it with the eminent authority on second class townships, is that the second class township could not in fact impose such a tax at the present time. Here by writing the words "the General Assembly may impose", it is our opinion that these words represent only the status quo and that we have done nothing except to say the exemption is ended, the General Assembly may act. They may provide amendments to the borough and the township codes in order to extract these taxes and, as far as we can see, we have done nothing more than end the exemption.

Thank you.

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. President, I would like to make a short statement, if I may, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed, proceed.

DELEGATE RUTH. Thank you. I would favor this amendment and I would like to point out that it is my understanding of the proposal as it is written that approximately using the present figures, there would be $17 million taken from the gross receipts fund or revenue and allocated or distributed among the local municipalities.

We do not know, nor is there any provision, how the state government is going to fill the gap of the $17 million that it automatically loses. I submit that to guess that the state government would increase the gross revenue or add additional taxes to the utilities is pure guess work. Probably there is a likelihood it would be passed on to our normal consumers in other types of sales taxes or cigarette taxes.

I feel that I must stand in support of this and be certain that we eliminate the so-called exemption the public utilities have lived under.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on this?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I would like to speak not as chairman of the committee, but on behalf of the amendment that I signed, supported by Delegate Aberman, because it seems to me that this finally gets at the thrust of what we are attempting to do here. It is not a tipper bill in any way. It eliminates the Supreme Court exemption and then places the responsibility of determining taxation of public utilities where it belongs, in the General Assembly. This is constitutional language; this is the language of the Constitution which permits the General Assembly to function in its role and determine what is best for the Commonwealth as it sees fit from time to time. It does not freeze in the Constitution any provision limiting the General Assembly in any way. All it does is get at an exemption that the Supreme Court imposed after the Constitutional Convention of 1873.

It seems to me that from here on, the General Assembly, as years go by, is in the best position, much better than we here in February of 1968, to analyze the needs of the Commonwealth as they arise. It seems that this is the type of language and this is the type of proposal and this is the type of thought that is best found in a Constitution, rather than legislative language which we have drifted into too often.

I, therefore, urge the passage of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, may I interrogate Delegate Aberman?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, you may proceed.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Aberman, am I given to understand that in your opinion there is a conflict as it were between the recommendations of the Local Government Committee and the recommendations of the Taxation and State Finance Committee on this subject?

DELEGATE ABERMAN. No, that is not correct in the sense when you say a "conflict." As General Strickler just pointed out to me, we do not have Proposal No. 6 in front of us and it has not been voted on. Whether in fact it would be a question at some later date, I do not think is relevant and germane to the question that we are now discussing.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be recognized?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would just like to make one comment. I think that Delegate Aberman has said we are getting to the core of the problem. I do not believe that at all. I think that what we are doing here is playing games. I do not know what is special or anything unusual about a real estate tax versus any other kind of a tax. It is just a question of what the base is. The base of a real estate tax has to be a valuation of hard real estate. The base of a gross receipts tax has to be more easily measured in terms of the total dollars collected.

I think that right now the General Assembly can enact all the taxes it wants against the public utilities. I do not know what we are doing here by saying they may impose such taxes. They have the right to impose such taxes, and what this is doing is going back and trying to put an extra tax on public utilities and trying to penalize them rather than to attack the problem as we felt we have attacked it, which is to allow the General Assembly to tax utilities as much as it wants, but let us give the local government some share of that so that they may help to take care of their own budgets.

I, therefore, recommend that we vote "no" against this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Aberman?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—51

Aberman	Hocker	Miller, D.	Ruth
Allison	Hook	Morton	Scale
Banes	Huggins	Murray	Shettig
Barron	Irvis	O'Donnell	Shrager
Barry	Jirolanio	Orbin	Silverman
Caputo	Keller, J.	Pasquerilla	Solomon
Casey	Kelly	Percey	Stout
Conley	Kline	Popil	Stroup
Fay	Manderino	Prendergast	Swope
Feather	Mangery	Quiles	Tate
Filson	Mattioni	Rappaport	Thornburgh
Fineman	McGlynn	Redick	Welsh
Gehrlein	Michael	Roberts

NAYS—86

Amsterdam	Cunningham	Himes	Reynolds
Aurentz	Curran	Johnson	Sahli
Baldrige	Dailey	Kauffman	Scarlett
Baldus	Desmond	Keller, M.	Scott
Baldwin	Devlin	King	Sebastian
Benedict	Dumbauld	Krill	Shapiro
Benfield	Erwin	Laputka	Sharp
Bloom	Fawcett	Leach	Shively
Braham	Fleming	Lee, L.	Shoemaker
Brennan	Fohl	Leinbach	Sprogell
Broderick	Forster	Leonard	Strickler
Brown	Fortney	Levin	Tully
Buck	Gabreski	McGeary	Van Sant
Bunting	Goldman	Meyer	Waldron
Burkholder	Goldstein	Moorhead	Warman
Butera	Gouger	More	Westerberg
Cain	Griffith	Nelson	Whitlum
Clark	Hannum	Orban	Wilcox
Corey	Harding	Otto	Wilmarth
Cortese	Hatter	Pott	Woodring
Cosetti	Henderson	Powell	Woodside
Croop	Heyburn

NOT VOTING—26

Bagenstose	Fagan	Markley	Rea
Bashoff	Gerber	Michener	Richter
Camardella	Gray	Miller, R.	Rovner
Caron	Horne	Musselman	Scranton
Clinger	Hostetler	Pechan	Thomson
Donaldson	Lane	Pelletier	Tomascik
Donolow	Lee, K.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PROPOSAL No. 5, PRINTER'S No. 14

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have now concluded the amendments that have been offered to Proposal No. 5, Printer's No. 14, and under the rules this proposal will lie over for printing and will appear on tomorrow's calendar, as amended, under second consideration.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 4 ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 12, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania specifying audit control of public moneys and establishing and regulating a balanced State budget for the next fiscal year and financial plans for the succeeding five years.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

LEONARD AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now we are going to take up Proposal No. 4. When we were amending this proposal yesterday, an amendment offered by Delegate Leonard was placed on the table. Does the gentleman wish to recall that amendment from the table?

AMENDMENT TAKEN FROM TABLE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I move that the amendment be taken from the table.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The amendment has now been recalled from the table. I assume everyone has a copy of it.

I might add that this amendment was reproduced, showing the language as it would appear in the proposal, and I think you have received copies of the committee proposal with this language written into it, as it would appear if the amendment were adopted.

Does everyone have a sufficient understanding of the amendment which is being offered? It is a long amendment and it was read yesterday, I understand, and I am, therefore, going to ask the clerk to desist from reading it because it would only belabor the performance.

You may proceed now, Delegate Leonard. I understand we have all the copies distributed.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Thank you, Mr. President. I believe fellow delegates, when this amendment was introduced yesterday, I stated—and I was joined by Delegates Woodring, Wilcox, Pott, and several others who are on our committee—what the purpose of this was, what it intended to do, but I will go over it briefly right now just so we can get back into this problem.

Number one, it intended to eliminate some of the technical problems that had arisen with respect to the original proposal.

Number two, it was intended to eliminate what some may have called legislation, in that we took those words out as to that which could be done by the legislature and just allowed them to work on their own, with the complete confidence that they will proceed with the implementation in due order.

Number three, it was intended to eliminate something that was giving us a little bit of trouble, and it had some undertones that we did not like which may have led us into an area in which we did not want to be.

The audit provision is now going to make all the government's fiscal affairs subject to audit. We added the word "fiscal" because legal counsel gave the opinion that we could not use such a broad term as "the affairs of the Commonwealth" in that all the affairs of the Commonwealth were not the subject of Article VIII, which we have under consideration in this Convention. We quickly agreed to put in the term "fiscal affairs." What the audit provision now does is make everything subject to audit and it does call for audits of a high quality.

The proposal, as it now stands, does require a balanced operating budget.

It requires a five-year financial plan to be submitted by the Governor, so that the General Assembly and the public may have an idea what the long-length planning is.

It makes a clarification that all expenditures from the proceeds of state debt be made only by way of appropriations.

Mr. President, that is all the comments that I have now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Thank you, Mr. President. I would like to ask Delegate Leonard a question if I may, if he will permit himself to be interrogated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman has indicated his willingness. You may proceed.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. On page 3 of the so-called clean copy, on lines 27, 28 and 29, the following language appears: "Legislation authorizing borrowing by any authority or agency shall be considered an appropriation." Do I take it that that is an attempt to classify borrowing as an appropriation for all purposes?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Delegate Fineman, this is an attempt to forbid the use of an authority to evade the intent of the Constituion under Article IV which sets forth that appropriations, or the spending of the Commonwealth's money, be subject to the item veto of the Governor.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. So that the purpose of this new language would be to give the Governor the right to item veto any item in a General State Authority appropriation bill?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, but I will add this: We thought we had it in the original proposal, but we understood that this loophole did exist and we are merely trying to fill a loophole that we did not originally think existed.

POINT OF ORDER

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, with the record on this point now being clear, namely, that this proposal would have as one of its principal purposes to give to the Governor the right to item veto individual items that might appear in a General State Authority appropriation bill, I now rise to a point of order.

My point of order is this: Under the law as it presently stands, Article IV, Section 16, the Governor has only the right to item veto in a general appropriation bill. He does not have the right under the law at the present time to item veto a General State Authority bill. Such a right would have to be embraced in Article IV, Section 16, with which this Convention is not empowered to deal.

I, therefore, say that the insertion of this language is beyond the scope of the authorization of this Convention and I would ask for a ruling on that point of order.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would like to make a comment on that. We certainly have looked at Article IV, Section 16, and it does not say anything about a general appropriation bill. I quote the Article: "Partial disapproval of appropriation bills. The Governor shall have power to disapprove of any item or items of any bill, making appropriations of money."

The only reason we allowed the General State Authority to be in existence was under the assumption that all appropriations would be taken from the capital budget. The General State Authority was never thought of in our committee as a device to evade this Section 16 of Article IV.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I would bring to the attention of the Chair that legislation which authorizes borrowing by agencies or institutions is not appropriation legislation presently. Therefore, it does not fit into the present proscription or present allowance in Article IV, Section 16, which would give the Governor the right to line veto any item in the General State Authority.

This is brand new authorization and, therefore, since it is properly embraced within Article IV, Section 16, it is not within the scope of the authorization of this Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will be at ease while the Chair consults with counsel on your request for a ruling. We will try to get one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, I have just received the formal printed ruling, Counsel Opinion No. 29, which deals with the question which Delegate Fineman had raised. Since we only received it at this time, I have not had an opportunity to study its implications.

I would like to respectfully request that in our consideration today we do not consider the amended language of "legislation authorizing borrowing by any authority or agency shall be considered an appropriation." We will be glad to treat that as a separate amendment tomorrow.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words, so that the delegates will understand, he is withdrawing that part of the amendment which is on page 2 of his amendment which commences about the third paragraph down. It says, "Amend Section 2, Section 27, page 3, line 27 by inserting after 'appropriations' the words 'legislation authorizing borrowing by any authority or agency shall be considered an appropriation.'"

That is being withdrawn at the present time from the amendment which is being offered now by Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, sir. I have no further comment on the amendment, unless someone else does.

FINEMAN AMENDMENT No. 1 TO LEONARD AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, at this time I want to offer the first of several amendments to the amendments that had been offered by the committee on this Proposal No. 4.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FINEMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend page 1 of the amendments by striking out lines 4 to 6 and inserting in lieu thereof: The financial affairs of any body funded or financially aided by the Commonwealth, and all departments, boards, commissions, agencies, instrumentalities, authorities and institutions of the Commonwealth, shall be subject to audit.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I have agreed, after a conversation with Delegate Leonard, to make a change in this amendment, striking out at the very end of this proposed amendment the language, "as prescribed by law."

Delegate Leonard has indicated to me that he has no objection to this amendment which I desire to offer to the committee's proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would like to interrogate Delegate Fineman with a couple of questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation, I am sure.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Delegate Fineman, is it your intention with this amendment to the amendment that the words say that all of these financial affairs may be audited?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Yes, that is my intention.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Is it also your intention that neither the legislature nor the executive can step in and at any time say that some of these affairs may not be audited?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. It is my intention by this language to create the authorization on the part of the Commonwealth to examine and audit any department, board, agency, commission or body that receives the benefit of state moneys.

The purpose of this amendment is twofold: Number one, I think the language is much more comprehensive than the language you had employed and, I would respectfully submit, it is susceptible to more clarity. Secondly, we eliminate the mandatory provisions of the audit being conducted and substitute in lieu thereof the authorization for the audits rather than to make it mandatory that every institution, every school district, every hospital, every university, every college, every orphans' home and all the myriad of institutions which receive state money be required to be audited.

DELEGATE LEONARD. In other words, you are not saying that the legislature may step in and say that something should not be audited?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, I am not saying that. The legislature is free to pass such legislation as in its wisdom it decides to pass.

DELEGATE LEONARD. To implement rather than to restrict it?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. To implement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Were you finished?

DELEGATE LEONARD. May I ask just one other question? Would it be your intention with these words that funds such as the legislative contingency fund be subject to audit?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I said any state body could be subjected to audit and any institution, any office, any commission, any agency, any instrumentality of the Commonwealth which receives state funds could be audited.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Would it be possible under any circumstances for the legislature to prevent the Auditor General, if he be the auditing agency, from auditing the contingency funds of the legislature?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. An off-the-cuff opinion only and I am not quite sure that I am totally correct—I would not suspect that there could be a proscription against it.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I think with that, there is only one other comment I have, Mr. President. I do not have a copy of the amendment in front of me. It says "Amend page 1 of the amendments by striking out lines 4 to 6." I want to be sure that we are only striking out said words.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand it is lines 4 to 6 of your amendment. We shall check that.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I am satisfied and would be in favor of this amendment to the amendment, Mr. President.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY JUDGE WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that we have in the back of the room today Judge William Cercone and his wife Millie, from Allegheny County. I ask that they stand so that we can recognize them and give them our cordial greetings.

We are very happy to have you with us.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pelletier.

DELEGATE PELLETIER. May I ask both Delegate Leonard and Delegate Fineman a question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think they will both stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE PELLETIER. Does this language preclude an audit which would not be done by an audit of a state agency, that is, for example, presently if an institution receives Federal funds it may arrange with the Federal Government to have its own audit done and the Federal Government accepts it? For example, if the State was making a grant to a hospital and the hospital had its own audit, would this language then preclude the State from accepting the hospital's audit as satisfying this matter of the Constitution?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. It is my interpretation that the State, no matter what the contingency, can make an audit of any institution which receives state funds. Whether it will choose in its wisdom to do it because it is subjected to audit by a municipality or the Federal Government is something to be left to the discretion of the legislature.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would agree that this language is not intended for the State necessarily because in some instances the city may have its own auditors, or hospitals certainly have their auditors, but it would be my thought that in this situation such audit reports would be delivered to the legislature and to the executive branches of the government for their review. In other words, they can rely on some other auditors.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I would like to direct interrogations to both Delegate Fineman and Delegate Leonard. Delegate Fineman partially answered the question that I was to propound, in his answer to Delegate Pelletier—whether the State can or may audit, under these provisions that are proposed to be written into this Constitution, private agencies receiving appropriations from the state government?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I would think the answer would be yes.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Under what provision?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. "The financial affairs of any body funded or financially aided by the Commonwealth" would cover that.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I am satisfied with that. You, of course, know that under the Fiscal Code today the Auditor General has not only the right but a duty to audit all of those agencies, private agencies, receiving financial support from the state government and make periodic reports. It does not say annually or any other particular time, but it does lay upon him the duty to make these audits.

Now I also want to ask both of the delegates on their feet why the Auditor General seems to have disappeared completely from this Committee Proposal No. 4.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That particular inquiry is not encompassed within the amendment that we have before us at the moment. That has to do with Sections (b) and (c) which are the subject of other amendments.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Then it is not the intention to cut out the Auditor General, I would say?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. It certainly is not my intention to do that, no.

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is clear.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I would further ask whether this language of the Leonard amendment, or the committee amendment, which cites "by accepted auditing standards" has any specific meaning? In fact, I would like to know what the meaning is, Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes. Generally "accepted au-iting standards" represents the quality standard by which udits are to be made. These standards are well recogized, well documented and well accepted, and these tandards may change as the times go on and the purpose f that being in here is to say that the audits that should e made should be made in accordance with the quality of uditing that is recognized as being worthwhile and meaningful.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Generally accepted auditing tandards described by whom and accepted by whom?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Generally accepted auditing tandards as accepted by the entire financial community nd as prescribed by the American Institute of Certified ublic Accountants.

DELEGATE SWOPE. That is all. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I wish to remind the body that we are now considering only the first amendment, which was offered by Delegate Fineman to Delegate Leonard's amendment, so I would appreciate it if you would confine your remarks to that first amendment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. I would like to interrogate Delegate Fineman.

In response to an interrogation by Delegate Leonard, you said that in your off-the-cuff opinion the General Assembly could not, based on your amendment, prohibit anything from being audited. I wonder if the same would apply to the executive branch, and I am referring specifically to the Attorney General. May he, under your amendment, rule that something is not subject to audit?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Now I am unable to state unequivocally what the Attorney General is capable of doing or not doing.

I have seen some rather odd legal opinions emanate from that distinguished office, much to my chagrin and surprise, so I do not think I could be a source of accurate information in reply to your inquiry.

DELEGATE FOHL. May I ask whether your intent, however, would be to prohibit such an opinion.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Our intent would be to have everything subject to audit without proscription against it by anyone.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. Delegate Fineman, directing your attention to the last five words of your amendment, "shall be subject to audit." Are those words intended to be the same as the words "shall be audited"?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, as a matter of fact, there is a very vast difference.

DELEGATE REA. I know.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. And this was the reason. Because there is such a difference, this is what is giving rise to this particular amendment.

The words "shall be audited" connotes a mandatory direction to the government, in fact, to make the audit. I say this is an insurmountable task for the Commonwealth to comply with, because there are thousands and thousands of institutions and bodies which receive money from the Commonwealth.

On the other hand, I think the authorization to make the audit should be in the law so that in the event they decide to audit a body, there should be no question about their having the right to do that.

DELEGATE REA. Then do I understand that the legislature will be the one which will pick and choose what subject matters will be audited at any one time?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Well, the Auditor General right now is vested with the right, and, as Delegate Swope said, the authority and the obligation to audit all institutions which receive money.

On occasion, we have been confronted with the question as to whether or not we, in fact, have that right, and the problem has remained unresolved. This will, in my opinion, cause to disappear any fuzzy thinking on the question as to whether or not we, in fact, have that right.

DELEGATE REA. Who ultimately has the right to say what will and what will not be audited in any year or any two years? Who is the ultimate decider?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. The legislature could do that by legislative enactment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Mr. Fineman, is it correct to say that the principal difference between Mr. Leonard's language and your language is the last phrase making it an optional audit but not demanding it regularly?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That is correct, sir.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Then is it to be more exclusive or inclusive than the language he had with respect to the body subject to this audit?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I think the language in our amendment is more inclusive.

DELEGATE FORSTER. More inclusive?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Yes, taken from the Administrative Code.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Will you define the differences between "fiscal" and "financial"?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. The original language dealing with the words "financial affairs of the Commonwealth" raises this shortcoming. No, no, I am sorry.

The original language "the affairs of the Commonwealth" raised the shortcoming that it might imply a review of an office or an agency or department which, in fact, did not entail the expenditure or receipt of moneys.

I think there is little difference in the words "financial affairs" or "fiscal affairs." I think they are interchangeable.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, I would like to make one comment that Delegate Fineman made before where I clearly disagree.

When this says that it shall be audited, this proposal, or even subject to audit, someone said "shall" did not mean it necessarily had to be audited by the Commonwealth. There are many, many agencies which have their own auditors now, and it would not mean that the Commonwealth would have to do it again. So this insurmountable task that he talked about is not one that is a real task.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That response does not cause me to deviate from my original position. When I say

"by the Commonwealth," I mean either through Commonwealth employes or those engaged by the Commonwealth.

DELEGATE LEONARD. No, I would not even agree with that. It would seem to me that it would mean that the Commonwealth could accept audits by anyone whom they felt they could accept. It does not mean they would have to be engaged by the Commonwealth. Just the fact that they shall be audited does not mean that the cost of that audit shall be borne by the Commonwealth. That was never the intention, because as I said before, most universities and hospitals and agencies are audited now, but all of them are not. Any tax dollars which are spent —I think the way taxes are, how high they are, and they are going to go higher, none of us have that much control over it—the taxpayer at least has a right to know that if the State is putting money someplace, that money is being spent the way the legislature intended it to be spent. But they can certainly rely on any auditors they want. They can rely on the auditors of the city of Pittsburgh or the auditors of the city of Philadelphia, the auditors of any institution. If they have internal auditors, they may rely on them if they care to. But that would be the decision of the legislature as to whose audits they would rely on. It would not be a cost of government to have this audit.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. I would like to interrogate Delegate Fineman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Proceed.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. I want to get back to a question that was asked by Delegate Rea and clear up whether, in order to have it audited under your amendment, the General Assembly would have to authorize such audit.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I would think not. I think the General Assembly could authorize the manner of the audit, the regularity of the audit, the subject matter of the audit, but in the absence of such legislation, I do not think that there would be any denial on the part of the Auditor General's office to conduct an audit.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Would the General Assembly be able to say that the Auditor General or some other auditing body should not audit a particular organization or affair that is funded by the Commonwealth?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I think that question was already put and my answer was "no." That was the off-the-cuff reply that I was venturing in response to Mr. Leonard.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question? I see Delegate Otto.

DELEGATE OTTO. Mr. President, I would like to direct a question to Delegate Fineman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE OTTO. At present are the legislative contingency funds being audited?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. They are not being audited pursuant to an opinion from the Attorney General's office.

DELEGATE OTTO. Would they be audited under your proposal and how and when?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. The how and when I cannot answer. They would be subject to audit and I have already responded to that question.

DELEGATE OTTO. Would you say that legislation introduced in the General Assembly would have your sponsorship for them to do that?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Well, Mr. Otto, I do not believe such an inquiry is pertinent to this interrogation at this time and I will not answer that.

DELEGATE OTTO. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fineman?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—103

Aberman	Donaldson	Keller, J.	Reynolds
Allison	Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Sahli
Aurentz	Erwin	Kelly	Scranton
Baldrige	Fawcett	Kline	Sebastian
Baldus	Fay	Laputka	Shapiro
Baldwin	Feather	Leach	Sharp
Banes	Filson	Leinbach	Shettig
Barron	Fineman	Leonard	Shively
Barry	Fleming	Levin	Shrager
Bashoff	Gabreski	Manderino	Silverman
Benedict	Gehrlein	Markley	Solomon
Benfield	Gerber	Mattioni	Sprogell
Braham	Goldman	McGeary	Stout
Brennan	Goldstein	McGlynn	Stroup
Butera	Gouger	Meyer	Swope
Cain	Hannum	Miller, D.	Tate
Camardella	Harding	More	Tomascik
Caputo	Henderson	O'Donnell	Tully
Cortese	Heyburn	Orbin	Van Sant
Cosetti	Himes	Otto	Waldron
Croop	Hocker	Percey	Welsh
Cunningham	Huggins	Popil	Westerberg
Curran	Irvis	Pott	Wilcox
Dailey	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Woodring
Desmond	Johnson	Quiles	Woodside
Devlin	Kauffman	Rappaport

NAYS—33

Bloom	Fortney	Morton	Scarlett
Broderick	Griffith	Murray	Scott
Brown	Hatter	Nelson	Shoemaker
Bunting	Krill	Orban	Strickler
Clark	Michael	Pelletier	Thomson
Clinger	Michener	Powell	Thornburgh
Corey	Miller, R.	Rea	Whittum
Fohl	Moorhead	Roberts	Wilmarth
Forster

NOT VOTING—27

Amsterdam	Donolow	Lane	Redick
Bagenstose	Fagan	Lee, K.	Richter
Buck	Gray	Lee, L.	Rovner
Burkholder	Hook	Mangery	Ruth
Caron	Horne	Musselman	Scales
Casey	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Warman
Conley	King	Pechan

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

FINEMAN AMENDMENT No. 2 TO LEONARD AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FINEMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend page 2 of the amendments by striking out lines 11 to 14 thereof

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman to make a statement in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Thank you, Mr. President. This amendment would strike out the following language that presently appears in the committee proposal, namely, "All estimates of anticipated receipts from any source whatsoever shall be as finally certified by the Governor." First let me say that there is nothing in the law presently which deals with the question of certification of receipts by the Governor. There is no provision in the Constitution; there is no provision in the statutory law. The budget provisions of the Administrative Code do provide that the Revenue Secretary shall estimate receipts and he shall present that estimate through the Budget Secretary to the Governor. The Governor then in turn is to incorporate the estimate into his budget presented to the General Assembly. But there is no present provision for the certification of receipts, and so what you have before you is brand new law.

I want to earnestly beseech this Constitutional Convention not to allow this kind of language in the Constitution. I do so for a number of reasons, and I speak not as a theorist but as one who has lived through the difficulties that can be encountered by the insertion and the inclusion of language such as this, either in the Constitution or in statutory language.

This kind of language would provide and enable and allow a chief executive to engage in fiscal manipulation, and again I want to say that my approach to this is not a partisan approach because both Democratic and Republican Governors have been guilty of the same tactics and it is time we called a halt to this kind of practice. It is time that there is more truth in fiscal matters so that the people of this State know precisely and accurately what is going on in these legislative halls.

If a Governor wants to impose a tax program on the people of this State when there is no fiscal justification for that tax program, he has a number of things he can do by creating a hazy cloud of smoke to confuse the public by way of justifying his tax proposals. He can underestimate at the beginning of a fiscal year the amount of revenues he is going to receive from existing taxes. He can overstate the amount of money that particular programs cost and he can do a number of other things which I will not describe at this time because they are not germane to this argument.

Let us confine our comments at this moment to the first of these proposals that he can do, namely, underestimate the amount of revenues that will come in from existing taxes. As long as the legislature has the right to make inquiry into the validity of the Governor's proposals as to tax estimates, so long as the legislature has the right to refute what the Governor is saying this tax will receive in tax estimates, just so long will the legislature have the ability to protect the people of this State from the imposition of unwarranted taxes. The minute you take this tool away from the legislature—and that is what this language would do—the people no longer will have Representatives in this General Assembly to speak out in their behalf to prevent the imposition of unwarranted taxes.

The moment the Governor certifies tax receipts, according to this proposal, that is the last word on the subject matter. If the Governor says, we are going to have $1.5 billion in receipts from taxes but we know for a fact that he is going to have $1.7 billion or $200 million more, there is nothing we can do about it. He will then propose a tax program to make up that deficiency of $200 million and there is nothing we can do about it. We must then swallow what the Governor has given us by way of tax estimates, and this, ladies and gentlemen, is not the proper function of a legislative body. A legislature is not here to merely rubber-stamp those proposals that are given to us by a chief executive. A legislature is here to review with the Governor, not for the Governor, but with the Governor, his proposals as to tax receipts and expenditures so that we can make with him a determination as to the need of additional taxes, all of which will be to the benefit of the people of this State. I say to you that there has been so much conversation I have heard since the advent of this Convention about enhancing the stature of the legislature and making it a more responsible body, that these kinds of reforms that will bring a new stature to the legislative body have to come not only from within the body itself but they have to come in connection with its relationship with the executive, because as long as the laws are in such a state as to leave the legislative body to be nothing other than a rubber stamp for the chief executive, then so long will we be a body unequipped to do the job we were sent here to do by the people of this State.

I say to you that if you make the Governor the person who is going to certify, and there is no time limit on this, I bring to your attention that for a fiscal year beginning June 1, he can submit to us a budget on May 1 and on June 1 certify as to revenues without the benefit of the experience for one, two, three, four or half a dozen months of the new fiscal year for us to be guided by, and once he submits that certification we are bound. If there is no question about the disbursement of moneys, if moneys have been mandated to be spent and the amounts of revenue to be taken in are fixed by the certification, then we as a legislative body have no alternative but to pass tax proposals, and I say that is not the way to make the legislative body an equal, coordinate branch of government.

Moreover, I would say this: If it could be said that this is a wise thing to let the certification to be by the Governor—and I would vehemently deny that it is wise—but if it could be so said, then I say to you this kind of language does not belong in a Constitution; it belongs in a piece of legislation. How many times have we heard people say the Constitution has to be a flexible, moving, viable document? Can anyone here in good earnestness and in good conscience say that this kind of language makes a Constitution a viable document? It may be determined one or two or three years from now that to have the certification by the Governor is improper, that there should be an economic advisory council to do this. Perhaps the State Treasurer should do it; perhaps the Auditor General should do it, but not the Governor. We may so decide and the people of the State may so decide, but if you pass this language that decision can not be implemented and then we are locked in, locked in by the Governor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Fineman, I just want to remind you that you have two minutes to go.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That is two minutes to spare because I am through, Mr. President.

I just fervently hope that the delegates to this Convention, in their desire to want to improve and reform and modernize the operation of state government, do not put a set of handcuffs on the legislature. Do not vest in the chief executive all of this power at the sacrifice of corresponding right that the legislature should and probably ought to have. I would respectfully urge the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, we are lost back here. We do not have a copy of the proposal from which Delegate Fineman is speaking.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. First of all, may I ask you if you have a copy of the Leonard amendment?

DELEGATE HOOK. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Then you should have a copy of Delegate Fineman's second amendment.

Were they distributed? Do we have any more to be distributed?

I just want to point out, because perhaps there has been some confusion, that Delegate Fineman's amendment is an amendment to the Leonard amendment that was offered, and if you will look at the piece of paper which says on it "Delegate Fineman, Amendment to the amendments to Committee Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 12," it says "Amend page 2 of the amendments by striking out lines 11 to 14 thereof," and 11 to 14 are the last four lines on the Leonard amendment on page 2.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. The net effect of the amendment that Delegate Fineman is proposing to the amendment can best be shown on page 4 of this new, revised committee proposal which eliminates Section (c), lines 6 and 7. If you have a copy of Proposal 4, go to page 4, lines 6 and 7; that is being proposed to be eliminated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I ask, does everyone now have a copy?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, may I ask what document is being referred to when reference is made to the Leonard amendments?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are referring to the amendment which was offered today.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. What is the form of the document? What is the top of it? Is it "RS:AO 2/12/68 Leonard—Delegate"?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is right. "Amendments to Committee Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 12."

DELEGATE MANDERINO. All right. Then the Fineman amendment to that amendment refers to page 2, lines 11 to 14. Are those lines 11 to 14 in the document we just referred to?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It refers to lines 11 to 14 in this Leonard document which is Leonard's amendment, and they are the last four lines on page 2.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. It may be of some help, Mr. President, to turn to page 4 of Committee Proposal No. 4 and look at the last four lines of that proposal. I believe they are the same as the Leonard amendment.

DELEGATE LEONARD. No; only lines 6 and 7.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that this is the same amendment that was handed out yesterday, the Leonard amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I think the confusion is this: Yesterday we took some time and effort to have what we have been calling a clean copy printed and I think most of us have been looking at the clean copy, but nothing refers to that. Might I suggest that even though a reference for technical purposes be made, as it has to be, that someone add on what happens to the clean copy for to what extent it is being dirtied? I think it will be very simple to follow then, even though it is not official.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I will have Delegate Leonard explain what is happening, or Delegate Fineman, either one.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I will again repeat that if we can all take a look at the proposal which was delivered yesterday at 3 or 4 o'clock, a reprint of Proposal No. 4, the Fineman amendment goes to page 4, and its purpose is to eliminate lines 6 and 7, which say that "All estimates of anticipated receipts from any source whatsoever shall be as finally certified by the Governor." Now that is being proposed to be eliminated, and that is what we are now talking about.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now that we are all thinking about the same thing, does anyone wish to be recognized? Delegate O'Donnell?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes, sir. Last week I interrogated the committee on this subject and the question I asked the committee was this: Does this language not transfer to the executive a substantial power which has heretofore been considered as legislative? The answer they gave me was "no."

Since then I went to the case of Commonwealth ex rel. Schnader v. Liveright, reported at 161 Atlantic at page 697, in which the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania had an opportunity—it is the only case I know in which the entire legislative fiscal process is laid down—and that case said that the determination of appropriation and the estimating of a budget is clearly a legislative function, that of necessity the legislature must work with both sides of the coin, that it must determine what appropriations to make, what revenue measures to levy, and when they make that determination they must judge for themselves what the anticipated tax increase is. As a matter of convenience, the legislature today ordinarily uses, I am informed, the services of the Secretary of Revenue, but that is merely a matter of convenience.

Constitutionally to prohibit the legislature from adopting its own budget estimates would be to deprive it of very substantial legislative powers and would transfer those powers to the executive. I must say on that basis that I must speak in support of this amendment.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilcox.

DELEGATE WILCOX. Without going over all the information that was brought out in the interrogation last week, on behalf of the committee, I urge that this amendment be defeated. As was explained then, I think the purpose here is to put an end to manipulation of estimates and figures and to require that those which come from the staff of the Governor's office be the final certification. Of course, the legislature is not bound to appropriate or use taxes of any type other than what it wishes. This merely says that when they do make an appropriation or estimate of a certain tax as to what it will bring, they must use the figures of this trained staff, which is a large staff made available by the State.

This would avoid duplication and would avoid setting up two empires where one set of experts attempts to contradict the other. As I also pointed out, this past year I think the revenues came within six-tenths of one per cent of the actual receipts, to show the accuracy of the public service in this matter.

So we urge the defeat of this amendment, and I want to repeat that the committee, I think with a single dissenting vote, approved this language.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. What I just heard was, in effect, a direction to this body here: Let us further subjugate the legislature to the executive. Let us make the executive the all-powerful figure on the Hill. Let us leave the legislature in the position where it will have to rubber-stamp what the Governor's so-called expert staff produces for us.

Let us look at how expert this staff has been over the years. In 1963 and 1964 when the Governor presented a budget, the estimated receipts were $983 million; actual receipts turned out to be $1.123 billion; or an error of only $140 million. In 1964 and 1965, they made an error of $97 million. In 1965 and 1966, they made an error of $148 million. In 1966 and 1967, only this past fiscal year, they made an error of almost $53 million, or almost four per cent of the total budget.

Is this the kind of staff on which we have to rely? Must we close our eyes and say, "Yes, you have all the expertise in the world and we have none; you give us your figures and we shall accept them"?

I would like this Convention to know something: This past year, as the minority leader, I engaged two men on my staff, whose salaries happened to be considerably higher than mine as a legislator, but who were solely and totally responsible for having saved this Commonwealth $70 million in new taxes. Yes, that is the amount that the Governor cut his budget request by, his request for new taxes, $70 million, and that is because two men on my staff, whose combined salaries did not exceed $25 thousand, worked assiduously at this problem. Just imagine what could happen if this legislature or legislative body were properly equipped and had a staff which could do the job so that we would not have to accept willy-nilly what the front office tells us to do.

I say to you that if you are interested in making the legislature a responsible legislative body of which you can be proud, then you will not buy the kind of language which is in this committee proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I would like to interrogate the committee chairman, if I may.

I understood from earlier discussion that the intent of this proposal, the total effect, was actually to mandate a balanced budget for the Commonwealth. Is that correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is one of the intents, yes.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. The proposal states that the Governor shall submit a balanced budget, is that correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I do not see anywhere in here as to who adopts a balanced budget. Was that intended to be covered by the General Assembly appropriating?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, that is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. In other words, the Governor submits the balanced budget and that is intended to mandate a balanced budget. The General Assembly does not really approve the budget; it merely approves appropriations and, pursuant to said appropriations, expenditures are made under the budget. Is that correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. If the Governor were to submit a budget and he estimates $10 million of revenue and $10 million of receipts, and then he informs the General Assembly, under Section 26, that current taxation would only bring in $8 million in receipts, he has submitted a budget which says it will be balanced because I estimate $10 million of expenditures, I estimate $10 million of receipts, $8 million will be brought in by current taxation. To balance this budget, we need $2 million of additional taxes. Am I interpreting it correctly so far? If the submitted budget by the Governor states estimated expenditures of $10 million, estimated receipts of $8 million from existing taxation and $2 million from new taxation, that is the balanced budget?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. All right, now, there is still legislative action needed to provide that $2 million for the balanced budget. Is that correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. If this section which states that the estimates of the receipts on the $10 million side that the Governor submits saying, "There will be $10 million of receipts" is final and that is necessary to balance the budget, then is not the legal effect that the Governor can mandate to the General Assembly, you must pass $2 million of additional taxes?

DELEGATE LEONARD. No.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. What if the General Assembly then were to receive the budget and state, we do not wish to pass $2 million worth of additional taxes?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Then they have to reduce the proposed expenditures by $2 million.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. In the submitted budget by the Governor, they would then reduce the payment on the expenditure side by $2 million, to $8 million.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Based on this, they would not be able to make an appropriation if there were not sufficient money to cover that appropriation. Therefore, if the estimate was only $8 million, they would not be able to make an appropriation for greater than $8 million.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. All right, may I ask one last question? I gathered from the discussion that the intent is in effect, to stop the estimating game by different sources and the Commonwealth not knowing exactly where it stands. Is that generally correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is one of the bases, yes.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I ask this: Would the intent and the committee's purpose and objectives to be accomplished be thwarted in any way if—I am asking this for information—that Section (c) were to say, all estimates of anticipated receipts from any source whatsoever shall be as finally certified by the General Assembly? Does that affect the objective to be attained?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would say clearly, yes.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I ask why? I am not sure I am following you.

DELEGATE LEONARD. You asked a question before as to whether the purpose of this was to have firm figures and I said that that was one of the objectives.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Right.

DELEGATE LEONARD. And the other objective is the one that you just brought up and that is that this is a question of whose budget we have and who has the responsibility for the execution of the operation of government. This is really, I think, the point to which we are addressing ourselves today on this matter, whether or not the executive or the legislature has the responsibility for the carrying out of the programs of government.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Let me close with this then. May I ask this without using the technical terms? Somebody has to decide for the year 1975 whether, for the general welfare and the common good of all the citizens of Pennsylvania in the year 1975, there should be $2 billion spent for the general welfare or $1 billion spent for the general welfare. Is it the intent that that decision for 1975 or any other year as to who has the legislative prerogative, using legislative in quotations, who has the legislative prerogative to decide that the Commonwealth needs $2 billion rather than $1 billion expended for all general welfare in 1975. Is it the intent that that remain in the hands of the General Assembly or in the hands of the Governor?

DELEGATE LEONARD. There is no question about it that the General Assembly has the right to reduce or increase the amount of money for any program.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I think the committee has obviously missed the one fundamental point involved here, and that is, who has the duty and the responsibility to raise taxes.

I would not quarrel with some of the things they have said, but I want to appeal to the delegates to keep that in mind when they consider the amendment proposed by Delegate Fineman.

He is saying, in effect, that if the General Assembly has the duty and the responsibility of imposing taxes, then it must also have the responsibility to determine revenue estimates. He may be a bit closer to it than many of us and feel more strongly about it, because he was through it last year. I do not think this is a quarrel on a partisan basis.

But you must understand, if you are to ask your Representatives and Senators who come here to vote the necessary money to fund the Commonwealth's program, you simply cannot strap them into a locked figure estimated by the Governor.

I am also a little bit disturbed by the gentleman's suggestion that the General Assembly would manipulate estimates and the Governor's office would not. They are not sacred over there. There are as many politicians in the Governor's office as there are in the General Assembly. If there were not, they would not be there.

They are subject to the same kinds of pressure that the members of the General Assembly are. I say between the two, I would not give the edge to either one, but I will give the edge to that body which is responsible for raising taxes. That is the whole basis, I think, for this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I want to make reply to one observation that was made by Delegate Manderino when he posed the question that was answered by Chairman Leonard, an answer that I do not agree with.

You proposed this proposition: If there is $10 million in known expenditures and $8 million in receipts, according to the Governor's certification, does the legislature have to pass $2 million in taxes?

Chairman Leonard said, no, the legislature will reduce the appropriations. That is just not the way it goes. It does not work out that way.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I ask another question, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Certainly.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Delegate Leonard, not being in the field, I gathered that the whole intent here was to kind of have government run the way a well-run corporation in private business operates today in this field which follows generally accepted accounting and auditing principles. Is that correct?

Well, let me put it this way. I am not leading into something that is too broad. If the president of General Motors, who is the executive, goes to his board of directors and says, here is the proposed budget for the coming year; we are going to have $10 million worth of receipts and $10 million worth of expenditures, the board of directors sits down after the president gives them that document and says, you have estimated here receipts of $10 million, Mr. President of General Motors. We have reviewed your figures, and you show here that we are going to sell a million cars next year. Our judgment is you are wrong; the board thinks we are only going to sell 800,000. Therefore, we have to cut your receipts down from $10 million to $8 million.

In a private company, does not that prerogative remain with the board of directors to make that decision in arriving at their expenditures for the coming year? The board of directors of General Motors, in effect, would say to the president, we disagree; you may be right; we may be wrong; but we are going to change these figures. We only expect to sell 800,000 cars next year, so we are cutting the receipts to $8 million. Therefore, we are going to cut expenditures down and lay off 16 vice presidents. Does not that decision remain with the board of directors in private industry rather than with the chief executive of the company?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Not necessarily. As a matter of fact, somebody—and this is the whole point of this section in that proposal—has to drive a peg in the ground and say, this is the point from which we are working. We cannot have this thing floating all over.

In your example of a private corporation, the board of directors is not going to vote on what they expect the estimated income is going to be. They can give their opinion as to the economic conditions and so forth, but finally that decision is going to rest with the chairman of the board, the president or some one person. There has to be one person in the end who says, okay, this is the figure.

Our proposal says that it shall be finally certified by the Governor. It is not intended that the Governor should be able to come in and all of a sudden say, all right, this is the estimate, and it is foreclosed. It is not intended to mean that, but it does mean that the Governor has the last word on what the revenue estimates will be because he is one person, although he may have a substantial staff; but the legislature is 203 plus 50 and you cannot get a consensus on a number. That is not the way to do it. A number is a fact, and the only way to get to a fact is for one person to make a decision and say, this is it. You cannot take an average of what you think the tax yields will be and take a vote on it.

This is intended that the Governor be the one who finally says, this is the revenue upon which we are going to pass our appropriation bills this year.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I ask this and see if this is correct: The thing which concerns me is whether or not we are taking legislative power, which in the Constitution belongs to the General Assembly as distinguished from the executive power of the Governor, and transferring it in this respect. To come back to the example in private industry, if the president of this corporation, General Motors—and I used that as the original example—were to go into his board and say, I want to hire 20 new vice presidents at $100,000 a year during the coming year; I, therefore, need $2 million, but do not worry about it because my estimates indicate that the car sales will be such that we shall have $2 million more of profit to hire these vice presidents, cannot the board of directors in that situation say, Mr. President, we like your idea of hiring 20 new vice presidents; we disagree with your estimates though that we shall make $2 million more profit; therefore, do not hire the vice presidents because we disagree with your estimate.

Is not the board of directors supreme in all American industry in that example? There is a legislative decision there. He has given them his estimate and said, we shall have $2 million more profit next year; therefore, I shall spend the money for 20 new vice presidents.

In all American industry, does not every board of directors have the right to say to their chief executive, Mr. Chief Executive, we disagree; we will not have the profit next year; therefore, we will not hire the new vice presidents. Is not that universally true?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Well, they will clearly be able to say, we will not go ahead and recommend the hiring of vice presidents. And using the analogy of the General Assembly, they have the right to say, we will not go along with this new program. But the president or the chairman of the board is still the one who has said, this is the estimate, and the board may say, well we are not going to have as much profit as you think we are, and we had better be a little bit on the safe side.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Let me reverse the example. The first one was hiring 20 new ones. What if the president walked in and said, I want to fire 20 vice presidents to save $2 million and I must fire them because the profits next year will be $2 million less, and the board of directors says, Mr. President, we disagree with you; the profits next year will not be $2 million less; you shall not fire 20 vice presidents.

Is that not the universal prerogative of every board of directors in a private company in America today, to say to the president, do not fire 20 vice presidents, because our collective judgment disagrees with yours. We will not lose $2 million worth of profits next year.

I might just say this: I agree totally with the committee's objective to put the Commonwealth on sound accounting, budgeting and auditing principles that have been worked out in a much more refined manner, I think, in private industry than they have been in government. But I wonder if here we are actually not doing what appears to me to be actual, that every board of directors has the final say, whether the president wants to hire 20 vice presidents or fire 20 vice presidents on the basis of his estimates of profit and loss, that the board of directors has the right to overrule his decision if they disagree with his estimate of profit and loss for the coming year.

DELEGATE LEONARD. First of all, I am going along with you on the analogy of government versus private industry, which, of course, has many differences. But I do not think that you have said anything, Delegate Manderino, to change my thinking on this, because the legislature still has, and hopefully they always will have, the right to change, increase or decrease, the proposed expenditures of the Governor. But some place there has to be a peg in the ground and somebody has to say, okay, this is it, and then you have to work around that.

If you let the revenue estimate slide around, we just do not know where it would go, so somebody has to have that responsibility, and we feel that it should belong to the executive and that there are sufficient controls that nothing is going to be hurt.

Now let me go along and say what I think those controls are. Number one, if there is any overestimate by the Governor, he is going to bring about a deficit, and that is going to be hit by the end of the next fiscal year and that is going to be disclosed. In other words, you cannot get away with this thing more than once. If he has underestimated, this is going to show up as a substantial surplus at the end of the first year, and our proposal goes on to say, in Section 28, that all of these surplus funds must go over into the following year for appropriation.

So the Governor can really only make this mistake once, and I do not think he is going to be trying to make it. I do not think there is any question about it, that the Governor is the one who has the responsibility to carry out a program and a sound fiscal program for his administration, and to ask to have him rely on somebody else's estimates and, if those estimates are wrong, he is not then able to carry out that which he had hoped to do in his administration.

So if the Governor has the responsibility to carry out the program, the least he can have with that is the right to make the estimate finally.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Thank you.

Mr. Leonard says, what do we have to worry about? If he underestimates, there will be a surplus that will be available next year. But what has happened in the interim? The Governor has imposed taxes. The people are paying unnecessary taxes. It is no comfort to the people who are paying these taxes to know that they are going to have a surplus.

I say to you that the inclusion of this kind of language absolutely thwarts the will of the people. If the people vote for representatives to come to this hall to vote on fiscal matters for them, and these men who are sent here with that responsibility absolutely are deprived of the right to vote intelligently by language such as this, then the will of the people has been thwarted.

To get back to the point that was made before by Mr. Manderino as to where the Governor estimates you are going to have revenues of $8 million and you have known expenditures of $10 million whether or not this will in effect constitute a mandate to raise taxes by $2 million, I tell you that is absolutely a fact. That is a mandate, and I know this from hard experience, because what happens is that you go in to the Governor—he might have already had the majority party pass a general appropriations bill and you go to the Governor—and you say this: Governor, I do not disagree with your programs; many of these programs are in fact our programs; we want every one of these programs, but you are asking more money to fund these programs than is needed. What do you do when he says, no, I will not cut back; I will not reduce, and he gets a majority party to pass that. Now you are confronted with this kind of situation: Let us assume that you have $8 million in administration expenses to run the orderly operation of the government and you have $2 million in preferred appropriations, preferred appropriations being those that go to the hospitals, universities and colleges. Now he passes the $8 million and he says to you, well, you cannot pass the other $2 million for the hospitals and universities because you do not have the money. We say to him, Governor, you do have the money; your revenues are not going to be $8 million; they are going to be $10 million; and he says, no, they are only going to be $8 million. Now we have this alternative to face as legislators: Do we knuckle down to the Governor and give him $2 million more in taxes so that these schools, these hospitals, these universities and orphans' homes can get their money or do we continue to fight the imposition of an unwarranted tax and have these schools, hospitals and universities suffer and be held captive as hostages until we get a tax program through? When that happens what takes place? The Governor will get in touch with the presidents of the universities; he will get in touch with the hospitals and the colleges and schools and he will say, reach your legislator and tell him that he is an obstructionist and he is preventing you from getting the money that you are entitled to for the orderly operation of your administration. The heat becomes great and that is how a Governor gets through a tax program over reluctant, unwilling legislators who have to vote for it because they do not want to see these hospitals go down the drain.

I say to you that this kind of language will thwart the will of the people; it is just not realistic and it does not make for good government.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Delegate Fineman with just a couple of questions, if I may.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman has indicated that he will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Delegate Fineman, may I ask you basically, first of all, whether you are in accord with the concept of having a balanced budget of expenditures not exceeding receipts or revenues?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I am most heartily in accord with that.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. If so, then under your suggestion the legislature would establish both the estimate of income and also the appropriations made thereunder. Is that correct?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No. My suggestion is to leave the law as it is presently. There is nothing in the law now which calls for the certification, which means that the legislature has just as much right as the Governor to say what are going to be proper revenue estimates. The mere fact that this right exists has not prevented, in the history of this Commonwealth, a budget being passed every year.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. How would you establish what appropriation bill to pass without having some feeling or some limit of anticipated revenues?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. The same way we have established it during the history of this Commonwealth.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Has this Commonwealth always been on a balanced budget?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Yes, it has. It is illegal to be on anything other than a balanced budget.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Do you feel that by putting in or having the legislature putting in its own estimates of revenue it might not be then thwarting or going over its authority into the executive branch, much as you are now planning that with this in the executive would be going into the legislative branch?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, I do not, because I think it is the province of the Governor to sit down with the legislature and together work out the budget, because, as Senator Kline says, if taxes are going to be needed, it is the legislature that has to accept the responsibility for passing the taxes, not the Governor. He does not vote on taxes; we vote on them.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. It is also the legislature that passes on appropriations?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. That is right.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. All right. If the Governor were to certify an anticipated amount of revenues, could not the legislature merely not pass appropriations within that framework?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, for the reason I just explained over a 10-minute duration, that we get bombarded by universities, colleges and the other institutions that are the beneficiaries of our state moneys asking why do we not give them their money. If the Governor says that we are only going to get $8 million and it is going to take $10 million to provide money for the operation of the government plus the nonpreferred institutions, we cannot pass the money for the nonpreferred institutions until we have an accounting for the other $2 million.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Could you take care of them first?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No. You have to take care of the operation of state government first. You cannot take care of your nonpreferred first.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Okay.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Warman.

DELEGATE WARMAN. Mr. President, I feel there has been more than sufficient discussion on this matter. I, therefore, move the question on the proposal.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fineman?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—30

Aberman	Dumbauld	Keller, J.	Ruth
Allison	Fay	Keller, M.	Sahli
Amsterdam	Feather	Kelly	Scales
Aurentz	Filson	Kline	Shapiro
Baldrige	Fineman	Levin	Sharp
Baldus	Fleming	Manderino	Shettig
Banes	Fohl	Markley	Shoemaker
Barron	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shrager
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Michael	Silverman
Benfield	Gerber	Michener	Solomon
Buck	Gouger	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Bunting	Henderson	Moorhead	Stout
Burkholder	Heyburn	Murray	Swope
Camardella	Himes	O'Donnell	Tate
Caputo	Hocker	Orbin	Tully
Conley	Hook	Popil	Van Sant
Cosetti	Huggins	Prendergast	Waldron
Croop	Irvis	Quiles	Warman
Cunningham	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Welsh
Dailey	Kauffman	Rea	Westerberg

NAYS—57

Baldwin	Donaldson	Lee, L.	Richter
Benedict	Erwin	Leinbach	Roberts
Bloom	Fawcett	Leonard	Scarlett
Brennan	Forster	McGeary	Scott
Broderick	Fortney	Meyer	Scranton
Brown	Goldman	More	Sebastian
Butera	Goldstein	Morton	Shively
Cain	Hannum	Nelson	Strickler
Clark	Harding	Orban	Thomson
Clinger	Hatter	Otto	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Pelletier	Wilcox
Cortese	Krill	Pott	Wilmarth
Curran	Laputka	Powell	Woodring
Desmond	Leach	Reynolds	Woodside
Devlin

NOT VOTING—26

Bagenstose	Gray	Mangery	Percey
Barry	Griffith	McGlynn	Redick
Braham	Horne	Miller, R.	Rovner
Caron	Hostetler	Musselman	Stroup
Casey	King	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Donolow	Lane	Pechan	Tomascik
Fagan	Lee, K.

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now I understand Delegate Fineman has another amendment to offer.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, this amendment is needed in order to implement the amendment that just passed by a favorable vote. Since my amendment was two amendments suggested by the committee and there are different sections and lines involved, in order to fully implement what is before the body, this corrective amendment would be needed. It is a corrective amendment. It does not change anything other than what we have just voted upon.

AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I am advised that this is not the appropriate time to offer this correctional amendment. I have to wait until Senator Kline—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are, therefore, withdrawing this correctional amendment at this time?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I do have another amendment, Mr. President, over which there is no serious difference.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand there are no further amendments at this time to the Leonard amendment. Is that correct?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. No, there is one more. Oh, no, no, you are correct. This is a new amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If there are no further amendments to the Leonard amendment, we will now take up the Leonard amendment, as amended by the Fineman amendments which were adopted.

Delegate Leonard, do you wish to make any additional statements in connection with your amendment?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Now that the barn door is closed, no. I would just hope that we would vote for it.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the Leonard amendment as amended by the Fineman amendments?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—124

Aberman	Devlin	Krill	Redick
Amsterdam	Donaldson	Laputka	Reynolds
Aurentz	Dumbauld	Leach	Richter
Baldrige	Erwin	Lee, L.	Ruth
Baldwin	Fawcett	Leinbach	Sahli
Banes	Fay	Leonard	Scales
Barron	Feather	Levin	Scarlett
Bashoff	Filson	Manderino	Scott
Benedict	Fineman	Markley	Scranton
Benfield	Fleming	Mattioni	Sebastian
Bloom	Fohl	McGeary	Shapiro
Brennan	Fortney	Meyer	Sharp
Broderick	Gabreski	Michael	Shettig
Brown	Gehrlein	Michener	Shively
Buck	Gerber	Miller, D.	Shrager
Bunting	Goldman	Miller, R.	Silverman
Burkholder	Goldstein	Moorhead	Solomon
Butera	Gouger	More	Sprogell
Cain	Hannum	Morton	Stout
Camardella	Harding	Murray	Swope
Caputo	Hatter	Nelson	Tate
Clark	Henderson	O'Donnell	Thomson
Clinger	Heyburn	Orban	Thornburgh
Conley	Hook	Orbin	Tully
Corey	Irvis	Otto	Van Sant
Cortese	Jirolanio	Pelletier	Warman
Cosetti	Johnson	Popil	Welsh
Croop	Kauffman	Pott	Westerberg
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Powell	Whittum
Dailey	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Wilcox
Desmond	Kelly	Rappaport	Wilmarth

NAYS—9

Curran	Himes	Strickler	Woodring
Forster	Shoemaker	Waldron	Woodside
Hocker

NOT VOTING—30

Allison	Fagan	Lane	Percey
Bagenstose	Gray	Lee, K.	Quiles
Baldus	Griffith	Mangery	Rea
Barry	Horne	McGlynn	Roberts
Braham	Hostetler	Musselman	Rovner
Caron	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Stroup
Casey	King	Pechan	Tomascik
Donolow	Kline

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, at this point I am a little confused. Is this the appropriate time to offer this correctional amendment to make sure the numbering and the sections are in order?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised that it is.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I offer the following amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The clerk will read the amendment.

FINEMAN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FINEMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, line 23, by striking out "(a)"

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both of said lines

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I am thoroughly confused, Mr. President. I would like to ask for a 10-minute recess to get back on our bearings. I do not think half of the delegates know what they are voting for.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let us see what we are doing.

This amendment being offered by Delegate Fineman is an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12. The way I read the amendment, it amends Section 2 (Section 27), page 3, line 23, by striking out "(a)". It also says, "Amend Section 2 (Section 27), page 4, lines 1 and 2, by striking out both of said lines".

I am going to ask Delegate Fineman to explain his amendment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. You must be kidding.

As I understand it, my amendment was an amendment offered to the proposal of the committee, which itself was an amendment. Since my amendment was adopted, it is, therefore, necessary to go back to the original proposal to make sure that my amendment is fitted into the original lines and section numbers of that proposal.

That is the purpose of that amendment—to make sure that the lines and section numbers gee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I ask if this is correct: We had an original committee proposal; then Delegate Leonard yesterday introduced committee amendments; we then had this thing printed, the clean copies to which we are referring, clean copy 4. Had the Leonard amendments been adopted without any changes, we would now have before us exactly what is on clean copy 4?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Except that some changes were made by the Fineman amendments. Am I correct then that what we now have before us for further amendment is clean copy 4, with the following changes:

On the first page, line 15, the sentence which begins, "All fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth," et cetera, there was a substitution for that. We voted on that. In other words, that is the change that would be made on this clean copy?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is correct.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Also there is a change in this clean copy on page 3, that the committee took out line 27, beginning, "Legislation authorizing," lines 28 and 29. That is out. Is that correct?

DELEGATE LEONARD. That was out, Mr. President, as a part of our amendment today. We will talk about that tomorrow.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Right.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He withheld that.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Well, what I am getting at —I would like to see if I can follow him. If I take clean copy 4, the way I understand it, if I just make three changes in here, that is what is before us.

One is substituting that first section, "All fiscal affairs" for that new wording that was adopted, taking out those lines on page 3, lines 27, 28 and 29 and taking out lines 6 and 7 on page 4. If those three changes are made in this clean copy, is that what is now before us for further amendment? Am I correct?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is substantially correct. Yes, indeed, that is, because this amendment, you see, is to the proposal, the original Proposal No. 4. His amendment is worded to that, not to the clean copy.

In other words, you have to look at Proposal No. 4 to see which lines are being changed.

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is printer's No. 12.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I read section 27 as I understand it to now read if we approve of this correctional amendment. As I understand it, Section 27 will then say as follows: "General Assembly's Appropriations. —(a) Appropriations made by the General Assembly shall not exceed the actual and estimated revenues available for said appropriations. (b) The General Assembly shall approve a capital budget for the ensuing fiscal year." And that is all it says.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are correct as far as you have gone.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. That is all there is to Section 27.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, from our viewpoint.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Okay.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words, Delegate Scranton, you were correct as far as you went, but now if you will take Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 12, on page 4, you have to take out those first two lines under (b). We have just voted to take those out.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Yes, but what I read is what is in. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is correct.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we still have your amendment, Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Yes. This is a final amendment which I believe to be noncontroversial, based on my conversation with Delegate Leonard. I would first bring to the attention of the delegates that the—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would the delegate yield? We are still on this correctional amendment which has not been voted on. This is the one which is in question which has the delegates confused as to the purport of it. I think maybe it is clear now.

Chairman Leonard, do you have any feeling on this?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I understood it the way, I think, Delegate Manderino stated it, and the way Delegate Scranton read it was clearly the way Section 27 reads. It is just a cleaning up, as far as I am concerned.

I know that if you take No. 4 right here, I can tell you what it is supposed to be. On the so-called clean 4 without a printer's number, page 1, line 15, and page 2, lines 1 and 2 are eliminated and the substitute words of "The financial affairs of any body" et cetera, go in there. Other than that, we have eliminated on page 3, lines 27, 28 and 29, the words in large caps starting with "Legislation" and ending with "appropriation", and have eliminated on page 4, lines 6 and 7 entirely.

That is all we have done. The rest of this is just renumbering accordingly.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I move the question, Mr. President, I think we all understand that this is a correctional amendment needed in order to have the proper numbering in correct sequence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have all heard the corrective amendment offered by Delegate Fineman. Are you ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fineman?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—119

Aberman	Desmond	Johnson	Pott
Amsterdam	Devlin	Kauffman	Powell
Aurentz	Donaldson	Keller, J.	Prendergast
Baldrige	Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Rappaport
Baldwin	Erwin	Kelly	Redick
Banes	Fawcett	Krill	Reynolds
Barry	Fay	Laputka	Richter
Bashoff	Feather	Leach	Sahli
Benedict	Filson	Lee, L.	Scales
Benfield	Fineman	Lehbach	Scranton
Braham	Fleming	Leonard	Sebastian
Brennan	Fohl	Levin	Sharp
Broderick	Forster	Manderino	Shettig
Brown	Fortney	Markley	Shrager
Buck	Gabreski	Mattioni	Silverman
Burkholder	Gehrlein	McGeary	Solomon
Butera	Gerber	McGlynn	Sprogell
Cein	Goldman	Meyer	Stout
Camardella	Goldstein	Michael	Strickler
Caputo	Gouger	Michener	Swope
Clark	Griffith	Miller, D.	Tate
Clinger	Hannum	Miller, R.	Thomson
Conley	Harding	Moorhead	Tully
Corey	Hatter	More	Van Sant
Cortese	Henderson	Morton	Waldron
Cosetti	Heyburn	Murray	Warman
Croop	Himes	Nelson	Welsh
Cunningham	Hook	Orbin	Westerberg
Curran	Irvis	Otto	Woodring
Dailey	Jirolanio	Popil

NAYS—8

Bunting	Huggins	Scarlett	Shapiro
Hocker	Pelletier	Scott	Wilmarth

NOT VOTING—36

Allison	Gray	Orban	Ruth
Bagenstose	Horne	O'Donnell	Shively
Baldus	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Shoemaker
Barron	King	Pechan	Stroup
Bloom	Kline	Percey	Thornburgh
Caron	Lane	Quiles	Tomascik
Casey	Lee, K.	Rea	Whittum
Donolow	Mangery	Roberts	Wilcox
Fagan	Musselman	Rovner	Woodside

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Thank you, Mr. President.

This is an amendment that I do not believe to be controversial, based on my discussions with the chairman of the committee, Delegate Leonard. It concerns Section 28 dealing with surplus.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let us have the clerk read the amendment.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. The first part of this amendment is to be stricken out, the words dealing with assigned. That is to come out of this proposed amendment.

FINEMAN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FINEMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 28), page 4, line 4, by inserting after "appropriation": by the General Assembly

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand, according to Delegate Fineman, that the first line should be stricken on this amendment that is being passed out to you and that the amendment itself begins with the words "Amend section 28, page 4, line 4, by inserting after appropriation 'by the General Assembly.'"

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, on the basis that this amendment merely intends to make certain that appropriations only be made by the General Assembly, and it is my understanding that the General Assembly is the only body which can make appropriations to begin with, I certainly have no objection to this amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fineman?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—119

Aberman	Desmond	Kauffman	Prendergast
Amsterdam	Devlin	Keller, J.	Rappaport
Aurentz	Donaldson	Kelly	Redick
Baldrige	Dumbauld	Krill	Reynolds

Baldwin	Erwin	Laputka	Richter
Banes	Fawcett	Leach	Sahli
Barron	Fay	Lee, L.	Scales
Barry	Feather	Leinbach	Scarlett
Bashoff	Filson	Leonard	Sebastian
Benedict	Fineman	Levin	Shapiro
Benfield	Fleming	Manderino	Sharp
Braham	Fohl	Markley	Shettig
Brennan	Forster	Mattioni	Shively
Broderick	Fortney	McGeary	Shrager
Brown	Gabreski	McGlynn	Silverman
Buck	Gehrlein	Meyer	Solomon
Bunting	Gerber	Michael	Sprogell
Burkholder	Goldman	Miller, D.	Stout
Butera	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Strickler
Cain	Gouger	More	Swope
Camardella	Hannum	Morton	Tate
Caputo	Harding	Murray	Tomascik
Conley	Hatter	Nelson	Tully
Corey	Henderson	O'Donnell	Van Sant
Cortese	Himes	Orban	Waldron
Cosetti	Hocker	Orbin	Warman
Croop	Hook	Otto	Welsh
Cunningham	Irvis	Popil	Whittum
Curran	Jirolanio	Pott	Wilmarth
Dailey	Johnson	Powell

NAYS—11

Clinger	Pelletier	Scranton	Woodring
Huggins	Roberts	Shoemaker	Woodside
Moorhead	Scott	Thomson

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Gray	Lane	Quiles
Bagenstose	Griffith	Lee, K.	Rea
Baldus	Heyburn	Mangery	Rovner
Bloom	Horne	Michener	Ruth
Caron	Hostetler	Musselman	Stroup
Casey	Keller, M.	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Clark	King	Pechan	Westerberg
Donolow	Kline	Percey	Wilcox
Fagan

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

FOHL AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FOHL offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 2, by inserting between lines 1 and 2: The same Commonwealth officer or department shall not have responsibility for both the pre-audit and post-audit functions.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, when Committee Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 4, was discussed earlier in the week there was some question brought up, primarily by Delegate Amsterdam, of the assignments of the responsibilities for the preaudit and postaudit functions which were incorporated in Section 1 (a), Sections 1 (b) and 1 (c). They went to, as you know, much detail; they assigned who would do the audit; and this amendment is intended to reinstate the intent of that language with the greatest flexibility to which we could come. I think it is within the intent of the committee's original proposal, without the confining or handcuffing that was referred to in the previous discussion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does the committee chairman have any comment on this amendment?

DELEGATE WILCOX. Mr. President, I would have to agree with Delegate Fohl that this amendment is in accord with the concept adopted by the full Taxation and State Finance Committee, to separate the post and preaudit functions so that the same party does not make both, as Delegate Amsterdam said, to prevent the man from getting his own papers.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I think we talked about this at length yesterday and I thought we had disposed of it.

Under current legislation, the Auditor General issues warrants upon the Treasurer for the payment of Commonwealth obligations. Also, under present law, he is responsible for auditing all the transactions of the state government once they have been caused.

This amendment cannot possibly go into effect unless a new office were created in the Commonwealth structure. The Treasurer also makes a preaudit in conjunction with the Auditor General in order to satisfy himself that he should draw a check on the warrant that has been issued to him by the Auditor General.

I would like to repeat what I said before, that this system has worked exceedingly well for the last 40-some years, in which I have watched it operate, and that no troubles have existed or have come up. We have a former Auditor General and State Treasurer among our membership here in this Constitutional Convention. While I would not like to read his mind, it appears to me that he would probably agree that this system has worked exceedingly well, and it would appear to me that there would be no reason for changing the system.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President, we are whipping the same dead horse again that we disposed of the other day. I think we have had a feeling from the entire Convention that the Auditor General's department should have the entire watchdog facility and to split these things would be a ripper-type bill which would strip the watchdog powers of the Auditor General's office. I think we are bringing up the same thing that the Convention got rid of the other day.

I strongly urge the delegates to vote "no" on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, it seems to me that this proposed amendment is not necessary.

The reason we raised it the other day was because the committee's proposal indicated that the Treasurer would have the preaudit function. Because of that fact, we felt that it had to be someone other than the Treasurer. It need not be someone other than the postauditor.

Personally, if I were doing it I would prefer to see a person other than the one doing the postaudit do the preaudit. However, it can come out of the same department.

It seems to me the fault we found the other day was that the Treasurer was doing the preaudit. That is no longer required. Therefore, it seems to me this amendment really is not necessary at this time.

As Delegate Swope said, the administrative machinery in the Commonwealth today takes care of this adequately.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, the objections to this amendment leave me somewhat bewildered.

It has always been my attitude that in proper accounting you have someone check someone else, and there is no question about it.

I am not an accountant and I quite often do rely on accountants for the answers to these types of questions. I wonder if Delegate Leonard might be able to give me an answer to this.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Delegate Goldman, I spoke, I believe, rather clearly the other day as to my thinking and philosophy on this matter. I have to disagree with Delegate Amsterdam that the machinery now takes care of this division. The machinery does not. As it is set up now, the laws of the Commonwealth have put both the pre and the post in the same office.

It is my thinking, very definitely, that the Auditor General will be a far more effective officer of this Commonwealth, will be able to do a far better job in making constructive comments about the operation of state government, if he is not the one who has to sign the warrant to say this expenditure is okay.

So I think that, first, we did not dispose of this matter the other day, which Delegate Murray said that we had under interrogation. It came up in committee several times, and every time it came up by itself, it came through with a majority vote of the committee; I believe, of over 20 on the committee. But it is my opinion that it is an important division of responsibility which is basic and good control in auditing.

It is also my judgment that this would make the Auditor General a superior officer to what he is now permitted to be with the system under which he operates.

I would clearly favor this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I have to agree with this and that is why I was somewhat taken aback by Delegate Swope's comment. Just because something has been going on for 40 years does not mean that we have had something going on right. We do not know whether the audit procedure or whether the functions of government have been proper, because I believe we might have been having improper auditing procedures.

My feeling was in favor of Delegate Fohl's amendment and Delegate Leonard sort of affirms it. I do believe the amendment is proper.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I would like to make several further observations.

I would agree with my colleague, Delegate Leonard, that the post and preaudit functions in commercial and industrial accounting, where an outside firm is involved, certainly does not belong in the same firm. But I would like to state at that point that the accounting firm that is hired by the commercial or industrial enterprise has that enterprise as its client. The Auditor General does not have a client; the Auditor General is an independent officer. The Governor and the administrative side of the government is no more a client of the Auditor General than I am. He is a completely independent officer. I submit that in that capacity he is perfectly capable of making both a preaudit and a postaudit.

I want to repeat what I said before, that as long as the Auditor General is required by law to issue a warrant on his own name, on his own responsibility, to the treasurer, directing that officer to issue checks, he must have the preaudit function and you cannot take it away from him.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I am just a little bit in need of knowledge at the moment. I wonder whether Delegate Leonard would tell us how, under the proposal of the committee, we can have a postaudit and a preaudit separated. I thought we could only have them separated by having different individuals in the Auditor General's office handle it.

If these things can be handled in some other way, by having a comptroller general such as I suggested, that would be fine, but I do not find any provision nor possibility for that under the committee's proposal. I am just wondering how he thinks it ought to be handled?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. As I understand the amendment, and the way it was discussed in committee, without getting involved as to who would be the officer, the basic principle which is involved here is that the same person should not say okay to a transaction and then come along later and have to review what he did.

What you are asking, Delegate Amsterdam, is a purely legislative matter, and it would be up to them to designate who would be the one to sign the warrant. I think, really, the whole preaudit function about which we are talking here is the signing of the warrant. Anything else with respect to review of transactions of the Auditor General or the officer who is doing the postaudit is fine. He will certainly continue to review transactions.

The only point we have here is who is to sign the warrant. As I understand it, the amendment is saying that the same officer who does the postauditing should not be the officer who will sign the warrant for payment. The legislature would have the prerogative to decide who shall do it.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Does that mean that the legislature could empower the treasurer who actually makes the funds available to do the preaudit?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would say that the legislature could empower the treasurer; they could empower themselves, as they can today. You know, this is nothing new. They can empower the treasurer today to do it, because it is only by law that the Auditor General does it. The Constitution now says that the warrant shall be signed before the expenditure of money.

So it is not taking away anything from the legislature which it does not have today, except that it is to divide this function.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. My understanding is that we are trying to better what is happening today under this amendment, and I am all for that, providing we are actually bettering it. My question to you, Delegate Leonard, is, are we bettering it if we permit the preaudit function to be in the hands of the treasurer, even if the legislature so designates?

DELEGATE LEONARD. My point is that the legislature has the right to so designate that today. We are not doing anything as to who has the right to do what, except to say that these two functions should not be by the same officer.

That is all that is being done.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I am sorry. I thought you said today that the Auditor General has the preaudit function.

DELEGATE LEONARD. He does by the—

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Then we are changing what we are doing today.

DELEGATE LEONARD. No. Well, it is by the instance of statutory law, the Fiscal Code, that the Auditor General has that responsibility. That is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I disagree with what Delegate Leonard is saying. The gentleman is saying we are not doing anything to the legislature, but they cannot do this. This does not make sense to me. You say that you are not changing what they are doing today with this amendment, but you are saying that they cannot do what they are doing today with this amendment.

DELEGATE LEONARD. The only thing that we are saying concerns what Delegate Amsterdam was saying, that this will permit the legislature to give the Treasurer the right to sign the warrants, and my answer was that the legislature today has the right to give the Treasurer the responsibility to sign the warrants.

Clearly, the only intent of this amendment, as I see it, is to merely get to a basic and good business practice which has been recommended by Senator Heyburn's committee back in 1947 or 1949. It was recommended by the Chesterman Committee back in 1953 and it has been recommended many times and it is done in most States throughout this country, to divide this responsibility.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I will just say to Delegate Leonard that it may not be his amendment but it has been his idea ever since I knew him, and that is ever since the Convention started.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I have no argument with that, sir.

DELEGATE HOCKER. That is correct. It is just a case of getting somebody else to whip the mule. I would ask the people here not to tie the hands of the legislature.

I agree with Delegate Swope. We are doing all right; we have no problem; and I would ask the people to vote against this amendment.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, a question of personal privilege for the information of Delegate Hocker. I need no one to suggest amendments to me. I was the original sponsor of the individual delegate proposal regarding auditing and I am very happy that Delegate Leonard agrees with me. He did not dictate the amendment.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I apologize to the gentleman, sir. I am sorry he hit the mule in the front end.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Mr. President, I would urge the delegates to vote for this amendment. I fail to see or recognize any valid reason for the opposition. It seems to me that their conviction is more apparent than their reason. This is only, as has been pointed out by Delegate Fohl, good business, good management. This will strengthen the audit and the fiscal affairs of the Commonwealth.

I urge you to adopt it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fohl?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—88

Amsterdam	Croop	Keller, M.	Richter
Aurentz	Cunningham	Kelly	Roberts
Baldrige	Curran	Krill	Scarlett
Baldwin	Desmond	Laputka	Scott
Barron	Devlin	Leach	Scranton
Benedict	Erwin	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Benfield	Fohl	Leinbach	Sharp
Bloom	Forster	Leonard	Shettig
Braham	Fortney	Levin	Shively
Brennan	Gabreski	McGeary	Sprogell
Broderick	Gehrlein	Meyer	Stout
Brown	Goldman	Miller, D.	Strickler
Buck	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Bunting	Gouger	Moorhead	Tomasclk
Burkholder	Griffith	More	Tully
Butera	Hannum	Morton	Van Sant
Cain	Hatter	Orban	Waldron
Clark	Heyburn	Otto	Warman
Conley	Himes	Pott	Welsh
Corey	Johnson	Powell	Whittum
Cortese	Kauffman	Rea	Wilcox
Cosetti	Keller, J.	Reynolds	Woodring

NAYS—47

Aberman	Fineman	Markley	Sahli
Banes	Fleming	Mattioni	Scales
Barry	Gerber	McGlynn	Shapiro
Bashoff	Harding	Michener	Shoemaker
Camardella	Henderson	Murray	Shrager
Caputo	Hocker	Nelson	Solomon
Dailey	Hook	O'Donnell	Swope
Donaldson	Huggins	Orbin	Tate
Dumbauld	Irvis	Popil	Westerberg
Fay	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Feather	Manderino	Rappaport	Woodside
Filson	Mangery	Redick

NOT VOTING—28

Allison	Fagan	Lane	Percey
Bagenstose	Fawcett	Lee, K.	Quiles
Baldus	Gray	Michael	Rovner
Caron	Horne	Musselman	Ruth
Casey	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Silverman
Clinger	King	Pechan	Stroup
Donolow	Kline	Pelletier	Thomson

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

GOLDMAN AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, Section 27, to which my amendment originally referred, has been cut up so much that it does not make any sense. I, therefore, withdraw my amendment.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 4, PRINTER'S No. 12

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair understands that there are no further amendments to this proposal. Therefore, under the rules, Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 12, will appear on tomorrow's calendar on second consideration.

RECESS REQUESTED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I suggest, before we take up Proposal No. 6, that we recess for about 15 minutes until we get ourselves ready to go.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. For fear that one or two of the delegates might not find their way back following the recess, may I announce that the Judiciary Committee will have a meeting at 8 a.m. tomorrow morning in the House Minority Caucus Room on the third floor of the Capitol.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I certainly hope that you will all be back, because we are going to start voting on Proposal No. 6.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. Mr. President, just another announcement, please. The Committee on Style and Drafting will meet this evening at 8:15 in Room 615 of the Main Capitol. Those of you who have been envying us for our lack of things to do need no longer envy us from now on, Mr. President.

DELEGATES' PRESENCE NOTED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tomascik.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Mr. President, this morning I entered the Convention hall after the electronic roll call. Would you please have the record marked to show my presence?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand, through our efficient clerk, that all those who came in late have been marked as being present, but you may wish to check.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Benedict.

DELEGATE BENEDICT. I also arrived after the roll call. May I be recorded as being present?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall have your presence recorded, Delegate Benedict.

RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Without objection, the Chair now declares a recess for 15 minutes. The Chair hears no objection.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the Convention was called to order.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 6, Printer's No. 6, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania providing for local government in Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready to proceed with Proposal No. 6, printer's No. 6. I just want to repeat a few of the ground rules.

First of all, amendments. We are going to request that anybody who has an amendment to bring it forward just as soon as he has the amendment and submit it to our committee. The committee is in charge of Vice President Casey and Vice President Orban and the attorney for the Local Government Committee, together with our Solicitor and Assistant Parliamentarian Tom Balaban. They will endeavor to organize the amendments so that we will be able to eliminate amendments that are mere duplications and also that we will be able to take the amendments seriatim, or in order, as they come in the proposal.

We are going to vary our procedure just slightly in connection with printer's No. 6 in order to expedite the consideration of the local government proposal. We are going to consider it in three parts and these three parts have been agreed to by the chairmen of the Local Government Committee, Delegate Manderino and Delegate Pasquerilla. Those three parts are going to be: Part 1 is going to cover Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4 of the proposal; part 2 will cover Sections 5, 6, 7 and 8 of the proposal; part 3 will cover Sections 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14 of the proposal. These are the three parts which are within Section 1 of the proposal. Then, of course, following the discussion of those three parts, we can review and discuss Sections 2 and 3 of the proposal, which are on pages 5 and 6 of the proposal.

When we take up the first part of Proposal No. 6, which will be Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, the committee co-chairmen will designate someone to explain those sections and also they will stand to answer questions in connection with those sections. In order to expedite it, we have set a tentative time limitation of one hour on that question-and-answer and explanation period. If the delegates think more time is necessary, we can vote more time. This is in the effort to expedite our amendment process and to get on.

We have had a number of requests from delegates, and I will not mention their names, as to whether we are going to sit tomorrow, Valentine's Day. The answer is, yes.

Frankly I want to state our objectives again. Our objectives are to get over the second consideration of the Local Government Proposal and second consideration of the Judiciary Proposal this week. I hope we will be able to do it without remaining here on Saturday, but if we do not get to it, it seems to me the only way we can accomplish it is to be here on Saturday. I feel just as you do, that we should get going and try to complete second consideration this week, before Friday evening.

With that, who is going to go first on the first part of the Local Government Proposal covering Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. If it is in order, Mr. President, can I move the previous question to save time?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has reached the point where it will accept that motion.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I would like to restate —and if you will please take out Committee Proposal No. 6, we will discuss under Unit No. 1, Section 1, Local Government; Section 2, Home Rule; Section 3, Optional Plans; Section 4, County Government.

I would ask the co-chairmen of Structure and Organization Subcommittee, the co-chairmen of the Home Rule Subcommittee and the co-chairmen of the County Government Subcommittee to come and sit down front in the hot seats.

We will attempt to answer your questions within about an hour, after which time we would like to proceed with amendments and complete Unit 1, Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Our opening statement to the delegates of this Convention concerning the committee's report on local government is simply this: The committee, in our opinion, has provided a very broad and vast article looking far into the future, whereby local government through structure can help solve the problems of the future.

Some of the items contained in this local government article may not be used for many years, but we ask that you have faith in the future, that you have faith in the legislature, and that we proceed to do the things that we think are right for the many, many years for which this Constitution is going to be written.

To explain Unit No. 1, Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4, if the Chair will recognize Co-Chairman Manderino, he will explain the first four sections of Unit No. 1.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Thank you, Mr. President.

We will give a brief explanation of these first four sections, and then when the questioning begins, we will refer them to our subcommittee co-chairmen as we go along.

Section 1 consists of three lines, two sentences. The first sentence appears simple and innocuous, but it really establishes the General Assembly's power over local government that it "shall provide by general law for local government within the Commonwealth." It is not just an opening statement. It, in effect, is stating that the General Assembly provide generally—that is the way we are starting—for local government. I just might add there, as an example, we have had questions, for instance, why did you not provide in here for the incorporation and dissolution of municipalities? There are a lot of things which are not specifically spelled out that are not in the Constitution now, but that first sentence establishes the authority of the General Assembly to provide general law for municipalities in the Commonwealth.

Section 2, I think is self-explanatory. The committee is asking for uniform procedural laws. Procedural, we know, is a term that has been used in government, in the courts. We know it is not an absolutely defined word that will always avoid litigation, but it is the best word we could find. The intent was, why should we have different ways of adopting ordinances throughout this Commonwealth in various municipalities? Why should we have different ways of advertising things? Why should we have different kinds of appeal in zoning matters, for instance? Strictly procedural matters.

We have been asked whether that includes structure. No, structure is government structure which is referred to later.

Section 2 is the Home Rule section which grants to all municipalities home rule. It is the vehicle by which municipalities get residual powers. We have had questions and controversy about two areas here. One is the granting of home rule to counties and initially even the granting of home rule to small units which have 60 people or 1,000 people. So at each end of the barometer, we have had questions and some controversy.

We would simply like to state, to reiterate what Delegate Pasquerilla said, this was devised not for 1969; it was devised for many, many years to come.

Counties are given the right to adopt home rule charters. The General Assembly has the final, ultimate right to determine what powers would be exercised by a municipality or a county. Any conflict that would devolve, the General Assembly has full power to resolve this. Likewise, we are not afraid of small units and home-rule charters.

First of all, the experience elswhere will be that probably they will not even apply many of them, or they will adopt some model which may be devised. But we are not concerned simply because the General Assembly has the final power to deny.

The last comment on that question is that the last sentence—we had some question about the interpretation as to whether the General Assembly can only deny for four years or forever—and the answer is clearly forever. The General Assembly always constantly has the power, even after a municipality has adopted a home-rule charter, to deny a power to that municipality that is contained in its home-rule charter. The General Assembly remains supreme.

Section 3, in addition to home-rule charters, the General Assembly forms, under mandate, optional forms of government for all municipalities, counties, cities, boroughs, townships, incorporated towns. The General Assembly would then make these available, and municipalities can select, if they prefer, an optional form. Th article also has in it the initiative and referendum pr cess by which, if optional forms are available and tl governing body does not move to put it on the ballo others can. Later in the article, there are definitions c initiative and referendum.

Section 4 is on County Government. The intent of Section 4 is to preserve a modified type of county government, leaving it open to local option, local referendum, to determine if they wish to change the form that is in there. The form that is in Section 4 is essentially the same form that exists in counties today, with the removal of county surveyors and the removal of coroner.

If these first four sections are adopted, what happens the day they are adopted? Nothing happens. All codes remain in effect that are now in effect in the Commonwealth upon adoption of these four sections.

Therefore, even in county government, for example, the adoption of Section 4 on county government does not change county government by the adoption of this. It opens the door for it to be changed by local option or by the General Assembly in the case of county surveyors and coroners. The codes presently in effect would take care of existing government; there would be no hiatus, in other words.

After four years, the General Assembly would have adopted the new laws relating to home-rule charters and optional forms of government, so that, when the codes are not in effect, there would be substitute legislation. With our faith in the General Assembly to do this, therefore, no hiatus would occur, during that four-year period which is provided for in Section 1 here under Home Rule Charters, and no hiatus would exist under Section 4, because no change would take place until the people voted or the General Assembly acted.

Those are the highlights of Sections 1, 2, 3, and 4. I have not covered all details, but we can leave them for further questioning.

Thank you.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, we are now ready for interrogation on Sections 1, 2, 3 and 4.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are there any questions?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, I wish to ask some member of the committee to define the word "municipalities" as it appears throughout these four sections.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The word "municipalities" as defined throughout the four sections is on page 6. For the purpose of cutting down surplus language in the article and instead of always completely repeating cities, boroughs, incorporated towns or townships, we defined, municipalities shall mean for this article only a county, city, borough, incorporated town, or township.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. I direct my question to line 8 on page 1, to the sentence which says, "Such general law shall be uniform as to all classes of local government regarding procedural matters."

I would like to pose an instance on "procedural matters." If the General Assembly should, or if a municipality should, adopt a wage tax as we know it, must all wage taxes be uniform as to amount, subject matter, rate, and so forth, because that, to me, is a procedural thing, the rate, the subject upon which it is levied? Is that your intent?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. Banes is the co-chairman of Structure and Organization and that is his language. Mr. Banes, will you answer the question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. It is not the intention of this particular section to operate in the area to which Delegate Rea raises the question at this time. The subject of taxation, the particular subject referred to, wage tax, is governed by a statute, formerly 481, the so-called "Tax Anything Law," now 511. This section and this particular word are not applicable to the matter of taxes.

DELEGATE REA. It is applicable to, for instance, zoning ordinances?

DELEGATE BANES. It is the intention of this particular section as it refers to procedural matters, that the various powers of local government, the administration of the daily affairs of government, be under one administrative code for each particular area in which the legislature deems it necessary to enact such legislation.

As was pointed out, for example, in the matter of enacting ordinance, every class of municipality today does this in a different way, because each particular class of municipality has its own code. So, based upon whatever the experiences were in that particular class of government and whoever may have been involved in writing the particular code for that class of government wrote it in a manner which they deemed best for their particular class of government.

I might point out, for example, that in the simple matter of an ordinance laying out roads, some of the statutes require that the matter of the ordinance be first introduced as a bill. It may require that it be advertised at the time it is introduced. It must lay on the table possibly for 30 days before acted upon. Whereas, in another class of government it can be immediately introduced, given first reading—in fact it can be given three readings on the first night—and be finally adopted and advertised.

For example, in boroughs, an ordinance, when finally passed, must be advertised within 30 days. In a first class township, it can be finally adopted and it does not become effective until 10 days after it is advertised.

DELEGATE REA. May I ask this one additional question? We know that there are various forms of government, and I do not think it is your intention to abolish, for instance, boroughs and townships and make every municipality a borough?

DELEGATE BANES. No.

DELEGATE REA. Procedurally, in a borough the mayor signs ordinances. There is no mayor in a township. So, therefore, you are going to have differences immediately, are you not?

DELEGATE BANES. I do not anticipate that there will be any problem in this area. It is not the intention of this particular section that any of the present forms of local government be abolished.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I say I had that question. That is a problem of legislative drafting of a bill. For instance, one municipality may have a mayor and another one a chairman of the board of supervisors; therefore, you would not draft uniform procedural law by saying "the mayor." Someone simply has to study and maybe word it to cover everybody, and it would simply say: The chief executive officer shall have 20 days to sign an ordinance. So the chief executive officer of a municipality might apply to a mayor in one community; it might apply to a chairman in another community. That is a problem of how you word legislation. That is exactly the purpose of this, to make the General Assembly start addressing itself, when it considers legislation procedurally, to the entire Commonwealth and to word legislation that way, which we think can be done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. In Section 3, Optional Plans, it says here that there are three ways of getting this optional plan on the ballot. Am I correct in saying it is always on the ballot?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE POWELL. Initiative, Governing Body and the General Assembly. When you get this on the ballot, the optional form is a yes/no vote on one form, or can you put four forms on the ballot and have them vote the one they like best?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I think you have to refer to the second sentence where it says, "The General Assembly shall provide by law optional form of government," and in that law they will determine the methods and the procedures by which the options are to be voted upon. It is the same thing as your present charter commissions established for cities.

DELEGATE POWELL. In other words, the present form of government does not necessarily have to be one of the options?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It does not say that, but the present form of government can be one of the options.

DELEGATE POWELL. By initiative I would expect that the legislature sets up a form of government and the initiative is taken by people circulating petitions. Is that correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE POWELL. On this petition, you are telling me that you can have an optional form of government—one or four?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. What you do is, the General Assembly has to establish the laws under which this initiative can take place under the various types of optional forms of government. It is difficult for us to put things in the Constitution to say how all of these things are to be done or what is the optional form of government. We have left it wide open for the General Assembly to do its work and tell us what kind of optional plans we should have.

DELEGATE POWELL. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I would like to confirm my reading of a portion of Section 2 on home rule, the sentence beginning on line 16 dealing with the denial of the right to exercise a power or perform a function by the General Assembly. Is my understanding correct that the denial could be as to particular types or classes of municipalities, for instance, to boroughs or to cities or, indeed, to particular classes of types of municipalities?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The answer to that is, yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Delegate Banes, one comment I wanted to make in regard to your reply to Delegate Rea: We did have some quite considerable discussion about the second sentence of Section 1 as to whether or not it violated the uniformity clause in the call of this Constitutional Convention. I believe I am correct on that, am I not?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. May I make two other comments? Of course, I have had the advantage of being at all of the meetings on Local Government. For the benefit of the other delegates, may I bring up just two questions, for your confirmation or for your comment? Under the home-rule charter, am I not correct, that if the legislature fails to act, the home-rule charters become self-executing and any municipality can automatically adopt its own charter as it sees fit?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. If the General Assembly does not pass the enabling legislation within four years, it becomes self-executing. That is correct.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. And as home rule now stands, it is granted for all forms of local government as we have used the term "municipalities" including counties?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. And that under that proposal, it would be conceivable for various municipalities, if the legislature has not acted, to establish each municipality in its own charter to establish its own tax laws, its own right of taxation on citizens, regardless of where they live, and we could have a multiplicity of taxes in a particular county with each of its local subdivisions having home-rule charters.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. In theory, Mr. Goldman, you are correct, but once again we must have faith that the General Assembly is going to do this work within four years. The committee came out with the recommendation of two years. After discussing the matter with several members of the legislature, they felt they could do this job in four years and that is the purpose of the four years. To eliminate the conflicts, it seems only proper that the General Assembly must act, and I think it will.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Within the Section on County Government, as one of the options we did establish the retention of the various row offices with the exception of the county surveyor, and we eliminated the coroner.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. And under this optional form of county government, the county could, in its charter, abolish these row offices which we have established in the Constitution to be left available.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Once again, it can establish its home-rule charter and you must refer to the home-rule provision as long as it is not denied by the Constitution or by the General Assembly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Pasquerilla a question, please.

Under Section 4 on County Government, we have now eliminated the office of coroner. As of today, the coroner is a constitutional officer. If this proposal is passed, as enumerated in Section 4, how would the office of coroner be administered?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, would you recognize the Co-Chairman of the Committee on County Government, Mr. Tate, to answer the question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. Chairman Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. The office of coroner is not abolished. It is eliminated from the Constitution, but it will remain a legislative office. Until the legislature makes some change, the office of coroner will continue as a county office for those counties which continue to structure their governments under Section 4 of this proposal.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Is it not so that whatever powers the coroner has today, he has by reason of the fact that it is a constitutional office?

DELEGATE TATE. No, the Constitution now provides that there shall be a coroner along with the other row officers, but all of these officers are the subject of the county code which is now in existence and will continue in existence until changed by the legislature and insofar, of course, as common law applies to the conduct of these officers also. Therefore, until the legislature acts to abolish the office of coroner or to substitute it by some other office, such as, the medical examiner or some other form of officer, this office will continue without change.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Would you not be repealing the section that applies to coroner on page 6 of Section 2? I do not know which particular one, but I believe that one of the numbers that you have enumerated would actually repeal the coroner's office and, if that would be so, then, of course, there would not be any jurisdiction whatsoever to give any power to one who is not an officer?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. If I understand the problem, we specifically checked the existing county code, and the county code starts off by saying, "County officers shall be" and one of them is the coroner, and then it gives the duties and rights of the coroner. The legal effect is, as Delegate Tate said, you take it out of the Constitution, but the county code still exists which says "There shall be a coroner," as with all other offices. If this is adopted, let us say on April 23, what happens April 24? Nothing, because the county code remains in effect which was passed by the General Assembly, repeating what is in the Constitution. In other words, the Constitution says there shall be a coroner; there was legislation repeated in the county code which stated there shall be a coroner. That will still remain in effect. The coroner would exist with all his rights and duties that are not spelled out in the Constitution, but are spelled out in the code, until the General Assembly would change or repeal that.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. The thing that bothers me is, how can the county code be in existence if you are going to take away the power by which the county code was able to enumerate that particular office. I am not saying that I am for or against the coroners. I am just trying to clear up this problem in my own mind because I find nothing in the schedule whatsoever that has to do with coroners.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I think the delegates are entitled to an explanation of the coroner versus the medical-examiner system before we answer Mr. Jirolanio's question.

The larger counties in the Commonwealth made a strong plea for a medical-examiner system. We have several problems where some of the smaller counties cannot establish a medical-examiner system, so the Local Government Committee decided to eliminate as a constitutional office that of coroner. However, I would like to refer the delegates to Section 4, page 2, which says on line 11, "and such others as may from time to time be established by law," which means that the General Assembly can reinstate the coroner, the General Assembly can establish a medical-examiner system and, of course, at the same time, the medical-examiner system can come into being through home-rule charters or optional plans of government.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sprogell.

DELEGATE SPROGELL. I would like to ask why we are going to keep these officers which are listed here under Section 4 when they seem to have so little to do? When I was campaigning as delegate to this Convention, even the persons who were campaigning with me for these offices would say publicly: "There is no reason for these offices; we do not know enough about them; they are not really functional; they have nothing really to offer the people." Why do we protect these offices?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I can answer it, Mr. President, but would you recognize Delegate Tate?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Delegate Sprogell, we recognized in the County Government Subcommittee of the Local Government Committee that there were many people throughout the Commonwealth who felt that some changes should be made and some substantial changes in the county row offices. We also learned in our deliberations that there were many people throughout the Commonwealth who had grown to adhere to and even love the traditions that grew around these offices, and, therefore, consistent with the general philosophy of the local government article, we wished to open doors without closing any doors.

Therefore, it was our hope that by making it as attractive as we felt was possible, the plan for optional forms of government and home rule, the counties would, in their own wisdom and in the course of time, move into new and more efficient and better forms of government as individually they might see fit.

For those who felt wedded to tradition, we would, perhaps, modify a little bit, as we have done, but keep the basic essentials of the existing form of government for such counties.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Delegate Pasquerilla, I call your attention to line 16 on page 1 of the proposal and lines 1 and 2 of the second page. As I read that sentence there, I gather that the import of the sentence is that the so-called repeal of Dillon's Rule would apply to those communities adopting a home-rule charter. Am I correct in that assumption?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. You are correct.

DELEGATE SHARP. Perhaps I have not seen it anywhere; perhaps it has appeared, but I do not see it anywhere else here, but for those communities which have not adopted a home-rule charter, I did not see anything in here regarding the repeal of Dillon's Rule as to those communities. Did I miss that?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Delegate Rappaport would like to answer the question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Delegate Sharp is quite correct. We ran into this problem when we started going into the matter of residual powers for all communities in the Commonwealth. We have in existence today a First Class Township Code, a Second Class Township Code, a Borough Code and a County Code. All of these codes are drafted either in terms of "shall", imposing certain duties on the units of government or "may", giving the permission to do certain things. It is true that every one of these codes does contain a grant of residual power, the most extensive being that in the Second Class Township Code. I might state that the second class townships apparently have had very good legislative representation over the years. However, because of the timidity of either bond counsel or the local solicitors, or of the local governing bodies, very little use was made of this power by any of them. They all looked for this specific power to the legislature.

Were we to grant residual powers by this Constitution, we felt that we would have a tremendous hiatus, a turnaround problem, because legislation would then have to be drafted in terms of "thou shalt not", and none of that is in existence at the present time.

It was for these two reasons; that is, that the smaller communities might not be able to handle it and that therefore a community which had enough initiative to get up and get a home-rule charter is the one that could probably handle these powers. For these two reasons the committee agreed to grant residual powers only with the adoption of a home-rule charter. This makes them think about exactly what they want to do.

DELEGATE SHARP. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shettig.

DELEGATE SHETTIG. Mr. Pasquerilla, I direct your attention to Section 4, line 18, and the word that particularly bothers me is the word "fees." Does that include poundage, such as is charged by the prothonotary and the sheriff?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The answer is, yes.

DELEGATE SHETTIG. You are satisfied that the word "fees" is broad enough to cover the poundage?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. If you are looking for a nonlegal opinion, the answer is yes. We have these attorneys who have also said the answer is yes.

DELEGATE SHETTIG. All right. Just so we have it on the record.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. Manderino, I notice on line 21, you took out the minority auditor and left in the minority commissioner as one to be elected. Is that correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The answer is yes.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Could you tell me what was the committee's thought upon that and what was the reason that caused the result of taking the auditor out and not taking the commissioner out?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, Delegate Tate will answer that question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. The County Government Subcommittee first made two changes in the office of auditor. It took it out of the section that you have just noted and also gave an option to counties that counties might have auditors or controllers, I believe. That was changed in the local government main committee. I am sorry, I take that back.

We took auditors out altogether in the first recommendation of the County Government Subcommittee. It was put back in the first paragraph of Section 4, because it was the thought of the Local Government Committee that that option still ought to prevail for counties as to whether they were going to have auditors or controllers. However, we did not want to, in short, continue to enshrine in the Constitution the election of a minority auditor, though that procedure for election might be continued by the General Assembly if it so desires, because it was the general feeling of the Local Government Committee that, frankly, it just had not served a useful purpose in county government.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. They felt then that the minority commissioner did serve a useful purpose? Is that why they left it in?

DELEGATE TATE. There was considerable debate on that question. There were many delegates' proposals submitted, as you may be aware, on that question. We considered this at great length both on the subcommittee and the standing committee level, and it was decided not to change that as far as county commissioners were concerned, especially in view of the fact that optional forms of government and home-rule would be available for counties.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. Pasquerilla, if you will give the delegates like me who did not participate in these discussions some guidance, what was the general voting pattern of your committee in sending, one, the four sections to the floor of your general committee; and then, two, sending the total package to the floor of this general Convention?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The final vote on the entire article, Secretary Michener, was 42 to 2. The article on Home Rule was 31 yes, 6 no; the article on Section 1, Local Government, was unanimous.

DELEGATE MICHENER. What figure? Do you happen to know?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Thirty-nine yes. The article on County Government, yes 34, one no, one not voting. I would like to call to your attention, however, Secretary Michener, that we had one close vote on the entire article on Local Government pertaining to self-executing home rule for counties, the only close vote on the entire article.

DELEGATE MICHENER. And the vote on the total package again? I did not get it.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The vote on the total package was 42 to 2.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Back to residual powers for a second, just a quick question. Residual powers are granted through a home-rule charter through legislative action and then through home-rule charter action? Is that correct? When somebody adopts a home-rule charter, in that charter it has to say what they can do.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. This is correct. If you have more questions on home rule, I would like to ask the President to recognize Mr. Morton, Co-Chairman of the Home Rule Subcommittee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE POWELL. Delegate Morton, could you clarify this? If somebody adopts a home-rule charter, the listed allowable things the local municipality can do, the local municipality is restricted to those things. Is that correct?

DELEGATE MORTON. That would be correct.

DELEGATE POWELL. How would they change a home-rule charter?

DELEGATE MORTON. They can change their home-rule charter by amendment by a vote of the people at any time. Let me give you a little summary of what this is. The legislature has a period of four years within which to adopt enabling legislation. Assuming that they adopt it, the legislature can set forth what powers are denied to you if you adopt the charter. In addition to that, in your own charter, you could put forth restrictions on what powers you may have and, if there are any in your charter, the only way you could change that would be by amendment. Besides that there could be subsequent limitations by the General Assembly at any time removing any powers that may be enacted by anyone who has a home-rule charter.

DELEGATE POWELL. Quickly now, you put restrictions on what you can do or cannot do in the home-rule charter?

DELEGATE MORTON. You can do that in your charter if you so desire.

DELEGATE POWELL. Which do you do? Do you put in restrictions that you can do or do you put restrictions in on what you cannot do?

DELEGATE MORTON. You can do it both ways—set forth exactly what you can do and the procedure by which you can do it or put forth a negative prohibition on something that you cannot do.

DELEGATE POWELL. My understanding is that Dillon's Rule right now aims at the legislature which says the local municipality can do a certain list of things, and anything else they cannot do, is that correct—that it is allowable?

DELEGATE MORTON. That really is not quite correct because the legislature has set forth voluminous things of what you can do, but in almost all of the codes, they contain a broad overall provision that reads, in essence, that you can do anything that is good for your community.

DELEGATE POWELL. I thank you.

DELEGATE MORTON. I have those for you if you want the exact language, but they have granted an overall broad grant to each municipality.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I also have a quick question and I hope I will get a slow answer. I want to direct the chairman's attention to Section 3 at line 6 to the use of the word "shall." That is what I am questioning. Did the committee intend to mandate an election on optional form of government or were they intending to leave this to each community?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. Manderino will answer it.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I think, sir, subject to being corrected here, I do not think that was the intent. I can see how you are reading that. The intent was to mandate that the General Assembly must say: Here are three forms of government that this local community can pick from. Then we wanted three groups to be able to force a choice: the General Assembly, the governing body of the municipality, or the voters. I take it your question is: What if the voters by initiative and referendum did not want to force anything; what if the governing body did not want to force anything; and what if the General Assembly did not want to force anything? Can they just ignore the optional forms? I think the answer to that is, yes, they can. I can see how you are reading that the word "shall" could be interpreted to imply that somebody must force a choice. We did not intend that, and as I am now looking at it for the first time, I think we will have some discussion on that to see if that could be misinterpreted. It was not intended to force a choice, but to allow these three groups to initiate choices, if one of the three groups wanted to.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, if I might correct and add one thing. I think that the delegate has brought up a very interesting point which I checked with the original proposal which said, "The General Assembly shall provide by general law optional plans of municipal organization government which may be adopted," which was the original subcommittee report.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Chairman Pasquerilla, you may have answered this question, but if so, I ask your indulgence to clarify it a little further for me.

Under Section 2 in Home Rule, is it conceivable that a county could adopt a home-rule charter as well as a municipality within that county? Each home-rule charter creating services, for example, which might conflict or compete with each other?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It is conceivable, if the General Assembly does not act within the four-year period. But even if the General Assembly does not act, it would become self-executing and it is my opinion that at that point the General Assembly must act. Does Delegate McGeary have anything to add to that?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. I would just read one sentence from our preparatory report here which all of us have followed pretty closely. It says: "Those not persuaded to the residual power principle contend that to apply it to counties." You were not saying this, but it may have been in the back of your mind, to apply it to counties as well as to cities and boroughs, for instance, would raise all kinds of troublesome and perhaps unanswerable questions on conflict of authority between the county and the political subdivision.

Here is the important sentence. "This appears to result from a misunderstanding of the plenary power of the legislature to make determinations of this sort under the residual power principle." We felt that this was a very reassuring statement.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. But it is possible; there could be a conflict in powers adopted by the two separate governments which would not be corrected until after the fact, after the General Assembly recognizes the problem. In the interim between the time the General Assembly corrects this and the time that the two governments adopt it, is it possible that there could be chaos in some areas?

DELEGATE McGEARY. I do not think chaos; there could be some conflict.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Chairman Pasquerilla, I understand that paragraph 3 of Section 4, when tied in with the Schedule on page 7, will indicate that the salary system and the complete abolishment of the fee system would go into effect four years after adoption of this local government article. Is that correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is correct.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Did your committee consider the fact that in a four-year period you would have the reelection of certain officers who would have gone into their office and would be entitled under the old law to have fees?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Would you repeat that?

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. For example, we just had a municipal election, and row officers in many counties, possibly all of them, were elected. Some of those row officers are by law entitled to fees at this time. Assuming this Constitution is to be adopted in April, in four years another group of men would have run and perhaps they would be in a position to say: "Well, this is part of our right under our office."

Did the Committee consider this? I am asking you.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Within the four-year period, the fee system would be out. The General Assembly then is going to have to act on new salary schedules in eliminating the fee system. I do not think it is a problem.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. But only if the General Assembly did act would that be true. Is that correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I would presume that the General Assembly must act if they want to. I do not think it is a problem. We are saying that the fees are to be eliminated. Fees are established by the legislature, not by constitution. We are mandating in the Constitution, if this is approved, that the fee system is to be eliminated now, and therefore, the General Assembly is going to have to change some of its laws.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. And within the four-year period. Is that correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is right.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. All right, thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Delegate Pasquerilla, under Section 2 of the proposal, can a county enact a wage tax?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Only if not denied by the Constitution or by the General Assembly or its home-rule charter.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We seemed to have covered the questions.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Sahli.

DELEGATE SAHLI. Delegate Pasquerilla, Section 4 reads that the "county officers shall consist of" the following officers. Does that preclude the possibility of some of the smaller counties combining some of these offices?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. They already do, which I think is covered by statute, if I am correct.

DELEGATE SAHLI. Would this permit the continuance of that practice?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Oh, yes. The last sentence covers everything when it says, "such others as may from time to time be established by law." This is the exact wording in the present Constitution. All counties now do not have all of these enumerated row offices where they are combined.

DELEGATE SAHLI. Your last reference made, "and such others," would be an addition to?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It could be an addition, but some of the offices are already combined by law.

DELEGATE SAHLI. And that is not to be prevented?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. No, that is not to be prevented, because it is an act of the legislature, not the Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. I would like to address a question on the home-rule section.

Right now, we have borough codes and first-class township codes and second-class township codes. I assume that these codes will remain in being and the legislature will have to continue to work with all these various codes and all these various classes of municipalities. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Under Section 1 we have mandated, we hope, if you agree with us, a uniform procedural code insofar as possible. We thought that it was ridiculous that the time for appeal from a zoning decision in one township may be 15 days and in the next township, 20 days; that one county shall have one method of having tax on sales of real estate and another county has another method, so that in procedural matters, these must be uniform as to everybody.

DELEGATE REA. My specific question is: Right now we operate under the borough code and townships of the first class under their code and townships under the second class under their code. If these municipalities do not adopt a home-rule charter, we will have to have these same codes for these different types of municipalities. Is that not correct?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. That is quite correct.

DELEGATE REA. The legislature now will have to adopt a home-rule code for the home-rule municipalities. Is that not right?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. That is correct.

DELEGATE REA. What you are doing is adding another form of local government and another code that is going to conflict one with the other.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. We hope that the legislature will adopt a home-rule code which will be applicable to all classes. Let me say this, that we have found the present separation of boroughs and townships and third class cities is quite artificial. When you have townships of the second class that have 17,000 people in them and you have cities that have 9,000 people in them, these types of classifications become irrelevant. A township with 17,000 people has the same urban problems as a third-class city with 17,000 people in it and they must cope with them.

The codes are going to have to remain until the legislature, after great study, decides exactly what it wants to do with them. We cannot permit chaos. We have, therefore, provided the four-year period and during that period, these codes will remain in effect and the legislature is going to have to change it very carefully. We came here, many of us, with the idea we had to change it in this constitution. It just would not work, we found. There are just two many problems here and you cannot tamper with just one little thing, because it has too many ramifications. The legislature is going to have to do this.

DELEGATE REA. May I ask then, maybe to get down to your basic thinking, was it your intent below the wording of this that you are trying to provide a structure where every municipality will be a home-rule municipality? Is this the general drift of what you are trying to accomplish?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I think for the general drift, I have to defer to my lawyer friend, Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. If I am right on that question, I take the question to be: Some communities will adopt home-rule charters and some will not.

DELEGATE REA. And it will be a mess.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Right. No, it will not be a mess. I will not agree with that part of it. I might say many States have the home-rule charter system and they are much less a mess than we are. The codes for municipalities who do not adopt home-rule charters, it is true, would remain in effect. They would have to because the only alternative would be to reverse Dillon's Rule and give all residual powers to a community even if it did not have a home-rule charter and that would be the mess because at least the home-rule charter puts a control on the use of residual power in that it must be in the charter and approved by the people. It is bad if 50 percent of Pennsylvania municipalities in 50 years have home-rule charters and 50 percent of them do not, and therefore they are operating by codes? No, it is not bad; it is not a mess.

First of all, 60 percent of the existing codes are procedural matters. Section 1, as was referred to, does mandate a uniformity in procedural matters. Much of the substantive powers that you find in the codes now only comprise maybe 20 to 25 per cent of what is in that code. Most of the differences in the codes are on procedural matters. If we mandate a uniform procedural code and that is done, there is not any question that the existing municipal code will have to be studied and brought up to date to clean it out, so to speak. But if you clean out the codes on procedural matters and just leave the substantive matters in the code, you are going to reduce the unwieldy codes we have; they are going to be reduced greatly in size and even in understanding.

It is hopeful, I think, that not all communities will adopt home-rule charters, but the reverse. In studying this entire question in the next four years for home-rule code, as you state correctly, or something similar to it, and by having to take procedural matters out of the existing codes and put them into a uniform code, it is going to be very difficult for any study group to address itself to that without finding out that you can compile into one code a great deal of the substantive matter that is now in eight or nine different codes. For instance, one substantive power all municipalities in Pennsylvania have is the right to buy paper clips. There is no need for that authority to appear in eight or nine or ten different codes. There could be a uniform code on substance. We have it to a certain extent. We have not mandated that, but you will find various codes worded differently. This municipality may contribute money to industrial development; in another code, this municipality or township may do this. As a result, you have to be an expert in all the codes to know either the procedural or substantive matters.

I would close by saying it is hoped that certain communities will adopt home-rule charters and there will be a uniform state procedural code. In the process of getting to that, we can use, in almost 80 per cent of our matters—the city of Pittsburgh has substantive powers the same as a second class township in many governmental matters and the corporate power is found in different codes. We do not mandate this, but I would see this as being the end result—the simplification of the code both in substance and the mandating of the simplification in procedural matters.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Thank you, Mr. President. I am sure you will have a quick and easy answer to this question. On page 2, lines 21, 22 and 23, how do these sentences affect the element of minority representation that we now have in the county commissioner structure?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It does not change it in any way whatsoever.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl, and we call attention to the fact that we have about six more minutes left under our questioning period.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, I would like to direct this question to Delegate Manderino.

Did I understand you, in your response to the question of Delegate Rea, to say that the powers of a municipality would be outlined in the home-rule charter?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Section 2 has the sentence at the end that the municipality having a home-rule charter may exercise any powers not denied by the General Assembly at any time. That requires, during the four-year period, that the General Assembly shall have what was referred to—it will not necessarily be in that form; it is a good phrase—as a home-rule code which will state that home-rule communities shall not exercise or enter into the following areas of jurisdiction: Labor law, divorce law, murder law, just as was done when the Philadelphia home-rule charter was adopted. The General Assembly had to do the same thing. There would have to be such a code denying powers to the municipality.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. I have a question to ask Delegate Manderino again, if I could, please.

Delegate Manderino, taking up in your answer to Delegate Rea, I gather that you feel that the situation would be quite chaotic were residual powers to be given to those governmental units which would not adopt home-rule charters, realizing, of course, that you, when you said that this would create a mess, did not mean it exactly that way.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. No, I meant just that, all except the statement.

DELEGATE SHARP. The question I ask you at the present time is that under our second-class township code, as a matter of fact, do not second-class townships enjoy broad residual powers?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes.

DELEGATE SHARP. They do at the present time?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, that is exactly what I was saying, Delegate Sharp. The problem of substantive powers in a local government area is that today an attorney, for instance, advising his counsel or his people, might be an expert in the third class city code and note immediately that in a third class city you can spend public money for ambulance service. You could not give an opinion on whether you could do that in a second class township. Recently the second class township, for instance, found out that was a problem. Their solicitors ruled that although all other municipalities in the Commonwealth had a statement in the code substantively to cover this, that they could spend public money for ambulance service, in the second class township code, nobody ever thought of it and it was not in there. They had to run to the legislature and get a bill passed allowing second class townships to spend money for an ambulance.

We think that when a study takes place to mandate a uniform procedural code and they clean out the existing codes, they are going to find out that the substantive powers that are in those codes can be condensed quite a bit and maybe even put into a uniform code so that you would not find a situation where a noncontroversial substantive power is in five codes and not in three or four other codes, whether it is a county or municipality or something like that.

DELEGATE SHARP. By the same token, Delegate Manderino, would it not be easier then to have the legislature prescribe a series of thou shalt nots, such as, thou shalt not engage in divorce law, labor law, and so forth, than the situation you criticize at the present time with the second class code by going to the legislature for "thou shalls" each time a problem arises.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. In other words, are you addressing that to the statement I made that giving residual powers without a home-rule charter would not be desirable and you are saying why not just have the General Assembly have a list of "thou shalt nots" instead of "thou shalt do?"

DELEGATE SHARP. Right.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. The problem with that is this: We are giving through the home-rule charter, a choice to the people of the municipality to determine whether they want to give their government a certain power. For instance, the citizens of Philadelphia and the citizens of Pittsburgh or the citizens of Erie may very well be willing to give a certain power to their local government that the 12 citizens of Seven Springs—which is now, I understand, an incorporated borough in Pennsylvania with 12 registered citizens—may not wish to give. We are actually putting three controls on residual power—the Constitution, the General Assembly and the people themselves in a given municipality. To take away that third control on residual power of the people who approve the home-rule charter would mean that we would be taking that control away in a municipality of 100 and a municipality of 500,000, and it was just felt that there can be differences in residual power that the people would want to give to a large community of half a million or a million and not want to give to a community of 60 or 10 or 500.

The General Assembly can decide what to take away, but we want the people in the municipality also to have that power to limit residual power for their community if they want to because there are certain municipal governments in Pennsylvania today that are sophisticated, with bureaus and boards, with full-time people, for instance, administering certain subject matters that the small municipality is not prepared either financially or in administrative personnel to do. If the people of that community want to give as much residual power to their government in a community of 50 as they do in a community of half a million, fine, they can do it; but we are putting in that additional control that the people must approve the residual power grant that is contained in a home-rule charter.

DELEGATE SHARP. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The hour is up for discussion on the question, but we have two delegates who apparently have questions, and we shall take those two and then cut it off.

The first is Delegate Woodring, who has been standing there for a long time.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. Chairman, I did not understand your answer about in what manner this document would preserve minority representation in the office of county commissioner.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It says: "Three county commissioners shall be elected in each county. In the election of said officers each qualified elector shall vote for no more than two persons, and the three persons having the highest number of votes shall be elected."

DELEGATE WOODRING. All of whom might be of the same party?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is exactly the way the present Constitution is written. You could have a situation in Allegheny County where you have three parties. You could have a representative from three different parties, which almost happened or could have happened in Allegheny County. Is that not correct, Delegate Morton?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Thank you, Mr. Chairman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. I would like to ask Delegate Manderino a question about his statement that 60 per cent of all matters relating to codes are procedural in nature. What do you mean by "procedural," Delegate Manderino? And is that an accepted definition in the context in which you are using it?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I think, as an example and as we said earlier, all attorneys know that the words "procedure" and "substance" do not have black and white lines; there are grey areas. I cannot give you a definition to the point of what would cover each one. I think the committee which considered this realized this problem.

For instance, you will find in the various codes matters of how to advertise for public works, when you must advertise, when you publish. Most of the codes contain a great deal of this matter which differs from municipality to municipality. This is not intended to mandate identical substantive powers to the various municipalities, which is what we were talking about in the last question. It is not intended that, if you give one municipality a certain power, you have to give it to another one; that still remains under the classification system of municipalities.

On procedural matters which do not affect substantive powers, a question might come up on where it falls, and I could not give an answer without a specific problem, and then it would only be a personal opinion; a court would have to determine that.

AMENDMENTS TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we are ready for the amendments in connection with the first four sections of Proposal No. 6 which have been discussed.

I might add that we have a total of seven amendments which have been received. For the first amendment, the Chair now recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Mr. President, I read in place and present an amendment to Section 1.

FORSTER AMENDMENT No. 1 TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FORSTER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, line 11, by removing the period after "charters" and inserting: as shall be provided by general law by the General Assembly.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, lines 11 and 12, by striking out "The General Assembly shall provide by general law for all municipalities the right and power to frame and adopt a home rule charter.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, as a man who works with words as a means of earning a livelihood, the redundancy of the first and second sentences of Section 2 offends me. I think we can accomplish by this amendment the same sense and have it much better from the standpoint of wording and style. All we are doing is combining the first sentence with the meaning of the second sentence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The original proposal which came out of the subcommittee was exactly the language which Delegate Forster presents, or close to it, which we agreed is better language than what came out of the legislative drafting bureau. We have no objection to it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Forster?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—129

Aberman	Dalley	Krill	Richter
Amsterdam	Desmond	Laputka	Roberts
Aurentz	Devlin	Leach	Ruth
Baldrige	Erwin	Lee, L.	Sabli
Baldus	Fawcett	Leinbach	Scales
Baldwin	Fay	Leonard	Scarlett
Banes	Feather	Levin	Scott
Barron	Filson	Manderino	Scranton
Barry	Fleming	Markley	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fohl	Mattioni	Shettig
Benedict	Forster	McGeary	Shively
Benfield	Fortney	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Bloom	Gabreski	Michael	Shrager
Braham	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Silverman
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, R.	Stout
Broderick	Goldman	Moorhead	Strickler
Brown	Goldstein	Morton	Swope
Buck	Gouger	Murray	Tate
Bunting	Griffith	Nelson	Thomson
Burkholder	Hannum	Orban	Thornburgh
Butera	Harding	Orbin	Tomascik
Cain	Henderson	Otto	Tully
Camardella	Heyburn	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Caputo	Himes	Pelletier	Waldron
Casey	Hook	Popil	Warman
Clark	Huggins	Pott	Welsh
Clinger	Irvis	Powell	Westerberg
Conley	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Rappaport	Wilcox
Cortese	Kauffman	Rea	Wilmarth
Croop	Keller, J.	Redick	Woodring
Cunningham	Kelly	Reynolds	Woodside
Curran

NAYS—2

Michener	Shapiro

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Fineman	Kline	Pechan
Bagenstose	Gray	Lane	Percey
Caron	Hatter	Lee, K.	Quiles
Cosetti	Hocker	Mangery	Rovner
Donaldson	Horne	Meyer	Sharp
Donolow	Hosteller	More	Solomon
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Musselman	Sprogell
Fagan	King	O'Donnell	Stroup

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

FORSTER AMENDMENT No. 2 TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FORSTER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, line 16, by striking out "A municipality having a home rule charter may exercise any power"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, lines 1 and 2, by striking out all of said lines, and inserting: A municipality having a home rule charter may exercise any power or perform any function which the General Assembly has heretofore granted or may hereafter grant by a home rule charter unless otherwise limited by this Constitution or by the General Assembly.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I hope we have as much success with this amendment as we had with the first one, but I am sure that the chairman will not concur.

In the early session of this Convention, there were references made to Pandora's box and about whether we should open it or not. I felt a lot like Pandora. If you recall, she could look into this box and see all the frightful things that were going to happen, but she could not get any of her fellow townspeople equally excited. So she lived a wildly exciting life and everybody else went about their normal pastimes without worry.

In the deliberations of the Local Government Committee, there was a case of love at first sight with two concepts. One of these was home rule; the other was residual powers, the reversing of Dillon's Rule. We enshrined these concepts and equated them with motherhood.

Home rule is fine when optional forms of government and related powers are specified by the legislature and a municipality can pick from a selection as a smorgasbord. But residual power is another kettle of fish altogether.

Just to refresh our memories on this, Dillon's Rule specified, as it was brought out in interrogation here, that a municipality shall have only those powers specifically delegated to it and none other. By reversing this, we, in effect, create several thousand General Assemblies with the power to enact tax legislation, labor legislation, consumer legislation, ad infinitum.

There was concern here yesterday, and properly so, about Pennsylvania's business and industrial climate, and we took action by a rather substantial majority to provide incentives that would help local groups promote industrial development in their area.

I submit it is as important, if not more important, than tax matters, for business to know exactly the rules, the laws, under which it is operating and playing the game.

It is hard enough for a business to keep track of what is going on in the General Assembly. I think it would be literally impossible even to learn what is going on in thousands of local legislatures with powers to act in this way

We have pointed out, and I am sure it will be pointed out again in the interrogation, that certain degrees of residual power now exist in the various codes, third class cities', first and second class townships'. I submit, however, that if we put this provision of residual power, as broad as it is, in a constitution rather than in codes, it will be much more difficult to deal with it.

Furthermore, a municipality adopting a home-rule charter takes up a new form of government and it will be flexing its muscles and wishing to exercise its powers. So the fact that the municipalities have not now exercised their residual power that they may have in their code is no assurance that they will not do so in the future.

I am not standing here and saying that these evils will happen, but they could happen. So I say, why take the risk? Furthermore, municipalities do not need unlimited power to meet their problems. They do need more power than they have today perhaps, but not unlimited power.

This amendment simply specifies that instead of opening up the flood gates without any restriction whatsoever, a municipality which adopts a home-rule charter shall have the powers that have been granted in any home-rule charter that already exists, and that is Philadelphia. I say it is giving plenty of power to municipalities to give them the power that Philadelphia has.

Thank you.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, our committee is opposed to this amendment. As to the city of Philadelphia, we have a saving clause for the city of Philadelphia so that its home-rule charter is not disturbed. Delegate Manderino will take it from here.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, thank you. We would oppose this amendment for basically two reasons. First let me say this: What it attempts to do I do not think there is any objection to, but, in effect, it again is losing faith in the General Assembly. It says that we want to already take what the General Assembly has done in the case of Philadelphia and do that with all other communities. Well, there may be nothing wrong with that but why lock it in? Now the General Assembly, as time goes by, in 10 years, 20, 30, 50 or 60 years, may even want to change the grant of power to Philadelphia or to deny power to Philadelphia that it now has. We think the General Assembly can handle that by our clause that the General Assembly at all times can deny anything it wishes to a municipality.

The other objection is, this can be interpreted to do exactly what we are trying to reverse in the Convention and that is, Dillon's Rule. We want the philosophy, as someone stated before, that communities can do anything except what the state code says "thou shalt not do." The way this is worded in the fourth line, "A municipality having a home-rule charter may exercise any power, perform any function which the General Assembly has heretofore granted, or may hereafter grant" makes it sound to me that that can be interpreted that they have got to positively grant the power rather than negatively deny it, which is really the whole problem of those who criticize Dillon's Rule, that you must keep running to the legislature to get every grant of power that you wish. I do not really think the amendment is needed because we are assuming the General Assembly will live up to its obligations and responsibilities in the full study of home-rule charters. We are not afraid, for instance, that the General Assembly is not going to do exactly what they did in the case of Philadelphia—pass legislation denying what they did not want Philadelphia to go into. Now the General Assembly can do what this amendment does very easily if it thinks that is right. When the General Assembly meets after this Constitution is adopted, all somebody has to do is put in a bill and say that any community in this Commonwealth adopting a home-rule charter is denied all the powers that were denied to cities of the first class. That legislation could be written in two minutes and passed, but we should not be doing that in the Constitution. We are leaving it up to the General Assembly to do that. It will not take them four years to do that; they can do it in five minutes simply by saying, we deny all powers to everybody that we did not give to Philadelphia, and that is it. It would accomplish the same purpose as this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, I rise to support the amendment introduced by Delegate Forster. I am pleased to hear from the co-chairman of the committee of the great faith and their renewed and re-renewed faith in what the legislature will do. I do not think that, however, is really consistent with the sword hanging over the legislature's head that begins on line 12, that if they do not do it such and such will happen. I think that if they are going to have full and complete faith, they should have full and complete faith.

This amendment calls for specific uniformity. It will avoid possible fragmentation that could occur in all the units of local government if this provision were not passed. I sincerely urge its adoption.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, Delegate Forster talked about the fact that business has to know the rules of the game. Well, let us find out what business does think about it. In a letter addressed to all the delegates dated January 29, 1968, the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce made the point, among others, that the explosive growth of industrial parks in the suburbs of Philadelphia demands that suburban political divisions be given the same powers of government as has Philadelphia as a first class city under Pennsylvania laws. They go on to say that they believe, for example, that Lower Merion Township should have equal powers of government to control and protect the safety and health of those who live and work on the west side of City Line Avenue as the city of Philadelphia has for workers and residents on the east side of that dividing street.

Further, we received a comunication from the Intergovernmental Council of Allegheny County Boroughs and Townships. This is not the city talking; these are the councils and the commissioners and the supervisors out in the country of Allegheny County, and they, in position No. 5, ask for residual power for themselves and they feel that they can take care of it.

An example came up in the testimony, I think, before one of the preparatory conferences. I believe it was after questions by Delegate Baldus, the point was made that under the present, I believe it is, Third Class City Code, third class cities have the power to abolish cock fights and dog fights, but the problem of cat fights is not mentioned at all, and, therefore, it may very well be that if the city of Monesson wants to legislate in the field of cat fights, they would have to come up here and get the power to do so for third class cities. And as a further point—I am not trying to take away the livelihood of anybody representing the various township associations—I am informed that well over half the legislation going through the legislature every year deals with these little problems involving residual powers for various units of local government. It is our desire that the legislature be relieved of this burden and that all these little problems can be solved by units of local government, and it is our desire that this be done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Warman.

DELEGATE WARMAN. Mr. President, I move the question on the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready?

DELEGATE FORSTER. Mr. President, I think the proposer of an amendment on previous occasions . . .

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have the right to close.

DELEGATE FORSTER. I am delighted that Delegate Rappaport has spoken in favor of my amendment. He suggests that the Greater Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce says that these surrounding areas should have the same powers as Philadelphia, and this is precisely what my amendment proposes.

That is all I need to say. I think we ought to watch the confusion which could result if we do not do something limiting of this nature in the Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall now unlock the voting machine and proceed to vote on the Forster amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Forster?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—33

Baldwin	Fohl	Hocker	Reynolds
Cain	Forster	Jirolanio	Richter
Camardella	Fortney	Meyer	Scott
Clinger	Goldstein	Levin	Solomon
Cortese	Gouger	Nelson	Stout
Curran	Harding	Pott	Strickler
Desmond	Henderson	Powell	Waldron
Devlin	Heyburn	Rea	Woodring
Fleming

NAYS—97

Aberman	Cunningham	Manderino	Scarlett
Amsterdam	Dailey	Mangery	Scranton
Aurentz	Erwin	Markley	Sebastian
Baldrige	Fawcett	Mattioni	Shapiro
Baldus	Fay	McGeary	Sharp
Banes	Feather	McGlynn	Shettig
Barron	Filson	Michael	Shively
Barry	Gabreski	Michener	Shoemaker
Bashoff	Goldman	Miller, D.	Shrager
Benedict	Griffith	Miller, R.	Silverman
Benfield	Hannum	Moorhead	Swope
Bloom	Himes	Murray	Tate
Braham	Hook	Orban	Thomson
Brennan	Irvis	Orbin	Thornburgh
Broderick	Johnson	Otto	Tomascik
Brown	Kauffman	Pasquerilla	Tully
Buck	Keller, J.	Popil	Van Sant
Bunting	Kelly	Prendergast	Warman
Burkholder	Krill	Rappaport	Welsh
Butera	Laputka	Redick	Westerberg
Caputo	Leach	Roberts	Whittum
Casey	Lee, L.	Ruth	Wilcox
Conley	Leinbach	Sahli	Wilmarth
Corey	Leonard	Scales	Woodside
Croop

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Fineman	Keller, M.	O'Donnell
Bagenstose	Gehrlein	King	Pechan
Caron	Gerber	Kline	Pelletier
Clark	Gray	Lane	Percey
Cosetti	Hatter	Lee, K.	Quiles
Donaldson	Horne	More	Rovner
Donolow	Hostetler	Morton	Sprogell
Dumbauld	Huggins	Musselman	Stroup
Fagan

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

COMMITTEE MEETING

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leach.

DELEGATE LEACH. Mr. President, while the amendment is being distributed, and so that we do not get lost in the confusion of adjournment this evening, I would like to make a committee meeting announcement.

The Officers and the Rules Committee will meet immediately following adjournment this evening in the usual room, 401, fourth floor, center, of the Capitol.

FOHL AMENDMENT No. 1 TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now asks the clerk to take the next amendment, which is Delegate Fohl's amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FOHL offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, lines 12 to 16; page 2, lines 1 and 2 by striking out "If the General" in line 12, all of lines 13 to 16, page 1 and all of lines 1 and 2, page 2

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, this is a very clear and concise amendment and I shall make my comments very short.

This amendment does, as everyone yesterday, today, and the day before has said they wanted to do, and that is, this does place our implicit faith, trust, and confidence in the General Assembly. I have the confidence that with the first sentence in this section saying "The General Assembly shall set up procedures for the adoption of home-rule charters in municipalities," I believe they will. I noticed, in response to most of the interrogation, the tenor of the answers was practically based on the fact that they will. So let us acknowledge that they will and eliminate—it may be more than excess verbiage, but let us eliminate—the alternative proposed in Section 2.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. We have to definitely oppose very strongly this amendment, because it destroys the whole article on home rule. The whole purpose under which we are operating is that we have given the legislature four years to adopt certain laws, and if they do not, this eliminates the self-executing feature of our home-rule proposal.

It seems to me—after discussion with the legislature, and they say they can do it in four years—if we eliminate the four years and it is not done, then we have eliminated the self-executing feature of this article. It may take more than four years, and we have defeated the whole purpose of granting home rule, residual powers, and reversing Dillon's Rule, which is the whole real nut of the Home Rule Proposal Section No. 2.

We urge you to defeat this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. I would like to ask Delegate Pasquerilla a question, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. You may.

DELEGATE FOHL. When you say that you have talked to the General Assembly or the legislature, just to whom did you talk?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. There were members of the legislature in our committee, if you remember, Delegate Fohl. The original committee proposal came out "two years." Somebody suggested five and several of the members of the legislature stated that they felt—including the minority leader—this work could be done within four years and they had no objection to it.

DELEGATE FOHL. Could those "several members" have been just the minority leader?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I do not recall that.

DELEGATE FOHL. I think I do recall it.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. But it is not very important.

DELEGATE FOHL. As much respect as I might have for them, the comments of Senator Kline hardly represent—and I think that he probably would not want you to so represent the legislature.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I did not mention his name, Mr. President.

DELEGATE FOHL. The minority leader of the Senate.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, it seems to me that the proposal we are here discussing cuts rights to the heart of all that we have said about drafting a Constitution for the next century.

I live in a county which has felt the full burden of the modern world. I have seen farm land in my county go from plowed land to a city of 120,000 in the space of four or five years. If we do not have, in counties like Bucks, Montgomery, Delaware, Chester, Allegheny and those that will surround Scranton and Erie in the future, the right to do the things that this Committee Proposal No. 6 gives in Section No. 2, that is, the right to form home-rule units, the right to govern ourselves intelligently, the right to try to make the adjustment between an urban society and a rural society, it seems to me that we are literally doomed.

I do not see how we can go into the future with the old forms of government hanging around our neck as they do in my county where you have a great new second-class township with some 70,000 or 80,000 in population and you have a borough a few miles away of 200 people, each trying to govern themselves by outmoded forms of government. This cuts right to the heart of a modern constitution. I think it would be disastrous if the amendment proposed here was passed because it cuts out the self-operating form.

I have been, as you may know, a staunch defender of the legislature and in all the debate that follows, I will continue to be so. I want the legislature to have all its rights. I think the legislature should even have more rights than it now has, but in the past this great Commonwealth has suffered on repeated occasions over the confusion between those tricky little verbs "shall," "will" and "may." I am all for this hard working committee which is trying to pick its way so carefully between those verbs so that in the future we shall have certain rights in this Commonwealth to do the things that are required to be done.

I earnestly recommend that this amendment be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I would yield to Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. No, please go right ahead.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He yields to you, Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. No, he just passed it right back to me.

Mr. President, what we are faced with here is a question which was very seriously considered in the standing committee. The sole question is not as Delegate Michener would have put it, whether or not we shall or shall not have home rule; the sole issue is whether it shall become self-enacting home rule, whether or not we should wait for the legislature to do it or whether, in the event of the failure of the legislature to give us these rules, these communities can do it by themselves, by their own initiative, self-enacting.

I would like to ask Delegate Morton to comment on this. During our standing committee meetings, he had some very cogent remarks about the problems involved with a self-enacting, self-executing home rule aspect as to what we have put into it. I think if Delegate Morton would comment on those, I think his comments would be very well taken.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, may I have the privilege of correcting Delegate Goldman? In the standing committee, there was never any discussion of eliminating self-executing home-rule charters. We had a disagreement in the committee as to whether counties should have the right of self-executing, but we never disagreed that other municipalities would not have the right. The only question was whether it should be two years or three years or four years and the vote was overwhelmingly for the four years.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Delegate Pasquerilla, you missed my point.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I did not miss your point.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. No, I think you missed the point. I am not quibbling here whether or not the legislature shall establish rules. My whole point is whether this shall become self-executing, and my only point is that Delegate Morton did have some very good remarks in regard to it. He had some remarks which pointed out the obvious dangers in having a self-executing clause in the constitution as we now have it and the amendment which proposes to eliminate it. I am merely suggesting, even though we passed it favorably in our standing committee, that Delegate Morton's comments on this would be well worth having the other delegates listen to.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I only call your attention to make the correction that we did not have serious discussion or we did disagree on the self-executing provision.

Delegate Morton, do you want to come to the microphone if the President will recognize you?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. In light of what Delegate Goldman said, I am delighted to be here. I only hope that we perpetuated those remarks and can get them into the record.

I would like to clarify one thing. As Co-Chairman of the Home Rule Subcommittee, my remarks on self-executing were directed to the counties; I was opposed to counties having self-executing home rule, and it was not to boroughs, townships and cities. As to those, my position was that there should be some figure above which it was self-executing and below a figure as to which the legislature had complete control.

Population figure: I felt that on a population figure, because as I anticipated, when you adopt a home-rule charter, you have to adopt an administrative code, that it was really only a large community that had a full-time staff which could cope with these things. But it was only a population figure on municipalities.

My main point was on self-executing for counties.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. I oppose the amendment. The self-executing nature of the home-rule provision goes to the very heart of the provision.

Certainly we wish the legislature to take action. We would be very disappointed if the legislature failed to take action, but as this group should be very well aware, there is nothing like a time limit to galvanize the legislature into action.

I think we must defeat this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldwin.

DELEGATE BALDWIN. Mr. President, I rise in favor of this amendment.

Just a few days ago, we were very willing and happy to give the legislature all the power, and many of us were willing to give them unlimited debt. We had the faith in the legislature to carry out the needs of our money in this State. I think we need the faith in the legislature, at this time, to carry out the requests of the Constitutional Convention and allow for home rule.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. Just a brief comment. I rise to support this amendment. It would be inconsistent if I did not.

Since the amendment I offered originally which was defeated was put in as a safeguard against the possibility of the self-executing nature, I think the self-executing idea is a risk we should not take.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to this amendment with the short statement that I came to this Constitutional Convention not as a policeman.

Delegate Fohl and all the other delegates here wear a badge like I do. I do not consider that to be a policeman's badge; I consider it to be a badge for freedom, if you want to look at it that way.

I, therefore, rise in opposition to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Otto.

DELEGATE OTTO. Mr. President, as one of the delegates who sponsored a proposal in favor of home rule being granted to boroughs, townships and cities, I would feel remiss if I did not stand in opposition to this amendment. I urge the delegates to vote it down.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fohl?

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—12

Baldwin	Curran	Heyburn	Pott
Barron	Fohl	Keller, J.	Powell
Butera	Forster	Meyer	Waldron

NAYS—119

Aberman	Desmond	Leinbach	Sahli
Amsterdam	Devlin	Leonard	Scales
Aurentz	Erwin	Levin	Scarlett
Baldrige	Fawcett	Manderino	Scott
Banes	Fay	Mangery	Scranton
Barry	Feather	Markley	Sebastian
Bashoff	Filson	Mattioni	Shapiro
Benedict	Fortney	McGeary	Sharp
Benfield	Gabreski	McGlynn	Shettig
Bloom	Gehrlein	Michael	Shively
Braham	Gerber	Michener	Shoemaker
Brennan	Goldman	Miller, D.	Shrager
Broderick	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Silverman
Brown	Gouger	Moorhead	Stout
Buck	Griffith	More	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Murray	Tate
Burkholder	Harding	Nelson	Thomson
Cain	Henderson	Orban	Thornburgh
Camardella	Himes	Orbin	Tomascik
Caputo	Hocker	Otto	Tully
Casey	Hook	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Clark	Irvis	Popil	Warman
Clinger	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Welsh
Conley	Johnson	Rappaport	Westerberg
Corey	Kauffman	Rea	Whittum
Cortese	Kelly	Redick	Wilcox
Cosetti	Krill	Reynolds	Wilmarth
Croop	Laputka	Richter	Woodring
Cunningham	Leach	Roberts	Woodside
Dailey	Lee, L.	Ruth

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Fineman	King	Pelletier
Bagenstose	Fleming	Kline	Percey
Baldus	Gray	Lane	Quiles
Caron	Hatter	Lee, K.	Rovner
Donaldson	Horne	Morton	Solomon
Donolow	Hostetler	Musselman	Sprogell
Dumbauld	Huggins	O'Donnell	Strickler
Fagan	Keller, M.	Peehan	Stroup

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Thank you, Mr. President, for the kind word "gentleman."

In the previous amendment by Delegate Forster, I voted in the negative. I would like to change that vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Your remarks will be put on the record. We cannot change the vote total as such.

BENEDICT AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BENEDICT offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 1, by striking out "by the General Assembly or"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 2, by removing the period after "charter" and inserting: or by the General Assembly at any time.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Benedict.

DELEGATE BENEDICT. Mr. President, I would like to preface my brief remarks by saying that this one is not unconstitutional; it is the consensus of opinion of all the committee chairmen.

There had been a question arise that "by General Assembly" might have meant that that was deleted, that it was not going to be used at present. This is a correction that this is forever or it is in the next four years or at any time. This has the backing of the whole committee and I hope it will have the unanimous backing here, for a change.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. There have been some questions that if and when a municipality adopts a home-rule charter and with it goes residual powers, does the General Assembly remain supreme at all times. In our proposal we had General Assembly before home-rule charter and some of the people here who were in favor of this proposal wanted us to be absolutely sure that the General Assembly would remain supreme and, therefore, we accept this amendment. It does not change the intent of the committee.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Benedict?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, may I make a comment? Some of the chairmen here, Delegate Pasquerilla and I and the others have delegates there and we signal them the way we want them to vote for us. Some of them are not voting the way we are signalling.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Everybody has now had an opportunity to read their signals and cast their votes so we are going to ask the clerk to lock the machine and record the vote. I think the answer to this is: If you want an amendment to go through, you have to pick an attractive girl to offer it.

The roll call was recorded as follows:

YEAS—131

Aberman	Desmond	Leach	Roberts
Amsterdam	Devlin	Lee, L.	Ruth
Aurentz	Erwin	Leinbach	Sahli
Baldrige	Fawcett	Leonard	Scales
Baldwin	Fay	Levin	Scarlett
Banes	Feather	Manderino	Scott
Barron	Filson	Mangery	Scranton
Barry	Fleming	Markley	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fohl	Mattioni	Shapiro
Benedict	Forster	McGeary	Sharp
Benfield	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Bloom	Gabreski	Meyer	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	Michael	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	Michener	Silverman
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, D.	Solomon
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Stout
Buck	Gouger	Moorhead	Swope
Bunting	Griffith	More	Tate
Burkholder	Hannum	Morton	Thomson
Butera	Harding	Murray	Thornburgh
Camardella	Henderson	Nelson	Tomasčik
Caputo	Heyburn	Orban	Tully
Casey	Himes	Orbin	Van Sant
Clark	Hocker	Otto	Waldron
Clinger	Hook	Pasquerilla	Warman
Conley	Irvis	Popil	Welsh
Corey	Jirolanio	Powell	Westerberg
Cortese	Johnson	Prendergast	Whittum
Cosetti	Kauffman	Rappaport	Wilcox
Croop	Keller, J.	Rea	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Kelly	Redick	Woodring
Curran	Krill	Reynolds	Woodside
Dailey	Laputka	Richter

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Fagan	King	Percey
Bagenstose	Fineman	Kline	Pott
Baldus	Gray	Lane	Quiles
Cain	Hatter	Lee, K.	Rovner
Caron	Horne	Musselman	Shettig
Donaldson	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Sprogell
Donolow	Huggins	Pechan	Strickler
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Pelletier	Stroup

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

The Chair recognizes another attractive girl, Delegate Brown.

DELEGATE BROWN. Mr. President, I would like to state that I do not think that Committee Chairman Manderino was quite correct in saying that his signals were being lost. We do not need any signals; we know what we are doing.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, I did not mean the other delegates, I mean, for instance, Delegate Scales is voting for me so I will not have to run up. I notice that someone has a "no" vote for Jim Morton on that and he had to have it changed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want to point out to the chairmen that that is a violation of the rules. I am sure he will cast his own vote in the future.

FOHL AMENDMENT No. 3 TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is offered by Delegate Fohl.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE FOHL offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, line 15 by inserting after "adoption": , amendment, or repeal

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fohl.

DELEGATE FOHL. Mr. President, I view this as a corrective amendment. I think there is a discussion by our co-chairmen now and if they do not view it as a corrective amendment, I will withdraw it. I view it as a corrective amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let us hear from Chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. We are having a caucus down here, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Caucuses are not permitted in this Convention.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLO. We are now studying the language.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are having a discussion, a conference.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It is the consensus of the chairmen that this does clarify the language and we will accept the amendment if the delegates will accept it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Fohl?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—135

Aberman	Dailey	Leach	Roberts
Amsterdam	Desmond	Lee, L.	Ruth
Aurentz	Devlin	Leinbach	Sahli
Baldrige	Erwin	Leonard	Scales
Baldus	Fawcett	Levin	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fay	Manderino	Scott
Banes	Feather	Mangery	Scranton
Barron	Filson	Markley	Sebastian
Barry	Fleming	Mattioni	Shapiro
Bashoff	Fohl	McGeary	Sharp
Benedict	Forster	McGlynn	Shettig
Benfield	Fortney	Meyer	Shively
Bloom	Gabreski	Michael	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	Michener	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, D.	Silverman
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, R.	Solomon
Brown	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Buck	Gouger	More	Swope
Bunting	Griffith	Morton	Tate
Burkholder	Hannum	Murray	Thomson
Butera	Harding	Nelson	Thornburgh
Cain	Henderson	Orban	Tomasčik
Camardella	Heyburn	Orbin	Tully
Caputo	Himes	Otto	Van Sant
Casey	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Clark	Hook	Popil	Warman
Clinger	Irvis	Pott	Welsh
Conley	Jirolanio	Powell	Westerberg
Corey	Johnson	Prendergast	Whittum
Cortese	Kauffman	Rappaport	Wilcox
Cosetti	Keller, J.	Rea	Wilmarth
Croop	Kelly	Redick	Woodring
Cunningham	Krill	Reynolds	Woodside
Curran	Laputka	Richter

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—28

Allison	Fineman	King	Pelletier
Bagenstose	Gray	Kline	Percey
Caron	Hatter	Lane	Quiles
Donaldson	Horne	Lee, K.	Rovner
Donolow	Hostetler	Musselman	Sprogell
Dumbauld	Huggins	O'Donnell	Strickler
Fagan	Keller, M.	Pechan	Stroup

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

GOLDMAN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is offered by Delegate Goldman.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, line 15, by removing the period after "charter" where it appears the first time, and inserting: : Provided, however, That under such a charter no municipality shall establish or impose taxes without prior approval of the General Assembly.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I wish I could say that this was an amendment in the nature of cleaning up language, then maybe we could get it approved immediately. Unfortunately it is not. This is the type of amendment which I think goes to the very nature or the basic heart of local municipalities, and that is, their right to impose taxes upon their citizens.

I see, as we now have this particular proposal, Proposal No. 6 before us, the right of any of these municipalities to adopt a self-executing home-rule charter. Now I recognize that only as a possibility in the event the legislature does not act within four years, but since we have already provided for the legislature's inaction, I think it is necessary to provide for this type of protection. What we now have, or what would be available to local communities, would be to impose a wage tax or any other type of occupation tax upon any of its residents or nonresidents, and that is the important factor—its nonresidents. We could very conceivably have, for example, in a county like Allegheny County, where we have 129 different municipalities and the county itself, all of them adopting their own home-rule charter, all of them providing for the right to impose a wage tax or a business-privilege-occupation tax, and all of the communities capable of imposing this tax on anyone who travels within its borders or makes an occasional sale or transacts any business whatsoever within the confines of that community.

The purpose of this amendment—and I might add that this amendment would still hold true when we later get to the question of whether or not counties should have home rule or self-executing home rule would also apply to just the various municipalities themselves, regardless of whether counties have it—is to require that before any municipality can impose any tax on anyone, it must have prior approval from the General Assembly. The only thing I am attempting to accomplish by this is to prevent a multiplicity of the same type of tax being imposed upon citizens traveling from one community to another. For example, a traveling salesman who makes sales in each of the 129 communities; if we do not have this amendment, each of the communities could impose its tax on this salesman. He would have to pay it 129 times. This is not fair. It is not equitable. I believe this is an area that is clearly one for the legislature to establish who shall have precedence in the right of taxation, and that is all I intend to do by this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caputo.

DELEGATE CAPUTO. Mr. President and fellow delegates, without belaboring the issue here, this would kill the home-rule part of this proposal definitely. Unless you can tax, you cannot conduct programs that may be acceptable to the people of the community. And if you take away the right to tax from the boroughs and cities and townships, then they cannot function under the home-rule charter that we are trying to adopt here in this delegation. I am opposed to the amendment.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. If I may answer that, please?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I do not intend to impose any restrictions on any home-rule charter, on any borough, township, city or county. All I intend to do is to prevent a multiplicity of taxes and allow the General Assembly to establish who shall have the right to tax in order of precedence—not necessarily to say that they cannot tax—just to prevent the multiplicity of the taxes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scott.

DELEGATE SCOTT. Mr. President, I rise in protest to this amendment. This would bankrupt all the cities, townships, boroughs and counties. We divided the wage tax with the school district in our city to the tune of $360,000 to $400,000 and if this were passed, I do not know what we would do. We cannot wait for the legislature to act. They may not act within a period of two or three years on this. This is a preposterous amendment, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I merely wanted to make the observation, Mr. President, that if we start in legislating those things that we want the legislature to do, we could spend the next year, perhaps, doing it. We could provide that they shall not pass laws prescribing the punishment for felonies. We could prescribe all those other things that we have carefully avoided prescribing. This really goes to what we have left to the legislature to do and, of course, it should be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, the Subcommittee on Home Rule brought out a report which listed powers under home-rule charters and then began to list various limitations.

After much discussion in the standing committee, it was decided that all of these limitations do not belong in a constitution, that this is a matter for the legislature and not for the constitution which we are writing here today.

For instance, some of the things which were eliminated were the right to enact private or civil laws, govern civil relationships, to define and provide for the punishment of misdemeanors and felonies, to regulate public schools. We began to write a whole list of powers which under home rule should be denied. As a result, by standing committee action, all of these things were eliminated from the report and left up to the legislature to establish.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be recognized, Delegate Rea?

DELEGATE REA. Fellow delegates, I speak very seriously on this subject and I speak in favor of it probably because I have been a municipal solicitor for many, many years and have represented four or five boroughs and townships. I know that what is being created here when you give home rule is a dangerous thing, because you are also leaving boroughs and townships without home rule.

Right now boroughs and townships have authority to impose taxes as given to them under the Borough Code or the Township Code. They are limited by the legislature to what they can tax. In home rule, if they are allowed to tax anything they want, you are going to create the worst hodgepodge you can ever imagine. In one county, if you have, for instance, ten municipalities, if five of them can only tax as the legislature says they can tax, that is, they have not adopted home rule, and yet the other five which have adopted home rule can tax without legislative authority, you are going to create an unfairness between citizens in the same county who live adjacent to one another.

This is where the problem is. The problem is, as long as you have boroughs and townships existing which must abide by the Borough Code and can only tax as the legislature gives them the power to tax, if half of them are like that, and yet you give the other half of the boroughs and townships, the many thousands which we have in the State, the right to tax any way they want, it is not fair and it is going to create situations where certain municipalities will get a great deal of revenue and the poor boroughs and townships which do not adopt home-rule charters cannot do anything until the legislature finally catches up and says: "Yes, we will give you a little bit more authority to tax."

So please do not dismiss this amendment lightly. It is the heart and soul of every borough and township.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. Chairman, I would like to call attention to the fact that, while the objective, I feel, is proper, the road that is being taken with this amendment is so fraught with danger that I have to oppose the amendment.

I want to call to the attention of the delegates here that one of the mainstays of taxation and tax bases in many local governments in Pennsylvania for many years has been the old Act 481, now known as Act 511, the tax-anything law. I can see nothing but repeal of the tax anything law in this amendment.

I, therefore, have to ask for opposition to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Warman.

DELEGATE WARMAN. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Goldman a question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure he will be interrogated.

DELEGATE WARMAN. Will existing taxes still be in force under this proposed amendment?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Yes. The only thing I am attempting to accomplish by this is where I say: "Provided, however, That under such a charter"—in other words, where you have a charter, it is theoretically assumed, and I think properly assumed, that the municipality adopting this charter has the right to do anything it wants.

We have certain taxes which are in existence at this time; those taxes will remain. The only thing I am trying to eliminate is the creation of new taxes; no new taxes can be created where a community adopts a home-rule charter without the prior approval of the General Assembly. I am trying to avoid the tremendous multiplicity of taxes that will inevitably result.

Delegate Thomson, if I may comment, my opening sentence, my opening words, are: "That under such a charter," and by that I mean, under such a home-rule charter. I do not intend to do away with any of the present tax laws nor any of the present tax structures, but merely limit under the new home rule charter that these communities will have the right to impose new taxes without General Assembly approval.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. It seems to me that the word "approval" is not the correct word in there and that it ought to be without prior authority of the General Assembly.

As I understand, what Delegate Goldman wants to accomplish is that the local municipalities with a home-rule charter cannot tax anything that is not provided either now or hereafter in some statutory authority. I can see merit in that proposal, but I do not like to take exception with my good friend Delegate Thomson over there. If I properly read this and the word "approval" would be changed to "authority", it would mean that before any municipality could impose a tax, they would have to look somewhere in the statutes of this Commonwealth to find the authority to do that one thing, and that does not seem to be an unreasonable proposition to me.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. If Delegate Woodside wants to offer that as an amendment to the amendment, I would be willing to accept it.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I would like to offer it as an amendment, because I think that would be the proper word in there.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are not doing it in the proper manner, but unless the Chair hears objection, you can offer your amendment orally and we will mark the amendments that have been distributed accordingly.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I move that this amendment to the proposal be amended by striking out the word "approval" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "authority."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are going to consider the Goldman amendment as having been changed. Is that agreeable with you, Delegate Goldman?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. That is agreeable with me.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The word "authority" having been substituted for the word "approval."

The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I rise, Mr. President, to briefly echo the remarks of my co-member of the Home Rule Subcommittee, Delegate Thomson.

We have heard a tremendous parade of horrors. I cannot conceive of a member of the state legislature coming from a suburban or a rural area who will be representing municipalities that have home-rule charters and municipalities which do not have home-rule charters in any way agreeing that they shall have different tax powers.

I am sure that the legislature will provide uniform taxing powers, whether you want to call it powers or approval or whatever, to all units of local government whether or not they have a home rule charter.

In our deliberations before the committee, as was stated, I believe, by Delegate Pasquerilla, we decided to eliminate all of this and let the legislature deal with it.

There are many other things that local government could do. For a different township, it could create a felony for littering the highways, unless the legislature told them they could not do it, and they could say people shall spend 10 years in jail for littering the roads. They could grab me when I drive through there if I littered the highway, and I could be sent to jail for 10 years. Even my good friend from Tredyffrin could not help me. Therefore, we think the legislature should have the complete plenary power to regulate taxation, the local laws and everything else, and we are sure that they are going to do it and do a proper job and treat everybody equally, which is precisely what we want.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro, who has been standing there for a while.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I have not been standing that long, Mr. President. I was waiting to see if the committee chairman would make this point. Perhaps he had not caught it.

I think Delegate Woodside intended, I suppose, to make a change which would enable home-rule charters to be adopted without loss of taxing powers. I would suggest that I do not think even with his amendment to the Goldman amendment that this is the result.

I believe taxing powers are granted by the legislature to specified classes of municipalities. I submit that a municipality which adopts a home-rule charter is no longer either a first-class township or second-class township or borough or anything else to which the legislature has heretofore granted taxing powers.

Therefore, even with the change, the Goldman amendment would still have the effect of nullifying the self-executing provision which the committee has provided and would prevent any municipality from adopting a home-rule charter unless and until the legislature acted to enable it to collect taxes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Thank you, Mr. President.

The change of the one word, in our opinion, does not change the amendment. It may change it in meaning, but we would still oppose the amendment for this reason: As Chairman Pasquerilla mentioned, the whole philosophy of home rule is that you do not start legislating in the Constitution. I know we keep talking about what are you going to let the General Assembly do and what you are not going to let the General Assembly do. Do you trust the General Assembly or do you not? Actually, you cannot trust the General Assembly 100 per cent. If you did, you would not need a state constitution. You would not need a Federal Constitution if you trusted Congress 100 per cent.

The reason we have constitutions is because there is a small limited area, and where you draw the line is open to question, where we do not trust men whether they are elected, short, tall or what. The Constitution says there are certain things that are too important and other things are not. I would suggest that under the home-rule proposal as submitted by the committee, there are many more important things that we do not refer to in there that the General Assembly has to deny to local communities.

For instance, under the home-rule proposal as now written and all constitutional home-rule proposals, a city council, if the General Assembly did nothing, could pass its own divorce law. They could tell people in a borough how to get a divorce. Come to City Hall, talk to the Mayor for ten minutes, if he finds in favor of your divorce—

Now we certainly do not intend that to happen, and if we did, we would assume that the General Assembly was not going to fulfill its duties and obligations. But we submit that if all limitations were taken out, so that the General Assembly could enumerate, and this is exactly what they did in the case of Philadelphia. There is nothing in the constitution which limits Philadelphia's home-rule charter. But the General Assembly did not pass a law saying Philadelphia, you have a home-rule charter. Do as you please. No, no, the General Assembly passed a law saying to Philadelphia, you have a home-rule charter, but we take these powers away from you.

The General Assembly will do the enumerating, whether it is in taxes, whether it is in felonies, whether it is in divorces. There are going to be a lot of areas which are going to be taken away from local government.

I reiterate, it is not necessarily that if we were members of the General Assembly we would not vote for this, but the intention is created that if we do not do this, there will be chaos. I assure you that if the General Assembly does not do anything within the next four years under this home-rule charter provision, there will be chaos to an extent.

By the same token, I submit that if the General Assembly does not meet in the next four years, even if we do not change the constitution and they all say no, under the existing Constitution of 1873, there will still be chaos if the General Assembly stays home the next four years under the old constitution. We do not expect them to stay home; we expect them to be here, to do and recognize the problems as they did under the Philadelphia home-rule charter.

Therefore, we would oppose this for the simple reason that if we were going to enumerate, there are many more important things we could enumerate other than this amendment concerning taxation. One which was mentioned was felonies, murders. We do not want municipalities passing under murder laws, but the General Assembly has to provide for this in the home-rule code, and we feel that if we start enumerating, as was done in the subcommittee—and they agreed when we got to the standing committee that if you start enumerating denials, there is no end to it of that which does not belong to the constitution.

I might mention that—this is just a side line, Delegate Goldman, but I think—in the standing committee, you made the motion that we would delete all the other limitations from the Constitution, and I think the record shows this.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Right.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. And I think that the rest of the committee felt that there are just as many other important things in addition to taxation that we should not enumerate. We are definitely relying on the General Assembly to frame an overall study of legislation which will include the matter of taxation and would therefore leave no problem of interpreting this to mean something in the future.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on this?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. I would like to move the question.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. May I just make one comment, Mr. President? I suggest a point of order, Mr. President. Do I have the right to sum up?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Welsh has the floor. Did you want to say something?

DELEGATE WELSH. No, if Delegate Goldman is going to speak again, I suggest a point of order. He has already spoken about four times, and I think the rules—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are absolutely right. The rules limit it to two times on debate, but everybody has been given an opportunity to sum up. Does Delegate Goldman want to make a one-sentence summation?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Just a quick sum-up to Delegate Manderino's comments in the field of crimes, in the field of legislation, such as divorce laws. Our legislature has already acted by the very nature of the words of our proposal as it came out of the standing committee. This is already exempt from what a home-rule charter can or cannot put in it. What I am attempting to put in is something of a safeguard that goes beyond what the legislature has already done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. Chairman, I would say that I still believe that Delegate Goldman's objective is correct. I think this is a completely wrong concept of a way of correcting a situation of which he is afraid. I certainly say I would greatly admire the courage of any municipality in Pennsylvania which, if this were in effect, would form or ask for a home-rule charter and charter power and they could not raise any taxes. It approaches the ridiculous.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the question.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Goldman?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—14

Barry	Gouger	Nelson	Warman
Fohl	Heyburn	Pott	Woodring
Forster	Keller, J.	Rea	Woodside
Goldman	Morton

NAYS—115

Aberman	Curran	Leinbach	Sahli
Amsterdam	Dalley	Leonard	Scales
Ausentz	Desmond	Levin	Scarlett
Baldrige	Devlin	Manderino	Scott
Baldwin	Erwin	Mangery	Scranton
Banes	Fawcett	Markley	Sebastian
Barron	Fay	Mattioni	Shapiro
Bashoff	Feather	McGeary	Sharp
Benedict	Filson	McGlynn	Shettig
Benfield	Fortney	Meyer	Shively
Bloom	Gabreski	Michael	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	Michener	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, D.	Silverman
Broderick	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Solomon
Brown	Griffith	Moorhead	Stout
Buck	Hannum	Mora	Swope
Bunting	Harding	Murray	Tate
Burkholder	Henderson	Orban	Thomson
Butera	Himes	Orbin	Thornburgh
Caputo	Hook	Otto	Tomascik
Casey	Irvis	Pasquerilla	Tully
Clark	Jirolanio	Popil	Van Sant
Clinger	Johnson	Powell	Waldron
Conley	Kauffman	Rappaport	Welsh
Corey	Kelly	Redick	Westerberg
Cortese	Krill	Reynolds	Whittum
Cosetti	Laputka	Richter	Wilcox
Croop	Leach	Roberts	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Lee, L.	Ruth

NOT VOTING—34

Allison	Fagan	Keller, M.	Pelletier
Bagenstose	Fineman	King	Percey
Baldus	Fleming	Kline	Prendergast
Cain	Gray	Lane	Quiles
Camardella	Hatter	Lee, K.	Rovner
Caron	Hocker	Musselman	Sprogell
Donaldson	Horne	O'Donnell	Strickler
Donolow	Hostetler	Pechan	Stroup
Dumbauld	Huggins

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We want to recognize the delegate who has our adjournment resolution.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, could you tell us before the adjournment resolution how many more amendments we have?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, I just want you to know that twice we were on the last amendment, but now we have four more.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Can we finish up the four?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, may I make a suggestion? You have more amendments. Could they be distributed this evening before we adjourn so that we could look at them and give them some thought tonight?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I have no objection to that. I just hope that tomorrow morning when we ask, does everybody have a copy, they will say they have.

ADJOURNMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener for the adjournment motion.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I move that this Convention do now adjourn until Wednesday, February 14, 1968, at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Michener and seconded by Delegate Hocker that we adjourn until Wednesday, February 14, 1968, at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

The motion was agreed to and (at 7:36 p.m., e.s.t.) the Convention was adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 Wednesday, February 14, 1968 Number 43

The Convention was called to order at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND WESLEY W. BOWDEN, pastor of the AME Zion Church of Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

Let us pray: Almighty and eternal God, Thou Who hast revealed Thyself to us in the person of Jesus Christ, our Lord, preserve us in Thy righteousness that we may, according to Thy will, exemplify Thy spirit and love in all that we do. In the midst of our changing social order and the restlessness of these bewildered times, may our faith in Thee and our obedience to Thy will keep us strong that together with Thee we may build a life of good will in which prejudice and greed will disappear and the day of brotherhood and mutual service may dawn.

Grant, O God, that the members of this Constitutional Convention be blessed with a right understanding, a pure purpose, and sound judgment. Lift them, we pray, above all party interest to the larger sentiments of public good and human welfare, so that as they labor for the good of all, they may also advance Thy Kingdom upon this earth. Pour out Thy spirit upon our leaders both on the local, state, and national levels, that as they labor for the advancement of our country, they may also labor for the benefit of all our citizens.

Bless our nation, we beseech Thee, the homes of our people, the institutions of human welfare, the agencies of good government, Thy church; and may we learn to work together, in Thy name, that passion and violence may be restrained, and all needless suffering may be prevented. Let Thy spirit prevail with us, and grant us such a peace as rests plainly upon the principles of Thy Kingdom which is for today and tomorrow and forever. Amen.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the secretary, Delegate Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, the following members have made requests for leaves of absence:

The delegate from the 10th District, DELEGATE M. V. KELLER, for February 14, on account of road meeting;

The delegate ex officio, DELEGATE STROUP, for February 14, on account of road meeting.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Secretary Michener.

Is there any objection to the leaves of absence?

The Chair hears none, and the leaves are granted.

VALENTINE GREETINGS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Secretary Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Fellow delegates, on this beautiful Valentine's Day, each lady delegate finds on her desk a valentine from the men of the Convention.

I think it only appropriate that these 11 beautiful ladies, who have been helping us so much, should be so recognized.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now open the machine for the purpose of determining whether a quorum is present.

I understand the Judiciary Committee is still at a meeting. We will record them as they enter.

The roll was recorded as follows:

Aberman	Dailey	Hostetler	Popil
Aurentz	Desmond	Huggins	Pott
Bagenstose	Devlin	Irvis	Powell
Baldrige	Dumbauld	Jirolanio	Rappaport
Baldus	Erwin	Johnson	Reynolds
Baldwin	Fagan	Kelly	Richter
Banes	Fawcett	Krill	Roberts
Barry	Fay	Leach	Rovner
Benedict	Feather	Lee, L.	Ruth
Bloom	Filson	Leinbach	Sahli
Brennan	Fineman	Levin	Scales
Broderick	Fohl	Manderino	Scarlett
Brown	Forster	Mangery	Scott
Buck	Fortney	Markley	Shettig
Bunting	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shively
Burkholder	Gehrlein	McGeary	Shoemaker
Butera	Gerber	McGlynn	Sprogell
Cain	Goldman	Michael	Swops
Camardella	Goldstein	Michener	Tate
Caputo	Gouger	Miller, D.	Tomascik
Casey	Gray	Miller, R.	Tully
Clark	Griffith	Moorhead	Van Sant
Clinger	Harding	Morton	Waldron
Conley	Hatter	Nelson	Warman
Corey	Henderson	O'Donnell	Welsh
Cortese	Heyburn	Orban	Westerberg
Cosetti	Himes	Orbin	Whittum
Croop	Hocker	Otto	Wilcox
Cunningham	Hook	Pasquerilla	Wilmarth
Curran	Horne	Pelletier	Woodring

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The electric roll call tabulator indicates that 120 delegates have recorded their presence.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Allison	Kauffman	Percey	Shrager
Amsterdam	Keller, J.	Prendergast	Silverman
Barron	Keller, M.	Rea	Solomon
Bashoff	Kline	Redick	Stout
Benfield	Laputka	Scranton	Strickler
Braham	Lee, K.	Sebastian	Thomson
Donaldson	Meyer	Shapiro	Thornburgh
Fleming	More	Sharp	Woodside
Hannum	Murray

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 6, Printer's No. 6, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania providing for local government in Pennsylvania.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are going to continue our discussion where we left off yesterday and accepting amendments in connection with the first section of the local government proposal, Proposal No. 6, printer's No. 6.

We are now ready for an amendment. The first amendment to be offered this morning will be offered by Delegate Powell.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, I read in place and present an amendment to Proposal No. 6.

POWELL AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE POWELL offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 1, line 16 by striking out "A municipality" and inserting: Any municipality except a county

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL . Mr. President, this amendment is being introduced for basically one reason, which came out during the interrogation yesterday of the chairman of the subcommittee.

During that interrogation, there were some questions as to who would have what powers. In granting home rule to counties and local municipal governments, a conflict could arise as to who has what powers. This proposal simply takes the county out of the home-rule provision and lets the home-rule choice rest in the hands of the local government units. If, for example, the home-rule provision is adopted which is another class of local government structure, we would have four or five different local government structures. The county government in its classification—I think we have eight classifications of county government—presently has certain duties that it can perform. When we start to cross these powers with the local powers, it is my opinion that much confusion will arise from who has what.

Therefore, I am asking that the county government be taken out of that section of the proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair wishes to state for today, and from now on, the rules will be strictly enforced in connection with who speaks regarding these amendments. Under the rules everyone has 10 minutes, no more, and he can speak twice, and no more than twice. That means the proposer has an opportunity to open and to close only. Of course, he will be able to answer any questions. Yesterday we did permit a violation of that in a few instances in order, what I thought was, to expedite the work of the Convention, but from now on we are going to strictly enforce that rule. So I am telling the proposers now, they can open and close.

And now the Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee apologizes to the rest of the Convention for its membership being late this morning. Would you get your recognizers going because some 32 of us have just come out of a meeting, so it will necessitate their being marked present.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised by the recognizer that he is recording your presence and the presence of the other Judiciary Committee members as they come in the door.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, the Committee on Local Government is definitely opposed to this amendment for many reasons, and I would like you to recognize the Co-Chairman of the Home Rule Committee, Delegate Rappaport, if you will.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, when I came here, I must confess, my knowledge of local government was rather academic, that which I had having been learned at the Fels Institute.

I, however, had several excellent tutors in the problem of local government, one of whom served on our subcommittee. I learned a great deal about local government and more particularly about second class townships, which I think reflect our problems.

I alluded yesterday to the fact that the name that we put to a government, be it second class township, be it a borough or a third class city, is really irrelevant in terms of governmental problems.

We have a very serious problem, however, in many of our rural counties, and for information on that, I am indebted to our friend Ed Dailey from Sullivan County, who also served on our subcommittee.

Local government, traditionally in America, carries on four functions, that of education, the provision of water and sewer, police and roads. Because of the small population in many of our rural areas—and I understand that Delegate O'Donnell has a list of approximately 100 townships in Pennsylvania that have a population of less than 100 people, we know that 40 per cent of the units of local government in Pennsylvania have a population of less than 1,000 people.

As a result, these units can carry on practically none of the functions of local government. They do not have any schools. Under the very wise legislation passed by the Scranton administration, and I know it sounds odd for me to be saying that, we have school jointures in Pennsylvania now, so that school districts have become consolidated.

The water and sewer problems are handled by authorities. The authorities, in many cases, were not created just to get out of the debt limit, but were created to cut across the township line and the borough line and do things on a rational basis.

The police power is handled by the state police, with the result the only thing the local government does is handle roads. For that, of course, they get their cut from the Liquid Fuels Tax.

We are aware of this, and our committee considered this long and hard, but we were not satisfied to let the State come in and do this.

There was a very interesting story in the Evening Bulletin last September. It seems there is a little township in Delaware County known as Chester Township. Do not confuse it with the city of Chester; it is entirely different. It is a little township with about 600 people living in it, right outside the city. Some state official was driving by and there he saw on the side of the road about six acres of what he thought was marijuana growing, acres and acres of marijuana, six feet high.

He went to the nearest telephone and called up the township officials, and he was told, sorry we cannot help you. We do not have a board of health. Why do you not call the county seat?

He called up the county seat and he spoke to them—Delaware County is a rather large, sophisticated county—and found out that the county does not have a board of health. You had better call Harrisburg.

By the time Harrisburg investigated it, about two months later, they found that the ground that this stuff was growing on was owned by the county of Delaware.

This is the problem: Are we mandating Delaware County to have a board of health? The answer is no. Before Delaware County could have a board of health under this, they would have to vote on it. All the people would have to vote on it in a referendum. If they do not want it, they do not have to have it.

All we are doing here is providing for the strengthening of a level of government in Pennsylvania that has done nothing. We admit that the counties today are not competent to take on residual powers. There is no question about that. But that they may be so competent in the future, there is no question here. They get these residual powers when they adopt a home-rule charter. Does this mean they have to have a county government to eliminate boroughs and townships? No, they could pass a charter giving themselves residual powers and providing it for just some areas, like air pollution or water pollution or a countywide homicide squad, if they wanted it. At the present time the county does not even have police power, and the problems that we are facing are those which extend over township and borough lines.

I would, therefore, urge strongly the defeat of this amendment. The committee provision does not change anything. It merely provides that the governments concerned and the people can change it as, if and when they desire.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Could I make a closing statement of just a few minutes?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The Subcommittee on County Government studied very long and hard the problem of county government, and we have recognized that county government today is not what it was 10, 15 or 20 years ago, that of administering a courthouse. In the past, and we do not have to go back too many years, what has happened to county government is that local municipalities, the Federal government and the State continually unload more and more responsibility onto counties to take care of area-wide problems.

Let us just enumerate a few: Counties are now involved in redevelopment work, public housing, library facilities, tourist councils, airports, sports and recreation, public health; they are involved in county planning commissions and, if you please, Mr. President, they are now in the field of education by operating our community colleges. Why then should we deny our counties the great opportunity of providing a better structure of government? We urge the defeat of this amendment.

We have heard a great deal of talk about, is county a local government? I wish Delegate Thomson would pay particular attention to this statement because later on we are going to have an amendment introduced that is going to eliminate the definition of municipality by taking out the word "county".

Let me inform the delegates of this Convention that Act No. 265, passed by the legislature and signed by the Governor, defines municipalities for the purposes of making contributions for the health, safety, welfare and rehabilitation of local communities. The definition of municipalities which is on page 6 of the proposal, "Municipality means a county, city, borough, incorporated town or township," and, therefore, the General Assembly has now established, and rightfully so, that counties are an important part of local government.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment—which is no surprise really to anyone here—for several specific reasons, the reasons which I made well-known in the committee meetings. There are two of them in particular.

One, by inserting the county as a municipality which shall have self-enacting or self-executing home rule. We have created a duplicity of power; we have created the self-enacting powers both in the counties and in the governmental bodies located within the counties. We immediately have a conflict of interest which will not be resolved until and unless the legislature acts or the Supreme Court acts in an interpretation of what we are writing.

The question of this legislature acting so as to resolve these problems has been met by our committee when it states that if home rule is not granted by the legislature, it automatically becomes self-executing after four years, so that I believe the committee has actually begged the question. They have recognized the problem and then have gone ahead and said it shall be in anyhow. We shall create this problem anyhow even though the legislature may not have acted so as to prevent the problem.

Secondly, in answer to some of the theories that have been given here that the county has the right to handle problems which go beyond the territorial limits of the communities which comprise that county, I agree. This is a county function.

However, we have also provided—and I think very properly provided—in the committee proposal something that goes far beyond counties. We have created an intergovernmental cooperation section and an area government section which goes far beyond the simple fictitious boundary lines of a county. Problems such as water pollution, air pollution, community colleges, roads and airports are problems which at one time, perhaps, were county problems, but are now much greater than simply county problems and, therefore, are being and going to be adequately handled in an areawide provision contained within this proposal.

I believe the counties have lost their original significance and to create the self-executing home rule into them, along with the municipalities located within the county boundaries, is only going to be compounding the problem, creating court cases, demanding legislation which the committee recognizes may not be forthcoming.

Therefore, I have to stand in support of this amendment. I would also like to suggest that Delegate Morton's comments, to which I alluded yesterday, may well have some significant bearing on this, if he would care to comment on them at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Mattioni.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to this amendment.

Mr. President, over the past several decades we all too often have come to rely upon the Federal Government for the function of problem-solving in the state levels and in the subgovernments of the State thereunder. However, with the increasing responsibilities that are now placed on the Federal Government, both internationally and nationally, with the ever-increasing complexities of its problems, I think in the future we may find that when we look to the Federal Government, we may not have a meaningful response.

I think, not to repeat what Delegate Rappaport has said, many are the problems that will confront the future generations of this Commonwealth and our country, and the local government article that is before you is an article which does not take away; it is an article which gives to local governments the flexibility that the future may require. It allows for the retention, in the most part, for the government that you now have, and at the same time it gives to the General Assembly the power to create new receptacles within which local governments of tomorrow may build.

It does not, as has been suggested, attempt to place two solids in the same position. Moreover, what it does, geometrically, is to allow for the whole to be equal to the sum of its parts and gives to the General Assembly the power to fit those parts together. Moreover, the fundamental concept of this local government article, if you have read it, and I am sure most of you have, is fairness. It is fairness without sacrifice of the concepts of separation of powers that we respect. Moreover, the removal of county from this local government article creates an unfairness which is not now there; it creates a prejudice which is not now there; it ties the hands of the General Assembly from more meaningful handling of this problem in the future. I do not think this is our intention; I do not think it is your intention. Do not argue today too forcefully for any one proposition, for tomorrow it may be your local government that requires just exactly what is attempted to be removed by this amendment. I urge its defeat. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bunting.

DELEGATE BUNTING. Mr. President, I will yield to Delegate Morton if this is his pleasure.

DELEGATE MORTON. Go right ahead, Delegate Bunting.

DELEGATE BUNTING. Thank you, Delegate Morton.

Mr. President, I wish to emphasize that such matters as flood control, air pollution, water pollution, sewage disposal do not stop at the township line; they do not stop at the borough line; they do not stop at the city line or even the county line. It is terribly restrictive to say that the effective means for handling these problems must come from a township or borough or city or town and cannot come from the county.

In our committee proposal we have relied greatly upon the General Assembly to preclude the type of conflict which has created such a concern on the part of some delegates. But do not forget that in addition to the General Assembly the voters of the counties must approve any charter provisions that would increase the powers of the counties and here is the final safeguard. With both the General Assembly and the voters in the county considering a charter provision, it would seem that there must be sufficient wisdom to let Pennsylvania meet the problems that are growing every day.

Therefore, I urge the defeat of this amendment.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, I did speak on this in Local Government, and I do feel that maybe I should relate my views, particularly in view of the fact that the vote in county government was 22 to 19 to include counties. This was not a clear-cut issue and not one that went through unanimously and, therefore, I do feel that the Convention is entitled to know both sides of the issue and to make its own fair decision.

I, for one, am in complete sympathy that big government and county government have to be strengthened, but I disagree with the philosophical approach on it. One, I start with the basic proposition—maybe I put too much reliance in my forefathers—that the Woodside Commission did not recommend home rule for counties; the Scranton Commission did not recommend home rule for counties. No other proposal that came in from any group that I know of recommended home rule for counties and no one at the public hearings, except one individual who wanted to strengthen county government by seven county commissioners and a complete realignment, recommended home rule for counties.

It was also interesting to me to note that the Department of Community Affairs ran a survey of county officials and out of 464 county officials who replied, only 12 of those county officials said they wanted home rule for counties.

Where I differ on the philosophical approach is this: The legislature can give home rule or any powers it wants at any time to any county. I feel that this is where it lies. Where I basically differ from what may be the committee report, is the self-executing provision within four years. My reason for this is that we have actually two different areas of local government. We have the county government and we have our boroughs, townships and cities.

It so happens that the county government is the only government which is really operating for the State. It is the agency of the State. The State has elected to administer its judicial system through the county. The State has its state officers, sheriffs and district attorneys, who though really county officials are officials of the State. The county officers, the recorder of deeds and the register of wills, perform functions for the State. They collect taxes for the State.

The State has seen fit by legislation to say that the title for all penal institutions shall be owned by the county and the county shall administer the penal institutions. The State has seen fit to cooperate with the counties on the mental health program and delegate to the counties certain functions to be performed by the counties; the same with homes for the aged, and other policies administered by the State but carried out through the county government, none of which is done by boroughs, cities and townships.

My whole point is that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania in dealing with county government has treated it as an agency through which it operates. The legislature has done all of this. I feel that, if the legislature is given these responsibilities to carry out the state functions, we should not say to the legislature, within four years you have to give counties home rule or else they shall do it themselves.

It is purely, as I say, a philosophical thing with me, and that is, that the county is the only agency which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania has elected to confirm state functions, to have them perform for the State. I feel that the legislature should be free to say when it wants county A, B or C to have home rule and when it wants counties to do these other functions and that it can solve this problem. The same as today, if it wanted to grant residual powers to counties, it can do so.

My sole feeling on it is that we as a body should not dictate to the legislature on the county, the only organ of government where they have let them perform state functions for them.

This is the view that I expressed in the County Government Committee. I do feel that since it has been referred to once or twice here that I should give you what I consider to be, maybe, the other side of the coin and the other philosophical approach.

The county government is so closely tied in with the state government that we should leave the legislature free to determine how it is going to function with the county government.

I thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I think Delegate Morton has well sketched the matter of philosophy which has obtained throughout history. The historical status of the county as an agent of the state government is well established. But I think that the philosophy which must be imbedded in this article is a philosophy which looks toward the future, that takes into account the fact that larger and more efficient functioning units of government may well have to deal with problems which cover, in time and space, a larger quantity than we have had in the past.

I would suggest that that philosophy is reflected in the present proposal, which gives the legislature the opportunity to fashion and frame a network of local governments as it deems most efficient and best able to meet the needs of this Commonwealth.

To ascribe chaos to this proposal requires that you lose the faith, so often expressed on this floor, in the legislature to deal with these problems. It would require that the General Assembly be unable, not once but twice, to deal with the problem of sorting out functions as set forth in this article. It would presume that they would be unable to cope, within the initial four-year period, with the problem of sifting and sorting out functions. It would also presume that, when they were withholding powers and functions from municipalities, they would again be unable to deal with this potential. And certainly it is there, this potential for chaotic conditions.

I would like to underscore my faith in the legislature to deal with these functions, to go through the process of sorting out and sifting, and to speak in support of the proposal as expressing a sound philosophy for local government during the balance of the 20th and the entire 21st centuries.

I, therefore, would rise to speak in favor of the proposal and against the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I rise to speak in favor of the proposed amendment to the proposal.

I am interested in the increased number of functions which were related as recently having been given to the counties. The truth of the matter, however, is that the county government does not have the importance in our setup today which it had when I first entered this legislative hall. They had roads and they had bridges and they had relief and they had a lot of functions which they have lost in the meantime here, while the functions of the local government have increased. Why? Because the local governments have been more efficient in handling those functions than the county government was.

But I do not think that that is really the important issue here. As I see this issue, it is this: There is only one reason why you give residual power, and that is because there are some functions which the legislature does not foresee. We have been talking about trusting the legislature, but residual powers are given to a local government because of something which the legislature does not foresee. If the legislature could perceive all the problems, then you would not need any residual powers, either in the local governments, the local municipalities, or in the county governments. But because the legislature cannot foresee the need for all these powers, it is wise, in my opinion, to give it to one level. But it certainly is not wise to give it to two levels. The legislature cannot catch up with the fact that this power is wanted and needed in trying to designate which one shall have it.

If you have two residual powers, you will be having forever conflict between the local governments and the county government, both having the power to do the same things, and you will be in the courts all the time to determine which one did it first and which one has superior power. To me, it is an incongruous thing to attempt to give that power on two different levels of government.

Of course it has been said that about 95% of county government is nothing more than the carrying out of the functions of the judiciary. It is a matter of the courts and all the things related to the courts, all the row offices, the district attorney, the register of wills, the recorder of deeds, and all the rest of those, down to the prisons. And, incidentally, there is another case where the law is taking more and more authority away from the counties, rather than putting more and more authority into the counties.

In all those instances the county is not set up and has not been set up over the years and has not proven its ability to deal with these issues as well as the local government.

Therefore, it seems to me to be a very improper thing to give this to two different areas of government. I would much prefer to see you give it to none than to give it to both, although I do think that it ought to be in the cities, the boroughs and the townships rather than in the counties.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Thank you, Mr. President. Fellow delegates, I appear before you as a small county attorney who represents townships, boroughs and school districts. I came to this Convention not knowing the true meaning of home rule and residual powers. This we do not have in our locality. I came here with an open mind.

At this time I rise to oppose this amendment. The basic reason is that, in my mind, the small counties in the State of Pennsylvania need this proposal as submitted by the committee as a whole, because this does more for the small counties than anybody else. It gives us certain things which we have never had in the past. It gives to the legislature the right to deal with problems on which it has been restricted in the past.

I do not agree with Delegate Woodside. I know that he represents one of the associations that I am with also. At the same time, I feel that this association has taken certain stands on counties. I feel that the county government must be given a new horizon for the future. If we fail to do this in this Convention, then we are denying to the people of the small counties an opportunity to handle many of the problems which now exist and should be handled on a countywide basis.

I do not advocate elimination of townships, boroughs, and so forth in small counties. I think this governmental structure is well needed and should stay in existence in the future. But many of the problems of the counties and the townships in my area are very important to the people. Many people used as an example yesterday the Borough of Seven Springs with 12 people. I do not know how they deal with all the problems that they have in their township or borough.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I hope the delegates to this Convention are sufficiently aware of the fact that we are now voting on one of the most important and far-reaching issues that this Convention will consider.

I personally feel that this very issue of home rule, residual power and the entire local government document is the most important. I think it means more to more people than any of the other areas which this Convention will consider. I know some of you are more interested because most of your time has been spent on the judicial article and on other phases, but I wish you would carefully consider what we are talking about this morning because it is important.

We are now lauching into a decision on the question of residual power, whether or not the local municipalities will have inherent power, which they do not now have. Most of us are aware that no local government can do anything that is not specifically assigned to it by legislation from the General Assembly. What the Local Government Committee has done here is fashion a plan that would make it possible for them to do things on their own initiative or under the direction of the General Assembly, under a broad outline sketched by the General Assembly. That is very important.

One of the things I want to impress upon you is that this is an integrated document. We are now at that point in the bend where some are going to try to have their cake and eat it too, and I submit to you that you just cannot do that. This whole thing hangs together or it could well fall if we separate it.

Part of the residual power principle has to rest in the counties. It is a fairly easy thing to see why. I agree with Delegate Thornburgh that we are not talking history. We are not even talking about the present. We are talking about what is going to happen in the future.

Judge Woodside said the counties do not have much to do any more. Perhaps you should check at the courthouse and find out what they are doing today. The recent session of the General Assembly turned back to them the whole program of mental health and mental retardation, a vast program that last year spent $13 million and shortly will be spending millions more to care for this very critical area.

Most counties are now operating very modern homes and hospitals. Many counties are concerned with sewage disposal and garbage disposal. The whole concept of the Governor's Crime Commission and the Presidential attack on crime envisions a police network based more on a county level than on a local level.

I think we have to keep these things in the back of our minds. I want to tell you that if my county today were to vote on whether or not the county should have all the power, I would be opposed to it, but I can see a day in the future when it may very well be necessary. There is not going to be any conflict. I am not trying to fool anybody.

My concept of this is very simple. If the day comes when a county votes for home rule, then there are not going to be any more cities, townships or boroughs within that county unless special provision is made by the General Assembly. No one should be fooled of that fact.

Please understand that the procedure which is built into this is this, and I want to review it for you very briefly. We propose to give the General Assembly four years to write a rule book; four years to say to the local municipalities, you can do this, you cannot do that, and if there is a conflict, this must happen or that must happen. If they do not do that, if the General Assembly does not write the rules for this kind of thing, then we propose self-initiation where the counties or the local municipalities can initiate, on their own, a local home-rule charter.

That step, I submit to you, is controlled by the people themselves, because no charter can be accepted for a township or for a borough or for a city or for a county until the people vote. I think you would be shortchanging the citizens of the future if you did not leave counties in here.

The whole thing, of course, is subject to vote of the people in this coming primary and any home-rule charter will be subject to the vote of the people. But I think the way we are looking at government today makes it necessary that there be some depository of local governmental powers larger than all those units we now have.

We have to leave that opportunity available to the people.

That is the whole basis of my appeal to you, that we support this document as it came from the Committee on Local Government.

I remind you again that we are at that turn in the road where you cannot have your cake and eat it, too. If some of you are not entirely happy, neither am I. If we begin to chip away at the little things in here that we do not like, before this week is over we will have destroyed the whole concept of home rule and residual power and we will be right back where we started.

I can use the same basic argument that was used on the first proposal. We ought to give the people something to vote on in April.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I did rise to speak in opposition to this amendment, but I think everything which I could have said has been said better than I could ever hope to say it, by the prior speakers.

I think we have had adequate discussion of this, and I, therefore, move the question on the amendment, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While we wait for the question, there is just one delegate who has been standing, Delegate Warman. Are you ready for the question?

DELEGATE WARMAN. Yes, I yield to the motion of Delegate Irvis.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Powell?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—30

Bagenstose	Devlin	Levin	Powell
Baldrige	Erwin	Mangery	Reynolds
Baldwin	Fohl	Nelson	Sebastian
Benedict	Goldman	Orban	Thomson
Benfield	Goldstein	Orbin	Waldron
Cortese	Hatter	Otto	Whittum
Curran	Keller, J.	Pott	Woodside
Desmond	Lee, L.

NAYS—117

Aberman	Fagan	Kline	Roberts
Amsterdam	Fawcett	Krilt	Rovner
Aurentz	Fay	Laputka	Ruth
Baldus	Feather	Leach	Sahli
Banes	Filson	Leinbach	Scales
Barron	Fineman	Manderino	Scarlett
Barry	Fleming	Markley	Scott
Bashoff	Forster	Mattioni	Scranton
Bloom	Fortney	McGeary	Shapiro
Braham	Gabreski	McGlynn	Sharp
Brennan	Gehrlein	Meyer	Shellig
Broderick	Gouger	Michael	Shively
Brown	Gray	Michener	Shoemaker
Buck	Griffith	Miller, D.	Shrager
Bunting	Hannum	Miller, R.	Silverman
Burkholder	Harding	Moorhead	Solomon
Butera	Henderson	More	Sprogell
Camardella	Heyburn	Morton	Stout
Caputo	Himes	Murray	Strickler
Casey	Hocker	O'Donnell	Swope
Clark	Hook	Pasquerilla	Tate
Clinger	Horne	Pelletier	Thornburgh
Conley	Hostetler	Percey	Tomascik
Corey	Huggins	Popil	Tully
Cosetti	Irvis	Prendergast	Warman
Croop	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Welsh
Cunningham	Johnson	Rea	Westerberg
Dailey	Kauffman	Redick	Wilcox
Donaldson	Kelly	Richter	Wilmarth
Dumbauld

NOT VOTING—16

Allison	Gerber	Lee, K.	Quiles
Cain	Keller, M.	Leonard	Stroup
Caron	King	Musselman	Van Sant
Donolow	Lane	Pechan	Woodring

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHARP AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Sharp. The pages will distribute copies of the amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHARP offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 3), page 2, line 7, by inserting after "Adoption": , amendment,

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, the touchstone of the local government article is, indeed, flexibility of the form of government.

I have proposed this amendment which is a relatively simple amendment. I might say at the offset that I am not particularly pleased with the language "amendment," but if I can explain what is meant by this, I think that the sense will become apparent.

Under the optional form of government, as set forth here, the legislature could provide optional forms A, B, C, and D by the last clause, "Adoption or repeal of an optional form of government shall be by referendum."

It appears to me that by the language of the proposal as set forth, should a municipality adopt optional form A

and then find that they should later like to change to optional form B, it would appear by the language of the proposal that perhaps they should first have to repeal optional form A and then adopt optional form B, calling, under the language of the proposal, for two separate referenda in order to accomplish their purpose.

I note, likewise, that although the situation is not exactly parallel, in the case of home rule there is, of course, provision for direct amendment.

The idea of this proposed amendment is to permit the municipality to change from one optional form to another without the necessity of going through, first of all, repeal and then adoption of the new form by separate referenda.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, the very reason that Delegate Sharp mentioned is the reason why we cannot insert "amendment" in this article. You cannot, in our opinion, amend an optional form of government.

Under the present system on optional forms, you will appoint, in all probability, a commission who will study the various options, who will then recommend to the voters for adoption of an optional form of government. If they want to change from A to B, it cannot be done by an amendment process, but should be done by a complete new referendum where a charter commission or the people will now say, we would rather have optional B instead of optional A.

Therefore, it is not an amendment, but an optional form of government. This is where the General Assembly has in the past laid down ground rules by history for the various cities where they have optional forms of government, one which would be in existence. It is rather difficult to amend an optional form of government; you have to go through the process of a complete new vote.

DELEGATE SHARP. May I ask Delegate Pasquerilla a question? Delegate Pasquerilla, I started my remarks by saying I was not happy with the semantic word "amendment." The question which I am posing to you is this: Once having adopted an optional form of government, say optional form A, and they wish to change to optional form C, if I read it correctly, under the last clause of Section 3, in order to accomplish this purpose they would first have to repeal option A by referendum, and then adopt option C by referendum. Am I correct?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I do not think you are correct on that. That is not our intention and I do not think that is a correct statement.

DELEGATE SHARP. This, of course, as I say, is the purpose of the amendment, to permit the change to be made. It appears to me, that having specifically stated either adoption or repeal in the Constitution, I wonder if we are locking ourselves into that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I would like to make one comment on this and it is a proper question. I think the answer is very simple. It lies in the language of the charter. I think that any charter commission which presents to the voters a whole new program for local government would include in it a means by which the charter itself could be amended. That is what I had in mind when we put in this language. The adoption or repeal of a whole charter should go to referendum, but I think any charter could properly include and should, it would seem to me, the necessary provisions for any modifications or amendments that a municipality would need to cope with various problems as they arise from time to time. I do not feel it is necessary to put this amendment or this word into the document that the means by which any modifying amendment that would not be far reaching or necessarily involve the complete repeal of the charter could be included within the body of the charter itself.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Sharp?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—5

Goldman	Scott	Shapiro	Sharp
Rea

NAYS—129

Aberman	Desmond	Johnson	Powell
Amsterdam	Devlin	Kauffman	Rappaport
Aurentz	Donaldson	Keller, J.	Redick
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Kelly	Reynolds
Baldrige	Erwin	Kline	Richter
Baldus	Fagan	Krill	Roberts
Banes	Fawcett	Laputka	Rovner
Barron	Fay	Leach	Ruth
Barry	Feather	Leinbach	Sabli
Bashoff	Filson	Manderino	Scales
Benedict	Fineman	Mangery	Scarlett
Benfield	Fleming	Markley	Scranton
Bloom	Fohl	Mattioni	Sebastian
Braham	Forster	McGeary	Shettig
Brennan	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Broderick	Gabreski	Meyer	Shoemaker
Brown	Gehrlein	Michael	Shrager
Buck	Goldstein	Michener	Silverman
Bunting	Gouger	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Burkholder	Gray	Miller, R.	Stout
Butera	Griffith	Moorhead	Swope
Camardella	Harding	More	Tate
Caputo	Hatter	Morton	Thomson
Casey	Henderson	Murray	Thornburgh
Clark	Heyburn	Nelson	Tully
Clinger	Himes	Orban	Waldron
Conley	Hook	Orbin	Welsh
Corey	Horne	Otto	Westerberg
Cosetti	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Croop	Huggins	Percey	Wilcox
Cunningham	Irvis	Popil	Wilmarth
Curran	Jirolanio	Pott	Woodring
Dailey

NOT VOTING—29

Allison	Hocker	Levin	Solomon
Baldwin	Keller, M.	Musselman	Strickler
Cain	King	O'Donnell	Stroup
Caron	Lane	Pechan	Tomascik
Cortese	Lee, K.	Pelletier	Van Sant
Donolow	Lee, L.	Prendergast	Warman
Gerber	Leonard	Quiles	Woodside
Hannum

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Shapiro.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 9 to 11, by striking out "commissioners," in line 9, all of line 10, and "of deeds, prothonotaries, clerks of the courts, and such others" in line 11 and inserting: such officers

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 21 to 23, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 24, by striking out "above"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 24, by striking out "county" where it appears the first time

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 24, by inserting after "government": of any county

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 24 and 25, by striking out "in a county which has adopted" and inserting: by adoption of

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 25 to 27, by striking out "The above" in line 25, all of lines 26 and 27

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, my amendment is not proposed in derogation or in criticism of the job done by the Local Government Committee. I think they have done an excellent job.

However, one of the criticisms that I find in the present Constitution, and with respect to local government, remains in the article which they present, and I think that the authority and leeway that has been granted to the legislature by the proposal could be broadened in this respect.

The principal purpose of my proposed amendment is to remove from the Constitution the designation of any officers of county governments. It seems to me that the legislature should have leeway to make changes in this from time to time as the needs arise.

I do recognize that the committee in its proposal has provided for this in a sense. They have provided for adoption of various optional forms of government, for adoption of home-rule charters by county governments.

I think there is still an area, looking at this realistically, that can only be taken care of by the legislature. There are many of our counties which will not adopt home-rule charters, which will not adopt optional forms of government, and I think it should be within the province of the legislature to state that for those counties some of the offices that have become archaic over the years can be abolished, or at least that they can be abolished as elective offices, and allow the functions of those offices, while there are some functions remaining, to be performed by appointive officals, appointed by the heads of the county government. That is the principal reason for the offering of this amendment.

There is a second reason and that is that this constitutional provision, as presented by the committee, preserves a system for election which I find very distasteful and which I think does not accomplish the purpose that was originally intended. And that is this form of each party nominating two persons for an office and then having three people elected. The noble purpose is, of course, to have minority party representation. The actual fact is that we do not get minority party representation in many cases. I became a member of this body through an election conducted in that fashion and I found it very, very unpleasant to know that I was running in a district where only one of the two people running on the Democratic Party was going to be elected. I was really running against my fellow Democrat. I am sure there are Republicans in this body who had this same experience. Every four years we go through this experience in our county in electing county commissioners. I would strike from the proposal this language which preserves this system and leave to the legislature the opportunity to try to find some better method of electing the county commissioners in those counties where they continue to be operated by county commissioners.

I would also like to add that if my proposal is adopted, when the Convention reaches section 3 of the committee proposal, I would then propose an amendment that would preserve for all counties the present form of government, the present offices, until such time as the legislature sees fit to act otherwise.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, will the Chair recognize the Co-Chairman of the Subcommittee on County Government, Delegate Tate?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, Delegate Shapiro, may I recall a question directed to the body yesterday by Delegate Sprogell, in which the question was raised as to the row offices in much the same form as this question now comes before this body.

My answer at that time was, did we recognize that many features of the existing form of county government, including the row offices, were preserved in part, though greatly modified, in the proposal of the Local Government Committee, but that we thought it was wise to do this because it was our hope that we would not change anything radically immediately. We would make attractive to counties, home-rule and optional forms of government by the other provisions of this proposal, so that counties that felt—and we hope that many will as the years pass by—the modified existing form of government was not quite adequate for their needs would move to a home-rule or an optional form of government.

With that thought in mind, I would like to answer the second part of Delegate Shapiro's argument, and that is, we are preserving an archaic and ineffectual form of county government. I would like to direct the body's attention to page 21 of the local government report where there are enumerated 11 important changes in the row office county government system presently established in the Constitution as it now stands.

I would just like to run through those briefly because I think they are important and I think this body should know that even for those counties which do retain the existing system of county government, there will be some important and far-reaching changes. Many of these have not yet been mentioned yesterday or today. Therefore, I think I will briefly run through them.

1. Surveyors will henceforth be legislative county officers only.

2. Coroners will henceforth only be legislative county officers, and the General Assembly may provide for medical examiners or otherwise for the performance of the duties presently performed by coroners, in its discretion, as we discussed yesterday.

3. The prohibition against county treasurers succeeding themselves is eliminated.

4. The order of enumeration of county officers is made more logical.

5. The constitutional provision establishing residence requirements for appointed county officers is deleted as being legislative in nature.

6. The constitutional provision requiring county offices to be in the county seat is deleted as being archaic.

7. Compensation of all county officers is to be solely by salary. We feel this may have far-reaching and important effects.

8. All fees received by county officers are to be paid to the county or state treasurer or as otherwise prescribed by statute.

9. The constitutional provision for the accountability of county officers is deleted as being legislative in nature.

10. The provision relating to the election of county commissioners no longer relates also to county auditors, and finally,

11. The provision relating to the election of county commissioners no longer vests the courts of common pleas with the power to fill vacancies in the offices of county commissioner or county auditor.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. President, I find myself caught up in a portion of Delegate Shapiro's amendments in which I was interested and that is relative to the elimination of the minority-commissioner type of election.

I would ask Delegate Shapiro if he would agree to striking out that section of his amended proposal and allowing me to consider that as a separate issue?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I could save you some time, Mr. President. May I suggest that my amendment be withdrawn at this time until after Delegate Laputka's amendment has been acted upon. To simply take that out of my amendment would require some other technical changes. I think I would be in a better position to change my proposed amendment, depending on the action of the delegates on his amendment.

AMENDMENT TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You want to move that it be placed on the table?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I move that it be placed on the table.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there any objection?

The Chair hears none.

JIROLANIO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now move on to the next amendment which is being offered by Delegate Jirolanio.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 10 by inserting after "attorneys,": public defenders,

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. May I direct a question to the committee while this is being distributed?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. Proceed.

DELEGATE COSETTI. In the provision in the proposal that places county officers on salary rather than on fees, does that apply also to the fees which they charge the county? I received an inquiry from a constituent of mine who said that certain fees are charged to the county and that the county pays certain of these officers. In Allegheny County there are a considerable number of them on the basis of an archaic fee system.

DELEGATE TATE. The archaic fee system will be abolished. All these officers will now be paid by salary, so that such officers as relied on fees, whether it be from counties, individuals, corporations, or otherwise in the past, and some of them are very substantial, will now have to rely solely upon salaries.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Let me make sure I understand this. These are not fees charged to the general public but are fees charged to the county by virtue of certain functions which these county officers perform?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, as indicated by Delegate Tate, it is the intention and it is desirable that all of these be abolished. Just to elucidate on the Allegheny County situation, of course, in Allegheny County they do charge the county fees, but this is just a system to inflate the income in a particular office to indicate that they need more employes in the department.

There is absolutely no need to continue the system, because the county maintains and pays all the salaries of the officers in any event.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Everyone has now received a copy of your amendment, Delegate Jirolanio. The Chair recognizes you.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President and members of the Convention, I first want to start out by saying that this amendment has been co-sponsored by Delegates Keller, Kauffman, Barry, Irvis, Huggins, and another gentleman whose name I cannot make out; his writing is worse than mine.

What this amendment proposes to do, members of the Convention, is this: Since we are writing a Constitution which not only is going to serve us today, but is going to serve us in the future, we have suggested an amendment of putting in the words "public defenders." We all know that within the last five or six years, by reason of various decisions handed down by the Supreme Court of the United States of America and the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, they have put into existence the term "public defenders." Today, of course, if a man does not have an attorney when he is charged with a crime and he cannot afford to hire one, he must be given an attorney to represent him.

The public defender is nothing new today, and most of the counties in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania do have public defenders. In my county, of course, we have one who receives the sum of $9,000 and has two assistants. This is prevalent, I understand, in the entire Commonwealth.

We are taking this method for the reason that by putting it in as an officer of county government, it is there and will indicate to the people of the Commonwealth the necessity and the need for this particular officeholder. Today, of course, with the form of convention which we are called upon to have and which we are asked to do, the particular office of public defender will be a necessity.

I realize, of course, that in section 4, the legislature would have the right to place legislation for any other office which they saw fit. But I believe this is very important in many small counties who possibly would not do this unless actively forced to do so.

I ask the Convention to go along and amend the county government by inserting the words "public defenders."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, no one in this convention is more sympathetic to the office of public defender than I am. I have served as a public defender and I have served as an officer and director of Philadelphia's public defender program for some years.

This was the subject of a delegate proposal—I think perhaps it was Delegate Jirolanio's proposal—that was before our subcommittee and we considered it carefully. However, it was our feeling that, despite the many virtues of a public defender which have just been enumerated, we did not wish to add to the already long list of officers at the county level enumerated in the Constitution.

I would just direct the body's attention to those words in section 4 which say, "and such others as may from time to time be established by law." The legislature has every right to establish this office as a legislative office and has done so in some instances. It will continue to have that right under the proposal. The Local Government Committee felt strongly that the Constitution should not be further burdened by additional offices for some of the reasons that Delegate Shapiro and Delegate Popil and others have already mentioned before this Convention.

Therefore, we oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, society had moved by the 13th century to the point where it began to think of itself as a unit with the right of defense against those individuals who attacked it, and it was in the 13th century that the present office of the district attorney—it was not called that; it was King's Attorney—was first established. Society, I hope, by the latter part of the 20th century has moved, at least in the western culture, to the point where it is willing to admit that it owes the right of protection to the individual who is attacked by society.

All this amendment would do is to say that the right of defense rises to the same level of importance in our culture as the right of prosecution; that the individual has the same right to be defended against society as society has against the individual. It is not an amendment to clutter up the Constitution or to water down the Constitution. It is a statement of principles for the future which will say to all men in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, it was the belief of the delegates and it was the belief of the people of this Commonwealth in the latter part of the 20th century that the right of defense of the individual is of equal importance to the right of the State to be protected. This is the reason I signed the amendment. This is the reason I urge its adoption by this Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, may I interrogate the sponsor of the amendment, please?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure he would stand for interrogation. Proceed with your question.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Delegate Jirolanio, would you tell me, do you imply by this amendment that the public defender would be learned in the law, an attorney?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Yes, I would.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. What provision then, sir, would you make for those counties that do not currently have more than two or three lawyers in the county at this time, if this were a mandate by the Constitution?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. We cannot force it. It is like the amendment that was in the Constitution before concerning the county surveyor; nobody took the job even though it was open. At least it is there if the people want it. As Delegate Irvis has said, it stands for a statement of principles, and that is what is very important at this particular time, building up this Constitution in the amendment that I have before you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. As a delegate, like Delegate Irvis, from Allegheny County where the first legislative public defender office was established, I would rise to speak in support of this amendment. I just want to add a very brief remark. I am not an advocate of enumeration of specific county officers, and I introduced a proposal consistent with my views. At the same time, if we are going to have the specification which is set forth in Committee Proposal No. 6, it seems to me entirely appropriate to add the office of public defender to balance the scales of justice with the district attorney's office. I think that this is an entirely appropriate, forward-looking addition.

I would urge the adoption of the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. If someone wishes to speak in opposition, Mr. President, because I am a cosponsor of this amendment, I certainly would acknowledge the President's practice in these matters.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I thank Delegate Barron.

As Delegate Tate, although not as extensively as he has, I too have served as a voluntary defender and from time to time still do. One of my law partners is frequently appointed on murder cases. However, I must speak in opposition to this, although I was one of the cosponsors of the delegate's proposal. If we put this into the Constitution, it will violate, first of all, the basic philosophy of this committee, which was to make no changes in local government but to let all changes come from the legislature or from the people, as we have provided.

Secondly, I fear that the public defender would become an elective office. The district attorney is responsible to the community at large for law enforcement, and it is proper that he should be elected because there is a potential for tyranny in that office. The public defender must have his sole responsibility to his client. He must have no responsibility whatsoever to anyone else except his duties as an officer of the court.

I am going to speak on another section about the great virtue of elected law officers as opposed to selected law officers, but I feel that this officer must not be elected.

I can foresee somebody campaigning on the platform that he will prosecute no one who is caught rioting in the streets. We are all against rioting in the streets. However, people who are apprehended for this are entitled to counsel and are entitled to independent counsel who are not worried about re-election.

I therefore must oppose the enshrinement of this office in the Constitution for those reasons, although I am firmly in favor of the public defender system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Mr. President, may I interrogate a member of the committee?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure they will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Do I understand that if the public defender is included in this provision, that you would look to the legislature to define the duties and the nature of the office?

DELEGATE TATE. That is correct, the same as all the other enumerated offices in the past.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. And they would be elected and also paid a salary?

DELEGATE TATE. That is right.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Thirdly, would they be under the jurisdiction of the courts of common pleas in the various counties?

DELEGATE TATE. Insofar as this office of public defender might be an officer of the court, he would be subject to the jurisdiction of the court, yes, just as the district attorney would be, I presume.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. But it is true now that we have a number of volunteer public defenders in counties, do we not?

DELEGATE TATE. Yes, and they are attorneys and subject to the jurisdiction of the court as officers of the court.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Thank you.

DELEGATE TATE. You are welcome.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, may I address a question to Delegate Tate?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He has no objection to answering your question. Proceed.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Delegate Tate, we all know of your splendid services with the office of the public defender. Is it not a fact that the Federal program does provide funds for the public defender in Philadelphia?

DELEGATE TATE. There are several Federal programs that impinge in this area. One relates under the Federal Criminal Justice Act, such as the Federal Court; one comes from the Antipoverty Program and relates to certain specified areas of concern in poverty areas.

However, the more traditional functions of the public defender program are particularly and mainly the defense of those charged with felonies in the courts of quarter sessions. These are not handled under any Federal funding program.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Thank you, Mr. President.

I speak with a great deal of enthusiasm in support of this particular amendment. I, as some of you know, come from a small county and, frankly, it is in these small counties where they are having problems finding out what a public defender is, who shall pay him, and what kind of lawyer he shall be.

The current practice as it prevails in my county and in a number of counties devolves in this fashion: I have been looked down on from the throne of justice by the lord of the fief, who is the president judge of my court, upon many occasions, and who said: "Mr. Barron, we have a man here who is without counsel. Would you defend him?" This, so far, I have been able to do and am quite happy to say so. However, of course, if I am unable to do so because of prior pressing commitments in a particular week of court, it becomes a most onerous burden.

The situation further devolves in this fashion, that since the county commissioners pay the public defender under the present practice, it very frequently falls that the county solicitor, by a curious coincidence, which I am sure is just that, although I am not as sure as I would like to be, winds up being a defender on a fee basis for the particular indigent defendant.

I submit to you that if we are to have the concept enshrined in our courts of Gideon v. Wainwright, the public is entitled to know that there is a man who is independent of the court, independent of the county solicitor, and one who is solely there for the purpose of representing those who do not have the money to be defended. The situation is not now thus.

If we are to consider worthy of presentation such officers as treasurer, register of wills, recorder of deeds, prothonotaries and clerks of the court, who do merely ministerial duties, are we not entitled to have as a statutory and now constitutional officer one who is to defend the public who cannot hire private counsel, and that he be on the same level as the district attorney who prosecutes or, unfortunately, as may occur, persecutes?

I suggest that if Gideon v. Wainwright has any substantive meaning to this delegation, we are entitled to have a constitutional office of public defender.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I too speak in favor of this amendment.

The history of the legislation involving public defenders is curious. Gideon v. Wainwright now goes back quite a number of years, and yet it was only within the last two or three years that the legislature enacted a bill which permitted counties to have a public defender. It was strictly on a "may" basis. I understand that quite a number of the smaller counties do not yet have a public defender. In some counties the practice goes like this: Instead of, as Delegate Barron said, naming the county solicitor, who probably has some experience, the county bar association will set up a committee of four or five of the youngest attorneys in the county. These young attorneys then rotate and act as the public defender.

I submit to you that the Supreme Court has not only held that a criminal must be defended, but that he must be adequately defended. This, I predict, if it continues as a practice, will be the reason for many people taking appeals to the appellate courts saying, yes, I had a defense, but, no, it was not adequate.

By inserting and consecrating the office of public defender in the Constitution, we are giving it the dignity that it is entitled to and we are assuring ourselves, or at least attempting to assure ourselves, and the public that this will be a man with the competency to provide the defense necessary.

Therefore, I would urge you very strongly to support this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, in the matter of the proposed amendment, I personally can testify that throughout this Commonwealth the practice of the defense of indigents is not uniform. It is not on any scientific basis and it falls far below the standards that an honest society should give to those who are called before their courts.

Although we have had legislation making provisions for the public defender, it was drawn pretty much as some of our school legislation has been drawn; it was poorly drawn. It is a bad statute.

In our county we have no appointed public defender. In the adjacent county, equally as large as ours, they have a public defender who works at a salary, but, perhaps, this young man would be happy to work for nothing.

The history of our law here in Pennsylvania has been such that lawyers everywhere have freely and gladly given of their time to serve the indigent when appointed by the court. But this has been far less than perfect. I was a district attorney for four years, and at a period earlier, eight or ten years before that, I served as an assistant district attorney.

The quality of the defense has never measured up to that of the prosecution. I think we should adopt this if only to make uniform throughout this Commonwealth that in each of the counties there shall be public defenders and that we do not have to depend upon a poverty program which sets up three or four administrative officers and possibly one or two very junior lawyers.

But this amendment has merit and, as far as I am concerned, I am speaking to it, because for most of my adult life, that is since becoming a lawyer, I have spoken of this great need.

Those of you lawyers who have served in defense of an indigent defendant can point with pride to the wonderful work that you did, but, if you remember, you could name nine or ten other cases where the fellow went by the board because his counsel was less than true counsel at that time.

Our indigents and those who come before the court for justice should not necessarily be a practice or proving ground for those who would engage in our profession.

I hope I am speaking to the lawyers present, if they would listen to me. The public defense of our indigents has been a state shame for many years. Those of us who are familiar with the rulings of our Third Circuit Federal Court know they pointed this out. Pennsylvania did drag its feet. We did not heed Gideon v. Wainwright. Although our courts certainly now heed it, they once totally disregarded it.

I would speak in favor of the amendment, and I think that some of the members of the committee who are knowledgeable in this should stand and perhaps agree that if you cannot have a recorder of deeds, you might, as my red-headed friend, Delegate Barron, says, see fit to place the public defender on your list.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I should like to ask a question of Delegate Tate, if I may?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, I am sure he will answer. You may proceed.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Delegate Tate, I believe you said there was a proposal before your committee on this subject?

DELEGATE TATE. Yes.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. And you rejected it because you did not want to add to the long list of enumerated officers? I believe that was your answer.

DELEGATE TATE. That was the principal reason, yes.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Did you consider at all substituting this office for one of the enumerated offices in order not to make the list any longer?

DELEGATE TATE. No, I think the feeling of our committee was that if we could, as we did in a couple of instances, reduce the list, we did not want to bring it back up to its prior number just for the sake of keeping the numbers the same.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Would you say that this office is of equal importance with the district attorney?

DELEGATE TATE. Personally, I would say yes.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Are there not some of these other offices which might be dropped? Would not your committee now consider dropping one of these other offices and substituting public defender?

DELEGATE TATE. No, the retention of those offices was not based upon their importance to any particular governmental units or the people involved. It was an effort to preserve traditions which were important to many people in the Commonwealth for such short or long time as those persons around the Commonwealth might feel that those traditions were worth preserving but, as I said before, to go on to newer and better things as soon as possible.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. You did drop some offices that were enumerated previously, did you not?

DELEGATE TATE. We dropped the office of surveyor because the universal opinion, as far as our committee knew, was that this officer had absolutely no further useful function in the Commonwealth.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. That does not eliminate the office of coroner, does it?

DELEGATE TATE. We dropped the office of coroner from the Constitution. It remains as a legislative office. We recognized that that falls into a different category than the surveyor, because coroners do perform a necessary service. The question before our committee in that connection was whether there should be some other form of office, such as medical examiner. We decided we would leave that question to the legislature.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. The dropping of the office of surveyor did not eliminate that office either, did it?

DELEGATE TATE. No, the legislature would have to eliminate that from the county code. I understand many counties do not even bother with electing a surveyor anymore and many more elect them but do not pay them a salary.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. The dropping of some of these others from the Constitution would not eliminate those offices, would it?

DELEGATE TATE. That is correct. However, the legislature, we hope, will take cognizance from our action with respect to coroners and make such other changes as it deems wise. We do not feel we wish to encourage necessarily in this part of the scheme of our local government article, legislative change in the other respects.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, may I ask, in order to expedite debate here, that we stick to the amendment before us, which is that of public defenders, and not discuss the row offices. I understand we have a great deal more amendments to go through.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I think I was on the subject. I was trying to determine why the committee felt that it was important to preserve these others and not to add the office of public defender.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cortese.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Mr. President, I have represented and counseled the poor without a fee, and I believe that every attorney has done that. I believe that the service of the public defender is an absolute necessity in our democracy.

A question, however, arises in my mind and I now should like to interrogate Delegate Tate.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed with your question.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Delegate Tate, in the event that the public defender becomes an elective office, would there be a risk in losing Federal grants?

DELEGATE TATE. This is a question that had not occurred to our committee, but I think it is a very serious question. Along the lines of the questions Delegate Hannum was asking a moment ago about Federal antipoverty or other grants that fall into this area, I think that there might be a very serious question, if it became an elective office whether those Federal grants might be lost. Therefore, I think it would be extremely dangerous to pass this amendment before we had a definite legal opinion on that question. I do not have that answer because it is not my proposal and I would think it might be appropriate for the sponsors of this amendment to give us an opinion on that. If that opinion is not favorable, I think it would be extremely dangerous to pass this amendment.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, may I answer the question that was just proposed by saying this, that there are very, very few counties which have accepted the Federal grant. Many of the counties, especially the bar associations, recommend not taking the Federal grant because it has entirely too many strings attached to it, number one.

Number two, I am absolutely sure that the Federal grants would not be affected if the Convention would pass this kind of an amendment. As a matter of fact, I would say that the Federal grants would be coming more readily because it then would be incorporated in our Constitution, and the government would know just exactly where it is going and the circumstances for which it was going. So I definitely feel that that question is unfit at this time. It is merely another issue to becloud the issue which is not here at all, and I believe that the proposed amendment is a good one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Thank you, Mr. President.

I believe there is confusion existing between public defender and legal aid societies. I represent the Washington-Greene County Antipoverty Program as vice president, and we just finished putting through a program to provide legal aid services to the poor. This does not include representation for public defender. The public defender is separate from legal aid, and in the provisions from the Federal Government, they do not allow any funds to be used to represent people in criminal actions. This is restricted. I do not have with me today the provisions of this, but I do not want this body to be confused on this particular issue. I have worked in this capacity for a period of two and one-half years in our area, and I am very familiar with it. Other counties in the State of Pennsylvania have adopted legal aid societies which were funded by Sargent Shriver's program and not to be confused with public defender.

Also on this particular matter, I am probably the most recent appointee by the court to serve an indigent defender in a murder case. I received this appointment three weeks ago by the court in our particular county.

I speak in opposition to the proposal for one basic reason, the same as I expressed in the committee structure. There are many counties in the State of Pennsylvania that do not have attorneys who would serve in the capacity of public defender. Therefore, these offices would go vacant the same as surveyor goes vacant today. No one would run for these particular offices and they would be vacant, so we would still be back in the same problem, we have been in before. This is very fine in the city of Philadelphia, in the city of Pittsburgh, in Allegheny County and the other large counties, but the rural counties in the State of Pennsylvania could not and would not support this matter because of the lack of the number of attorneys in the bar associations. This may open the door for us to get some fresh blood in our counties. If this would do this, I would favor it, but I am afraid that a lot of city attorneys would not come out and live in the country with the rest of us.

This matter has been debated and, therefore, at this time I would ask Delegate Jirolanio whether he would accept an amendment to his proposition and say "be apponted" rather than "elected"?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Most vehemently, no.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, I think the question Delegate Cortese points up is a very, very serious problem, but I think the problem is not quite as Mr. Cortese has framed it.

I ask this question: What would happen if the Federal Government withdrew its grants from the office of the public defender and what would happen if all the public agencies which now help to support the public defender withdrew their support? I think that the answer to this question shows that there is an absolute need to establish a public defender system in the Constitution so that, in the event that private support and Federal Government support is withdrawn, we will have the machinery established by law to continue a very necessary program.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I do not wish to seem impolite to the delegates who made these financial arguments, but we are not here today dealing with pounds and pence; we are not dealing with dollars and cents; we are not here dealing with the question of how do we pay for it. We are dealing with the matter of principle and principle alone and we may as well face it. We are dealing with a very primal question of whether we believe that the right of defense is as important as the right of prosecution. That is what we are dealing with, and many of us do not want to face that question because it defies our own selfish interests.

Each human being thinks his defense is more important than the defense of anyone else. What I am here saying is, I hope we have reached the point in history where we admit that the defense of others is coequal with the defense of our own interests. If we believe that, we vote to make the office of public defender coequal with that of the prosecuting office of district attorney. If we have not yet reached that point, then we quibble about the matter of how do we pay for it, how do we find them.

It seems sensible to me that if we have no difficulty in our counties of finding men to run for the office of prosecution attorney, district attorney, there must also be those men in those same counties who will consider running for the office of defense attorney of equal importance. I do not think think there would be a problem of finding men of the bar, learned in the law, who will accept the challenge to run for office to defend those who need defense, but all this talk about how do we pay for it, Federal grants; I did not hear anyone talking about that about the office of prosecution.

We will find a way of paying for it if we establish the principle here today that we believe the defense of an individual is as important as we claim to believe it to be in this democracy. If we do not really believe it, if we think society is more important than the individual and the defense of societal rights more important than the defense of individual rights, then let us say so. But if we believe that the defense of individual rights rises at least to the equal of the defense of societal rights, then, gentlemen and ladies, let us say that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Delegate Irvis has a beautiful theory, I admit. But, however, having practiced in criminal law for the past 45 years, I want to tell you that I am surprised that the lawyers have not gotten up and said something in their own behalf.

We lawyers practice criminal law. That is the field where a great many lawyers derive their bread and butter, from criminal law. It is beautiful to say that we should have a defender. I agree in principle with a public defender, that is, somebody who needs defense but does not have the means to obtain it. But to put it on the same status as the district attorney, who represents the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the enforcement of the law, to me is going too far because that is adding insult to the attorneys who practice criminal law.

I want to tell you this, that in our county they get a good defense, and county commissioners provide meager pay for those attorneys. However, the judges of our county pick the best criminal lawyers to defend the indigent and those who need defense.

It seems to me also that if you did put up a public defender and if you did elect a public defender of the same status as you elect a district attorney, the people of the county would say, have a right to that public defender the same as anybody else, and there would not be any criminal law practice for the attorneys who practice criminal law.

It seems to me that we have the Federal Government coming in, and our bar association has established a system where they can go and get their defense, besides the defense which the court gives them, if they say they are indigent and in need of defense.

It seems to me that we would be going too far by putting that in our Constitution and making an office of public defender, because I think the public is being defended. We have good criminal lawyers who are able, and if the people do not have the money, we as lawyers will defend them without cost and without indignities to our position. We will assume that responsibility and I think every bar association has done so, except maybe in the large cities. I do not think we should put it in there just for the large cities which need a public defender. They have provided for the public defenders, as I understand it, and it should not be made a part of our Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, yesterday, when I first saw this amendment, I was inclined to vote against it. After thinking it over and listening to the debate, I would like to add my voice in favor of the amendment.

As a former district attorney, I can attest to what Delegate Solomon stated, and that is, that the appointment of defense counsel has been very mediocre. As a matter of fact, as district attorney I felt sorry for the attorney in many cases who was appointed to defend an important case. I too have served by appointment in minor cases and in murder cases. I feel that by making this office elective and giving it stature, you will have more competent defense of the men and women who need this defense and who do not have the means.

I subscribe to the statements of Delegate Irvis in that respect. Therefore, I would ask that you vote in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I suggest to the delegates that I think maybe you are ready for the question. There is one delegate who has not been heard and that is Delegate Roberts. After we have heard from him, we shall vote, if it is agreeable.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Roberts.

DELEGATE ROBERTS. Mr. President, I was just going to call for the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Good. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Jirolanio?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—62

Aberman	Cosetti	Krill	Prendergast
Allison	Fagan	Laputka	Ruth
Amsterdam	Fay	Leinbach	Scales
Bagenstose	Feather	Mattioni	Scranton
Baldrige	Filson	McGlynn	Shapiro
Baldus	Fineman	Michael	Sharp
Barron	Forster	Michener	Shettig
Barry	Fortney	Miller, H.	Shrager
Brennan	Hostetler	Nelson	Silverman
Broderick	Huggins	Orban	Solomon
Brown	Irvis	Orbin	Sprogell
Buck	Jirolanio	Otto	Swope
Caputo	Johnson	Percey	Thomson
Casey	Kauffman	Pott	Thornburgh
Clinger	Keller, J.	Powell	Warman
Conley	Kline

NAYS—78

Baldwin	Devlin	Kelly	Reynolds
Aurentz	Donaldson	Leach	Roberts
Banes	Dumbauld	Lee, L.	Sahli
Bashoff	Erwin	Levin	Scarlett
Benedict	Fawcett	Manderino	Sebastian
Benfield	Fohl	Mangery	Shively
Bloom	Gabreski	Markley	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	McGeary	Strickler
Bunting	Goldman	Meyer	Tate
Burkholder	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Tully
Butera	Gouger	Moorhead	Van Sant
Camardella	Griffith	More	Waldron
Corey	Hannum	Morton	Welsh
Cortese	Harding	Murray	Westerberg
Clark	Henderson	O'Donnell	Whittum
Croop	Heyburn	Pasquerilla	Wilcox
Cunningham	Himes	Popil	Wilmarth
Curran	Hocker	Rappaport	Woodring
Dailey	Hook	Redick	Woodside
Desmond	Horne

NOT VOTING—23

Cain	Hatter	Musselman	Rovner
Caron	Keller, M.	Pechan	Scott
Donolow	King	Pelletier	Stout
Fleming	Lane	Quiles	Stroup
Gerber	Lee, K.	Rea	Tomascik
Gray	Leonard	Richter

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tomascik.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. I should like to be recorded as voting "aye" on the amendment just passed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We can spread your remarks on the record. How do you wish to be recorded?

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. I voted "aye."

MEETING OF COMMITTEE ON STYLE AND DRAFTING

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. The Committee on Style and Drafting will meet immediately after the recess in Room 500, North Office Building. Lunch will be served. As to whatever time the recess is, heaven and President Broderick alone know, but please come there immediately after recess, to Room 500.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want to assure you that only heaven knows.

MEETING OF JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, as an announcement, the Co-Chairmen of the subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee will meet for luncheon in Room 615, which is on the fifth floor of the Capitol Building, and lunch will be on the Co-Chairmen of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

LAPUTKA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. I read in place and present the following amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LAPUTKA offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 21 to 23, by striking out "In the election of" in line 21, and all of lines 22 and 23

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. This amendment is quite simple in its understanding. As stated before, it is simply an amendment to eliminate the necessity for the compulsory election of a minority commissioner in the county setup. Obviously, if the home-rule type of provision is adopted for the county, this probably would change and would be of no significance as it is in the city of Philadelphia. This does not apply to Philadelphia since they have a home-rule charter. Any county that would adopt a home-rule charter would probably—and I submit to the committee on this—change to whatever type of election they would have. For those counties who did not and who are presently in this status is what this amendment pertains to.

Many of the delegates have experienced what happened with the minority type election when they ran for office as delegates. They experienced the fact that they found themselves in contest with their fellow running-mate in a particular office, and in some localities it got down to a judicial determination and a contest for the determination of the delegates. This often happens in the commissioners' fight. It is an archaic idea which I believe should be eliminated.

In Luzerne County this has happened many times and in the past eight years we have had two different occasions on which a rather upsetting and disturbing type of situation occurred. In 1959 we elected two Democratic commissioners and one Republican. This was a change of administration and a consequent change in the patronage of the county commissioner's office, the registration office, highways and so forth down the line. Within one year thereafter, one of the commissioners changed his party affiliation. Some problems arose and he switched his allegiance to the Republican Party; consequently, there was a change in many of the offices once again and a court action came out of it. The court action started by an action quo warranto by the district attorney, who was then a Democrat, and it ended up in our Supreme Court. Justice Cohen, who handed down the decision in the case, of course, decided that there was no vacancy created by the fact that he had switched his allegiance from one party to the other, but he went on in his opinion—and I want to quote from his opinion. This, incidentally, for the benefit of those of you who are not acquainted with it, was the case of the Commonwealth v. Jennings, reported in 409 Pennsylvania, at 513. Justice Cohen, in summing up the case after making the decision that no vacancy had been created by the switching of the parties, stated this—"Finally and most important to attribute to the framers of the Pennsylvania Constitution, the intention of requiring a public officeholder to continue after taking office as a representative of his political party would be to charge them with the complete misunderstanding of the nature of the American political system. Once a person assumes public office, he becomes a representative of all of his constituents and not merely those who voted for him or happened to belong to his political party." He went on to say, "In the discharge of their official duties the three commissioners, or auditors, do not act as representatives of the majority or the minority party, but as officials in conformity with the duties prescribed by the laws of the Commonwealth, uncontrolled and uninfluenced by any party affiliations or obligations. In this country this is the theory upon which all officials —municipal, state and Federal—are expected to act and upon which they must act if our system of government is to be preserved."

Gentlemen, there are many instances where this has happened where the minority commissioner, is, in effect, a rubber stamp for the majority commissioners and the only difference of opinion seems to exist in the patronage of the county, not in their official functions, not in their legislative functions, but in patronage. Incidentally, Justice Cohen said in that same opinion: "We cannot be blind to the political reality that in areas where one party has clear superiority the so-called minority representative is often controlled by the majority party through its power over the distribution of patronage even though no formal change occurs in his party registration."

Gentlemen, I say to you quite sincerely, the idea of a minority commissioner is archaic. The committee saw fit to take the auditors out of this classification and put the auditors in the upper paragraph relative to all other county officers, and I submit that this also should be done with the minority commissioner.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Roberts.

DELEGATE ROBERTS. Mr. President, I think that we all are aware that there are some real problems in having a minority commissioner, but I also proceed myself in feeling that misuse does not invalidate proper use. I feel that in many of the counties of Pennsylvania without the minority commissioner who serves as a check on the majority, the political parties that are in the minority would have absolutely no hope. So I rise to oppose this amendment and also to bring to the attention of this assembly that without the minority-representation principle, many of us would not be here and this would be tragic.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. I must oppose this amendment because of a profound statement which has recently been made about American politics. This statement emanates from the State of Arkansas where a dreadful mismanagement of government affairs has been uncovered in the state prisons. One of the commentators on this development has pointed out that had Arkansas had a viggorous minority system—and more expressly a minority representation—during the past 20 years, it would be inconceivable that the mismanagement of their prison system could have long continued, that some cantankerous minority member, in this case a Republican, would simply have heard about this, would have seen a reason for uncovering it and would have paraded it before the people of Arkansas. Indeed, it was not until a minority Governor was elected, with, I believe, only two members in the House and Senate to support him, that this dreadful malfeasance was uncovered.

I live in a county where the minority-majority system has been abused. We Democrats have sometimes suffered from the superior manipulation of some very clever Republicans. I personally have gone through this in which one of our best Democrats was suborned by the other side, but that was just for two years. In the long reach of our county it has been to our advantage to have minority representation simply to probe into the dark places. I agree that had Arkansas had minority representation, this miserable performance would not have been permitted; I agree that in my county the minority representation has served a marvelous function in uncovering unsavory things that should be uncovered. I would not like to see any weakening of our two-party system perpetrated by this Convention merely because at times it goes off the track.

Fellow delegates, we have not heard of anything in this Convention that did not go off the track part of the time; that is the testimony of almost every speaker. Nothing is perfect, but this is a good safeguard to the basic principles of democracy.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I do not think there is any more ardent advocate of the two-party system than I in this Convention. I have worked very hard for it; I worked for it for 20 years in my county, but I also lived through this system of minority representation both in my county and in Philadelphia before that.

I think the previous speaker is unaware of the history of politics in Philadelphia, for example. I cannot give any personal statement as to what went on in Philadelphia prior to 1915, but, secondhand, it was not much different than it was after 1915. From about 1915 until sometime about the middle of the 1930's there was no minority representation in Philadelphia other than a nominal representation.

I should like to point out to this Convention that what this amendment does is not remove or destroy minority representation, but simply leave in the hands of the legislators the opportunity to perhaps find some other method of electing minority representatives which will insure that the representatives who are so elected do, in fact, represent the minority-party voters of their county.

In Philadelphia for at least 20 years and probably longer than that, Philadelphia had only a puppet Democratic Party dominated and led by a puppet who was installed by the Republican Party.

In Montgomery County when I moved in there, the same condition existed and had existed in Montgomery County for many, many years and it took us something like eight years before we got a Democrat selected by Democrats in the position of minority county commissioner. I think that we ought to understand that we are not voting against minority representation here; we are not trying to destroy minority representation if we vote for this amendment; we are simply trying to allow the legislature to seek a more effective way of insuring that we do, in fact, have minority-party representation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, I was the proponent of the individual proposal for the removal of the minority commissioner. At that time I indicated that they were something less than useful. I rise to my feet again to state that we are talking about responsible government in the Commonwealth and in the same breath are having this committee come up and continue to retain what is in the law under 409 Pennsylvania Supreme Court opinion, not even an anachronism, something which is a figment of somebody's imagination, that many years back a minority commissioner would serve a vital need in our counties.

It has been an absolute fake, and I would ask the chairmen of the committee to indicate to us what they have learned concerning the efficacy of the minority commissioner with the exception of retaining some overgrown vestige of the so-called minority party.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, might I answer that question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The committee approach on county government was very simply this: There was strong sentiment among the people on the committee that we should come up with one plan of county government which would be the existing modified form, and the committee voted to retain the minority commissioner representation.

It is difficult for any constitution to provide a county government for 67 counties in Pennsylvania that will work. It was, therefore, our feeling that the solution to the problems of county government lies in the fact that the General Assembly should establish optional forms of government which they can adopt by referendum which will fit and suit the needs of their county, or they can go through the route of home-rule charters to fit the need of their county.

We felt this was the best way to solve the problem of the structure of government in counties.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. I would like to speak again to the chairman and ask if he has any recollection of an amendment which was proposed this morning tearing out the word "county" from home rule and about which a report was received from numerous county commissioners throughout the State indicating that they were in favor of not being given the privilege of home rule.

Does that accord with his ideas of good, responsible county government?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. That is all the more reason, Mr. President, why the committee felt that we should do something to strengthen county government and that is the reason why we came out with this far-reaching proposal. The fact that they did not respond is the one thing which excited us and made us responsive to the fact that we should do something about it.

And bear in mind one thing: In a Constitution we cannot solve the problems. Only people and elected officials can solve the problems which they do on the local level. All we can do is provide the structure of government, and that is the purpose of the Constitution.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. What other system of government within this Commonwealth has a parallel system of a minority commissioner?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. There is no parallel system, I do not think, perhaps anywhere in the world maybe; I do not know.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Let us get rid of this, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope or Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I yield to my friend, Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, to complete the historical review initiated by Delegate Shapiro, I might point out that the classic example of a puppet minority party was the situation in the city of Philadelphia before 1915 and, if I recall correctly, I think they were referred to as the O'Donnell Democrats.

I disassociate myself from that group. I suspect, however, that the very argument raised by Delegate Roberts in favor of defeating the amendment may be very well the best argument in favor of supporting it, because I, too, have in mind that were it not for minority representation, I would not have been here. So that might suggest to the Assembly that it might be a good idea to remove minority representation.

In a more serious vein, the minority representation situation in the counties has not, in my recollection—and I have only been in politics 20 years, which is not a long time compared with some in this body, but in that period of time—in the county in which I reside and in the counties which surround the county in which I reside, minority representation has not in fact worked in the way that philosophically or idealistically you would expect it to work. It has in fact not been a sounding board for a minority point of view because the minority representative has in fact been elected by the majority party. He keeps very quiet, indeed, to make certain that when he wishes to run for re-election, he does not incur the animosity of the majority party.

In like manner, the way in which it has worked out—and I have spoken to members on both sides of the aisle on this amendment in those counties where there is a minority party, invariably every four years there is a political donnybrook which keeps the minority party weak. For that reason, I would ask this Convention to give some very serious consideration, indeed, to abolishing the present system of minority party representation at the county level.

I am informed that there is an amendment on the way. It is perhaps the very next amendment. I believe it is sponsored by Delegate Swope and may very well solve the problem in its entirety.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, the sponsor of this amendment has, I believe, not said on the floor here, that I heard, although I was busy with the Drafting Committee up there, whether the purpose of his amendment is to eliminate completely minority representation or to accord with Delegate Solomon's interpretation that this would put it back into the legislature and the legislature might come up with a reasonable plan of minority representation. May I ask Delegate Laputka to answer that?

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Yes, Delegate Swope, my real purpose is to get the mandate out of the Constitution along with the line of what the committee has decided, that they were going to leave these matters up to the legislature. As it is now, it is mandated in the Constitution and my proposal is to get that mandate out. How it is handled thereafter, either by the legislature, home rule or whatever the case may be, this is satisfactory with me.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I thank the delegate for the illumination of his purpose. It is my purpose to have it in the Constitution and to see that minority representation on a sound basis is accorded in the Constitution. My amendment, if it is coming to the floor shortly, I hope, through the drafting room, will provide for just that thing.

I recall, I am old enough to remember the O'Donnell Democrats in Philadelphia and it has been truly said by Delegates O'Donnell and Shapiro that the minority representation of Philadelphia County's commission or board at that time was a travesty and was a laughing stock as a possible minority representation. I have lived in this county for almost 50 years, for 40 of which I have tried in my modest way to maintain against being held in derision by my friends in this county for trying to maintain a semblance of a minority party, and four years after four years everything that we have tried to do in having a cohesive minority party was destroyed by the majority party picking our minority county commissioner.

My proposal will eliminate that possibility and we will then have true minority representation where each party will select its own county commissioners plus a chairman of the county commissioner board and then we will leave this twilight realm of being a minority party under the domination of the majority party.

My friends, if we destroy the thought and the idea of minority representation in this country, we will have taken the first step in coming to a one-party government. I might say to my friend, Judge Solomon, that this Convention is writing into the judiciary article the very concept of minority representation in the boards that are to be created for suggesting names for judges of the state courts. If it is good in that place, my friends, it is good at the root of democracy in our counties. I hope this amendment will be defeated and I will present mine later on.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Thank you, Mr. President. I rise in protest against the amendment. First of all, we have heard quite a few arguments about fighting for the third spot on the ballot, the maneuvering of the opposite party, the problem of competing for the third slot against your own party. I see nothing wrong with this. Surely there is nothing wrong with competing for elected public office.

One of the most important phases, as I see it, is control of the election machinery. I think it is very, very wrong to have one political party in complete control of political election machinery.

I come from Philadelphia, from a big city. I belong to a majority party. I realize in the past there had been abuses. Today it is still a two-to-one registered Democratic city. The Republican Party has its own minority representation which is not controlled by the Democratic Party; it happens to be a Republican leader. I am sure Bill Devlin would agree with me on that fact. I think a two-party system must be maintained in this area.

Several individuals have said that this would weaken the two-party system. I must disagree on that. I think the problems that have been brought up are the exceptions rather than the rule. In fact, one-third of the members in this room happen to represent minority parties. They would not be here if they did not.

I speak against this amendment and I urge its defeat.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, members of this delegation, perhaps in history I can speak with more minority representation in my county than in any county in the State of Pennsylvania. Only twice in our long history have we had two Republican county commissioners. The rest have all been Democratic, and may I say to this delegation that the information that the minority representation had in the commissioner meetings, the information he afforded to the press, the information he afforded to the voters of Columbia County was a very tangible weapon with which our county government was kept on the right track, because they knew that everything would be divulged that was wrong; everything that was not as it should be would be divulged. Therefore, it did keep the majority commissioners in the right line as far as the people were concerned.

The prior speaker referred to a subject that I wanted to bring up. It is one of the most important. The election department comes under election and registration. Perhaps I should say it comes under the jurisdiction of the county commissioners. We have seen fit, because of the activity of the minority party, to have a registration clerk on duty all the time who is of the minority party to make certain that the representation is there for both sides of the aisle.

I think that this would be a horrible mistake. I was shocked when my neighbor, Delegate Laputka, presented this amendment. I know of the troubles Luzerne County has had. I am only a few miles away from them and they have had trouble up there, but it has not been, I think, due to the fact of the makeup of the county commissioners' office so far as the makeup in and of itself, but of the individuals who were the representatives of the makeup.

This has gone on for quite some time. It is not the first time, and I think even the minority there did bring out very salient facts, very valuable information, through TV exposure and newspapers to the voters of Luzerne County. I can see why he feels as energetic about it as he does, but I think this would be a shock to our representatives to take away this minority representation.

For 40 years I have been a sponsor of the two-party form of government. I am not going to quit now; I am going to go on for the rest of my life. And might I say in my county I have been in the minority all through the years. However, now and then we carry our county for our side. We have a Republican judge. I just put in a row officer by 12 votes this year. We lost all the rest, but it gives us an incentive to fight for and to give the voters something, and we do have representation.

I would like to urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Reynolds.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. Mr. President, I rise to oppose this amendment and would like to ask that the delegates vote it down.

I listened to Delegate Michener tell about Arkansas. I was born in a State which had the one-party system, North Carolina, and let me tell you that if it ever happens here, you will have trouble on your hands. It is not fair to either party. I have been in the minority all my life; I was born in the minority, so I know what it is to be in the minority. But you can be honorable in the minority, and I must say Delegate O'Donnell has reassured me that the O'Donnells are not all like the ones who used to control in Philadelphia.

Delegate Shapiro has said that he has straightened the thing out in Montgomery and Chester Counties and Delaware, so it looks like we are getting in good shape. I hope we will vote this down and not allow it to go to the legislature or anyone else. Let us guarantee that we shall have a two-party system and minority representation by putting it in the Constitution.

I sat here all this week and last week when people were saying we were sent here to do this and do that. We are here to have good government, and I believe if we keep the two-party system and if we keep the minority representation, we will have good government. I am asking that we vote it down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Orban moves the question.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Laputka?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—16

Bunting	Fay	Laputka	Shapiro
Caputo	Harding	O'Donnell	Solomon
Conley	Johnson	Pelletier	Sprogell
Donaldson	Kauffman	Rappaport	Woodside

NAYS—121

Aberman	Devlin	Krill	Reynolds
Allison	Dumbauld	Leach	Richter
Amsterdam	Erwin	Lee, K.	Roberts
Aurentz	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Sahli
Bagenstose	Feather	Leinbach	Scales
Baldrige	Filson	Levin	Scarlett
Baldus	Fineman	Manderino	Scranton
Baldwin	Fohl	Mangery	Sebastian
Banes	Forster	Markley	Sharp
Barron	Fortney	Mattioni	Shettig
Benedict	Gabreski	McGeary	Shively
Bloom	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Braham	Goldman	Meyer	Shrager
Brennan	Goldstein	Michener	Silverman
Broderick	Gouger	Miller, R.	Stout
Brown	Griffith	Moorhead	Strickler
Buck	Hannum	More	Swope
Burkholder	Hatter	Morton	Tate
Butera	Henderson	Murray	Thomson
Cain	Heyburn	Nelson	Thornburgh
Camardella	Hines	Orban	Tomascik
Casey	Hocker	Orbin	Tully
Clark	Hook	Otto	Waldron
Clinger	Horne	Pasquerilla	Warman
Corey	Huggins	Prendergast	Welsh
Cosetti	Irvis	Popil	Westerberg
Croop	Jirolanio	Pott	Whittum
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Powell	Wilcox
Curran	Kelly	Rea	Wilmarth
Dailey	Kline	Redick	Woodring
Desmond

NOT VOTING—26

Barry	Fleming	Leonard	Quiles
Bashoff	Gerber	Michael	Rovner
Benfield	Gray	Miller, D.	Ruth
Caron	Hostetler	Musselman	Scott
Cortese	Keller, M.	Pechan	Stroup
Donolow	King	Percey	Van Sant
Fagan	Lane

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shapiro, I understand you want your amendment to be considered, so we will entertain your motion to take it from the table.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the amendment that I previously offered I would like withdrawn. I have an amendment which deals only with the part of it that was not dealt with by the last amendment and I have altered it in some respects. I do not know whether it has been distributed or could be distributed at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand it is not ready, so we will pass it until we get it ready.

Now I want to ask one question. Delegate Swope has an amendment dealing with this same subject. Is that ready? It is not.

IRVIS AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment we will take up is the amendment of Delegate Irvis. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment and I am going to ask the pages to distribute copies of Delegate Irvis' amendment, and we will then recognize Delegate Irvis.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE IRVIS offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 10, by inserting after "attorneys,": public defenders,

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 13, by inserting after "officers": except for public defenders who shall be appointed as shall be determined by the General Assembly.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I was extremely grateful for the vote, which I noted on the last amendment, to insert the public defenders as constitutional officers.

This amendment would also insert public defenders as constitutional officers with this difference: The last amendment would have called for the election of that officer. This amendment states that the public defenders shall be appointed as shall be determined by the General Assembly. The reason for that last phrase is because we cannot know as we sit here today what form of government the various counties will have, and indeed what form of government the first class city of this Commonwealth, Philadelphia, may have at the time of the appointment of a public defender. This language would also answer the objections of those delegates who were fearful that if we established the office of public defender as a constitutional office, anyone wishing a defense would have the right to it. The General Assembly would have the right when it defines the appointment powers to also define the limits of the office; and, of course, historically a public defender has been the defender of the indigent, not the defender of the wealthy. I wish to reassure those delegates who have these fears, either latent or overt, that no court in the land is going to permit a wealthy man to be defended by a public defender, nor would the taxpayers long permit that sort of practice.

I would urge that those of you who voted in the negative on the last amendment reconsider your vote on this one, because I believe it answers the objections of a number who voiced those objections to me. It would give the status and dignity that I have asked of this delegate assembly to the office of public defender. It would be, in my opinion, a moral victory for this Constitutional Convention to approve this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone wish to be heard?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I rose in opposition to the original proposal and asked a question of Delegate Jirolanio pertaining to the use of the term "elected". Now I rise in support of this present proposal because it now puts it on the basis of being determined by appointment. I feel that this brings it into perspective as far as public defenders are concerned.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I think that the concept that we have been talking about is a fine one and I am in wholehearted support of the basic concept that the gentlemen who have been supporting this kind of thing are talking about. I was a former district attorney and I know that side of the picture. I was a former public defender and I know that side of the picture. But, gentlemen, we are making a mistake if we are going to insert this kind of concept in this place in this amendment. This concept does not belong in a place where it can be ripped right back out any time someone changes the structure of local government. If you want to insert the concept, insert it in the Bill of Rights or insert it in some other place, but why here? This is the wrong place for it. I oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN. Mr. President, I opposed that amendment previously, but because of the change, I want to go on record as voting in favor of it. I think that the status of the public defender's office should be raised; it should be elevated, and this is about the only way to do it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, I would like to answer a question which I believe is in the mind of my friend, Delegate Irvis.

Two days ago we celebrated the birthday of one who many of us feel was the greatest man this country ever produced. He said, "The government shall do for the people only that which they cannot do for themselves." I assure you, Delegate Irvis, that I speak only as a lawyer and I truly feel, sir, that in the private effort—and I am talking about foundations, I am talking about the community chest, I am talking about implementing this great principle in which both of us believe that the little fellow or the poor fellow should get the utmost aid he possibly can. I assure you that—one of the things that also concerns me is that the problems may be not brought out too clearly where the public defender and the district attorney are both possibly of the same party. I could think of that problem. But principally, Delegate Irvis, I speak and fully believe and both of us know as lawyers that it is better that 99 persons who have done wrong should go free than that one innocent person should suffer. That is our system. We both believe in it and we both believe in the principle. I am only speaking to what I think is the better way to do it and the way it is done now, and I am sure you understand that, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Horne.

DELEGATE HORNE. Mr. President, I move the question.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Irvis?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—75

Aberman	Conley	Kauffman	Prendergast
Allison	Cortese	Keller, J.	Rappaport
Amsterdam	Cosetti	Kline	Redick
Aurentz	Dalley	Laputka	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Devlin	Mangery	Ruth
Baldrige	Donaldson	Markley	Scales
Baldus	Erwin	Mattioni	Scranton
Baldwin	Feather	McGeary	Shapiro
Banes	Filson	McGlynn	Sharp
Barron	Fineman	Miller, R.	Shettig
Barry	Fohl	Murray	Shrager
Broderick	Forster	Nelson	Silverman
Brown	Gouger	Orban	Solomon
Burkholder	Hook	Orbin	Swope
Cain	Horne	Otto	Thomson
Camardella	Huggins	Petletier	Thornburgh
Caputo	Irvis	Percey	Tomascik
Casey	Jirolanio	Popli	Warman
Clinger	Johnson	Pott

NAYS—60

Benedict	Gehrlein	Levin	Shively
Benfield	Gerber	Manderino	Shoemaker
Bloom	Goldman	Meyer	Spregell
Braham	Goldstein	Michael	Stout
Brennan	Griffith	Michener	Strickler
Buck	Hannum	Moorhead	Tate
Bunting	Hatter	More	Tully
Butera	Heyburn	Morton	Waldron
Clark	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Corey	Kelly	Powell	Westerberg
Croop	Krill	Richter	Whittum
Cunningham	Leach	Roberts	Wilcox
Curran	Lee, K.	Sahli	Wilmarth
Desmond	Lee, L.	Scarlett	Woodring
Fortney	Leinbach	Sebastian	Woodside

NOT VOTING—28

Bashoff	Fleming	Keller, M.	Pechan
Caron	Gaboreski	King	Quiles
Donolow	Gray	Lane	Rea
Dumbauld	Harding	Leonard	Rovner
Fagan	Henderson	Miller, D.	Scott
Fawcett	Himes	Musselman	Stroup
Fay	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Van Sant

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

SHIPIRO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment will be the Shapiro amendment which is now ready. The pages are distributing the amendment. I am going to ask the clerk to read it and then we will recognize Delegate Shapiro.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 10 and 11, by striking out "treasurers, sheriffs, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, prothonotaries, clerks of the courts,"

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. The amendment as now proposed, Mr. President, eliminates any efforts along the lines which Delegate Laputka and Delegate Swope have indicated their amendments have or will try, and I confine myself in this amendment to removing from the proposal the enumeration, not of all, but of some of the offices, the row offices, which are presently in the proposal. It is proposed that the commissioners, comptroller or auditor, and district attorney remain in the enumeration and the other offices be deleted, so that, so far as the Constitution is concerned, the legislature cannot tamper with county commissioners, cannot tamper with the auditor or controller or the district attorney, and it is left to the legislature to determine what other offices, what county officers, there shall be in those counties which have not adopted one of the elective methods or a home-rule charter.

The proposal now simply would delete from the enumeration of offices those other offices except the ones I mentioned.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I think that we have discussed this matter at great length, and all I want to do is to reiterate the committee's position, that we are opposed to this amendment. Since it has been thoroughly discussed, I would hope that we could limit debate on this in some way and proceed with the vote.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have one other point to make. The committee chairman said that the whole approach here was to leave as much to the legislature as we possibly could, and we think my proposal is in that direction.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, my view on this matter may be very briefly expressed.

It is my opinion that if we are going to have politics at the county level, you have to have some prizes for which to compete. Perhaps it should not be that way, but that is the way people are. As I think over my career in public office and private life and as I compare the people who might have been appointed to these offices with those who have been elected in my county, I can see that occasionally we might have been "bettered" if the officers had been appointed.

However, there is a fallacy inherent in this. This assumes that the person who is going to make the appointment is always wise and always just, and that is not always the case. I have seen men in my position whose judgment I would not have wanted to consider.

In short, I believe with Secretary Michener that there is a process which is working at all time, the people governing themselves, and at many points the people are glad to leave the subject of abstract principles and go to persons and personalities. There is nothing wrong with that.

That is why I am going to vote against this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard?

DELEGATE WALDRON. I move the question, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is everybody ready for the question? We shall unlock the voting machine and proceed to vote on the Shapiro amendment. Will the Convention agree to the Shapiro amendment? That is the question.

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—12

Bunting	Laputka	Percey	Sprogell
Burkholder	Michael	Shapiro	Stout
Johnson	Morton	Solomon	Swope

NAYS—115

Aberman	Croop	Kauffman	Redick
Allison	Cunningham	Keller, J.	Roberts
Amsterdam	Curran	Kelly	Ruth
Aurentz	Dailey	Krill	Scales
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leach	Scarlett
Baldrige	Devlin	Lee, K.	Scranton
Baldus	Donaldson	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Baldwin	Fay	Leinbach	Sharp
Banes	Feather	Levin	Shettig
Barron	Filson	Manderino	Shively
Barry	Fohl	Markley	Shoemaker
Bashoff	Forster	Mattioni	Shrager
Benedict	Fortney	McGeary	Silverman
Benfield	Gabreski	McGlynn	Strickler
Bloom	Gehrlein	Meyer	Tate
Braham	Gerber	Michener	Thomson
Brennan	Goldman	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Broderick	Goldstein	Moorhead	Tomasulk
Brown	Gouger	More	Tully
Buck	Griffith	Murray	Waldron
Cain	Hannum	Nelson	Warman
Camardella	Harding	Orban	Welsh
Caputo	Hatter	Orbin	Westerberg
Casey	Heyburn	Otto	Whittum
Clark	Hook	Pasquerilla	Wilcox
Clinger	Horne	Pelletier	Wilmarth
Corey	Huggins	Powell	Woodring
Cortese	Irvis	Rappaport	Woodside
Cosetti	Jirolanio	Rea

NOT VOTING—36

Butera	Fleming	Lane	Prendergast
Caron	Gray	Leonard	Quiles
Conley	Henderson	Mangery	Reynolds
Donolow	Himes	Miller, D.	Richter
Dumbauld	Hocker	Musselman	Rovner
Erwin	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Sahli
Fagan	Keller, M.	Pechan	Scott
Fawcett	King	Popil	Stroup
Fineman	Kline	Pott	Van Sant

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SWOPE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we shall take up Delegate Swope's amendment. I ask the clerk to read the amendment and we shall ask the pages to distribute copies of the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SWOPE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 21 to 23, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Boards of three county commissioners shall be elected in each county and in the nomination of commissioners each political party or body shall nominate one person for chairman and one person for member of the board of commissioners; and in the election of commissioners each qualified elector shall vote for one person as chairman and one person as a member of the board of commissioners, and the person having the highest number of votes for chairman shall be elected chairman and the two other persons having the highest number of votes for member of the board shall be elected members of the board; any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioners shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I have already made my peroraton so I will speak mildly concerning the few points that, perhaps, I did not cover before or not to a sufficient emphasis.

Our forefathers in adopting the Constitution of 1873-74 deemed it wise to give minority representation in this very important office in the county structure of government. I want to preserve this, but I want to purify it. I want to make it possible for each party, particularly in those counties where there is a wide disproportion between the numbers of the minority party and the numbers of the majority party in the electorate, to preserve for each party its right to name its candidates to the board of county commissioners. We have already done this in the election of the delegates to this Convention. It is being proposed in the judiciary article, and I call upon the members of the Judiciary Committee, a large body, to think carefully about this amendment, whether it is not in harmony with the plan that they are proposing for the selection of the selection boards on the judges of the state courts.

I would hope, Mr. President, that after careful reflection and without the necessity of a long debate that we might come to the conclusion that minority representation is worth preserving, and if it is worth preserving, it is worth being preserved in purity.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Thank you, Mr. President.

It is with regret that I must oppose this amendment made by my neighbor, Delegate Swope.

There are two objections to this as I see it on behalf of the Local Government Committee, and particularly on behalf of the Subcommittee on County Government.

First, and I think it is an important one, is that it includes in its last clause the existing language giving powers of appointment to the court of common pleas, which our committee felt strongly and unanimously should be taken away from the court of common pleas. Therefore, I would oppose it for the inclusion of that final clause.

In addition, as has been stated before today, this proposal, while it has some attractive merit to it, does make a change in the existing form of county government which we feel is very substantial. With a smile I might say that if we make the existing forms too attractive, we may not encourage enough counties to move into home rule and the optional forms of government, which is the philosophy of the whole local government article.

More seriously, I think that it was the feeling of our committee and subcommittee that we did not want to make this sort of a major change in the existing form of county government so that, in effect, something pretty close to the existing form of county government only modernized in its most essential needs would remain for counties as an optional form of government either to stay with or to be used at any time in the future in addition to those set forth by the legislature and the home-rule route, which we hope will be used by more and more counties over the years. Therefore, I speak in opposition to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Thank you, Mr. President.

I would like to direct an interrogation to Delegate Swope.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Swope, will you consent to be interrogated by Delegate Orban?

The gentleman has indicated that he consents. You may proceed.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Delegate Swope, I would like to know how you will determine that the appointee voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled.

DELEGATE SWOPE. If I understand the query correctly, I think it is fully and specifically answered by the fifth line from the bottom, "any casual vacancy in the office of county commissioners shall be filled, by the court of common pleas of the county in which such vacancy shall occur, by the appointment of an elector of the proper county who shall have voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled."

DELEGATE ORBAN. My question is, how are you going to know that the appointee voted for the commissioner whose place is to be filled?

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, this is presently a part of the Constitution, and I think that the court has found it possible to satisfy itself that its appointment to fill a vacancy is from one who has stated that he voted for the man whose office becomes vacant.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, members of the delegation and particularly you, Mr. Swope, I do not know how you are going to determine these offices. You nominate in your primaries. You may have a slate of 10 candidates running on either party or on each respective party. The two highest will be the men who go on the election ballot at the general election. How are you going to determine—there is no provision here—which one of these two shall be running for the chairman of the board?

DELEGATE SWOPE. I think Delegate Croop has misread the language. There will be a separate election for chairman. There will be a separate place on the ballot for chairman. There will be one candidate nominated by each party, not necessarily only two parties. There might be two or three or four parties. We have four parties now in my county. This office will be separate; there will be a separate place on the ballot. The one receiving the highest number of votes will be chairman of the board.

DELEGATE CROOP. At the general election and not when they are being nominated? In other words, they do not have to be designated as running for chairman of the board? This will automatically happen because of the number of votes they get?

DELEGATE SWOPE. Yes, he will be running for chairman on a separate place on the ballot. The candidate receiving the highest number of votes for that office will be the chairman of the board.

DELEGATE CROOP. I am still confused as to how he gets his place on the ballot at the general election under the present Election Code.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I think it is very simple. There will be a primary election and at the primary election there will be two places on the ballot—one for chairman and one for member. Each party will nominate one for chairman and each party will nominate one for member. This will guarantee that the minority party or each party will select its nominee for two members of the board under the chairman who will be guaranteed election in the fall, unless there is an independent ticket which might take it away from somebody.

DELEGATE CROOP. All right, let me give you this coincidence, perhaps the two highest vote-getters at the primary election, neither name appears for chairman.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I am afraid that the delegate is still misreading the purpose of this amendment. There will be only one highest man from each party selected to run for the office of chairman. There will be only one candidate selected by each party to run for the office of chairman. In the general election, the one receiving the highest number of votes will be chairman.

DELEGATE CROOP. I still come back then—that is what I said. Four candidates at the general election will be running for county commissioner, three of whom will be elected because of their votes tabulated and the highest will automatically be the chairman of the board. Is that the working of this?

DELEGATE SWOPE. The delegate insists on combining these two. They are not combined. The highest of the two or of the five who are nominated for chairman will become chairman and all the others will be out of the picture on that particular line, and then each party will have nominated one for member of the board and the two receiving the highest number of votes will become the second and third members of the board.

DELEGATE CROOP. I have the highest respect for your knowledge, Delegate Swope, through many years of knowing you, but I still admit I have spent about 35 years in this political arena and I am still confused. I am wondering what the voters are going to be.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I do not see how there should be any confusion. The people running for chairman will know that if they do not receive the highest vote, they do not become chairman. One of these candidates losing the chairmanship might possibly have more votes than the two who are running for the second and third members, but that is out of the picture. The chairmanship is a separate election and the two members are also a separate election.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Maybe I will confuse this and maybe I will clear it up. Let me try. I went over to ask Delegate Swope much the same kind of question that Delegate Croop has just asked him. As I understand it, the determination of the members, the two members of the board of commissioners, will be made in the primary, and the only thing that comes out in the general election is the determination of the chairmanship. Now is this correct?

DELEGATE SWOPE. That is correct.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. In which case may I say I think it is utterly ingenious.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, for the first time I now understand we are going to elect county commissioners in a primary election?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Swope, would you answer the question? The Chair feels that you should answer the question about your amendment.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Who is my interrogator?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Chairman Pasquerilla asked the question, Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. The answer is, yes. May I amplify it, please? I was raised in Lebanon County which had about the same disproportion in the two parties as Dauphin County has and in the same direction. I have been very unfortunate all of my life.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. The answer to your problem is to change your Party affiliation in Dauphin County.

DELEGATE SWOPE. It is too late. In Lebanon County for many years, the Democratic Party being in the hopeless minority, by reason of some interpretation of the law which I do not understand—I was quite a young man—the Democratic Party nominated only one candidate for the office of county commissioner, thus insuring to the Party its right to select its minority representative on that board, and this is what I want for the rest of the State.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Swope?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—28

Allison	Gerber	O'Donnell	Shapiro
Amsterdam	Gouger	Popil	Shettig
Bloom	Horne	Pott	Shrager
Bunting	Mattioni	Powell	Sprogell
Burkholder	McGlynn	Reynolds	Stout
Cosetti	Michael	Richter	Swope
Feather	Michener	Scranton	Tomascik

NAYS—100

Aberman	Dailey	Johnson	Pelletier
Aurentz	Desmond	Kauffman	Rappaport
Baldrige	Devlin	Keller, J.	Redick
Baldus	Erwin	Kelly	Roberts
Baldwin	Fawcett	Krill	Ruth
Banes	Fay	Laputka	Sahli
Barron	Filson	Leach	Scales
Barry	Foht	Lee, K.	Scarlett
Bashoff	Forster	Levin	Sebastian
Benedict	Forney	Manderino	Shively
Benfield	Gabreski	Mangery	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	Markley	Solomon
Brennan	Goldman	McGeary	Striekler
Broderick	Goldstein	Meyer	Tate
Brown	Griffith	Miller, D.	Thomson
Buck	Hannum	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Butera	Harding	Moorhead	Tully
Camardella	Hatter	More	Waldron
Caputo	Heyburn	Morton	Warman
Casey	Himes	Murray	Welsh
Clark	Hocker	Nelson	Westerberg
Corey	Hook	Orban	Whittum
Croop	Huggins	Orbin	Wilcox
Cunningham	Irvis	Otto	Wilmarth
Curran	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Woodring

NOT VOTING—35

Bagenstoso	Fagan	Lane	Rea
Cain	Fineman	Lee, L.	Rovner
Caron	Fleming	Leinbach	Scott
Clinger	Gray	Leonard	Sharp
Conley	Henderson	Musselman	Silverman
Cortese	Hostetler	Pechan	Stroup
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Percey	Van Sant
Donolow	King	Prendergast	Woodside
Dumbauld	Kline	Quiles

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

AMSTERDAM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now we have the Amsterdam amendment to this proposal.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 2, as amended, by removing the period after "charter OR BY THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY AT ANY TIME." and inserting: , but no such municipality shall engage in any proprietary or private business except as authorized by the General Assembly.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, this amendment is to incorporate into the committee's proposal the same type of protection that the Philadelphia charter contains and the identical language, or almost the identical language. The charter in Philadelphia provides that no city shall engage in any proprietary or private business except as authorized by the General Assembly. This is to provide that unless the General Assembly shall specifically permit a municipality to engage in a proprietary or private business and, therefore, compete directly with proprietary and private businesses, that power shall not exist. That is not one of the residual powers.

I understand that one of the difficulties that the committee had with this was that if it started enumerating this and perhaps others, there might be a failure to enumerate all that was intended. Therefore, it was dropped. Now if that is so, that seems to me to be purely a language problem, and if we think this is good we certainly ought to be able to find the language to put it in so that it would not cause that type of difficulty.

Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. As a business man, I can well sympathize with Delegate Amsterdam. We have our problems of competition, too. However, we are opposed to this amendment for the same reason that Delegate Amsterdam got up and spoke on when he said that this restriction is contained in Philadelphia's home-rule charter, the charter which was adopted by the city of Philadelphia and apparently outlined by the General Assembly.

We oppose this restriction not because it is not a good one, but once again because there are many, many things that are equally important that the General Assembly must do to provide restrictions under a home-rule charter. Therefore we just do not like these kinds of things; they do not belong in a constitution.

As Delegate Amsterdam stated, this was done in his home-rule charter, and I am sure that the General Assembly will take care of similar problems when it lays down the ground rules for the adoption and repeal of home-rule charters.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. I would like to interrogate Delegate Amsterdam.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Proceed with your question; he will answer it.

DELEGATE BARRY. Delegate Amsterdam, the courts have defined certain functions of public bodies as being proprietary rather than governmental, for example, operating a water works or a gas works, operating parks, operating an airport. Would this amendment prevent a county from acquiring property for park purposes or building an airport? Would it prevent a city from acquiring a water works or a sewage disposal plant without specific authority from the General Assembly?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes. Unless the General Assembly approved of that going into the home-rule charter, the city itself, or the municipality itself would not have the right to include that. In Philadelphia this was argued at great length at the time the charter was adopted and it was felt that it was so important that it had to be specifically approved in order to be incorporated as a part of the powers of the municipality.

DELEGATE BARRY. Then I must speak against this amendment and point out that a large number of functions now performed by governmental bodies are in fact proprietary functions, such as, the operation of parks, recreation centers, the operation of airports by public bodies, such as, the Greater Pittsburgh Airport, the operation of public utility-type installations, the water works in the city of Pittsburgh, the Allegheny County Sanitary Disposal Plant. If it was to grant home-rule powers at all, I think it would be unfortunate to so restrict the local government that it could not engage in these functions.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I think I can help Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I suspect I need it, Mr. President.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. In a home-rule charter, we say they are allowed to perform any function not denied by this Constitution, and since we are not yet on section 9 on page 3, we do have restrictions whereby "The General Assembly shall not authorize any municipality or incorporated district to become a stockholder in any company, association or corporation, or to obtain or appropriate money for, or to loan its credit to, any corporation."

I think we have automatically denied them this right, or at least a great part of it, under Section 9, Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I agree that a good part of it, Mr. President, is covered by that, but I felt that the restriction was so important that this body ought to vote on whether they think this type of activity, competing with private enterprise, should be allowed without specific legislative authorization.

I think we have had a very complete discussion for some time over this entire area and, unless someone desires to speak further, I am quite willing that we vote at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are all ready for the vote. We shall unlock the voting machine.

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Amsterdam?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—13

Allison	Braham	Goldman	Meyer
Amsterdam	Clark	Gouger	Swope
Bashoff	Forster	Heyburn	Warman
Benedict

NAYS—117

Aurentz	Fawcett	Lee, K.	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Fay	Leinbach	Richter
Baldrige	Feather	Levin	Roberts
Baldus	Filson	Manderino	Ruth
Baldwin	Fohl	Mangery	Sahli
Banes	Fortney	Mattioni	Scales
Barron	Gabreski	McGeary	Scarlett
Barry	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Scranton
Benfield	Gerber	Michael	Sebastian
Bloom	Goldstein	Michener	Shapiro
Brennan	Griffith	Miller, D.	Sharp

Broderick	Hannum	Miller, R.	Shettig
Brown	Harding	Moorhead	Shively
Buck	Hatter	More	Shoemaker
Bunting	Himes	Morton	Solomon
Burkholder	Hocker	Murray	Sprogell
Butera	Hook	Nelson	Stout
Camardella	Horne	O'Donnell	Strickler
Caputo	Hostetter	Orban	Tate
Casey	Huggins	Orbin	Thornburgh
Clinger	Irvis	Otto	Tomasetk
Corey	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Tully
Corlese	Johnson	Pelletier	Waldron
Cosetti	Kauffman	Popil	Welsh
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Pott	Westerberg
Curran	Kelly	Powell	Whittum
Dailey	Krill	Rappaport	Wilcox
Desmond	Laputka	Rea	Wilmarth
Devlin	Leach	Redick	Woodring
Erwin

NOT VOTING—33

Aberman	Fineman	Lee, L.	Rovner
Cain	Fleming	Leonard	Scott
Caron	Gray	Markley	Shrager
Conley	Henderson	Musselman	Silverman
Croop	Keller, M.	Peehan	Stroup
Donaldson	King	Percey	Thomson
Donolow	Kline	Prendergast	Van Sant
Dumbauld	Lane	Quiles	Woodside
Fagan

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair understands that we have one more amendment to be offered in connection with this matter and that is the Cosetti amendment. The Cosetti amendment presented a question of which Delegate Cosetti is aware and which has been referred to counsel. The duplicating machine is temporarily out of service and the chair believes that all delegates should have a copy of counsel's opinion.

This might be a good time to break, rather than to hold up the proceedings for the purpose of distributing the opinion.

RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If agreeable to the delegates, the chair suggests that we recess for lunch and come back here at 1:45 p.m., which will give us an hour and a half.

It was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the Convention was calicd to order.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

NORTH PENN GUESTS WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before we get to the proceedings for this afternoon, the Chair would like to call to the attention of the delegates that we have up in the gallery children from North Penn High School.

I understand we also have with us today the North Penn League of Women Voters.

They are guests of the delegate who is doing such a splendid job here, Delegate Sprogell.

We are glad to have you with us.

MRS. FLORENCE COHEN AND WOMEN OF DEMOCRATIC CLUB WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, while we are on introductions, could I have the honor of introducing a group who is here on my behalf?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Certainly.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Fellow delegates, I take pleasure in introducing Mrs. Florence Cohen and the women from our Democratic Club of the 17th ward in Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We arc very pleased to have you with us.

I just want you to know that Delegate Murray is doing a good job.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER'S NEPHEW WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, if I may, for the record I would like to state that I have as my guest a delegation of one from Red Lion Area High School in York County, my nephew, Thomas Kearny.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are happy to welcome Thomas here today.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you state what your question of personal privilege is.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, sir. A question appears to have been raised by a delegate as to my integrity and the propriety of my actions on the floor yesterday.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That would seem to be a matter of personal privilege. You may continue.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Before I continue, I should like to determine the accuracy of the statement that has been reported in the press as having been made by Delegate Richard Gerber. I would like to ask whether he will stand for interrogation?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber?

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I will stand for interrogation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Gerber says that he will be happy to be interrogated.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I would have asked for this sooner, Mr. President, except for the fact that Mr. Gerber did not appear until shortly before recess this morning and, therefore, I let it hold over until this afternoon.

I read out of the Bulletin for Tuesday, February 13, 1968. It is an article over the by-line of Duke Kaminski. I read parts of the article as follows: "The Convention last night authorized the legislature to give special tax concessions for the private promotion and development of industrial and commercial properties." Then it goes on and gives some more detail and then this follows: "When the amendments were approved, Gerber told newsmen 'This benefits speculators in industrial parks and shopping centers. Gus Amsterdam stands to benefit by this more than anyone in the Commonwealth because he is in the business and I want you to quote me on that.'"

I would like to know whether that is an accurate statement of what Delegate Gerber said yesterday.

DELEGATE GERBER. It is.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, it seems to me that this is an entirely inappropriate and improper thing for any delegate to have said. I might say that I checked yesterday with general counsel and with the parliamentarian in order to determine whether I, as a member of the executive committee and the board of a public utility, might properly speak upon matters which involve public utilities in the State and might properly vote upon those matters. I was assured, in no uncertain terms, that it was quite proper and it was exactly what I, as a delegate, would be expected to do representing the people who elected me to this Convention. I might also say that it was indicated that many of us who are delegates here are affected as citizens, as lawyers, as businessmen, by matters of taxation, by matters having to do with the judiciary, local government, and so on. None of these things, I am told, prevents us from discussing and voting upon these matters.

It seems to me that this remark made by one delegate in regard to another is completely improper and impugns that delegate's integrity and perhaps even leaves open the question whether that delegate's vote was a proper one so that the activities which took place yesterday when that delegate voted may not even have been proper activities on the part of this Convention.

Under the circumstances, sir, I would like you, if you would, to assign this to a committee of delegates so that they may determine exactly what is the proper thing to do in this matter, so that we can have a determination of what delegates may or may not do and whether this type of activity and this type of statement on the floor by a delegate is to be condoned by this Convention.

I thank you, sir.

QUESTION REFERRED TO COMMITTEE ON RULES

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will refer the matter to the Rules Committee.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Reynolds.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. I think the body itself should not wait for the Rules Committee on that. I have been on the Judiciary Committee, serving with Delegate Amsterdam. I am a Republican from Philadelphia and he is a Democrat and we do not always agree on everything, but I do not think anybody should impugn the motives of his voting or talking on any article he had yesterday. I think now we ought to show our confidence while we are waiting for the Rules Committee and I so move that we give him a vote of confidence that his motives were pure and that there was nothing wrong with what he did. I so move.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Reynolds, I want to say the question has already been referred to the Rules Committee. Of course, the body is free to take whatever action it desires, but the matter has been placed in the hands of the Rules Committee where I do think it should be studied.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. Thank you, Mr. President, but the Rules Committee may wait two or three days. Here is a man with a good reputation; here is one of our delegates who thinks he has been unduly attacked. I think we ought to express our confidence or lack of confidence in him here now. I move that we now give him a vote of confidence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, may I thank the delegate very much and suggest to him that there is a proper procedure and I would be perfectly willing to await the outcome of that proper procedure. I think this is a matter of far too much importance to be taken up hurriedly. I think it ought to be examined carefully. We ought to determine exactly what should be done, and I am perfectly willing to abide by the decision of the Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair thanks the gentleman.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, I would like to second the motion of Delegate Hobson Reynolds.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have a motion on the floor by Delegate Hobson Reynolds. It has been seconded by Delegate Hannum. You have also heard the remarks of Delegate Amsterdam in connection with the motion. What is the desire of the body?

I now recognize Delegate Leach.

DELEGATE LEACH. Mr. President, I would believe, as a point of order, that the matter would have to be discharged from the committee to be in proper form. Am I correct?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has, in effect, already ruled that this matter has been referred and was referred prior to Delegate Reynolds' motion to the Rules Committee. I think that that is where it belongs and I think the body can take the appropriate action as soon as the Rules Committee reports on it. I also want to point out that the delegate in question indicated that that procedure was agreeable to him.

Unless I hear to the contrary, we will abide by the matter having been placed in the Rules Committee.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. May I say this to Delegate Amsterdam, that I personally respect his integrity. I know that he came here with a good purpose in mind. I think that every member of this Convention came here with that particular purpose.

I want to remind this Convention that I have been maligned, cursed at and written about, and everything else, especially with the station in Scranton. After all, when you come here, there is one thing that you have to learn to do—you have to learn to take it. I agree with Mr. Amsterdam 100 per cent and I know that he is sincere. I believe that every member here knows that he is sincere. I do not think that we should vote on this particular measure for this reason, Mr. President, that a delegate does have the right to express his opinion. Unfortunately, in this particular case, it was expressed not in the best manner. As I understand from Mr. Pasquerilla and some others, they are somewhat peeved and angered because they were not included in the same classification as Mr. Amsterdam in being able to make a lot of money under that proposition.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Buck.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President, I merely wish to remind the delegates that the amendment, which apparently triggered the statement that has been referred to, originated with me. The only reason that Mr. Amsterdams' name got on the proposal was because I asked him whether he would cosponsor it with me. If the committee that is going to look into this matter wishes to interrogate me, I will be very happy to meet with them.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Buck.

COSETTI AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Cosetti. The Chair requests the pages to distribute the amendment and the opinion of counsel.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE COSETTI offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 2 by removing the period after "charter" and inserting: provided that in the case of cities with a population in excess of three hundred thousand, the General Assembly may not provide for such denial except by a law applicable to all cities with a population in excess of three hundred thousand having a home rule charter.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

Counsel Opinion No. 30 is as follows:

COUNSEL OPINION No. 30

Q. Is a proposed amendment to Committee Proposal No. 6 which requires uniformity in the case of cities with a population in excess of 300,000 under Section 2, Home Rule, of Committee Proposal No. 6, Printer's No. 6, within the Convention's jurisdiction?

A. No.

Discussion: As we have recited in each of our prior opinions, the Convention is one of limited jurisdiction. Act No. 2 of 1967 in Section 7 defines the area of scope as to this issue. It recites the Convention shall have power concerning "Local Government (now covered by Articles XIII, XIV and XV and part of Article IX)." In other areas the scope is broader, for example, concerning the Judiciary, the Act provides "Judicial Administration, Organization, Selection and Tenure (now covered in part by Article V)." The broadening phrase "in part" is not within the Local Government delegation of power. Article XIII concerns New Counties, Article XIV, County Officers and Article XV, Cities and City Charters. These subjects comprise only a small portion of the numerous aspects of the larger field of local government. If the Legislature in authorizing the Convention had intended to limit the Convention to these three categories, it could have expressly referred to these Articles without referring to the words "Local Government." It is our opinion that by using these words the General Assembly clearly intended to give the Convention plenary powers with respect to all aspects of this broad topic, whether or not contained in the enumerated Articles.

On the other hand, it is Counsel's opinion that the comparison in language justifies some restrictive view of the Convention's authority, particularly where the Convention would address itself head-on and directly contradictory to an existing Constitutional provision, not within the articles encompassed by Act No. 2 of 1967 and therefore an area restricted to this Convention.

Unfortunately, the language chosen by the proposed amendment meets with such an obstacle.

The section of the amendment in issue provides as follows:

> "provided that in the case of cities with a population in excess of three hundred thousand, the General Assembly may not provide for such denial except by a law applicable to all cities with a population in excess of three hundred thousand having a home rule charter."

The existing Constitutional provision which we believe is presently contradictory of this provision quoted above is contained in Article III, Section 20. This, the Convention will note, is the Article dealing with legislation, outside the scope of the Convention to enlarge, abridge or alter; and this subject matter has been mentioned in prior opinions of Counsel.

This leads us, of course, to the effect of Section 20 of Article III of the Constitution upon the authority of the Convention over Local Government. Section 20 provides that "The Legislature shall have the power to classify counties, cities, boroughs, school districts and townships according to population, and all laws passed relating to each class, and all laws passed relating to, and regulating procedure and proceedings in court with reference to any class shall be deemed general legislation within the meeting of this Constitution." This provision permits the General Assembly to classify local governments and to enact legislation relating to each class which might otherwise be invalid as special legislation under Section 31 of Article III.

A comparison of the proposed amendment with the language of Article III, Section 20 indicates a direct confrontation. The amendment would prohibit the General Assembly from the right given to it by Article III, Section 20 to classify between and among cities in excess of 300,000 and to pass laws "relating to each class" which "shall be deemed general legislation within the meaning of this Constitution." The amendment provides the contrary; namely, that as to cities in excess of 300,000 where the Legislature now has the right to differentiate and to provide different laws, there shall now be a constitutional prohibition against such differentiation and a mandatory requirement for uniformity in legislation.

We believe this view of the scope of Article III, Section 20 is strengthened by the recent amendment to that section which deleted certain prior existing limitations on the total classes the Legislature could establish under this section. The recent amendment became effective just last year. It was adopted May 16, 1967 and removed the restriction on the Legislature theretofore in existence, which recited the maximum number of classes for counties, cities, school districts and boroughs which the Legislature could create. Thereby, the Legislature can now, without limitation as to the number of classes, legislate as to each class separately which differs in size or population.

In view of the above, we believe that the proposed amendment to Committee Proposal No. 6, Printer's No. 6 is beyond the jurisdiction of the Convention.

MARVIN COMISKY
Counsel to Convention

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before recognizing Delegate Cosetti, we want to point out, and the Chair does so regretfully, that we had to rule on this amendment which was presented by Delegate Cosetti, and, I think, by Delegate Baldus, also. The Chair requested and received an opinion of counsel in connection with this amendment. It is Opinion No. 30.

I understand the opinion has been distributed, together with the amendment. According to the opinion of counsel, which is in front of you, this particular amendment would not come within the authority of this Convention, briefly, because it would violate Article III, Section 20, of the present Constitution which is not within our authorization, pursuant to Act No. 2.

With that the Chair now recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

MOTION TO APPEAL

DELEGATE COSETTI. Thank you for the promptness of your ruling, Mr. President. Would it be appropriate at this time for me to appeal your decision?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. You have the right to appeal the Chair's decision in this matter. I want to state again that the Chair's decision was based on counsel's opinion, which has been distributed.

DELEGATE COSETTI. I therefore appeal your decision, Mr. President, and offer Delegate Baldus as a second.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. It has been appealed and, therefore, I take it we are now to present the question. The question is, by the way, shall the decision of the President stand as the judgment of the Convention in connection with this matter?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Thank you. Mr. President, I would call your attention in this matter to something an older man of another generation, but who, I think, is of our spirit, said recently—that older man was Pope John the XXIII—when he called the Church which he loved to "an Aggiornamento," as he called it, an opening of windows, a letting in of fresh air, a renewal of spirit.

The people of Pennsylvania have called us in this same spirit to an aggiornamento. They wanted us to shed some light, the light of a new day, on some of the old corners of Pennsylvania government. This Constitutional Convention, especially this article on local government, is intended to open windows and to let some fresh air into some of these musty corners.

The committee's proposal offers all the municipalities of this State a new form of government, home-rule charters. This is new. This is intended to be a new instrument for all local municipalities. It is a proposal which looks to the future, and I favor it.

Unfortunately, this new instrument will not create a meaningful choice for my city, the city of Pittsburgh. And I want no doubt about it. I do have a personal interest in this. Pittsburgh in many ways is in a class by itself, and those of us who live there rejoice in this. We are the second largest city of this State. We are the heart of the eighth largest metropolitan area in the United States. We remain the steel capital of the world. We have demonstrated by the combination of all the resources of our city that we can combine to renew our commercial areas.

Even though all of this is true, unfortunately for Pittsburgh, we are in a legal class by ourselves. We are the only city in the State that is a city of the second class. A law applicable only in the city of Pittsburgh is a general law in the State of Pennsylvania. The legislature of Pennsylvania can act uniquely in this regard, with regard to Pittsburgh. It can act as our town council and, unfortunately, the chairman of this committee on second class cities is, in another way, the mayor of our city.

We have faith in the legislature when it acts as a legislature for all of Pennsylvania. Its effect on these broad areas of Pennsylvania has been good, equitable, and fair. We have confidence that it will do the right thing in these areas.

However, when the legislature can deny powers to a single municipality, a peculiar set of alliances and combinations occurs in the legislature. This peculiarity does not always result in good government. I do not wish to speak about them in particular, but I just call your attention to them in general.

What we are asking is that the city of Pittsburgh, if the city of Pittsburgh goes through charter procedure and if the voters accept this charter, that we be treated in the new way, that we be treated as a new charter city. We are not asking that the old method be changed and that if we do not adopt a charter that we be treated any differently. We are asking that if we do adopt the charter that we be treated differently. If we can be singled out after we have adopted a charter, this article will mean very little to the city of Pittsburgh.

Perhaps I could conclude my remarks by using another Biblical quotation from the Gospel of John in which a reference is made to "new wines and old skins." I think the inference is that new wine will burst the old skin. It is the desire of this Convention, I think, to place before the citizens of Pennsylvania a new wine, and in that sense, we are asking that the Chair's ruling be overturned.

During the two months of this Convention I have grown, indeed, to respect the counsel for his fairness and knowledge of the law. His confidence among so many bright lights of the law has been apparent, but I have also learned that lawyers disagree and that the law eventually is what the court says it is.

In this case, the law is what the delegates of this Convention say it is. The people and the legislature did not conceive we would so limit our action, Mr. President, and that is the gist of my appeal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Thank you, Mr. President.

I feel a little like David before Goliath in the chair, but I would like to have this opportunity to persuade my fellow delegates that the Chair's ruling in this matter is incorrect.

The question before these delegates is the same question that is before the courts of this Commonwealth in construing any statute or law of the General Assembly. The question is: What did the General Assembly intend when it enacted Act No. 2? Did it intend to prohibit us from restricting the General Assembly in the future from depriving powers of home-rule cities in a certain way, and in the way we have proposed it in our amendment, that is, that it must deprive the powers of one city over 300,000, therefore, it must treat all the cities over 300,000 the same.

It is the job of this Convention now to decide in its mind what was the intention of the legislature when it enacted Act No. 2. Counsel has presented to us an opinion and, in my view, this opinion states that this amendment is in direct confrontation and directly contradicts Article III, Section 20, of the Constitution.

I submit in the first instance, that there is no direct confrontation.

Article III, Section 20, states: "The legislature shall have power to classify counties. . . ." That is the first part of that section. Our amendment would in no way restrict the power of the legislature to classify counties, cities, boroughs and school districts according to population. It would have that power to make the classifications by law. I can see no conflict whatever between the two.

The second provision is that ", . . all laws passed relating to each class" . . . "shall be deemed general legislation. . . ." The argument is that our language requiring it to act with respect to all cities over 300,000 when it denies a home-rule city a power of that size interferes with and directly confronts the power granted under this provision.

I submit to you delegates that this language says merely that all laws passed relating to each class shall be deemed general legislation. It does not say that the General Assembly shall have the right to pass laws relating to each class of municipalities with respect to all subjects, and that is the kernel of the holding of counsel in that case. He is saying that it is beyond the powers of this Convention to restrict the legislature in its act of restricting local governments. He bases his opinion on this language, that all laws passed relating to each class shall be deemed general legislation.

I submit to you, ladies and gentlemen, that the language does not say that. It merely says that when the legislature passes one applicable to a city, it shall be deemed general legislation, but it must have the authority to pass that law from some source. That source comes from this Constitution and I believe that we can withdraw that power in the same way with respect to this provision.

Even if there is a conflict or a modification, it is only a slight and infinitesimal one relating to only a very narrow class of legislative acts. If that is the case, and I submit to you if you read this language and read our proposal, that the contradiction would not even be perceivable to the average person, let alone a direct confrontation.

The position of counsel is that no matter what the conflict, even if there is only a slight conflict, this Convention is not empowered to enact such a law. I submit this is a narrow, technical position. It is not supported by the background and the language used by the legislature itself.

I would like to direct your attention to the act itself. The act says that the Constitutional Convention shall have the power by a vote of a majority to make recommendations on the following subjects, one of which is local government. It then goes on to restrict our powers. It says the Convention shall not consider or include in its recommendations any proposal which clearly permits or prohibits an income tax. It then says that we may not modify or change the uniformity clause or the Motor License Fund, and it specifically enumerates the areas in which we may not tread. There are no other specific limitations on our power. That is the way the law reads.

I think it is important to note that the prior printer's number of this Act No. 2 which came before the legislature adds this, and I direct your careful attention to this.

This was the earlier proposal. It said the Convention shall not directly or indirectly modify, alter or change any other section or article of the Constitution. Now the legislature perceived that if it left that language in there which would prohibit any indirect modification of the Constitution that it would place us in an intolerable straitjacket, and I submit to you that is what the Chair's ruling does to us in this case. It is imposing upon us the language which was specifically rejected by the legislature. Their omission of this language from the final bill —it was passed into Act No. 2—clearly indicates that it was their intention that we should not be so restricted, and that they, as men knowledgeable of the ways of government, realized that if we acted with respect to one area of local government or in taxation and finance that we would indirectly modify the powers and authorities granted in other parts of the Constitution. I submit to you it was the intention of this legislature by the bill it passed to permit us to make slight modifications in other areas.

Further, an analysis of the debates before the House indicates that in the passage of Act No. 2 there was no concern about restricting the power of this body to act with respect to home rule. In fact, the background, the debate before this General Assembly, indicates clearly that the General Assembly intended to grant a broad plenary power to this body to enable us to enact the most progressive and farsighted reforms in the area of home rule that we desire. And I submit it may well have had in mind the type of reforms that have become common in the area of home rule. I submit to you the language that was approved by the Constitution of New York this last year wherein it enacted a proposal almost identical to the one we are suggesting here. It said there that every local government shall have all the powers unless denied to a reasonable class of not less than five local governments. That is the type of provision that we are suggesting here. It is the type of provision that belongs in the Constitution. We believe that the General Assembly, when it enacted Act No. 2, intended this body to have that power.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Baldus.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I do not want to get into a long discussion on the legal principles here involved. I do want to say this, however: The legislature and through it, the people, have limited our rights and powers.

This question was submitted to counsel, and I have read rather hastily the opinion submitted to us by them. It seems to me that counsel is correct.

Now we all took an oath that we would keep within the provisions of the Act. I can see how there is a difference of opinion in some of these matters. Delegate Baldus very ably presented his position, but upon examination of this opinion of counsel and the realization that they gave it very careful consideration and came to the conclusion which appears to me to be the correct one, I think we ought to give very, very serious consideration to any circumstance in which we would overrule the Chair and our counsel on a matter of this kind. Therefore, I urge the delegates that on this matter we resolve any doubt in favor of the ruling of the Chair, which appears to me, in the first instance, to be absolutely correct and, in the second instances, to have been very well considered by our legal counsel.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I would, if I may go a bit further than Delegate Woodside, suggest, Mr. President, in all deference, that I would appear as an advocate for the speaker in this particular instance. Delegate Cosetti's idea falls in the very first several paragraphs of the speech that he gave to you. Remember how he opened,—"We will examine some of the old corners of Pennsylvania government . . . some of the musty corners." There was, you know, fought in this land, and there is a battlefield of that war very near here, a resolution called nullification, and this was the idea that the Supreme Court in its rulings and Congress in its enactments could be nullified and done away with by an act of an individual state legislature. There was a suggestion on this floor at the beginning, I suggest Mr. President, that by virtue of being a Constitutional Convention, what we did, upon ratification of anything that was beyond the exact scope of our call, nonetheless when the people did so ratify, that this would be constitutionally enacted. This was put to the test, and I respectfully submit this house rejected that concept, and I urge quite properly so. I, for one, campaigned on a very plain platform that I wanted to come down here to Harrisburg to look into four broad general topics within the call of the Convention. This I am here to do and propose to the end of this Convention to continue doing. I did not come down here to discuss anything beyond, and I do not propose to do it and I would urge that this house do not fall into the error that is proposed here.

My learned friend, Delegate Cosetti, waxed eloquent when he quoted the venerable and late Pope John. He quoted from the New Testament, and I admire his familiarity with Holy Writ. I would, however, call to his attention the parable which our Savior told about the lord who was leaving and, Mr. President, he left three servants talents. To one he left one, to another he left five, Mr. President, and to the third he left ten. I have not figured out whether this Convention was granted one talent by the voters or five. I am well satisfied, Mr. President, we were not granted ten. And with this thought in mind, I would urge that the law is not what we say it is here; the law is as we have been sent. Interestingly enough, as pointed out by counsel, the judiciary article is very carefully covered, and counsel has underlined in his opinion that the judiciary concepts to be considered were now covered in part by Article V. The mandate on local government where three specific articles were specified in their entirety and the fourth by the use of the word "part" indicates clearly the scope of our attention.

I urge, Mr. President, that you be supported in this matter.

Thank you.

MOTION TO TABLE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, on behalf of Delegate Brennan, I wonder if I can request that this matter be tabled until tomorrow morning until he and other delegates have an opportunity to look at it and investigate it more thoroughly?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I hear a chorus of nays here, Delegate Barry. I would assume that we do not have consent for that request.

DELEGATE BARRY. I move that it be tabled.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Has the motion been seconded?

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. Mr. President, I second the motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been seconded by Delegate Baldrige. The motion is that this be tabled until tomorrow, that is, the question on the appeal. Is that correct, Delegate Barry? Is that the correct statement of your motion, that it be tabled until tomorrow?

DELEGATE BARRY. Yes.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
The motion was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise to speak in behalf of the opinion of counsel and in behalf of the President's decision.

I think from past experiences you ladies and gentlemen already know that at one previous time I had presented a proposal of my own from the floor or I had, rather, supported one that was presented on the floor and one that was very close to me, and yet I felt that even though it was close to me it was outside the scope of the jurisdiction of this Convention. I, therefore, most reluctantly, but I felt, most properly, withdrew my support of that particular proposal.

Many arguments have been made prior to today for creating an open Constitution, an open Convention, one in which we can deal and discuss any single question, any item, any article of the present Constitution that we so desire, and that, perhaps, we could even continue our term of existence well beyond February 29. I do not subscribe to this theory nor do I believe that the majority of delegates here subscribe to that type of a theory. I believe we have to come out with a very proper Constitution, but one which will be very definitely and very unequivocally limited to the call which the people gave us.

In discussing this particular proposed amendment to the article on local government, and let me add parenthetically and I think both of the standing co-chairmen will admit to this, it was in the area of local government that we had our most disturbing problems of whether or not we were within or without the call of this Convention. The question came up frequently.

I think we have now gone well beyond the call of the Convention by admitting this particular amendment. What we have attempted to do or what will be attempted to permit by this particular amendment will be to say that those cities over 300,000 will have special powers within the home-rule charters as opposed to any other type of home-rule charter being granted.

Let us call a spade a spade. What are we talking about? We are talking about Pittsburgh and Philadelphia. That is all. I think that if we get involved in legislation actually of this nature, we are going way beyond the call of the Convention, we are disturbing the uniformity which we are not permitted to discuss, and I think even beyond that we are going into a section which is clearly not part of our call of the Convention, and that is in Article III, Section 20, where the legislature has the absolute and sole right to make the classifications of the various types of local communities. For us to create a different type of classification which this amendment would call for clearly is legislative in nature, clearly falls within the purview of Article III, which we are not entitled to discuss, and it clearly goes well beyond the call of this Convention.

I strongly urge that we uphold the suggestion, the rulings of the Chair. The opinion of counsel is clearly on point. It is not one which I believe is debatable at all. It is one which is directly on point, is entirely correct and one which we should and must uphold.

I am afraid that if we do not uphold this particular ruling, we will open wide the Convention to let anything come in, and although I did not at the time realize I had coined a phrase, really "open Pandora's box" to let everything come in and most assuredly jeopardize the entire success of this Convention by not having the acceptance of the people. I think we must turn down this amendment and uphold the ruling of the Chair.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I think it is beyond question that this is a close question legally and I would not, certainly, challenge the opinion of our counsel. However, on the merits, I am so impressed with the need for taking action, such as suggested by the Baldus-Cosetti amendment, that I would rise to support the appeal. It seems to me that what is being provided for in the amendment, in view of the closeness of this legal question, we can act on in this instance while firmly keeping our hand on the lid of a box belonging to a certain lady and that the parade of horribles envisioned by Delegate Goldman will not occur. I think this is a very close legal question and I think that putting it in context of the entire local government article, the amendment suggested, that this Convention would not be acting irresponsibly to sustain the appeal.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I do not agree with Delegate Thornburgh that this is a close question and I do not agree with his proposition that simply because it is close, if it were close, that we should open the door. If we begin by passing on these matters because they are close, we will be here until Christmas as it has been said before.

There is one thing that I think Delegate Baldus failed to call to the attention of the Convention on the question of confrontation. In Article III, Section 20, the legislature is given the right to make classifications. The effect of the proposed amendment is to negate that right that the legislature has and the proposition is clearly set forth on page 4 of the Opinion of Counsel, and I would like to read it.

"The amendment provides the contrary; namely, that as to cities in excess of 300,000, where the Legislature now has the right to differentiate and to provide different laws, there shall now be a constitutional prohibition against such differentiation and a mandatory requirement for uniformity in legislation."

I submit that the Chair should be sustained in his position and, Mr. President, I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Mattioni.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Mr. President, if the vote is to support the Chair, does that in any way affect the possibility that questions may be raised later in regard to the judiciary article which may in and of itself, in certain particulars, exceed the scope of this Convention? I refer particularly to the rationale of Counsel Opinion No. 30, and I relate directly to Committee Proposal No. 7, Sections 1(b), 8(b), 9, 16 and 18. I think that all of those sections are in conflict with Article II and Article III of the Constitution as it now stands. They take away a function of the General Assembly, and I think that Sections 9 and 18 take away, and are in conflict with, Article IV to take away from the veto power of the Governor. I believe that Section 16 infringes upon the impeachment function of the General Assembly.

My question very specifically is this: If we vote to support the Chair here, do we implicitly agree with the rationale in Counsel Opinion 30?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I can only say, Delegate Mattioni, the questions which you are raising about the judiciary article are questions that are not before us now and, of course, will come before us, and if raised, we will rule on them at that time. The question has been moved here and if we may we . . .

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Then do I take it, Mr. President, that when the judiciary article is discussed we can at that time, if we consider it appropriate, raise the questions of whether or not certain of those sections are in conflict with other sections of the Constitution and, therefore, beyond our scope?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think that is correct. When those questions come before the Convention, the question as to whether or not they are within our authority can always be raised.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair states the question: Shall the decision of the Chair stand as the judgment of the Convention? All those voting "aye" are voting to sustain the Chair; those voting "no" are voting to reverse the decision of the Chair.

The Chair just wants to state that we ruled, not on the basis of the merits of this proposal, but on the basis that it was not within our authority to discuss the proposal or to take it up.

On the question,
Will the Convention sustain the decision of the Chair?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—92

Aberman	Fay	Krill	Richter
Bagenstose	Feather	Leach	Roberts
Baldwin	Fleming	Lee, L.	Ruth
Barron	Fohl	Leonard	Sahli
Barry	Forster	Levin	Scales
Bloom	Fortney	Manderino	Scarlett
Braham	Gerber	Mangery	Scranton
Broderick	Goldman	McGeary	Sebastian
Brown	Goldstein	Meyer	Shettig
Bunting	Griffith	Miller, R.	Shively
Burkholder	Hannum	Moorhead	Shoemaker
Cain	Harding	More	Sprogell
Clark	Hatter	Morton	Stout
Corey	Henderson	Nelson	Strickler
Cortese	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Swope
Croop	Himes	Orban	Tate
Cunningham	Hocker	Orbin	Thomson
Curran	Hook	Otto	Tully
Dalley	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Westerberg
Desmond	Kauffman	Pott	Whittum
Devlin	Kelly	Powell	Wilmarth
Erwin	Keller, J.	Rea	Woodring
Fawcett	Kline	Reynolds	Woodside

NAYS—42

Aurentz	Conley	Jirolanio	Percey
Baldrige	Cosetti	Laputka	Popli
Baldus	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Rappaport
Banes	Filson	Mattioni	Shapiro
Bashoff	Fineman	McGlynn	Shrager
Brennan	Gabreski	Michael	Silverman
Buck	Gehrlein	Michener	Thornburgh
Camardella	Gouger	Miller, D.	Warman
Caputo	Hostetler	Murray	Welsh
Casey	Huggins	Pelletier	Wilcox
Clinger	Irvis

NOT VOTING—29

Allison	Fagan	Markley	Scott
Amsterdam	Gray	Musselman	Sharp
Benedict	Horne	Pechan	Solomon
Benfield	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Stroup
Butera	King	Quiles	Tomascik
Caron	Lane	Redick	Van Sant
Donaldson	Lee, K.	Rovner	Waldron
Donolow

The majority of the delegates having voted to sustain the decision of the Chair, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the decision of the Chair was sustained.

O'DONNELL AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have another amendment, the amendment of Delegate O'Donnell. The pages will distribute the amendment while the clerk will read it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL offered an amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 21 to 23, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: One chairman and two members shall be elected as county commissioners in each county where such officers are chosen. Each political party or body shall nominate not more than one candidate for the office of chairman and not more than one candidate for the office of member. Each qualified elector shall vote for not more than one candidate for each office. That candidate for chairman receiving the highest number of votes for that office shall be elected chairman. The two candidates for the office of member receiving the highest number of votes for that office shall be elected.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, this proposed amendment has a surface similarity to amendments already considered in this house, but I believe the parliamentarian has ruled that it is different. I must confess that I have taken the ideas and the thoughts of Delegate Swope and I have taken the approach described by Delegate Michener. I have attempted in this proposal to solve the problem created by Delegate Swope's proposal and some of the problems created by Delegate Laputka's effort earlier this morning.

The net effect of this amendment is to continue the guarantee of minority party representation on the county commissioners in each county, plus a new wrinkle.

Mr. President, I am not sure everyone can hear me.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Maybe they just do not like what he is saying, Mr. President.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I was saying, sir, that the net effect of this amendment would be to preserve the concept of minority representation on the board of commissioners in each county where there are to be boards of commissioners, but adds this new wrinkle. It permits the minority party, if it so chooses, to run one member. It therefore obviates and eliminates the matter of control by the majority party over the minority party. It eliminates the situation where the two minority members are not running against the majority party candidates, but against one another.

I believe it is necessary to preserve the viability as a part of the two-party system in Pennsylvania of those minority parties throughout the State where the majority party has a very substantial registration ratio.

I happen to be one of Her Majesty's Loyal Opposition, so-called, in one of the counties of Pennsylvania, and we do have this problem and I understand that this problem is had by all of the parties where there is a substantial registration margin throughout the state of Pennsylvania.

I might say, Mr. President, that I have spoken in the well to a number of the members of the Local Government Commission and have been advised by them that they do not have any strong objections to this proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, shall I call upon Delegate Scranton to straighten me out on the language this time because he did it the last time?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I do not think he straightened us out; he just said it was ingenious.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, this morning I enlightened the whole body by informing them that it was a highly ingenious thought, which promptly got 28 votes. I am sure that did it.

Now I would like to say that it is not only highly ingenious, but, sincerely, if you really believe that the reason is that they decided to have a minority commissioner in the county commissioner setup, you should vote for this amendment, because it would really establish a true minority commissioner not subject to being bought off or influenced by the majority.

I hope that will get 29 votes.

Thank you.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, needless to say, for the fourth or fifth time now today, our committee, of course, is opposed to this amendment. I would hope that we would not spend too much time debating it, because we have debated it rather lengthily this morning on a number of occasions. Apparently the Convention is satisfied with the committee's report in retaining the present system hopefully that we will get into optional forms of government and home rule.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, I do not intend to debate this amendment, because I think the same type of substance has been well debated and has gone down to defeat several times. I am sorry that we have to consider one so similar again.

I would like to ask Delegate O'Donnell what the significance is of the last sentence in this amendment.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes, certainly. I would be happy to describe to you the entire mechanics by which this would be worked out. The reason we have not considered this before today is that the proposals before us today had certain problems connected with them which this one has avoided. It is as simple as that.

DELEGATE CURRAN. I think I understand the mechanics, and the mechanics seem to indicate that there only will be two people running for the office of member.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, sir. There could be 30, if there were political bodies or third parties or what-have-you who chose to run.

Let us talk practical brass tacks, Delegate Curran. Right now in almost evey substantial majority county in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, nomination by that party is tantamount to election of two members of the board of commissioners, and I think you, sir, would concede that is true in your county, in Montgomery County, in Chester County, and you name them. Consequently, nomination by party elects two members of the board of commissioners now.

The only thing that this would change is that the minority party, instead of being obliged to run two men running against one another, would permit the minority party to run one man if it so chose for the office of member of the commissioners, and if it so chose, one man to run for the office of chairman, as simple as that.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Delegate O'Donnell, I think we all understand what you are trying to achieve and I think that the Convention has spoken on several occasions that it is not in sympathy with your amendment, that is all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. President, I believe my position, as far as the minority commissioner is concerned, needs no further pleading. I do see that this does the one thing that I was objecting to, and that is, it does ensure a true minority commissioner and does eliminate the contest in their own political parties as far as candidates are concerned. To that extent, I would be for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Westerberg.

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, I believe that this matter has been debated quite fully and I would like to call for the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I simply want to say that I accept the amendment offered by Delegate O'Donnell as being a good substitute for mine.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. I just wanted to ask Delegate O'Donnell a question to correct something in my own mind.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE POPIL. Delegate O'Donnell, perhaps this is repetition, but I did not get the full scope of your amendment. I just want to simplify this. Let us take the Republican Party. It shall nominate two men. The Republican organization shall endorse two candidates, one for chairman and one member.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. That is correct. Two different offices.

DELEGATE POPIL. Yes. The Democratic Party does likewise. It endorses two men.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. If they so choose.

DELEGATE POPIL. That is correct. Now, the man who receives the highest number—now we are talking about a nomination—both of these men will be nominated. The Republican Party will nominate two men; the Democratic Party will nominate two men.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. That is correct, sir.

DELEGATE POPIL. All right. Now we come to the general election. Are we going to have a special slot for the chairmanship?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, sir. Let me try, if I can again, to explain the mechanics of this. I do not think it is complicated.

It is true that each party has the privilege of nominating two men, but not two men as is now the case for the same office. Each party will nominate one man for the office of chairman of the board of commissioners and each party will nominate one man for the office of member. Consequently, both on a portion of the ballot for nomination in the primary and a portion of the ballot in the general election there will be a Republican and a Democrat and whatever other political bodies there are, each of them with their candidate for chairman of the board of commissioners, and in another section or squire, if you will, or on your voting machine section, there will be a Democratic candidate, a Republican candidate, and any number of other candidates by political bodies for the office of member of the county commissioners.

That man who receives the highest number of votes for chairman is elected chairman, and those men on the other section of the ballot who receive the highest number of votes for the office of members are elected members. It is as simple as that.

DELEGATE POPIL. In other words, the man who ran for chairman may be eliminated?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, it is absolutely impossible because there is—

DELEGATE POPIL. The man who ran for chairman, sir, as I see it, will be eliminated. However, the other two members will be elected.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Oh, I am sorry, I misunderstood you. Do you mean to suggest it is necessary in every case that a candidate from some party for the office of chairman will, in fact, be elected to the office of chairman? I take it that you understand that?

DELEGATE POPIL. That is correct.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Now, if the Democratic Party runs a man for the office of Chairman and the Republican Party runs a man for the office of chairman, only one of the two will receive the majority of votes, and, therefore, will be elected.

It is assumed of course, Delegate Popil, that both parties will have that in mind when they select their slate.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, Delegate O'Donnell has said that the secret of his suggestion comes from the fact that the minority party could, in fact, nominate only one man when they might nominate two. But this is an open primary and parties are made up of individuals, and I know of no proceeding by which the party could decide that nobody could run except the party who was selected by the party authorities.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. May I answer that interrogatory, sir?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Braham, what I have attempted to get across here in my explanation—let us return, if you will, to the election machinery. It is true that in each party a dozen men could file their names in the primary to seek the office of, say, chairman of the county commissioners. In like manner, any unlimited number of men could file for nomination to run in the primary for the office of member, but when the primary is over and the voters at the primary have spoken, the majority of Republican electors will have selected their one candidate for chairman and they will also have selected their one candidate for member. In like manner, the Democratic electors who have voted in that primary will have chosen their one candidate for chairman and their one candidate for member. Now it is as simple as that.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Well, of course, then there would be no election except as to chairmen. You cannot be sure there will be only one member from each party and you cannot preclude them from being more than one member.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I think this amendment should be voted down for three reasons. First of all, it is obvious no one here understands it. I still campaign from door to door in the sixth ward of Beaver Falls and I could never convince my voters what they were doing. Secondly, no one has ever told us what the word "body" means in the third line of this amendment. That could be almost anything. And third, and please keep this in mind, I do not question the fact that in many counties the minority commissioner has been a problem, but he has been a problem after the election, not before the election. It is not the mechanics of the election that makes this system bad. It is the fact that the majority block buys him off after he is elected and he plays golf every afternoon while they run the government, and this will not solve that. I think this idea could better be planted in the implementing legislation that will come on some of the alternative forms of county government which is built right into the proposal. I think it should be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, this proposal should be defeated for two very substantial reasons. One, the proposal asks a county to decide whether it is going to be a one-party county or a two-party county. Now if you are well snowed under as the minority party, you would follow this plan, but in a borderline case you would fight it out to the finish. You would put up your two best men and you would hope to win both seats and if you lose—too bad. Well, I think the natural tendency of political fighting is that you must retain the illusion that you are going to win, otherwise the party deteriorates.

The second thing is perhaps more serious, that the minority party would put up its better man, I would hope, for the chairman, and then if he loses in that part of the fight you are stuck with the secondary man automatically, and that again is a penalty to the party, so I would think that this amendment should be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I move the question, Mr. President.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I have gone over this amendment and I think it is in the wrong convention. I think it ought to go to the Democratic National Convention in Chicago.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on this?

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate O'Donnell?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—26

Bunting	Gerber	Pott	Shrager
Burkholder	Gouger	Powell	Silverman
Clinger	Hostetler	Rea	Solomon
Conley	Kelly	Richter	Sprogell
Fay	Laputka	Scranton	Stout
Filson	Michael	Shapiro	Swope
Fineman	O'Donnell

NAYS—103

Aberman	Curran	Kauffman	Percey
Aurentz	Dailey	Keller, J.	Popil
Bagenstose	Desmond	Kline	Rappaport
Baldus	Devlin	Krill	Reynolds
Baldwin	Dumbauld	Leach	Ruth
Banes	Erwin	Lee, L.	Sabli
Barron	Fawcett	Lehnbach	Scales
Barry	Fleming	Levin	Scarlett
Benedict	Fohl	Manderino	Sebastian
Benfield	Forster	Mangery	Sharp
Bloom	Fortney	Mattioni	Shettig
Braham	Gabreski	McGeary	Shively
Brennan	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Broderick	Goldman	Meyer	Strickler
Brown	Goldstein	Michener	Tate
Buck	Griffith	Miller, D.	Thomson
Cain	Hannum	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Camardella	Harding	Moorhead	Tully
Caputo	Hatter	More	Warman
Casey	Henderson	Morton	Welsh
Clark	Heyburn	Murray	Westerberg
Corey	Himes	Nelson	Whittum
Cortese	Hocker	Orban	Wilcox
Cosetti	Hook	Orbin	Wilmarth
Croop	Huggins	Otto	Woodring
Cunningham	Johnson	Pasquerilla

NOT VOTING—34

Allison	Feather	Leonard	Roberts
Amsterdam	Gray	Markley	Rovner
Baldrige	Horne	Musselman	Scott
Bashoff	Irvis	Pechan	Stroup
Butera	Jirolanio	Pelletier	Tomascik
Caron	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Van Sant
Donaldson	King	Quiles	Waldron
Donolow	Lane	Redick	Woodside
Fagan	Lee, K.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I am sorry we called on Delegate Scranton. We lost two votes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are going to find out sometime what he means by ingenious.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, it is just really tragic that the delegates as a whole would be influenced by a man of Senator Kline's influence who does not seem to understand the question.

UNIT 2, PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am happy to report that we have finished the amendments on part one. Pursuant to our agreement with the committee we are now ready to take up part two. We have allotted not more than one hour for the explanation and questions in connection with part two, and part two includes Sections 5, 6, 7 and 8 of Proposal No. 6, so I now turn it over to the chairman, Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, we would ask the following people to come forward to take their seats with us: The Co-Chairman of the Consolidation Committee, Delegate Cunningham and Delegate Westerberg; the Structure and Organization Co-Chairmen are to remain; and Delegate Shoemaker.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While the delegates are coming forward the Chair would remind the delegates that now is the time to get your amendments up to the amendment table where our assistant parliamentarian and solicitor is, Tom Balaban, and also where you will be assisted by Vice Presidents Casey and Orban, to get the amendments organized so that we can take them in some order.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Is Delegate Banes here?

Mr. President, I would request that you recognize the co-chairman of the committee who promised me he would not take an hour to explain briefly sections 5, 6, 7 and 8, Co-Chairman Manderino.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair is happy to recognize Co-Chairman Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Thank you, Mr. President.

Members of the Convention. We are on Unit 2 of the proposal, what we are calling Unit 2, Sections 5, 6, 7 and 8.

Section 5 is entitled Intergovernmental Cooperation. Essentially, it provides that municipalities have the right to cooperate or agree or to delegate or transfer functions, powers and responsibilities to other units, which is comprehensive, taking in state units, federal units, local units and any newly created units. We currently have legislation which permits certain cooperation and agreement, but this goes further and guarantees additional cooperation and agreement and, more importantly, the delegation and transfer of functions.

Again, it is a look-see into the future where certain problems are going to have to be handled on a greater area basis than they are currently being handled, but it does provide that the municipalities determine whether they wish to do this.

Section 6 is entitled Area Government. Section 6 does not provide anything which the General Assembly does not now have the power to do, but, again, in keeping with the philosophy of the article, it was intended to spell out that the functions, powers and responsibilities in certain cases within the discretion of the General Assembly be provided for in areas rather than in local municipalities.

Section 7 is called Area-wide Powers, and is the section which grants the General Assembly authority to give power in a given geographical area. If intergovernmental cooperation or area government takes place, various things might come under that. The example that was used in committee, for instance, was the taxation power. The General Assembly may have a limit on the millage which municipalities could impose and might give municipalities in a certain area additional powers for an additional mill, for instance, if it were needed or necessary to enter into a intergovernmental cooperation or an area government arrangement to do or perform a particular function in that area.

Section 8 has four essential sections to it. Under Consolidation, Merger or Boundary Change, we have had various questions about the meaning of this. I shall take them one section at a time here.

The first one, that the General Assembly shall provide, within two years, uniform legislation establishing a procedure for consolidation, merger or change of boundaries in municipalities; was intended to actually eliminate the hodgepodge of legislation which governs these matters in various municipalities. Under this first paragraph, we shall address ourselves directly to the question of what is called piecemeal annexation. Section 8 does not prevent piecemeal annexation as it now exists, but it does say that if the General Assembly is going to permit it to exist, it must permit it to exist on a uniform basis throughout all municipalities in order that the same reasons that might necessitate piecemeal annexation from, for instance, a second class township as today might necessitate it in a given condition from a borough or first class township or a city—highly unlikely, but still possible—and that the municipalities should be treated uniformly since we have all sorts of municipalities and all the classifications which range from very low population figures to very high population figures.

The second paragraph called Initiative would give the right to municipal governments if they wish to consolidate, merge or change boundaries, that if a majority of those in each municipality vote and desire to consolidate, merge or change boundaries, they could not be prevented from doing so. They do not need anyone's approval and specifically the approval of the governing body, because at times the interests of the governing body do not coincide with the interests of the people where the people may be prepared to accept and desire a merger, consolidation or boundary change and the elected officials, because of the offices they hold, do not wish to encourage or approve a consolidation, merger or boundary change.

The second paragraph gives the local municipalities, by voting on the ballot in the affirmative, the right, if they wish to do so, to do these things.

The third paragraph entitled Study talks about the agency of the Commonwealth that is set up. This was done in an attempt to meet various problems that it is felt exist in the Commonwealth. For instance, there are various occasions in the Commonwealth where several municipalities talk and talk for months and years about consolidation and merger, but nothing is ever done about it even though nobody seems to oppose it. Probably one of the reasons is that, if we look to private enterprise, when two companies are planning to merge, the boards of directors do the talking but there is much money spent on studying the problem. The attorneys and the accountants and the solicitors get together and study exactly what would happen here if we did consolidate or merge.

Many small communities today that think about doing this, except for hiring a private firm, cannot get the available statistics and data as to exactly how it would affect each municipality, their taxes, perhaps, their obligations, their bonded indebtedness and that kind of thing.

This was an intent to say to the state government, local municipalities should be given assistance in this area and, therefore, an agency should be set up to have the responsibility to study these problems and to advise local municipalities on these problems, so that the local municipalities could come to the state agency and request information, studies and results. The last part of that paragraph states, "an initiating local referendum." It perhaps should be plural "referenda," and I would like to address myself to that for a moment.

The intent there was that if the agency of the State were going to spend money in order to study a particular consolidation, merger or boundary change and advise municipalities that it might be a waste of money if these studies ended up in desk drawers of elected officials. We should not be afraid of allowing people to vote on them and that the state agency would therefore have the power, not under this section to initiate consolidation, but to initiate placing it on the ballot for the people to vote. I think it is felt that this provision would not be used very often and perhaps hardly at all. However, it is a tool that puts teeth into that pragaraph so that if the state agency were to complete a study and mail it back to local officials, it would not end up in the desk drawer. If it did, the state agency could always encourage placing it on the ballot if it was important to the interests of the people. If the local officials refused, then the state agency could put it on the ballot only. They could not initiate the merger or the consolidation, but they could put it on the ballot and it would be fought out at the polls as to the merits of the consolidation, merger or boundary change.

After those three had been decided upon, there was fear by some members of the committee that some of these provisions might take away the currently existing power of the General Assembly to provide various other methods by which consolidations, mergers and boundary changes would be accomplished. Therefore, paragraph 4 was put in, entitled "Legislative Power." Paragraph 4 is intended to preserve the exact authority that the General Assembly has today in these areas of consolidation, merger and boundary changes without any intent to limit the power that now exists or to enlarge it, leave it exactly as it is, even though we have provided for study help in paragraph 3, for the people to do it if they wish in paragraph 2, and for uniformity in legislation concerning these matters in paragraph 1.

That briefly comprises an explanation of those sections and I am sure we will have questions requesting further explanations.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Butera.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Mr. President, I have several questions I would like to direct to the gentleman by way of explanation. I think I know the answers to them, but I would like them to be a matter of record.

In Section 6, Area Government, would the gentleman please advise the body whether this section gives any greater or lesser powers to the legislature than it presently has.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I would say the answer to that is, no, it does not give the General Assembly any greater power than it now has. Currently there is no prohibition in the Constitution against the General Assembly exercising power itemized in Section 6. Therefore, Section 6 spells out the philosophy and the intent of the future, but does not grant any additional powers that the General Assembly does not now possess.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Now still on Section 6, I believe later in your proposal you define municipalities as including both what we consider local government and also county government.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Does your answer apply to both local governmental units and county governmental units?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, it does. The power is not enlarged as to either. We believe it is the identical power that the General Assembly now has.

DELEGATE BUTERA. I believe the reason for that is that the present Constitution is silent on this particular matter.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. That is correct.

DELEGATE BUTERA. In Section 7, the intergovernmental cooperation in areawide powers, is it also true that the legislature presently has the power to do what is proposed under Section 7?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I would say, basically, yes, with one exception however. In Section 7 it does say the General Assembly may grant powers within a given geographical area. In other words the General Assembly under Section 7 could say that in a certain area, for instance, the townships and boroughs in that area, if they enter into an intergovernmental cooperation or an area government, could have additional taxing power or additional debt limit power in order to allow the intergovernmental cooperation or the area government to function properly.

I think the General Assembly could do that today by proper classification because the Constitution does say they can classify municipalities and they could arrive at classifications to do that. I think they could do that under their legislative power; however, perhaps not under their present classification.

DELEGATE BUTERA. In Section 8 on boundary changes, with the exception of your approach as to uniformity of laws affecting all municipalities, is there anything in Section 8 which is new, that is to say, that the legislature does not have the power to so act on today?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. No, I do not believe there is, excepting, as you say, the uniform legislation in the first paragraph. I think the power that the General Assembly is given in that section are all powers that the General Assembly now possesses.

DELEGATE BUTERA. In the second paragraph entitled "Initiative," you provide for a majority vote of those voting in each municipality before a boundary can be changed or a government merged. I then notice in paragraph 4, under "Legislative Power," you provide that nothing herein shall prohibit the legislature from doing anything else with regard to changing boundaries, merger, and so on.

Are these two sections consistent or is one of them redundant?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. No, we do not think so. We think that the section entitled "Initiative," in effect, says that the municipalities have a right to do something if they wish. Legislative power is saying that the current authority of the General Assembly as it exists today is preserved.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Mr. President, I think probably this particular section of the Local Government Proposal is as broad as any that we have seen in any of the proposals as yet, in that it gives all power to the legislature in dealing with local government. Is that correct?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Section 8?

DELEGATE BUTERA. Sections 5, 6, 7, and 8.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Sections 5, 6, 7, and 8—putting them together in answer to your question—do not give the General Assembly any power which it does not currently have. Those sections do give to local municipalities certain powers which they now do not have, but it does not destroy the overall supremacy of the General Assembly, which the General Assembly now has. The two places where we are giving the municipalities rights if they wish, in Section 8, to consolidate, merge or change boundaries, they can do so without being prevented if they so wish, by majority vote; in intergovernmental cooperation and delegation and transfer of function, they can do that now. Some of that they can now do; some of it they could not do without enabling legislation.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Further, did the committee consider in those areas where the status quo is retained, that is, other than those areas in which you give local government additional powers, merging these four sections into, perhaps, one sentence, giving the General Assembly the power and just enumerating the powers which it has given to the General Assembly in these four areas?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. In Sections 5, 6, 7 and 8?

DELEGATE BUTERA. Yes. Let me rephrase my question.

It seems to me that you have given the General Assembly the power to regulate, with certain exceptions, local and county government. I was wondering whether the committee, in drafting this proposal, considered just making a general statement to that effect rather than spelling out each of these concepts in greater detail as you have done.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I would say it was considered and rejected. It was felt that each of the areas was of sufficient importance to separate them in the article.

DELEGATE BUTERA. I thank the gentleman.

I would just like to make one statement. Mr. President, these four sections, I think, are good. I think the committee has done its job in permitting the General Assembly to be the controlling body as to our local government in this Commonwealth, with one or two exceptions. I am fearful because of the breaking down of the four sections that perhaps we are waving a red flag in front of those who traditionally have opposed changes in our local government structure by the use of certain words and the use of certain descriptions of government. I feel that it may be wise to at least consider today some amalgamation of these sections, so that we do not make it appear to be the intention of this Convention that we are attempting to eliminate our present system of local government without the people having something to say about it, either through their representatives or through a referendum.

I intend to support these sections, but I would like to pose this question, perhaps to the Committee on Style and Drafting, because in an area such as that from which I come, when the words "area government" are mentioned, without about a two-hour explanation, there are many people who are afraid that they are going to lose their rights that they have come to enjoy and have come to use very well. In light of that and in light of saving this section, I think we should consider the practicalities, perhaps, of some of the language and also some of the way in which it is set forth. Perhaps this is just language and perhaps the Committee on Styling and Drafting has this power. I am not certain and I do not think anybody is, but I just would like to present my thoughts to the Convention.

I thank you, gentlemen.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Delegate Butera, may I say one other thing which, I think, addresses itself to the question and the problem or the concern?

In Section 1, as we mentioned yesterday, the opening sentence of the article, "The General Assembly shall provide by general law for local government within the Commonwealth," is intended that in all areas of local government, unless specifically stated, there is a right by initiative and referendum by the vote of the people, that the General Assembly remains the supreme controlling provision for local government within the Commonwealth. We think that is as that existing situation is today. The only thing the General Assembly would not be able to overrule, it would appear in the entire article, is where we provide that if something goes on the ballot by initiative and referendum and the people vote for it, then they would have the right to have that.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Yes, I understand that, Mr. President, and I think that perhaps—and I may be wrong on this—that an initial sentence in Section 1 would be sufficient and then, perhaps, two or three more sentences, giving the local municipalities the opportunity to express themselves in some other way would be sufficient and that this excess verbiage possibly is not necessary and may only, as a practical matter, defeat our initial intention in Section 1 in the first sentence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Thank you, Mr. President.

Delegate Manderino, will you explain to me, please, under Section 5, "Intergovernmental Cooperation," should a municipality decide to delegate or transfer one or more of its functions to another municipality under what procedure would it be able to regain these powers, if, at a later time, it decided to revoke the contract?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I think, first of all, it would depend upon what was contained in the original delegation or transfer of the function; on what the local municipality had agreed to in the first instance.

In other words, if the local municipality had agreed, in the first instance, that it be an irrevocable delegation, then I think it would be an irrevocable delegation because two communities would have an interest in the matter.

For instance, if two communities were to agree to delegate their power over garbage collection to a board or a commission in the area, both communities have an interest. When they first negotiate how to do this, if they agree to delegate that power to a board in the area, for instance, similar with what we do with a regional authority today, then it would not be workable for one community, in any event, to pull back without the permission of of the other community because it could affect the other community's right.

However, if, in the first place, they provided that reservation to pull back, the local community itself, then it appears they would have that right to pull back because they provided for it in the first instance.

I might also call attention in that regard that this states that the local municipalities can do these things with their functions, powers and responsibilities that they have. They only have the functions, powers and responsibilities which the General Assembly gave to them. If the General Assembly were to take certain powers and responsibilities away from the jurisdiction of local government, the General Assembly would remain supreme as to those powers, functions and responsibilities that it took out of the jurisdiction of local government, if it took it into the state level, for instance.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Am I correct, then, in paraphrasing your remarks, that the municipality should, if there is any possibility of attempting to regain these powers, provide so in the contract which initially delegates those powers.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I believe so, yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, I would present a trifling suggestion as to style; nevertheless, it might point to some of the matters referred to by Delegate Butera.

In Section 6 we provide: "The General Assembly shall provide for the establishment and dissolution of government of areas." That sounds like red ruin and the breakup of laws when you talk about commanding the government to dissolve the government of areas. I think it had better be looked at by the people in Style and Drafting.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. To me, when I look at Sections 5, 6, and 7, I see a similarity in all these which, as Delegate Butera pointed out, could possibly be capsulized into one section. Could you please quickly capsulize the differences between 5, 6, and 7?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes. Briefly, what is done under Section 5 is done by the local municipalities themselves. What is done under Section 6 is done by the General Assembly, and what is done by Section 7 is done by the General Assembly, but it makes it clear that the General Assembly can give special additional powers in a given area where there exists either 5 or 6.

Now, the General Assembly could do that now, but there might be some question whether it would be considered special legislation for a given area. It could do it by changing classifications of municipalities, however.

DELEGATE POWELL. One further question in regard to all three of these sections, actually, or 6 and 7, anyway: I come from a township which is presently participating in a regional cooperative type of government. One of the requirements we found recently, to close our ditches and to apply for federal funds, was to have the six municipalities which are involved in this project, this regional cooperation, vote to okay this, inasmuch as they had ditches coming up also, although we are the only ones applying.

Is there any danger or has it been discussed in committee that in these three sections—I am more concerned with Sections 6 and 7—the Federal Government might require this before Federal funds may come back to the local municipalities? The point I just cited is that there is such a requirement now under regional cooperation. I would like it clarified.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Right. We think it would depend upon the program. We do not think that we are providing anything here that gives, curtails or increases the General Assembly's authority now. If the General Assembly ever wanted to take action in the State to permit the receipt of Federal funds, it may or may not. I do not think it would affect any existing powers or agreements or regional setups that have been entered into or will be entered into. It does not take anything away from that.

DELEGATE POWELL. No, that was not my question. I would assume that. My question is, what will become of qualifications for various municipal governments which participate in this type of area government to apply for federal funds? Was that discussed? You probably do not have the answer offhand, but was it discussed?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, that was discussed, but we cannot very well answer what the Federal Government will require. We do know that in certain programs the Federal Government now requires that a certain area or regional approach has to be taken before you are eligible for funds, but the Federal Government sets its standards by looking at the whole country and we cannot very well say that the Federal Government would or would not make certain things prerequisites to the receipt of Federal funds. It already has done so in certain areas. I think that is the direction the Federal Government has been moving for some time, yes.

DELEGATE POWELL. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are there any further questions? If not, I suppose we are ready to take up the amendments.

This amendment we have here is an amendment offered by Delegate Goldman. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment and the pages to distribute the amendment.

GOLDMAN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 3, line 3, by removing the period after "unit" and inserting: Provided, however, That in the case of a newly created governmental unit, the governing body of such newly created governmental unit shall be elected by the people in the area affected.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, while the amendment is being passed out, may I address the delegates on this?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want to remind Delegate Goldman and the others who speak on these amendments that under the procedure we can only speak twice. The proposer can open and close and these are considered his two times.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I would like to have the delegates turn to the proposal as it was originally submitted, Committee Proposal No. 6, Section 5, on the bottom of page 2, and follow along with me if they can. This jumps around in words.

We start out with "Intergovernmental Cooperation." It states: "A municipality, by act of its governing body;" that is the point in there that I am trying to make by this amendment; then it goes on to say that a municipality, "by initiative and referendum." But the important part here is that by act of its municipal body it shall have the right to "transfer any function, power or responsibility and delegate or transfer any function, power or responsibility to one or more governmental units including other municipalities, the Federal Government," and then at the end "or any newly created governmental unit."

The point that I am trying to make is this: A municipality, one or more, can agree with each other, without having gotten a vote of the people, to transfer rights, functions and powers to a newly created governmental unit. The transfer of power carries with it the right of taxation and it is doing this by an agreement between several communities. By reason of this agreement, the people who will be affected by the creation of this new governmental unit will have no control over those persons who will administer and handle the operations and functions of this new unit, which also has with it the right of taxation. So we have a new unit, created by agreement, not able to be elected by the people, having the right of taxation over the people whom it serves, and no control by these people, or no right of control by these people over the officials governing that newly created unit.

This is a problem which I think bears serious consideration. It is the purpose of the amendment. The amendment provides for adding these words at the end of Section 5: "Provided, however, That in the case of a newly created governmental unit, the governing body of such newly created governmental unit shall be elected by the people in the area affected."

I am simply asking that if you are going to create a new governmental unit and if it is going to be created by agreement of two communities or if it is going to be created by initiative of the people, let the people still have the right of electing the officials of this new governing body which has the right of taxation over its people. Do not take away the right of taxation representation from the people.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. On behalf of the committee, we should like to oppose this amendment. We think it is entirely too restrictive and can really stop the progress that has already been made.

I would like to point out, first of all, that what has been described by the proposer of the amendment actually goes on today in some respect when you create a regional authority. It is done without election of the people, with great powers in the authority to borrow millions of dollars and to impose revenue costs and revenue assessments in the case of sewage or water upon users. These are not popularly elected. However, the authority system you now have must follow what the General Assembly has set up.

Actually, this gives an alternative under this Section 5 by the delegation in transfer of functions to a new governmental unit to give local government an option if it does not wish to follow the authority system as set up. For instance, as an example, in a regional matter, they might set up a regional board. New governmental unit does not mean municipality. Governmental unit could mean, for instance, two communities setting up a board where they might now set up an authority. Setting up a board for any function—it might be garbage collection. We think it would be too restrictive to require that the five representatives on the regional garbage board be popularly elected or the five representatives on a regional air pollution board be popularly elected.

We have found that under the authority system that although it has its evils, it also has various benefits. This preserves many of those benefits, but allows the local community to set up some of its own standards when it sets up a regional board, rather than necessarily following what is already outlined in the authority's act. We think that in some cases, if a local municipality were to delegate a lot of functions to a new commissioner board, it might want to provide that they be popularly elected and it could be so under this, but we seriously doubt whether public officials would transfer, except for isolated specific functions to a new governmental unit. In that situation we feel that popular elections would not be workable and we leave to the local governing body how to set up their appointment and selection.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. I wanted to ask Delegate Goldman if, under the provision as it stands now, any two governments which wanted to could not provide for such a popular election?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Could they provide for a popular election?

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Yes, after there is a merger or when some new governmental unit is created. If they want to have the governing body of this new unit elected, can they not provide for it now?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Without this constitutional provision, no.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Under the proposal they cannot provide for it?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Under the proposal I suppose they could, but there is nothing in here mandating that they should.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. They can but they do not have to?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I would imagine that by their agreement they could so provide for it.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. But the proposal does not deny them that right?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. No. It does not give it to them, either.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would like to speak against the amendment, if I may.

In Section 5 we set up a very flexible arrangement, but in every case it is either the governing body of the municipality which is popularly elected or there is initiative and referendum, which is again by the people, that sets up this agency.

It very well may be more convenient to have each municipality send one or two delegates there. It may not be a necessity for a continuing governing board. It may not be worth the time and the taxpayers' money to put this on the ballot. This is up to the local governing bodies that are elected by the people, or it is by initiative and referendum. It may be a sanitary district. You may want experts on this.

Therefore, I would ask the Convention to support the committee and continue the flexibility which is necessary. We are writing a Constitution, not legislation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready to vote on this?

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. May I make one final comment on this?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. I do not deny anything that Delegate Rappaport has said. It is possible under the initiative section, initiative and referendum, that the issue could be put to the people along with the initiative as to whether or not to set up this type of newly organized government, or provide within that same act, within the same voting act, that the officials will be elected. All I am suggesting is that it should be in there, and that in any agreement between the communities it should provide for the election of the officials who are going to, thereafter, levy and impose taxes upon those people whom it has power over.

I am merely suggesting that we prevent an evil by giving the people the right to elect those officials who are going to impose taxes on them. This has been a major objection of authorities and, I think, unless we put this amendment in, we are going to be getting back to that same objectionable feature.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Goldman?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—6

Forster	Gouger	Otto	Pott
Goldman	Meyer

NAYS—106

Aberman	Curran	Kline	Reynolds
Aurentz	Dailey	Krill	Richter
Bagenstose	Desmond	Laputka	Sahli
Baldrige	Devlin	Leinbach	Scales

Baldwin	Dumbauld	Levin	Scarlett
Banes	Erwin	Manderino	Shapiro
Barry	Fawcett	Mangery	Sharp
Bashoff	Fay	Markley	Shively
Benedict	Feather	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Benfield	Filson	McGeary	Shrager
Bloom	Fineman	McGlynn	Silverman
Braham	Fortney	Michael	Solomon
Brennan	Gabreski	Michener	Sprogell
Broderick	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Swope
Bunting	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Tale
Burkholder	Griffith	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Butera	Harding	Morton	Tomascik
Cain	Hatter	Nelson	Tully
Caputo	Henderson	O'Donnell	Waldron
Casey	Heyburn	Orban	Warman
Clark	Hook	Orbin	Welsh
Clinger	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Westerberg
Conley	Irvis	Pelletier	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Powell	Wilcox
Cosetti	Kauffman	Rappaport	Woodring
Croop	Keller, J.	Redick	Woodside
Cunningham	Kelly

NOT VOTING—51

Allison	Fohl	Lee, K.	Rovner
Amsterdam	Gerber	Lee, L.	Ruth
Baldus	Gray	Leonard	Scott
Barron	Hannum	More	Scranton
Brown	Himes	Murray	Sebastian
Buck	Hocker	Musselman	Shettig
Camardella	Horne	Pecham	Stout
Caron	Hosteller	Percey	Strickler
Cortese	Jirolamio	Popil	Stroup
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Thomson
Donolow	King	Quiles	Van Sant
Fagan	Lane	Rea	Wilmarth
Fleming	Leach	Roberts

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

MORTON AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now take up the amendment offered by Delegate Morton. The pages will distribute it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE MORTON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 3, line 3, by removing the period after "unit" and inserting: subject to such restrictions, limitations and regulations if any as hereinafter may be prescribed by the General Assembly.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, my amendment is designed to insure one thing, that on intergovernmental cooperation the legislature can, if it so desires, remain supreme.

I was interested in Delegate Butera's remarks and interrogation of Delegate Manderino when he asked him about the first section which says, "The General Assembly shall provide by general law for local government within the Commonwealth." The answer was that this controlled in the legislature everything except what we had by initiative and local referendum.

In Section 5 we provide by initiative and local referendum where they can make transfers in delegation of functions. I think we should all be aware of the fact that under the Intercooperation Joint Municipal Activities Act, right now, municipalities can cooperate with each other, but they cannot delegate their powers and functions. This provision goes further and provides for a delegation of powers and functions by the governing body or by initiative and referendum.

I am not opposed to that, but here are my worries. Suppose the good city of Sharon, and I do not think it ever would, would delegate to Youngstown, Ohio, irrevocably, municipal garbage collection and, thereafter, they would want to create a county-wide garbage collection and maybe the legislature no longer has any right to say to Sharon, come on back in and stay with the county. Or suppose that the city of Pittsburgh would delegate to the Federal Government its entire police power.

I only want to insure that the legislature still remains supreme if it wants to step in and reorganize the police power or maintain a county. The whole thrust of this amendment is that in every other section, and if you will look at them, in Section 2, in Section 1, we talk of the General Assembly; in Section 4, we speak of the General Assembly; in Sections 6, 7 and 8, we refer to the General Assembly; but in Section 5 we are silent. To me, the mere fact that we are silent in Section 5 could lead to a very strong argument that if a municipality delegates a function, no longer is the legislature supreme and, therefore, the legislature cannot act in the future.

If you will notice, I have couched my language to be anything as hereinafter adopted by the legislature only to protect the possibility that the legislature will always be supreme as to local government matters.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. The committee is opposed to this amendment, although in spirit in the committee discussions, the objections which Delegate Morton raises are not in spirit objectionable. However, there was great concern on putting anything in here which would indicate that no community could move until enabling legislation had been passed by the General Assembly. There has been enabling legislation by the General Assembly on this first portion, "Cooperation and Agreement," but the General Assembly has not permitted the transfer or delegation of powers, functions, and responsibilities. It was the committee's feeling that this was most important as the right of local communities. We are stating this so that it will be a matter of Convention record, although we do not think there is any concern because of the way it is written.

We should like to say this: You can only give away that which you have and local governments do not have a sovereign right over their functions and powers. They only have a limited right to exercise a power as long as the General Assembly says it is theirs. So that if a city were to delegate its power to another unit, it can only give away what it has, and it does not have an irrevocable power. It is our feeling that it is implicit, therefore, that the General Assembly would remain supreme in taking any power away that it has given to a local government.

It would prevent the General Assembly, however, from canceling an agreement or a delegation that local government units entered into if the local government was still responsible for that power or function. If they want to take it away from local government, altogether, they can do so because they never granted them absolute power in the first place. Under today's Constitution, or this Constitution, the General Assembly could take away from local governments the right to collect garbage, the right to clean streets and remove snow—which we would all be happy if they did and paid for it. They could remove any power, function, or responsibility from a local community because they are not sovereign entities.

Therefore, we think the amendment is not a necessary amendment because implicit in the grant of power is the General Assembly's right to remove what they gave at any time from local government.

Further than that, to put the language in could then be interpreted that no community could move unless the General Assembly acted, and we do not wish that interpretation. We specifically want to guarantee to the local communities that if they are given the power and responsibility and function, that they can then use it in a cooperative agreement or in a delegation agreement, revocable on their terms or irrevocable on their terms, but it would never be irrevocable because they were never given that full power by the General Assembly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Goldman.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Mr. President, just one comment to Delegate Manderino's statement. Under the home-rule charter that we are giving now to local communities, the communities do have irrevocable power unless specifically taken away by the legislature.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. That is correct.

DELEGATE GOLDMAN. Unless the legislature has moved in, and what we are asking then is for the legislature to move in and specifically state in detail everything that a local community can or cannot do so that if the legislature has not spoken, the local community can irrevocably give away a particular power. I support the amendment as a restriction on that give-away of power.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Just a summary. This in no way affects the rights granted in the preceding sections because they could act. If the legislature never acts, that is fine with me, but I want to make sure that, contrary to what Delegate Manderino says, if they delegate their power and give it away, they no longer have that power and that the legislature is still supreme in this field. This is the only section where nowhere do we refer to the General Assembly.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Morton?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—29

Baldrige	Filson	Meyer	Richter
Baldwin	Fohl	Michael	Shapiro
Benedict	Forster	Moorhead	Sharp
Benfield	Goldman	Morton	Silverman
Brennan	Griffith	Pott	Waldron
Corey	Keller, J.	Powell	Whittum
Curran	Leinbach	Rea	Wilcox
Dumbauld

NAYS—94

Aberman	Devlin	Kline	Reynolds
Aurentz	Erwin	Krill	Ruth
Baldus	Fawcett	Laputka	Sahli
Banes	Fay	Leach	Scales
Barry	Feather	Leonard	Scarlett
Bashoff	Fineman	Levin	Scranton
Bloom	Fortney	Manderino	Sebastian
Braham	Gabreski	Mangery	Shettig
Broderick	Gehrlein	Markley	Shively
Brown	Goldstein	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Buck	Gouger	McGeary	Shrager
Bunting	Hannum	McGlynn	Solomon
Burkholder	Harding	Michener	Sprogell
Butera	Hatter	Miller, D.	Swope
Cain	Henderson	Miller, R.	Tate
Caputo	Heyburn	Nelson	Thornburgh
Casey	Hook	Orban	Tomascik
Clark	Hocker	Orbin	Tully
Clinger	Huggins	Otto	Warman
Conley	Irvis	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Cortese	Jirolanio	Popil	Westerberg
Cunningham	Johnson	Rappaport	Woodring
Dailey	Kauffman	Redick	Woodside
Desmond	Kelly

NOT VOTING—40

Allison	Fagan	Lee, K.	Quiles
Amsterdam	Fleming	Lee, L.	Roberts
Bagenstose	Gerber	More	Rovner
Barron	Gray	Murray	Scott
Camardella	Himes	Musselman	Stout
Caron	Horne	O'Donnell	Strickler
Cosetti	Hostetler	Pechan	Stroup
Croop	Keller, M.	Pelletier	Thomson
Donaldson	King	Percey	Van Sant
Donolow	Lane	Prendergast	Wilmarth

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

MORTON AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we have another amendment offered by Delegate Morton.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE MORTON offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 6), page 3, line 5, by striking out "establishment and dissolution of"

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, as I understand it right now, the general law is that the General Assembly can create area governments. The sole import of this amendment is to delete the words "establishment" and "dissolution" because I feel they may be a restriction. As Delegate Bloom pointed out, the minute you put something in the Constitution and it talks about dissolution, it just strikes me to be a real red herring.

There was a question raised by Delegate Tate in one of the meetings as to whether you said establishment and dissolution may mean that they could not provide the manner of operation.

I think the deletion of these two words only reenforces a salable product and still gives the General Assembly complete power in creating area governments, which they now have.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, the committee's comment is that it does oppose the amendment, although in substance we do not feel it changes what Section 6 says. However, the committee adopted this language, and it does provide for the establishment and dissolution, so it implies that the government of areas may exist in certain functions and responsibilities and 10 years later may not be needed and may be taken out.

For instance, we might have a government of an area in a specific function for the next 20 years. If a county in a certain area were to get home rule, the county might take over that function and it could be dissolved.

I think it is implicit in Delegate Morton's amendment, that it is a change, but we feel it would be better to read as it now reads in Section 6.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Morton?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—32

Baldrige	Clinger	Forster	Pott
Baldwin	Conley	Goldman	Powell
Bashoff	Corey	Griffith	Rea
Benfield	Cosetti	Laputka	Sharp
Braham	Curran	Leinbach	Thornburgh
Brennan	Dumbauld	Meyer	Waldron
Burkholder	Fleming	Michael	Whittum
Butera	Fohl	Morton	Wilcox

NAYS—90

Aberman	Fineman	Leonard	Ruth
Aurentz	Fortney	Levin	Sahli
Baldus	Gabreski	Manderino	Scales
Banes	Gehrlein	Mangery	Scarlett
Barry	Goldstein	Markley	Scranton
Bloom	Gouger	Mattioni	Sebastian
Broderick	Hannum	McGeary	Shapiro
Brown	Harding	McGlynn	Shively
Buck	Hatter	Michener	Shoemaker
Bunting	Henderson	Miller, D.	Shrager
Cain	Heyburn	Miller, R.	Silverman
Caputo	Hocker	Moorhead	Solomon
Casey	Hook	Nelson	Sprogell
Clark	Huggins	Orban	Strickler
Croop	Irvis	Orbin	Swope
Dalley	Jirolanlo	Otto	Tate
Desmond	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Tomasclk
Devlin	Kauffman	Popil	Tully
Erwin	Keller, J.	Rappaport	Warman
Fawcett	Kelly	Redick	Welsh
Fay	Kline	Reynolds	Westerberg
Feather	Krill	Richter	Woodring
Filson	Leach

NOT VOTING—41

Allison	Fagan	Lee, L.	Roberts
Amsterdam	Gerber	More	Rovner
Bagenstose	Gray	Murray	Scott
Barron	Himes	Musselman	Shettig
Benedict	Horne	O'Donnell	Stout
Camardella	Hostetler	Peehan	Stroup
Caron	Keller, M.	Pelletier	Thomson
Cortese	King	Percey	Van Sant
Cunningham	Lane	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Donaldson	Lee, K.	Quiles	Woodside
Denolow

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

WESTERBERG AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is an amendment offered by Delegate Westerberg.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE WESTERBERG offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, lines 18 to 21, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Study. The General Assembly shall designate an agency of the Commonwealth to study consolidation, merger and boundary changes, advise municipalities on all problems which might be connected therewith, and initiate local referendum.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

DELEGATE WESTERBERG. Mr. President, this changes one word from "delegate" to "designate." Then to carry out the language, I had to change some verbiage. It does not change anything except that one word, and I ask that it be adopted.

It is really a correctional amendment and it is approved by the committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, I might say that the one word which Delegate Westerberg refers to, and I think we should mention it, the original language said "delegate," and this is changed to "designate," because there was some concern that perhaps "delegate" might imply the delegation of legislative power, and that was not intended. "Designate" clearly spells it out. The rest of the change was then to make the grammatical meaning correct.

The committee favors this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I just want a one-sentence answer from the committee as to why they have this in here at all?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. This section, the entire section on Study?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Yes.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. That question was asked a little earlier. The purpose is this: It was felt that there was sufficient concern that municipalities throughout the Commonwealth today need assistance, even in cases where there is much talk about consolidation and merger, but nobody is there to figure out the cost, the tax situation, how things will be affected, and we, in effect, want the State to do this. It was felt important enough because of the consolidation and merger problems that we should specifically mention the responsibility of the General Assembly to do this and advise the municipalities.

The last part was put in concerning initiate local referendum to put teeth into it so that a study would not be made and then end up in desk drawers; that it could be placed on the ballot for a vote of the people if they so desired.

We might add one other thing. The General Assembly could do this on its own, without being in the Constitution, exactly what is here. It was felt, however, by the committee that this was one item which was not taken out, because it was felt that the problems of the next 50 to 100 years in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and elsewhere are exactly this problem of consolidation, merger and boundary changes to meet the future and that it was a responsibility which could be so significant that we should indicate it in the Constitution.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. In other words, you came to the conclusion that the General Assembly might not do this, and you wanted to make sure they did.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, because of its importance.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. It is a rather unusual thing to put in a Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I want everybody to know that that mystified looking gentleman is Delegate Scranton and not Delegate Kline, who apparently does not understand what is going on.

The delegate raises an interesting question, and I want everyone to understand that there is more to this than merely establishing an agency to do studying, because that agency would also have the power to move into a local area and initiate a local vote in order to achieve some of these things, if the local people did not take the initiative.

It seems to me that is a very gutty proposal and it has a lot of power to it. I favor it, but do not think it is just some glorified new agency, because it just is not that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. There was another reason why this was placed in the recommendation for the Local Government Article.

We had some recommendations whereby some of the persons who appeared before the Preparatory Committee and also before the Local Government Committee wanted to mandate a boundary commission. The responsibility of that boundary commission would be to establish a time schedule as to when and how consolidation of communities should take place without a referendum.

The committee felt that this was wrong, that while the so-called boundary could study and do its job was correct, that nothing in this Constitution should, by implication, say that you must consolidate, you must merge, without the approval of the voters. This was the purpose of inserting this particular article in the Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—121

Aberman	Baldus	Dumbauld	Laputka
Bagenstose	Desmond	Kline	Richter
Baldrige	Devlin	Krill	Ruth
Sahli	Erwin	Leach	Scales
Baldwin	Fawcett	Leinbach	Scarlett
Banes	Fay	Manderino	Scranton
Barry	Feather	Mangery	Sebastian
Bashoff	Filson	Markley	Shapiro
Benedict	Fineman	Mattioni	Sharp
Benfield	Forster	McGeary	Shettig
Bloom	Fortney	McGlynn	Shively
Braham	Gabreski	Meyer	Shoemaker
Brennan	Gehrlein	Michael	Shrager
Broderick	Gerber	Miller, D.	Silverman
Brown	Goldman	Miller, R.	Sprogell
Buck	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Bunting	Gouger	Morton	Strickler
Burkholder	Griffith	Nelson	Swope
Butera	Hannum	Orban	Tate
Cain	Harding	Orbin	Thornburgh
Caputo	Hatter	Otto	Tomascik
Casey	Henderson	Pasquerilla	Tully
Clinger	Heyburn	Pelletier	Waldron
Conley	Hocker	Popil	Warman
Corey	Hook	Pott	Welsh
Cortese	Huggins	Powell	Westerberg
Cosetti	Irvis	Rappaport	Whittum
Croop	Kauffman	Rea	Wilcox
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Redick	Wilmarth
Curran	Kelly	Reynolds	Woodside
Dailey

NAYS—5

Aurentz	O'Donnell	Solomon	Woodring
Johnson

NOT VOTING—37

Allison	Fohl	Lee, K.	Percey
Amsterdam	Gray	Lee, L.	Prendergast
Barron	Himes	Leonard	Quiles
Camardella	Horne	Levin	Roberts
Caron	Hostetler	Michener	Rovner
Clark	Jirolanio	More	Scott
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Murray	Stroup
Donclow	King	Musselman	Thomson
Fagan	Lane	Pechan	Van Sant
Fleming

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

JOHNSON AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Our next amendment is one offered by Delegate Johnson. I want to ask the clerk to read that amendment and I am going to have the pages distribute it. I will then recognize Delegate Johnson.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. I think the order was that Delegate Pelletier's amendment was to be presented first because if it passed, mine is unnecessary.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will check it. That is not the way they were given to me.

If it is agreeable to you, they tell me that it was set up by the committee that your amendment would come next, Delegate Johnson. If there is any conflict, I would be glad to discuss it.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. This is all right.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is it all right this way?

DELEGATE JOHNSON. I think, Mr. President, it might be helpful if I would read Section 8, lines 15 and 16, as they would be changed by this proposed amendment. It is partly a matter of clarification and partly an attempt to be realistic and to put into the Constitution only that which is functional and which is likely to be utilized.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have not had the clerk read your amendment. Would you yield for just a second. Would the clerk read it, please?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE JOHNSON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 15, by striking out "municipal governments" and inserting: the voters of two or more municipalities

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 16, by removing the comma after "consolidate" and inserting: or

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 16, by striking out "and change boundaries" and inserting: municipalities

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. Then I will read it as it would appear if the amendment would pass.

"Initiative. By initiative and referendum, the voters of two or more municipalities shall have the right to consolidate or merge municipalities upon a majority vote of those voting thereon in each municipality, without the approval of the governing bodies." I think it is a clarification, instead of using the term "municipal governments" to note "the voters of two or more municipalities." I realize that there are definitions of terms and they are spelled out, but it seems to me it would be helpful for an understanding to simply say, the voters of two or more municipalities shall have this power.

The part that is stricken "and change boundaries," is, of course, a very important matter. At the present time, and I believe, Delegate Manderino, I am correct in interpreting your opening statement that these amendments or these changes bring no additional power. Is that true? The General Assembly at the present could arrange for such referenda by law?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, they could.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. I am thinking, as you know, the change will affect boundaries. It is not realistic to have it in the present form because you would not get a majority vote of both of the municipalities concerned because the one that would be losing territory would be thinking in terms of tax revenue, and I am thinking in terms of people, persons, those who have homes, those who are serviced at the present time by the area in which they live. The General Assembly has provided means for negotiations. We are by this article providing for a very careful study and it seems to me that this inclusion of "change boundaries" is absolutely unnecessary at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President and members of the Convention, speaking on behalf of the committee, we are in opposition to the amendment.

There are three portions to this amendment. The first line which changes "municipal governments" to "the voters of two or more municipalities" does not make much of a change. The voters still must do it, but it does take out the initiative which is provided for in that section—initiative and referendum. We feel that is important so that the people can initiate, if they wish, consolidation, merger or boundary changes.

The effect of the rest of the amendment, as it appears to me, is to permit, by initiative and referendum, consolidations and mergers, but not the change of boundaries so that it would read municipalities would have the right to consolidate or merge but not to change boundaries. We would oppose this because the intent of this paragraph is, if people wish to do these things, they should not be prevented from doing so. As we stated earlier, Delegate Johnson referred to the fact that people in a given area may wish, in order to get services, to become a part of an adjoining municipality, what I called earlier, piecemeal annexation. That can be done under the first paragraph if the General Assembly provides uniform legislation. They must provide uniform legislation though and treat everyone in the State equally. If they do, that can be done under the first paragraph. But this paragraph guarantees rights to the people that, if they wish to merge, consolidate or change boundaries, they can do so. It would appear to us illogical to allow them to consolidate or merge if they want to but not allow them to change their boundaries if they wish to, by a majority vote in each municipality. So we would oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, Mr. President, but Chairman Manderino discussed it very adequately.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. May I make one correction? I am entirely at a loss to understand Chairman Manderino's statement that this change takes the words "initiative and referendum" out; it does not.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. May I apologize to Delegate Johnson? I am sorry. You are not deleting that, and "initiative and referendum" still stay in, so I will retract those remarks; I misinterpreted that part of it.

The second part, however, still remains in, that it allows, by initiative and referendum, consolidation and merger but does not allow boundary changes, and we feel that there is no reason to make that distinction.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Johnson?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—18

Barry	Himes	Morton	Tomasclk
Dumbauld	Johnson	Nelson	Whittum
Filson	Kauffman	O'Donnell	Wilcox
Goldman	Keller, J.	Pelletier	Woodring
Gouger	Laputka

NAYS—103

Aberman	Curran	Leach	Ruth
Aurentz	Dailey	Lee, L.	Sahli
Baldrige	Desmond	Leinbach	Scales
Baldus	Devlin	Leonard	Scarlett
Baldwin	Erwin	Levin	Scranton
Banes	Fawcett	Manderino	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fay	Mangery	Shapiro
Benedict	Feather	Markley	Sharp

Benfield	Fineman	Mattioni	Shettig
Bloom	Forster	McGeary	Shively
Braham	Fortney	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Brennan	Gehrlein	Meyer	Shrager
Broderick	Gerber	Michener	Silverman
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Bunting	Griffith	Miller, R.	Stout
Burkholder	Hannum	Moorhead	Strickler
Butera	Hatter	Orban	Swope
Caputo	Henderson	Orbin	Tate
Casey	Heyburn	Otto	Thornburgh
Clark	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Tully
Clinger	Hook	Popil	Waldron
Conley	Hostetler	Pott	Warman
Corey	Huggins	Powell	Welsh
Cortese	Irvis	Rappaport	Westerberg
Croop	Kelly	Redick	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Krill	Reynolds

NOT VOTING—42

Allison	Fagan	Lane	Rea
Amsterdam	Fleming	Lee, K.	Richter
Bagenstose	Fohl	Michael	Roberts
Barron	Gabreski	More	Rovner
Buck	Gray	Murray	Scott
Cain	Harding	Musselman	Solomon
Camardella	Horne	Pechan	Stroup
Caron	Jirolanio	Percey	Thomson
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Van Sant
Donaldson	King	Quiles	Woodside
Donolow	Kline

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PELLETIER AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pelletier.

DELEGATE PELLETIER. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment:

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE PELLETIER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, lines 11 to 23, by striking out "Uniform Legislation." in line 11; all of lines 12 to 23, and inserting: The General Assembly shall enact uniform legislation establishing the procedure for consolidation, merger or change of boundary of municipalities.

The General Assembly may delegate to an agency of the Commonwealth the responsibility for studying the consolidation, merger and boundary changes, and for advising municipalities on all problems which might be connected therewith.

If the General Assembly fails to enact legislation within a period of two years following the adoption of this provision municipalities shall have the right to consolidate, merge and change boundaries by action of their governing bodies or by initiative and referendum by majority vote of those voting in the area affected.

Nothing herein shall prohibit or prevent the General Assembly from providing additional methods for consolidation, merger and boundary change.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Pelletier?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pelletier.

DELEGATE PELLETIER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I offer this amendment with a good deal of hesitation because this article has been very carefully drawn and I respect the work of the committee, but as I understand its philosophical approach, it has been to give a maximum of choice to the General Assembly and to the municipality.

The purpose of this amendment really is to give even more choice than has been allowed by the committee's proposal. I suppose what I am objecting to most in the committee proposal is putting in the Constitution that particular provision relating to the initiative and referendum. It seems to me that this creates more inflexibility rather than providing for a broad grant of power to act on the part of the General Assembly and the municipalities.

Under this article the General Assembly would have full power to fix means of annexation, consolidation, merger and changes of boundary by uniform legislation. If it did not do so, or does not choose to do so, by uniform legislation, then two methods would be provided for the municipalities to move, either by vote of the action of the governing body or by initiative and referendum by majority vote of those voting in the area affected, but this does not come into play if the legislature has acted.

I would submit, fellow delegates, that this is a more flexible means of providing for annexation, consolidation and boundary changes than is presently before you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, the committee opposes this amendment. A lot of the language here is identical to the committee's language and some of its mandates are identical to the committee's language mandating uniform legislation and the prevention clause about legislative power. However, two important changes are not noted: One is it takes away the power of the state agency to initiate local referendum, and we feel that does nothing more than allow the people to vote on it and they should not have that right taken away. In the third paragraph, it does destroy the effect of paragraph 2 of Section 8 of the committee proposal, by which paragraph we wish to guarantee to people that if they did wish to consolidate, merge or change boundaries, no one should be allowed to stop them at any time. We still feel that is a good principle, that if the people wish to do it, no one should be able to say no.

We would oppose the amendment.

DELEGATE BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I would like also to call the delegates' attention to the fact that the wording of this language requires a vote only in the areas affected, which would continue the present piecemeal legislation which is permitted only in the Second Class Township Code. I am not speaking for or against that method; sometimes my heart swings both ways. This would make a very serious change in the proposal and I am sure that each delegation should know that that is in there.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Yes, thank you. Delegate

Shoemaker is just pointing that out. I missed that at the end of that sentence in the third paragraph.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. And not only, Mr. President, what Delegate Kline pointed out, but insofar as the governing body is concerned, in this amendment there is a less vote required than there is in many circumstances regarding a change of zoning. It would seem to me that a merger or consolidation is much more important than a change of zoning.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be heard in a summation, Delegate Pelletier?

DELEGATE PELLETIER. I would simply say, Mr. President, that I suspect you are putting in the Constitution something here that certain lobbyists have tried for a great many years to get into legislation. I am talking about the committee proposal.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Pelletier?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—20

Baldrige	Huggins	Laputka	O'Donnell
Broderick	Johnson	Leach	Pelletier
Burkholder	Kauffman	Michael	Sahli
Cosetti	Keller, J.	Michener	Shettig
Dumbauld	Kelly	Morton	Sprogell

NAYS—106

Aberman	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Ruth
Aurentz	Fay	Leinbach	Scales
Baldus	Feather	Leonard	Scarlett
Baldwin	Filson	Levin	Scranton
Banes	Fineman	Manderino	Sebastian
Barron	Forster	Mangery	Shapiro
Burry	Fortney	Markley	Sharp
Benedict	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shively
Benfield	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Bloom	Gerber	Meyer	Shrager
Braham	Goldman	Miller, D.	Silverman
Brennan	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Stout
Brown	Gouger	Moorhead	Strickler
Buck	Griffith	Nelson	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Orban	Tate
Caputo	Harding	Orbin	Tomascik
Casey	Hatter	Otto	Tully
Clinger	Henderson	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Conley	Heyburn	Popil	Warman
Cortese	Himes	Pott	Welsh
Croop	Hocker	Powell	Westerberg
Cunningham	Hook	Rappaport	Whittum
Curran	Hosteller	Rea	Wilcox
Dailey	Irvis	Redick	Wilmarth
Desmond	Jirolanio	Reynolds	Woodring
Devlin	Kline	Richter	Woodside
Erwin	Krill

NOT VOTING—37

Allison	Donaldson	Lane	Quiles
Amsterdam	Donolow	Lee, K.	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fagan	McGeary	Rovner
Bashoff	Fleming	More	Scott
Butera	Fohl	Murray	Solomon
Cain	Gray	Musselman	Stroup
Camardella	Horne	Pechan	Thomson
Caron	Keller, M.	Percey	Thornburgh
Clark	King	Prendergast	Van Sant
Corey

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Butera.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Mr. President, I would like to be recorded as voting "aye" on that last amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will have that placed on the record.

MORTON AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is offered by Delegate Morton and I will ask the pages to distribute it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE MORTON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 20, by striking out "initiating" and inserting: recommending

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, this is my third and last amendment on the progression of figures where I picked up three votes the last time; it would take me 17 amendments before I would have one adopted.

Before I am struck down by the committee saying we are opposed to this, I would like to bring out that the vote on inserting "initiative and referendum" was 19 to 17 at the committee meeting when this amendment was added. Now under section 8, sub-para (b), we have by initiative and referendum a municipality can merge, consolidate or change boundaries. Under the definition of "initiative," it only takes 10 percent of the voters in a municipality who voted for Governor the last time to put a matter on the ballot. I say, if we have a government agency and there is not 10 percent of the people in either of the communities who are interested in putting it on the ballot, there is no need for the government agency to initiate it. We have the mechanism where, if the government agency makes studies and recommends and 10 percent in each of the communities involved are interested, let them put it on the ballot and not have a government agency coming in to a municipality and putting something on the ballot for the people to be voting on there.

The only import of the whole thing is to say that the government agency can recommend initiative and referendum and the people themselves take it from there, and if 10 percent want to put it on the ballot, it can be put on. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. The committee would oppose this amendment that is being recommended. We amended it to be "initiating"; so it is to change "initiating" to "recommending" in a local referendum.

First, as I mentioned, this provision places teeth which we think will very seldom have to be used, or very seldom be used, but nonetheless it is there so that the work the state agency would do would have to be placed on the ballot if they so desired. We feel that it is very seldom that the state agency would do this except in an extreme case. Now if you change it to "recommend," there is more of a danger that the state agency would get into a public debating contest with local officials.

If you recommend, recommend to whom? Our danger is that these reports will end up in the desks of elected governing officials. If you are recommending, you can still send them back and they will end up in the desks of elected officials. If you want to recommend to the people so they can use initiative and referendum—Delegate Morton is correct; they could—you would have to either publish in a newspaper what the state agency recommended or have a publicity campaign to let them know. We think this would be worse and get the state agency into open competition with the local governing body, when the clear-cut way to decide it is to place it on the ballot and then when the provision is on the ballot, when the election is coming up, then the competing interests can then make their views known. Again we say it allows the people to decide, so we would oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard on this amendment? Do you wish to make another statement, Delegate Morton? We will put it to a vote. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—48

Baldrige	Fleming	Laputka	Pott
Baldwin	Fohl	Leach	Powell
Brennan	Forster	Lee, L.	Reynolds
Butera	Goldman	Leinbach	Ruth
Clinger	Goldstein	Meyer	Sahli
Cortese	Griffith	Miller, R.	Scales
Cosetti	Harding	Moorhead	Sharp
Curran	Heyburn	Morton	Waldron
Dailey	Himes	O'Donnell	Warman
Desmond	Huggins	Orban	Whittum
Devlin	Irvis	Orbin	Wilcox
Dumbauld	Jirolanio	Otto	Wilmarth

NAYS—73

Aberman	Croop	Johnson	Scarlett
Aurentz	Erwin	Kauffman	Scranton
Baldus	Fawcett	Keller, J.	Sebastian
Barry	Fay	Kline	Shapiro
Bashoff	Feather	Krill	Shively
Benedict	Filson	Leonard	Shoemaker
Benfield	Fineman	Levin	Shrager
Bloom	Fortney	Manderino	Silverman
Braham	Gabreski	Mangery	Sprogell
Broderick	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Stout
Brown	Gerber	McGeary	Strickler
Buck	Gouger	McGlynn	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Michael	Tate
Burkholder	Hatter	Michener	Tomasetik
Caputo	Henderson	Miller, D.	Tully
Casey	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Clark	Hook	Popil	Westerberg
Conley	Hostetler	Richter	Woodring
Corey

NOT VOTING—42

Allison	Fagan	Musselman	Roberts
Amsterdam	Gray	Nelson	Rovner
Bagenstose	Horna	Pechan	Scott
Banes	Keller, M.	Pelletier	Shettig
Barron	Kelly	Percey	Solomon
Cain	King	Prendergast	Stroup
Camardella	Lane	Quiles	Thomson
Caron	Lee, K.	Rappaport	Thornburgh
Cunningham	Markley	Rea	Van Sant
Donaldson	More	Redick	Woodside
Donolow	Murray

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I understand that completes the amendments on Section 2.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is a very happy understanding. That completes the amendments on Section 2, and we are now ready to go to unit 3, which includes Sections 9, 10, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

UNIT No. 3, PROPOSAL No. 6

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, unit 3 pertains mostly to local debt and appropriation and we would like to call, if you would please recognize, the Co-Chairmen of the subcommittee to come forward—Delegate Scales and Delegate Moorhead—and I understand Delegate Scales will present an explanation of Sections 9, 10 and 12.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President and members of the Convention, the first section for consideration under this third portion of the local government package is Section 9, beginning at the bottom of page 3 of the local government proposal.

This section is entitled "Appropriation for Public Purposes." You will notice that the first sentence of this section is identical with the present Constitution. The second sentence is an added section, added to the terms of the present Constitution, and is designed to complement subsection (d) in the state taxation and finance article which we approved by our vote earlier this week.

The purpose of this section is to permit the General Assembly to set standards by which local governmental units, including all forms of local government, may make grants, aids, loans, and also give subsidies to various types of public service, economic, commercial and industrial organizations where the public welfare is involved. The last sentence of Section 9 is intended to preserve the right which local government already has in this area, particularly those delegates from Philadelphia who have been concerned to preserve their present rights to contribute to such things as the Port Authority, the Sesquicentennial Celebration in Philadelphia, Robin Hood Dell, and other similar public service activities.

Section 10 is the main section under our local finance provisions concerning local government debt. The first matter to observe in Section 10 is that the General Assembly is given the right to set local debt limits. At the present time in our Constiution, the local debt is established at five per cent of assessed valuation in cases where no referendum is asked for and at 15 per cent where a referendum is held to approve the borrowing. Under our provision, the present system is abolished and the legislature is given the right to set these local debt limits. In this sense, the article is very similar, we feel, to the state taxation and finance article which we considered earlier this week.

You will notice that in permitting the legislature to set the local debt limits, we mandate that in so doing the legislature must tie in the debt limitation to revenue. We are attempting to abolish assessed valuation as a standard for borrowing power. Like the State Taxation and Finance Committee, we feel that when money is borrowed it must be paid back, and when it is paid back it is paid back out of revenues and not out of assessed valuation. We feel that this part of our article is a very progressive step and complements the work of the State Taxation Committee.

In addition, you will notice that we exclude certain matters from the debt limit that will be set by the legislature. We exclude any debt which is self-sustaining or self-liquidating, any projects which are self-liquidating or self-sustaining, and also any projects which are partially self-liquidating to the extent that they are self-liquidating. In addition, we exclude any projects which have heretofore been declared to be self-liquidating or self-sustaining, such as the school-building debt, the school-building programs which we are already engaged in. On line 12 you will notice that any referendum debt, any debt approved by the electorate, is also excluded from the debt limit, which corresponds with the amendment we approved earlier this week in considering the State Taxation article.

Beginning on line 15 of Section 10, we are recommending a new paragraph which replaces the paragraph in the present Constitution which calls for an annual tax to be imposed when indebtedness is incurred. We feel that the annual tax provisions of the present Constitution are virtually meaningless, and instead we require a covenant which shall be binding upon the local municipality to be executed. We feel that this covenant will be similar to the trust indentures that now exist with respect to authority financing, and we feel that the covenant will be an aid in establishing the credit of the bond market. In addition, we have deleted from the paragraph, starting on line 15, a provision that exists in the present Constitution which would require all local financing issues to be retired within a 30-year period.

If I may skip Section 11, which deals with local apportionment, I would like to comment briefly on Section 12. Section 12 is on Philadelphia debt, and Section 10 covers all debt in the Commonwealth, including the school district in Philadelphia. Section 12 deals only with the debt of the city of Philadelphia.

Our committee had been asked specifically by the delegate from Philadelphia to preserve the present constitutional debt limits that apply to the city of Philadelphia. Those debt limits presently are lower than the debt limits that apply for the rest of the Commonwealth. As you will notice, those limits are 13.5 per cent where there is a referendum and three per cent without a referendum. There are certain members of our committee who feel that Philadelphia, perhaps, is being somewhat shortsighted in insisting upon its present debt limits, but we would point out that those limits are more restrictive, more restrictive in the city of Philadelphia than the limits we are recommending for the rest of the Commonwealth.

Section 12 is intended to be an exact duplication of the present debt limits for the city of Philadelphia, and as heretofore, no debt shall be incurred by the county of Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, would the Chair recognize the Co-chairman of the Subcommittee on Local Apportionment, Delegate Hook, to explain Section 11?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I think the best way to explain this section is to take it out and read it. It is a very short section. I believe we have debated a portion of it for two and one-half days here on the floor. I only call to your attention here that the purpose of this section is to place in our Constitution the provision providing for local apportionment.

This provision here would not include areas that elect at-large or areas such as the city of Philadelphia which operate under a home-rule charter, whereby they elect at-large and also by wards.

The proposal has to do only with areas that are elected in wards or by districts. This proposal would not pertain to second class townships since they elect at-large. This proposal pertains to boroughs, also certain first class townships and third class cities. That is all I have on it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, Section 13, which is reserved for Section 8 of Article XIV; pertains to the city and county of Philadelphia which will remain as is and there are no changes in that particular article.

Section 14 contains definitions used in this article so that we would not have to repeat throughout the article, municipality, initiative and refcrendum.

Section 3 on page 7 is an adoption schedule.

We are now ready for questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Scales a question regarding Section 10 entitled, "Local Government Debt."

Delegate Scales, I note that the provision here provides that the General Assembly shall prescribe the debt limits, and it is based on the amount of total revenues coming in to each municipality. You do not prescribe a formula here. My question is: In scheduling, have you given any thought as to what the debt limit shall be in accordance with what it is presently and how is it going to affect local authorities?

DELEGATE SCALES. In answer to the first part of your question, Delegate Popil, we have not specifically considered what debt limits the legislature should set. Our purpose specifically was to permit broad latitude on the part of the legislature in setting that limit, and, in fact, our intent is to permit the legislature to, perhaps if it wishes, set different limits for different classes of municipalities, particularly in view of the fact that the first part of the local government article deals extensively with home rule, residual powers and home-rule charters. We feel unqualified to make a judgment now as to what forms of government may need rather extensive borrowing power and which forms may not 25 or 30 years from now. So we purposely stayed away from that kind of designation.

As far as the authorities are concerned, our intention is to not eliminate authority financing but rather to approach the problem from the opposite direction, to provide for an expanded choice on the part of local governmental units. We on the committee feel that authorities are very desirable in many instances. We feel that local government should have the opportunity to make that choice and to choose for themselves in which case they should use authority financing and in which cases they should proceed by either nondebt revenue bonds or by general obligation bonds.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilmarth.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Scales a question concerning lines 7, 8 and 9 in Section 10. I do not know whether or not Delegate Scales would like to answer this. This, perhaps, is a bit academic, Delegate Scales, because the General Assembly will by law prescribe, but did you consider in your committee what would happen to school districts if they borrow the debt limit on total revenue? I ask you this because in total revenue do you count revenue or do you intend to have revenue only at the local effort or including that from state reimbursement? This is going to make a tremendous difference as to how the General Assembly, perhaps, may act on this.

DELEGATE SCALES. When we first began to consider this specific problem in one of our early drafts, we used the term "tax revenue." We became very concerned about using "tax revenue" because of the fact that local government's problem is significantly different from the problem on the state level. We were concerned about money coming from Project 70, for example; we were concerned about revenue coming from parking meters. Our ultimate decision was to permit the legislature to define the term "revenue" as we have done in these three lines so as to solve the problem which I think you are concerned about.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. My only question is this: I wonder if the General Assembly can solve such a problem because if it interprets revenue as from reimbursement, revenue to the various school districts varies so tremendously I cannot imagine a formula that would fit all of them, and this is why I am concerned about using revenue as a base.

DELEGATE SCALES. I would think, therefore, that the legislature with that broad variation would choose not to include such an item in revenue and instead gauge their percentage accordingly so that the percentage would be a different percentage than they would use if they included something else in the revenue concept.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. While I am on schools, I also have a question on local apportionment, lines 23 and 24. Do you care to answer this or one of the other members?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Wilmarth, I understand that Delegate Hook will answer your question.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Delegate Hook, you say on line 23—and this I assume has to do with school districts—"to the extent it shall not be elected at large."

DELEGATE HOOK. Delegate Wilmarth, I will answer that question immediately for you. This proposal does not include school districts.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. All right, because this would be almost impossible.

DELEGATE HOOK. I forgot to include that in my statement. This does not include school districts.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Is this by implication or have I missed this being spelled out, that it does not include school districts, because we have mentioned school districts repeatedly?

DELEGATE HOOK. If you turn over to page 6 under the definitions at the top of the page, it says, "'Municipality' means a county, city, borough, incorporated town or township." It does not include school districts, and where it was stated before it specifically mentions school districts under the local debt structure.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. As long as this is clarified; otherwise, it would be completely unworkable.

DELEGATE HOOK. We are in agreement with you on that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, may I interrogate Delegate Hook for a moment, please?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman has indicated his willingness. You may proceed.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Chairman Hook, Section 11, local apportionment, is a new concept in our form of local government, is it not?

DELEGATE HOOK. It is.

DELEGATE MICHENER. From what principle does this stem? Is there a supposition that the Supreme Court is going to extend Baker v. Carr into the local level? Have there been any decisions of our courts in Pennsylvania on this?

DELEGATE HOOK. I believe Delegate Wilmarth was concerned with school districts and I believe that the school districts have gotten into this problem of apportionment, Delegate Michener, and for the future this could be a problem here in local government also.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Are you satisfied then, Chairman Hook, that a borough, for example, which has three wards grossly out of line one with the other should be required to bring them within some kind of reasonable harmony if they are going to elect the officials from those wards?

DELEGATE HOOK. I do.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Good.

DELEGATE HOOK. I would like to comment also, Delegate Michener, on that statement that probably the biggest reason for this proposal is because of the fact that we are going to adopt home-rule charters, we hope, in the State of Pennsylvania. We want this in our Constitution to serve as a guideline if they go into home-rule charters.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Good.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Otto.

DELEGATE OTTO. Mr. President, with respect to local apportionment, where are the teeth that will require this local apportionment after one year?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I do not believe we heard the question.

DELEGATE OTTO. I am concerned about how are you going to be sure that the local communities will impose this apportionment within the one year after certification period?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. The problem was discussed in the subcommittee and in the committee and some debate took place as to whether or not specific teeth should be put into the Constitution specifying in the alternative, for instance, that if a local apportionment constitutionally is not abided with, they would automatically, for instance, be elected at-large. There are other alternatives—turning it over to commissions and so forth.

The general feeling of the subcommittee and the standing committee was rather than do that, we should allow the present statutory remedies which currently exist to compel such things to remain in effect, and also if the legislature desired to supplement this, it is certainly implied and not prohibited herein. In other words, any degree of party could go to court, writ of mandamus, et cetera. That is the remedy.

DELEGATE OTTO. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shrager, do you have a question?

DELEGATE SHRAGER. Yes, of Delegate Scales.

Section 9 on lines 1 through 3, on page 4, at the top of the page.

DELEGATE SCALES. Yes.

DELEGATE SHRAGER. The present grants to private schools by the city of Philadelphia and in turn where the school then offers a scholarship to a resident of Philadelphia, would that remain intact under this section?

DELEGATE SCALES. Yes, it is our intention that that would remain intact. The reason for choosing the language in lines 1, 2 and 3 to correspond to the language in the first sentence of Section 9 is to maintain intact and do exactly what you would like to do with respect to those grants now approved in the city of Philadelphia.

DELEGATE SHRAGER. Is that taken care of by the word "individual" in line 3? Am I correct where it says "institution or individual, is preserved"?

DELEGATE SCALES. Yes, that is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think we have had our question-and-answer period. We are ready for the amendments. I think, perhaps, the fellow delegates would like to know that at the present time we have to this section a total of three amendments. When we have completed those three amendments, we still have some amendments in connection with Proposal No. 4 and at least one amendment in connection with Proposal No. 5. Right now it would look as though we just have a total with these three, one to Proposal No. 5, making four, and about three amendments on Proposal No. 4 would make a total of seven amendments. I think when we take care of those, we should be able to terminate our activities for the day and take care of the judiciary article the first thing tomorrow morning. With steady application as we have been doing on the local government, I think we will be able to complete that judiciary article sometime on Friday.

The first amendment is an amendment offered by Delegate Whittum. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment and we will distribute the amendment.

WHITTUM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE WHITTUM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 10, by inserting after "shall": include those obligations of the units of local government which are to be repaid from lease rentals or other charges payable directly or indirectly from revenues of such unit, but shall

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Thank you, Mr. President.

First of all, I would like to compliment the Local Government Committee and in particular the Subcommittee on Local Government Debt for doing what I think to be an outstanding job. I think it is coincidental and laudable that the philosophy and the content of this Section 10 fits in very well with that in Proposal No. 3 which we have passed through second reading several days ago.

However, I think that there is one exclusion in this section which almost defeats its purpose, and that is that they do not attempt to bring within the limitation imposed on debt by the General Assembly, the debt created by authorities. Authorities were created originally for the sole and only purpose of evading the debt limit. This is why we have them today. This is why on the state level we attempted to include them in the limitations and we feel that Section 10, by excluding them, really makes the section an innocuous and almost meaningless section since, if a municipality can continue to borrow without limit through the authority device, there really is little purpose in having a debt limit at all.

The purpose of this amendment is to include within the debt limit as defined by the General Assembly those obligations which are repaid directly or indirectly from revenues of the municipalities. The Local Government Committee's report to the Convention which accompanied their proposal did an outstanding job of outlining the concepts behind this, and, as we told you on the subject of state debt, the ability to repay is really the key point in establishing a limit. The ability to repay today, as the Local Government Committee has told us, is in direct relation to the amount of revenues of the local government, but when you exclude authority debt, which is repaid by taxes, you have defeated your objectives. For this reason Delegate Amsterdam and myself have introduced this amendment which we think will really complement and make the section here a complete section. We think that as it is, it is inconsistent and it is not in concert with the philosophy adopted in Proposal No. 3. We recognize the merits of authorities. We have no intent to abolish them or to restrict them. All we say is that if the authority debt is to be repaid by tax revenues of the issuing body, those obligations should come within the limit.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does the committee wish to be heard?

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, the committee very strongly opposes this amendment. Our committee considered specifically whether or not authorities could be abolished. We also considered specifically whether or not authority financing should be brought within the debt limits. It seems to me that the spirit of our current proposal, far from being in conflict with the state taxation proposal, is very complementary to that proposal.

As I recall, what we approved in approving the state finance package, in that state financial package the school debt, the money paid to schools, was excluded from the debt limits. It seems to me that the purport of this amendment would be to bring all school financing within the debt limit which is exactly what we do not wish to do. Authorities, I might say, were created not only for the reason of getting around the very restrictive debt limits that have plagued us in earlier years.

There are a number of reasons why authority financing is desirable, and the purpose of our committee proposal, as I stated earlier, is not to abolish one form or another of financing, but rather to give the local communities a real choice between these alternative methods of financing. It seems to us that authority financing very often brings into government people whose abilities and contributions would otherwise be unavailable. It seems to us also that the members of authorities very often are not subjected to the same political considerations to which our elected officials are subjugated. We feel also that through authority financing a negotiated sale which often can result in a lower interest rate may be employed without, as in a general obligation financing arrangement, having to use sealed bidding which very often results in a somewhat higher interest rate. We feel that authority financing in Pennsylvania has an excellent history and we would hesitate and be very suspicious of any attempt to upset the present bond market as it relies upon authority financing.

It seems to us that in the final analysis, the real check upon exorbitant debt is not so much in the debt limit itself but rather in the bond market, and we have seen through the course of 20 years of authority financing that hardly ever, if ever, had we had failures in the authority school financing field.

I would say finally, Mr. President, that the amendment as proposed seems to be contradictory in that if the amendment were inserted as suggested by the amendment, it would still, at the same time, leave intact the language in Section 10 on line 10 of page 4, which, on the one hand, while including within the debt limit of school financing, would at the same time in the following few words exclude the school financing from the debt limit.

I think the amendment is contradictory and, perhaps, somewhat meaningless in the context of the rest of the section. We find also, of course, that in the school financing field, we have the local government working hand in hand with the state government and often up as high as 80 per cent of the funds are supplied by the state government. We feel it would be a mistake to hamper the choice of local government in this area.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President, I also rise in opposition to this amendment and I take issue with Delegate Whittum pertaining to the distinctions and differences and inconsistencies which he claims between this section and Article III on the state debt which was adopted a few days ago.

First of all, it has been pointed out the state section does exclude, for example, school rentals and school leases, based on the fact that through local effort there is a contribution from local tax revenues in this area. It would seem fit under the provisions of that article to exclude that portion of the General State Authority school authority debt to the extent that it was being repaid through the local taxing unit.

I would also want to point out that in Section 10 there is an alternative to the use of authorities. Since much criticism has been made of local municipalities exceeding the debt limits by use of this authority device, it specifically provides in Section 10, line 12, that the local municipality may by referendum vote approve a project which would be self-sustaining from its revenues so that the moneys used for constructing any local project through a referendum, that portion of the debt would not be applicable also under the debt limit provisions.

Therefore, I ask you to vote against this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Clark.

DELEGATE CLARK. Mr. President, I rise to urge a vote in favor of this amendment. I can agree with much of what Delegate Scales has said about the integrity of authority financing and bond market providing a check and balance for this type of financing.

However, this question was considered in great depths by the Taxation and State Finance Committee. The basic consideration in our judgment was fiscal integrity and that debt created in one way or another would be included in the total debt of the governing body.

It seems to me that if we do not plug this loophole, we still need an opportunity for local government to create debt through the authority device without any control upon it.

Therefore, I urge a vote in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum. Do you wish to make a closing statement before we put the question?

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Yes, Mr. President.

I would like to respond to the delegates who have opposed this amendment. Delegate Scales related the merits and the benefits of authority financing which he has very ably outlined in the Local Government Committee's report.

I concur entirely with the benefits of authorities. In no way are we attempting to abolish or restrict or restrain their use. All we are saying is, if you have a debt limit, it is meaningless unless you include within that debt limit the borrowing that is repaid by tax revenues. If you do not include them, you might as well not have a limit, because the municipalities are going to go through the authority device as soon as they approach the limit established by the legislature. The argument that the limit would be too low is fallacious because the General Assembly is granted the authority to establish these limits, and will. This limit will be a meaningful limit in relationship to the ability of the municipalities to repay the debt.

As to the argument of school authorities, in the proposal on state debt, we specifically excluded the public school building authority from the state debt limit because that debt is repaid by the local government. This is just what we are trying to apply in this amendment here. If the debt is to be repaid by the revenues of the municipality, that debt must come within the limit. On the state level, while the debt is incurred by the state public school building authority, it is repaid by the local government. All the legislature has to do is establish a meaningful ceiling for school districts, for municipalities, for counties, and there will be no problem in including these within it. Unless it does the entire section becomes a meaningless device.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, I wanted to rise and speak in favor of this amendment, but I did want to make an amendment to the amendment which has not yet come out. Do I wait or can I say what it is?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may say what it is. We understand it is on its way and we will have it distributed.

DELEGATE LEONARD. The concept that was discussed here by Delegate Whittum is wholeheartedly supported by myself, but what I think ought to be excluded from the authorities are those authorities which are joint governmental authorities with the local government unit itself and one or more other local government units.

I would like to make an amendment to this that would exclude from these authorities obligations which would go under the total debt, that debt which has been incurred by the local government and one or more other local governments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While we are having it prepared, do you have the language that you could show the delegates?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I believe it would be payable directly or indirectly from revenues of such units excluding authorities—I do not have it—by the local governmental unit and one or more others. If I can get it back in half a minute—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will be at ease until we get the amendment. In the meantime, we will recognize the chairman of the committee, Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, if you want to pass over that, there is another amendment here which the committee will accept for a change of wording which we think helps clarify the language and we can, perhaps—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would Delegate Whittum yield until we take this other amendment? Your amendment is on the floor.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. I do not know the nature of the other amendment, Mr. President.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. It is one word, Mr. President. It does not affect local finance or local debt.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I ask you, does it pertain at all to the subject?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. No, it does not, but since we are in agreement to accept the language I thought while we were waiting for the printing to be done—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you have any objection?

DELEGATE WHITTUM. I have no objection, Mr. President.

AMENDMENTS TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will just temporarily table Delegate Whittum's amendment and Delegate Leonard's amendment and take up the amendment of Delegate Baldwin.

BALDWIN AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have the Baldwin amendment now which has been distributed.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BALDWIN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 6, line 7, by striking out "any" and inserting: each

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, we feel that this language does clarify the intent better. Therefore, we would accept this amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Baldwin?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—127

Aberman	Devlin	Laputka	Reynolds
Aurentz	Erwin	Leach	Richter
Baldrige	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Sabli
Baldus	Fay	Leinbach	Scales
Baldwin	Feather	Leonard	Scarlett
Banes	Filson	Levin	Scranton
Barron	Fineman	Manderino	Sebastian
Barry	Fohl	Mangery	Shapiro
Bashoff	Forster	Markley	Sharp
Benedict	Fortney	Mattioni	Shettig
Benfield	Gabreski	McGeary	Shively
Bloom	Gehrlein	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Braham	Goldman	Meyer	Shrager
Brennan	Goldstein	Michael	Silverman
Broderick	Gouger	Michener	Solomon
Brown	Griffith	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Buck	Hannum	Miller, R.	Stout
Bunting	Harding	Moorhead	Strickler
Burkholder	Hatter	More	Swope
Butera	Henderson	Morton	Tate
Caputo	Heyburn	Murray	Tomascik
Casey	Himes	Nelsen	Tully
Clark	Hocker	O'Donnell	Waldron
Clinger	Hook	Orban	Warman
Conley	Hostetler	Orbin	Welsh
Corey	Jirolanio	Otto	Westerberg
Cortese	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Cosetti	Kauffman	Popil	Wilcox
Croop	Keller, J.	Pott	Wilmarth
Curran	Kelly	Powell	Woodring
Dailey	Kline	Rappaport	Woodside
Desmond	Krill	Redick

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—36

Allison	Dumbauld	King	Rea
Amsterdam	Fagan	Lane	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fleming	Lee, K.	Rovner
Cain	Gerber	Musselman	Ruth
Camardella	Gray	Pechan	Scott
Caron	Horne	Pelletier	Stroup
Cunningham	Huggins	Percey	Thomson
Donaldson	Irvis	Prendergast	Thornburgh
Donolow	Keller, M.	Quiles	Van Sant

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

BLOOM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is offered by Delegate Bloom.

The clerk will read the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BLOOM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 6, line 6 by striking out "ten" and inserting: five

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Mr. President, my amendment only makes it a little easier to open the door in order to take advantage of all the great opportunities which are offered by local government.

Delegate Pasquerilla, is there any objection to this amendment?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Delegate Bloom, I have to answer that in two ways. Our committee discussed whether we should have 10 per cent or five per cent and agreed on 10 per cent. If you are asking me personally my opinion, my personal opinion is that five is all right, but the committee voted for 10 per cent. I hope I have not confused you or anybody else.

DELEGATE BLOOM. There is one other reason I did it, because one of the other matters coming up has the same clause in it, an initiative referendum. It only requires five per cent and I believe we ought to have this door just as wide open as the other door.

I ask for the question; I do not think there is any question about it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Otto.

DELEGATE OTTO. Mr. President, I would like to ask the chairman of the committee a question.

With respect to the local apportionment section and the application of this percentage, presently what is required in an initiative ballot?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. On local apportionment?

DELEGATE OTTO. That is right.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I do not think it pertains to local apportionment at all. Maybe it does, just a minute.

It does not apply. There is no referendum under local apportionment. The purpose of this amendment is to reduce the 10 per cent under initiative to 5 per cent which, as Delegate Bloom says, makes it a little easier to get on the ballot. The 10 per cent was the committee's recommendation. I am not going to make a great point about it. I think the delegates can decide in their own minds what they want to do.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—73

Baldrige	Fineman	Leonard	Scarlett
Barron	Forster	Mangery	Shapiro
Barry	Fortney	Markley	Sharp
Bloom	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shettig
Braham	Gehrtein	McGeary	Shively
Brown	Gouger	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Buck	Hannum	Miller, R.	Shrager
Bunting	Henderson	Moorhead	Silverman
Burkholder	Himes	Murray	Solomon
Casey	Hocker	Orbin	Sprogell
Clark	Hook	Otto	Stout
Clinger	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Strickler
Conley	Irvis	Rea	Swope
Corey	Jirolanio	Redick	Tate
Croop	Johnson	Reynolds	Thornburgh
Dailey	Kelly	Richter	Tomascik
Fawcett	Krill	Sahli	Waidron
Feather	Leinbach	Scales	Welsh
Filson

NAYS—49

Aberman	Desmond	Keller, J.	Orban
Aurentz	Devlin	Kline	Popil
Baldwin	Erwin	Leach	Polt
Baldus	Fay	Lee, L.	Powell
Banes	Fleming	Levin	Rappaport
Bashoff	Fohl	Manderino	Sebastian
Benedict	Goldstein	Meyer	Tully
Benfield	Griffith	Michener	Warman
Broderick	Harding	Miller, D.	Westerberg
Butera	Hatter	More	Wilcox
Caputo	Heyburn	Morton	Wilmarth
Cortese	Kauffman	Nelson	Woodside
Curran

NOT VOTING—41

Allison	Dumbauld	Laputka	Roberts
Amsterdam	Fagan	Lee, K.	Rovner
Bagenstose	Gerber	Michael	Ruth
Brennan	Goldman	Musselman	Scranton
Cain	Gray	O'Donnell	Scott
Camardella	Horne	Pechan	Stroup
Caron	Huggins	Pelletier	Thomson
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Percey	Van Sant
Cunningham	King	Prendergast	Whittum
Donaldson	Lane	Quiles	Woodring
Donolow

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. We should congratulate Delegate Bloom. Mr. President, we are now left with the amendment to the amendment on local debt and I think that cleans up our unit 3. Is that correct?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We understand the amendment to the amendment has now been distributed. The clerk will read the amendment to the amendment.

LEONARD AMENDMENT TO AMENDMENTS TO PROPOSAL No. 6

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment, which was read by the Clerk:

Amend page 1 of the amendments, fourth line of amendments, by inserting after "unit,": excluding those for the joint benefit of the local government and other governmental units,

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, the purpose of this amendment to the amendment is merely to go along with the thinking of Delegate Whittum's amendment which would include all authority borrowings as a part of the total debt. This would exclude from that the authorities for the joint benefit of the local government and other governmental units, and, I think, bring it into compliance with our own debt section for the state debt, this section for the local debt. It seems to me that the local debt should be prescribed very similarly to the way the state debt is prescribed, and this would go to achieve that purpose.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone wish to be heard in connection with the amendment to the amendment offered by Delegate Leonard?

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, I only wish to say that the Committee on Local Government is opposed to both the amendment to the amendment and the amendment itself for the reason that we regard it as a very limiting feature. Also, we feel that the inclusion of these amendments then contradicts the other language in the section which has not been changed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

We are first voting on the amendment to the amendment offered by Delegate Leonard, and then we will vote on the Whittum amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—34

Baldus	Forster	Miller, R.	Sharp
Baldwin	Fortney	Nelson	Shively
Brennan	Keller, J.	Orban	Solomon
Burkholder	Krill	Otto	Whittum
Butera	Lee, L.	Pott	Wilcox
Clark	Leinbach	Powell	Wilmarth
Cosetti	Leonard	Rea	Woodring
Curran	Meyer	Shapiro	Woodside
Fohl	Michener

NAYS—95

Aberman	Fawcett	Kauffman	Reynolds
Aurentz	Fay	Kelly	Richter
Baldrige	Feather	Kline	Sahli
Banes	Filson	Laputka	Scales
Barron	Fineman	Leach	Scarlett
Barry	Gabreski	Levin	Scranton
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Manderino	Sebastian
Benedict	Gerber	Mangery	Shettig
Benfield	Goldman	Markley	Shoemaker
Bloom	Goldstein	Mattioni	Shrager
Braham	Griffith	McGeary	Silverman
Broderick	Hannum	McGlynn	Sprogell
Brown	Harding	Michael	Stout
Buck	Hatter	Miller, D.	Stricklar
Bunting	Henderson	Moorhead	Swope
Caputo	Heyburn	Mora	Tate
Casey	Himes	Morton	Thornburgh
Conley	Hocker	Murray	Tomascik
Corey	Hostetler	Orbin	Tully
Croop	Hook	O'Donnell	Waldron
Dalley	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Warman
Desmond	Irvis	Popil	Welsh
Devlin	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Westerberg
Erwin	Johnson	Redick

NOT VOTING—34

Allison	Donaldson	King	Quiles
Amsterdam	Donatow	Lane	Roberts
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Lee, K.	Rovner
Cain	Fagan	Musselman	Ruth
Camardella	Fleming	Pechan	Scott
Caron	Gouger	Pelletier	Stroup
Clinger	Gray	Percey	Thomson
Cortese	Horne	Prendergast	Van Sant
Cunningham	Keller, M.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

WHITTUM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 6

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on the Whittum amendment?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Whittum.

DELEGATE WHITTUM. Mr. President, to sum up in one or two sentences, the thrust of this amendment is in no way designed or intended and will not be restrictive or limiting in any way. It will not affect the amount of debt that can be outstanding. The legislature will still have the authority to establish the limit. All this does is include within debt that debt which the taxpayers have to repay and this is precisely the reason for a limitation. We are attempting to make the thing consistent. There is no restrictive intent or purpose behind this. Thank you, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Whittum?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—44

Baldrige	Heyburn	Orban	Solomon
Braham	Himes	Otto	Sprogell
Brennan	Hocker	Pott	Stout
Buck	Keller, J.	Powell	Swope
Burkholder	Krill	Rea	Warman
Clark	Lee, L.	Richter	Westerberg
Curran	Leinbach	Shapiro	Whittum
Fohl	Leonard	Sharp	Wilcox
Forster	Meyer	Shively	Wilmarth
Fortney	Morton	Shrager	Woodring
Gouger	Nelson	Silverman	Woodside

NAYS—85

Aberman	Desmond	Irvis	O'Donnell
Aurentz	Devlin	Jirolanio	Orbin
Bagenstose	Erwin	Johnson	Pasquerilla
Baldus	Fawcett	Kauffman	Popil
Baldwin	Fay	Kelly	Rappaport
Banes	Feather	Kline	Redick
Barron	Filson	Laputka	Reynolds
Barry	Fineman	Leach	Sahli
Bashoff	Gabreski	Levin	Scales

Benedict	Gehrlein	Manderino	Scarlett
Benfield	Gerber	Mangery	Scranton
Bloom	Goldman	Markley	Sebastian
Broderick	Goldstein	Mattioni	Shettig
Brown	Griffith	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Bunting	Hannum	Michael	Strickler
Butera	Harding	Michener	Tate
Caputo	Hatter	Miller, D.	Thornburgh
Casey	Henderson	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Conley	Hook	Moorhead	Tully
Corey	Hostetler	More	Waldron
Croop	Huggins	Murray	Welsh
Dalley

NOT VOTING—34

Allison	Donaldson	Lane	Quiles
Amsterdam	Donolow	Lee, K.	Roberts
Cain	Dumbauld	McGeary	Rovner
Camardella	Fagan	Musselman	Ruth
Caron	Fleming	Pechan	Scott
Clinger	Gray	Pelletier	Stroup
Cortese	Horne	Percey	Thomson
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Van Sant
Cunningham	King

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

JUDGE HOMER KREIDER WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised that in the back of the hall we have with us today Judge Homer Kreider, who is the President Judge of the Common Pleas Court in Dauphin County.

I would like him to stand up so we can give him our usual cordial greeting and welcome.

We are glad to have you with us.

That completes the amendments in connection with Proposal No. 6.

I think I express the gratitude of each and every delegate here when I say to the Local Government Committee and its chairmen, Delegates Pasquerilla and Manderino and all its co-chairmen and every member of that committee, I think they have done a magnificent job.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, may we thank the president, the staff and the delegates for their indulgence, their helping us out in this local government article and their cooperation. It was a real pleasure to have had the opportunity. We started at 4:30 yesterday, it is now 5:15 and we are most happy to relinquish this microphone.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We think you have done a good job. If the Judiciary Committee can do it in an equal amount of time, we will all be happy.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I want to congratulate the Committee on Local Government. I consider myself a pro. I have been up here since 1959 and I have never seen a steamroller move as smoothly and as relentlessly in my life before as this one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Manderino.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. I think the record should note that the only steamroller we came into head on and lost was the "Irvis Public Defender Steamroller."

COMMITTEE MEETING

JUDICIARY, Co-Chairmen Scranton and Amsterdam, full committee, Senate Majority Caucus Room, Thursday, February 15, 1968, at 8:30 a.m., e.s.t.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, when the judiciary proposal starts tomorrow morning, four things will be considered:

First of all, there will be a meeting of the full Judiciary Committee tomorrow morning at 8:30 a.m. in the Senate Majority Caucus Room.

Secondly, the schedule which Mr. Amsterdam, when he introduced the proposal, said would come along with it is now being distributed to every member, and tomorrow morning it will be printed with the proposal available for your use.

Third, I can get a piece of minutia out of the way. In the proposal there is one misprint. On page 8, line 11, Proposal No. 7, it should read, "Section 16 of Article VI," not "Section 6 of Article VI."

Fourth, the presentation by the Judiciary Committee tomorrow—if you have your Proposal No. 7 with you—will be as follows: The first presentation will be of Sections 1 through 9 and Sections 17 and 18, which include all the provisions having to do with the organization and the administration of the judicial system and the unified judicial system which the committee has advocated.

The second sectional group will be provisions 10 through 12, which are the most contentious of all, dealing with the selection of judges.

The next one will be Section 13, which deals with the tenure of judges; the next will be Section 14, which deals with the retirement of judges, and the next is Sections 15 and 16, which deal with the discipline and removal and incompatible activities of the judiciary. In other words, there will be five different sections. After discussion and interrogation of each, needless to say, they will each in turn be open to amendment, full amendments of any type, sort or description.

I hope you will take note of this to facilitate the effort tomorrow. In contrast, of course, not because of the nature of the substantive matter with which we are dealing at all or the fact that it is the least contentious, but because of the fact that this is the way things should be done in a convention. Unlike a steamroller, I assure you this will be democracy at work.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 15, entitled:

Amending the Constitution of Pennsylvania specifying audit control of public moneys and establishing and regulating a balanced State budget for the next fiscal year and financial plans for the succeeding five years.

LEONARD AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, line 28, by striking out "Appropriations" and inserting: Operating budget appropriations

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 3, line 30, by inserting after "available": in a fiscal year

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we are going to take up Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 15, which is on second consideration.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, the day before yesterday, I guess it was Monday, I introduced a rather comprehensive amendment to Proposal No. 4. As a result of the legal opinion that arose yesterday about 2:30, it was agreed that we would hold out the amendments on Section 27. These amendments which are now being offered are to Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 15, which is on the desk today.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard for a statement.

DELEGATE LEONARD. The purpose of this amendment is to clarify the language in this section so it will now read "operating budget appropriations made by the General Assembly shall not exceed the actual estimated revenues available in a fiscal year for said appropriations." This is saying what we have said before in other words, but because of certain deletions, we have to put this in. It is saying that the General Assembly shall adopt a balanced budget.

I recommend the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard? Apparently not.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Leonard?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—127

Aurentz	Fay	Laputka	Redick
Bagenstose	Feather	Leach	Reynolds
Baldrige	Filson	Lee, K.	Sahli
Baldwin	Fineman	Lee, L.	Scales
Banes	Fleming	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barron	Fohl	Leonard	Scranton
Barry	Forster	Levin	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fortney	Manderino	Shapiro
Benedict	Gubreski	Mangery	Sharp
Bloom	Gehrlein	Markley	Shettig
Braham	Gerber	Mattioni	Shively
Brennan	Goldman	McGeary	Shoemaker
Broderick	Goldstein	McGlynn	Shrager
Brown	Gouger	Meyer	Silverman
Buck	Griffith	Michener	Sprogell
Bunting	Hannum	Miller, D.	Stout
Burkholder	Hatter	Miller, R.	Strickler
Butera	Henderson	Moorhead	Swope
Caputo	Heyburn	More	Tate
Clark	Himes	Morton	Thornburgh
Clinger	Hocker	Murray	Tomascik
Conley	Hook	Nelson	Tully
Corey	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Waldron
Cortese	Huggins	Orban	Warman
Cosetti	Irvis	Orbin	Welsh
Croop	Jirolanio	Otto	Westerberg
Curran	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Dailey	Kauffman	Popil	Wilcox
Desmond	Keller, J.	Pott	Wilmarth
Devlin	Kelly	Powell	Woodring
Erwin	Kline	Rappaport	Woodside
Fawcett	Krill	Rea

NAYS—1

Cunningham

NOT VOTING—35

Aberman	Donaldson	Lane	Roberts
Allison	Donolow	Michael	Rovner
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Musselman	Ruth
Baldus	Fagan	Pechan	Scott
Benfield	Gray	Pelletier	Solomon
Cain	Harding	Percey	Stroup
Camardella	Horne	Prendergast	Thomson
Caron	Keller, M.	Quiles	Van Sant
Casey	King	Richter

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

LEONARD AMENDMENT No. 2 TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The clerk will read the second amendment which is also being offered by Delegate Leonard.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 28), page 4, line 7, by striking out "of funds" and inserting: available for operating expenditures

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 28), page 4, line 8, by striking out "assigned for appropriation" and inserting: appropriated

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, this was a very difficult section for the committee. We, unfortunately, had many, many different opinions from many different experts, but I think the proposed language that is now submitted in this amendment is properly saying what the committee intended to say. It will now read: "All surplus available for operating expenditures shall be appropriated by the General Assembly during the ensuing fiscal year."

I recommend the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I have a problem with understanding it. I have been looking at it for over a week, a part of that time at the request of this very committee.

Am I given to understand that if there is a surplus fund in any year, it could not be transferred over to another fund in that same year where there is a shortage, but it must, of necessity, be carried on to the following year?

I, perhaps, could state that better in terms of a hypothetical question, if I may.

Suppose the State were to appropriate, say, $10.5 million for certain building projects and $10.5 million for a second building project. It turns out that the first building only cost $10 million, but the second building costs $20 million. Under the present scheme under the present Constitution, they could use the other half million dollars and shift it over to the building for which there is a shortage. Under this proposal, the additional half million dollars would have to be carried over to the following year which would, presumably, then create a shortage for the building which was underestimated. Is that the intent of this committee?

DELEGATE LEONARD. This is for operating expenditures, Delegate O'Donnell; not for capital expenditures.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Well then, for operating expenditures, suppose the same figures were to operate in the Department of Revenue and it so happened that the Secretary was able to operate his department on one-half million dollars less, whereas the Department of Public Instruction, because of demands arising during the year, required one-half million dollars more, am I given to understand under your proposal that that half million may not be transferred from the Secretary of Revenue's account over to the Department of Public Instruction's but must, of necessity, be carried to the following or, as you call it, ensuing year?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I am not exactly sure. This would clearly require another appropriation. If one department has used up all of its funds, it would have to have a deficiency appropriation, and I do not think that the intent of this is to eliminate that. If there is any money left over at the end of the year from lapses that occur within the department or from revenues that were received in excess of that which was estimated, that would then become a surplus.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I think I understand what you intend to do, but my problem is a question as to whether or not you have not actually made the problem more difficult of solution rather than less. My point is: I am aware that unlapsed funds are subject only to appropriation and it was my impression that is what you intended to accomplish. But when you say in a Constitution that lapsed funds, therefore surplus funds, shall become available for appropriation only in the ensuing year. are you not unnecessarily tying yourself into a knot?

DELEGATE LEONARD. I do not believe so. The intent of the committee in this case was to say, if there were a surplus as of June 30, 1968, that this has to go in as revenue in effect for the year ending June 30, 1969.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Leonard, then I assume you had intended to say that if there are, at the end of the fiscal year, surplus funds, then it will be carried over, but you do not say that in your proposal. If you had meant to say in your proposal surplus funds that are there at the end of the fiscal year will be carried over to the ensuing year, I have no problem, but you speak of surplus funds, period.

DELEGATE LEONARD. No. We intend the surplus to be that which is—well, actually a surplus, as far as I am concerned, is not finalized until the end of the year for you are never able to determine what the surplus is until the close of the fiscal year. But I agree that the intent is that it is the surplus at the end of the year.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Leonard, I would beg to correct you, at least to this one extent. Almost every appropriations bill includes, or at least has an important section in it, that uncommitted and unencumbered funds shall lapse. Now uncommitted and unencumbered funds for any given number of projects can lapse in the middle of the year. If your intention was to make it apply only to surpluses at the end of the year, I wonder if it would be appropriate, Mr. President, to permit time for an amendment in that respect to be prepared to make that clear.

I, would, therefore, move that this specific amendment be laid on the table until that intent could be cleared up.

DELEGATE LEONARD. May I ask Delegate Wilcox if he would like to make a comment on that?

DELEGATE WILCOX. I think you have expressed the intent of the committee, that it is surplus at the end of the year, any surplus at the end of the fiscal year.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Members of the Convention, this amendment and this section is to correct a situation or change a situation. Heretofore, I believe, surpluses had to be placed into the sinking fund, and now instead of that, there being no sinking fund—the sinking fund has been abolished—any surpluses will be put into the next fiscal year's budget to dispose of it. Contrary to what Delegate O'Donnell said, I think there can be no surplus until the end of the fiscal year. At that time the surplus, if any, goes into the next year's budget rather than to go into the sinking fund as heretofore. I think this is a proper amendment and should be approved.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I do not speak against approving the amendment, sir. I have inquired of the office of the Auditor General and of the office of the State Treasurer on this precise point to help Chairman Leonard with this specific language, and they advised me that there are surpluses that come up due to lapses that occur during the middle of the year. Therefore, I think it most appropiate that if this committee intends to refer only to surpluses that exist at the end of the year as being carried over to the ensuing year, that it would be most appropriate to lay it on the table for that very minor language change.

DELEGATE LEONARD. We have no objection providing it is going to be done today.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, as a former assistant fiscal officer, and notwithstanding the statement made by Delegate O'Donnell that I might be perhaps in opposition to my recent dear boss, I would like to say that there are no lapses until the end of the year. Knowledge that lapses will likely happen is current before the end of the year, but there are no lapses until the end of the year.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I withdraw my motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I think the matter of semantics has arisen here again on the floor of the Convention. The CPAs are obviously using the word surplus in a very technical sense and I am quite sure in a very correct sense. The fact of the matter is, those of us who deal daily with state government do not use the term precisely in this manner and I am concerned about its definition before a court.

I point out to you that several years ago there developed in the state budget what was referred to commonly as a surplus. There was an increase of income over estimates. That is the way, I guess, the CPAs would refer to it. We, however, called it a surplus. The Governor referred to it as a surplus. You might call it an incipient surplus, I do not know. It amounted to approximately $25 million, and I think $18 million of it was given as a bonus to the various school districts of the Commonwealth at that time, during that fiscal year.

Now what concerns me is this: What happens in a similar situation if this amendment goes into the Constitution as it is drawn? Would we then be prohibited from using that $18 million within that fiscal year? Would we have to wait and tell the school districts, even though you need it, and we know we have it, we cannot, under our Constitution, give it to you this year; we must wait until the next fiscal year to give it to you. If that would be the interpretation of this language, then I think the amendment is faulty and perhaps needs to be redrawn.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I did not quite get one thing, Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Perhaps the question is not so hypothetical because it did happen. Suppose the Governor were to say that our income is running approximately $20 million above what we estimated. It appears that we are going to have a surplus of $20 million. We think we ought to divide this $20 million this fiscal year among the school districts. Would your amendment preclude this being done?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Well it seems to me that under the rules of appropriations that you could probably make an appropriation during that year of any funds you had. Is that not right?

DELEGATE IRVIS. Why do we not listen to the words of wisdom from the late Governor?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I want you to know that I think Delegate Irvis is a marvelous person. I do not have words of wisdom, but the event that he is referring to occurred while I was Governor. The interpretation that was given to us at that time—it was looked into at that time very thoroughly—was that you do not have a surplus until the end of the fiscal year. If you, therefore, appropriate moneys especially for a school district as we did at that time, you are not appropriating surplus. Therefore, his particular phraseology would still pertain and would not interfere with such a suggestion as was made at that time and was carried through and the kind of thing that you are talking about, Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. In that case, Mr. President, I would not have any objection to voting for the amendment. That was the one thing which concerned me, as to the definition of surplus. I was under the impression that it had been defined differently, but if we have the precedent that it is not defined in the maner in which I believed, then, of course, my objection would be groundless.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, then my reason for comment is that it was not defined at all. It would seem to me if you put the words "surplus at the end of the year" in there, it would define it to satisfy all and sundry. There would never be any problem thereafter.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, it would seem to me that if funds were lapsed during the course of the year, they would be properly entitled "surplus funds." As I read this proposed language, since they are properly described as surplus funds, these moneys that were lapsed could not be used in that year for appropriation purposes but would have to go over and form part of the beginning surplus of the new fiscal year.

DELEGATE LEONARD. If they were lapsed?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. If they were lapsed. That is what I am talking about. That happens very frequently during the course of the year. If funds should develop through lapses, then the legislature would be precluded from spending that money in the year in which the lapses take place because this language says that surplus must go over to the ensuing fiscal year.

I think that the suggestion made by Delegate O'Donnell is a very proper one since it was the intention of the committee to refer to surplus at the end of the year developing both from lapses and receipts of money above estimates, and I would have no objections to that. I think Delegate O'Donnell's amendment is a meritorious one.

DELEGATE LEONARD. We would certainly accept that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I believe that since the issue is so simple and so clear-cut that perhaps the rules might be waived to permit that amendment to be made from the floor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, the rules can be waived, but I say let us get the language straightened out first.

DELEGATE LEONARD. I would wait for the language from Delegate O'Donnell and would be willing to accept it. I just want to say that in the present Constitution it talks about surplus funds and that is where the committee picked up the words in Section 12 of Article VIII.

AMENDMENT TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have another amendment, have you not?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Could the Chair suggest that we prepare that amendment and lay this on the table? We will take up your next amendment while this is being redrafted.

DELEGATE LEONARD. That is all right, Mr. President.

LEONARD AMENDMENT No. 3 TO PROPOSAL No. 4

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, lines 1 and 2, by striking out the colon in line 1 and "(1) APPROVE" in line 2 and inserting: approve

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, line 2, by inserting after "year.": Funds created by debt shall not be expended unless an appropriation therefore is authorized by the General Assembly. Debt shall not include that portion of obligations which are to be repaid, when so determined by the Auditor General, (1) from charges made to the public for the use of the assets financed, or (2) from lease rentals or other charges payable by a school district or local taxing authority, or (3) by agencies or authorities created for the joint benefit of this Commonwealth and one or more other State governments.

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, lines 3 and 4, by striking out both of said lines

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, yesterday when the major amendment was being considered, there were some words in that amendment that legal counsel ruled to be outside the jurisdiction of this Convention. These words that are here which state: "Funds created by debt shall not be expended unless an appropriation therefore is authorized by the General Assembly" are the words that legal counsel has approved as being satisfactory for this section and, therefore, is a proper subject for debate.

This is a question of the philosophy of government. It is a question as to whether or not we believe in the Article III, I believe it is Section 24, where it says that all public moneys shall only be spent from appropriations. Article IV of the Constitution goes on to say that all appropriations are subject to a partial or a so-called item veto. The purpose of this amendment is to bring into the overall scheme of government that all expenditures, whether they be for operating or capital purposes, be by appropriation and, therefore, would be subject to item veto.

We want to point out to this body that in the debt proposal that is now in the Committee on Style and Drafting, we have brought within the definition of debt of the Commonwealth all debt of the General State Authority and the Highway and Bridge Authority. It is true, however, that in that proposal we did not eliminate or say that authorities could not exist; therefore, it is possible that the General Assembly can continue to use the authorities and pass an authorization bill which would authorize the authorities to incur debt. The debt incurred by the authorities would clearly be general obligation bonds because another section of that Proposal No. 3 puts the full faith and the credit behind the bonds whether they be issued by the State itself or by the authorities.

There is a substantial opening in this proposal that we wanted to bring before this body for your consideration and your decision. We have all heard the term "pork barreling" which is, as I understand it, the working out between various people in government for one to have a project in his home town if he will give a project to another person in the other person's home town. Having everything under an item veto may or may not eliminate pork barreling, but it would give the Governor the final say on every single project for which government money is going to be spent.

So we have the issue which is before you now. The purpose of this amendment is to bring this issue before you so that you clearly know what you are doing. We do not want to propose an article and then have someone come later and say you left this tremendous loophole in here. This amendment would mean that every nickel of capital expenditures would have to come by way of appropriation and, therefore, every appropriation for capital expenditure would give the last word to the Governor as to whether he would want that project or does not want that project.

With this, I will leave the decision up to you. We want it to be crystal clear just what is happening so you can decide whether you want the Governor to have the final veto on every capital project or whether you think that he only will have his say along with some other people through the development of the capital budget and the development through the General State Authority Board.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, there is undoubtedly merit in what Delegate Leonard seeks to do in this proposal, but I am compelled to point out to you some other things that will happen if we adopt the language here, "Funds created by debt shall not be expended unless an appropriation therefore is authorized by the General Assembly."

First of all, I feel at the moment there are adequate safeguards in the law that created the General State Authority and the method by which we pass a GSA bill. The Planning Commission reviews it and the Governor still has the final say, because he can always veto that legislation.

There is unquestionably some interplay in the legislature among members as to what projects will ultimately get into the overall GSA bill. But I see nothing necessarily wrong with that.

If you apply this language to the General State Authority, I submit to you that you must also apply it to the other borrowing in the Commonwealth, including the $500 million which we recently borrowed for the purpose of conservation. If you do that, you will have the biggest pork-barreling job you ever saw in your life in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

We ran into that last year when, in the enabling legislation for that half-billion dollar program, some members tried to subject the spending of that money to legislative appropriation, and the hue and cry was so strong from the people in Pennsylvania that we had to backtrack and change our methods.

I submit that you can, when you borrow the money—if you do it on the ballot or otherwise—lay down adequate safeguards as to who is to spend it and how it is to be spent without subjecting it on a year-to-year basis to legislative appropriation. I think there is adequate control in the hands of the Governor now in both instances. But believe me, if you want to have all the people who supported that $500 million bond issue down here on those steps tomorrow morning, you pass that language and you give to the General Assembly the right to determine what happens to that $500 million and you will have them here. You see, these things are two-edged swords. They cut both ways.

I understand what Delegate Leonard says we are about to do. I think he and all the other delegates can take assurance in the fact that the final action of the General Assembly on the General State Authority bill is still subject to the veto of the Governor, and I think there is enough interplay and enough responsibility on the part of the members to protect us in that safeguard.

I, therefore, oppose this amendment on that basis.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I rise to vigorously oppose this amendment.

During the course of the debate which took place yesterday over the question of certification of revenues, I endeavored to spell out at length the need to place this legislative body, the General Assembly, on an equal footing with the Executive Branch of government, to stand these men and women on their feet so that they can be the type of body that the original Constitution intended that they be.

There is no need to travel this road twice at length, except to point out once again that I said that what you were endeavoring to do yesterday by putting the certification in the hands of the Governor exclusively was to thwart the will of the people.

I say to you again today that to put this language into the Constitution would thwart the will of the people. There is no capital project undertaken by this Commonwealth unless it is approved by a majority of 253 Representatives and Senators. Is it not thwarting the will of the people to have a majority of 253 men and women vote to construct a certain project and then to have the Governor be in a position to line-veto that project? That is exactly what this language will do, allow the Governor to line-veto.

You spoke, Delegate Leonard, about pork-barreling. Have you given any thought to the pressure points that are placed in the hands of a Governor in trying to extract from a reluctant legislature that which the Governor, in his sole wisdom, thinks should be enacted and which the legislature has denied to the Governor by this kind of language? What happens is, you will be summoned to the front office. Again I say this is a tactic where the market is not exclusively cornered by either the Republicans or Democrats. Chief executives of both parties are guilty of this kind of thing, but you will be summoned to the front office. If I have sponsored a piece of legislation calling for the construction of a dental laboratory for Temple University and it is in this General State Authority proposition, the front office will say to me, Now Mr. Fineman, I do not think you have been cooperating on the tax program. Are you interested in your dental laboratory for Temple University? You better get in line, or else Temple University is going to lose their dental laboratory.

I am calling the shots squarely and candidly right now and I am putting it on the table. This is precisely what happens in the operation of government in here, so when you talk about pork-barreling, I want you to contemplate for just a moment what can happen if you take this tool and put it in the hands of a chief executive. You will make this legislative body nothing, eventually, but a rubber stamp.

It is understandable, I think, that I guard zealously, or attempt to guard zealously, what I consider to be the proper prerogatives of the legislative body since I am a legislator. But by protecting these rights I am also protecting the rights of the people because the people have sent duly-elected Representatives and Senators to this General Assembly and they sent these people here to voice their opinions and their thoughts for them. And if the majority of these 253 people decide, in their wisdom, that there should be a certain capital project, why should there be one man elected in the front office who can override the thinking of 253 men and women who comprise our General Assembly?

The fact is that this General Assembly does, through appropriations, really pass upon the merits of these things because when a project is built through the General State Authority, the project is then leased to the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth pays rentals and those rentals are in the General Appropriations Bill and the legislature is called upon to pass upon it. So we are, in effect, voting on the appropriation. I say to you that if you were to incorporate this language into the Constitution you would be doing nothing other than handcuffing and locking in the legislature so that it could not operate effectively and efficiently and responsively.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I would like to correct the learned legislator.

First, there are only 252 in the legislature. Outside of that, I concur with both of the last two speakers.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. Mr. President, I think you are the fellow who ruled there were only 252.

Mr. President, not being a legislator anymore and never anticipating coming back into this field, I must agree with Delegate Fineman.

First of all, if you ever want strong government, and I think we have good strong government in Pennsylvania, you must have the separation of the three forms of government: Administrative, Legislative, and Judicial. You must keep them each strong within themselves.

If this amendment passes, what you are doing is allowing one form of this government to override the will and thinking of another form in what I term an unnatural manner. I have to agree with Delegate Fineman—present company excepted, I do not think that Governor Scranton would ever do this because I do not think he is ever going to run for governor again, he said he would not and I believe him. You have a sword here that you are putting in the hands of the governor of this Commonwealth. If he is a smart governor, he will put this piece of legislation through first and then he will go after the thing that is going to be very hot, like taxes and so on, and then he is going to do exactly what Delegate Fineman said, and this has been done before. He will call the men in and will say if you do not do this then I will use the pencil on you. He is going to leave, but the men in the legislative body and the women in the legislative body who are closer to the voters of this Commonwealth than anyone else are going to have to go back home and make an excuse why they did not get that particular project that the people needed and that they worked so hard to get in its original form.

Mr. President, I think this is a real bad, terrible amendment as presented.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Butera.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Mr. President, I would concur with the prior speakers in opposing this amendment. I realize its intent and I, perhaps, could support it except for the fact that the executive presently does exercise a tremendous amount of control over the capital fund budget for the GSA or whatever, and, therefore, I think to give complete control would be improper.

Mr. President, without reiterating what others have said I would add this: The fear of pork barreling, which we all share, cannot be solved by this kind of an amendment in this Constitution; it can only be solved by the calibre of men and women who serve in the General Assembly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I do not know that I can add very much to what has been already stated at these microphones in opposition to this amendment, except this: There are those forces which move throughout history which tend to support the theory of kingship; there are those forces throughout history which tend to believe in the power of the people. They are constantly, continually and, perhaps, continuously in conflict. Those forces meet in conflict here on this floor of this Constitutional Convention today.

There are those men and women who seriously and sincerely believe that the opinion of one man—whether he be called king, president, chief executive or governor—is a sharper, more incisive, more dependable opinion than that of 253 or 252, whichever figure you want to settle on. I happen to be aligned and have always been aligned with those who believe—although we may decry sometimes the fact that people do not move rapidly enough and do not always agree with us when we know we are right and the people are wrong—eventually the people rule, the people survive. I am opposed to this amendment because the 253 who meet in the Senate and in the House of Representatives represent the voice of the people much more closely than does the one king or chief executive or president or governor who sits in the executive mansion. And in this particular proposal, we are taking from the people the right to control the future of the General State Authority, and we are giving a weapon to the executive to use, willy-nilly, to pursue his own private or public purposes.

I am not here to say that all governors will use this weapon. I say this quite honestly, I do not think William Scranton ever did, and I could name several others who never did and never would, but I am not at all certain that you can say that about all governors in the future. I do not want to give the chief executive of this Commonwealth a club to beat over the heads of the members of the legislature. If they make a decision as to how capital funds should be expended under the General State Authority, that should be the decision of the people. No governor, whether he be Republican or Democrat, ought to have the right to change that decision, therefore, I urge that you vote in the negative on this proposition.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Mr. President, I would just like to say, in summing up the debate, several of us felt that with this financial management proposal and with the debt proposal that is going through this Convention, that we wanted to point out just what was happening. We wanted to point out and allow this group to decide whether or not they wanted to allow the Governor an item veto on capital projects. It was for this purpose that this was submitted.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Leonard?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—29

Baldwin	Forster	More	Shively
Bloom	Goldman	Morton	Waldron
Braham	Goldstein	Pasquerilla	Warman
Brennan	Hannum	Pott	Whittum
Broderick	Leach	Powell	Wilcox
Cortese	Mangery	Rea	Woodring
Devlin	Meyer	Reynolds	Woodside
Erwin

NAYS—98

Aberman	Desmond	Kelly	Popil
Aurentz	Fawcett	Kline	Rappaport
Bagenstose	Fay	Krill	Richter
Baldrige	Feather	Laputka	Ruth
Baldus	Filson	Lee, K.	Sahli
Banes	Fineman	Lee, L.	Scales
Barron	Fleming	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barry	Fohl	Levin	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fortney	Manderino	Shapiro
Benedict	Gabreski	Markley	Shettig
Benfield	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Brown	Gerber	McGeary	Shrager
Buck	Gouger	McGlynn	Silverman
Bunting	Harding	Michael	Solomon
Burkholder	Henderson	Michener	Sprogell
Butera	Heyburn	Miller, D.	Stout
Camardella	Hocker	Miller, R.	Strickler
Caputo	Hook	Moorhead	Swope
Clinger	Hostetler	Murray	Tate
Conley	Huggins	Nelson	Thornburgh
Corey	Irvis	O'Donnell	Tully
Cosetti	Jirolanio	Orban	Welsh
Croop	Johnson	Orbin	Westerberg
Curran	Kauffman	Otto	Wilmarth
Dailey	Keller, J.

NOT VOTING—36

Allison	Dumbauld	Lane	Roberts
Amsterdam	Fagan	Leonard	Rovner
Cain	Gray	Musselman	Scott
Caron	Griffith	Pechan	Scranton
Casey	Hatter	Pelletier	Sharp
Clark	Himes	Percey	Stroup
Cunningham	Horne	Prendergast	Thomson
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Quiles	Tomascik
Donolow	King	Redick	Van Sant

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

LEONARD AMENDMENT No. 4 TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We understand that the Leonard amendment incorporating the suggestions of Delegate O'Donnell has now been prepared and is being distributed. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE LEONARD offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 28), page 4, lines 7 to 9 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Section 28. Surplus.—All surplus of operating funds at the end of the fiscal year shall be appropriated during the ensuing fiscal year by the General Assembly.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. This is the amendment that was prepared while we were discussing the other amendment. Do you have a statement to make on it, Delegate Leonard?

DELEGATE LEONARD. We are satisfied with the words in this amendment, Mr. President.

LEONARD AMENDMENT No. 2 WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The first amendment has been withdrawn and this is being substituted in its place. That is correct, is it not?

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question recurs,
Will the Convention agree to Amendment No. 4 offered by Delegate Leonard?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—126

Aurentz	Erwin	Laputka	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Fawcett	Leach	Richter
Baldrige	Fay	Lee, K.	Sabli
Baldwin	Feather	Lee, L.	Scales
Banes	Filson	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barron	Fineman	Leonard	Scranton
Barry	Fleming	Levin	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fohl	Manderino	Shapiro
Benedict	Forster	Mangery	Shettig
Benfield	Fortney	Markley	Shively
Bloom	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Braham	Gehrlein	McGeary	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	McGlynn	Silverman
Broderick	Goldman	Meyer	Solomon
Brown	Goldstein	Michael	Sprogell
Buck	Gouger	Michener	Stout
Bunting	Griffith	Miller, D.	Strickler
Burkholder	Hannum	Miller, R.	Swope
Butera	Harding	Moorhead	Tate
Camardella	Henderson	More	Tomascik
Caputo	Heyburn	Morton	Tully
Clark	Himes	Murray	Van Sant
Clinger	Hocker	Nelson	Waldron
Conley	Hook	O'Donnell	Warman
Corey	Irvis	Orban	Welsh
Cortese	Jfrolanio	Otto	Westerberg
Cosetti	Johnson	Popil	Whittum
Croop	Kauffman	Pott	Wilcox
Curran	Keller, J.	Powell	Wilmarth
Dailey	Kelly	Rappaport	Woodring
Desmond	Kline	Rea	Woodside
Devlin	Krill

NAYS—1

Orbin

NOT VOTING—36

Aberman	Donolow	King	Redick
Allison	Dumbauld	Lane	Roberts
Amsterdam	Fagan	Musselman	Rovner
Baldus	Gray	Pasquerilla	Ruth
Cain	Hatter	Pechan	Scott
Caron	Horne	Pelletier	Sharp
Casey	Hostetler	Percey	Stroup
Cunningham	Huggins	Prendergast	Thomson
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Quiles	Thornburgh

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

KLINE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand we have an amendment being offered by Delegate Kline. That amendment is being prepared. The clerk has a copy and I am going to ask him to read the amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE KLINE offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, lines 1 and 2, by striking out the colon in line 1 and "(1) APPROVE" in line 2 and inserting: approve
Amend Sec. 2 (Sec. 27), page 4, lines 3 and 4, by striking out both of said lines

On the question,
Will the House agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While the copies are being prepared, you do not mind making your statement and we will have them distributed before we vote.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, part of the earlier amendment that was defeated that Delegate Leonard had put in had the effect of removing on page 4, lines 3 and 4, which read "annually approve a financial plan for no less than each of the succeeding five fiscal years." It is my understanding that it had been the intention of Chairman Leonard that that be taken out. It occurred to me when we were busy defeating his other amendment that by defeating it we still have these two lines. I had the bureau draft an amendment that only takes out those two lines. That is the net effect of the amendment.

I would yield to Chairman Leonard. I think he agrees that it should be done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. This, I thought, was in the amendment yesterday. We went through to take these two lines out and it came through today, so something went wrong. We clearly approve of deleting these two lines.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words you agree to the amendment.

DELEGATE LEONARD. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think we will have this amendment distributed. As soon as it is distributed, if you have not had a chance to look at it we will—I might make another happy announcement. This is the last amendment. I always say that with my fingers crossed.

It is the last amendment to Proposal No. 4, Printer's No. 15. Next we will take up Proposal No. 5. I understand we have one amendment on that and we will then be finished for the day.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. A number of people around me would like an explanation of why they are removing this five-year limit.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. I hope Delegate Leonard has some ideas, too. I really think this is clearly an administrative function and the Governor has the power, if he so desires, as does the General Assembly, to lay plans ahead. It would seem to me that in a few years the Governor may want a six-year plan or a seven-year plan or a ten-year plan. To restrict it in the Constitution to a five-year plan, although the idea may be good, I think is unwise. That would be my feeling on removing it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leonard.

DELEGATE LEONARD. As you can gather, Mr. President, and the delegates can gather, we have had some real difficulty with this Proposal No. 4.

One of the major, if not the major problem, that we have had is that when the committee would talk to each expert, we would get different answers. We finally got down to what we felt was the right answer and then we would talk to another expert and he said that this would not work, and so forth. But to strike out these two lines here, we finally agreed that it would have no significance and would probably be a waste of time for the legislature to review and to adopt or approve a five-year plan of the Governor. It would not have any legal effect on the legislature. We have accomplished our purpose in that the Governor must submit to the legislature and to the people the full disclosure of the five-year plan, but there is no need for anyone to adopt it.

We recommend that these be deleted.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Kline?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—123

Aberman	Erwin	Laputka	Richter
Aurentz	Fawcett	Leach	Ruth
Baldrige	Fay	Lee, K.	Sahli
Baldus	Feather	Lee, L.	Scales
Baldwin	Filson	Leinbach	Scarlett
Banes	Forster	Leonard	Scranton
Barron	Fortney	Levin	Sebastian
Barry	Gabreski	Manderino	Shapiro
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Mangery	Shettig
Benedict	Gerber	Mattioni	Shively
Benfield	Goldman	McGeary	Shoemaker
Bloom	Goldstein	McGlynn	Shrager
Braham	Gouger	Meyer	Solomon
Brennan	Griffith	Michael	Sprogell
Broderick	Hannum	Michener	Stout
Brown	Harding	Miller, D.	Swope
Bunting	Henderson	Miller, R.	Tate
Burkholder	Heyburn	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Butera	Himes	More	Tomascik
Camardella	Hocker	Morton	Tully
Caputo	Hook	Murray	Van Sant
Clark	Hostetler	Nelson	Waldron
Clinger	Huggins	O'Donnell	Warman
Conley	Irvis	Orban	Welsh
Corey	Jirolanio	Orbin	Westerberg
Cortese	Johnson	Otto	Whittum
Croop	Kauffman	Popil	Wilcox
Curran	Kelly	Pott	Wilmarth
Dailey	Keller, J.	Powell	Woodring
Desmond	Kline	Rea	Woodside
Devlin	Krill	Reynolds

NAYS—1

Rappaport

NOT VOTING—39

Allison	Donatucci	King	Redick
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Lane	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fagan	Markley	Rovner
Buck	Fineman	Musselman	Scott
Cain	Fleming	Pasquerilla	Sharp
Caron	Fohl	Pechan	Silverman
Casey	Gray	Pelletier	Strickler
Cosetti	Hatter	Percey	Stroup
Cunningham	Horne	Prendergast	Thomson
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Quiles

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 5, Printer's No. 16, entitled:

Amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania further regulating exemptions from taxation and providing for the taxation of real property of public utilities.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We now move on to Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 16.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Buck.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President and fellow delegates, in order to allay the concern expressed by a number of our delegates that my amendment to Section 1A(d) of Committee Proposal No. 5 may lead to certain abuses because it is broad enough to include commercial projects by the private sector, I wish to move that we reconsider the amendment for the purpose of voting favorably upon an amendment to my amendment that will restrict the special tax benefits of Section 1A(d) solely to the purchase of land by nonprofit industrial development corporations for the construction of new industrial plants to create more jobs for Pennsylvania.

For your general information, the Bureau of Industrial Development of the Department of Commerce informed me yesterday morning that there are now 351 such nonprofit industrial development groups in Pennsylvania; that since the creation of the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority it has made 755 loans to these groups aggregating $146 million; that the total cost of the projects involved is $389 million; that new employment opportunities have been created for 101,000 persons; and that a payroll of $451 million annually has been added to the income of Pennsylvanians.

Obviously, the type of special tax relief contemplated merely implements one of our State's most effective programs for economic growth.

I, therefore, wish at this time to move to have reconsidered the vote by which my amendment to Proposal No. 5 was adopted on Monday, February 12.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Buck that the vote by which his amendment was carried be reconsidered, and has that a second?

DELEGATE CROOP. I second the motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That has been seconded by Delegate Croop. It has been moved and seconded, therefore, that we reconsider the vote by which the Buck amendment was adopted on Monday.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—125

Aberman	Devlin	Kline	Rea
Aurentz	Erwin	Krill	Reynolds
Sagenstose	Fawcett	Laputka	Richter
Baldrige	Fay	Leach	Ruth
Baldwin	Feather	Lee, K.	Sahli
Banes	Filson	Lee, L.	Scales
Barron	Fohl	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barry	Forster	Leonard	Scranton
Bashoff	Fortney	Manderino	Sebastian
Benedict	Gabreski	Mangery	Shapiro
Benfield	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Shettig
Bloom	Gerber	McGeary	Shively
Braham	Goldman	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Brennan	Goldstein	Meyer	Shrager
Broderick	Gouger	Michael	Silverman
Brown	Griffith	Michener	Solomon
Buck	Hannum	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Burkholder	Henderson	Miller, R.	Stout
Butera	Harding	Moorhead	Strickler
Camardella	Heyburn	More	Swope
Caputo	Himes	Morton	Tate
Casey	Hocker	Murray	Tomascik
Clark	Hook	O'Donnell	Thornburgh
Clinger	Hostetler	Orban	Tully
Conley	Huggins	Orbin	Waldron
Corey	Irvis	Otto	Warman
Cortese	Jirolamio	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Cosetti	Johnson	Popil	Westerberg
Croop	Kauffman	Pott	Wilcox
Curran	Keller, J.	Powell	Woodring
Dailey	Kelly	Rappaport	Woodside
Desmond

NAYS—2

Bunting	Nelson

NOT VOTING—36

Allison	Fagan	Levin	Roberts
Amsterdam	Fineman	Markley	Rovner
Baldus	Fleming	Musselman	Scott
Cain	Gray	Pechan	Sharp
Caron	Hatter	Pelletier	Stroup
Cunningham	Horne	Percey	Thomson
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Van Sant
Donatow	King	Quiles	Whittum
Dumbauld	Lane	Redick	Wilmarth

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

AMENDMENT TO BUCK AMENDMENT ON PROPOSAL No. 5

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Buck.

DELEGATE BUCK. Mr. President, I offer an amendment to my amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Clerk will now read the amendment to the amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BUCK offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend page 1 of the amendments by striking out lines 6 to 9 and inserting after "economy", page 4, line 1 of Printer's No. 16: or promoting industrial development through the medium of a non-profit corporation

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Did you wish to make a statement in connection with your amendment to the amendment, Delegate Buck?

DELEGATE BUCK. I merely wish to say, by way of explanation, that this amendment to my amendment deletes that part of the original amendment that extends the benefits of this section to commercial development and restricts it solely, as is set forth on the amendment to the amendment, for the purpose of promoting industrial development through the medium of a nonprofit corporation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I want to say I am for this amendment. This amendment gets to the very heart of the problem that I vigorously fought against—the original amendments—which is, that this amendment will prevent speculators from going into areas and taking advantage of tax rates that the committee did not feel were appropriate for investment speculation. Rather, on the other hand, this amendment presents the opportunity for nonprofit corporations to participate in partnership with the government in developing areas that need it. It is consistent with the spirit of subsection (d) in that this will help the communities who need rehabilitation, need redevelopment and need renewal. Therefore, at this time, Mr. President, I would like to state that as a vigorous opponent against the original Buck amendment, I am very much in favor of the amendment to the amendment which has been presented here this afternoon.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard, either pro or con on the amendment to the amendment?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, fellow delegates, yesterday when I talked to you on this subject, I, perhaps, did not quite clearly read the language. This is what I was talking for, the nonprofit corporation organized by the communities, through the cooperation of the citizens in the community, all of whom served without any compensation, at their own expense, so there would be no profit to anyone except to bring in these types and kinds of industries. I think it was just an oversight. I urge you now to vote for this amendment so that this progress can be made.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—122

Aberman	Desmond	Kline	Reynolds
Aurentz	Devlin	Krill	Richter
Bagenstose	Erwin	Laputka	Ruth
Baldrige	Fawcett	Leach	Sahli
Baldus	Fay	Lee, K.	Scales
Baldwin	Feather	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Banes	Filson	Leinbach	Scranton
Barron	Fohl	Leonard	Sebastian
Barry	Forster	Levin	Shapiro
Bashoff	Fortney	Mangery	Shettig
Benedict	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shively
Benfield	Gehrlein	McGeary	Shrager
Bloom	Gerber	McGlynn	Silverman
Brennan	Goldman	Meyer	Solomon
Broderick	Goldstein	Michael	Sprogell
Brown	Gouger	Michener	Stout
Buck	Griffith	Miller, D.	Strickler
Burkholder	Hannum	Miller, R.	Swope
Butera	Harding	Moorhead	Tate
Camardella	Henderson	More	Thornburgh
Caputo	Himes	Morton	Tomascik
Casey	Hocker	Murray	Tully
Clark	Hook	Orban	Waldron
Clinger	Hostetler	Orbin	Warman
Conley	Huggins	Otto	Westerberg
Corey	Irvis	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Cortese	Jirolanio	Popil	Wilcox
Cosetti	Johnson	Pott	Wilmarth
Croop	Kauffman	Rappaport	Woodring
Curran	Keller, J.	Rea	Woodside
Dailey	Kelly

NAYS—4

Braham	Bunting	Nelson	Shoemaker

NOT VOTING—37

Allison	Fleming	Markley	Redick
Amsterdam	Gray	Musselman	Roberts
Cain	Hatter	O'Donnell	Rovner
Caron	Heyburn	Pechan	Scott
Cunningham	Horne	Pelletier	Sharp
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Percey	Stroup
Donolow	King	Powell	Thomson
Dumbauld	Lane	Prendergast	Van Sant
Fagan	Manderino	Quiles	Welsh
Fineman

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question is now, will the Convention agree to the Buck amendment as amended?

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment as amended?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—123

Aberman	Desmond	Kline	Reynolds
Aurentz	Devlin	Krill	Richter
Bagenstose	Erwin	Laputka	Ruth
Baldrige	Fawcett	Leach	Sahli
Baldus	Fay	Lee, K.	Scales
Baldwin	Feather	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Banes	Filson	Leinbach	Scranton
Barron	Fohl	Leonard	Sebastian
Bashoff	Forster	Levin	Shapiro
Benedict	Fortney	Manderino	Shettig
Benfield	Gabreski	Mangery	Shively
Bloom	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Shrager
Braham	Gerber	McGeary	Silverman
Brennan	Goldman	McGlynn	Solomon
Broderick	Goldstein	Meyer	Sprogell
Brown	Gouger	Michael	Stout
Buck	Griffith	Michener	Strickler
Burkholder	Hannum	Miller, D.	Swope
Butera	Harding	Miller, R.	Tate
Camardella	Henderson	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Caputo	Himes	More	Tomascik
Casey	Hocker	Morton	Tully
Clark	Hook	Murray	Waldron
Clinger	Hostetler	Orban	Warman
Conley	Huggins	Orbin	Westerberg
Corey	Irvis	Otto	Whittum
Cortese	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Wilcox
Cosetti	Johnson	Popil	Wilmarth
Croop	Kauffman	Pott	Woodring
Curran	Keller, J.	Rappaport	Woodside
Dailey	Kelly	Rea

NAYS—4

Barry	Bunting	Nelson	Welsh

NOT VOTING—36

Allison	Fineman	Markley	Redick
Amsterdam	Fleming	Musselman	Roberts
Cain	Gray	O'Donnell	Rovner
Caron	Hatter	Pechan	Scott
Cunningham	Heyburn	Pelletier	Sharp
Donaldson	Horne	Percey	Shoemaker
Donolow	Keller, M.	Powell	Stroup
Dumbauld	King	Prendergast	Thomson
Fagan	Lane	Quiles	Van Sant

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

COMMITTEE MEETINGS

JUDICIARY, Co-Chairmen Scranton and Amsterdam, Senate Majority Caucus Room, Thursday, January 15, 1968, at 8 a.m., e.s.t.

LOCAL GOVERNMENT, Co-Chairmen Manderino and Pasquerilla, entire committee, Penn Harris Hotel for dinner, Wednesday, February 14, 1968, immediately after today's session.

PROPOSAL No. 4

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil.

DELEGATE POPIL. Mr. President, I do not like to throw a monkey wrench into the possibility of an adjournment, but I have talked to several of the delegates and I want to make reference to Proposal No. 4 and especially to an amendment that was approved yesterday. In my opinion and in the opinion of several of the delegates, this amendment has been left up in the air. We have not implemented machinery to put this amendment into effect. I come back to what, perhaps, may be a touchy situation and this is the amendment regarding the preaudit and the postaudit.

It reads, "The same Commonwealth officer or department shall not have responsibility for both the preaudit and postaudit function." It is left hanging in the air and we do not know now who was to conduct the preaudit and who was to conduct the postaudit. I think this is a very, very important part of this Constitution which should be given some real serious consideration.

I would like at this time, therefore, Mr. President and fellow delegates, that we reconsider this particular proposal and then table it, perhaps, for a day or so to give it more serious thought so we can come back with some concise answers and something that will implement this preaudit and postaudit function.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would like to offer a motion to reconsider lines 6 and 7 of Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 15.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me just point out something. I am not trying to change your motion, but I want to say, number one, the amendments of yesterday were not printed and put into this proposal because we had not finished the consideration of the proposal. Number two, we finished amending the proposal today; that will be on the calendar tomorrow, still on second consideration, still subject to amendment, so I do not think we need any motion on it.

DELEGATE POPIL. Fine. I am agreeable if this is subject to amendment tomorrow.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. After you see the proposal with all the amendments, perhaps you will be satisfied; perhaps you will still be dissatisfied and you can then look it over and propose an amendment.

DELEGATE POPIL. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It will be on the calendar for second consideration tomorrow because it was amended today.

ADJOURNMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Waldron for the adjournment motion.

DELEGATE WALDRON. Mr. President, I move that this Convention do now adjourn until Thursday, February 15, 1968, at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Waldron and seconded by Delegate Orban that this Convention do now adjourn until Thursday, February 15, 1968, at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

The motion was agreed to and (at 6:24 p.m., e.s.t) the Convention was adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 Thursday, February 15, 1968 Number 44

The Convention was called to order at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND OSCAR ARNAL, Pastor of the Ohio View Lutheran Church of Industry, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

Let us bow our heads for a word of prayer.

You alone, Lord, God, remain our reason for calling this a new day instead of just another day, and You alone form the sole reason for us to live instead of just exist. We seek You in the morning, because the day may be long and weary. If our lives are filled with drudgery, cause us again to hear the words of the Psalmist, "This is the day you have made, O Lord, cause us to rejoice and be glad in it."

But, Lord, we are not kidding anybody, unless perhaps ourselves. The glory of this Convention is dying and the newness of it has gone by the board. Perhaps some here wish the prayer would stop because there are more important things to do and some may feel Your place at the worktables is unimportant. Others by bowing their heads may be just bowing their heads to concession and formal tradition. But, Lord, we all need to stop and beg You to set right our twisted views of political vocation. Perhaps some claim to represent a voting public, when, in fact, they represent themselves and the gain and prestige they get from it. Is it party position, local interests and power struggles that guide this Convention? Lord, we are not naive. We know there is too much of this here; therefore, we ask for Your pardon. Forgive these Your people for their fears from pressure, their succumbing to monotony and for short tempers. Let Your compassion rest upon us for we are only men.

Give us such a sense of Your awareness that we do not separate church and State as to put You outside the Capitol of this Commonwealth. Lord Christ, let there be no obstruction to keep You beyond these doors because You might be too sectarian. With an awareness of Your presence, even the most monotonous of chores becomes a task in Your name. Cause this Convention to see that they are called to serve people with needs, fears and dreams just as we all have. Let them present a final work designed to meet the needs of our people. Let this be the Convention's first concern.

We close our request to you, O Lord, with a thank you for all that we have and are, for new friends and experiences, for the opportunity to serve you through the political arena of life by serving others. Thank you for Jesus Christ, Your sure testimony that You are not ashamed of humanity but took it up through Him. Because You lived among us and our problems, Lord Christ, we are grateful to know that through You every task can move from dream to reality. We offer this prayer on the basis of Your invitation for us to bring all that we have to the Father's chambers. Amen.

JOURNAL ON SECRETARY'S DESK

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Secretary Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, and fellow delegates, I have on my desk the Journal for February 5, 1968.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the secretary, Delegate Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, the following members have made requests for leaves of absence:

The delegate from the 19th District, DELEGATE THOMPSON, for February 15, because of his wife's illness;

The delegate from the 28th District, DELEGATE SHOEMAKER, for half of February 15, because of appearance in court;

The delegate from the 9th District, DELEGATE HEYBURN, for half of February 15, because of a committee meeting.

DELEGATE SWOPE who had asked for permission to be absent yesterday is here. He wants to be in on the action too.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Secretary Michener.

Is there any objection to the leaves of absence?

The Chair hears none, and the leaves are granted.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now unlock the voting machines for the purpose of recording our presence.

The roll was recorded as follows:

Amsterdam	Desmond	Keller, J.	Reynolds
Aurentz	Devlin	Keller, M.	Richter
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Kelly	Roberts
Baldrige	Erwin	Krill	Rovner
Baldus	Fagan	Laputka	Sabli
Baldwin	Fawcett	Leach	Scales
Banes	Fay	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Barron	Feather	Leinbach	Scranton
Barry	Filson	Leonard	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fohl	Levin	Shapiro

Benedict	Fortney	Manderino	Shettig
Benfield	Gabreski	Mattioni	Shively
Bloom	Gerber	McGeary	Shrager
Braham	Goldman	McGlynn	Silverman
Brennan	Goldstein	Meyer	Solomon
Broderick	Gouger	Michener	Sprogell
Brown	Gray	Miller, D.	Stout
Buck	Griffith	Miller, R.	Strickler
Bunting	Hannum	Moorhead	Swope
Burkholder	Harding	More	Tate
Cain	Hatter	Morton	Thornburgh
Camardella	Henderson	Nelson	Tomascik
Caputo	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Tully
Caron	Himes	Orban	Van Sant
Casey	Hocker	Orbin	Waldron
Clark	Hook	Otto	Warman
Clinger	Horne	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Conley	Hostetler	Pelletier	Westerberg
Corey	Huggins	Popil	Whitlum
Cortese	Irvis	Pott	Wilcox
Croop	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Curran	Johnson	Rea	Woodring
Dailey	Kauffman	Redick	Woodside

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. One hundred and thirty-two delegates having recorded their presence, a quorum is established.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Aberman	Forster	Mangery	Prendergast
Allison	Gehrlein	Markley	Ruth
Butera	King	Michael	Shoemaker
Cosetti	Kline	Percey	Stroup
Fineman	Lee, K.	Powell

QUESTIONS OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you state what your question of personal privilege is in a sentence or so?

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes, I apologize to Delegate Amsterdam for apparently offending him.

Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. Mr. President, may I make a brief announcement which I think the Convention should know?

A number of delegates are keeping their coats and hats down at the foot of the stairs out here—at the foot of the stairs on the main floor of the Capitol. The day before yesterday Delegate Mattioni's coat was stolen and yesterday mine was stolen. It is not a safe place to keep your coats.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am going to ask our executive director to see if we cannot provide a safer place for our coats and hats.

CALENDAR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 20, entitled:

Repealing article five of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to the Judiciary and adding a new Judiciary article.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now as promised yesterday, we are ready to take up on second consideration, Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20, which is the judiciary article. At this time I am going to ask the chairman of the Committee on Judiciary, who announced yesterday that we would take this up in sections as we did the Local Government article, if he will please come forward and take the front microphone.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, may I make a parliamentary inquiry?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Before we get into the judiciary article on Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20, should we not act to pass on second consideration the other three articles so that Style and Drafting can begin their work? We are running so short of time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is a good suggestion, but we have promised and planned to take up the judiciary article first because it was so important that we complete second consideration of the judiciary article today and tomorrow. As soon as we complete discussion on the judiciary article, we will take up these other articles for second consideration.

Style and Drafting still has Proposals Nos. 1, 2 and 3, and the committee has not as yet reported these out and we will get these to them just as soon as we can complete judiciary, if that is agreeable to the delegates. I think it will be in the interests of the Convention to get the judiciary article through this week.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, are you talking about the complete discussion, amendment and second consideration of the judiciary article?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No, we are talking about having the second consideration on the amendments to the judiciary article today and tomorrow. We expect that we will have time tomorrow to take up the second consideration of the other articles.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, we have been through all these items so many times, and we can rehash, and rehash and rehash. I think it is in order to determine if printer's Nos. 17, 18 and 19, Proposals Nos. 4, 5 and 6—if there is no objection, why not immediately pass them on second consideration into Style and Drafting?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If that is the will of the delegates. I can only tell you that we have had proposals on second consideration before and they are subject to amendment on second consideration.

Yesterday we told Delegate Popil, in connection with the proposal on the tax article, that he could, if he wanted to, present an amendment. Frankly, in view of our determination that we had made to take the judiciary this morning, I, unless I am overruled by the delegates, would like to stick to that determination.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Let us find out if there are any amendments. If we waste more and more time here on reconsiderations and more amendments, we are never going to get this Convention completed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want to assure you the Chair is not encouraging or asking for amendments, but one of the things the Chair wants to have done is the consideration of the judiciary article, which we have promised the delegates. We said the judiciary article would be number one this morning, and as far as the Chair is concerned—one of the things I try to do is to live up to my promises—we would take it up number one today.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. But it has been history in this Convention, Mr. President, that the more these things set on the table for second consideration the more we rehash the same old problems constantly, and I think we should get them completed on second consideration and get them over to Style and Drafting.

MOTION TO ADVANCE PROPOSAL No. 6 TO THIRD CONSIDERATION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I move, Mr. President, that Proposal No. 6, printer's No. 19, be passed from second consideration over to Style and Drafting. If there are any problems on Taxation and Finance, they can speak for themselves.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I will second Delegate Pasquerilla's request.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question is,

Will the Convention agree to advance Proposal No. 6, printer's No. 19, to third consideration?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—107

Aurentz	Devlin	Kelly	Roberts
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Krill	Rovner
Baldus	Erwin	Laputka	Sahli
Baldwin	Fagan	Leach	Scales
Barron	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fay	Leinbach	Shapiro
Benedict	Feather	Leonard	Shively
Benfield	Fineman	Levin	Shrager
Bloom	Fohl	Mangery	Silverman
Braham	Fortney	Mattioni	Solomon
Brennan	Gabreski	McGeary	Sprogell
Broderick	Goldstein	McGlynn	Stout
Brown	Gray	Meyer	Strickler
Buck	Griffith	Michener	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Miller, D.	Tate
Burkholder	Harding	Miller, R.	Thornburgh
Butera	Hatter	Moorhead	Tomasetik
Caputo	Henderson	More	Tully
Caron	Himes	Nelson	Van Sant
Casey	Hocker	Orban	Waldron
Clark	Hook	Orbin	Warman
Conley	Horne	Otto	Westerberg
Corey	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Wilcox
Cortese	Huggins	Popil	Wilmarth
Croop	Jirolanio	Pott	Woodring
Dailey	Johnson	Rea	Woodside
Desmond	Kauffman	Redick

NAYS—9

Camardella	Morton	Pelletier	Reynolds
Clinger	O'Donnell	Powell	Whittum
Gouger

NOT VOTING—47

Aberman	Filson	Lane	Richter
Allison	Fleming	Lee, K.	Ruth
Amsterdam	Forster	Manderino	Scarlett
Baldrige	Gehrlein	Markley	Scott
Banes	Gerber	Michael	Scranton
Barry	Goldman	Murray	Sharp
Cain	Heyburn	Musselman	Shettig
Cosetti	Irvis	Pechan	Shoemaker
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Percey	Stroup
Curran	Keller, M.	Prendergast	Thomson
Donaldson	King	Quiles	Welsh
Donolow	Kline	Rappaport

The majority of the delegates having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

Ordered, that Proposal No. 6 be advanced to third consideration.

PROPOSAL No. 4, PRINTER'S No. 17

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We might as well take up Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 17, and the question is, will the Convention agree to advance Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 17, to third consideration?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I was given to understand that there was a move afoot to reconsider one of the amendments that had been inserted in Committee Proposal No. 4. If that is so I would not like to see this Committee Proposal No. 4 shunted along without adequate consideration being given to the individual who said he was going to make such a motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I certainly agree we do not want any of it shunted along, but we have the question on the floor, whether or not Proposal No. 4, printer's No. 17, should go over to third consideration.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Point of parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. I support the Chair's ruling 100 per cent. I just wondered if a few comments in this regard might not be in order.

It seems to me that we made, in effect, what is a moral commitment to this membership that these bills would not be just shoved through, willy-nilly, that this morning would be reserved for consideration of the judiciary article. I support the Chair's announced plan to place these matters, as it were, on the side until we can go into this judiciary matter.

As a member of Style and Drafting I can assure all the committee members having to do with Local Government and State Taxation and Finance, that these articles are already in the hands of Style and Drafting in an informal fashion, so there will be no actual loss of time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Therefore, do I take it that you want to abide by what was the Chair's original determination, to hold Proposal No. 4 and Proposal No. 5 on the calendar for second consideration until we complete the judiciary?

MOTION TO ADVANCE PROPOSAL No. 5 TO THIRD CONSIDERATION

The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, speaking for Proposal No. 5, it appears that there is no objection to that, and I would move that it be considered and agreed to on second reading.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hocker.

DELEGATE HOCKER. I disagree with the chairman of the committtee. I am perfectly willing to go along with Proposal No. 6. I think the committee is satisfied there, but our entire committee is not satisfied with Proposals Nos. 4 and 5, and I object to his motion to just flip them over. Delegate Popil explained yesterday why he does not want them to move, and I think that for the good of this Convention neither one of those two should move.

MOTION WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodring.

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, I rise to a point of parliamentary procedure. There is nothing before the convention; the motion was not seconded and, by your leave, I would like to withdraw the motion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will consider the motion withdrawn and, therefore, the Chair would declare that Proposal No. 4 and Proposal No. 5 will remain on the calendar until we complete consideration today and tomorrow of the amendments to the judiciary article.

POINT OF PARLIAMENTARY PROCEDURE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, a point of parliamentary inquiry, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, you may proceed.

DELEGATE CASEY. I wonder if Delegate Woodring would respond to a question concerning Proposal No. 5, this being the only proposal I rise to discuss?

Delegate Woodring, is there to be a schedule attached to Proposal No. 5, and if so, when is that schedule to be brought before the Convention?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Mr. President, Proposal No. 5, printer's No. 18, has at the end thereof, "Section 3. The following schedule is adopted: Section 1, 1(a), 1(a.1) and 1(c) of Article VIII shall take effect as soon as possible, but no later than July 1, 1970."

DELEGATE CASEY. May I further inquire of the gentleman when that schedule was made a part of this proposal?

DELEGATE WOODRING. It appeared for the first time under printer's No. 18.

DELEGATE CASEY. Which is the present printer's number?

DELEGATE WOODRING. Yes.

DELEGATE CASEY. Was a vote taken by this Convention on the schedule?

DELEGATE WOODRING. The record will reflect what votes have been taken on Proposal No. 5.

DELEGATE CASEY. Well, sir, I ask you as chairman of the committee. I recall no such vote.

DELEGATE WOODRING. There was no vote specifically taken on a schedule.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, this is highly irregular and out of order, and I object to the addition of a schedule to any substantive proposal without ever having discussed it or considered it by this Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In connection with the schedule on the judiciary article and in connection with the schedule on the taxation article, it was the understanding of the Chair when those proposals were presented that the schedules were not prepared, but as soon as they were prepared the Chair would accept them and attach them to the proposals. They are now before you on consideration and they are subject to your amendment, change and discussion when we come to them.

We will now take up the judiciary article.

According to yesterday's determination of our chairmen of the Judiciary Committee—

The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, on that schedule, if my recollection is correct, and Delegate Leonard can correct it, if he is here, we voted on that schedule, to my knowledge, three weeks ago Friday. On Friday morning we discussed the schedule attached to Proposal No. 5 quite thoroughly, just for the record.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Powell.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, so that the record will not be clouded with any uncertainty, my objection is not to what the committee did or did not do; my objection is to the fact that this Convention was unaware of this schedule and never was called upon to vote on it up to this moment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. My answer to Delegate Casey is that it is still open to debate, amendment, discussion, and vote. It will remain on the calendar and when we take up that proposal the schedule is subject to amendment, discussion, and debate.

Pursuant to our understanding that the judiciary would be the first thing this morning, the Chair will now recognize that this is the first thing. The Judiciary is going to take up first, I understand, Sections 1 through 9, 17 and 18.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. What the Judiciary Committee would like to do, if possible, is as follows: Take these articles section by section, as I explained yesterday afternoon, the first one of which is Sections 1 through 9, and 17 and 18. These have to do with the administration and the organization of the judicial system. This was handled primarily by one subcommittee of the Judiciary Committee headed by Delegates Woodside and Sprogell.

If the other subcommittee chairmen would come up front and sit here at the desk, I think we can continue our work. What we would also like to do, Mr. President, with the permission of the Convention, is that I will make a few opening remarks; Delegate Amsterdam will then briefly explain Sections 1 through 9 and 17 and 18. It will then be open to interrogation and then amendment of those 11 sections.

The Judiciary Committee, Mr. President, had in mind primarily three philosophies in the development of this particular article. The first was the efficiency of administration of the judicial system, a very important point, in some ways the most important point that is being made in this article. The people's access to their courts should be easy and clear and swift and the roads to justice should not be encumbered by administrative roadblocks or confusing procedural sidesteps or deceptive alternates. Uniformity and clarity and simplicity throughout one statewide judicial system are the objectives to be sought here, and we felt this should be instituted through the application of modern concepts of public administration and efficiency in a way that would be meaningful to the individual litigant.

One of the people who testified before our committee on December 27, not representing, incidentally, any special group, and it was a woman, epitomized in our opinion precisely what we are trying to do when she said that this Constitution, and particularly the judiciary article, should not be for judges; it should not be for lawyers—she might have added, or even for late Governors—but for the people of Pennsylvania. She was a little fed up with a great deal of commentary and opinion by lawyers and judges and comparatively little hearing on the subject from people.

In this basic philosophy we have tried to do two or three major things: One, establish for the first time in Pennsylvania a unified judicial system with a central body, which is the Supreme Court, empowered to furnish overall supervision and direction of that administration. It goes all the way down the line through the justices of the peace so that there no longer would be "lords of fiefdom" or, indeed, there would be no judicial fiefdoms left.

Secondly, that we would minimize, to the best of our ability, the jurisdictional questions that are the travesty of much of the present operation of the court, so that people, when they come to court, are not thrown out because they are in the wrong jurisdiction.

Thirdly, an item under the efficiency of administration which we have established as of major importance is the judicial inquiry and review board which we will get to later in the day.

The second major philosophical attempt we have made here is to free judges on all levels of nonjudicial activities and political interests. It seemed to us that judges should be free of influences that distract them from their judicial duties or diminish their freedom to act according to the highest judicial standards.

Politics and nonjudicial activities should not be in the way of excellence in judges and in the emission of justice. This primarily comes out in this judiciary article in the fields of the method of selection of judges on all levels and in the field of incompatible activities of judges, which we will get to, likewise, later.

The third and equally important principle which the committee attempted to place in this article was a flexibility for the future. Over and over again we were reminded, as I hope the Convention is every day, that amending this Constitution is no different from amending the one we presently operate under, a very intricate, a very laborious, a very difficult job on any contentious subject. It necessitates, as you know, to amend the Constitution that you are about to put into being, and we cannot change this amendment process, the necessity of two successive legislatures approving same, by both houses, and likewise this to be followed by a vote of the electorate.

So when you are deciding on this article, as with every other part of this Constitution, remember you are deciding almost permanently, because to amend it is a very difficult thing to do. Bearing this in mind, the committee is recommending two options so that we will have some flexibility in the future for changes that might be necessary or could be worthwhile as to changing the thinking as it occurs in these United States with regard to the judicial systems of the States, so that there is an opportunity for improvement or change at some future time, although the electorate may assert itself when they want it and when the people themselves decide this is for them.

These two options, as you know, pertain first of all to the question of each judicial district, they being allowed to choose for themselves between the election of judges or the selection of same; and, secondly, in the cases of the justices of the peace in every jurisdiction except Philadelphia having a self-same type of option.

These are in general the three things which the committee was anxious to do and has tried to set down in this particular article. May I say to you two or three practical things. First of all, this is not St. Valentine's Day, but it might be for lawyers because today will be their greatest love feast in the history of Pennsylvania. I can assure you, by what has happened within the Judiciary Committee that this is a lawyer's field day and they get superor hypertechnical and it is extremely difficult to follow them at all times, although when you are framing a judicial article, this is important.

I say to you secondly that it is not only their love feast, but apparently it is the love feast for the amendment process—democracy at work—because as of late last night we had some 70-odd amendments to this judicial article. We now have close to 100 and I am sure that before the day is over it will be greater than that, which is an all-time high for everybody except what Delegate Cortese showed me this morning that the Italian Parliament had three months on 4,800 amendments to a new proposal. But it will be a world's record for Pennsylvania and for this Convention.

I do not want to treat this lightly. It is extremely important for all of you to think of this in terms of what the Judiciary committee has been through. Let me give you one example so that you will know what you are up against and so you will try to keep your tempers and to keep wits working. I mean that honestly.

In the selection of judges, for example, not only did the subcommittee work very hard and very long on this subject, but likewise the Judiciary Committee had several long sessions on them, intermittently interrupted, incidentally, by a few hours' sleep at night at least. Now presumably, not only will we have all that we went through but all the things that may occur to any other member of this Convention in the way of an amendment to that particular section of the judiciary article kaleidoscoped into literally one day.

I assure you that when our invocator said this morning that this will be long and weary and difficult, he was absolutely correct. I just warn you in advance, from our own experience, please try to keep calm, ply your minds to what is basic and important and not let them get withered up or, may I say, fragmented by a lot of minutia because, frankly, this is technical, this is difficult. It is, I think, the most technical and the most difficult of the things that will come before you.

I sincerely hope that you will remember what I said by this evening, that it has been long and weary and to keep your senses and to do the right thing is difficult. It demands tremendous attentional powers.

With that I would like to call on our esteemed co-chairman and eminent person in this Convention, Delegate Amsterdam, who will outline to you briefly the sections that we are now going to be interrogated upon, which are Sections 1 through 9, 17 and 18, dealing with the administration and organization of the judicial system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. We have before us, members of the Convention, Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20. I hope you will all have the same copy because the earlier drafts, of course, have been changed in lines and in various ways and if we are all working from the same draft it would be considerably easier.

As Delegate Scranton has indicated, the judiciary article is intended to set up a unified judicial court system, and you will note in Section 1 of the article we start by saying exactly that, and we say that the system shall consist "of a Supreme Court, a Superior Court, a Commonwealth Court"—and that is new—"courts of common pleas, community courts, justices of the peace, and municipal traffic courts in the City of Philadelphia."

You will note, starting with Section 2, that we have made no substantial change in the Supreme Court. We have made no substantial change in the Superior Court; however, we have provided that the State Supreme Court shall remain the highest court in the land so that may be unchanged by anything except a change in the Constitution itself.

We have set up for the first time and mandated in the Constitution a Commonwealth Court to consist of that number of judges and to have such statewide jurisdiction as shall be provided by law. We would expect, in the absence of a change that may be made by this Convention, that the legislature will act to implement that provision.

The next section, which is Section 5, is one that has caused a good bit of furor around the State and should be particularly noted. It provides for a right of appeal—which is new—constitutionally mandated in the form in which we have it here. It says that there shall be a right of appeal in all cases in all the courts of statewide jurisdiction. I have no doubt that that will be discussed in considerable detail before the day is over.

In the case of Section 6 and following, the courts of common pleas of the various judicial districts are continued as they are today, except that we have included within the common pleas courts those various other sections such as orphans' courts, and so on, and, of course, in the case of Philadelphia, the family court also; in the case of Allegheny County, the same.

We have provided that in each judicial district there shall be one court of first impression, which is the court of common pleas. We have provided within that court that there shall be various divisions to take care of the specialized problems which come up in the areas, particularly in the large cities where you do have enough volume to justify specialized judges who have a special knowledge by reason of the frequency with which they treated these matters and the fact that they have occasion to concentrate on problems in individual areas, such as the orphans' court problems, the family court problems, and so on. We have set up throughout the State one court of common pleas for each judicial district and have broken it down, where needed, into divisions. That will appear in more detail, as you will see, in the schedule which we will come to later on in our consideration.

The next item, which is Section 7, is also new and it provides for community courts in those judicial districts other than the City of Philadelphia in which the majority of the electors voting thereon shall decide in favor of a community court. The question of whether such a community court shall be established in any judicial district is mandated and must be placed upon the ballot at a primary election at any time that a number of electors equal to five per cent of the total votes cast for all candidates for the office receiving the highest number of votes in such judicial district at the last preceding general or municipal election shall ask petitions for such an election. This question may be placed upon the ballot in any judicial district at not more than one election during any five-year period. This court, of course, will supersede—and you will see more detail on that—the justices of the peace in the areas where the community courts are approved by a majority of the electorate in any such election.

In the City of Philadelphia because of a special problem, it being the type of urban community that it is, we have not provided for a community court or an election, but we have actually mandated a municipal court and a traffic court with the number of the judges and the jurisdiction of both to be provided by law.

In the schedule, however, you will note that we have provided that the number of judges of the municipal court, when this takes effect in the Commonwealth or in the county of Philadelphia, will be 22 in number, and that 22 of the present 28 magistrates in the city of Philadelphia shall be appointed to that municipal court by the Governor.

We have also provided for a traffic court to handle matters involving traffic violations of all sorts, and we have provided that the six additional magistrates, coming up to the total of 28 that are provided for today in Philadelphia, shall go into the traffic court. Those, of course, will be the six out of the 28 who are not chosen for the municipal court. More about the magistrates later as we come to scheduled items.

We have provided, with regard to justices of the peace, that in judicial districts where a community court has not been approved by the electorate that there shall be one justice of the peace in each magisterial district as provided by law. We have also provided in Section 8(h), beginning at the bottom of page 3, "The General Assembly shall by general law establish classes of magisterial districts solely on the basis of population and population density and shall fix the salaries to be paid justices of the peace in each class."

However, for the purpose of mandating this system in the event that the legislature does not act promptly enough to take care of the needs of that system, we have set forth in the schedule criteria which are to apply until such time as the legislature does act. You will know when we come to the schedule that the criteria are set up, as we indicate here, upon the basis of population and population density. We actually do fix the salaries of the various magistrates and the various types of districts, with a proviso, of course, that the legislature may at any time change both the classes and districts so long as they do it on the basis of population and population density, and the amount of salaries to be paid to the justices of the peace in each of these classes.

The number and boundaries, however, of magisterial districts of each class within the judicial districts is to be established by the Supreme Court or by the court of common pleas under the direction of the Supreme Court. All this you will note is intended to make more specific the control and the unity of the entire judicial system. The intent here, as it is throughout the system, is to be absolutely certain, from the very top to the very bottom, that the entire judicial system shall be within the control and subject to the responsibility of the Supreme Court.

We have also provided in Section 9 for other courts to the degree that the General Assembly may, with the advise and consent of the Supreme Court, establish. They may also establish divisions of existing courts to the extent that the exigencies of the situation may require in the years ahead.

However, here again, we have provided that the General Assembly shall act with the advise and consent of the Supreme Court, so that the responsibility for the entire judicial system and the administration of the entire judicial system, shall at all times be fixed within the Supreme Court. That, we feel, is the most important new element that has been added in the entire article.

At this point, I should like to refer you to Section 17, starting on page 14. This section, as you will see, provides for the general rules whereby "The Supreme Court shall exercise general supervisory and administrative authority over all the courts and justices of the peace of the Commonwealth, including the authority to make such temporary assignments of judges and justices of the peace from one court or district to another as it shall deem appropriate" and necessary to run an efficient judicial system.

We further provide, "The Supreme Court shall appoint a court administrator and may appoint such subordinate administrators and staff as may be necessary and proper for the prompt and proper disposition of the business of the courts and justices of the peace," again fixing the authority in the Supreme Court.

"The Supreme Court," further, in subsection (c), "shall have the power to prescribe general rules governing practice, procedure, and the conduct of the courts and justices of the peace," so that the conduct of all the courts from the top to the bottom is within the rule-making power of the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court also may make rules for the admission of persons to practice law, and for the administration of all the courts and officers of the various judicial branches.

We have a provision, however—and this begins on line 19 of page 14—"that such rules shall be consistent with this Constitution and shall neither abridge, enlarge nor modify the substantive rights of any litigant, nor alter the jurisdiction of any court or justice of the peace, nor suspend nor alter any statute of limitation or repose." This is intended to clearly indicate that the Supreme Court is not a legislative body, is not to make substantive rights, but is to be charged with full responsibility for the proper administration and supervision of the entire judicial administration in the Commonwealth.

You will also note in Section 18 that the number and boundaries of the districts of the various judicial districts may be changed by the General Assembly, but again only with the advise and consent of the Supreme Court. This sets forth in general, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, our plan for the administration of justice in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. We have set forth in this schedule various time periods which we believe to be appropriate to the various changes which are being mandated.

We have also indicated in the schedule that in one case, for instance, in the case of the city of Philadelphia, that additional judges which, if we deem to be necessary to carry out expeditiously the work of the judiciary in that city and county, shall be increased by ten. Again we have provided, however, that the legislature shall have the ultimate responsibility for determining what the total number of judges shall be and shall have the normal legislative prerogatives with regard to the entire system.

We have provided simply for the interim period because we know the changes are being mandated in this new constitutional article with respect to the judiciary and we have tried to cover the interim period so that the courts will continue to function and do their business appropriately during this period until such time as the new administration of justice, new judicial system, shall be fully effective in the Commonwealth.

Mr. President, that completes a very short summary review of the work of the Judiciary Committee in connection with the administration of justice in the State, and we are open to questions on the part of any of the members.

I thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are now ready for questions.

The Chair recognizes Secretary Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I would like to direct my first set of questions to Delegate Scranton, if he will consent?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Yes, sir.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Delegate Scranton, I am one of a majority of delegates to this Convention who is not a lawyer. When we hear of 100 amendments and when we hear of the complexity and when we see the size of your article, a little fear is stricken into our hearts. We would quite honestly like a little guidance from you at this point as to the complexities ahead.

I take it that the articles we are discussing now form part of a seamless web of a total concept of justice in Pennsylvania.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I think that is very true, sir. At least it was our experience in trying to frame this article that it was like the domino theory concerning the Far East. I do not happen to agree with that theory in the Far East, but I do agree with it with regard to the judiciary article, namely, whatever you do to one part of it, although we have divided it, as you know, into five parts here, will have a very great effect on each additional part in almost every instance. There are few exceptions to that rule.

As a general statement I would like to say this: So far I have not looked at all the amendments, but I gather that the great bulk of them, in fact almost all of them, revolve around two questions: One is this first section which we just outlined and not so much as to whether we should or should not have a unified judicial system—incidentally this was the overwhelming feeling of the committee and it apparently is of the Convention, from what I can find out about the amendments—but more about some technical matters therein.

Secondly, the matter of the selection of judges—the selection of the judiciary in general and what method should be used at what level. This is where the great bulk of the amendments occur, and these are the two areas in which we are given the most amount of time by the committee.

We are talking now about Sections 1 through 9 and 17 and 18. There is one exception to the statement that I have just made which is Section 5, as Delegate Amsterdam said. This was not discussed in subcommittees; it came out on the floor of the full committee and was discussed very seriously there. If you want a candid opinion from me—it may not be too important because I am not a lawyer either; though I passed the bar exams, I have never practiced to the degree that the other 67 lawyers in this Convention have—I would say this: This particular section, Section 5, could be a tremendous step forward in judicial and constitutional history in the United States if it is framed correctly. But I would also say that if it is not, it could be a tremendous step backward and it must be carried on, I think, by expert people of which I am not one.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, we nonlawyers are going to have to vote, apparently, 100 times shortly.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Well, I hope not. I hope they will have sense enough to realize that this would just be obliteration of any sense.

DELEGATE MICHENER. How should we look then at an amendment which comes up which cuts into this seamless web? We may not be wise enough to know what other parts of the judiciary article are affected by it.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. The only thing I can say is that at that juncture you will have to ask questions, and we will try our best to outline what effect it might have on some other part as well as what it has on the part that they are immediately attacking.

DELEGATE MICHENER. For example, we know that selection and election of judges—some method of choosing judges—will come up. We may think one way about that, if, for example, there were a provision here for the removal of inept judges; whereas, if there were a good procedure for the removal of inept judges, we might think some other way. And then on removal, we would think one way about it if there were provision for a good retirement system and a good pension plan. How should we pick our way through this maze?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Well, in brief, I can only say this to you: In the committee, and I think this is a fair statement—and I have alerted all the committee members that whenever I make a statement that they think is unfair, I want them to get up and say so because we do not all remember everything that happened in committee—the parts of the article that have more relation to one another than to any other are the parts that you have indicated: the selection of judges, the removal, suspension and discipline thereof and retirement, and, frankly, there was almost no opposition within the committee to what is in here concerning removal, suspension, incompatible activities and retirement. There was, within the committee, considerable opposition to what the majority here—a bare majority—has selected for the selection of judges. I would say this to you: I can only guess, I cannot say, what the Convention is going to do, but my guess would be, from our committee experience, that the removal and retirement and that system would probably go through much the way it is here, possibly slightly changed.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Therefore, how is the committee going to present this material to us for amendment?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. The committee is presenting this first section now, asking for interrogation and amendment. Then we will do the part on the selection of judges, then on tenure, then on retirement.

DELEGATE MICHENER. I think one of the most profound speeches made in this hall so far was made by Delegate Croop the other day at the end of a long day when he asked us to get back to the main business and start to support our committees. Obviously, we saw yesterday and the day before, that the Convention was so inclined. Obviously, Delegate Scranton, you do not come here asking for a blanket approval of your committee report; you know it is going to be up for amendment. What is your advice to us nonlawyers on that very crucial point? What degree of amendment are you and Chairman Amsterdam willing to accept on these great vital areas?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. First of all, Chairman Amsterdam—and I do not want to speak for him and he had better listen to what I am saying—and I are very much of the opinion that whatever 82 members of this Convention want done, this is what should be done. They were elected by the people and they ought to have the say.

Number two, we, neither of us, intend, in any way whatsoever, to try to jam down the throats of this Convention anything that we personally happen to believe in or that necessarily the Judiciary Committee believes in in a majority item.

I would like to make this one piece of advice, and that is, I hope that this Convention will give deep credence to what the committee has suggested here. I, personally, do not agree with every single thing in it and I am sure no member of the Judiciary Committee does because it is a highly complicated and very difficult thing. But I would say, in no uncertain terms, that if you start ripping it to shreds, you literally will not have the kind of a Constitution that we ought to have in this State. I think the Judiciary Committee has done a very good job here despite what you may read in the newspapers about this tidbit or that tidbit of it and especially has opened up for the people of Pennsylvania a new day in judicial administration, which is terribly important in this modern era, and, likewise, a new option for them to look to new methods of handling justice for people. I candidly state there are many things in here that certain judges do not like and there are certain things in here that certain legal entities do not like, but I state also, unequivocally, that this is not entirely on expertise, but sometimes for some selfish interest.

DELEGATE MICHENER. May I question Chairman Amsterdam for a moment, please?

Chairman Amsterdam, one of the areas which we nonlawyers and nonmembers of the Judiciary Committee find most difficult to piece together is the attitude of your committee toward the problem of justice in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, and I would like to ask a few questions on this.

When Proposal No. 1204, the so-called Philadelphia plan, was brought to this floor, I found much in it that was admirable. I thought that it was a serious attempt on the part of the legal lights to bring relief to urban law. To what extent have the requests of 1204 been honored by your committee?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I would say, Delegate Michener, 1204 has been very materially incorporated into the final product of the Judiciary Committee. I am speaking rather carefully because you may not find in Committee Proposal No. 7 a great many of the items that appeared in 1204, and the reason for that is, many of them were schedule items, and therefore although it does not appear in Committee Proposal No. 7 in the parts that are sectioned 1 through 19, I believe you will find that much of it does appear in the schedule of the proposed judiciary article, starting on page 15 of the proposal. If you would like, I would be glad to have Delegate Cortese, who I believe was the sponsor of 1204, make a statement as to what he considers the—

DELEGATE MICHENER. I would especially like to have this, and if Delegate Cortese would submit himself to questioning, I think it would help us greatly at this point.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Well, it has helped us greatly, so I assume the Convention would be helped greatly by Delegate Cortese.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Thank you, very much. Delegate Michener, you may interrogate me without the benefit of subpoena.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Delegate Cortese, as a resident of Philadelphia and as a lawyer and as one I know who is greatly interested in the judiciary system in Philadelphia, were all of the problems posed in 1204 brought before your committee?

DELEGATE CORTESE. I would say that they were.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Was an honest attempt made to find an adjustment within the pattern for the problems which you faced in Philadelphia?

DELEGATE CORTESE. Well, I do not know, Delegate Michener, whether I can answer to what extent the personal consciences came to play, but I would say from my observation that the members of the committee applied themselves seriously and thinkingly to the pattern as presented in Proposal 1204.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Without committing you to a single thing, Delegate Cortese, did you feel that Proposal 1204 got a reasonably fair shake?

DELEGATE CORTESE. I think perhaps the best approach to that question is to suggest what substantially is in 1204 that is now incorporated in the proposal submitted by the Judiciary Committee.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Good.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Because of the problems that are unique in Philadelphia, 1204 has been organized. It is the composite thinking of the best legal minds, not only in Philadelphia but outside Philadelphia. The judicial structure as set forth in 1204 is incorporated in the judiciary proposal, and let me explain what that is. We have, under 1204 and the judiciary article abolished the magisterial system as such and in place of that system, at the minor judiciary level, we have or would have created two courts; one, a traffic court consisting of nonlawyers, and the other, a municipal court consisting in the long range of lawyers. But we have a "grandfather" provision that will continue in office for this term and one other term, magistrates now in office who are not lawyers. From the group of 28 magistrates in Philadelphia, the Governor, under the proposal, would appoint 22 to constitute the municipal court, and six to constitute the traffic court. The Governor would appoint the head of the traffic court.

The magistrates court now in Philadelphia has simple jurisdiction up to $100 plus interest and costs, and in criminal matters, the authority to conduct trials in so-called summary offenses and to hold preliminary hearings on indictable offenses.

In time, the municipal court would be made up of all lawyers. Now this, Delegate Michener, that I am going to say is a great step forward in our attempt to reduce the backlog. The president judge of the new court of common pleas has the right to assign the lawyer members of the municipal court to sit at the common pleas level. In order to reduce what Delegate Scranton likes to refer to as "minute" from the courts of common pleas, the municipal court in criminal matters has jurisdiction to dispose of crimes that carry a penalty up to and including two years.

The traffic court, I may say, is a step forward in another direction besides the judicial direction in that the traffic court is authorized to organize and implement and move forward programs calculated to reduce accidents in the Commonwealth. The traffic court's jurisdiction is limited to violations of the Motor Vehicle Code, so that this court, in addition to disposing of cases involving violations of that code, would move into the area of road safety. In that area, we believe a great contribution would be made.

Above the level of the traffic court and the municipal court, you have, under the proposal, the courts of common pleas. We abolish the current 10 courts of common pleas, each of which has three judges, and the senior in each is the president judge. These courts would be abolished. In addition to the common pleas court, we now have in Philadelphia the county court and the orphans' court. The new court of common pleas would have three divisions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would the gentleman yield?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I rise to a question of parliamentary procedure.

As much as I love the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia, I must say that he is out of order. If we are going to have this thing continue in the manner we are going now, we will be here until doomsday.

Therefore, I believe the gentleman is out of order. He has not answered the question, and I ask the Chair to rule on it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman is answering the question, and what I would like Delegate Cortese to do would be to see if we can answer a little more succinctly because our problem here is going to be time. We will, therefore, appreciate keeping the questions and answers as short as possible.

The gentleman may proceed.

DELEGATE CORTESE. Mr. President, I am approaching very rapidly the last chapter of my answer.

The orphans court division in the common pleas court would be made up of the current incumbents of the orphans court. The trial division of the orphans court would be made up of the present incumbents plus 10 additional judges; the county court would become the family division and would be made up of the current county court judges.

Above the common pleas court, we would have a president judge. Each division would select its administrative judge. Above the court of common pleas, Delegate Michener, we would have, as was so aptly suggested by Delegate Amsterdam, to tie in with the Supreme Court which would have power over the judicial business of all the courts in Philadelphia including the traffic court. That would make up the very descriptive term used by Delegate Michener of the seamless judicial knit in Philadelphia.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Two final questions to Delegate Amsterdam, please. Would the courts of Philadelphia be brought within the organizational structure of the entire State?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Completely, yes, sir.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Final question. We outside delegates have been quite confused by the matter that Pittsburgh was at one time in this system, again out, again in, again out. I would appreciate instruction on that, sir.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I am having a little bit of difficulty in that regard and I shall, therefore, ask one of the delegates who has worked very assiduously on it to help us out.

DELEGATE MICHENER. I think this is a very vital question.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. This is a vital question, and you will see as we proceed why there are some problems.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. Michener and delegates, Pittsburgh and Allegheny County are an integral part of the unified judicial system. The only difference in Allegheny County is that the head of our family division shall now be the president judge of the old county court. This is a specific provision because there are six judges taken over from county court whose functions will be, in part, the new family division of the court. We have asked that the president judge of the county court be the head of this new family division.

In addition we have asked that the magistrates in the city of Pittsburgh be retained until the General Assembly figures out the proper way to place them within the framework of the new unified judicial system. There is in the city of Pittsburgh, of recent origin, a housing court which was created under city ordinances and not by statute, a court to handle complaints about discrimination in housing and housing failures. This is a very important thing for the administration of justice under city ordinances of the city of Pittsburgh. We do not want a magistrate justice of the peace, but we want this specific person trained for this job to continue until there are some steps taken to put him within the framework of the magisterial system that will apply to the whole State.

The same thing is true for the traffic court. It does not make sense in Pittsburgh to have each alderman or new magistrate have jurisdiction over traffic cases, but we have asked, until the General Assembly acts, to continue to have a separate traffic court under a city ordinance of the city of Pittsburgh. The same is true for the police magistrates and the city court magistrates through our committee magistrates under city ordinances that have citywide jurisdiction. We are not asking for anything peculiar to Pittsburgh, just that there be an interim period to see best how these things can be carried over into the unified judicial system.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I have rarely had such clear-cut answers to my questions. This committee is to be congratulated.

DELEGATE BARRY. Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I would like to direct a question to either the Chair or the chairman of the committee.

Up until 9 o'clock this morning, I had before me Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 7. Last night I studied that particular proposal at great length for at least four to five hours. This morning I have before me Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20. I understand that about 70 amendments are already prepared and they were based upon printer's No. 7. They will have to be changed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want you to know that this is unfortunate, but they are being changed and I understand that all the amendments will be changed to conform to printer's No. 20.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I do not know the contents of printer's No. 20. I have every reason to believe that it is the same in essence as printer's No. 7, but I had quite a number of amendments prepared and now, of course, I have to go through Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Jirolanio, may I answer you? I have not proofread it, but I am sure that the content is the same as the prior printer's number, the only change having been the schedule which is appended in the rear. Unfortunately, when the printer did it over, he put different numbers on the lines.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. One possible other change, Mr. President, some of the earlier drafts of Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 7, did not contain anything on page 14. Somehow or another some of the copies were left blank; others had the proper page 14 with sections 17 and 18 on it. That correction was also made so that all of printer's No. 20 has the proper language on page 14. That was simply a printer's error.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair wants to point out there has been no change in the language, as such.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I am willing to waive the provisions, of course, as we have been waiving them continuously for the purpose of expediency, but actually we are again in violation of the rules. This proposal should, under our rules, lay over for a whole day, this being a new proposal. Under the rules, Rule 26, I think, Section 2, it would have to stay over another day, but I am satisfied to take up the matter. I just wanted to point that out.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very good. Thank you, Delegate Jirolanio.

POINT OF ORDER

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I ask Delegate Jirolanio's indulgence for a moment while I raise a point of order.

Since this is a new printer's number which was presented to us this morning for the first time, I would like to inquire of the Chair by what vote the committee passed printer's No. 20?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Printer's No. 20 has not been passed. The new printer's number was necessitated by the fact that we had the schedule placed on the end of it. In the printing, the printer, unfortunately, did not follow the same line numbers as in the previous proposal. The substance of the proposal, I am assured, is identical; no wording has been changed. You have before you the same proposal, except the schedule has been added.

When the proposal was handed in, it was the understanding, pursuant to the request of the chairmen, that the committee did not have its schedule ready at that time, and as soon as the schedule was ready, the Chair would accept it. The Chair did accept it, and through reprinting, it got a new number.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, will the committee agree that if there are any changes, this proposal will be withdrawn and the committee will agree to have the proposal go back to its original printer's number?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair understands there are no changes. If you know of any changes, we would be happy to have them called to our attention.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I want to have a clear understanding that there are absolutely no changes at all, even so much as a comma, an and or an or.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want you to know that the parliamentarian who took charge of sending it to the printer assures me that it was sent in its original form to be printed with only the schedule attached at the end. The unfortunate thing is that the line numbers were changed in the printing.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. As a matter of fact, I might add that we had to reprepare all the amendments this morning because of this printing change. Naturally, if we had it to do over again, we would have insisted that the line numbers remain the same, but this we neglected to do.

Are the delegates reasonably satisfied that they have the same proposal? I have not proofread it. I can only tell you that the original proposal which you had on your desks was sent to the printer to be copied.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. If it would make Delegate Rappaport feel any better, in addition to having proofread it, which I did, the entire committee had Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20, in its hands this morning when a majority of the Judiciary Committee met and there was absolutely no objection whatever—in fact, I would say there was unanimity—to adopting Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20, as the report of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I have some questions here that I would like to have answered by either of the chairmen.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Chairman Scranton, Delegate Hook has some questions to ask you.

DELEGATE HOOK. I am confused as to the jurisdiction of the Supreme Courts.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. All I can say to you is that the Supreme Court is part of the unified judicial system. In Section 1, we point out that the judicial power of the entire Commonwealth will be vested in the unified judicial system and then say what it is, what courts it consists of. The Supreme Court's jurisdiction is the same as it presently stands. None of it has been taken away that it presently has and it shall have in the future as provided by law. Do you have a specific question that you are worried about?

DELEGATE HOOK. I am referring to Bell's appeal, which was the case of 1959 where the Supreme Court determined that the Supreme Court had the power of the King's Bench.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. It still has it because there is a specific statement here which says, "The jurisdiction and powers of the unified judicial system shall be as provided by law, except that the jurisdiction and powers presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth shall be vested in the unified judicial system created hereby and the General Assembly shall not remove any of said jurisdiction or powers from said system or any part thereof without prior approval of the Supreme Court."

DELEGATE HOOK. One more question, Delegate Scranton, pertaining to whether or not, under original jurisdiction, you are removing this from your Section, that is, in the question of mandamus, habeas corpus, and so forth?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I am sure that we are not, but I would be glad to have our expert answer you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. The Supreme Court today has an inherent jurisdiction which it, itself, pronounced as being its King's Bench powers. In addition to that, it has certain statutory jurisdictions which are divided between the Superior Court and the Supreme Court. It was the intent of the committee—and I think the language so carries out the intent—that all the powers, whether statutory, whether King's Bench powers, which, in effect, are the Commonwealth powers, and all other constitutional powers which they now have, be retained by them. Nobody can take any of these powers away from them without their consent. It seems to me that the Supreme Court powers are thus protected. I do not think there is much danger of their powers being taken away from them without their consent unless they want to give up some of the jurisdiction which is given to them by statute. I think it is quite likely that they will want to do that, and to that they will consent.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I would like to follow this up. I have referred this question to some constitutional attorneys and this question was raised by them to me with the idea that if it is not spelled out in the Constitution that the Supreme Court will not have these powers.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I think if there were nothing said about it in the Constitution at all, it might possibly be true, although I doubt very much whether the Supreme Court would ever say that these powers were taken away from them. It was not the intent of this committee to say that these powers were taken away from them; in fact, it was the intent of the committee to say very definitely and specifically that they had all these powers. We have said in clear language, I think, that the Supreme Court shall be the highest court of this Commonwealth and shall possess all judicial powers possessed by it at the time of the adoption of this article. They certainly have the power of the King's Bench at this time. And inasmuch as they have the power of the King's Bench at this time, that is, a judicial power possessed by it at the time of the adoption of this article, and the Constitution, therefore, to my way of thinking, clearly and explicitly states that they have that power.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair at this time would like to announce that we have a total of approximately 20 amendments in connection with this particular section. We have been discussing it now just a little over an hour. The amendments have been offered by the following delegates: Delegates Barron, Shoemaker, Levin, Bloom, Barry, Redick, Hook, Thornburgh and Rea.

We have established a committee, as you know, to organize our amendments. Our committee is composed of Vice President Casey and Vice President Orban, together with our solicitor, Tom Balaban, and the attorney for the committee, Carter Buller. I would appreciate it very much if they would come forward, along with the delegates who have submitted amendments. In some cases I think there are duplications and I think it would be a great help to the delegates and to the Convention if we could discuss and get together on which amendments should be and will be presented at this time. We are going to meet right here, if you will, please, before we go into the amendment section.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Mattioni.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Delegate Scranton, in regard to the statutory powers that would, by this article, be vested with the Supreme Court, should the General Assembly determine that perhaps they should be altered, I understand by this provision it would have to get the prior approval of the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. That is correct.

DELEGTE MATTIONI. If that prior approval is not given, the General Assembly cannot act in that area?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Which they presently have.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Now let us suppose that the General Assembly, recognizing this fact, goes one step further because they may be called upon by the constituency which they represent to initiate an amendatory process to the Constitution. Would it then be necessary for the General Assembly to seek the prior approval of the Supreme Court before so doing?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Certainly the people of Pennsylvania can amend their Constitution in any way they wish at any time by following the amendment provision. They could amend the Constitution to abolish the Supreme Court entirely if they wanted, or take any other constitutional action to have any effect that they would wish it to have upon the provisions that are contained in the present or proposed Constitution.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. But as I understand it, sir, what you are saying, if I hear it correctly, is that the General Assembly's powers to do just what you have mentioned are not abridged.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Under no circumstances, in my opinion, would this have anything to do with the power of the General Assembly to submit to the people an amendment to the Constitution which, if they would adopt, would make any changes on this they wished without any consent of the Supreme Court at all.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Would this not then be, in and of itself, a constitutional provision? The constitutional provision would require, before any changes in the jurisdiction and the powers which would be lessened by adoption of this provision such as to require that before the General Assembly changed the same, it would have prior approval, whether the change would be initiating an amendatory process or through legislation?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I am not sure that I clearly understand that question. Let me say this: This does take away from the legislature the power to change the jurisdiction between the Supreme Court and the Superior Court without the consent of the Supreme Court. It does not, however, take away the power of the legislature to change that jurisdiction with the consent of the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. All right, Judge, another question.

In regard to social legislation, as I understand some of the same, there are provisions which touch upon jurisdiction. In the event the General Assembly as called upon, perhaps, by the times would desire to change those aspects of social legislation which are now in being, they would have to go to the Supreme Court and get the prior approval of the Supreme Court before the change as far as any jurisdiction of powers that are now vested or would be vested by this article could be effectuated. Am I correct in that?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Do you mean on the question of whether or not the Supreme Court would have jurisdiction and the manner of jurisdiction which they would have in dealing with the substantive questions, that the legislature would have to go before the Supreme Court to get a change in the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Yes.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. But it would have no effect on the substantive matter which would be considered. In other words, any legislation of any type which you referred to as social legislation or any other type could be passed or changed by the legislature in any respect without any reference to the Supreme Court. It is only the matter of what the Supreme Court may hear and what they may deal with and the manner of their dealing with it that cannot be changed without their consent.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Sir, does not this seem to come in conflict with Article II which states that the General Assembly shall have the legislative function? By requiring prior approval as far as the Supreme Court is concerned, you are, in effect, by this article, if it should be adopted as such, tying the hands of the General Assembly. I am sure you have considered this and I would like an explanation.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes, this has been carefully considered. The question of the jurisdiction of the court is believed by the committee to be a judicial matter. Whether it should be placed into the judiciary or whether it should be placed into the legislature is a matter which was very extensively and very forcefully debated over a long period of time in the committee. It was concluded that it should be left in the legislature. But in the matter of taking jurisdiction away from the court, and particularly the Supreme Court, and very much for the reason that was just expressed here concerning their King's Bench powers, it was felt that in jurisdictional matters the Supreme Court should have a right to determine whether or not they would approve of the removal.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Specifically then, would this provision of 1(b) require that the General Assembly, before they can amend the Constitution, in particular pertaining to the jurisdiction and the powers that would be vested by the adoption of this provision, before any change could be made, that they would have to get the prior approval of the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. To amend the Constitution?

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Yes.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. No.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I just want to pursue with the Judge, if I may, this one question that has been raised by Delegate Mattioni.

As I understand it, Delegate Mattioni's question was, that as to those items set forth in 1(b) and those items set forth in Section 9, which appear on page 4, both of which require the consent of the Supreme Court, does the consent of the Supreme Court have to be obtained to a legislative enactment that is a constitutional change before it is submitted to the people by a legislative enactment?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. No, very definitely not, I would think.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Is that an interpretation or is there clear-cut language in here that would assure us that is in fact the situation?

As I read this, it says, "The General Assembly may, with the advise and consent of the Supreme Court, establish such additional courts." Let us assume that this passes and the legislature wants to create another court and they want to go to the people with a constitutional amendment. Before we pass our piece of legislation to effect this, do we have to come back to the Supreme Court and get its consent for this?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. My opinion is that it is extremely clear that it would not apply to a constitutional amendment. I do say that if the legislature would intend, by an act, to change the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court, then it would have to get the approval of the Supreme Court to do that thing.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I think that is clear.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. But certainly under the whole Constitution, the right to amend the Constitution in any respect remains forever in the legislature, as it now stands, and the people. The Supreme Court could not possibly be involved in that in any way.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. May I add, Mr. President, that it is certainly the intention of the Judiciary Committee that this be the case. If there is the slightest doubt about it, we would have no objection to clarifying language. We believe it is quite clear that there is no doubt, but if there is any doubt, we would not object at all to that being clarified.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would be very grateful if Judge Woodside would respond to a few questions.

Sir, I happen to have a particular interest in zoning matters. At the present time, the Supreme Court has taken unto itself the power not to hear cases it does not want to hear in that field. Under this language, assuming the legislature passed a law requiring the Supreme Court to hear all zoning appeals, could it decline to hear such appeals in the face of such legislation?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I think that Section 5 speaks for itself to arrive at this question in that "There shall be a right of appeal in all cases to an appellate court of statewide jurisdiction." If that section is left in the Constitution, the answer, I think, would be that the Supreme Court would have to hear those cases whether the legislature provided that way or otherwise.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. In other words, the legislature could mandate jurisdiction on the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I do not think it would make any difference under Section 5 what the legislature did. I think the Supreme Court would have to hear it any way.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Even if it did not so wish?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Now, sir, I have another problem.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Admitting, of course, that there is no appeal from the Supreme Court on things that do not relate to the Federal Constitution.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I just say one thing?

This will come out clearly in the debate over Section 5, which is, I think, what you are talking about. When we get to that point, there are amendments to Section 5. When you get to Section 5, if there is something which is not clear to you at that time, do not hesitate to ask, but as it is presently written, there is no doubt that the Supreme Court would have to accept such an appeal.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would like to ask another question.

Under the United States Constitution, I believe traditionally in Pennsylvania, there is jurisdiction of the court limited to cases in controversy. In other words, the courts will not grant any advisory opinions whatsoever.

I am just curious as to how the consent of the Supreme Court is going to be obtained. Is the legislature going to have to send the majority and minority leaders up there to file a petition on bended knee to change the jurisdiction?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. There is no machinery set up for that in the Constitution and we did not consider it to be necessary. I would assume that what would be done in that matter would be that the Supreme Court would certify, at the request of somebody, whoever was proposing the matter to the legislature, the approval of an act that was before the Governor for signature or at some other time. It would not be effective maybe until after it was signed. It would not be effective, I would take it, under the Constitution unless and until the Supreme Court approved of the jurisdiction.

As a matter of practice, there has been quite a number of amendments in the Superior Court jurisdictional act which really divide jurisdiction between the Superior Court and the Supreme Court. Over the years, those amendments have been almost uniformly with the agreement, the knowledge and the consent of both the Superior Court and the Supreme Court even before it was done. This really only makes that step an official and required step rather than a step which was generally taken and practiced anyway.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Am I correct, sir, with respect to the United States Supreme Court, the only jurisdiction which cannot be taken away by Congress is its original jurisdiction, and all other cases can be deprived of all their jurisdiction by the United States Congress?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I am not an expert on the Federal system and I would prefer that to be answered by someone who is more of an expert on the Federal system than I am.

I think I know the Pennsylvania Constitution and its interpretation pretty well, but I do not propose to be an expert on the Federal Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Under Section 2—I am going to get back to the Supreme Court; this seems to be a bugaboo with me, but I want to stay with it for a couple of minutes—you say in paragraph (a) that the Supreme Court shall be the highest court and shall possess all judicial powers. Then in subsection (c), "The jurisdiction of the Supreme Court shall be as provided by law."

Does this mean that the General Assembly then can pull away from the Supreme Court certain inherent powers it now has?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. It means that the legislature can take away some of the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court which the legislature gave to it, of course. As a matter of fact, I guess it could take away from it other jurisdiction, but it cannot do it without the advise and consent of the Supreme Court. We felt that was sufficient protection, because we thought that no Supreme Court of this Commonwealth would ever agree to the legislature taking away its King's Bench powers, which was the thing we wanted to preserve in the Supreme Court. If for some reason it became evident under the judicial system of this Commonwealth that it would be advisable to take away the jurisdiction of the King's Bench powers of the Supreme Court, and the Supreme Court itself felt it advisable to do it, then there is no reason why the legislature along with the Supreme Court should not agree to that and have it taken away from them. I cannot conceive of any such situation, but then there are a lot of things that happen in the period of a Constitutional Convention that the delegates at the time cannot conceive.

DELEGATE HOOK. Just one more question still on the Supreme Court.

Judge, you have stated here before that you are giving the Supreme Court all the powers and so forth that it has had in the past. But if you do not spell out in this Constitution that they shall have original jurisdiction in certain areas and I take a case to the Supreme Court, they can say to me, Mr. Hook, we are sorry that we cannot take that case and we can turn it down if we so desire. Therefore, I am in a debacle as to what I am to do with my client in that particular matter, because the Supreme Court has said they do not want the case. It is a question the same as mandamus and habeas corpus as now stated in the Constitution where I have that power now to do and they have to take it. But they now come back and say to me that it is not spelled out in this Constitution and they can refuse to accept it?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I do not think so. But, again, that full matter will be debated very extensively, I am sure, as has been said by Governor Scranton, on Section 5. However, it is my opinion that whatever powers they have now, whatever they be, are set forth in the Constitution as being the same.

DELEGATE HOOK. Judge, why do we not put the language in this Constitution so we can protect against that problem?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Well, for this reason: I do not think anybody in this room, and I doubt whether any justice of the Supreme Court or any lawyer in Pennsylvania could sit down and be sure that he has accurately spelled out in complete detail all of the powers of the King's Bench and all of the legislative powers and all of the old constitutional powers that now exist in the Supreme Court. We did not feel capable of doing it. I do not think anybody is capable of doing it, and that is why we did not do it.

DELEGATE HOOK. Judge, has the language in the 1873 Constitution given us any problems in the past?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Well, there are lots of jurisdictional problems that come up over the Constitutional provisions. Yes, it has.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I think the answer is, clearly, yes. That is one reason we did this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I have a question for the Judge if he will consent to interrogation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair again recognizes Judge Woodside.

Proceed, Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I believe in Section 12, page 7, it is the proposal of the committee that the Supreme Court members be appointed by the Governor. Is that true?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes, I suppose that is true. Are we back that far? You are on a section and subject matter that we are not discussing.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I recognize that, Delegate Woodside. I am leading up to a question and I simply want to prepare you for the answer.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. All right, you tell me what it is and I will look at it.

DELEGATE IRVIS. It is a trick that I have learned in courts before.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I am sure you have done very ably.

DELEGATE IRVIS. This would mean, Delegate Woodside, as I read it, that the people who no longer elect the Supreme Court. That is true, is it not?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is correct.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Then, reading in Section 9, it states, "The General Assembly may, with the advise and consent of the Supreme Court, establish such additional courts, or divisions of existing courts, as may be needed," and I do not read the rest of the section. Now is this not, Delegate Woodside, giving the veto power to a court which no longer is elected by the people over the elected representatives of the people, the General Assembly, specifically? Last year in this General Assembly, after long debate and long research, we established in Allegheny County a housing court. This court has the specific duty of reviewing all cases involving housing laws. This, in our opinion, was a real advance in societal legislation. Under the provisions as drawn here by this committee it would be impossible for us to establish such a court again unless we have the advise and consent of the Supreme Court. This would mean, in my humble opinion, that the Supreme Court would have to decide whether or not it thought such legislation as we proposed was sufficiently important to warrant such a court which in turn would give to the Supreme Court—no longer elected by the people—a right to veto in advance social legislation as proposed on the floor of this House. Is this not so, Delegate Woodside?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Well, it depends on to what you are referring as social legislation. The Supreme Court could not prevent in any way the legislature from passing an act providing for certain relief to the public, and it could not prevent the right of appeal to a court of record. In other words, there is no question under this provision that the legislature would pass any type of social legislation that it wished and could provide either for appeal or, depending on the provision of Section 5, of no appeal as far as that is concerned. The legislature could provide for the appeal and the Supreme Court could not veto that appeal in any way. The only question there is, whether the appeal would have to be taken to the unified court system of the court of common pleas or the municipal court or some other court or courts set forth in the Constitution, or whether it could be to a special court. Now you could not set up a special court to which an appeal could be taken without the consent of the Supreme Court, and to that extent you are right.

DELEGATE IRVIS. That is the very point at issue, Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Delegate Irvis, may I say one thing here about it so that you will understand whether you think it is right or wrong, the philosophy here?

The very problem that we are presently having with the unification system in the city of Pittsburgh is a very good indication of just exactly why we did this. We are not trying in any way and have no intention of eliminating from the legislature the opportunity to establish new courts; in fact, we make it clear that this is their job if they wish to do it. But all we are anxious to do is to make sure that these courts are in the unified judicial system so that we do not have the litigant problem that we presently have in this State, where a man goes into a court and then he is told, this is not the jurisdiction of this court, you go somewhere else; or some other problem for the average litigant. This is the reason for many of the provisions that all of you are raising with regard to it, so that we can have a unified judicial system and so that the Supreme Court is responsible for the fact that we do have it and not for a lot of other little fiefdoms which do not have any component parts. We are trying to work out now and make sure that the special courts in Allegheny County do become part of this. So there is every reason in the world for the setup of the courts. Is that clear?

DELEGATE IRVIS. It is clear to me, Delegate Scranton, what you are attempting to reach, and it was clear before. I understand, I think, what the committee is trying to reach, but I am disturbed by the method. The method, it seems to me, would permit the Supreme Court, by using the word "consent"—I would not object if the word "consent" were not there, but with the word "consent" being inserted—it means, in effect, that if we wish to establish, let us say, a labor relations court, which may some day be very important, and we have seven conservative old men sitting on the Supreme Court—and I will not talk about the present Supreme Court; we will talk about the year 2000 so I am safe if I ever have to go up there—

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Remember, we have a retirement provision.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Oh, yes, I remember that too. That is the reason I put it at the year 2000.

Let us say we have seven conservative old men sitting in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in the year 2000 and the General Assembly says, we think that labor relations legislation has grown to the point where it needs a special court, and the elected officials of the people of Pennsylvania are the members of the General Assembly, they are their elected Representatives; the will of the people could be thwarted by those seven conservative old men who will simply say, we will not give our consent to the establishment of such a court.

In effect—and I will sit down after I make this point—what the committee is saying is, we give the General Assembly the right to create a beautiful motor car with the wheels, the seats, the driving apparatus and the engine, but we give the power to the Supreme Court to decide whether or not to put gasoline in it. I say at that point you have given the Supreme Court far too much control over the manufacture of that automobile. It makes no sense to manufacture the automobile if you cannot buy or procure the gas to make the motor vehicle move, and it is the same with the housing or the labor relations legislation.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I make two comments, sir?

First of all, you understand, by the method of selection of judges that the committee recommended here, that a Supreme Court justice would have to stand for reelection on a "yes" or "no" basis after 10 years; he does not now endure for his 21-year, practically lifetime, existence.

No. 2, I point out to you that you have raised the question, Delegate Irvis, which I would have great difficulty agreeing with you on, although I would have no objection to your bringing up the question of the word "consent." Let me tell you why.

The very thing that we are trying to avoid is the maljustice that is presently done in this State by the fact that we have so many different types of courts or even different "fiefdoms" in different courts at the present time with no administrative weaponry over them.

If the legislature determines that we should have a lot more, we will be right back where we were.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, for clarification, I desire to interrogate very briefly Delegate Woodside.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Woodside will stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE STROUP. Delegate Woodside, is it not true that both the Supreme and Superior Courts today have certain statutory jurisdiction determined by past legislative acts?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is correct.

DELEGATE STROUP. Then, Delegate Woodside, the main thrust of this section we are discussing has its concern primarily with the King's Bench jurisdiction. Is that correct?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I am sorry, I did not understand the question.

DELEGATE STROUP. The main thrust of the advise-and-consent jurisdiction, as I understand it, by the committee is to protect the King's Bench jurisdiction that is now vested in the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Primarily, I would say, that is correct. I cannot speak for all the committee on that. They may also have had in mind that they did not want the jurisdiction between the Supreme and the Superior Courts to be changed without the Supreme Court's consent.

DELEGATE STROUP. Delegate Woodside, if our past tradition and experience has established statutory jurisdiction for both these higher courts, what is the basic reason for now removing the power of the General Assembly to change such statutory jurisdiction?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. The feeling of the committee, generally, on that point was that we ought to preserve in the Supreme Court all of the jurisdiction whether statutory, King's Bench or whatever, that they now have and that inasmuch as they were made the head of a judicial system here and to be responsible for its operation to a very large degree and were given rather extensive judicial power over the lower courts, they should have the power to have at least something to say concerning their own jurisdiction.

That is, at least, the understanding that I have as to what the thinking of the majority of the committee was in this respect.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I thank Delegate Woodside for his very concise explanation of the position of the committee. I doubt not that this matter will be brought up further by amendment process in the Convention.

Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, I would like to ask Judge Woodside one question, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman has indicated that he will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, if I understand this document here, this eliminates the magistrates of Philadelphia as they are today?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. If it is a question relating solely to Philadelphia, I would like Delegate Cortese to answer this delegate, or Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. If the question is whether this does eliminate the magistracy of Philadelphia as it is presently constituted, the answer is, yes.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Will the people of Philadelphia have an opportunity to vote on it, whether they want to or not?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, then they vote upon the entire Constitution.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. In other words, it is either take it or leave it, the whole thing. The one subject could not be put on the ballot as such?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. There is no provision made here. I do not know how the Committee on Arrangement, Submission and Address to the People may handle this thing, but we have made no provision to have this handled separately from the balance of the judiciary article, that is correct, sir.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. It seems to me that Philadelphia cannot fight it out here. It seems to me that Philadelphians will become second-class citizens since they will not have the prerogative of deciding whether they want the magistrate system or not. You have put this in a package as such of take it or leave it. I think it is wrong.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. You are not asking me any question I take it?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. No, I am giving you my opinion; whether you agree with it or not is beside the point. But I certainly think the magisterial system that we have in Philadelphia today should be decided by the people of Philadelphia since you have cited them out of this document.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I say that our period of explanation and question and answer has gone on for about an hour and a half and I think we are about ready for amendments.

We have the first amendment here which is an amendment proposed by Delegate Amsterdam.

AMSTERDAM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I read in place and present an amendment to Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 29, by inserting after "law.": The jurisdiction of the justices of the peace shall be as provided by law.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 5, line 8, by striking out "municipal or general" and inserting: primary

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 7, line 2, by striking out "present" and inserting: president

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 8, line 7, by inserting after "or": public

Amend Sec 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, line 23, by inserting after "judge": or justice of the peace

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 9, line 7, by inserting after "on": a

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 9, line 7, by striking out "ballots" and inserting: ballot

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 6, by striking out "6 of" and inserting: 16 of this article or

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 15), page 10, line 30, by striking out "the justices thereof" and inserting: them

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendments?

COMMITTEE MEETING

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before recognizing Delegate Amsterdam, I am going to recognize Delegate Johnson.

DELEGATE JOHNSON. Mr. President, this is a matter of privilege to make an announcement. The entire Committee on Style and Drafting will meet in Room 500 for lunch and consideration today. It is a very important meeting and we hope you all will be there immediately after the recess announcement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Chairman Johnson.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, this amendment is proposed by both chairmen of the Judiciary Committee and both have signed it. It represents what we believe to be a majority view of the entire Judiciary Committee as ascertained this morning purely on matters of nonsubstance.

We believe, sir, that these amendments either cover misprints or words that were inadvertently omitted. In the case of the first of those various items, the committee had decided that jurisdiction of justices of peace should be as provided by law. We believe that would be the case anyway, but the inadvertence of not having stated those words was pointed out and that was, therefore, included.

I believe all the others are quite clear. If there are any questions on them, I will be prepared to give whatever information we have.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, ordinarily we might be ready for the question, but yesterday or the day before —I forget which day—we had some so-called correctional amendments passed in a hurry which later came back to haunt us.

I personally would like to have just a few minutes to be able to correlate this amendment with my printer's No. 20 to see whether I might have any questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair will permit it. Please let us know when you are ready.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Mr. President, during the interim, perhaps Delegate Amsterdam or someone else could explain the purpose of the amendment more fully.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I will be glad to go down each one of the items, Mr. President, if that is desired.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think it may expedite matters if you run through it quickly and it will enable everyone to understand the amendment and the purpose of it.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. The first amendment, on page 3, line 29, I have already referred to.

The next item is on page 5, line 8, where you will note that instead of "municipal or general," the word "primary" was inserted, because that same word appears on page 6, line 11, and by inadvertence, they are obviously the same. They both refer to exactly the same election, and by inadvertence, "municipal or general" was put in, whereas the committee had decided from the beginning that the word "primary" was right. We did get it in correctly on page 6, but we failed to get it on page 5. This correction, therefore, makes both of those pages the same, identical. They refer, of course, to the same election.

The third item appears on page 7, line 2, where we have the word "present" and we meant "president" judge. That is obviously a typographical error.

On the next one, which is on page 8, line 7, we have "public office or appointment", and it was obvious that the word "public" was intended to apply to both. Just to be sure there was no question about it, we added the word "public", so that it now reads, "public office or public appointment."

In the case of page 8, line 23, it was obvious that justice of the peace was intended to be covered in exactly the same way that the judges were intended to be covered. That had been the decision of the committee from the beginning, and it was simply a matter of having left out the words and they have now been inserted.

On page 9, there are two items on line 7. Just simply for clarification of language, we said "a declaration shall be submitted to the electors on separate judicial ballots." Of course, we mean on a separate judicial ballot, purely a language change. That takes care of six and seven.

Item eight, which is page 10, line 6, was simply an inadvertence again. We said Section 6 instead of 16. It is Section 16 of Article VI of the Constitution itself. It is simply clarifying language, one change from 6 to 16 so that we got the right section numbers.

The next item, also on page 10, rather than say "the judges and justices thereof," since we would have to have added the word "judges", we just made it "them", referring to judges and justices, since both of them are covered by that particular section.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Might I ask one or two further questions about the second proposed amendment here?

I understand that we are changing Section 11, on page 5, line 8, so that instead of this question being put before the public at a municipal or general election, it will be put at a primary election?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct. That corresponds with the language that is already on page 6, line 11, where we referred to the same Section 11(b) only here we referred to it correctly as being a primary election.

Actually in 11(b) itself, we had inadvertently referred to it as a municipal or general election. Is that clear, Delegate Tate?

DELEGATE TATE. It is clear, yes, and I have not really had a chance to analyze the full impact of this, but I do know that it can make a very important difference whether a controversial question is put in a primary election or a municipal or general election.

I think it is no secret that political organizations, traditionally, have found that it is easier to pass something they are in favor of at a primary election than at a municipal or general election, and vice versa.

I would request, Delegate Amsterdam, in order to separate this, which I think may be a major change for separate consideration, that you take this amendment out and have it separately considered.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I certainly have no objection at all except that I do want to point out to Delegate Tate that unless we make some change either here or on the other page that I have referred to, we simply are going to have an inconsistency in the article.

DELEGATE TATE. I see that.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I have no objection at all to having it taken out and being considered separately. That, however, would not represent the point of view of the committee. The committee's point of view is that "primary" is intended to be in both and, therefore, we wanted everyone to know that that was our decision in the committee, but I have no objection, of course, to it being treated in any way that the delegates wish.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair's only comment is that this would be up to you, the sponsor of the amendment, to decide whether or not you wish to withdraw that portion and submit it separately.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I will be perfectly willing to withdraw it and submit it separately. Delegate Barron has an excellent suggestion, if I may say so: Why do we not put this in and then waive the rule with regard to reconsideration so that it may be treated as a normal amendment if Delegate Tate or anybody else wishes to amend it? Then we would at least have the committee's language in it without prejudicing any delegate's right to make a change. I wonder if that would be a satisfactory way of handling it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. That, of course, creates a presumption in favor of the language that we would then have. I think I prefer the former method unless there is some good reason not to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want you to know that it was an excellent suggestion.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. May I make a parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. On the same point Delegate Tate is speaking to, I, too, am troubled by some of these amendments. I must confess I did not realize what was going on, I believe it was the day before yesterday, with Taxation and Finance on their so-called technical amendments. I would, therefore, ask whether the co-chairmen would agree to ask unanimous consent that these changes be made so that we may not be burdened with the problems of reopening the questions later on. I for one, although I may not agree with some of these, not having had time to study them, would not object if Chairman Amsterdam would ask unanimous consent that these changes be made and permit us to amend them in the ordinary course of events.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair just wants to point out that if we do that, I certainly and sincerely hope we do it only in connection with this matter because we are opening everything up to the situation that when we adopt an amendment, we will be changing that amendment an hour later, which does not make for progress.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I am referring only to technical amendments made by the chairmen of various standing committees, sir. I think, perhaps, it might be the best course.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Amsterdam in connection with his amendments.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Technically I am not qualified to know whether the suggestion is proper or not. Delegate Scranton and I would be perfectly agreeable and I am sure the committee would be, too, to treat these as part of the original proposal of the committee, so that if anybody wanted to amend it they would be subject to amendment like anything else in the material. Is that satisfactory? If that is what is being requested, we have no objection to it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, I would like to direct this question to Delegate Amsterdam. Should not there also be a change on page 6, subdivision (d), on line 5?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No, that was intended by the committee to be a municipal or general election, not a primary election. In other words, we are not trying to change anything that is substantive. We are trying to reflect here what the committee intended to put before the Convention. You may not agree with it, and I am sure that if you do not and the majority of the delegates vote in favor of the amendment, it will be amended, and you do not want to affect your right to do that in the slightest degree.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. This is my problem, Delegate Amsterdam: I do not want to be bound by having to get a motion for reconsideration passed.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. May I ask the parliamentarian how we manage this so that everyone's rights are adequately protected?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The parliamentarian has indicated that if we have unanimous consent, we can agree that each one of these items on the Amsterdam amendment can be amended without a motion to reconsider and, in effect, would be treated as a part of the original proposal for that purpose.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I again raise the question I raised with Delegate Amsterdam. I think he is in error on his answer.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Let me say this: I have not had a chance to review it as carefully as I should like to and Delegate Orban may be entirely right on the merits. All I am saying is that the committee did not decide to make this change as a matter of language; therefore, it has not been taken care of by the committee. If we have made a mistake in language, that ought to be amended in the normal way by the delegate who points out our mistake. I see nothing wrong with that. This was not taken up by the committee as all the other items were and we got a majority vote of our committee for all these technical amendments. Am I clear? It may very well be that this ought to be changed in order to be consistent. I have no objection, if that is the case to an amendment being made for that purpose.

MOTION TO DISPENSE WITH RECONSIDERATION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, I would like to move that the amendments be listed as correctional amendments on behalf of the committee and not be subject to a motion for reconsideration.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I would second that, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegated Pasquerilla and seconded by Delegate Amsterdam that these amendments be not subject to a motion for reconsideration.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I am assuming, sir, that the motion means that any delegate may amend this without the necessity for reconsideration in the normal way that an amendment is made to the proposal?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is right, and this just applies to this particular amendment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, before we vote on this, I understand that this will place as part of the committee proposal all of these amendments even though they may be subject to further consideration. I have just checked around with a couple of members of the Judiciary Committee and as I understand it, Delegate Amsterdam is quite correct that, with respect to amendment No. 2, there was a recognized inconsistency which had to be clarified here. I see that. However, I am also advised that the committee did not discuss and decide whether that inconsistency should be resolved in favor of making it consistent for primary elections or making it consistent for municipal and general elections.

Mr. President, I think it could be a very important question and, therefore, I do not think the word "primary" should be written in here to create the presumption that this is the committee proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do I understand that you want to withdraw that part then?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, at the meeting of the Judiciary Committee this morning, it was explained to us that that was a scrivener's error. I do think that Delegate Amsterdam ought to move to have his amendment either passed or not passed now and we will get on with this business. Three of the scriveners have come up to me to indicate this was their error. I think that is what Delegate Amsterdam ought to state for the record and then we can go on from there.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, Delegate Solomon is absolutely right. This was a scrivener's error. I remember the day in the Finance Building that we had our meeting and the word "primary" was voted upon and approved. The reason that it now appears "municipal or general election" is only because of the scrivener's error. We as a committee are asking that these amendments be introduced as housekeeping amendments and I think that we ought to insist upon the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro. We have a motion on the floor now and I hope we speak to the motion.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I do not know whether this goes to the motion or not, Mr. President. I only wanted to state that while it is true we did not discuss correcting 12(d) this morning, the fact is that the decision of the committee some time ago, as Delegate Curran has just said, was to hold these elections in a primary and it was only a scrivener's oversight not only as to (e)—I am calling off the wrong section—not only as to the one that Delegate Amsterdam wishes to correct, but also as to the one that Delegate Orban spoke about. It seems to me we ought to correct both of them at the same time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, there is a motion on the floor and I think we have had adequate discussion on it. I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have had the motion, and let the Chair state the motion. The motion is that we consider all of the amendments set forth on the Amsterdam amendments as part in effect of the original proposal so that at any time any one of these items on this amendment can be amended without a motion to reconsider the vote.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—135

Aberman	Croop	Kline	Richter
Allison	Curran	Krill	Ruth
Amsterdam	Dailey	Laputka	Sabli
Aurentz	Desmond	Leach	Scales
Bagenstose	Devlin	Lee, L.	Scarlett

Baldrige	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Scranton
Baldus	Erwin	Leonard	Sebastian
Baldwin	Fagan	Manderino	Shapiro
Banes	Fawcett	Mangery	Sharp
Barron	Fay	Markley	Shettig
Barry	Feather	Mattioni	Shively
Bashoff	Filson	McGeary	Shoemaker
Benedict	Fineman	Meyer	Shrager
Benfield	Fohl	Michael	Silverman
Bloom	Fortney	Michener	Solomon
Braham	Gabreski	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Brennan	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Stout
Broderick	Gerber	Moorhead	Strickler
Brown	Goldstein	More	Stroup
Buck	Gouger	Morton	Swope
Bunting	Griffith	Murray	Thornburgh
Burkholder	Hannum	Nelson	Tomascik
Butera	Harding	O'Donnell	Tully
Cain	Hatter	Orban	Van Sant
Camardella	Henderson	Orbin	Waldron
Caputo	Himes	Otto	Warman
Caron	Horne	Pasquerilla	Welsh
Casey	Hostetler	Popil	Westerberg
Clark	Huggins	Pott	Whittum
Clinger	Irvis	Powell	Wilcox
Conley	Kauffman	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Corey	Keller, J.	Rea	Woodring
Cortese	Kelly	Redick	Woodside
Cosetti	King	Reynolds

NAYS—3

Hocker	McGlynn	Tate

NOT VOTING—25

Cunningham	Heyburn	Lee, K.	Prendergast
Donaldson	Hook	Levin	Quiles
Donolow	Jirolanio	Musselman	Roberts
Fleming	Johnson	Pechan	Rovner
Forster	Keller, M.	Pelletier	Scott
Goldman	Lane	Percey	Thomson
Gray

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

BARRON AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the next amendment. The next amendment is the amendment being offered by Delegate Barron. The clerk will read the amendment, and the pages will distribute it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRON offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, lines 13 to 16; page 2, lines 1 to 3, by striking out all of said lines and inserting: (b) The jurisdiction and powers of the unified judicial system shall be as provided by law. The jurisdiction and powers presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth are hereby vested in the unified judicial system.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I thank you very much for the gracious opportunity after the distinguished presentation of our co-chairman to be the first to suggest an appeal.

Mr. President, I am well cognizant of the number of appeals that are involved here and I suggest and raise an issue for the Chair's entire interpretation and consideration. I know that Delegate Baldrige is very much concerned on this same subject. I know from the question-and-answer period that Delegates Irvis and Stroup are concerned on the very same subject. I feel, sir, that there may be common language so that the basic issue of whether the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania shall have the power of approval over any new courts created by the legislature is firmly, clearly and for one time only presented to this Convention. I am interested in having that issue resolved. My language simply does not concur in all points with the other gentleman's language and I am sure that given an opportunity we can frame something so that this issue is clearly put and put to the Convention once and determined once and, we hope, not subject to recall.

I hesitate to suggest at this anxious moment, when time is such a consideration, but I am wondering if some period of recess, while we get integrated with this new printer's number and while we get integrated with one another's ideas as to the areas wherein we feel there is drastic revision needed, would not be in the ultimate conducive to orderly consideration of all subjects subject to amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair thinks that is an excellent suggestion. Is there anybody who objects?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I do not object to what they want to do. In fact, I think this would be a great facilitation, sir, but we know we have a tremendous number of amendments here. Would it not be possible to take up some of the others on this first section while they are negotiating on this particular issue?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed, we can do that if that is agreeable.

Pursuant to Delegate Barron's suggestion, copies of his amendment have been distributed, and it would be the recommendation of the Chair that any persons who are interested should get together with Delegate Barron here and see if they are agreeable to the language that he suggests; if not, he is apparently agreeable to accept something similar.

DELEGATE BARRON. Delegate Mattioni has indicated to me that he is concerned about this same subject. I do not think we are wasting the Convention's time, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very good.

If there is no objection, while you are conferring we would like very much to take up the next amendment, because this morning we have not made as much progress as we would like to have made.

(Conference on Barron amendment)

WELSH AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, I read in place and present the following amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE WELSH offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, line 10, by inserting after "pleas,": orphans' courts,

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 2, line 22, by removing the period after "Pleas" and inserting: and Orphans' Courts.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 6), page 2, by inserting between lines 28 and 29: (c) In any district in which a separate orphans' court presently exists there shall be a separate orphans' court which initially shall consist of the number of judges authorized to sit on the orphans' court of the district when this section becomes effective. The jurisdiction of the court shall continue to be the jurisdiction now exercised by the orphans' court of the district, unless modified by rule of the Supreme Court. In any other district there may be a separate orphans' court as the General Assembly may determine upon recommendation of the Supreme Court. One of its judges shall be President Judge.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I rise to offer this amendment for the retention of a separate orphans court, which, in effect, would be a continuation of the status quo under the terms of the existing Constitution. I came to this Convention determined not to go for the status quo and I think, perhaps, my record in all of the voting up to this point might indicate that my position has been just that. However, I feel that the continuation of a separate orphans court in counties of 150,000, as presently exists and called for in the Constitution, should be maintained, and if we want to call that a status quo, then I am for that particular section.

We have, if we erase orphans courts as such, erased almost 300 years of Pennsylvania legal history. These courts were created that long ago, and if we go for the status quo, I maintain that we will continue to submit the orphans court in the legal history of Pennsylvania. We have, I think, submitted in the legislative apportionment 203 and 50; we have also submitted and continue to imbed into Pennsylvania law, the Constitution, the utility exemption and also perpetuate the tax on utilities as presently existing. If we erase the orphans courts, we are erasing a specialty, I think, and I do not believe that that would be consistent with what the present-day world calls for. In light of my remarks of last week, I think the retention in this case of the status quo would be a modern thing to do because of the specialization which this State and the entire nation are presently going through.

The orphans courts of Allegheny County and Philadelphia and several other counties have full-time judges. We have four, for example, who spend all of their time caring for the management of moneys of estates. The matters of the orphans court for the most part are not matters which are put on a docket and, in a short period of time after the matters are heard, are dismissed. Many cases and trusts last for a period of years and, therefore, the items in dockets and papers are constantly on the judges' desks. Therefore, an orphans court judge could be concerned with various trusts and estates and wills for a period of one week and the following week have to go to criminal court or even try an equity case, which might take weeks, and then go back to the orphans court and pick up where he left off. All of the employes of the orphans court, for example, are specialists in the handling of administration of accounts and trustees' accounts.

I, therefore, rise in support of my amendment and request that if we have to term it so, keep the status quo with regard to the orphans court in the State of Pennsylvania.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I would like to join in the sentiments of my learned friend from Allegheny County. I have no objection, and I am sure under the unified court system which we are going to adopt in some form, that orphans court judges will sit in other courts, perhaps as visiting judges. However, I believe it is extremely important to keep a separate orphans court in those counties which have and want separate orphans courts. These judges have become experts in rather complicated and technical types of litigation and I think this expertise must be maintained. To my knowledge, I am not too familiar with western Pennsylvania but I am told that throughout the State the orphans courts are the only courts that are up to date completely. I know it is true in Philadelphia. I know that if I have a problem and have to see an orphans court judge, I can see him right away and I have no problems. I think it is extremely important that we keep a separate orphans court. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, delegates, ladies and gentlemen, the committee went into this subject in great depth over a long period of time and you may notice that in the provisions of both the proposal itself and in the schedule, we provide for the unified court system which we think is of absolute, fundamental importance to the improvement of the judicial system in Pennsylvania. Then we provide that the orphans courts —and specify Philadelphia County and Allegheny County —shall become divisions of the common pleas court so that there will be no interruption whatsoever in the operations of the courts, so that the people who are presently judges there will be moved to these divisions, not bodily because they stay where they are, but for structural purposes. Likewise, it is in the schedule that the orphans courts that are now established in 28 other counties will likewise become divisions of the common pleas court, therefore not interrupted; and, likewise, if there are to be any further changes, that is up to the legislature, where it properly belongs.

Consequently, it is our opinion that all the advantages of specialization by these people who are specialized in this field are retained and that, indeed, the advantage of doing what we have done is to make sure that any of them who may have extra time, which frankly is the case in certain jurisdictions, may be used in other courts of common pleas, but not obviously excessively. It, for example, was flamboyantly brought to our attention that this might mean that some orphans court judge would be sitting on a homicide case. This is not intended, and let me assure you that the administration by the Supreme Court under the unified system does not want to venture with that sort of thing. It might mean that some orphans court judges, when they had extra time, would be called upon to hear motions, or something of an elementary nature of that type, in other courts—this to facilitate justice in this State and to act to do something along the line of creating an administrative system that works, and so that we do not have individual "fiefdoms" in the State, and at the same time retain the specialization. May I say to you in no uncertain terms, that the overwhelming majority of the committee was for this change and we believe that it has these two advantages: It retains the specialization and yet makes it possible to have a unified court system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, I am going to speak on the same side of the issue as Governor Scranton has just spoken, so if there is someone on the other side, I would yield.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do we have anybody on the other side?

DELEGATE TATE. I have a question on either side, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate. Who would you like to answer your question, Delegate Tate?

DELEGATE TATE. I would like to ask the question of either of the chairmen of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Chairman Scranton, will you?

Chairman Scranton will be interrogated.

DELEGATE TATE. I listened with interest to the statement just made by Delegate Scranton. I think that many of us here are extremely interested that the integrity, meaning the up-to-dateness, and the expertise of the present orphans court would be preserved in whatever new system comes out of this Convention and from the people. I would like to ask, Delegate Scranton, what assurance he can give us, personally and on behalf of his committee, that this integrity will be preserved under the unified system proposed by the committee with respect to the requirement that the orphans court work be done by persons, judges, who have experience and expertise in this area and in such a way that the work of the orphans court will continue where it has been in the past to be as effectively and efficiently done as we have known it in recent years?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Obviously, Delegate Tate, I cannot give any personal guarantee, because I will not be involved in the administration of the judicial system. But it is perfectly clear, from what has been written in the proposal and the schedule, that they do maintain jurisdiction with regard to this subject and their operations with regard to it through the divisional system.

I think it would be obviously the better part of judgment on the part of the president judges of the common pleas and of the Supreme Court in their administrative powers to see to it that this is done. I cannot imagine anything that would interfere with it, except personal heat, which you might get in any kind of setup.

Frankly, after we had done this, after we had made it clear to those who were quite open in their criticism of changing the orphans court, when they found out what we did, they withdrew their objections. I, frankly, think this is a tremendous step forward without in any way hurting the present system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, I think it ought to be clear at this point that anyone who favors a separate orphans court cannot at the same time favor a unified judicial system. You are either for one or the other.

We have an enormous problem in Philadelphia and I do not think it is restricted to Philadelphia. We need judicial manpower moved around, and this proposal as submitted by the committee allows the president judge to move judicial manpower to the spot where it is most needed.

It also eliminates another problem which currently exists, and that is, having to try the same case possibly two or three times. The orphans court only has certain jurisdiction; the common pleas court only has certain jurisdiction. In some cases it is necessary to have some portion of the case determined by the orphans court and then go down to common pleas court and have other portions of the same matter tried there.

The committee proposal completely eliminates this necessity. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I will not speak for or against this amendment. It is pretty generally known that I have been rather closely associated with an orphans court judge for some 40 years, but I do wish that the delegates would carefully consider everything that has been said on this floor. If nothing is to be changed, as it has been indicated by the distinguished chairman of this committee, as far as the operations are concerned, then I want you to weigh that in coming to your conclusion.

I thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, a further and important consideration in abolishing the orphans court is that it terminates many areas where there are conflicts about jurisdiction.

There have been over the years many conflicts between the orphans court and the common pleas as to who had jurisdiction. Then in many other courts there have been similar conflicts between jurisdiction. It is the present attempt to eliminate all of those conflicts.

I said this to my committee and they will bear hearing it again. When we consider the jurisdiction of the United States Supreme Court and the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, there are obviously some conflicts of jurisdiction. That cannot be helped, because two sovereignties are involved.

However, if we in the court system set up little areas of jurisdiction within our own courts whereby litigants may fail because they get into the wrong courts where they may be halted and harassed by these differences, we are setting traps for our unwary citizens.

All those conflicts of jurisdiction are merely lawyers' talk. The lawyers' talk does not add a dollar nor subtract a dollar from what is at stake.

Therefore, if for no other reason than to terminate these interminable conflicts in jurisdiction which have gone to the appellate courts many times, we ought to terminate this system.

Next, I notice a statement that the docket of the orphans court is free. That is because the volume of work ahead of the orphans court is much less. I used to sit from time to time in the courts of Pittsburgh and I found there that there were orphans court judges from certain jurisdictions who were there commonly every day of the week, except one which they saved for home. They would have stayed home if they had more work. Of course, they came out to do the Commonwealth's work elsewhere, but to allow this kind of separation of the court gives to some of the judges of the general court the option to take it easy or to go away and work somewhere else for the Commonwealth at an additional expense.

I do not like the idea that there is something sacred or sacrosanct about the jurisdiction of the orphans courts. Somebody said something that would indicate to consider the lamentable feature that a man would have to leave these trust papers of the trust that had been running for many years and go off to try just an ordinary common pleas case, like an adoption or a criminal case. I want to borrow some language that I have heard from time to time here. In the common pleas court, and I have been a judge in both, we are not dealing with the money of dead people. We are dealing with a real living article right down in front of us, and that is why the common pleas court is a more important court. I think, at all costs, the jurisdiction of the orphans court should be united with that of the general court of jurisdiction in the county, the common pleas court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, coming from York County where we have had an orphans court as a separate court for some 30-plus years and having conferred with not only the other delegates from York county but the bench and the bar of our county, I must stand to support this amendment because, very frankly, if what Delegate Silverman said in opposing the amendment is true, that we either have to be one way or the other, then we certainly, from the areas where the orphans court is an established practice, have to be in favor of Delegate Welsh's status quo.

We have had a superior experience in York County with the separate orphans' court. We have always had a specialist run for the job and be elected, and we have had complete satisfaction with it. We can see no reason why—maybe I am incorrect in this—we should change this to a system where in the future someone would be selected or elected, depending on the outcome of this Convention and the people's vote, and placed in the position of having then to be assigned to one place or another. We have been fortunate to find that the people who ran for the president of the judges of the orphans court have been specialists by virtue of their training, their experience and their general temperament in dealing with their practice before they were on the bench. It is quite clear to us in York County who have a separate orphans court, no matter what label it carries, it is an important function of the judicial structure, and we are in favor of keeping it as it is. We believe that this amendment takes a step in that direction in opposition to the general plan outlined by Proposal No. 7 and, therefore, we are in favor of it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caputo.

DELEGATE CAPUTO. I rise in favor of the amendment, Mr. President. Much has been said, or at least something has been said, about the orphans court judges from different counties sitting in Allegheny County because they had no work. Apparently common pleas judges also sit in Allegheny County because they have no work at home.

The original submission to this delegation of the Pennsylvania Bar Association proposal—if I am incorrect, I stand to be corrected—contained a provision for separate orphans courts. I do not know what has happened to the people who proposed that proposal but now they have changed their minds and want to make the orphans court a part of the common pleas court.

I have no opposition to a unified system of courts in Pennsylvania; I believe that is the most important thing before this Convention, but I do believe that the orphans court in Pennsylvania should be maintained as a separate court because its functions are different from the common pleas court; its functions are different from trial by jury. Therefore, in adopting all the arguments made in favor of this amendment, I stand here in favor of the passage of the amendment and keeping the orphans court separate from the common pleas court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Clinger.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I want to make the delegates here understand that the purport of this amendment and its effect would be to create two courts on the same level of the judiciary. The whole thrust, and certainly the main objective of the judiciary article, is for a unified court system.

This is the very antithesis of a unified system if we have two courts on the same level and, therefore, separate administration, separate supervision for each court. Therefore, I would oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. Mr. President, the thrust of the proposal of the committee is to have specialized judges, not specialized courts. The expertise that is exercised in the orphans court would be retained and I think it should be pointed out to the Convention that the orphans court judges, at least in Philadelphia, do now sit on criminal and civil cases. The only difference that this proposal would bring about is that they would not have to give their prior consent to sit on these cases; the administrative judge could assign them where they were needed.

If it is in order now, Mr. President, I would move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Welsh, you have a right to close. Do you want to say something?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I would like to be recognized by the Chair, if I may.

DELEGATE WELSH. I would like to yield to Delegate O'Donnell.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I think it is only fair to bring to the attention of this assembly several items of information which may be of interest, one of which is that the Pennsylvania Bar Association which has been one of the foremost exponents and proponents, if you will, of a unified judicial system has, by referendum in the first instance, by vote at one of its annual meetings in the second instance, and by vote of its house of delegates in the third instance, voted in favor of the retention of the orphans court. I personally am a member of a bar in two counties in this Commonwealth, Montgomery County and Chester County, and I was a member of both of those bars, practicing before those courts before each of those two counties had a separate orphans court and after each of those counties had a separate orphans court. I have had an opportunity personally to observe the distinction in the manner in which estates' matters were handled in both. I can say to you, sir, that the handling of estates' matters in the two jurisdictions is not only improved 100 per cent but perhaps 100,000 per cent because handling estates and handling trial and negligence cases and the usual run-of-mine material that comes before a common pleas court is entirely different.

To the proponents of this proposal, I am going to say this: I believe that in the judicial article as framed today by the Judiciary Committee, admittedly, compromises were made. But as framed today, there is a separate orphans court division in the common pleas court. In the schedule it provides that the present president judge in each division shall continue to be the president judge of the orphans court division. The only difference is that now orphans court judges are made subject to possible assignment by order of the court administrator through the office of the Supreme Court.

I believe that the present judiciary article as it is now written meets both the objections and the praise that has been heaped upon the orphans court. I believe that the retention of the separate orphans court is not necessary inasmuch as this judiciary article treats the orphans court as a division of the common pleas court, a division which keeps its own judges, keeps its own books and records, makes the clerk of the orphans court continue to be the clerk of the orphans court and at the same time permits a great deal of unified judicial system.

I think that the judiciary article on this subject should be bought as is.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Filson.

DELEGATE FILSON. Mr. President, I rise very reluctantly against Delegate Welsh to say that I do not stand for the amendment. I oppose it. I come from a county where we have one judge; we have all of the various courts under the one judge. We find no great difficulty in handling all the cases that are there excepting once in a while, perhaps, you find yourself in the wrong court and you create for yourself a jurisdictional problem as has been referred to by Judge Braham.

I live for the day when I can go into common pleas court with a petition or a complaint with a head on the caption "In the Court of Common Pleas." If, unfortunately, there is any matter of jurisdiction which would put me out of court, I will not be kicked out of court for the reason that I am then in the unified judicial system and my client will have the advantage of it.

I should also like to submit to this delegation that in connection with the hearings which were held before the Judiciary Committee on the 27th day of December of 1967, I heard no orphans court plea excepting to tell us that the orphans court work was caught up to date. I submit to you that the amount of orphans court work that has to be done in relation to the number of orphans court judges is the reason that they are caught up to date. I see no reason why the public, why the client, should wait three years, in Allegheny County or thereabouts, to secure for himself justice, and negligence cases, in other areas, in as high as six and a half years as in the City of Philadelphia, while the orphans courts sit idly by and do not help to pick up the backlog.

I submit to you that the unified judicial system should be put into operation; it should be put into operation as it has been written by the judiciary article and I submit to you that the sooner we put it into effect, the better the judicial system will be in Pennsylvania and that the clients will be much better off.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gabreski.

DELEGATE GABRESKI. Mr. President, I wish to remind you that there is a question moved and seconded and it is before this Convention.

DELEGATE WELSH. That is, of course, subject to my summing up, I suppose.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have the opportunity under the rules to sum up and then we shall vote on the question.

DELEGATE WELSH. Fellow delegates, we in Local Government have continued and kept the specific words of the county commissioners, district attorneys, auditors, treasurers and various other constitutional officers and, as a matter of fact, even yesterday we added one new constitutional officer, that of public defender.

It also seems to me that we retained the names of cities, boroughs and townships presently existing in the Constitution, and these will, after April 23, continue to be in the Constitution.

It also seems to me quite inconsistent with the judiciary if it advocates the taking out of a specific court, namely the orphans court, because they want a unified court system. Yet they still maintain the justice of the peace, for example, provisions for the justices of the peace and provisions for the justices of the peace who are not lawyers. It seems to me certainly to be inconsistent with a unified court system if you have judges and lawyers practicing in all the courts of Pennsylvania but you do not have judges at the justice of the peace level.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the question.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Welsh?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—50

Aberman	Curran	Keller, J.	Shettig
Aurentz	Desmond	Keller, M.	Shoemaker
Bagenstose	Dumbauld	Kline	Shrager
Baldrige	Fagan	Krill	Stout
Baldwin	Fawcett	Mattioni	Swope
Banes	Fineman	McGlynn	Van Sant
Barron	Griffith	Michael	Waldron
Barry	Harding	Miller, D.	Warman
Bashoff	Hatter	Prendergast	Welsh
Butera	Irvis	Rappaport	Westerberg
Caputo	Jirolanio	Richter	Whittum
Corey	Johnson	Ruth	Woodside
Cosetti	Kauffman

NAYS—87

Amsterdam	Devlin	Lee, L.	Rovner
Baldus	Fay	Leinbach	Sahli
Benedict	Feather	Leonard	Scales
Benfield	Filson	Manderino	Scarlett
Bloom	Fohl	Mangery	Scranton
Braham	Forster	McGeary	Sebastian
Brennan	Fortney	Meyer	Shapiro
Broderick	Gabreski	Michener	Sharp
Brown	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Shively
Buck	Gerber	Moorhead	Silverman
Bunting	Goldstein	More	Solomon
Burkholder	Gouger	Morton	Sprogell
Cain	Hannum	Murray	Strickler
Camardella	Himes	Nelson	Stroup
Caron	Hook	O'Donnell	Tate
Casey	Horne	Orban	Thornburgh
Clark	Hostetler	Orbin	Tomascik
Clinger	Huggins	Otto	Tully
Conley	Kelly	Pott	Wilcox
Cortese	Laputka	Powell	Wilmarth
Croop	Leach	Redick	Woodring
Dailey	Lee, K.	Reynolds

NOT VOTING—26

Allison	Gray	Markley	Poptl
Cunningham	Henderson	Musselman	Quiles
Donaldson	Heyburn	Pasquerilla	Rea
Donolow	Hocker	Pechan	Roberts
Erwin	King	Pelletier	Scott
Fleming	Lane	Percey	Thomson
Goldman	Levin

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BLOOM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are now ready for the next amendment, which is the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BLOOM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 8, by inserting after "of": not less than

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 8, by inserting after "seven": nor more than nine

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, line 9, by inserting after "Justice.": The General Assembly may add the eighth or ninth justice, but only upon prior certification of the necessity therefor by the Supreme Court.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Mr. President, delegates, the only reason I am asking for this amendment to the Constitution is that I am trying to foresee the future. I know at the present time that the Supreme Court and the Superior Court have seven judges and they are doing a good job, but I do know this from experience over the 45 years which I have practiced, that the law is evolving; there is always new law. The Supreme Court is having more and more cases to decide and that is the amendment we are working on now.

I am not by this amendment asking that the court be increased; I am only trying to foresee the future, 25 to 50 or maybe 75 years from now. I do not think it is right to tie down the number seven to the Supreme Court and say that the Supreme Court can only be enlarged when it finds by expediency that it is not able to do the work, that it has too many cases to decide and it is not able to do all of it, and it must go to the people and the legislature for an amendment, which takes a period of two years. Whenever that necessity arises, I think it should get the relief and get it within the immediate future rather than have to wait for a two-year period.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Bloom, would you yield for a moment? I understand that the pages may have passed out the wrong amendment for you.

The amendment you are talking to now, I understand, is that the General Assembly may add the eighth or ninth justice but only upon prior certification of the necessity therefor by the Supreme Court.

This is the one you are speaking to now, is it not?

DELEGATE BLOOM. I am only on the Supreme Court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE BLOOM. That is the one I am talking about.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is that the amendment that you have?

DELEGATE BLOOM. They are both similar. They are both absolutely similar; the verbiage in both of them is the same, and you can consider it as the Supreme Court instead of the Superior Court because I do have a similar amendment in for the Superior Court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Bloom, the Chair would have no objection if you wanted to consider both of your amendments at the same time and we would consider them consolidated. They seem to present the same question. It is up to you; they are your amendments.

DELEGATE BLOOM. They are my amendments. I do not know why they should not, but you never can tell how a delegate might feel about these matters. He may feel that the Superior Court should have the amendment passed and the Supreme Court should not, so therefore they both might fall or they both might go through all right, but I cannot judge the mental attitude of the Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. I would request Delegate Bloom and the Chair to permit all three amendments to be decided separately because I think they present three separate questions and I think that we could get a sounder and more cogent vote from the delegates because I think the third amendment discusses—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want Delegate Gerber to know that the Chair knows about two amendments, but I do not know about the third.

DELEGATE GERBER. Maybe I misunderstand it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The only amendments I have up here at the desk are one on the Supreme Court and one on the Superior Court, and as I understand it now Delegate Bloom prefers to present his amendments separately, and that is his privilege, so proceed.

The first one we are going to consider is the one on the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE BLOOM. The Supreme Court, that is right. I want to call the delegates' attention to this one fact that no one can deny, that is, the population will increase in the State of Pennsylvania—there is no doubt in my mind—and it will increase considerably. And I want to call one other fact to the delegates' attention, that there are going to be more lawyers and there are going to be more judges. Therefore, we are going to have more cases and the burden of the Supreme Court is going to be greater because we are going into new horizons and there will be new matters for the court to decide that have never come up before. The main thrust, the main reason why I am asking for this amendment, not for the present but for the future, is so that the Supreme Court will not be burdened by the fact that it will have to wait approximately two years to go through the process of amendment in order to get help that it might need at the time it needs that help.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, in my personal opinion, this is one of the most serious amendments that will be offered here today. The committee felt very strongly that the number of justices of the Supreme Court should be set forth in the Constitution as it has been in the past. We have had an exceptionally good appellate court system in Pennsylvania. I have frequently said that if the judiciary would have the publicity agents that the executive and the legislative branches have, our judicial system, particularly as it relates to appeals, would be advertised all over this nation as being the finest in the country. What we have done, we have been able to avoid the circuit court or panel court, intermediate courts. Now this will enter into some of the discussion which would come up on the next amendment, but I think it would be better if we would be allowed to argue the two somewhat together.

The Superior Court has been under our system a court which has had a jurisdiction almost on the level of the Supreme Court. We have avoided in Pennsylvania what has annoyed many other States and what has annoyed the Federal Government to a very great degree. As to the Supreme Court alone, because as I understand we are going to take these two amendments separately, we probably ought to argue the second one in relation to the Superior Court at that time. May I say in reference to the Supreme Court that to me it is terribly important to set forth in the Constitution the exact number on the Supreme Court because we have all seen that there can be court packing for a particular reason, and we have been able in the years to prevent that in Pennsylvania. It has happened; efforts have been made to do it nationally; efforts have been made to do it in some of the other States, but in Pennsylvania our Constitution has avoided that and has made it possible to carry on the work with seven judges without any thought of increasing the number.

Actually, when you have nine judges, you do lessen the work somewhat of the other judges, but they must still read the same number of opinions which are written and they still must hear the same number of cases, regardless of whether there are seven or nine judges. So that nine judges do not reduce substantially the amount of work of any particular judge.

The Supreme Court is rather busy. Let us look at what the record shows concerning the Supreme Court in 1936. It took, between argument and decisions in 1936, 63 days for them to hand down an opinion; ten years later, in 1946, 53 days; ten years later, in 1956, 56 days. In 1966, which was the last record then available when this was made out, it took 92 days. In 1966, they handled 337 cases. Way back in 1936, they handled 374 cases.

Now, what ought to be done? Very clearly, it seems to me on the appellate court system that some of the work which is now in the Supreme Court can and should be given to the Superior Court, because the Superior Court can still take some additional work away from the Supreme Court.

Another thing in the Supreme Court which we must remember is that fact that under the present law, one judge can allow an allocatur. That means that on appeals from the Superior Court or on request for a hearing by the Supreme Court from cases that have been decided by the Superior Court, one of the seven can require all seven to hear and listen to that case.

In the Supreme Court of the United States, there is a different rule. There four must agree to hear the case before it can be heard. It might well be that the law should be changed to have a provision whereby three of the justices of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania would be required to allow or agree to the allowance of a petition to hear an appeal from the Superior Court to the Supreme Court.

The important thing to me is this: The work of the appellate court can be handled. Now if we create, as there is in the Constitution, at some future time a Commonwealth Court, that Commonwealth Court will take a lot of the work away from the Superior Court as well as from the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, for example, unemployment compensation cases, workmen's compensation cases, public utility appeals, and many similar cases of that type.

This would enable the Superior Court to take even more work away from the Supreme Court. So that as a matter of fact I think that anyone familiar with this situation can say with absolute certainty within any reasonable time, at least, there is no problem of the ability of the Supreme Court to handle the work which will come before it. There are many ways in which its work can be lessened other than by the increase of two additional judges.

I say, you may not foresee. Delegate Bloom is arguing that we cannot foresee the future, and we cannot. But let me tell you one thing, we cannot perceive the reasons which may exist for the packing of that court by the addition of two more judges. When we have an opportunity to prevent that contingency in the future, we certainly should not change our present provision and permit it to happen.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tomascik.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Mr. President, ladies and gentlemen of the Convention, I would like to interrogate Delegate Bloom, please.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. He will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Delegate Bloom, I note in your amendment that you provide that the Supreme Court must first certify the need for the additional judges.

DELEGATE BLOOM. That is right.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Therefore, the Assembly thereafter may add one or two judges. Is that mandatory upon the General Assembly?

DELEGATE BLOOM. No.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. They do not have to give any—

DELEGATE BLOOM. The General Assembly always acts independently. It says they may, and they make their investigation to see whether or not there is a necessity there. May I ask to interrogate Delegate Woodside for just a minute?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Delegate Woodside, you sat on the Superior Court and, of course, you know the working of the Supreme Court, do you not?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I think I know plenty about it, yes.

DELEGATE BLOOM. And you know, Delegate Woodside, that one judge writes the opinion after they have had a conference after listening to arguments. Is that not true?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. If you are asking me what the procedure is, the procedure is that there is an argument.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Yes.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Then there is a vote and then it is assigned by the president judge and then there is an opinion written in the usual case. There are exceptions to that.

DELEGATE BLOOM. That is right; that is right.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Then there is an opinion written on that and that opinion is sent around to the other judges. Then they read and study that opinion, and then after that they have another conference and they discuss those opinions, then they decide whether or not they have a majority to hand it down. In the meantime other judges may write dissents. Of course, the more judges you have, the more dissents you have; the more dissents you have, the more work the individual judge has in reviewing the case.

DELEGATE BLOOM. And at the present time it takes approximately six months to get a decision down from the Supreme Court, is that not true?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. In 1966 it took 92.3 days, on the average.

DELEGATE BLOOM. That is on the average, but there are times that they do not hand it down for six months. Is that not true?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is true. Of course, that may well happen any time, as far as that is concerned, because quite frequently in the process of deciding a case when the process which I have just outlined is gone through, there is not a majority of the votes willing to go along at that time. One of the justices will write a dissent and then when the other judges review the cases and review the briefs and review the original opinion and review the dissent, they may come to the conclusion that they are going to vote along with what was the minority in the beginning. Therefore, somebody again has to sit down and write an opinion on it. There are delays which are caused for that reason, too, and there will be more of those kinds of delays with nine judges than there will be with seven judges.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Under the unified system as you have prescribed here, the chief justice is going to supervise the entire system, is he not?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. He does now.

DELEGATE BLOOM. I am asking you if he will in the future.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes.

DELEGATE BLOOM. And he will have a lot more judges and a lot more courts to supervise under our system as it exists, even the justices of the peace. Is that not true?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Through his administrator and through his procedural rules committees and matters of that nature, yes. I do not think he will have a great deal more personal administrative responsibilities than he has now. He will have a lot more help through administrative offices. He directly administers the administrative office now. There is a court administrator now, but it is primarily in the chief justice, and he is the one who does the work in the supervising. I would imagine that under the present system when there is a constitutional officer as administrator, he would have a great deal more personal responsibility and the chief justice would have less personal responsibility. I think actually the chief justice has more responsibility now than he would under this provision.

DELEGATE BLOOM. That is your opinion?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is my opinion.

DELEGATE BLOOM. I would like to make one statement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would just remind Delegate Bloom that on these debates he can only speak twice. Of course, you can ask questions. You have a right to close, and the Chair would suggest that you save your statement for your closing.

The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, would the distinguished co-chairman of the subcommittee on court organization be willing to be interrogated, Judge Woodside?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Delegate Woodside, were not these very questions considered in your subcommittee?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Very thoroughly.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Was not the vote in your subcommittee unanimous to retain the Supreme Court at its seven-man court?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. It was.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Was there any objection or disagreement on this subject by the full Judiciary Committee?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I have no recollection of any disagreement on that in the entire committee.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. A few more questions, if I may. It is a fact, is it not, Delegate Woodside, that in the main the writing of legal opinions and handing down of court opinions is a matter of committee work? Is that not correct?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I am not sure I understand.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. By that I mean that the court, of necessity, has to get together and decide what they are going to do?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Yes, they have two conferences. They have one before the case is assigned in which they vote, and then after the opinion is written by one of the judges who has been assigned to write it, by the chief justice, they have another conference and sometimes two or three after that, as far as that point is concerned.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Is it not a fact that part of the feeling of your subcommittee and of the Judiciary Committee as a whole was that a nine-man committee is certainly not more efficient automatically than a seven-man committee? Is that correct?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is true, and I think if you would refer back to the old blue book that we received at the beginning of the session that was so ably prepared by the preliminary committee, you will find something in there that relates to the additional value of a large number, nine over seven, but it points out there that that does not mean that there is two-sevenths more work going to be done, by any means, and I attempted to say why.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. My final question is this: Is it not a fact that under the judiciary article as proposed by the Judiciary Committee, the Supreme Court, first, can reduce its own workload to an extent by not granting as many allocaturs and rehearings, and, second, is it also not a fact that under the Judiciary Committee proposal, the amount of appellate work in the Commonwealth in the foreseeable future can be shared with a Commonwealth Court, for which provision is made in the judiciary article? Is that not so?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. That is so. As a matter of fact, I think if there is a Commonwealth Court created, the Commonwealth Court and the Superior Court could handle practically all the appeals and the Supreme Court could become a certiorari court. For the layman, that is, there would not be any direct appeals to that court at all, but only petitions would be made to that court from the Superior Court and the Commonwealth Court, and the courts would decide whether they were going to allow an appeal at that point and hear it, very much as the Supreme Court of the United States does now in all cases.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Thank you, Mr. President.

Delegate O'Donnell, you are a member of Delegate Woodside's subcommittee, are you not?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Are you interrogating me?

DELEGATE HOOK. I am.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes.

DELEGATE HOOK. Thank you.

At this time I would like to rise in favor of Delegate Bloom's amendment, for one reason in particular. I discussed this earlier with Delegate Woodside and I feel very solidly in favor of it for one basic reason. There are 68 attorneys in this room. We all appeal cases to the Supreme and Superior Courts. For the past three or four years, the majority of the opinions handed down by these courts have been per curiam decisions.

I realize that my clients have spent a lot of money to get their cases to the Supreme Court or to the Superior Court and want written decisions on their cases. The Supreme and Superior Courts are now using this as a method to get around writing decisions. I do not know the reason this has occurred. I have had it explained to me by other people that the reason is that so many cases are similar, so they refer back to the original cases. But there may be one or two facts different that my clients wants explained and they spend a thousand dollars to appeal, to get their briefs and everything ready for the higher court.

I, therefore, think that with the Supreme Court and the Superior Court having flexibility as to numbers, this gives some answers that may come about in the future.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Warman.

DELEGATE WARMAN. Mr. President, for the moment, I shall yield to Delegate Michener.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I speak both as an "illegal" delegate and as a taxpayer. I see much in this marvelous article which is going to cost the taxpayers of Pennsylvania more money and I think it is money very well spent. We shall support this at every point if we can improve justice. But the mere adding of four new justices where the need is not clearly established seems to me an economic luxury in which we ought not to indulge. Let us save our tax dollars for those great parts of this proposal where they will be needed and where we shall get a great return for our money.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Warman, did you wish to be recognized?

DELEGATE WARMAN. No. I shall withdraw my request.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Delegates, just two or three things:

First, with regard to the point about administration in the Supreme Court, I can only give what we know from fact and that is that where it has been in existence, in Illinois, for example, it has not added to the burden of the justices; it definitely has added to the burden of the administration and the administrators thereof, which they set up.

Second, two more judges or justices are not going to stop or decrease the per curiam results thereof.

Third, you will remember we said that the Judiciary Committee was attempting to create flexibility, and this is the thrust of Delegate Bloom's thought.

Now let me tell you how we created it here. It is the opinion—and I was one of those who felt otherwise originally—it was the opinion of the best people to whom we could talk that in the fairly near future, if not in the far future, both of the present appellate courts, the Supreme Court and the Superior Court, will become courts of last jurisdiction in many instances. They already are, of course, with the Supreme Court, and with the Superior Court to a certain degree, courts of last resort. Therefore, if we wanted to have flexibility in the addition of more appellate work which may very well come, this is the precise reason that we have established the Commonwealth Court and left it open to the legislature to determine whether this court shall be, what it shall be, what it statutorily shall be, and whether it should be panelized, or how it should operate.

May I say to you that I think that is the way to have the flexibility, and not in the numbers on the Supreme and Superior Courts, although I openly admit that I came to this Convention with a different viewpoint.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Fellow delegates, I did not propose this amendment for the present time, and I did not intend that we increase the number to nine at the present time. I can forsee the future, if no one else in this room can—and I know that future generations, after I have gone and maybe my children have gone—I can see in the future where there will be a necessity for nine. This is nothing novel; this is nothing new. There are four States that I know of that have nine justices on the Supreme Court and they are small States like Oklahoma and Washington.

We are not trying to pack any court. It is ridiculous to me to think that the Supreme Court of our State would certify to the legislature that it needs help. Is that packing the court, I ask each one of you? I have a higher regard for the Supreme Court. The Supreme Court is not going to ask for any additional help unless it needs it, and this amendment that I am asking for in the Constitution provides that if the occasion does arise, which might arise, that they do not have to wait two years for help.

I would like to have each of you delegates support this.

DELEGATE SPROGELL. Mr. President, may I just make a brief statement?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE SPROGELL. I would like to address a few sentences just to the nonlegal delegates at this Convention. I have discovered that when, for example, there are three attorneys gathered there are usually at least four opinions offered. I think since we have 68 attorneys here, it is sometimes very confusing. While I come from a family of lawyers, I still find it confusing.

I would like to suggest to these delegates who are not legal minds that in our subcommittee and later in the standing committee, we have gone over every single item that I think can be brought up today, but you can see the beginning of these amendments and how they are going and you have heard back and forwards some of the discussion that goes on. May I suggest to you nonlegal delegates that if you are confused in your mind, you will realize that we have in our proposal a good and viable document which I think you can honestly take back. If you are confused and do not know how to vote, go back to that.

I came here with only one idea in mind and that was to see that we had a good, fine, new judiciary article that would make improvements over the last. I think we have done this and I think it has been couched in good legal language, so I do not think you can fail if you vote for the proposal as it stands.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Bloom has a right to reply.

DELEGATE BLOOM. We know these delegates did a good job. I am not saying that they did not do a good job, but one thing that I tried to do at this Convention is, I am trying to look into the future. I want to look into 25 or 50 or 75 years from now. This amendment that I am offering will not be in derogation to what this committee has done, nor in derogation to what it has discussed. The only thing is that I want to provide some elasticity to the number.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

The question is,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, a point of inquiry, please: Are we voting on the amendment with respect to the Supreme Court or the Superior Court?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are voting on the amendment with respect to the Supreme Court.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Thank you.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—27

Aberman	Braham	Fagan	Nelson
Allison	Brennan	Fineman	Shettig
Bagenstose	Brown	Fortney	Silverman
Baldrige	Butera	Gehrlein	Swope
Banes	Conley	Gerber	Warman
Bashoff	Croop	Hook	Welsh
Bloom	Dumbauld	Kauffman

NAYS—106

Amsterdam	Feather	Leonard	Ruth
Aurentz	Filson	Levin	Sahli
Baldus	Fohl	Manderino	Scales
Baldwin	Forster	Mangery	Scarlett
Barron	Gabreski	Mattioni	Scranton
Barry	Goldstein	McGeary	Sebastian
Benfield	Gouger	McGlynn	Shapiro
Broderick	Griffith	Meyer	Sharp
Buck	Hannum	Michael	Shively
Bunting	Harding	Michener	Shoemaker
Burkholder	Hatter	Miller, D.	Solomon
Cain	Himes	Moorhead	Sprogell
Camardella	Horne	More	Stout
Caputo	Hostetter	Morton	Strickler
Caron	Huggins	O'Donnell	Stroup
Casey	Irvis	Orben	Tate
Clark	Jirolamio	Orbin	Thornburgh
Clinger	Johnson	Otto	Tully
Corey	Keller, J.	Pott	Van Sant
Cortese	Kelly	Powell	Waldron
Curran	King	Prendergast	Westerberg
Dailey	Krill	Rappaport	Whittum
Desmond	Laputka	Redick	Wilcox
Devlin	Leach	Reynolds	Wilmarth
Erwin	Lee, K.	Richter	Woodring
Fawcett	Lee, L.	Rovner	Woodside
Fay	Leinbach

NOT VOTING—30

Benedict	Henderson	Murray	Quiles
Cosetti	Heyburn	Musselman	Rea

Cunningham	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Roberts
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Pechan	Scott
Donohue	Kline	Pelletier	Shrager
Fleming	Lane	Percey	Thomson
Goldman	Markley	Popil	Tomascik
Gray	Miller, R.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If our fellow delegates think we had quite sufficient argument pro and con, perhaps we can take up quickly and dispose of the amendment in connection with the Superior Court.

DELEGATE BARRON. I would like to be heard, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. As you may have noticed on the board, I voted against the last amendment because I feel that there should be a sanctity and a permanency in the Supreme Court. I would urge you to consider, however, that the wisdom of Delegate Bloom's suggestions are most particularly applicable in the Superior Court.

In spite of my high and profound regard for Delegate Sprogell, I would suggest that the committee proposal is in many areas not an entirely sure guide for those of you who may have a legal turn of mind. I must suggest that many of the provisions that appear there were on razor thin votes. I do this in no way to subvert or to decry the efforts of the committee, not one bit. I do, however, suggest to you that many of these areas were subject to careful scrutiny and very close vote. Please do not accept the matter but consider it in your best judgment. Do the best that you can with it and do not hesitate to ask questions.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. The only remark I want to make is that the Superior Court is the work horse. It gets practically all the appeals' cases in the first instance, and there is such a thing as an allocatur where the Supreme Court can refuse and can hear a case again. It is the work horse, and, in my mind, if any court needs this amendment, the Superior Court does.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment.

BLOOM AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BLOOM offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 3), page 2, line 13, by inserting after "of" where it appears the first time: not less than

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 3), page 2, line 13, by inserting after "seven": nor more than nine

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 3), page 2, line 14, by inserting after "law.": The General Assembly may add the eighth or ninth judge, but only upon prior certification of the necessity therefor by the Supreme Court.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. As a layman to this Convention, may I ask Delegate Woodside what the razor thin vote was in committee?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I make a statement about votes in committee?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I made a statement to our committee yesterday and I said that I, at least as a co-chairman, was never going to divulge the exact vote on any particular item so as to embarrass anyone as to how he may have voted by people going around and asking them. The only statement I would make would be that it was by a large majority, or by a narrow majority, or that it was a close vote. On this particular instance my best remembrance is that it was rather strongly in favor of the subcommittee's proposal, and the subcommittee is headed by Delegate Sprogell and Delegate Woodside. I repeat to you that here again we have a situation where the establishment of the Commonwealth Court was for the purpose of creating flexibility for appellate jurisdictions in the future.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, very briefly, but this is important.

The Superior Court is today one of the very few courts in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that is completely up to date with its work, it is completely up to date. They are willing, ready, and able to accept additional jurisdiction now. There is no need for any additional amendments. On top of that, if we do create or if the legislature, in accordance with the mandate of this Convention, at some future time finds the need to create a Commonwealth Court, that Commonwealth Court will take even more work away from the Superior Court and we will have an excellent appellate court system. There is no need or no requirement now or in the foreseeable future. We must remember that the appellate work of this Commonwealth has been carried on now for over 75 years by those two courts, and the Superior Court today is right up to date.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—31

Aberman	Butera	Gerber	Shrager
Banes	Conley	Hook	Silverman
Barron	Croop	Kauffman	Swope
Bashoff	Dumbauld	Mattioni	Warman
Bloom	Fineman	Morton	Welsh
Braham	Forster	Nelson	Whittum
Brennan	Fortney	Prendergast	Wilcox
Brown	Gehrlein	Shettig

NAYS—102

Allison	Erwin	Lee, K.	Richter
Amsterdam	Fagan	Lee, L.	Rovner

Aurentz	Fawcett	Leinbach	Sahli
Bagenstose	Fay	Leonard	Scales
Baldrige	Feather	Levin	Scarlett
Baldus	Filson	Manderino	Scranton
Baldwin	Fohl	Mangery	Sebastian
Barry	Gabreski	McGeary	Shapiro
Benfield	Goldstein	McGlynn	Sharp
Broderick	Gouger	Meyer	Shively
Buck	Griffith	Michael	Shoemaker
Bunting	Hannum	Michener	Solomon
Burkholder	Harding	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Cain	Hatter	Moorhead	Stout
Camardella	Himes	More	Strickler
Caputo	Horne	Murray	Stroup
Caron	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Tate
Casey	Huggins	Orban	Thornburgh
Clark	Irvis	Orbin	Tomascik
Clinger	Jirolanio	Otto	Tully
Corey	Johnson	Pott	Waldron
Cortese	Keller, J.	Powell	Westerberg
Curran	Kelly	Rappaport	Wibnarth
Dailey	Krill	Redick	Woodring
Desmond	Laputka	Reynolds	Woodside
Devlin	Leach

NOT VOTING—30

Benedict	Henderson	Miller, R.	Quiles
Cosetti	Heyburn	Musselman	Rea
Cunningham	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Roberts
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Pechan	Ruth
Donolow	King	Pelletier	Scott
Fleming	Kline	Percey	Thomson
Goldman	Lane	Popil	Van Sant
Gray	Markley

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

MOTION TO RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I move that we recess until 2 p.m.

STUDENT COUNCIL WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before we announce the recess, I have been requested by several of our delegates who have guests here to point out that we have with us today 35 members of the Student Council of the Rockwood Area Schools of Somerset County. They are the guests of Delegates Dumbauld and Orban of Somerset County and Delegate Nelson of Blair County. Would they kindly stand up so that we can give them a cordial welcome?

PINE GROVE AREA HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We also have with us 103 students of the Pine Grove Area High School of Pine Grove in Schuylkill County, with their teachers, Mrs. Bruce Christ, Eugene Horn and Howard Mills. They are the guests of Delegates Allison and Hatter of Schuylkill County and Delegate Krill of Carbon County. Would they stand so that we can give them our cordial greetings?

MRS. JAMES L. DESMOND WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we have a special guest here to welcome today, Mrs. James L. Desmond, wife of Delegate Desmond, and their guests, the Mayor and Mrs. Curtis Wood of Eddystone Borough, and Mrs. Florence DuBois.

The Convention is very happy to welcome you here today.

RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Unless the Chair hears objection, we will now recess until 2:30 p.m., for the purpose of lunch and the consideration of these amendments for the afternoon session.

The Chair hears no objection, and the Convention is now in recess.

AFTER RECESS

The time of recess having expired, the Convention was called to order.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

FATHER ANTHONY MARA WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair notes that Delegate Fay has a guest with him, Father Anthony Mara.

Father Mara, we just want you to know we are happy to have you with us.

JUDGE AND MRS. ROBERT VAN DER VOORT WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before the call to order, the chair is very happy to call to the attention of the delegates, the presence of the guests of Delegate Banes and Delegate Barry. They have with them, Judge and Mrs. Robrt Van der Voort and also Attorney Charles Jarrett of Allegheny County.

Would they please stand so we can give them our warm and cordial welcome?

We are very happy to have you with us.

YESHIVA HEBREW ACADEMY WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want you to know that we have also overlooked in the gallery a group from the Yeshiva Hebrew Academy in Lower Merion. They are the guests of Delegate Gerber, Delegate Shrager, Delegate Kauffman and Delegate Whittum.

If you will stand, we will give you our cordial welcome and greeting. We are happy to have you with us.

GERBER AMENDMENTS WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment, I am advised, is being offered by Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, I withdraw my amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Both of them?

DELEGATE GERBER. Yes, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very good. I think those who withdraw should get a big hand.

BALDRIGE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Baldrige.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BALDRIGE offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, lines 13 to 16, page 2, lines 1 to 3, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, lines 5 to 7, by striking out "and shall possess all" in line 5, all of lines 6 and 7, and inserting: and in this court shall be reposed the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldrige.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. Mr. President, this amendment is the result of five delegates, I believe, but Delegate Barron is going to speak on it. My name just got on it first.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, and my fellow delegates, in an effort to be concise in summary, but not without right of appeal, we have endeavored to look at two of the sections in part which at first glance may be confusing, but I hope that when we have finished with this brief introduction, you will see how the concept ties together.

I would like to say, before getting to the details that this amendment is in no way intended to create any breach in the seamless garment of the unified judicial system. It is, however, a very serious attempt to have this Constitutional Convention respect those ancient and well-defined lines of division between the judiciary and the legislature.

In prefacing my remarks, I would remind you that the statewide appellate court system and the salaries of all the judges are presently financed and paid for by the Commonwealth. In so doing, of course, the legislature is vitally involved in the grant of money both for capital needs and for ordinary expenditure of revenue. However, the local court situation, that problem of providing a building, a hall, and necessary subordinate staff beneath the judge, including the district attorney, the clerks, the tipstaff, the court crier, and so forth, is in the hands of the local county.

We are quite interested, the proponents of this amendment and myself, in preserving these historical and, if I may say, classic lines of demarcation between the legislative function and the judicial function.

With this brief background then, Mr. President, I will plunge into the concepts which we propose to change. It seems quite drastic that we rip out all of (b) by our proposal; however, I would like you to note that the elements in that are, first of all, the concept of a unified judicial system which is specifically covered, in my humble judgment, at least in Section 1 (a), where it is made clear that the judicial power is vested in the unified system. I consider it mere surplusage that this is again stated; however, having said so, I would like to point out that the General Assembly is then licked as far as the removal of any jurisdiction by the proviso in lines 2 and 3 at the top of page 2, that such shall be done only with prior approval of the Supreme Court.

I would like it noted very carefully that Section 2(a) again states that the Supreme Court shall be the highest court in the Commonwealth and shall possess all the judicial powers possessed by it at the time of the adoption of the article. This concept, again I am not quite positive in urging to you that it is mere surplusage, however, I do consider it an excess of language, if nothing more.

What we are endeavoring to do is, first of all, the simple matter of sharpening language. But I do not wish to urge this amendment to you on this sole basis, because I now come back to the real heart of this issue, which I believe by our recess this morning we have crystalized for you.

The concept as expressed in the committee's bill is very plainly that once created, the court system headed by the Supreme Court of this State shall become virtually a monolith, a stone not subject to being chipped at from any other direction. This, to me, is the antithesis of the concept of check and balance. As long as the legislature is obliged to fund and pay for the ordinary operating expenses of this system, the legislature must have some hand in controlling its jurisdictional requirements.

Accordingly, with this in mind, we have suggested to you that having once established in Section 1(a), the judicial power, vesting it in the Supreme Court and such other courts as are enumerated therein, that (b) be taken out as surplusage when considered with what we have added to Section 2(a), the point there being that we have clearly provided that the Supreme Court shall have its powers and that there shall be reposed therein the supreme judicial power of this Commonwealth.

As I view this language, it includes those inherent concepts of King's Bench powers for those of you who are familiar with that and any other which may have accreted as mud against the shores of the banks of a river in the course of time. But we are suggesting to you that it is within the province of the General Assembly to structure the jurisdiction, both to take care of changes in business volume, to take care of changes in administrative procedures which it may make in organic law, such as workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation, and the like, and since in the ultimate, the General Assembly is not only the progenitor of substantive rights but also is the designated organ for raising the money to finance the same, that these vital matters of jurisdiction be not subject to whatever conservative or liberal tenor, color, or flavor the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania may then have.

So I urge this amendment to you, in all respect to the efforts of the committee. I urge its firm consideration that it is historically sound, it is financially sound, and I believe, from a progressive administrative standpoint, it is sound for the reasons I have enumerated. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, Delegate Barron, may I interrogate you for a minute because I think we may be able to resolve this?

First of all, so that everyone in the Convention is just as aware as possible of what we are trying to do here, the language in Section 1(a), and (b) is primarily that of Delegate Woodside and his Subcommittee on Administration. Frankly, we consider him to be our special expert in this field. I have just been talking with him.

The only part of what you want to do here that he objects to and that I object to is the elimination of lines 13 through 16, which have no relationship, incidentally, to the two main problems you just pointed out.

Now let me explain and then you and I can talk back and forth and maybe we can resolve this. I hope so, so that we do not have a lot more amendments to this section and can get it wound up.

We do not object to your taking out lines 1 through 3 which seem to bother you and some of the legislators about the abilities of the legislature shall be the abilities of the judiciary, which I think is a germane point. But we do insist that the first part of Section (b) is very important to the unified judicial system because of the fact that only there are the jurisdictions and powers presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth spelled out as being in the system. We speak first in (a) of the judicial power of this Commonwealth, but the jurisdiction and the powers presently there are given to the unified judicial system by the first part of (b).

Furthermore, where you wish to change Section 2, again we have no material objection to that, because the wording that you wish to put in, it is our understanding—and this is what I want to interrogate you about—maintains the King's Bench powers in the Supreme Court, which is precisely what Delegate Woodside was trying to do by the first three lines on page 2.

DELEGATE BARRON. This now has a question mark at the end of it?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Yes. Now what I want to know is, do you agree with what I am saying?

DELEGATE BARRON. I certainly am agreed in principle with what you say. May I say that this pregnancy has resulted in a single offspring, but it has multiple fatherhood.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Well, the last thing I want is an illegitimate constitution.

DELEGATE BARRON. I am trying to avoid rule by fiat; I am trying to completely avoid rule by fiasco.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Is there some problem in your mind? I think we can get at it this way: Is there some problem in your mind with lines 13 to 16?

DELEGATE BARRON. I have no great problem personally with this. However, I did not try to make a funny with the concept of multiple fatherhood. My amendment as submitted and first called by the President this morning did contain that language. I was persuaded by the group with whom I met that the retention of that language was surplusage. It was suggested here as a matter of specificity and clarity of the vesting of this power. I would rejoice if it goes back in. However I know we have a number of people around the hall here who would be happy to speak to that point.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Let me make myself clear as to why Delegate Woodside and I think this is important. It does not pertain to the problem of the judiciary versus the legislature. There is no problem there. But it does make clear, which Section (a) does not, that the jurisdictions and the powers that are presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth shall be vested in the unified judicial system. Now why is this important to us? It is because the committee feels very strongly that the major change we are making here is the establishment of the unified judicial system and we want that to be the express interest for the judiciary as a whole rather than the Supreme Court. Do you see what I am getting at?

DELEGATE BARRON. Let us say that I, sir, was persuaded to think that by the placing of repose of all of the judicial power in this Commonwealth since the King's Bench derives from ancient historical concepts—and let us not get into the history of the problem. As a matter of neatness I have no objection to your suggestion at all. As I say, I was persuaded that I would be prolexious in what I propose.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Now may I make this suggestion, that if you accept, and your cosponsors accept, the return of lines 13 to 16, the committee is prepared to go along with you. Sir, I think this would take care of all the major problems. No, it does not? All right, go ahead. What is your problem?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I wanted to comment in answer, a helpful answer, to my colleague, Delegate Barron. The deletional language was intentional altogether. Contrary, Delegate Scranton, to what you suggested, this does clearly involve the matter of conflict between the judiciary and the legislature. Now let me just review, if I may.

In Section 1 (a) we clearly placed the judicial power of the State in the court system. That should certainly answer for all times the problem as to where is the judicial power. It is in the unified court system—no problem.

The second one, however, goes further and it says that the jurisdiction and powers of the system shall be—and then we play put and take. We first put it in the hands of the legislature by saying, as provided by law, and then we take it back out again and say, except that the jurisdiction and powers presently vested in the courts shall be vested in the system and may not be removed or changed, as it were—I am simply paraphrasing—without the prior approval of the Supreme Court. If you pull that language out, what you have done is to imitate the bar association's ringing peroration of beginning, the same peroration which is given in the American Bar Association's Model Code and in the Model Code of the American Judicature Society; you have vested all of your judicial power in a unified judicial system.

Now in (b), the only thing you have accomplished is either to state that again, or to say that the legislature shall be hobbled, that the legislature shall no longer have the authority to change jurisdiction of courts unless there is an incredible veto power handed into the hands of the Supreme Court. Now that is the thrust.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. No, absolutely not. That is precisely what we just got rid of. The problem, Delegate O'Donnell, and the main objection to this was the fact that on the second page at the top it says, "The General Assembly shall not remove any of said jurisdiction or powers from said system or any part thereof without prior approval of the Supreme Court." We are removing that and the only reason that Delegate Woodside and I believe that lines 13 through 16 should remain there is because —go ahead.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I am not certain that is true. It may well be, sir, that you speak primarily for yourself. I think, at least as I understand the thrust of what Judge Woodside has been teaching me for the last two months—and I have learned a great deal in that classroom—is this problem: Let me just say in (b) the powers shall be as provided by law. That is exactly what we do not want. We wish to say that the powers shall be in the system.

Secondly, we wish to say not that the powers shall be as provided by law, but that in the case of the Supreme Court, the supreme judicial powers shall be lodged there. That is an intentionally choice language and it is choice for this reason, what do you do with a case which a specific act of the Assembly has not anticipated? What do you do, for example, when the Supreme Court is called upon to reapportion the State because someone else has failed to do so? If you provide that the powers are only as provided by law, you would put into the hands of the Supreme Court judicial power, on one hand, and then take it out with the other.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I do not agree with you, but maybe I can come to terms with you, too, sir. What we are trying to do is to make progress here. I frankly think that you are beating a dead horse when you talk this way, but I accept your thinking for the moment.

Would it be agreeable to you I think the thing that the committee is most concerned about is that the jurisdictions that are presently available will be in the unified judicial system. The problem at the top is that it says that the judicial power of this Commonwealth shall be vested in it, and the point of the second (b) section is to say that likewise the jurisdiction as provided by law, and if you prefer, instead of saying "except," you can say, and the jurisdiction presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth shall be vested in the unified judicial system. That gives the opportunity to the legislature to change it any way it wishes.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I think that that can be done in a very facile manner with the agreement of the sponsors of this amendment by doing it in this fashion, if you would accept a suggestion. Why not in Section 1 simply say, the judicial power and jurisdiction of courts in this Commonwealth shall be vested, and leave (b) out altogether? Then you have accomplished everything you want and we have avoided the problems that the language in (b) presently puts into the case.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, may I make a suggestion?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I believe that without too much difficulty Judge Woodside, Delegate Barron and Delegate O'Donnell and I can resolve this problem along the lines that we have recently been communicating, namely, the judicial power and the jurisdiction that is presently available to the courts will be in the unified system; that, likewise, they will eliminate the first three lines of page 2; and, likewise, accept the change in the language of Section 2 about the Supreme Court, as suggested by Delegate Baldrige and Delegate Barron, that within this court shall be reposed the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth that has to do with the retention of the King's Bench powers. If that is agreeable to nobody, I am sorry, but I hope it will work.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. That is acceptable to me.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. May I say, too, Mr. President, that I am one of the many fathers on this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me just say this. We have an amendment on the floor which is the amendment of Delegate Barron and Delegate Baldrige, and may I ask, do you wish to withdraw your amendment at the present time in the hopes of reaching a negotiated peace?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Why can we not table it so they do not have to withdraw it?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, since I also had a part in the paternity of this alleged illegitimate proposed amendment which, perhaps, we can legitimatize at this time by following this procedure and make it the first adoption under the new unified judicial system without an orphans court, I would be perfectly willing to table this until we can concur on the language.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, there is a simple concept much favored in the modern law that I would like to state, and that is, once the judicial power of the Commonwealth is set up in the courts, then the courts are supreme in that power. I can read this language with that concept in mind and everything is clear. The jurisdiction and powers of the unified judicial system shall be as provided by law. How do cases get into the courts? They get in as the legislature authorizes them. They only come to the courts when the legislature has said that there is this type of litigation and from this type of litigation there is an appeal to the courts.

Then the second part of this paragraph, once they are vested in the unified judicial system, the General Assembly shall not remove any of said jurisdiction or powers from the said system or any part thereof without prior approval of the Supreme Court. That is perfectly clear so far as the internal economy of the courts is concerned. That is why in modern times it is the courts which make the rules; that is why the courts have gone even so far as laying down the rules of evidence because that is within the jurisdiction of the judicial powers of the Commonwealth which is in the possession of the courts. The real cases come up when the legislature undertakes to make new laws, grant new rights, and say where they are to go within the fabric. Now there this would inhibit the legislature giving new appeals and saying where they should go within the fabric of the courts. There is a problem there that nobody can ever solve just as no one can ever solve the problem of a powerful legislature at one branch of the government and a powerful Supreme Court at the other. They have to respect one another at the top echelon or else all is lost anyway. The legislature, of course, can cut off all money from the courts, but it never does, it never thinks about it. Everyone knows they have to agree at that point.

AMENDMENT TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there any objection to tabling the amendment which is on the floor right now, the Baldrige-Barron amendment, in the interest of making a compromise as has been suggested?

There is no objection, so the Chair will consider it tabled and recognize Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I make one more inquiry, sir? All I am trying to do is facilitate this thing. We are all perfectly well aware that there are now almost 90 amendments. Are there any other amendments to this theory or thesis that we have to deal with here? Let us get it all done up at once here.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have had one or two others and they have all been contacted and they will take part in the negotiation.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Thank you very kindly.

BARRY AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While negotiations are proceeding, we shall take up another amendment. The Chair now takes up an amendment offered by Delegate Barry.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRY offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 15 to 18, by striking out all of said lines, and inserting: Section 4. Commonwealth Court.--Unless the General Assembly shall otherwise provide, the Commonwealth Court shall consist of seven judges, one of whom shall be President Judge. It shall have Statewide jurisdiction as shall be provided by law. It shall come into existence January 1, 1970.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry to speak to his amendment.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, fellow delegates, it was interesting to me this morning to hear so many briefs in favor of the Commonwealth Court. Apparently this is going to be the third appellate court which Delegate Woodside says will make our appellate court system in Pennsylvania the best in the country.

This is extremely interesting to me, because this was not an original proposal that came out of that committee. The subcommittee did not at first recommend at this time the establishment of a Commonwealth Court. When we got into committee discussions, the idea seemed to swell that there is an essential need for another appellate court in this Commonwealth, and, finally, it came out as part of our proposal, as you can see, being Section 4 in the Committee Proposal.

However, if you look at the present Section 4, there is no time-table set for the establishment of a Commonwealth Court. There is no designation as to how many judges there will be. This amendment is very simple in scope. It provides that the Commonwealth Court shall consist of seven judges, one of whom will be president judge. It still provides that its jurisdiction will be established by the legislature and furthermore it provides that it will come into existence January 1, 1970.

I realize that this will automatically go into the schedule, but the schedule provisions on other articles provide that they go into existence on January 1, 1969, and, therefore, this is expressly put in the amendment so that this would give the creation of the court an additional year before the legislature can determine its jurisdiction and the mechanics of putting it into effect.

As I say, you heard from the committee this morning. I think the committee has come to a realization of the fact that there has to be a Commonwealth Court. I am asking that there be seven judges, that there be a deadline set on its establishment and I think this fulfills a real need. The day is past when the Dauphin County Court will hear all matters relating to the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth now feels, I believe, that it need not sit solely in Dauphin County, but that this should be a statewide court provided for under another section as to its election or appointment in that it should come into existence representing all the people rather than just be based here. I believe, for example, that Delegate Woodside, who was at first against the immediate establishment of the Commonwealth Court has now promised to speak on it. He now believes that it should go into effect within a year as suggested by this amendment.

I believe that as the legislature sees fit, there will be additional jurisdiction given to this court in fields now handled by the Superior Court, perhaps even in criminal cases. This will be an adjunct to the appellate court division, a great help to the Superior and Supreme Courts and perhaps an expert in certain fields of the law, such as, workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation, public affairs, matters involving the Commonwealth and such other jurisdiction as the legislature sees fit to provide for this court. As I say, if you heard Judge Woodside and the other members of the committee this morning, I think when our judiciary article was put together that it contemplated that this would go into effect wihin a short length of time.

I earnestly ask you to adopt this amendment providing for the seven judges and for the existence of the Commonwealth Court by this deadline.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be heard, Delegate Amsterdam?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, Mr. President. I might follow Governor Scranton's lead. He has shown how you divide and conquer by getting half the dissidents off the floor in one corner I might suggest we get the other half off by considering this amendment in another corner. However, rather than do that, I might say that what Delegate Barry has talked about here is a matter that we went into at some length in the Judiciary Committee. We decided that in order to determine exactly what type of court you ought to have here as the need developed would require the kind of consideration that only a legislature could give because it would require a considerable amount of time in determining what the needs of the Commonwealth might be in order to determine the type of court, whether it ought to be panelized, whether it ought to sit in each one of the judicial districts of the State, whether it ought to be limited to Dauphin County in the site, and so on.

It was decided that these were all matters that could easily wait for the careful determination of the legislature, particularly, I might say, since there seemed to be no great demand at the present time for such a court. Nobody appeared before the committee who indicated that there was a tremendous immediate need. We all felt that there was going to be a need for this type of court; that it was apparent that it would help the judicial system if we had a court of this nature, but we felt that it would take really much more consideration and time than the small amount of time that was available to this entire assembly in the three months in which we were to meet to really determine exactly the type of court and the type of matters that should be handled.

It was for that reason that we left all of those items to the legislature. We simply provided for the court to come into being at such time and in such form and having such jurisdiction as the legislature, after it had a period of time necessary to study the matter should determine.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, it seems to me that the need is here; the time is now. We have a system in our Commonwealth where certain issues of a judicial nature are being determined by bodies not manned by judges, in many cases not even manned by lawyers. We have the Board of Claims, the Board of Arbitration and Claims, the Board of Finance and Revenue and various other boards that make judicial decisions. It would seem to me that this would be the purport of the Commonwealth Court.

I know that Delegate Kauffman and I introduced a proposal spelling out these specific needs. I was never asked to speak before the Judiciary Committee on the subject; therefore, I thought that the matter had been rather deeply gone into in view of the fact that there had been a proposal on the subject and there had been people raising these questions. It seems to me that Delegate Barry's position is well thought out and is timely, particularly in view of the fact that the response to Delegate Bloom's request for a proposal for additional judges on the appellate courts today was made on the basis that we were going to have a Commonwealth Court. When? What was it going to do? Where was the responsibility going to be? It certainly seems to me that what we are doing here is saying that we are going to have a Commonwealth Court, but we really do not know how we are going to go about setting it up.

After reading Proposal No. 7, I think that there has been a deep degree of study in many areas that have brought forth much specific language. It seems that this is the only section that the committee has seen fit to put to the legislature. I think that Delegate Barry's position should be considered favorably and I urge the Convention here to vote "yes" on the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, inasmuch as I served for 10 years on the Commonwealth Court and an equal period of time on another appellate court of this Commonwealth, I feel it is my duty to express my personal opinions concerning this entire situation. I want it clearly understood that these are not the opinions of the committee or anybody else but are my own personal opinions concerning this matter.

In the first place, the Commonwealth Court, so-called, is nothing more or less than a common pleas court of Dauphin County with the orphans court judge being attached to it by special statute.

There really is no such thing as a separate Commonwealth Court. There are a great many functions, judicial functions, which have been given to the Commonwealth Court by statute over the years. There is also a very substantial number of things that might normally have gone to the so-called Commonwealth Court of Dauphin County, which over the years, by statute, have been made appealable to the Superior Court of Pennsylvania. Just as examples, I will refer to the appeals from the Public Utility Commission, appeals from the Unemployment Compensation Board and others of a similar nature.

As I expressed this morning, it is my feeling that sometimes before too long there ought to be and has to be established in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, a separate Commonwealth Court. Although originally in the commission, I opposed the creation of the Commonwealth Court as a part of the Constitution, the committee decided to put it in the Constitution itself that there should be a Commonwealth Court.

The question then came up as to whether or not it should be implemented immediately by the Constitution or whether it should be postponed and made effective at such time as the legislature felt it was necessary to do so. I, then, favored the postponement of that matter until the legislature felt it was proper to go ahead and do so.

I have given this a great deal of thought and I think there is a lot of argument on both sides. I foresee eventually the creation of a Commonwealth Court, a statewide court, which will be chosen in whatever manner statewide judges are chosen. That Commonwealth Court will have, probably, its headquarters in Harrisburg, but it will also sit in Philadelphia and in Pittsburgh and in other places where it itself, finds it necessary or advisable to sit for the convenience of the public.

When Delegate Barry talked to me about this matter, I told him that I saw no particular objections, if they would postpone the effective date of this until January 1, 1970 and provide for the size of the court, so that the legislature could have plenty of time to decide what jurisdiction it would want to give to the Commonwealth Court. As I have said, I think some of it should come from the Dauphin County Court and some of it from the Superior Court. In that way, we could relieve the Supreme Court to a greater extent. Whether it should be done now or whether it should be done later, within the next couple of years, or whether it should be left to the legislature who may decide to do it not for a number of years, not find the real necessity, it depends somewhat upon the burden being carried by the Superior Court and the Supreme Court.

I wanted to make my position clear on that and to state that I told Delegate Barry that postponement of this court until that time would receive no personal objections from me in any manner.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President, I would interrogate Delegate Amsterdam on this question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Amsterdam will stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE BANES. Delegate Amsterdam, you made certain statements about the need for time to study this subject. Are you aware that there is presently before the Senate and the House a bill to establish a Commonwealth Court?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes.

DELEGATE BANES. Which establishes the structure and powers and jurisdiction of this particular court?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, sir.

DELEGATE BANES. Therefore, the legislative studies have been made, so that this court could be created in accordance with the provisions of this amendment and also in accordance with the structure already established in the bill before the Senate and the House at the present time?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct, sir.

DELEGATE BANES. Is it not also true that every session of the legislature for the past few years has had a bill before it which attempted to establish a Commonwealth Court and also set forth therein the proposed structure and jurisdiction of that court?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I do not know that as a matter of fact, although it has been so stated on occasion before the full committee. You could probably enlighten us on that.

DELEGATE BANES. I do not happen to have all the facts and data. I did have a copy of the present bill but unfortunately I left it at the hotel.

Therefore, this court could be established in accordance with the amendment here immediately, because the studies have been made establishing the jurisdiction?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. It could be established without the amendment. That is exactly what we have proposed in the committee's proposal, that the Commonwealth Court be set up by the legislature as the result of the studies. It has made enough studies that it can do it now, if there is a need. If the legislature feels it needs more studies, it will have an opportunity to do so. We certainly felt that there should be no fixing of the number of judges, because it might very well be that this should be a panelized court in which you might very well want to have nine judges rather than seven.

We felt all those matters were matters for the legislature as the result of studies which it has already made and might hereafter make, yes, sir.

DELEGATE BANES. Would it not be appropriate then, if this section were amended, eliminating the number of judges, that the deadline fixed herein would be satisfactory to establish that?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I think it would be better if that were done, but I still think that what we have provided will give the legislature the authority and, in addition to that, it will set forth what the delegates to this Convention feel is important.

DELEGATE BANES. But how can this Convention and the people of this Commonwealth be assured that the court will be established expeditiously unless a deadline is fixed as we have done in every other instance involving the judiciary article? There is a schedule fixing deadlines for many things which have to be done in this area.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct. But we felt that in this case there had not been a sufficient demonstration of immediate need, and the legislature is far better qualified than the delegates to this Convention to make that determination after it has had sufficient studies made. If it has already had that, apparently the legislature feels that there is not an immediate need and it, therefore, has not authorized such a court.

What we have done is indicated that there is a basis for such a court as soon as the legislature is convinced that there is a need and that the form should be in accordance with the legislative mandate.

DELEGATE BANES. But if the bill is before the House, is it not reasonable to assume that the need has been established?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I have seen many bills before the House and have even suggested some myself that have lain for years without any action and the Commonwealth seems to go on reasonably well.

DELEGATE BANES. I have no further questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Braham who is next.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate Delegate Banes for a moment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, he will stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Delegate Banes, can you tell us whether the court envisioned is a trial court or an appeal court?

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President, unfortunately I do not have the bill here. I had picked it up and, as I say, we could probably get a copy of it in a few moments. We could table this particular amendment for a few minutes until we get a copy of the bill up here from the office downstairs.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. It might be useful if I state the thing which is troubling me. We have to know whether this is a trial court or an appeal court, and it is well for us to keep in mind where these cases began. Originally, they all began at the court of common pleas level and then, with the growth of these new departments and boards, they were sent down to them for trial by supposed experts. But the appeal which comes back now to the common pleas is an appeal to the court of common pleas with the right of trial by jury, and that is what the Commonwealth Court now has at Harrisburg.

But now when you talk about moving around the State, are you talking about going around to take testimony a second time? Does it go through the common pleas level or does it pass the common pleas level? Does it go through the common pleas level and then come to the Commonwealth Court as a trial court, or is the Commonwealth Court an appeal court?

My own feeling has been—and with this I shall close—that it ought to be retained at the common pleas level. I believe there are many of these cases that are of such slight importance that now they ought to be handled by the courts of common pleas all over the Commonwealth regularly, because the magic has gone out of them; everybody knows now that these cases have to be decided and they might as well be decided at the local level.

If it is found that the case is too heavy at the local level, by the invocation, by bringing in the modern doctrine of a form of nonconvenience, it can be sent to the appeal court if that is a technical trial court.

I say these things only because the matter is entirely

inchoate at the time and I do not believe we should do anything more than say to the legislature that we want this kind of court established; now you study it in all its aspects and then set about making it up.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, may I have a word of rebuttal to Delegate Braham's statement?

We are not concerned here with the nature of the jurisdiction of the court. We are concerned primarily with a deadline for the establishment of this court.

It was implied by Delegate Amsterdam that time was needed to study this problem, and in answer to that I stated that the legislature has studied this problem; there is a bill in the House and in the Senate to establish this court fully; and that there is no need for delay in this matter.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, the matter before us is not really a matter of what shall be the jurisdiction of a Commonwealth Court; the matter before us is an amendment which suggests that a set number of judges be appointed to the Commonwealth Court and that the Commonwealth Court shall come into existence at a set date. That is the matter before us. All the other matters are extraneous to this particular amendment, and I rise in opposition to the amendment for this reason.

I do not oppose the second part of the amendment which sets a deadline. I do not think it is necessary, but I do not oppose it actively. But I do oppose that part of the amendment and, therefore, the entire amendment which sets a definite figure for the Commonwealth Court.

No one here, no matter how learned he may be, can envision what a Commonwealth Court may some day have to be in this Commonwealth. We are wasting our time to try to state what its jurisdiction will be 30 years or 50 years from now.

I am pleading again for flexibility from the delegate body. Permit the General Assembly 35 or 50 years from now to meet the problem of 35 or 50 years from now. Seven judges may be adequate in 1970; you may need 17 in 1990. I would suggest that if 17 are needed in 1990 and we put this amendment into the Constitution, the citizens of the Commonwealth will then find themselves in the situation where, in order to change the number of judges in the Commonwealth Court, they will have to go through the laborious process of amending the entire Constitution.

We can prevent this for them simply by leaving it to the wisdom of the General Assembly, and I would again urge that you do so and vote in the negative on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, most of what I intended to comment upon in relation to this particular issue has been expressed by my good friend, Delegate Irvis.

I would like to say this: We did work upon this particular question in the Senate of Pennsylvania; we passed a bill. I am not satisfied with that bill. I have restudied it and gone over it. I do not think it is correct the way it is drafted at the present time. We are still working on that problem because we felt there was a need and we had some requests for that need throughout the Commonwealth.

I, therefore, would support Delegate Irvis in his statement with relation to the size of the court and with relation to the specification of a particular time and ask the delegates to oppose the amendment which is being offered.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Filson.

DELEGATE FILSON. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I think it should be pointed out, in opposition to the amendment, that the amendment sets the number of seven judges, whereas the actual type of jurisdiction, as to whether this shall be jurisdiction of the first instance or whether it shall be appellate jurisdiction or whether it shall be all appellate or all original jurisdiction, has not been determined.

It would occur to me that now would not be the time to set the number of judges which should sit upon this bench.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment to the amendment to read as follows: "Unless the legislature shall otherwise provide, the Commonwealth Court shall consist of seven judges."

In other words, this will set a number at seven unless the General Assembly changes it.

AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may offer an amendment; the only problem is that in accordance with our rules and for accuracy, we would like you to set the amendment down and put in the language, so that if you want to withdraw your amendment—

DELEGATE BARRY. I will withdraw the amendment for the moment and come back on the floor with a new amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I would suggest then that we table the amendment until you get the amending language or withdraw it. It would be better to withdraw it because you are going to submit a new amendment.

DELEGATE BARRY. I will withdraw it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We can then go on and will not have to delay. I see Delegate Jirolanio at the microphone. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Jirolanio; therefore, I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I believe I withdrew my amendment. I was standing at the microphone to add something in favor of the last amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are very happy then, if your amendment has been withdrawn. I think that deserves a hand.

The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Tate.

TATE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 18 by inserting after "Judge.": The court shall sit in such locations within the Commonwealth as may be provided by law.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, this proposed amendment makes no changes in the committee proposal. It makes one addition to the end of Section 4, that would mandate the court to sit in at least two locations around the Commonwealth, or more, as may be provided by the General Assembly. It might be thought that this language is different for this court from the other statewide courts and, therefore, might better be left to the state legislature, the General Assembly.

It was brought to my attention, after the committee proposal was in its final form, in this respect, at least, by those who are involved in the Antipoverty Program in Philadelphia, that the present Commonwealth Court which, granted, may be somewhat different from the proposed Commonwealth Court, has achieved the reputation in its circle of being a difficult court to reach because it always sits in Dauphin County and that, therefore, it might be a good idea to mandate that the new Commonwealth Court, as has been the custom for the Supreme and Superior Courts in the past, sit in various locations around the State. I understand that this was the committee's intention, and that fact was confirmed only a few moments ago by Delegate Woodside. However, I think that it would be helpful to have it, for the reasons just stated, put into the Constitution.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. So that there be no misunderstanding on this point, I did not favor putting this into the Constitution and I do not favor putting it into a statute. As a matter of fact, that is an undue interference with the prerogatives of the judicial system. In 1895, when the Superior Court was established, the legislature, through the influence of the people from the particular areas, provided the Superior Court with sites in Williamsport, Scranton, and, I think, Erie, Philadelphia, Harrisburg, and Pittsburgh. It did not take the court long to realize that they would make a trip to some of these places once a year for two or three cases. As a result, the time between the taking of an appeal, by having the time only once a year, increased tremendously and delayed judicial processes, so the Superior Court, feeling that this was a judicial prerogative and not a legislative prerogative, never did pay attention to this provision in the law. As a matter of fact, I do not ever recall the court having sat at any time in Williamsport. It sat once in Erie as a matter of courtesy, to admit some members. But to say at this time and to say it in the Constitution where a court should sit seems to me to be a very unhappy and unfortunate requirement, and I certainly hope the delegates will vote down this requirement.

I do foresee that they will sit at many different places, depending upon the work, but they certainly should not be bound by a Constitution to sit at any particular place and they certainly should not be bound by legislation to sit at any particular place because nobody knows the problems as well as the judges themselves. This enters into what Judge Braham said, too. The Commonwealth Court, unquestionably, in my opinion, must be a combination of a court of first impression as well as a court of appeal. And it may well be that it will want to sit some times in Warren, or one of the judges will want to sit in Warren or in any remote place to carry out a particular case, but certainly they should not be pinned down by any legislation as to where they would be compelled to sit, and I hope that this delegation will vote down the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I have argued here at this microphone against what I have considered an undue encroachment on the part of the judiciary on the powers and the rights and the obligations of the legislative branch. I am here adhering to the same principle. I am opposed to this amendment because, in my opinion, the business of where shall a court sit, what justice shall be assigned is a housekeeping judicial function; it belongs with the judiciary and ought not to be encroached upon by the General Assembly. And although I dearly love the General Assembly, I would be false to principles if I were to stand here and say that this is all right, but to say that we may act with the advise and consent only of the Supreme Court is wrong; I would be contrary to principle. I, therefore, urge that this amendment be rejected because I feel this is a judicial function and is not a function for the General Assembly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tomascik.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Mr. President, I wish to subscribe to the views enunciated by Delegate Woodside and Delegate Irvis respecting this proposed amendment. I think that we as delegates to this Convention should continually bear in mind that we are attempting to write a constitution, not to pass legislation.

I think that matter such as embodied in this amendment should be left out of the Constitution and I respectfully urge the amendment be voted down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The question is,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—7

Banes	Hook	Johnson	Thornburgh
Fineman	Michener	Tate

NAYS—125

Aberman	Devlin	Lee, K.	Richter
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Lee, L.	Rovner
Aurentz	Erwin	Leinbach	Ruth
Bagenstose	Fagan	Leonard	Sahli
Baldrige	Fawcett	Levin	Scales
Baldwin	Fay	Manderino	Scarlett
Barry	Feather	Mangery	Scranton

Benedict	Filson	Markley	Sebastian
Benfield	Fohl	Mattioni	Shapiro
Bloom	Forster	McGeary	Sharp
Braham	Gabreski	McGlynn	Shively
Brennan	Gehrlein	Meyer	Shoemaker
Broderick	Gerber	Michael	Shrager
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Silverman
Buck	Gouger	Moorhead	Solomon
Bunting	Hannum	More	Sprogell
Burkholder	Harding	Morton	Stout
Butera	Hatter	Murray	Strickler
Cain	Henderson	Nelson	Stroup
Camardella	Himes	O'Donnell	Swope
Caputo	Hocker	Orban	Tomascik
Caron	Horne	Orbin	Tully
Casey	Irvis	Otto	Van Sant
Clark	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Waldron
Clinger	Kauffman	Pelletier	Welsh
Conley	Keller, J.	Pott	Westerberg
Corey	Keller, M.	Powell	Whittum
Cortese	Kline	Prendergast	Wilcox
Croop	Krill	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Curran	Laputka	Redick	Woodring
Dailey	Leach	Reynolds	Woodside
Desmond

NOT VOTING—31

Allison	Fleming	Kelly	Quiles
Baldus	Fortney	King	Rea
Barron	Goldman	Lane	Roberts
Bashoff	Gray	Miller, R.	Scott
Cosetti	Griffith	Musselman	Shettig
Cunningham	Heyburn	Pechan	Thomson
Donaldson	Hostetler	Percey	Warman
Donolow	Huggins	Popil

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now we are ready to take up the next amendment.

DELEGATE WILMARTH. Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. Does somebody want to be heard?

DELEGATE WILMARTH. I have a very quick suggestion, Mr. President. I would like to suggest that if all those connected with the legal profession will now retire, by 5 o'clock this evening the rest of the delegate body would come up with a judicial article that would be a model for the other forty-nine States.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Our next amendment is one offered by Delegate O'Donnell, and I believe this is one that had been tabled. I understand this is what was originally known as the Baldrige-Barron amendment.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes sir, that is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair understands that the compromise is still being negotiated on the Baldrige-Barron amendment, and we will go on to the next amendment.

THORNBURGH AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The amendment now being offered is Delegate Thornburgh's.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 2, lines 19 to 21 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Section 5. Rights of Appeal.—There shall be such rights of appeal to courts of record and appellate courts as shall be provided by law.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, this amendment is offered—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you yield one second? They are still in the process of distributing your amendment and in order to have your full turn at bat, I think you should take advantage of the opportunity to put the amendment in their hands.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I did not know they had to see it; I thought they would take it on my word.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It may be much better if they did not, since this is the procedure.

Has everyone received a copy of Delegate Thornburgh's amendment?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. This amendment is offered on behalf of myself and Delegates Butera and Fohl and relates to a somewhat troublesome section which has been previously referred to, probably, ad infinitum. Section 5 as it presently appears in Proposal No. 7 provides an absolute right of appeal in all cases to an appellate court of statewide jurisdiction.

It is the intent of the proposal to provide such rights of appeal to courts of record from courts not of record and from courts of record to an appellate court as the legislature shall provide.

The reason for the amendment is to deal, number one, with the concern expressed by many members of the Judiciary Committee, that an unlimited, absolute right of appeal built into the Constitution without any exception could possibly lead to a clogging of the appellate process. This, in effect, embodies the appellate right that exists under the present Article V. It establishes a right of appeal in principle, but leaves to the legislature the fashioning of the proper channels and the circumstances under which this right of appeal should be exercised.

I think that this meets the objections which were raised and the rather hasty consideration that was given this matter initially in the Judiciary Committee.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, particularly the people associated with this part of the judiciary article, I know of no part of this article on which we nonlegal delegates require more careful instruction than this one. I have seen three versions of this. I have seen the version which is in the judiciary article; I have seen Delegate Thornburgh's version; and I have seen another version not yet distributed to the delegates; and I understand there is a fourth.

Frankly, we are wallowing in a sea of ignorance here and we want some very clear answers. The questions are these: There is no right more valid in a democracy than the right of appeal. That is why we have the Supreme Court. That is why we have the courts we have in England and in other western nations.

This right of appeal should be available to all men within reason. Those of us who are not lawyers, looking at this, have one immediate response, that if every case is going to be taken to appeal, we are obviously going to be swamped, and that could not be the intention of any sensible article on the judiciary. Therefore, we want some pretty careful instruction on this, if you will please provide it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Thornburgh if he will permit himself to be interrogated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, he will. You may proceed to interrogate Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Delegate Thornburgh, will you be kind enough to tell me and this Convention what the language gives to a litigant in your proposed amendment that he does not have now?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I think the point is very well taken. In many respects it gives nothing. It is proposed to replace what seemed to many of the members of the Judiciary Committee to be an unreasonably broad, absolute, if you will, right of appeal that was given to the present Section 5. I think the delegate is quite correct, that it provides nothing more than the present Article V and it is so intended not to do this.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Is not that a loss of time, words and paper even to propose such an amendment?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I am afraid the delegate does not understand.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. No, I do not.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. The amendment is offered to the present proposal, Section 5, which provides an extremely expanded right of appeal over the present Article V of the Constitution.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. If you want to do that, why not delete the entire section and let the law remain as it is?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Proposal No. 7, Section 2, provides that the present Article V is repealed. We must have some language, it would seem to me, in here to replace the language in the present Article V, which deals with the right of appeal. This is intended to supply that.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Members of the Convention, I do not know what to do about this one. I have taken a lot of appeals in my time, but when I look at this language, I do not know whether I am for or against or in between.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Perhaps I have not made this clear, Delegate Jirolanio. The present Constitution contains, in two separate sections, reference to rights of appeal, one dealing with rights of appeal to appellate courts and one dealing with rights of appeal from courts not of record. The Proposal No. 7 which, among other things, repeals those provisions in the present Article V, contains a broad absolute right of appeal about which there has been considerable concern expressed.

My amendment is to the latter and would reinstate, in effect, the theory of the present Article V.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Delegate Thornburgh, do you not believe that a litigant should have a right of appeal?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Absolutely, but I think that it cannot be an absolute right of appeal. My concern is, as expressed by many of the members of the Judiciary Committee, that if an absolute right of appeal is mandated in every single case to a court of statewide appellate jurisdiction, it may very well be that we are clogging the appellate process to the point where it might break down, and this would give the legislature the right to adjust those channels of appeal to make sure that this would not happen.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Filson is now recognized.

DELEGATE FILSON. Mr. President and fellow delegates, in respect to this appeal provision, I would like you to note particularly that this is the right of an appeal. This does not, in any way, mean that every time there is some court action there will be an appeal that will necessarily clog the courts. The language of the present amendment as proposed by Delegate Thornburgh actually gives nothing more than is provided now, which in some instances, I might indicate, does not provide an appeal. In the event any of you people have not yet experienced it, perhaps when you get 11 points you will find that some administrative agency has determined whether or not you shall be able to drive a motor vehicle.

In the present confusion of the courts of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the courts of common pleas, the holdings that have been handed down by those various courts are an absolute mishmash. In some instances, they have been permitted to appeal and in some cases in some counties they have not been permitted to appeal. It is this particular thing to which I address myself.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Kline.

DELEGATE KLINE. Mr. President, I am not one for delay and I am disappointed that I have voted only once since I came here at 2:30, but I agree with Delegate Michener that this is an extremely important decision. It would seem to me that until we know the structure of the judicial system completely from top to bottom, perhaps we cannot make a determination on the right of appeal and whether or not it should be complete or whether the legislature should have some control over the types of appeal or manners of appeal. I am just wondering if this very serious and far-reaching question could not wait until we determine precisely what we are going to do in the other areas of the judiciary.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, it may take a little while, perhaps, to educate some of these nonlawyers, but it was the lawyers who raised this particular question. The chief abuse, and I spoke to it—I was not the proponent and I see my redheaded friend up there who will be speaking shortly on it—but it has been the experience of all of the lawyers who represent people who, when they were faced with an action before a court not of record, before the magistrates and the justices of the peace, that with the exception of those cases dealing with motor vehicle actions, which you can waive, you are required and bound to have your hearing before that squire, and the appeal is given to you only upon cause shown. Our Pennsylvania Superior Court has, for the past several years, indicated that appeals of that nature should not be allowed because no cause has been shown. I do not again wish to divulge some of the awful stuff which was given to the subcommittee and the committee of the whole, but I had an action and this might explain it to you, Delegate Kline.

I represented a public utility, Delegate Amsterdam, Volant Water Company, 76 subscribers, who had violated a rule of the Department of Health. They were arrested. The case was taken from one end of the county to another, taken down to a squire in the lower end of the county. We could not possibly have appealed from that case because we could not show cause, so we paid the fine. This is the kind of thing that is happening all over the State to most of those who practice and are bound to come into this type of court not of record and the appeal is not granted. This does not ridicule the justice of the peace; this is the way the thing sits. In order to state to the court, we would have to set up a fictitious constitutional cause or absolutely berate the hearing squire. It was our feeling that in a free system the right of appeal should be absolute. These are real cases; these are very important; these belong to live and living people, and it is on this that so many of our practitioners and citizens of the Commonwealth do not know what it is to have their rights, perhaps, handled in this fashion. My understanding of a good government is one which guarantees to its citizens a right to an honest and fair hearing. I do not think our judges are that busy, but they have been able to lean on the Superior Court's opinion repeatedly given.

My lawyer in this instance comes from a smaller county than my own. He is in that type of court often and I think he is ready to speak, and that is Delegate Barron—with two r's.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I rise to oppose this amendment.

We have been struggling all during the course of this Convention with a determination as to whether or not we are unnecessarily encumbering the Constitution with language that is more properly the subject of legislative enactment. I think that one of the guideposts that we ought to hold out for ourselves in making a determination is whether or not we are dealing with a basic right of the people.

If we are dealing with a basic right of the people, I think this is something that should not be left to the determination of the legislature, but rather should be incorporated in the basic law of the land. I think the right to appeal, the right to pursue to the court of last resort, the right to go to the highest authority for ultimate disposition of a party's case is a basic fundamental right that should be spelled out in our basic law. I am not terribly concerned with the argument that this might result in the clogging of the work of our appellate courts. I am less concerned with the clogging of the appellate courts than I am concerned with curtailing the right of the people to go to a court of last resort. If, by chance, the work of the appellate court should become clogged, we will have to meet that contingency when it develops, but in the interim, we will have preserved what I consider to be a basic fundamental right by incorporating that right into the basic law of this land.

It is for these reasons that I would oppose this amendment, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would like to suggest, are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I am going to ask your kind indulgence because I sense the feeling of this House that you do not want to hear from anybody else. I hope when I am finished I am wrong.

Of all the things in this judiciary article in which I have some part of my heart as well as my mind, this particular concept of the right of appeal is a real and sincere one. To be quite frank with you, as a lawyer I have just sufficient conceit touched with a modicum of humility, to suggest that I can practice in any court system this Convention comes out with and that is approved by the people, but I do further suggest to you that if the rights, as were so carefully emphasized by Delegate Fineman, of my clients are not so protected by this Convention, I cannot hold my head up with that same pride.

Delegate Kline had an excellent suggestion which, frankly, if he will put in the form of a motion, I would be most willing to second, concerning the tabling of this affair, and I will explain at this point why.

I believe that I feel the sense of the house when I suggest that some form of the justice-of-the-peace system will be retained for our Commonwealth. How extensive this may be and under what limitations this may be none of us now know because the topic has not been touched nor analyzed, let alone voted upon. My feelings and my explanation as to what the right of appeal will mean will hinge largely, as suggested by Delegate Kline, on the form of the court structure that we ultimately produce. If I may say so, and with no criticism whatsoever leveled at the drafters, Section 5 was an inappropriate number to select and to put in the middle of concepts of form and organization of our unified court structure. I say again this is no criticism whatsoever. However, when the court structure and form is determined, the right of appeal can then be explained, relating present law to the proposed changes that this Convention may adopt and it can be discussed with a degree of intelligence and facts supplied to it for your worthy and earnest consideration.

MOTION TO TABLE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. If we are in order, Mr. President, and if Delegate Kline would state his motion, I would be most happy to second it.

I will state it: I move that the matter of appeal in the present amendment as proposed be laid on the table until we complete the concepts of form and organization contained in this proposal.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I would second that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Barron and seconded by Delegate Amsterdam that the question presented by this amendment being offered by Delegate Thornburgh be placed on the table.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, there are two additional items covering this same matter which I believe were to be brought up at this time. I wonder whether they might also be deferred so that the gentlemen who have these various amendments could confer together at the end and perhaps come back to us with a suggestion on this matter of appeal, which is of tremendous importance, as Delegate Scranton has pointed out. I believe there is some reason to hope there will be some change that will, perhaps, be better than what we have in Article V at the present time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have two amendments here, both of them by Delegate Barron, and I am advised that they both deal with appeal. With his permission, we will hold those amendments with the amendment already tabled and the amendment of Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE BARRON. Agreed to, Mr. President.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I would like to caution the assembly against the error that the Harvard faculty fell into when I was a clerk there for a very important committee. They gave a degree which had eight courses that were required. This was a graduate school, and we assembled the faculty, and after long discussion we proved to everyone else's satisfaction that no student should take any single course until he had all the other seven courses.

BARRY AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is being offered by Delegate Barry. I am going to ask the pages to distribute the Barry amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRY offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, lines 15 to 18, by striking out all of said lines, and inserting: Section 4. Commonwealth Court.—Unless the General Assembly shall otherwise provide, the Commonwealth Court shall consist of seven judges, one of whom shall be President Judge. It shall have Statewide jurisdiction as shall be provided by law. It shall come into existence January 1, 1970.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Barry, you may make your presentation as soon as you see the distribution has been completed.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, fellow delegates, this is the same amendment as the one that I withdrew a short while ago. It provides for the establishment of the Commonwealth Court on January 1, 1970 and provides that it consist of seven judges until and unless otherwise provided by the General Assembly.

We have heard about the right of appeal now; we can see that this is part of a seamless fabric called the judiciary article. Here is another change that is absolutely necessary to immediately provide for right of appeal in all cases for those who consider that an integral part of the judiciary article. As Delegate Amsterdam has pointed out, the legislature should set the tenure, composition and other incidental matters of this Commonwealth Court. There is no attempt here to legislate. The only thing that is provided, unless otherwise stated, is that it shall consist of seven judges and the General Assembly has two years to put it into effect. During that time, it will have a chance to figure out where it wants it to go and what its jurisdiction shall be.

I submit that the Commonwealth can no longer say that all Commonwealth cases should be heard in Dauphin County. It can no longer say that appeals through an administrative agency are not the responsibility of all the people of the Commonwealth and the judicial system, but only the responsibility of the electors of Dauphin County and the judges of Dauphin County. Now is the time to change this, and since we have so many other items that could be given to this court now, it should no longer be set aside and left to some future time to determine whether or when it should go into existence.

If there was an objection at one time about the number of judges, this will provide flexibility. This can provide that they be increased or decreased if the General Assembly sees fit, but it will set some figure and set some time and it will put it into effect within a reasonable time, during which the machinery of how it shall be done shall have plenty of time to figure it out.

Therefore, I urge you to adopt this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, the legislature was my first love in politics, and I still feel that way about it. I do feel, however, that the number of judges on the Commonwealth Court, which, in my opinion, is a court very much on the level of the Superior Court and just under the Supreme Court, should be set in the Constitution just as the Supreme Court and the Superior Court has it set.

I wanted to make that point clear. I do not want to enter into a long argument about it, because I think that most of the people here know the arguments on both sides of this case.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In accordance with what Delegate Woodside just stated, I was wondering if our fellow delegates would be ready for the question on this. We heard the debate earlier. Do you want to hear more discussion?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. I have a question for Delegate Barry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Barry will stand for your question.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. It seems to me that this belongs in the schedule, maybe not the number of judges, but everything else.

DELEGATE BARRY. They will go on the schedule automatically. Style and Drafting will put it there, but the schedule, if you will recall, sets a 1969 date for everything else in the judicial article.

This will give a year longer for the Commonwealth Court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. It seems to me that I have to state what I conceive to be the committee's position again so that we know what it is the committee has determined for what that may be worth for this body.

We had felt that it was quite important to leave open the matter of the number of judges, the matter of where they should be sitting, and all these things the legislature normally takes care of.

For instance, I am quite concerned when I see that it shall have statewide jurisdiction. Some of the very things we are talking about may not be matters of statewide jurisdiction—an appeal in Philadelphia County to this kind of a court for which we might want to have initial jurisdiction rather than appellate jurisdiction—things of that sort, it seems to me, cannot be done if we are going to tie it into a straitjacket.

I am very much afraid that any of these words that we use are going to have that effect. It is just not the way, in my opinion; I think this is what the committee indicated by its votes should be done.

I see no objection to having a statement that this court should come into existence by January 1, 1970. Actually I am not sure it has too much meaning, because I do not know what would happen, for instance, if the legislature failed to set up any jurisdiction for this court, for you cannot have a court without jurisdiction.

I feel, however, if we set a date which is about as far as we have a right to do, of 1970, the legislature would feel constrained to fill in and put some fat on those bones so that we will have a court that will deal with what Delegate Barry and the rest of us want.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I see we have several delegates at the microphone. I ask again, are you ready for the question or do you want further discussion?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Barry?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—44

Aberman	Cortese	Gouger	Ruth
Baldwin	Curran	Himes	Scales
Banes	Dailey	Huggins	Sharp
Barron	Desmond	Jirolanio	Shively
Barry	Devlin	Johnson	Shoemaker
Bashoff	Erwin	Kauffman	Shrager
Bloom	Fagan	Keller, J.	Silverman
Brennan	Fawcett	Meyer	Waldron
Brown	Fohl	Pott	Welsh
Butera	Gerber	Reynolds	Whittum
Caputo	Goldstein	Richter	Wilcox

NAYS—87

Amsterdam	Forster	Manderino	Roberts
Aurentz	Gabreski	Markley	Rovner
Bagenstose	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Sahli
Baldrige	Goldman	McGeary	Scarlett
Benfield	Hannum	McGlynn	Scranton
Braham	Harding	Michael	Sebastian
Broderick	Hatter	Michener	Shapiro
Buck	Henderson	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Bunting	Hocker	Moorhead	Stout
Burkholder	Hook	More	Strickler
Camardella	Horne	Morton	Stroup
Caron	Hostetler	Nelson	Swope
Casey	Kelly	O'Donnell	Tate
Clark	Kline	Orban	Thornburgh
Clinger	Krill	Otto	Tomascik
Conley	Laputka	Pasquerilla	Tully
Croop	Leach	Pelletier	Warman
Dumbauld	Lee, K.	Popil	Westerberg
Fay	Lee, L.	Powell	Wilmarth
Feather	Leinbach	Prendergast	Woodring
Filson	Leonard	Rea	Woodside
Fineman	Levin	Redick

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Donolow	King	Percey
Baldus	Fleming	Lane	Quiles
Benedict	Fortney	Mangery	Rappaport
Cain	Gray	Miller, R.	Scott
Corey	Griffith	Murray	Sheltig
Cosetti	Heyburn	Musselman	Solomon
Cunningham	Irvis	Orbin	Thomson
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Pecham	Van Sant

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

AMENDMENT TAKEN FROM TABLE AND WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would now like to recognize Delegate Baldridge and his cosponsor, Delegate Barron, and ask them if they would care to withdraw their amendment which is on the table, because we have a substitute which, I understand, is an agreed upon amendment and I at least want to take care of one.

DELEGATE BARRON. It is agreed here, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is agreed, I understand, by Delegates Baldrige and Barron that their original amendment be withdrawn and is no longer on the table.

O'DONNELL-BARRON-BALDRIGE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are now presenting a new amendment which will be called the O'Donnell-Barron-Baldrige amendment, and perhaps some others have pride of authorship.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, line 12, by removing the period after "law" and inserting: ; all of which courts and all jurisdiction of all courts shall be in this unified judicial system. Their jurisdiction shall be as provided by law.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, lines 13 to 16; page 2, lines 1 to 3, by striking out all of said lines.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 2), page 2, lines 5 to 7, by striking out "shall possess all" in line 6, all of lines 6 and 7, and inserting: in this court shall be reposed the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. And now the Chair recognizes the sponsor of this amendment. I shall proceed to name the sponsors: This is the O'Donnell-Barron-Baldrige-Scranton, et cetera, amendment.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, with no comment about who drew this, may I say to you all that this is not the best language in the world, but here and now I say to everyone that I am sure Style and Drafting will make it more beautiful. This is a problem, frankly, and I think it is an important problem for the Convention to realize that in doing anything in the judiciary article it is awfully hard to redraw in a short period of time and get complete and meaningful language.

What it does is precisely what was outlined in that contretemps we had here about an hour ago and what it does is that it takes out the problem that was raised concerning what is properly the legislature's and what is properly the Supreme Court's. As indicated in the original lines 1, 2 and 3 of page 2, it takes out (b) on the bottom of page 1, but keeps in it the fact that the jurisidiction of all of these courts shall be in the unified judicial system, which is a very strong point with the committee. It feels very strongly that this is where it belongs and that the unified judicial system should not be tampered with.

Last, but not least, it gives the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth to the Supreme Court which, in technical language, is a method of keeping the King's Bench powers in the Supreme Court.

Mr. President, I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question has been moved and we are ready for the question. We shall now open up the voting machine.

Just a moment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. I have not even seen the amendment yet. I would like to be able to get a look at it. It was just passed out. I would like a moment to look at it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. We want everybody to have that opportunity.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I withdraw my motion. Let anybody talk who wants to talk about it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Since Delegate Kauffman was standing over in the corner, the negotiating corner, I thought he was a member of the negotiating team.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, while we are at ease, as we seem to be, on the Barry amendment I find that I inadvertently voted "nay" when I intended to vote "yes." May the record so show?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We shall have your remarks spread upon the record.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would like to ask Delegate Scranton, if he is a proponent of this particular amendment, one question?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. You may describe me any way you wish; many people have.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Delegate Scranton, I must say I did describe you during your campaign, but it was always in very complimentary terms. I did feel there was someone else who was better, but the voters did not agree with me.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I am for you for Governor.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I note the first paragraph says that jurisdiction shall be as provided by law. It would appear that the second paragraph, where you give the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth—and I am very happy those words are being used—may very well be a contradiction. What you are giving in the second paragraph, you may be taking away with the first paragraph.

I want to make sure that it is on the record that you intend the Supreme Court shall have all powers enjoyed heretofore, the Commonwealth powers of our court system.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. That is exactly what is intended, sir. May I say that this language has been looked at by Judge Woodside and by everybody we can think of, to make sure that the King's Bench power of the Supreme Court and all the other things that you mentioned earlier are there.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Then why has the language "powers presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth shall be vested in the unified judicial system created hereby" been deleted?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. It has been deleted because the language which is here now, "all of which courts and all jurisdiction of all courts shall be in this unified judicial system," in the opinion of the 97 people who looked at this, indicates the same thing. It not only indicates that the jurisdiction that is presently vested in them will be there, but indeed all jurisdiction.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. But is not that language immediately followed by the sentence, "Their jurisdiction shall be as provided by law"?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Yes.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. And we nowhere now have the language which states expressly that all jurisdiction presently vested in the courts of this Commonwealth shall be vested in the unified judicial system. Therefore, if the legislature does not create the jurisdiction, it is not there.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I say to you, sir, that, in the opinion of the people who wrote this, it does precisely what I gather you want it to do. I mentioned at the very opening here that I do not think this is particularly beautiful literature and that I am sure that Style and Drafting, because we have literate people there, will practically rewrite it. But I must say to you that the reason to put in "Their jurisdiction shall be as provided by law" was so that those of the legislature who were very concerned about the fact of whether their powers were being imposed upon would make certain that they were not so doing. But that is clear; at least it is supposed to be clear; and if it is not, we will have to rewrite it in Style and Drafting. The intention clearly is that all jurisdiction, that which is presently vested in it and that which is in any court at the moment, of all courts, shall be in this unified judicial system.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. What substantive change is intended by this amendment?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. The substantive change that is intended by the amendment is the removal of the first three lines of the second page which, in the opinion of some people, was an interference with the legislative powers. Likewise, that is the only major substantive change; likewise, the introduction of the words "in this court"—the Supreme Court—"shall be reposed the supreme judicial power of the Commonwealth." That is supposed to and is intended and, I believe, does take the words that were previously up in here and make it clear that the King's Bench power is in the Supreme Court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, may I add to that?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. If you do not confuse me.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I will not, I hope.

I would invite the attention of the Honorable Delegate from Montgomery County to two items. There has been deleted, just as Governor Scranton has pointed out, the necessity for prior certification by the Supreme Court for legislative acts fixing jurisdiction. That is item one.

Item two, which you may call a substantive or stylistic change, deletes the words "powers presently", because if you will turn to page 15, you will note that with each and every single court, for example, we say in the scheduling, "The Supreme Court shall exercise all the powers and jurisdiction now vested". Now we go to the Superior Court, "now vested", "presently vested", and so forth. In other words, that is a repeat.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, apparently I did not quite catch Mr. Kauffman's point. Mr. Buller, who is a much better lawyer, is now expressing to him the opinion that what he is worried about is in the schedule and that is where it properly belongs.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. I might make a contribution, Mr. President. Although frequently I dwell in the abysmally stagment pools of ignorance on some of these matters, nevertheless it does appear that the language, if the delegate from Montgomery will attend to me, that the "jurisdiction shall be as provided by law" keeps the present laws in full force and effect unless they are in direct conflict with the Constitution to be adopted and such laws in the future as may be adopted in full and complete harmony with the Constitution. I think, therefore, that would answer his question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Kauffman, are you reasonably satisfied now?

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. I am not at all satisfied, because this is a very great substantive change as I see it. The committee voted to vest all of the powers that are presently in the courts of this Commonwealth in a unified judicial system, and they further voted that none of these powers would be removed from the unified judicial system without the prior approval of the Supreme Court. I think that we ought to have expressed to us why Delegate O'Donnell and Delegate Scranton and several others have now seen fit to introduce an amendment which changes materially and substantively what I thought the committee had overwhelmingly voted for.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. First of all, may I say to the delegate that because Mr. O'Donnell and I are in agreement about this at the moment does not mean that we are trying to substitute our thinking for that of the committee. The committee can still take the position that it wants it back where it originally was by voting this amendment down. The point is, however, that if you were here for it—and I assume you were, earlier this afternoon—it was brought up by several people this morning and again at noon and again this afternoon that, in the opinion of many people, it was a mistake to infringe upon the powers or the prerogatives of the legislature and that the first three lines on the second page—not that you do not infringe upon the powers of the legislature from time to time, as you do on the powers of the executive, and as you do on the powers of the judiciary, when you have a three-way type of government—nevertheless it was the opinion of many people that this was too great an interference with the prerogatives of the legislature, and those people all met and have come to an agreement with this language.

Anybody who objects—and do not get me wrong; everybody has every right to object, because there is no doubt that the committee originally intended the first three lines of the second page. The great question is whether you still want that, and if you do not, you may most certainly vote this amendment down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am certainly not one of those who feel that any prerogatives should be taken from the legislature. It is my belief, however, that the courts have jurisdiction over some matters as a result of legislative action and over other matters as a result of the words of prior Constitutions. The question that I have for the framers of this language is, do they intend by this language to allow the legislature to take away from the courts, jurisdiction which they have as a result of prior Constitutions? It would appear to me that this is what they have done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. It is not the intent of this provision to give the legislature the right to take away certain powers which were given by prior Constitutions. Let us consider what those specific powers were. There are very few of them indeed. One is the original jurisdiction in the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in injunction cases wherein a corporation is a defendant. That has been taken away, not from the legislature; the legislature could still do it, but this Constitution has said that is an anachronism absolutely no longer necessary in any way whatsoever. The only power which remains specifically and constitutionally in the Supreme Court expressly by this Constitution is the duty to hear all cases of felonious homicide, and nothing else.

What does that mean? It means that the Supreme Court now has every single, solitary power which it in fact exercises because, as everybody knows, in the last 100 years the Supreme Court has never heard an injunction action solely because there was a corporate defendant. It has every power which the Superior Court now exercises and every power which inferior courts now exercise.

I had thought we were long past the problem in which we can continually in this Constitution infringe on the rights of the legislature. The legislature when it writes remedial legislation, if it appoints an air pollution control board with authority to close down an industry, if you will, that same act of the legislature wants to pick the court to which an appeal can be made. That same legislature says that unemployment compensation appeals go to the Superior; a zoning appeal goes to the Supreme Court; a workman's compensation appeal goes to the common pleas court. The testing of jurisdiction is an integral part of an act of the legislature, and consequently it is absolutely essential that the Supreme Court not be given a veto power over such remedial legislation.

In this point of view, I am joined by Representative Fineman, Representative Irvis, Senator Stroup, Senator Keller, Blaine Hocker, a former Representative, and everybody else. I just do not understand what the objection is.

I move the question.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I am very much impressed with the caliber of Mr. O'Donnell's colleagues but I think he has convinced me that this is a bad amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker. I recognize you with the hope that we can now have the question.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I concur, Mr. President, that we should move on to the question. I merely want the delegation to be aware that the first three lines, which is the main thrust on page two of what we are trying to abolish by this amendment, is the veto power of a judicial body over a legislature, which is contrary to Federal history and all of our history. This is what we are trying to do and nothing more. I agree to move the question.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate O'Donnell?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—120

Aberman	Fay	Loinbach	Reynolds
Amsterdam	Feather	Leonard	Richter
Aurentz	Filson	Levin	Roberts
Bagenstose	Fineman	Manderino	Rovner
Baldrige	Fohl	Mangery	Ruth
Baldwin	Forster	Markley	Sahli
Banes	Gabreski	Mattioni	Scales
Barron	Gehrlein	McGeary	Scarlett
Barry	Gerber	McGlynn	Scranton
Bashoff	Goldman	Michael	Sebastian
Benfield	Goldstein	Michener	Shettig
Burkholder	Gouger	Miller, D.	Shively
Butera	Hannum	Moorhead	Shoemaker
Cain	Harding	More	Shrager
Camardella	Hatter	Morton	Silverman
Caputo	Henderson	Murray	Sprogell
Caron	Himes	Nelson	Stout
Clinger	Hocker	O'Donnell	Strickler
Conley	Hook	Orban	Stroup
Cortese	Horne	Orbin	Thomson
Cosetti	Hostetler	Otto	Thornburgh
Croop	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Tomaselk
Curran	Irvis	Pelletier	Tully
Dailey	Jirolanio	Popil	Van Sant
Desmond	Kelly	Pott	Waldron
Devlin	Kline	Powell	Welsh
Dumbauld	Laputka	Prendergast	Westerberg
Erwin	Leach	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Fagan	Lee, K.	Rea	Woodring
Fawcett	Lee, L.	Rediek	Woodside

NAYS—16

Baldus	Broderick	Johnson	Shapiro
Bloom	Brown	Kauffman	Sharp
Braham	Bunting	Keller, J.	Whittum
Brennan	Casey	Krill	Wilcox

NOT VOTING—27

Allison	Donolow	King	Quiles
Benedict	Fleming	Lane	Scott
Buck	Fortney	Meyer	Solomon
Clark	Gray	Miller, R.	Swope
Corey	Griffith	Musselman	Tate
Cunningham	Heyburn	Pechan	Warman
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Percey

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I did not quite make the voting machine in time. I would like the record to show me as voting "aye."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman's remarks will be spread upon the record.

DELEGATE TATE. Thank you.

REA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is the Rea amendment. The clerk will now read the amendment and the pages will please distribute it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE REA offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30, by inserting after "In": Allegheny County and in

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 26, by inserting after "than": in Allegheny County and

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea to speak in behalf of his amendment.

DELEGATE REA. Members of the Convention, the amendment which I have offered is for one specific purpose, and that is, to create a community court in Allegheny County; in no other county, merely in Allegheny County. The words of the amendment do nothing more than create a mandatory community court in Allegheny County. This amendment has bipartisan support from the delegates of Allegheny County, although it does not have unanimous support.

Attached to the amendment, just for your information so that I do not have to take too much time speaking, is a newspaper clipping on both sides. One is two years old, to show that this has been a problem for several years in our county, and one dated last week by our other newspaper showing it is still a problem in our county and that the newspapers are wholeheartedly behind this proposition.

If I may, I would like, very briefly, to tell you what this amendment will do for 1,650,000 people in Allegheny County. At the present time under the present judiciary article, Allegheny County will end up with 24 magistrates who will be justices of the peace. Under the community court we will have 20, so that for each either justice of the peace or community court judge, they will represent in the area of 75,000 people. So that you will understand, in Allegheny County as differentiated from so many of our smaller counties, the justice of the peace has lost his function of being close to the people. When you have one justice of the peace representing 80,000 people, that is not the old-time function we had of the justice of the peace.

If you adopt this amendment you will have, under a community court, a courtroom with trained personnel and a judge learned in the law to whom the people can go and in whom the people can have faith. It will be a law court; whereas, if you let us retain the justice-of-the-peace system, we will have a court in a back room or above a candy store or somewhere else that has no more relationship to a court of law and justice than the man in the moon.

If you give us community courts in Allegheny County, we will have, at a minimum, people who have four years of college, three years of law school and have passed the bar examination. If you leave us with the justices of the peace, the most they will probably have is a three-month course at night in training, attempting to learn what lawyers have had to go to school seven years to learn. If you leave us with JPs, you are leaving us in Allegheny County with the people who are politicians, with the people whose major job is not the dispensing of justice and law, but who are dispensing political favor, and who are dispensing back-room justice, depending on who the litigant is. Whereas, if you give us community courts you will give us a judge whom the people can respect.

In both systems the judges will be elected by popular elections so that the people will still retain their right to select who is going to judge their cases. But if you give us a community court, may I state, you are going to help the people for the biggest reason, and that is, that you are going to make justice accessible to them at a reasonable cost. We have had statistics and information that clearly show that in a community court a citizen can file a law-suit for $3.50 and prosecute it to final judgment, whereas it costs $18, $20 or $30 to do it under the JP system, so that you are making justice accessible to the people without excessive cost.

One further thing, and I think this is probably the thing that is most important. In a JP's office, people have no real respect for law. If a criminal case is brought in, it is too easy in this day and age to have it fixed, to have a case taken care of. If a young boy gets in trouble his father can go down to the JP and get it taken care of, and all this shows the young man is that the law is not firm, that things can be changed, that little people can have no right, but that anybody who has money can get something fixed at that level; whereas if you give us in Allegheny County a community court, you are giving an image to the people that justice at any level is the same justice for everybody and that you must respect law and order no matter what court you are in.

There are several delegates from Allegheny County who would like to speak on this subject and I would like, Mr. President, to yield to Delegate Brennan from Allegheny County, and I would like to say one word—Delegate Brennan may not tell you this, but he is at present president of the Academy of Trial Lawyers in Allegheny County and has probably tried and been involved in more court proceedings than any delegate to this Convention. I have the most respect for him and would hope that you would give him and his thoughts your attention. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Brennan.

DELEGATE BRENNAN. Fellow delegates, I speak to this as a bipartisan thing for the county of Allegheny and the city of Pittsburgh. I originally was not disposed to do away with the magistrates and justices of the peace in Allegheny County when I came to this Convention. However, as I have seen things develop, as I read the proposal submitted by the committee, I believe that the magistrate and the justice-of-the-peace system is finished anyway. However, last Saturday a group of about 18 organizations from the League of Women Voters on down to the lowest neighborhood group in our poorer sections had a group of us delegates in the city council chambers, and the intensity of these people and these organizations to get rid of the justices of the peace in Allegheny County is beyond comprehension. I have read some of the things out of a book I read on the magistrate system in Philadelphia, but these people are much more intense even than that. It must be a vicious thing to the poor. I had not realized it because as we practice law and get older we get away from this part of the practice of law, and having represented plaintiffs all my life, and therefore the poor, I believe it is very important that the delegates from the rest of the State not interested in this come to the aid of Allegheny County.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate Delegate Rea.

Delegate Rea, I am just a little bit mystified as to the necessity of establishing a community court for Allegheny County in the Constitution when the present clause in the proposal provides for the electorate to establish a community court if they see fit.

DELEGATE REA. In answer to your question, we have tried the JP system in Allegheny County all our lives. We do know, and the members of the Convention do not as yet, but Delegate Redick has a proposal and the members of the Judiciary Committee have agreed that there will be another proposal introduced to the effect that if the community court system does not work, the electorate can elect to return to the JP system. This is going to be introduced next, so I say to you the JP system has not worked yet in Allegheny County. Give us the community court that we believe, and every one says, will work and then if there is a dissatisfaction with that, the people can return to the JP system, but do not let us leave this Convention with what we have now. It has not worked in the past. We must have something that will work in the future, and this is what will work in our county.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, just one further question.

Of course, delegates, I recognize the very splendid plea that Delegate Rea has made in behalf of Allegheny County and that is: Do you and other delegates of Allegheny County in your amendment fail to rely upon the electorate to make the choice of community courts or not? Are you afraid they would not have a community court on the ballot?

DELEGATE REA. I believe that they would, but you must understand the practicality that to put this on the ballot in Allegheny County will take 27,000 signatures. As a practical matter, I am afraid both political parties will be opposed to putting this on the ballot, so you are making and mandating a most difficult process for us. That is the reason I feel that the people want this change, every organization, and it will be referred to in a few minutes; the poorest people want this because this is the salvation of the poor, the undertrod and the underprivileged.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Thank you, Mr. President.

First addressing myself to the good Senator, maybe Allegheny County wants to be treated in this Constitution the same as the city of Philadelphia whereby the Constitution is eliminating their magistrate system. I really think this is one issue where nonlawyers and lawyers can understand it.

First, let us look at the history of the JP system as it originated in England. At the time of its origin, the most respected and well-to-do citizen of the area was classified as a justice of the peace so that he could render a decision impartially without favoritism to anyone.

In today's system, even if we adopt the method proposed by this proposal of the fee system, we still have the popularly-elected doing what might be favors for the litigant.

All we are asking for is the same treatment as Philadelphia. A 400,000 difference in population we do not think makes any difference.

It was very enlightening yesterday to see delegates from the city of Pittsburgh make a proposal which was ruled out of order in which they were asking this Convention to say that henceforth the legislature would treat the city of Pittsburgh the same as it does the city of Philadelphia. Now we are asking here that this Convention treat the county of Allegheny the same as the city of Philadelphia.

Let us look at the jurisdiction of the JPs. It falls in two lines in Allegheny County, civil jurisdiction up to an amount of $500. Let us, by analogy, consider that in Allegheny County we have great hospitals. I have a family physician who takes me to a hospital. He says I am going to have an operation that costs $499, so we do not have a licensed medical doctor practicing on us. Go back to your locality and find who was elected as a medical JP and he operates on you. But if you have $501, you can have a licensed medical man. I say the same is true of the legal matters. If you have $500, you go before a non-trained person in the profession of law; if you have $501, then you are entitled to have a qualified, competent judge rule on your problem. To me, there is no distinction nor should there be any distinction as to whether a litigant has $300 or $800.

Unfortunately, our JP system is hurting the poor, because they are the ones who are generally involved in small claims of less than $500. They are the ones who are required to post bond for their appearance. They are the ones who are required to take the appeal and spend their money.

Now let us look at the other area, criminal jurisdiction. To me it was very enlightening yesterday to hear Delegate Irvis fight for the public defender. I say that in the large metropolitan areas we have only gone half of the road now.

What good is it to appear in a criminal matter where you have an assistant district attorney and a public defender or an assistant public defender and you are being heard initially by a justice of the peace who is elected without regard to his qualifications?

In today's courts, particularly in the large metropolitan areas where we have problems involving crime, I submit that when we start at the lowest level in the criminal procedure before a justice of the peace, we should have a man learned in the law who can make a decision so that we do not have people being impounded in jail or being held to post bail to take their cases before a criminal judge or a grand jury.

Yes, I feel strongly that in the large metropolitan areas there is a need for change. It is one of the things that was mandated for this Convention. I submit to you that if we are going to do this for Philadelphia, and Philadelphia wants it, then Allegheny County, merely because it has 400,000 less people, does not have any difference in its troubles in civil and criminal jurisdiction, and they should be treated alike by this Convention.

I sincerely hope that the delegates, lawyers and nonlawyers, will realize that in the large metropolitan areas when it is a civil suit, it is the poor who are being hurt by these. And in the criminal matter suits, I am sure, fortunately or unfortunately—we have more in the metropolitan areas going to our justices of the peace—these people are entitled initially to have a fair and equitable ruling by a qualified, trained judge.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, first I would like to correct a statement and, I believe, the record will show this statement. Approximately two weeks ago our delegate from the 37th District, Delegate Rea, had stated there were 6,000 bumper cases in Allegheny County. Just for the record I would like to correct this. There happened to be 2,150 civil cases appear before the court, and for the record, I also have this statement from the county court of Allegheny, signed by the deputy in charge, David M. Brinkley.

Secondly, I would like to state that, yes, Allegheny County would like to be treated as citizens and have this right to decide what they would like to do, whether they want to keep the JP system or abolish it.

I am sure that I know what they want to do. Let us give them this right. Also, I say the Judiciary Committee has gone on record as approving my recommendations and others that we retain the system but restrain it.

I also want to state for the record, yesterday I tried to present to each one of the delegates the statement I just read to you, but I was turned down. I see that Mr. Rea had the prerogative of sending out his statement pertaining to the Pittsburgh Post Gazette. I do not think this is fair.

Thirdly, some of these statements are coming from the Pittsburgh Post Gazette, and I do not think we are responsible for these statements. I want this delegation to know that on Thursday, February 8, 1968, in the editorial section, it stated, this is "a do-nothing Convention." This is what they think of us down here. So how can we thank them for what they have to say in the newspapers?

Mr. President, it appeared to all of us, I am certain, prior to the convening of this Convention and during its preparatory phase and even before that, according to reports that we all must have read in the news media, that the minor judiciary would be the whipping boy of the Convention. It was said their function was not necessary, that it was as old-fashioned as the 1874 convention itself, that it should be eliminated, that it should be replaced by the so-called community courts.

During my stay as a delegate I have not read specifically many such references or suggestions. I have heard the testimony of the witnesses who appeared before the Judiciary Committee last December and very little change has been suggested. We might examine why.

First, the minor courts of Pennsylvania have preserved precisely what it is for, where it stands and why. All of these suggestions, it appears to me, are not selfish. They are in line with the thinking of most members of the Convention and should be taken into consideration before a final document is taken to the people.

Let me recount these points so that all delegates might know the democratic and constructive views of the group of public citizens and officials. First, the number of minor judiciaries shall be changed to magisterial districts to be determined by population standards, geographically perhaps by county classes and so forth.

Second, the members of the minor judiciary shall be elected by the vote of the people at the regular elections as they are now elected for a term of six years. There is no change suggested here.

In the matter of education, House bill No. 1507, mandated by the people of the Commonwealth, was presented to the Governor during the past month. The Governor has signed the bill. It is now Act 450 of the 1967 legislature, and it includes educational rules defined and most heartily approved by the members of the Pennsylvania minor courts. This group has suggested, I must point out, that those currently performing the duties should not be required to take such a test if they have had 12 years' experience in the post. Twelve years' experience certainly outweighs the knowledge to be gained in three months of study. Is it required of the judges to continue to take refresher courses? No. The minor judiciary has insisted that any candidate for office should have successfully completed this course and should have been certified according to specifics of the new law.

With the aid of experienced justices of the peace, aldermen and magistrates, much of the civil backlog in the courts could be speeded to conclusion. It is suggested that the judiciary shall include all jurisdiction now conferred by acts of Assembly, and that jurisdiction in criminal matters be extended to include taking of pleas and imposing sentences for certain misdemeanors under both the Vehicle Code and the Criminal Code. Jurisdiction in civil matters shall extend to all cases of assumpsit and all types of trespassing where the demand shall not exceed $2,000, and shall extend also to include domestic relations.

I have been told that the Philadelphia civil courts have a six-year backlog of civil cases before trial and have 17,000 criminal indictments waiting, and that the Pittsburgh backlog is almost as bad. One must admit that justice delayed is justice denied, and that justice delayed is contrary to the basic right which claims that man must have his day in court. To say he must have it as quickly as possible is justice itself. It is the highest court which causes delay and the addition of duties and jurisdictions to the minor judiciary could well speed the day when courts have all eliminated the backlog and the citizen is given speedy as well as just treatment by the courts.

The fifth suggestion is that members of the minor judiciary shall be governed by the canons of judicial ethics. One would have it no other way.

Sixth—and this is most important and has been stressed emphatically by the Pennsylvania minor judiciary groups—is that the fee system should be eliminated and that a salary shall be paid to the minor court staff by the county. Costs imposed and collected by members of the minor judiciary shall be returned to the counties. Pennsylvania members of the minor judiciary have suggested a salary.

It also has been suggested that the county provide suitable courtroom offices for the minor judiciary in public buildings and other places provided by the courts of common pleas. The Commonwealth and its halls of justice are ill represented when—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Redick, you have two minutes more.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, if you would not mind, I have been keeping tabs on several delegates here from the Convention and I assure you they went much over the 10-minute limit. As a matter of fact, I recall one instance where the delegate talked for 23 minutes. I think I would require at least another six minutes to continue, so I am pleading to you, could I continue?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want the delegate to know the Chair does not keep the time. We have timekeepers down here and they have advised me that you have two minutes under the rules to sum up.

DELEGATE REDICK. Thank you, Mr. President. Let me try to pick the best parts of this speech. I applaud the stand of the distinguished gentleman from Dauphin County, Judge Woodside, a former Superior Court Judge and learned chairman of the commission which was named for him, who has suggested that judges should be elected for a first term by the people prior to any appointment. They should be from the people. The people wish to be judged by their peers, by those neighbors they have known, who know them and their problems and who have been elected for the highest office—that of judgeship—which man can place upon the shoulders of another man. Similarly, those who must judge in the minor courts, who must perform this significant duty of citizenship, should be elected by the people. It is incomprehensible to me, as it may be to many, that a young attorney, schooled but not yet learned, not knowing the problems of the people in the neighborhood or political subdivision, could better perform the duties of a bread-and-butter court than any older minor judiciary justice who has the pulse of the people of the neighborhood or the street and has lived to know their problems.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair wishes to announce that it has been called to the Chair's attention that this piece of paper was attached to the amendment and I just want you to know that instructions have been given that hereafter nothing shall be attached to the amendments. It is not in accordance with our rules, so we are going to see that it does not happen again.

The Chair will now recognize Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, fellow delegates, I think, initially, that many in this hall must realize that when we talk about the minor judiciary we are dealing with a major communications' gap. The minor judiciary in the metropolitan area is not the minor judiciary that so many of you know in the non-metropolitan areas. The folksy squire does not exist in the inner city portions of our large metropolitan areas.

There has been considerable uncertainty about the attitude of residents of Allegheny County toward their present minor judiciary system. In my opinion, that uncertainty prompted the present proposal provisions for Allegheny County, and I think that it is important to realize what the opinion of the persons who live and work in Allegheny County, and particularly in the inner-city's so-called "ghetto" areas, is of their minor judiciary.

The newspaper clipping which was attached to the proposal was intended only to save us reading to you the attitude of our two metropolitan dailies toward the minor judiciary stretching back over years.

I think it is important to refer to the groups that appeared at the meetings Delegate Brennan so eloquently described as "taking our breath away," when we realize the vehemence and the feelings of the members of these groups toward the minor judiciary. I might refer to some of them because they represent neighborhood poverty groups: the City-County Citizens Legal Committee, East Liberty Garfield Citizens' Advisory Committee, the Homewood-Brushton Citizens' Renewal Council, the Pittsburgh Area Religion and Race Council, United Negro Protest Committee, the Urbanry, the United Oakland Ministry, the Catholic Interracial Council. These were all attending and protesting against the present minor judiciary system.

Now what has this proposal done for the city of Pittsburgh and for Allegheny County? To be sure, there have been certain improvements worked in the minor judiciary system, but I submit to you that what you have really provided Allegheny County with is the very system that Philadelphia has been complaining to this Convention about for so long. In effect, you have put our JPs, reduced in number, on salary. I think that we can fairly say that you do Allegheny County no favor by providing it with a system that Philadelphia had and brought with great protest to this Convention.

It is axiomatic, I think, that the lowest court on the judicial ladder is the court where most people appear without a lawyer. It is in this court, because of the absence of legal advice, that persons need a man trained in the law more than in any other court in our system. This is what the community court would provide. The community court would be able to deal with those persons who are victimized most, the urban poor who suffer from collection agents, from slum lords, from loan sharks, and from the welfare bureaucracy that bears down on their life 24 hours a day.

I have been fortunate to have served as one of the incorporators and a member of the board of Neighborhood Legal Services Association, formed under the Antipoverty Program to provide legal services to those persons who cannot afford lawyers. I asked the lawyers who served in that program some months ago for their opinion of the minor judiciary in the areas that they served and the results were astonishing. All of them felt, without exception, that the system should be changed. They all felt that lawyers should be manning the post of the minor judiciary, and that the community court system, which is of the type proposed by Delegate Rea's amendment, was the answer to a great many of the problems of the poor which were being served. Let me remind you that these remarks did not come from newspaper editors, ivory-tower reformers, or even bar association officials. They came from case-hardened trial lawyers who on a day-to-day basis serve their indigent clients before the members of the minor judiciary.

I think we realize that this must be given great authority. We are asking daily for respect for law and order in our inner city ghettos, but we are offering them second-class justice encrusted with politics and so-called judges that are unlearned in the law.

The so-called reforms of the type contained in the present proposal are not enough for Allegheny County, and I would therefore strongly urge that this Convention provide Allegheny County with what its other metropolitan counterpart at the end of the State, Philadelphia, has been provided in Proposal No. 7.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Conley.

DELEGATE CONLEY. Mr. President, I will make one remark. About 12:30 last night Delegate Redick read his speech to me. I told him that although I was for it, if he forced me to hear that speech, I would probably vote against it.

But, seriously, I rise in opposition to the amendment. I, also, believe in sameness. I think the sameness should be that Allegheny County should be treated as the rest of the Commonwealth. I think there is a combination of the Allegheny and even Philadelphia County, and if I were in Philadelphia County, I would complain against this also, that in some manner the citizens of those two counties are not competent to decide this problem at home. Where the rest of the Commonwealth can decide this problem, they must have this Convention decide it for them.

I have nothing against this Convention deciding problems, but I feel if it is going to give this to the rest of the Commonwealth, then Allegheny County and Philadelphia County both should not be segregated from their right to select.

But, more important, I would like to get into the merit of the proposal. I would like to direct attention not to labels of community courts or justices of the peace, because these are labels which will get involved in some type of heat. I also would state that this is not a defense of the present JP system. If we were to argue between the JP system presently existing and the community court as proposed, I, myself, would vote for the community court. But what I would like the Convention to do is look at the elements and not just the label.

Under the present system there is a fee. This fee, I believe, is evil under both the community court and under the modified system. It has been changed to salaries. There is no difference there. Under the present system there is no supervision by the courts, but under the community court and under the modified system, there is supervision by the court. There is no difference there. Under both systems there will be a substantial reduction in the number of JPs.

There are some differences, mainly two, which I consider important. One I call geography; whether the justice shall be elected from the entire jurisdiction or from local districts. The second is whether he must be learned in the law. I shall address myself to the situation of being elected from the entire district.

I have been a lifelong member of the ghetto that Delegate Thornburgh talked about; I will die a member of it; I know it from the inside. With all systems, there is some good and there is some bad, and in the present system, the modified system throws out the bad, but the community court also brings in some bad. That bad is simply that when you elect the magistrate at-large it takes away any possibility of the people in the local jurisdiction having something to do, which I do consider important, and that is to have something in this system which says they may have a person who decides their case who understands their situation.

We are talking about Allegheny County. You can talk about justice in the abstract, but I would rather talk about problems and solutions of problems. The problems in Mount Lebanon, Allegheny County, are different from those in Homewood, the Hill district, or the north side. It would be good if a justice who was sitting there understood a little more than assault and battery when a husband and wife come in and if he also understood what provocation is and what provocation means to this couple. It is also good that when she comes in for surety of the peace to understand she really does not want surety of the peace. You can know this when you come out of that geographical area.

Another area is simply that an alderman or magistrate happens to be more than a justice or a judge. He is also a policeman; he is also a social worker. These are two terms which may not always be on the level with that of a judge, but a magistrate is these two.

I am not making any condemnation on any municipality in Allegheny County. I think many of us know that possibly one of these days in the future there may be rackets. It may be protected by a municipality. There is an opportunity for the local people, when election is made geographical, that they elect in there a man who can clean it up.

I ask that in the areas I come from that the machinery be left to elect our own man to clean it up. Otherwise, we are left to the mercy of the selection or election from the entire county.

It is very good and very gracious to me to be learned in the law. As a member of the bar, I am proud of that, but I do not carry that so far as to believe that in a system such as this, which would be the lowest level of the courts, the judges, who would probably be new and green or financially not able to do as well as others, that category of judge, that category of attorney, is superior to a layman who might be elected by the choice of the people.

One other area which was mentioned by Delegate Rea was how the delegates of the Convention from Allegheny County feel. We took a poll one night. There was mainly bipartisan support for this amendment and, as Delegate Rea said, it was not unanimous support for the amendment. What he did not say was that it was not even a majority.

Where were we in the polling of the Allegheny County delegates? They were for giving Allegheny County the option and not mandating the community court.

I myself was at the meeting mentioned in the city council chambers Saturday night. More than that I myself do work and will work with those groups of people who were there, the ones which Delegate Thornburgh listed. My feeling now is that those members, and many of them who feel much as I do, are looking at the elements and not just at the labels.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, to date we have stricken out the word "surveyor" from our Constitution; we have also stricken out the word "coroner." We have inserted another constitutional office, as I said this morning, that is, the office of public defender. It guarantees the rights of defendants in criminal trials.

Would it be inconsistent of this Convention and of the delegates to vote "yes" on that question and to vote "no" on this question? Where do you draw the line in giving a defendant, whether he be guilty or not guilty, a guaranteed right to a public defender in a criminal case, and yet you would not give the same individual the same due right for justice in what we now know as a "squire's court," a man being a judge, acting as a judge, to decide civil rights, really, civil matters, contract matters, tort matters, criminal matters; at a lower level, yes, but how would it be consistent of this delegation to vote "no" on this question when even yesterday we voted for the public defender?

If you voted, for example, "no" on this question, it seems to me that you would advocate a person operating on someone's leg in a hospital; you would advocate a druggest pulling teeth; you would advocate a man wanting to get a golf lesson, for example, paying money to a plumber to give him a golf lesson. You would, in effect, be advocating that a person such as yourself, for example, pay money to me to give you a skiing lesson. All of this, to me, is most inconsistent. But I think it is quite natural that what we are asking for in Allegheny County is very reasonable.

It is not unreasonable. It is not that we are here advocating or asking for a license to practice medicine, for example. We are actually asking you to confer rights of justice on people who will be going before the lower civil and criminal courts. We ask you to give them justice. That is, in effect, exactly what we are asking.

Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pott.

DELEGATE POTT. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I am very happy that you are affording Allegheny County all this particular time because we have heard so much about the city of Philadelphia and maybe we are picking our time up this way.

However, I wish to remind all the delegates that there are 129 municipalities in the County of Allegheny of which the city of Pittsburgh is one. There are 32 wards in the city of Pittsburgh. Each one of them has an alderman, and I would like to ask either Delegate Welsh or Delegate Rea if it is their intention by this to eliminate the aldermen also in the city of Pittsburgh, because, for the edification of the delegates, the aldermen in the city of Pittsburgh serve as the so-called JPs?

DELEGATE REA. Yes, it is the intention. In other words, we will create the community courts in our judicial district which is the whole county.

DELEGATE POTT. Thank you very much.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I shall be very brief.

I have been almost persuaded by the eloquence of the protagonists of the allegations that have been brought to our attention concerning the faults of the magisterial system in Allegheny County. But then on the other hand, Mr. President, I have been deeply impressed by the provisions in Sections 8, 9 and 10 in our proposal in relation to magistrates according to population, the number of them and their qualifications, and the correction that is thereby being placed into that system in the minor judiciary.

I am also impressed by the fact, and Delegate Pott's remark with relation to it, that there are many municipalities outside the city of Pittsburgh in Allegheny County while Philadelphia County is the city of Philadelphia. Sometimes I wonder whether or not we should write into the Constitution something which should be left to the disposition of the electorate as the committee has set forth in this particular proposal.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fawcett.

DELEGATE FAWCETT. The good Senator said very well what I was thinking. He said it much better than I.

Mr. President, I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

Delegate Rea has an opportunity to sum up, if he wishes.

DELEGATE REA. I would say only one thing: This deals with Allegheny County. Some of you said to me, do what you want in Allegheny County; I do not live there. Please remember, if you vote "no," you are really saying you are going to have the JPs. If you are really neutral, you do not vote. Please don't vote "no" unless you really intend that Allegheny County should have the JPs from now on.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, I think it is no more than fair that my side at least gets one or two more to speak on the subject.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The delegates have indicated they are ready for the question.

Delegate Richter, did you have a statement?

DELEGATE RICHTER. Mr. President and fellow delegates, as a nonlawyer delegate from Allegheny County residing within the city of Pittsburgh, I ask you, our fellow delegates, to give us your help and to vote "yes" on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, you ended on a positive note. I still think the negative side has something to say. I would like to say one-half a sentence.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The machine, Delegate Huggins, has already been unlocked and we are now in the process of voting.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Rea?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—69

Aberman	Dumbauld	Laputka	Ruth
Amsterdam	Feather	Lee, L.	Scranton
Baldrige	Forster	Leinbach	Sebastian
Baldus	Fortney	Manderino	Shapiro
Barry	Gabreski	McGeary	Sharp
Bloom	Gehrlein	Michael	Shively
Braham	Goldman	Michener	Shoemaker
Brennan	Gouger	Moorhead	Shrager
Broderick	Hatter	More	Silverman
Brown	Henderson	Morton	Sprogell
Buck	Hocker	Murray	Stout
Bunting	Hook	Nelson	Tate
Burkholder	Horne	Otto	Thornburgh
Camardella	Johnson	Rappaport	Tomascik
Caputo	Kauffman	Rea	Welsh
Caron	Keller, J.	Richter	Wilcox
Casey	Kelly	Roberts	Woodring
Clark

NAYS—64

Aurentz	Erwin	Levin	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Fagan	Mangery	Rovner
Baldwin	Fay	Markley	Sabli
Banes	Filson	Mattioni	Scales
Barron	Fohl	McGlynn	Scarlett
Bashoff	Gerber	Meyer	Shettig
Benedict	Goldstein	Miller, D.	Strickler
Benfield	Hannum	O'Donnell	Stroup
Conley	Harding	Orban	Swope
Cortese	Hostetler	Orbin	Thomson
Cosetti	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Tully
Croop	Irvis	Popil	Van Sant
Curran	Jirolanio	Pott	Waldron
Dalley	Kline	Powell	Warman
Desmond	Krill	Prendergast	Westerberg
Devlin	Leonard	Redick	Woodside

NOT VOTING—30

Allison	Fawcett	King	Pelletier
Butera	Fineman	Lane	Percey
Cain	Fleming	Leach	Quiles
Clinger	Gray	Lee, K.	Scott
Corey	Griffith	Miller, R.	Solomon
Cunningham	Heyburn	Musselman	Whittum
Donaldson	Himes	Pechan	Wilmarth
Donatow	Keller, M.

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

THORNBURGH AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, the amendment that is presently being distributed is an amendment of mine.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that has been withdrawn, but let me check.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. It should be disregarded; it has been withdrawn.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Pasquerilla.

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. Mr. President, would you mind taking up the resolution of mine for a minute for a very few good reasons, that some of the guests are going to leave?

Mr. President, I read in place and present to the Chair the following resolution and ask for its immediate adoption.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The clerk will read the resolution.

Does Delegate Pasquerilla wish to read the resolution to expedite it?

DELEGATE PASQUERILLA. I would like to first read the resolution. It was prepared at my request by the Secretary of the Convention. It is presented to the Convention by myself, Delegate Scranton, Delegate McGeary, and the Secretary of the Convention, Secretary Michener.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The clerk will read the resolution.

RESOLUTION CONGRATULATING DELEGATE MANDERINO

Harrisburg, Pa.
February 15, 1968

WHEREAS, The good reputation of this Constiutional Convention depends in part upon the regard with which its members are held by the general public and,

WHEREAS, one of our most distinguished Delegates has received a signal honor which brings credit upon us all and,

WHEREAS, the Law School of Duquesne University has seen fit to select as its new Dean of its Law School, Professor Louis L. Manderino of Monessen and more recently of the Local Government Committee of this Convention,

Now therefore,

BE IT RESOLVED, that this Convention do express its pleasure at the promotion which has come to Professor Manderino and be it further resolved that we congratulate Duquesne University upon its selection.

FRANK J. PASQUERILLA

On the question,
Will the Convention adopt the resolution?
It was unanimously adopted.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Manderino, I think the Chair expresses the feelings of each and every one of your fellow delegates when we say, we are very, very proud. We wish you every success, but there is one question: How are you going to be able to get along without Delegate Pasquerilla?

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, it appears we may need a state treasurer and the school can use a treasurer.

I would just like to say, if my new position brings me as much enjoyment, pleasant company and privilege as being chairman of the Local Government Committee did and continues to do, I will be very happy.

Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, will Delegate Manderino stand for interrogation?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Everyone stands for interrogation here.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, the Local Government Committee wishes to make an inquiry. As a result of assuming his position as dean of the Duquesne Law School, we would like to know if Delegate Manderino must give up his position as the IBM of the Duquesne Law School.

DELEGATE MANDERINO. Mr. President, that is an inside joke to the committee and others may not know about, but I had the nickname at the law school of "Louie the Lung." I informed the students one day that this was not very dignified and they should find something a little more dignified.

I walked into class the next day and on the blackboard they had "IBM." I said to them, "What is that?" They said, "Your new nickname." I said, "That is very dignified, blue chip, American stock, top quality; thanks for the new name."

One of the boys in the back got up and said, "You have got it wrong; IBM means 'Italian Big Mouth.'"

REDICK AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The clerk will now read the next amendment, which is offered by Delegate Redick.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE REDICK offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, by inserting between lines 20 and 21: (c) When the qualified voters of any judicial district have adopted a community court in the manner provided in section 7 (b), the qualified electors of the district may thereafter, at a primary election in the same manner as specified in section 7 (b), by a majority vote of those voting on the question, elect to discontinue such community court and return to the justice of the peace system as provided in section 8. The question shall not be placed upon the ballot in a judicial district at more than one election during any five-year period.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 21, by striking out "(c)" and inserting: (d)

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Thank you, Mr. President.

Mr. President and delegates, this amendment has the approval of the Judiciary Committee but, unfortunately, it did not appear in the Committee Proposal No. 7, printer's No. 20, so I submit it to you for your approval.

The purpose of this amendment is this: If a community court is established in a judicial district and in five or 10 years it appears to be a failure, which I am sure it is going to be, what alternative does the voter have in such judicial district?

This amendment provides for the provision to change back to the minor court in the same manner that has been approved in Section 7(b).

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on this?

Delegate Braham, do you wish to be heard?

DELEGATE BRAHAM. I have an inquiry, whether the first words of this amendment would meet this situation when the qualified voters of any judicial district have adopted a community court? This might be said to have been voted upon by this Convention, and should not the language be amended to include this situation, together with the situation of any other municipalities which may vote to adopt community courts? I do not know what the thinking of the committee was but this occurred to me as a matter which might be of some importance.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Did Delegate Redick hear Delegate Braham's suggestion?

DELEGATE REDICK. Yes, I did, but I believe Section 7(b) answers the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words, you want to proceed to vote?

DELEGATE REDICK. I want to proceed with the vote, yes.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Redick?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—127

Aberman	Dailey	Lee, L.	Rovner
Amsterdam	Desmond	Leinbach	Ruth
Aurentz	Devlin	Leonard	Sahli
Bagenstose	Erwin	Levin	Scales
Baldrige	Fagan	Manderino	Scarlett
Baldus	Fawcett	Mangery	Scranton
Baldwin	Fay	Markley	Sebastian
Banes	Filson	Mattioni	Shapiro
Barron	Fineman	McGeary	Sharp
Bashoff	Fohl	McGlynn	Shettig
Benedict	Forster	Meyer	Shively
Benfield	Fortney	Miller, D.	Shoemaker
Bloom	Gabreski	Moorhead	Shrager
Braham	Gehrlein	More	Silverman
Brennan	Gerber	Morton	Sprogell
Broderick	Goldman	Murray	Stout
Brown	Goldstein	Nelson	Strickler
Buck	Gouger	O'Donnell	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Orban	Tate
Burkholder	Harding	Orbin	Thomson
Butera	Hook	Otto	Tomascik
Cain	Horne	Pasquerilla	Tully
Camardella	Hostetler	Pelletier	Van Sant
Caron	Huggins	Popil	Waldron
Casey	Irvis	Pott	Warman
Clark	Jirolanio	Powell	Welsh
Conley	Johnson	Prendergast	Westerberg
Cortese	Keller, J.	Rea	Whittum
Cosetti	Kelly	Redick	Wilcox
Croop	Krill	Reynolds	Woodring
Cunningham	Laputka	Richter	Woodside
Curran	Leach	Roberts

NAYS—8

Barry	Feather	Kauffman	Michener
Caputo	Henderson	Michael	Thornburgh

NOT VOTING—28

Allison	Gray	King	Percey
Clinger	Griffith	Kline	Quiles
Corey	Hatter	Lane	Rappaport
Donaldson	Heyburn	Lee, K.	Scott
Donolow	Himes	Miller, R.	Solomon
Dumbauld	Hocker	Musselman	Stroup
Fleming	Keller, M.	Pechan	Wilmarth

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Mr. President, may I raise a question as to the language of this proposal?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would the delegate yield until we announce the result of the vote?

DELEGATE BALDUS. No, I would like to make this statement before the vote is announced, if I may.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Parliamentarian tells me there is nothing in order but to announce the vote.

DELEGATE BALDUS. Very well.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldus.

DELEGATE BALDUS. I would like to ask the Chair, on behalf of Delegate Redick, whether in his view this proposal which was just adopted would apply to Allegheny County?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I do not think that is an opinion that the Chair can give right now, but I want to say this, we will refer it to counsel and also I believe that Delegate Braham had a suggestion along those lines. Is that what you were talking about? I think that this is a matter that should be taken up with counsel. I can tell you this, the Chair had a question about it and that was the reason the Chair asked the Delegate whether he was satisfied with the language.

We will have counsel look into it with the Delegate and discuss it.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. When I asked for this proposal to be formed, your counsel informed me this would include Allegheny County.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Redick, you may come forward and discuss this with counsel for the committee as well as counsel for the Convention.

HOOK AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I believe the next proposal is mine.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, the next amendment is the amendment of Delegate Hook, which will be distributed, and the clerk will read it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HOOK offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 7, by striking out "a primary election by" and inserting: the next primary election after the adoption of this article, and in the future by

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, lately we discussed this question, but the gist of my proposal at the present time is, in all other counties outside of Allegheny and Philadelphia, to put on at the next primary election after the adoption of this proposal by the public on April 23, the question of community courts in every county within the State.

Thanks to Delegate Redick's proposal, it took care of a second proposal that I was going to introduce later, which I strongly support and which I will call the ripper to the community courts. But as a delegate to this Convention, I believe the people throughout the State should vote on the subject of community courts at the same election. This would be the next primary election, which would be in 1969.

I feel very strongly toward this point because what the committee has done in here is only given to the counties which elect by petition, initiative or referendum. At the same time that this proposal is voted down—and I use the terms "and in the future"—it can come back and be placed upon the ballot by the people by the same procedure that this committee elected to use.

I feel that the question of community courts and justices of the peace are very vital questions to this Constitution. I believe this should be placed on the ballot and should be done as soon as possible, because I have had telephone calls and telegrams from friends of mine in my particular area saying, let us have the question. Then we can go to Section No. 8 and use the magisterial districts and in this way we will have it done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I wonder how this section reads with the amendment in it because I am a little confused by the language.

DELEGATE HOOK. I am too, Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. It just seems not to mean what you say it means as I read it. Maybe I am wrong. Would you tell us what the amended section will look like?

DELEGATE HOOK. All I am saying is, the question of whether or not a community court shall be established in any judicial district shall be placed upon the ballot in the next primary election after the adoption of this article and in the future by petition which shall be in such form as shall be prescribed by the officer of the Commonwealth having supervision over elections.

My intention is, if it is defeated, it can be brought back again and handled the same way that it has been by your own committee. All I am doing is making it mandatory to put it on the ballot at the next primary election. I feel this is vital and I feel that so many people have expressed themselves on this throughout the State that this matter should be placed on the ballot and should be there at the next election in the primary. This way Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties can feel or know that the rest of the State is also going to consider this matter, and I would say in my own area it will pass.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. I have a question as to whether or not you would have this amendment apply to the counties that by Constitution would have a community court already established, such as, apparently Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties?

DELEGATE HOOK. My intentions, Delegate Ruth, are that Allegheny County is included now.

DELEGATE RUTH. My question is: If you put this on the ballot where it is constitutionally mandated and the people were to vote it down—

DELEGATE HOOK. It is not being included in Allegheny County and Philadelphia.

DELEGATE RUTH. All right, that is all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. Mr. President, a point of clarification. I am not quite sure from reading this, if it is put on in the next primary after this coming primary, then does this five-year limit apply?

DELEGATE HOOK. It does.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President and members of the Convention, I rise in opposition to this particular amendment.

What this amendment is trying to do is to force down the throats of the people of various areas to do what they maybe do not want to do. As we have already provided, if they go out and get a certain number of names on petitions, they can have this accomplished. Certainly if they cannot go out and get five percent of the people in that area who are not interested in changing, then I do not think it is fair that the people then should be forced to vote on this particular matter. It is contrary to the words of the people and is forcing them to do what the proposer of this amendment would like to have them do.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Nelson.

DELEGATE NELSON. Mr. President, I have a question of Delegate Hook.

Delegate Hook, you say it shall be placed on the ballot at the next primary election by petition in such form, and so forth?

DELEGATE HOOK. No, no, I do not mean by petition, Delegate Nelson.

DELEGATE NELSON. You do not?

DELEGATE HOOK. I do not.

DELEGATE NELSON. My thought was, if it is not possible to get a petition in that form, how can it be put mandatorily on the ballot of that election? Is that a problem?

DELEGATE HOOK. I believe that we have done many things here now that directs that this question be placed on the ballot and not be done by petition.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Laputka.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. President, I rise in support of Delegate Hook's amendment. It seems to me I was the first one to talk about JPs on this floor and I hope

I am not going to be the last. I was misunderstood the first time I talked and I probably will be again because somehow they gave me the idea that I was lobbying for the Magistrate's Association when I was simply trying to get an issue which was very interesting to all to be considered in a separate committee. I think time has proved that it should have been, so we are here today.

There is one item I want to touch upon and that is, that provided in our article we have a very elaborate set-up for a magistrates' system and this is going to require, when it is put into effect setting up the various magisterial districts, et cetera, salaries and what not. It seems to me that before we get into that and we cause the General Assembly to get into that, we should have a determination of whether or not certain communities want the community court or the JPs. If they once decide this, then you can go into deciding which communities need magistrate districts and which ones do not, so it will save a lot of time, a lot of money, a lot of effort.

I have talked to quite a few delegates. It seems to me the consensus is that since this issue is such that so many people are interested in it, let us put it to the public, let us get it decided, and let us go from there.

I am very much in favor of Delegate Hook's amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, to the contrary, I feel that a lot of us came here in somewhat of a quandary as to what to do with the magistrate system as we know it in Pennsylvania today. By that I mean there was a lot of us who wanted to see some meaningful reforms in the present system but did not want to go the full way by making all the magistrates lawyers.

I think, in defense of the Judiciary Committee and Delegate O'Donnell personally, there was an ingenuous solution to this problem whereby we formulated magistrate districts by a population and population-density formula.

Now having settled upon that, it is only fair to the people to give a new system a chance to work, to try a new system and then at a subsequent time which, under our proposal, would be five years, to give the voters an intelligent choice at that time as to whether or not the meaningful reforms, the reforms that we in the Judiciary Committee think are meaningful, are satisfactory to the people.

I speak against this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I do not intend to speak at length, but I must endorse the observations just made by Delegate Curran from Delaware County.

A very complicated, perhaps described as ingenious by some, system for improving justice at the minor level, at the neighborhood level, if you will, has been tried by this Judiciary Committee. This Judiciary Committee has recommended it to this Convention, making an effort to see whether or not this situation cannot be improved.

The Judiciary Committee is acutely aware that the State of Pennsylvania has many and varied differences. For example, the city of Philadelphia has a population density of roughly 16,000 per square mile. The least densely populated judicial district in Pennsylvania, that which comprises Potter County, has a population density of not 16,000 persons per square mile, but 15 persons per square mile. We have municipalities in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania which have as few as four people. We have in Pennsylvania two most recently incorporated boroughs, and I have been informed here that the two of them together comprise less than 50 people.

When you have a situation where the population of Pennsylvania is so unevenly distributed, you must attack the problem of seeing to it that justice is to be found where justice is needed. The people of our 1873 Constitutional Convention were not stupid when they came up with a plan; they attempted to solve the population and population-density problem in their own way as they saw it in their own light. They attempted to do it by prescribing that there would be an alderman in each ward and at least two justices of the peace in each township.

In 1873 it could never have been anticipated that in 1968 we would still find a township with four people. And, by the way, I have a list here of 20 of them with less than 50 people in them, and another township, and that is Upper Darby in Delaware County, which has more than 93,000 people in it. It has become apparent that it is necessary for this Convention to adopt a system which is more directly tied in to the needs of the people so that we can have a system of justice where it is needed—more sophisticated where greater sophistication is needed and less sophisticated where less sophistication is needed.

We have, in this judiciary article, recommended the abolition of the fee system, the establishment of magisterial districts, mandatory education for the minor magistrates, and have permitted, through our scheduling, those persons presently serving as magistrates and justices of the peace, agreeable to Article VI of the Constitution, to carry out and continue until the end of their present terms.

I think it is grossly unfair, not only to this Convention, but to the people of Pennsylvania—and we are here to serve them—that the system be abandoned and overlooked and shunted aside before any effort or any experiment is made to determine whether it will or it will not work, because, Mr. President, if it does not work, then the people have their option. By securing a sufficient number of signatures on a ballot they can obtain their community court.

Why should we mandate an election in a judicial district where, apparently, they are unable to secure a sufficient number of signatures, not only to carry the question but to even place it on the ballot. This is a matter which we have discussed thoroughly, not only in the subcommittee which had this matter in its hands but in the full Judiciary Committee as a whole. The feeling was very strong that not only with the local government provisions that have arisen out of Proposal No. 6, but by other provisions of this article, we are giving the people of Pennsylvania so many referendums, so many different kinds of optional choices by ballot that the people of Pennsylvania are likely to ask us, why did you not do anything in Harrisburg and send all of the problems home to us? I must speak against this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caron.

DELEGATE CARON. Mr. President, in deference to what a gentleman from Maryland said some time ago, I would like to suggest that possibly tomorrow you invoke the rule of two minutes of talking for each delegate. If we cannot say what we want in two minutes, we do not know what we are talking about.

I would like to rise in support of this amendment. Basically, I would like to ask the Chairman, Mr. Scranton, what the opinion of the committee is at this moment on this particular amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. You have embarrassed me because I just asked Mrs. Sprogell and Mr. Amsterdam what their memory was on what the committee did about this. We sent a message up to Mr. O'Donnell, who is famous for his memory, but to the best of my knowledge, there was originally in our proposal at one time this mandate, and it was extricated. I do not remember on what vote or under what circumstances. If that is not correct, any member of the Judiciary Committee may speak up. Is that right, mental genius?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I do not necessarily accept the designation, but it was correct. It was affirmatively removed by majority vote of the whole committee.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I accept that. I think he is right.

DELEGATE CARON. Is there any change in attitude by the committee since then?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. No, we have not discussed this since then.

DELEGATE CARON. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Benfield.

DELEGATE BENFIELD. Mr. President, the opposition that was given to the justices of the peace was that there were too many, and the fee system. There were approximately 5,500 elected; however, only about 4,100 lifted their commissions, this is true. However, under this proposal that we are submitting we have reduced the number considerably. We have reduced it to approximately 1,025 or in that neighborhood. We have gotten rid of the fee system; we are putting them on a salary.

Fellow delegates, at this Convention I have learned one thing more than I have ever known before, and that is, that there are two kinds of people on earth today, just two kinds, no more, I say. No, I do not mean the rich and the poor, for it is well understood that to rate a man's wealth you must first know the status of his conscience and his health. No, I do not mean the humble and the proud, for they who put on vain airs are not even counted as men. No, I do not mean the good and the bad, for it is well understood that the good are half bad and the bad are half good. No, there are two kinds and only two. The kinds that I mean are the lifters and the leaners, the ones who are willing to go out and help, those who are carrying their load, and the others who are always willing to have others participate in their share.

Under the justices of the peace, you have good ones and you have bad ones. You are going to have it under community courts. Just because we put an attorney in there will not answer any question; it will not solve any problems whatsoever. I am sure that the voters of Pennsylvania are definitely agreed that the justices of the peace in the counties of Pennsylvania are not as bad as some of you lawyers think we are. I know we are in a hurry, but I have not taken up much time on the floor, so if I do take up my ten minutes I hope I will be forgiven.

You know, if you cannot be the pine on the top of the hill, you can be a shrub in the valley, but be the best shrub on the side of the hill. Be a shrub if you cannot be a tree. If you cannot be a highway, then be a trail; if you cannot be the sun, be a star. It is not by size that you win or fail; be the best whatever you are. And I am sure that you have some JPs who are very worthy of their offices. I oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bunting.

DELEGATE BUNTING. Thank you, Mr. President. Fellow delegates, Delegate Benfield, I do not stand up here to condemn all JPs, but I do stand up here and ask that this delegation give every voter in the Commonwealth the opportunity to vote for either the new JP system or the new community court system, and it seems that logic dictates that this is the time that choice should be made. Why should we let things slide? Why have a magisterial-type district in the process of being established and then miscellaneous efforts made to come in and establish community courts? This is the clean, clear-cut way, to put the issue to the people. Let them make their choice. The newspapers in the various localities will be giving the matter publicity. There will be greater education and more knowledgeable voting than if it is presented to counties on a piecemeal basis by specific-reform-good-government groups. I very much urge support of Delegate Hook's amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, I would like to ask Delegate Hook a couple of small questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes. Proceed.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Delegate Hook, how would this affect the city of Philadelphia?

DELEGATE HOOK. It would not affect the city of Philadelphia.

DELEGATE MURRAY. What do you mean by not affecting them? You mean this would not apply to the city of Philadelphia?

DELEGATE HOOK. That is correct.

DELEGATE MURRAY. You left this in a separate little package, is that the idea?

DELEGATE HOOK. I believe that the city of Philadelphia is taken care of by the first paragraph of Section 7(a), and that the county of Allegheny is now in the same position here as one having a community court system of its own if this proposal is approved.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, we have heard a lot of talk today about uniformity and home-rule theories, but it just does not seem to apply to the two big cities in our Commonwealth. I do not particularly like the idea of having somebody from Erie, Pennsylvania, decide the type of court system which would be best for our city in the southeastern corner of the State. I am sure the people in the Pittsburgh area do not like people in Potter County deciding for them what would be the best type system for them to live under. I think there are a lot of inequities in the entire package here when we talk of uniformity and make exceptions as to what is right for the two big cities, the two big so-called problem areas. Uniformity has just seemed to disappear in dealing with our big urban areas. I would not like to tell Greene County, for instance, what type of judicial system it should live under. There are a lot of things in the entire package that, as a Philadelphian, I resent. I think that our people should have a referendum right to reject or accept, the same as every other county in this State.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I just want to caution you, Delegate Hook, that you have twice to speak, and I think you may want to save this for your closing.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Sprogell.

DELEGATE SPROGELL. I would just like to say what I remember was the feeling of our committee on this. We felt we were writing it for the future and that there were many areas across the State which were not ready for community courts. We thought that by leaving them an option of this sort, they could have the community court when they were ready for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, there may be times before this Constitutional Convention is finished when I shall rise to my feet to address myself to a subject on which I am not so certain as that upon which I now comment, because I have lived many years in the areas of this Commonwealth which are affected by the provisions insofar as the magisterial and justices-of-the-peace courts are concerned.

As a practicing attorney, I, too, have experienced some of the faults that are in it and often have taken very grave exception to them.

The minor judiciary in many of its areas has failed us insofar as dispensing justice to our people. But when I read what the committee has done, and I think that is advisably so, with the qualifications and the creation of changes in this particular minor court, then I believe it should at least have a chance to be tried before we mandate it at the next primary election, as this amendment calls upon us to do, without any chance whatsoever to correct it and to destroy that minor judiciary and impose, therefore, by necessity, a choice of a community court before our electorate has a chance to make such a determination.

I stand absolutely opposed to this amendment and ask you to stand with the committee report. I move for the question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. In order to answer Mr. Murray's question—I will answer it very rapidly for him at this time.

Delegate Murray, my proposal has nothing to do with the city of Philadelphia or the county of Allegheny. I want you to be assured of that. I am only referring to the other 65 counties in the State of Pennsylvania. That is all.

As far as this, I want and I still feel very strongly and I would like to say this at this time: I am not going into Section 8 on magisterial districts and the costs of these districts. This will come later, but I think, very strongly, if I went into this, I could point out certain points as to what I am getting to, but I will have to save these questions until later.

Thank you.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Hook?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—29

Aberman	Casey	Gehrlein	Popil
Bloom	Conley	Hook	Rea
Braham	Cosetti	Laputka	Shoemaker
Brennan	Feather	Lee, K.	Tate
Brown	Forster	Michener	Thornburgh
Bunting	Fortney	Morton	Tomascik
Burkholder	Gabrosk	Pelletier	Welsh
Caron

NAYS—102

Amsterdam	Filson	Mattioni	Scales
Aurentz	Fineman	McGeary	Scarletti
Bagenstose	Gerber	McGlynn	Scranton
Baldrige	Goldstein	Meyer	Sebastian
Baldwin	Gouger	Michael	Shapiro
Banes	Griffith	Miller, D.	Sharp
Barron	Hannum	Moorhead	Shettig
Barry	Harding	More	Shively
Bashoff	Henderson	Murray	Shrager
Benfield	Horne	Nelson	Solomon
Broderick	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Sprogell
Buck	Huggins	Orban	Stout
Butera	Irvis	Orbin	Strickler
Cain	Jirolanio	Otto	Stroup
Caputo	Johnson	Pasquerilla	Swope
Clark	Kauffman	Pott	Thomson
Cortese	Keller, J.	Powell	Tully
Croop	Kelly	Rappaport	Van Sant
Curran	Krill	Redick	Waldron
Dailey	Lee, L.	Reynolds	Warman
Desmond	Leinbach	Richter	Westerberg
Devlin	Leonard	Roberts	Whittum
Erwin	Levin	Rovner	Wilcox
Fagan	Manderino	Ruth	Woodring
Fawcett	Mangery	Sahli	Woodside
Fay	Markley

NOT VOTING—32

Allison	Donolow	Himes	Musselman
Baldus	Dumbauld	Hocker	Pechan
Benedict	Fleming	Keller, M.	Percey
Camardella	Fohl	King	Prendergast
Clinger	Goldman	Kline	Quiles
Corey	Gray	Lane	Scott
Cunningham	Hatter	Lesch	Silverman
Donaldson	Heyburn	Miller, R.	Wilmarth

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative, and the amendment was not agreed to.

JIROLANIO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL NO. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Next is an amendment offered by Delegate Jirolanio.

The clerk will read the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 16, by striking out "Statewide"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 18, by inserting after "Judge.": The said court shall be established on or before the first day of January, 1970.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President and members of the Convention, I wish to state that I did introduce a proposal for the Commonwealth Court. I was certainly very gratified to learn that the Judiciary Committee did include it in its proposal.

The amendment that I am offering will do this: It will strike out the word "statewide" and, thereby, the General Assembly could give to the Commonwealth Court any type of jurisdiction that it would want. In addition to that, the amendment would provide that the court would be established on or before the first day of January, 1970.

May I say this, that the Commonwealth court, of course, which sits in the county of Dauphin, at the present time has five judges and they do sit four times a year. Last year in the 1967 docket, they had 186 appeals filed and were open. There were 61 miscellaneous cases and they were still open. They have had 80 cases closed, and there were 10 equity cases. Of the 61 cases open, five—Just a minute. I want to get my right figures because I want to quote the right figures for the Convention. All told there were 562 actions commenced in the Commonwealth court.

Many of those cases have not been decided. The Committee on Judiciary has seen fit to place in its proposal a Commonwealth Court. If we are going to have a Commonwealth Court, and we feel that we need a Commonwealth Court today, then I think we should set a date in our Constitution as to when it should take place.

There has been some talk here that the Senate of Pennsylvania and the House have before it, or did have before it, a proposal for the establishment of a Commonwealth Court. I talked with a sponsor of that particular bill, Senator Mahady, and, incidentally, when I was a member of the Senate, he and I both introduced a bill which had to do with Commonwealth Court. No less than a month and a half ago, Senator Mahady told me that they were waiting for us to move and that that is the reason why the Commonwealth Court did not pass in the House of Representatives. They wanted to know our feelings in the matter and, if we go on record as we are doing now that we do believe in a Commonwealth Court, then I am quite sure that the mechanics will be supplied by the General Assembly.

I ask support for this particular amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I just want to say several things about the Commonwealth Court to which my friend, Delegate Jirolanio, referred.

In the first place, they do have only four sessions a year in which there is a set argument date. On the other hand, hardly a day goes by that they are not dealing with some preliminary matter or some petition for a preliminary injunction or some other matter which is considered in chambers. The fact that they meet in set argument only four times a year does not give a clear picture of the type or amount of work which they are doing. They very, very frequently set special dates for argument the whole court as well as the many conferences which they have.

The Commonwealth Court judges do work very hard. Some of their opinions may not be handed down quite as promptly as they would like to have them, but they are keeping up pretty well with the work which is necessary to do.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. I would like to interrogate Delegate Amsterdam.

Delegate Amsterdam, will you now, on behalf of the committee, accept the amendments?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I would say that this amendment is entirely in line with the committee policy with regard to it, if I understand what it means. I would just like to be sure that I do. I take it that there is no objection to this being, in fact, it is intended to be—a statewide court. It is not intended that it should be limited to statewide jurisdiction, because we have spoken in our committee of the fact that it may have trial sessions in various parts of the Commonwealth, which would mean that it would not have statewide jurisdiction with regard to those matters that it is hearing in Philadelphia County, let us say or somewhere else. It would still be, I take it, a statewide court, is that correct?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. The answer to that is, yes. But the General Assembly, of course, would have the privilege and the prerogative of making it both a statewide court and a local court, or give to it any excess of work which any other court would have.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May the Chair suggest that under these circumstances, perhaps, we are ready for the question.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I would just like to say several things. First, a great deal has been said about the bill which is now pending in the House of Representatives and has not been passed by the Senate. I think the Senate, as well as the House of Representatives, realizes, and I think this delegation should realize, that that bill is in need of a great deal of correctional matter.

In the second place, this is a statewide court, and there is no reason under the sun why it should not be designated as such in the Constitution. I think that the only reason the effort is made to take the statewide out is in order to make those provisions of this Constitution which are relative to statewide judges not relative to the Commonwealth Court. By all means those provisions which are relevant to statewide courts and this Constitution ought to be relevant to the Commonwealth Court, which is certainly a statewide court under the contemplation of the committee and, I think, under the contemplation of this Convention.

Therefore, I think it would be advisable to separate the state provision and also the question of the statewide provision unless the sponsor would be willing to take out from his amendment the word "statewide."

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Delegate Woodside, may I say you may not have heard the sponsor. He indicated in response to a question that I asked that it was intended that this be a statewide court and have all the characteristics of an appellate statewide court, but also to have jurisdiction on the trial level wherever necessary in the Commonwealth and it was for that reason that they took out the word "statewide" and put in the word "jurisdiction." They are statewide judges. It was based on that that I indicated this was entirely within the contemplation of the Judiciary Committee's proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let the Chair please ask Delegate Jirolanio, do you wish to—I do not know whether I have been following this closely enough or not. Do you wish to—strike out then this word "statewide" from your amendment or leave it in there?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I certainly would like to cooperate with you and I certainly would like to cooperate with my good friend, Judge Woodside, but, unfortunately, I did give my word to the distinguished gentleman from Philadelphia, Delegate Amsterdam. He said to me that he would go along if I would strike out the word "statewide." I am trying to accommodate everybody. Now I am in a dilemma. What should I do?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam. Perhaps he has the answer.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. The question was raised by counsel and staff for the Judiciary Committee as to whether the words "statewide jurisdiction" might not in some way prevent this Commonwealth Court from sitting as a trial court in various parts of the Commonwealth, and it was for that reason that the word "statewide" was stricken so that there would be no question about the fact that this court could have not only appellate jurisdiction throughout the State, but also jurisdiction to hear matters in a particular community or judicial district.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I rise to oppose the exclusion of the word "statewide" from the proposal. I think it would be a grave error. In the first place it is very easy for the legislature, if that privilege would be given to the legislature, to set up the jurisdiction of the trial courts. I am sympathetic to that for the simple reason that many times when you take an appeal from the administrative agency you are limited entirely to matters of law and not to fact, and I think many of those facts should be presented de novo to a Commonwealth Court such as we are contemplating. If we eliminate "statewide" then we take all the benefits of that particular designation away from that court, and the question should not be confused with the retention of "statewide" insofar as jurisdiction is concerned.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Michael.

DELEGATE MICHAEL. Concerning the use of this word "statewide," may I ask if "statewide" is eliminated, which way will the judges be elected to the Commonwealth Court? Will they be elected on the merit system proposed for the statewide judges or will they be elected by the people? I think this is a question we have to consider if we are going to eliminate "statewide."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scranton. He has the answer.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Well, I have the answer if Delegate Jirolanio will go along with it. The only problem the Judiciary Committee has in this is just like everything else in this article, when you do something to one part of it, it affects it all. There are many references later on in the merit selection of judges elsewhere as to "statewide" judges. It is the understanding of the Judiciary Committee that even with the elimination of the word "statewide" here, these judges would be considered to be statewide judges in those references. Is that correct, sir?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I understand that that is so and I am willing to have it go into the schedule with that thought of the Convention in mind, and therefore that would eliminate that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I was going to make the suggestion that perhaps the solution to this is to have the section read: "Such statewide jurisdiction and such other jurisdiction as may be prescribed by law." If you do that, I think you would then not disturb the selection and other provisions and would still leave open to the legislature to give whatever jurisdiction it might wish to this court.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I would accept that amendment—"statewide and local"—if he wants to make it.

JIROLANIO AMENDMENT TABLED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that Delegate Jirolanio would be glad to accept that amendment and, in the interest of proceeding, may I ask that you table it. We will have it rewritten right here and we will have it back to you, I hope, within a few minutes.

Now I see still standing here at the microphone is Delegate O'Donnell and Delegate Stroup. Do they wish to be heard while we are tabling this amendment?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I was going to speak in favor of tabling it. I think it is a scheduling item. I think it can be worked out.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup and then Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I have the temerity, as I have had sometimes in past years, to take issue with Governor Scranton. "Statewide jurisdiction" as specified in the Constitution is absolutely essential to the Commonwealth Court as such and I think it must be retained. However, Delegate Shapiro, has come up with a suggestion which I believe will correct the entire situation and I would, therefore, yield to him to have such an amendment prepared.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you. And now the Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. There can be no local jurisdiction in the Commonwealth Court if the idea of a true Commonwealth Court is going to be carried out. It is absolutely ridiculous to have "local" in there, either in whole or in part or in any other way. It ought to be "statewide jurisdiction" and nothing else.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, we are here, I think, trying to create an animal which is neither fish nor fowl. I completely agree with His Honor when he states that we should decide here and now whether or not the Commonwealth Court is going to be statewide or not. If we say it has statewide jurisdiction and such other jurisdiction as may be given, no one will know how the judges of the Commonwealth Court are to be placed on the bench. We will not know whether they are subject to the elective process or, assuming that we agree to this judicial-qualifications commission, whether or not the judicial-qualifications commission shall name the candidate for the Commonwealth Court. We ought to decide whether it is to be fish or fowl. That decision we must make.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. I just got approval from Delegate Woodside on an amendment he thinks will clear the situation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would Delegate Ruth bring it forward and we will work on the amendment with Delegate Shapiro and check it with the committee?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I make a suggestion? We have another committee Delegate Jirolanio, Delegate Amsterdam, Delegate Woodside, Delegate Ruth and Delegate Shapiro. Is that all right?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Scranton, I am in favor of that. I am losing a little confidence in these committees.

MOTION TO TABLE

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I move that we table it in the meantime.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The amendment is tabled and we will proceed to the next amendment.

SHETTIG AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is one offered by Delegate Shettig. I am going to ask the clerk to read the amendment and ask the pages to distribute the amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHETTIG offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 6), page 2, line 25, by removing the period after "law." and inserting: : Provided, however, That there shall be no less than one judge for each fifty thousand people in such district.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shettig?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shettig.

DELEGATE SHETTIG. Mr. President, at the risk of being shot—I am not starting the numbers game again which we played for several days last week—I assure the delegates that this is the only one and, should it be defeated, I am not coming back with another number to play with.

The purpose of this amendment is, basically, to fit in with Section 6, and it does not, in my opinion, change the unified court system which we are attempting to establish through this entire proposal. The present Constitution provides that in any county where there are 40,000 people, there should be at least one judge for each 40,000. The present section does not establish any standard by which we can determine how many judges there are in each district. This is an attempt to establish a criterion or a standard by which there can be fixed the number of judges and there would be one judge for each 50,000 people.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard either pro or con on this amendment?

The Chair recognizes the chairman, Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, I must, in strong terms, say that this is just exactly the kind of thing that the committee does not want in the Constitution. Quite frankly, it limits what the legislature can do on the number of judges, which is, after all, their prerogative, just as if we were telling them how much to pay them. It also puts a number in the Constitution which we tried to avoid—in some instances we have—but we tried to avoid it because of the population changes that will take place in the Commonwealth over the next hundred years. I have the greatest admiration in the world for Delegate Shettig who is one of the best people we have on our committee, but I just wish he would think in terms of the next hundred years. This can be done by the legislature.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May the Chair ask whether we are ready for the question on this or do we want further debate?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Shettig.

DELEGATE SHETTIG. I just want to make one statement, Mr. President. As I pointed out, the present Constitution refers to 40,000. We heard testimony and it is in the recommendation from the American Judicature Society that it be 60,000 and I split the difference. That is all.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—16

Baldus	Gouger	McGlynn	Solomon
Brennan	Hook	Otto	Warman
Gerber	Kauffman	Scales	Welsh
Goldman	Laputka	Shettig	Wilcox

NAYS—109

Aberman	Cunningham	Leach	Rovner
Amsterdam	Curran	Lee, K.	Ruth
Aurentz	Dailey	Lee, L.	Sahli
Bagenstose	Desmond	Leinbach	Scarlett
Baldrige	Devlin	Levin	Scranton
Baldwin	Erwin	Manderino	Sebastian
Banes	Fawcett	Mangery	Shapiro
Barron	Fay	Markley	Sharp
Barry	Feather	Mattioni	Shively
Bashoff	Filson	McGeary	Shoemaker
Benfield	Fohl	Meyer	Silverman
Bloom	Forster	Michener	Sprogell
Braham	Fortney	Miller, D.	Stout
Broderick	Gabreski	Moorhead	Strickler
Brown	Gehrlein	More	Stroup
Buck	Goldstein	Morton	Swope
Bunting	Hannum	Murray	Tate
Burkholder	Harding	Nelson	Thomson
Butera	Henderson	O'Donnell	Thornburgh

Cain	Horne	Orban	Tomasetik
Camardella	Hostetler	Orbin	Tully
Caputo	Huggins	Popil	Van Sant
Caron	Irvis	Pott	Waldron
Casey	Jirolanio	Powell	Westerberg
Clark	Johnson	Redick	Whittum
Conley	Keller, J.	Reynolds	Woodring
Cortese	Krill	Roberts	Woodside
Croop

NOT VOTING—38

Allison	Fleming	Kline	Percey
Benedict	Gray	Lane	Prendergast
Clinger	Griffith	Leonard	Quiles
Corey	Hatter	Michael	Rappaport
Cosetti	Heyburn	Miller, R.	Rea
Donaldson	Himes	Musselman	Richter
Donolow	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Scott
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Pechan	Shrager
Fagan	Kelly	Pelletier	Wilmarth
Fineman	King

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now take up the Camardella amendment and I will ask the clerk to read the amendment. I am going to ask the pages to distribute it, and while it is being distributed the Chair just wants to say, let us cooperate and see if we cannot move along a little faster. When we started this morning we had 15 amendments to this section; we worked all day and we still have 15 amendments left. I just want you to know that progress is slow.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30; page 3, line 1, by striking out "other than the" in line 30, page 2 and "City of Philadelphia" line 1, page 3

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, lines 21 and 22, by striking out "in lieu of a community court," and inserting: unless a community court is adopted,

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Camardella for a statement in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Thank you, Mr. President. Let me congratulate you on your patience and on the fine job you are doing. Give me some help on this.

Mr. President, I rise in disgust. When I sit here, coming from the City of Brotherly Love and having people from other parts of this State tell us Philadelphians what is good for us, that the magistrate system is no good for Philadelphia, I wonder who are they to judge. I am not arguing here that the magistrate system in Philadelphia is all good or all bad. My point is this: I think the people of Philadelphia should have the right to say whether they want the magistrate system or not. I believe it should go on the ballot and let them decide for themselves. Let no delegate here from other parts of the State say what is good for Philadelphia. I think, once we take this power away from the people, we are going down the road to the ruin of this State. I came here with an open mind. I was sent here by the people I represent to let my conscience be my guide.

I could not in all sincerity let this proposal go by that the committee has given without challenge to their method or ideas. I am not for the magistrates, nor am I against them, but I do think the people of Philadelphia should have the right, and the sole right, to determine and decide whether they should have magistrates or community courts, or whatever method they want to have.

I rise here hoping that the Convention, the delegates here, will support my amendment and give the people of Philadelphia the right to decide for themselves what is good for Philadelphia.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I might say on behalf of the committee that this was one of the cases where there was what I would consider an overwhelming vote in the committee for the provision as it came out and as it appears in our Proposal No. 7. We had extensive hearings; we had extensive discussions and we had a vote. It was quite clear from the vote, and overwhelmingly so, that this was the desire of the committee and I think that it is important that the Convention know that.

Thank you, sir.

HUGGINS AMENDMENT TO CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, I have an amendment here similar to Delegate Camardella's and I would move to amend his amendment. It would amend the amendment because mine is a broader area than that with which Delegate Camardella dealt.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would ask the Delegate whether that amendment is prepared.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Yes, sir, I have a copy. I do not know if it is printed by those in the backroom or not.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is it prepared as an amendment to the amendment?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Yes sir, I have copies here. Originally this was prepared as an amendment to the proposal, but because it deals with the same subject as Delegate Camardella's amendment, I would like to submit it as an amendment to his amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If the Delegate will come down, we will see if we can get the amendment to the amendment prepared.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, I believe he is out of order.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No, Delegate Camardella, he has a right to offer an amendment to your amendment, and what we do under the procedure is, we will vote on the amendment to the amendment first and then we will come back to your amendment.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, I think I should have the right to see his amendment before he frames it to my proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Camardella, we will recognize your amendment, but under the rules anybody has a right to offer an amendment to an amendment and we cannot deny them that right.

What we will do is vote on the amendment to the amendment and then we will vote on your amendment whether or not it is amended.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Camardella.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I do not know why there is this confusion every time I get to this mike.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think someone should advise Delegate Huggins that the amendment has been tabled.

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT TABLED

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. Mr. President, may I move to table this amendment until a later time?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may make a motion to table your amendment, and if that motion carries, it can be tabled.

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I so move, Mr. President.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.

TATE AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is offered by Delegate Tate.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 7, by striking out "primary" and inserting: municipal or general

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

POINT OF INFORMATION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Mr. President, I ask a point of inquiry from the Chair.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Can Delegate Huggins' amendment to the amendment be now considered until the original amendment comes back from the table?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. My understanding is that the amendment to the amendment cannot be considered until the original amendment comes back, but of course Delegate Huggins has the right to introduce his as a separate amendment.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I have been advised that Delegate Huggins wants to introduce his amendment.

Will Delegates Camardella and Huggins please confer on this matter? We want to straighten out who goes first.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I wish to congratulate the Judiciary Committee on being almost as successful so far in resisting change as the Local Government Committee was yesterday.

However, hope springs eternal and I will briefly state the impact of this amendment with the hope that it may meet with the approval of some of the members, if not all of the members, of the Judiciary Committee.

Quite simply, in Section 7, particularly in Section 7(b), it transfers from the primary election to the municipal or general election the time when the question on the minor judiciary may be brought before the electorate of a particular judicial district.

As I stated earlier today, this can be an important political question. It is no political secret that—and it is generally accepted, I believe—political organizations, wherever they may exist, in the United States, generally, find it a great deal easier to pass or defeat a proposal at a primary election than in a municipal or general election.

In my opinion, if the voters are really to be given a choice here, as I understand this to be a sincere effort to do, the choice should be granted to the people at a municipal or general election in the fall rather than in the spring primaries.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, this was considered very carefully by the committee and we decided, for exactly the reason that Delegate Tate gave, namely, that it would be better in the primary instead of in the municipal or general election. It would get more attention.

I would like Delegate Barron to speak on that because he is quite familiar with the problem.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. In all deference to Delegate Huggins' political experience which is probably much greater than mine in that I know he has to deal with the board of sessions—I beg your pardon, was it Delegate Tate who raised the query?

The question is just this: It was the experience of most of us that the question of whether or not we should have this Constitutional Convention was very clearly brought out in the primary at which the voters selected or elected to have a Constitutional Convention such as this.

I know that in my own district, I must report, it very nearly failed. But in my own county, the bar association and many of us with our minds uncluttered about primary problems because we were not running or whatever—but we are very active when it comes to the general election—had he the time to give it, to put on radio shows, which we did, to go around and talk about it, which we did, and as a result, we felt that there was less pressure, less confusion or conflict of other important matters at a primary than anywhere else.

This, I suggest to you, was a matter of the committee's judgment. I do promise you it was very carefully thought out, and it reflects the committee's judgment. Of course, it is for you, the delegates to decide.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, just a word. I rise to speak in favor of this amendment, being of the opinion that the voice of the people as expressed in a municipal or general election would be more representative of what the vast majority of people believe on a particular question than would be that opinion as expressed in a primary election.

For this reason, I rise in support of the amendment and ask the Convention to support it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I would like to call to the attention of the delegates here that last year in the primary election of 1967, there was in excess of five million voters in the State of Pennsylvania, but yet there were only two million people who voted on the issue of this Convention. It carried by about 450,000. To me this did not represent a big vote. I say that the general election is when the voters get out and vote and this is the time when this should be placed on the ballot.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me ask the fellow delegates, are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I would like to just make one observation. I am informed by my historian of Pennsylvania, the delegate from Chester County, that when the issue of the Constitutional Convention was defeated several years ago, I am informed it was at a general election, while this year when it was approved by the voters, it was at a primary election.

I would suggest that at many primary elections, perhaps those not held in the city of Philadelphia, there are seldom any real disputes and that the voters can concentrate on these issues, while at general elections, there is always the fighting between the two parties. I would, therefore, suggest that the voters could give more attention to issues like this at primaries than at general elections.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leach.

DELEGATE LEACH. Just for the record, Mr. President, in May of 1967, there were 5,228,000 people registered to vote in the Commonwealth. The total vote was 1.8 million. The question was decided by a majority of 431,000 or 8.4 per cent of the total registered people in the Commonwealth.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, I do not think you need this reminder but I would be remiss in my political history if I did not mention to you that in primaries we do not see the organizational efforts and fights that we encounter at general elections. I am sure that Delegate Casey would agree with me on this. This is a freer election so far as the individual voter is concerned and would be avoiding the party politics, if it is possible to do that, I think.

Therefore, I would be opposed to the amendment as offered.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question or does Delegate Camardella wish to be heard on this?

CAMARDELLA AMENDMENT WITHDRAWN

DELEGATE CAMARDELLA. I would ask for a point of order on this one. After going to a two-man subcommittee meeting with Delegate Huggins, I now withdraw my amendment and let him put his in.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very good, we will consider the Camardella amendment having been withdrawn, and as soon as we finish here we will take up the Huggins amendment.

Are we ready for the question on the Tate amendment?

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—27

Bagenstose	Clinger	Mattioni	Solomon
Baldus	Cosetti	McGeary	Swope
Banes	Dailey	McGlynn	Tate
Brennan	Fineman	Michael	Thomson
Buck	Hook	Michener	Thornburgh
Caputo	Hostetler	Orbin	Warman
Casey	Kelly	Popil

NAYS—102

Aberman	Fagan	Levin	Sahli
Amsterdam	Fawcett	Manderino	Scales
Aurentz	Fay	Mangery	Scarlett
Baldrige	Feather	Markley	Scranton
Baldwin	Filson	Meyer	Sebastian
Barron	Fohl	Miller, D.	Shapiro
Barry	Forster	Moorhead	Sharp
Bashoff	Fortney	More	Shettig
Benfield	Gabreski	Morton	Shively
Bloom	Gehrlein	Murray	Shoemaker
Braham	Gerber	Nelson	Shrager
Broderick	Goldman	O'Donnell	Silverman
Brown	Goldstein	Orban	Sprogell
Bunting	Gouger	Otto	Stout
Burkholder	Hannum	Pasquerilla	Strickler
Butera	Harding	Pott	Stroup
Cain	Horne	Powell	Tomascik
Caron	Irvis	Prendergast	Tully
Clark	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Van Sant
Conley	Johnson	Redick	Waldron
Cortese	Kauffman	Reynolds	Welsh
Croop	Keller, J.	Richter	Westerberg
Curran	Krill	Roberts	Whittum
Desmond	Leach	Rovner	Wilcox
Devlin	Lee, L.	Ruth	Woodside
Erwin	Leinbach

NOT VOTING—34

Allison	Gray	King	Pechan
Benedict	Griffith	Kline	Pelletier
Camardella	Hatter	Lane	Percey
Corey	Henderson	Laputka	Quiles
Cunningham	Heyburn	Lee, K.	Rea
Donaldson	Himes	Leonard	Scott
Donolow	Hocker	Miller, R.	Wilmarth
Dumbauld	Huggins	Musselman	Woodring
Fleming	Keller, M.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

JIROLANIO AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio and asks the clerk to read the Jirolanio, Ruth, Shapiro et al amendment.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 16, by inserting after "shall": be a Statewide court and shall

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 4), page 2, line 16, by striking out "Statewide"

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I want to say that as far as I am concerned, I am in accord with this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I hate to be a carping critic, but I notice that the amendment as printed has nothing about the court being established by the date fixed in the original amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I would just like to say that I would like you to take that up with the committee that drew that amendment.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, the schedule which we have and which will have to be voted upon by this entire assembly provides that this court is to be started by January 1, 1969, I am told. Is that correct? It has an effective date for the article which also includes this; therefore, there would have to be put into the schedule, I suggest, a change of date along the lines indicated.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Jirolanio?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—123

Aberman	Curran	Krill	Rovner
Amsterdam	Dalley	Laputka	Ruth
Aurentz	Desmond	Leach	Sahli
Bagenstose	Devlin	Lee, L.	Scales
Baldrige	Erwin	Leinbach	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fagan	Levin	Scranton
Banes	Fawcett	Manderino	Sebastian
Barron	Fay	Mangery	Sharp
Barry	Feather	Markley	Shettig
Bashoff	Filson	Mattioni	Shively
Benfield	Fineman	McGeary	Shrager
Bloom	Fohl	Meyer	Silverman
Braham	Forster	Michael	Solomon
Brennan	Fortney	Michener	Sprogell
Broderick	Gabreski	Miller, D.	Stout
Brown	Gehrlein	More	Stroup
Buck	Gerber	Morton	Swope
Bunting	Goldman	Murray	Tate
Burkholder	Goldstein	Nelson	Thomson
Butera	Gouger	Orban	Thornburgh
Cain	Hannum	Orbin	Tomasetk
Camardella	Harding	Otto	Tully
Caputo	Hook	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Caron	Horne	Pott	Waldron
Casey	Hostetler	Powell	Warman
Clark	Irvis	Prendergast	Welsh
Clinger	Jirolanio	Rea	Westerberg
Conley	Johnson	Redick	Whittum
Cortese	Kauffman	Reynolds	Wilcox
Croop	Keller, J.	Richter	Woodside
Cunningham	Kelly	Roberts

NAYS—3

Cosetti	Moorhead	O'Donnell

NOT VOTING—37

Allison	Hatter	Lane	Popil
Baldus	Henderson	Lee, K.	Quiles
Benedict	Heyburn	Leonard	Rappaport
Corey	Himes	McGlynn	Scott
Donaldson	Hocker	Miller, R.	Shapiro
Donolow	Huggins	Musselman	Shoemaker
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Peehan	Strickler
Fleming	King	Pelletier	Wilmarth
Gray	Kline	Percey	Woodring
Griffith

The majority having voted in favor of the amendment, the question was determined in the affirmative, and the amendment was agreed to.

BANES AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment is one being offered by Delegates Banes and Thornburgh. I will ask the clerk to read the amendment and the pages to distribute it. Perhaps the clerk can read the first and last line and the delegates can read through it.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BANES offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, lines 10 and 11, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 25, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 28, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 4, line 3, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 14 and 15, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 15 and 16, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 22, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 25, by striking out "Justices of the peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 5, line 1, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, line 25, by striking out "Justices of the peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, lines 27 and 28, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, lines 11 and 12, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 9, lines 23 and 24, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 9, line 26, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 9, lines 26 and 27, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 1, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 3, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 5, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 15), page 10, line 23, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 11, line 3, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, line 14, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, line 16, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, lines 27 and 28, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 3, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 14, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 22, by striking out "justice of the peace" and inserting: magistrate

Amend Schedule (Sec. 6), page 16, lines 22 and 23, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule, page 17, line 1, by striking out "Justices of the Peace" and inserting: Magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 7), page 17, lines 3 and 4, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule, page 18, line 3, by inserting after "Peace": (hereafter to be known as Magistrates)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 11), page 18, line 7, by removing the colon after "magistrates" and inserting: shall hereafter be known as magistrates;

Amend Schedule (Sec. 11), page 18, line 15, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 18, lines 24 and 25, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 19, lines 3 and 4, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 19, line 5, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 20, line 15, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 20, lines 21 and 22, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

Amend Schedule (Sec. 19), page 29, line 24, by striking out "justices of the peace" and inserting: magistrates

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Banes.

DELEGATE BANES. Mr. President, the only purpose of this amendment is to eliminate the use of what really is an archaic name or terminology, justice of the peace, and substituting for the four words, the name and appellation calling them magistrates rather than justices of the peace. I do know that in a couple of the States they have changed this name from justice of the peace, for example, to peace justice.

In keeping with the article which was written pertaining to the justices of the peace, we now will call them magisterial districts. I believe that it would be reasonable to assume and follow that we should call them magistrates rather than justices of the peace. I think it is a matter of housekeeping and eliminating what will be archaic terminology in changing the name. It would not affect the jurisdiction in any way. I would like to have the closing speech, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Banes.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. I would like to say "amen." I think our people will have enough thrown at them after this Convention is over that if we are going to try to get them to figure out what the difference is between a justice of the peace and a magistrate, it is just going to be too bad for the people. I am opposed to it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Banes?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—22

Aberman	Cosetti	Mattioni	Tate
Baldus	Cunningham	McGlynn	Thomson
Banes	Fagan	Michener	Thornburgh
Barry	Fineman	Rappaport	Tomascik
Braham	Laputka	Shrager	Welsh
Casey	Leinbach

NAYS—108

Amsterdam	Devlin	Krill	Roberts
Aurentz	Erwin	Leach	Rovner
Bagenstose	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Ruth
Baldrige	Fay	Levin	Sahli
Baldwin	Feather	Manderino	Scales
Barron	Filson	Mangery	Scarlett
Bashoff	Fohl	Markley	Scranton
Benfield	Forster	McGeary	Sebastian
Bloom	Fortney	Meyer	Shapiro
Brennan	Gabreski	Michael	Sharp
Broderick	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Shettig
Brown	Gerber	Moorhead	Shively
Buck	Goldman	More	Shoemaker
Bunting	Goldstein	Morton	Silverman
Burkholder	Gouger	Murray	Solomon
Butera	Hannum	Nelson	Sprogell
Cain	Harding	O'Donnell	Stout
Camardella	Hook	Orban	Strickler
Caputo	Horne	Orbin	Stroup
Caron	Hostetler	Otto	Swope
Clark	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Tully
Clinger	Irvis	Popil	Van Sant
Cortese	Jirolanio	Pott	Waldron
Croop	Johnson	Powell	Warman
Curran	Kauffman	Prendergast	Westerberg
Dailey	Keller, J.	Rea	Wilcox
Desmond	Kelly	Reynolds	Woodside

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Griffith	Kline	Percey
Benedict	Hatter	Lane	Quiles
Conley	Henderson	Lee, K.	Redlick
Corey	Heyburn	Leonard	Richter
Donaldson	Hocker	Miller, R.	Scott
Donolow	Himes	Musselman	Whittum
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Pechan	Wilmarth
Fleming	King	Pelletier	Woodring
Gray

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

REDICK AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment will be the Redick amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE REDICK offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend the lines added between lines 20 and 21, Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, as amended, by striking out "(c) When" and inserting: (c) In a judicial district where a community court has been established by this Article or

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. We should recognize Gideon v. Wainright and have somebody speak for Mr. Redick.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. I am merely speaking for Delegates et al whom you recognized a little while back.

This amendment almost in this same form passed on a rather high vote. So, I would urge you all, in Mr. Redick's name, to vote for it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Could anybody please explain the amendment, because it did arise after a question was raised by Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE LAPUTKA. Mr. President, I hestitate to represent Delegate Redick because my batting average is not very good, particularly on the community courts. However, I think it was Delegate Redick's intention when he put his amendment in that in those districts where the community courts were in existence, whether it was by constitutional amendment or otherwise, the people would have a right by referendum vote to change it back to the JP system. He intended that. I think he said that on the floor. The amendment, as it came out, came out with those districts in which the referendum had applied and would be reversed. This amendment, as I look at it rapidly, says that in any district where there is a community court a referendum vote after five years could return it to a JP system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now the Chair recognizes Delegate Silverman.

DELEGATE SILVERMAN. I believe this was the sense of the Judiciary Committee and it was omitted by either a scrivener's error or just an oversight on somebody's part.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let us hear from Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No, I am sorry to say that is not my understanding. My understanding was that where there was a vote which permitted a court of this type, then there might again be a vote to return to the justices of the peace. This goes further than that. This indicates that in Philadelphia and Allegheny County, where these courts are established, at least in Allegheny County where this court is established, a vote may be taken to return to the JPs. This was not ruled upon by the committee, and, therefore, is open house as far as I know.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, is the amendment intended to be worded as indicated at the top of the page or is it intended to be worded as indicated where the amendment and the prior amendment are repeated in full? I direct your attention to the word "when." It is stricken above and it is inserted below. The amendment should properly read, I think, or should properly have added to it after the word "or" the word "when" added back in again.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am told by counsel that you are absolutely correct that the "when" should be in.

Now Delegate Redick is here. Do you want to make a statement? This is your amendment we are now considering and you have had some very good representatives speak on your behalf.

DELEGATE REDICK. Thank you, Mr. President. I would like to, at this time, move the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I find this amendment a radical extension of the one we passed and I think the delegates should consider it very carefully. The other one was an amendment permitting people who had voted something in to vote it out. This permits people who have a community court already established, not voted in, to vote it out. It seems to me there is a vast difference between those two situations.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I must beg to differ with Delegate Michener. It appears that those of us who live in the more urban areas are second-class citizens. Not only do we not have the right to vote as to whether we want a community court or not, but we do not even have the right to vote if we do not want it after it has been forced on us. And I do not speak to the merits of whether or not we should have a community court; all I ask is that we have the right to govern our own affairs the same as everybody else in the Commonwealth. I do not think that I am less qualified to vote on whether we should have a community court in Philadelphia than some of my brethren are who happen to live in other counties. My father lives in Montgomery County and I think I am just as qualified to vote as he is—we are both members of the bar from the same county—as to whether we should have a community court where I live and where he lives. I will, therefore, ask the support of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I would just like to ask a question of somebody and I hope they can answer it. This is the time of day when time and time again a great flotilla of amendments comes marching at us as they have every afternoon. We always make some mistake we then have to correct the next day. I would like to know, does this amendment apply to Philadelphia or does it not?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I would suggest that you first ask counsel.

The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. In the Judiciary Article

as it reads today, there is no community court in Philadelphia. Unless this body sees fit to change the two courts, to wit, municipal and traffic courts into a community court, this obviously cannot apply to it.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. This is my understanding. Now I would like to know from the sponsor whether he intended it to apply to Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Redick.

DELEGATE REDICK. Mr. President, I would have to agree and say I did not, due to the fact they are not a part of the judicial district.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Very well.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. President, I would like to point out very seriously to this Convention to study this for this reason: As we are already aware—and this is not to be derogatory to Delegate Redick—we have passed an amendment whereby Allegheny County now can have constitutionally a community court. It is mandated, right. What Delegate Redick is proposing here is that in Allegheny County those people could vote against having a community court and thereby amend the Constitution which mandates it and give it an alternative method of amending the Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I am very deeply disturbed by some of the things which occurred here this afternoon concerning the community courts and the JP system. I have personally and privately stated my position but I have not stated it here at this microphone.

As far as this amendment is concerned, I think this is really a fair play amendment. What we have done this afternoon in this delegate body is to say, in effect, we know what is best for Allegheny County. We will make the decisions for Allegheny County's voters and Allegheny County's citizens because we know what is best for them. In 65 other counties, we will let those people decide what is best for themselves. We trust them to make their decisions but we do not trust the people of Allegheny to make their own.

I object to this and I object very strenuously to it. I am not going to say how I will vote personally or privately because I consider that my personal and private business if it comes to a ballot, but I submit that there is not one single person here in this delegate body, and I include myself, who can say what is best for Allegheny County or who can indeed say what the people of Allegheny County want in this matter. I can tell you, if I chose, what I would want; I can tell you what some of the other delegates who have been highly vocal want; I can tell you what some of the spokesmen for the League of Women Voters want; I can tell you what some of the editorial writers want; but I cannot honestly stand here and say what the people of Allegheny County want when it comes to the JP system.

I am not pleading for the JP system; I am not speaking to the merits of the system at this point. I am speaking in favor of the amendment which would say, if we are in error here today, if we have imposed today a system on the people of Allegheny which they themselves do not want, we are going to give them an opportunity to say so. That is all that I think we could ask you to do right now. I think this is the fair thing for this delegate body to do.

If those who advocate the community court are so certain that they are right and they draw their certainty from their belief that they voice the convictions of the majority of the people of Allegheny County, then they do not need to fear this amendment. If, on the other hand, they are in error and they do not voice the majority convictions of the people of Allegheny County, then if they believe in the democratic process, they will support this amendment and let the people speak for themselves.

I urge your support of this amendment for that reason.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, in all fairness to Delegate Redick, I think we have been somewhat unfair to him. He got trapped into this position because his original amendment was prepared and drafted prior to the time that the mandate of community court was applied to Allegheny County and it was presented to him and it was on the floor before he realized this. We, in effect, voted with him and I think we owe him the same vote that we gave him before. I also approve of what Delegate Irvis said and I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, I would like to make this one statement.

Without knowing anything about this matter before those amendments came around, I sensed from the fact that this long amendment was headed by the name of Delegate Redick, it was a part of an arrangement for the prior amendment and it seemed to me unfair to have the thing go through without it being called to his attention. That is why I did it.

As to what Delegate Irvis said concerning the right of the people of the Commonwealth whom we represent at this time to submit to regulation by the Commonwealth, I might say that all greatness carries with it its penalty. From the beginning of our country people have recognized that where there are enormous congregations of people, there is a certain danger attendant upon them. You have to take the bitter with the sweet.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate More.

DELEGATE MORE. Mr. President, I am a little bit confused by this amendment. It seems to me that it has the effect of eliminating subsection (c) where it provides for municipal and traffic courts for the city of Philadelphia.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate More, I believe counsel is here to explain whether you are right or wrong.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. Mr. President, as one of the sponsors of the amendment for community courts in Allegheny County, I must state that we have no fear whatsoever that the people want them and that we have no objection whatsoever to this amendment. We would certainly urge its passage.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. May I ask a question, please? I just want to know how to vote. I do not know whether it is intended that this permit an election in five years or whether it would be an immediate election. I just do not understand the wording. I do not understand what is intended.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I can only tell you that there is a counsel sitting right there. Counsel would you explain it? The Chair does not know. The Chair did not prepare the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Redick?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—116

Aberman	Fagan	Lee, L.	Roberts
Aurentz	Fawcett	Leinbach	Rovner
Bagenstose	Fay	Levin	Sahli
Baldrige	Feather	Manderino	Scales
Baldus	Filson	Mangery	Scarlett
Baldwin	Fineman	Markley	Scranton
Banes	Fohl	Mattioni	Sebastian
Barron	Forster	McGeary	Shapiro
Bashoff	Fortney	McGlynn	Sharp
Benfield	Gabreski	Meyer	Shettig
Braham	Gehrlein	Michael	Shively
Brennan	Gerber	Michener	Shoemaker
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, D.	Shrager
Bunting	Goldstein	Moorhead	Silverman
Burkholder	Gouger	More	Solomon
Butera	Hannum	Morton	Sprogell
Cain	Harding	Murray	Stout
Camardella	Henderson	Nelson	Strickler
Casey	Hook	Orbin	Stroup
Clinger	Horne	Otto	Swope
Conley	Hostetler	Pasquerilla	Tate
Cortese	Huggins	Popil	Tomascik
Cosetti	Irvis	Pott	Tully
Croop	Jirolanio	Powell	Van Sant
Curran	Johnson	Prendergast	Waldron
Datley	Kauffman	Rappaport	Warman
Desmond	Keller, J.	Rea	Westerberg
Devlin	Laputka	Reynolds	Whittum
Erwin	Leach	Richter	Wilcox

NAYS—8

Amsterdam	Bloom	Kelly	Thornburgh
Barry	Caron	Krill	Welsh

NOT VOTING—39

Allison	Dumbauld	Kline	Percey
Benedict	Fleming	Lane	Quiles
Brown	Gray	Lee, K.	Redick
Buck	Griffith	Leonard	Ruth
Caputo	Hatter	Miller, R.	Scott
Clark	Heyburn	Musselman	Thomson
Corey	Himes	O'Donnell	Wilmarth
Cunningham	Hocker	Orban	Woodring
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Pechan	Woodside
Donolow	King	Pelletier

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I failed to press my button. I would like the record to show I voted "aye."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The words of the gentleman will be spread upon the record.

HUGGINS AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The next amendment will be the Huggins amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HUGGINS offered the following amendment, which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, lines 29 and 30, by striking out "; Philadelphia Municipal Court and Traffic Court"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30, as amended by striking out "ALLEGHENY COUNTY AND IN"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30, by striking out "other than the"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 1, by striking out "City of Philadelphia"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, lines 21 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 26, as amended by striking out ", other than IN ALLEGHENY COUNTY AND the City of Philadelphia,"

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Thank you, Mr. President.

We just finished some debate, and it really makes me think back to the one statement which is rather famous in our history, "of the people, for the people and by the people," which is certainly a time-worn, cliche-ridden but a very powerful statement when we think about what we have been doing here this afternoon.

I could never really understand why any state constitution would burden itself with trying to mandate the law, the legalities and technicalities of law for any city of people, be it Philadelphia or Allegheny County. I could never really understand how any body selected from so diverse areas of Pennsylvania as we could really mandate for an urban area on one end of the State and on the other how they could go about their business of having law for the people. I could never really understand why we were doing all this with all of the great pomp and circumstance that has so marked some of the worst moments in history when a certain group of people would sit in high places making mandatory judgments with no concern for the people they were making those judgments for.

I believe what Mr. Rea said in his closing statement before this last vote about this amendment, that he had no fear for the election by the people for the community court. I have no fear that if the people want this kind of court, they will vote for this kind of court on a free referendum basis and not by a mandatory statement by a constitutional convention.

I do not think it is ever anybody's privilege to play legislator the way we are doing. I do not think it is even our business to try to play God with law. I do not think it is our business—and I am certainly not a lawyer, and you know that—to try to featherbed one area in the name of justice.

The matter before us is this: Are we going to treat the city of Philadelphia and the county of Allegheny like prodigal children who have to be slapped on the hand by this Convention and told, this is the way you are going to do it, or, are we going to let them as a mandate of the people do what the people want?

I think the time has come, Mr. President, for us to quit trying to play some kind of a role here that so far has not been becoming to this Convention nor to anything that we talked about in the early days.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would Delegate Huggins yield, please?

I am advised by the Parliamentarian that a part of your amendment is directly aimed at changing the language that we have already adopted by the Rea amendment. In connection with that part of the amendment, we are going to have to have a motion to reconsider.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, this is a different amendment.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. A question of parliamentary inquiry, Mr. President. When the amendment submitted by Delegate Rea was adopted, did it not then become part and parcel to Proposal No. 7?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is right.

DELEGATE STROUP. And is it not, therefore, quite in order for Delegate Huggins to submit his amendment after that amendment has been adopted to Proposal No. 7 as amended?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised by the Parliamentarian, not if it strikes out something that we have already agreed to.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I simply cannot agree with that parliamentary ruling. You have before you now Proposal No. 7 with amendments that have been adopted by this delegation. It, therefore, becomes a part, that amendment by Delegate Rea becomes a part, of Proposal No. 7. Delegate Huggins has now amended Proposal No. 7 as amended and, therefore, it certainly should be in order.

MOTION TO ADJOURN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Baldrige.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. Mr. President, in view of the fact that all of the time, in my opinion, that we have worked after 7 o'clock we usually came back and wasted more time undoing it, I move we adjourn until 9 o'clock tomorrow morning.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are going to leave that up to the body.

There has been a motion that we adjourn until 9 a.m. tomorrow morning. The motion is seconded by Delegate Michael.

On the motion,

Will the Convention agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would we be at ease for just a minute and would Delegate Huggins come up so we can discuss this with the Parliamentarian? I would also appreciate it if Delegate Stroup would come up to the desk because I would like him to discuss it with the Parliamentarian.

(A conference was held at the desk.)

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair wishes the Convention to return to order so as to expedite its conclusion.

MOTION TO ADJOURN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. At this time I would like to make a motion to adjourn. I do not think it is fair; I do not think it is right. I am tired; I am not a youngster anymore and it is not fair to wear us old fellows down. I was sent here by my people to be here as a delegate. I have hardly missed five minutes of this whole Convention and I do not think it is right to endanger the health of people our age. I do not think it is right to carry on a session for this long. Mentally and physically I am tired. I do not know how the rest of the delegates are, but I do not think we can think squarely and do things squarely at this late hour.

I move to adjourn.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I am aware that a motion to adjourn is in order at any time, but I wonder whether or not under the rules of this delegate body, a motion to adjourn may succeed a motion to adjourn?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised by the Parliamentarian that there must be intervening business.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I was informed informally that in order for us to consider the Huggins' amendment, there must be a motion to reconsider. Am I correct in that, sir?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has ruled in connection with a portion of the Huggins amendment specifically that portion which states, "amend Section 1, Section 7, page 2, line 20, as amended by striking out Allegheny County and in", and that specifically in regard to that that these were words adopted when we adopted the Rea amendment, and in connection with that there must be a motion to reconsider the vote by which the Rea amendment was adopted earlier this evening.

MOTION TO RECONSIDER VOTE ON REA AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I was among those who voted for the Rea amendment and I move to reconsider it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Rappaport and seconded by Delegate Aberman that we reconsider the vote by which the Rea amendment was adopted.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Swope. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE SWOPE. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE SWOPE. If this motion goes through, is the Rea amendment part of the document or is it not?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If the Rappaport motion carries, we will then reconsider the vote by which the Rea amendment was adopted. We will be considering the Rea amendment.

DELEGATE SWOPE. You mean we will have another vote then as to whether we adopt the Rea amendment or not?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, that is correct.

DELEGATE SWOPE. I think the Chair is entirely correct, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. It is my understanding that a motion to reconsider is debatable. I would just like to say one or two words on this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman may proceed.

DELEGATE REA. The move here is a move to reconsider something that was discussed at great length two hours ago, and I can see the trend developing that when something goes through we then reconsider it and then we redebate the whole matter. A great deal of thought was given to the vote today. It may be that tomorrow we would want to reconsider it upon greater reflection, but I urge the delegates to not vote to reconsider something that we only did two hours ago, that we have not had time to really know what the effect of this motion to reconsider is. Just give us tonight so we can think about what good we have done. I do not want to stand here for an hour, but you have done a great, wonderful thing for Allegheny County. Please do not undo it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I respectfully disagree with the learned attorney from Allegheny County. The vote on his amendment was extremely close. The decision which was made was extremely important. I believe there is sufficient sentiment on the floor of this delegate body to reconsider its opinion on that vote. I suggest that, if, again, the delegate is so certain that we have done what is right for Allegheny County that he should have no fear of what we are here attempting to do.

I am interested, as I said before, in one thing only. If I were God and could say positively to you what the people of Allegheny County want, I would so speak, but I am not God, nor has God spoken to me recently about Allegheny County. I do not know what the people of Allegheny County want and I am anxious to find out and I am anxious that we give them an opportunity to state what they want.

I am perfectly willing to go along with what they want, but I do not know what they want and I, therefore, urge an affirmative vote on the motion to reconsider.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I am speaking on this side of the House, because I am not speaking as the chairman or co-chairman of the Judiciary Committee; I am speaking on this motion as a delegate.

It seems to me that what Delegate Irvis has said now twice would mean that everything we do in this body must be left open to a change by the electorate. I cannot believe that is why we were sent to Harrisburg for three months.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, all afternoon I have been trying to point up this problem of mandating a certain type of court on the lower level in certain communities.

I was convinced that the work of the committee was the best thing that could be done because it left the choice to the people. I have never heard in this Convention a more eloquent plea made than that which was just made by Delegate Huggins. I think he put his heart into it, and I think he has convinced many of us that this is the type of work that we should do in this Convention. We are not here to mandate; we are not here to legislate; we are here to write a Constitution which will live for many, many years.

Therefore, we should leave such decisions up to the electorate. I am speaking now on the motion to reconsider and I urge the delegates of this Convention to vote to reconsider.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Forster.

DELEGATE FORSTER. It is an old, old parliamentary trick to move something that is very important late in the day. I think that this delegation deserves an opportunity to think over whether we should reconsider. I would respectfully request that Mr. Rappaport withdraw his motion and reintroduce it tomorrow, and then we can vote on it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. As much as I hate to disappoint my good friend, Mr. Forster, I do not think that we have the luxury of that time. Today is the 15th; we have another 14 days. I think we can stay here another 15 minutes and dispose of this. I should like the privilege of closing if everybody else has spoken, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President, I have just two points: One, when I get home on the weekends an awful lot of friends of mine, many of whom are lawyers and many of whom are not, say this to me, what are you doing in Harrisburg? It seems to me that every time I pick up the newspaper I see that you are leaving something for the voters to vote on. I understand that we sent you to Harrisburg, our elected delegates to Harrisburg, to write a Constitution. It appears to us that you are not writing a Constitution at all. That is one item. Therefore, I do say that I certainly believe that there are some things that have to be mandated in this Constitution.

Two, with regard to the learned delegate from Allegheny County, Mr. Irvis, I take opposition to what he says because he indicates to me by what he says that for the past 10 years that he has been here, every time he has taken a vote, either "yea" or "nay," he has a plebiscite in his legislative district. I disagree. I do not think he has had. Therefore, I take opposition to what he says, that everything we do we have to check back home.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE IRVIS. I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I do not mind being quoted, but I do object to being misquoted. Lawyers are known for this, and I will not permit it in the courtroom and I will not permit it here. I did not say nor have I ever said that everything that this delegate body proposes is subject to a plebiscite. I have on occasion been a fool, but I do not think that on this particular occasion I am acting as one.

I say this in answer to Delegate Amsterdam and Delegate Welsh, if you two gentlemen are talking about taking your courage in your hands, and writing a Constitution, then let us stay here tonight and write an article which affects all the people alike. Do not tell me how much courage it takes to write a Constitution which selects Philadelphia and discriminates there and selects Allegheny and discriminates there and then says, the next 65 counties we are afraid to touch.

If we are so courageous that we are going to stand here and say that we were sent to write a Constitution for the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, then let us stand here and write it. Do not discriminate against one segment of those people. That is the only thing that I am arguing for today and that is the thing I shall continue to argue for. And it will not make any difference to me who is to the contrary.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. All about us at this time beat the waves of public opinion. We came here on a great wave of public opinion. It was the settled conviction, apparently from all that we could learn, that in this Commonwealth there were great excesses and abuses and many of them arising out of the judicial system. In particular, the finger was pointed at the abuses in Philadelphia which the people have been unable to correct and at the abuses in Allegheny County which they were unable to remedy.

We have come here and after, I would say, very careful and painstaking labor we have produced what? We have produced, in the largest section in that schedule, three pages about the magisterial districts. There is more in that Constitution about justices of the peace. Now here we are, we are going home to the people with a little package of magisterial districts and we are telling them the people down there said it was the voice of the people, that everything is all right; they do not want you to do anything. Everything is okay, hunky-dory.

This magisterial district indicates the efficacy of the old proverb that sometimes the mountain labors and brings forth a mouse. In this day when people are wondering about new districts for sewage and for water, new ways of combatting the poisoning of the air and new districts by which people can get in and out of their big cities, we go home with this little package. Here, we brought you home a package of magisterial districts, and all the money was spent for that.

We have been afraid that we would be offending certain magistrates and justices of the peace, but has it ever occurred to you that they are all interested persons. Have we come to the status of France where DeGaulle, no matter what he may have done now, was the one who put a stop to the period when France could not do anything because the civil servants said no?

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I do not think that the distinguished delegate is talking on the measure now before the Convention. The motion before us is a motion to reconsider. He is not devoting his conversation to that particular motion; therefore, he is out of order.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. I was following the argument of the distinguished delegate from Bedford County and the young minister from Pittsburgh, but I am glad to close. I think that for us to go back on this great issue and say, here is what we have, distinctly status quo, and less than the status quo, we will be derelict in our duties.

I move the question, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I do not like to be presumptuous to one of our able delegates, but I feel we must point out, in answer to Delegate Irvis, that the legislature deals constantly with Pittsburgh and Philadelphia differently. The present Constitution deals with Pittsburgh and Philadelphia differently, and there is no reason why our new, proposed Constitution cannot deal with Pittsburgh and Philadelphia differently.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The question is,

Will the Convention reconsider the vote by which the Rea amendment was adopted?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—70

Aberman	Fawcett	Krill	Sahli
Aurentz	Fay	Levin	Scales
Bagenstose	Filson	Mangery	Scarlett
Baldrige	Fineman	Mattioni	Shapiro

Banes	Fohl	McGlynn	Shively
Barron	Gerber	Miller, D.	Shoemaker
Bashoff	Goldman	Murray	Shrager
Benfield	Hannum	Orban	Silverman
Brown	Harding	Orbin	Solomon
Caputo	Henderson	O'Donnell	Sprogell
Clark	Hook	Otto	Strickler
Conley	Horne	Popil	Stroup
Cosetti	Hostetler	Pott	Swope
Croop	Huggins	Rappaport	Tully
Curran	Irvis	Redick	Van Sant
Dailey	Jirolanio	Richter	Waldron
Desmond	Johnson	Roberts	Warman
Fagan	Kelly

NAYS—58

Amsterdam	Casey	Leonard	Reynolds
Baldus	Cortese	Manderino	Rovner
Baldwin	Devlin	McGeary	Sebastian
Barry	Erwin	Meyer	Scranton
Bloom	Feather	Michael	Sharp
Braham	Forster	Michener	Stout
Brennan	Gabreski	Moorhead	Tate
Broderick	Gehrlein	More	Thornburgh
Buck	Goldstein	Morton	Welsh
Bunting	Gouger	Nelson	Westerberg
Burkholder	Kauffman	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Butera	Keller, J.	Pelletier	Wilcox
Cain	Leach	Powell	Woodring
Camardella	Lee, L.	Rea	Woodside
Caron	Leinbach

NOT VOTING—35

Allison	Fortney	Kline	Prendergast
Benedict	Gray	Lane	Quiles
Clinger	Griffith	Laputka	Ruth
Corey	Hatter	Lee, K.	Scott
Cunningham	Heyburn	Markley	Shettig
Donaldson	Himes	Miller, R.	Thomson
Donolow	Hocker	Musselman	Tomascik
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Pechan	Wilmarth
Fleming	King	Percey

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

ADJOURNMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. I move we adjourn.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Bloom that we adjourn. Is there a second?

DELEGATE HARDING. I second it, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been seconded by Delegate Harding that we adjourn.

The motion is to adjourn. All those voting "yea" vote in favor of adjournment. Those voting "nay" vote against adjournment.

It is understood that we will meet Friday morning, February 16, 1968, at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion to adjourn?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—69

Amsterdam	Croop	Kauffman	Pott
Aurentz	Curran	Krill	Powell
Baldrige	Dailey	Leach	Rea
Baldwin	Desmond	Lee, L.	Reynolds
Barry	Devlin	Leonard	Richter
Benfield	Erwin	Levin	Roberts
Bloom	Fawcett	Manderino	Rovner
Braham	Feather	Mangery	Scarlett
Brennan	Fohl	Meyer	Scranton
Broderick	Forster	Michael	Sebastian
Butera	Fortney	Miller, D.	Stout
Cain	Gabreski	Moorhead	Tate
Caron	Goldstein	More	Thornburgh
Casey	Gouger	Morton	Waldron
Clark	Hannum	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Clinger	Harding	Pelletier	Wilcox
Cortese	Horne	Popil	Woodring
Cosetti

NAYS—61

Aberman	Fineman	McGlynn	Shettig
Bagenstose	Gerber	Michener	Shively
Baldus	Goldman	Murray	Shoemaker
Banes	Henderson	Nelson	Shrager
Barron	Hook	O'Donnell	Silverman
Bashoff	Hostetler	Orban	Solomon
Brown	Huggins	Orbin	Sprogell
Buck	Irvis	Otto	Strickler
Bunting	Jirolanio	Rappaport	Stroup
Burkholder	Johnson	Redick	Swope
Camardella	Keller, J.	Ruth	Tully
Caputo	Kelly	Sahli	Warman
Conley	Leinbach	Scales	Welsh
Fagan	Mattioni	Shapiro	Westerberg
Fay	McGeary	Sharp	Woodside
Filson

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Gray	Kline	Percey
Benedict	Griffith	Lane	Prendergast
Corey	Hatter	Laputka	Quiles
Cunningham	Heyburn	Lee, K.	Scott
Donaldson	Himes	Markley	Thomson
Donolow	Hocker	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Musselman	Van Sant
Fleming	King	Pechan	Wilmarth
Gehrlein

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the motion was agreed to.

(The Convention was adjourned at 7:38 p.m., e.s.t.)

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 | Friday, February 16, 1968 | Number 45

The Convention was called to order at 9 a.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND JOHN CRAIG ROAK, Rector of All Swedes Church of Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, offered the following Prayer:

Almighty God, Glorious Judge Eternal, open our eyes to the vision of Thy wisdom, that the littleness of our knowledge may be lost in the greatness of Thy Love. Give us fresh insights for the task that is set before us today. May we build well upon the foundations our forefathers so nobly laid down for us. Make us grateful for the distinguished work in which we have been called to share so that our great Commonwealth will then follow Thy glory throughout these United States of America. We ask it in Thy Holy Name.

In the time of stress, give us patience and may we never fail to trust in Thy guidance, in the time of great achievement fill our hearts with thankfulness and praise, that our great Commonwealth may show forth Thy glory throughout these United States of America. We ask it in thy Holy Name. Amen.

APPROVAL OF JOURNALS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. There are no Journals to be approved this morning.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the Secretary, Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I want to submit the following requests for leaves of absence:

DELEGATE EX-OFFICIO DONALDSON for February 16th and 17th;

The delegate from the 49th District, DELEGATE GEHRLEIN for the 16th and 17th;

The delegate from the 49th District, DELEGATE SCALES for the 16th.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Secretary Michener.

Is there any objection to the leaves of absence?

The Chair hears none, and the leaves are granted.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now call the roll for the purpose of determining a quorum. The delegates will please record their presence by voting "aye."

The roll was recorded as follows:

Aberman	Dailey	Johnson	Reynolds
Amsterdam	Desmond	Kauffman	Richter
Aurentz	Devlin	Keller, J.	Roberts
Baldrige	Dumbauld	Krill	Rovner
Baldus	Erwin	Laputka	Sahli
Baldwin	Fagan	Leach	Scales
Banes	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Barron	Fay	Leinbach	Scranton
Barry	Feather	Leonard	Sebastian
Bashoff	Filson	Levin	Shettig
Benedict	Fineman	Mangery	Shively
Benfield	Fohl	Markley	Shoemaker
Bloom	Forster	Mattioni	Shrager
Braham	Gaboreski	McGeary	Silverman
Brennan	Gerber	Michener	Solomon
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, D.	Spregell
Brown	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stout
Buck	Gouger	Morton	Strickler
Bunting	Gray	Nelson	Stroup
Burkholder	Griffith	Orban	Swope
Cain	Hannum	Orbin	Tate
Caputo	Harding	Otto	Thomson
Caron	Hatter	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Casey	Henderson	Pelletier	Tully
Clark	Heyburn	Percey	Van Sant
Clinger	Himes	Popil	Waldron
Conley	Hocker	Pott	Warman
Corey	Hook	Powell	Welsh
Cortese	Horne	Prendergast	Westerberg
Cosetti	Hostetler	Rappaport	Whittum
Croop	Huggins	Rea	Wilcox
Cunningham	Irvis	Redick	Woodring
Curran	Jirolanio

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The electric roll call tabulator indicates there are 130 delegates present, which constitute a quorum.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Bagenstose	Lee, K.	Murray	Shapiro
Butera	Meyer	O'Donnell	Sharp
Fleming	Michael	Ruth	Woodside
Kelly	More

POSSIBLE SATURDAY SESSION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now, Fellow Delegates, before getting under way this morning, the Chair had indicated that we were going to try to complete the second consideration on the Judiciary Article this week and we talked about being in session tomorrow, Saturday.

I have had many delegates express to me their personal desires both pro and con with respect to a session tomorrow. It is not and never has been the purpose of the Chair to inflict its opinion upon you. I just say to you, we have to move a little faster than we moved yesterday and, if we do not, we are not going to get our job finished without working night and day next week, and you know what Delegate Bloom thinks about that. I just say that I think it should be up to this body to decide whether we have a session tomorrow, because if we call a session and delegates make a sacrifice to be here and then come and find that we do not have a quorum, it will be a very unfortunate situation.

Therefore, I am going to unlock the voting machine and I am going to ask you to vote on it. To those that vote yea, I will state that that vote will be an indication that you will be here tomorrow. If we have a sufficient number of yeas to constitute a quorum, we will have a session tomorrow.

If we do not, we will not have a session tomorrow. Is that fair?

So we will unlock the voting machine and those voting yea are voting to say that they will be here ready to work tomorrow.

We need 82 votes for a quorum.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was not agreed to.

RESOLUTION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Mr. President, I have a resolution to offer. This resolution was drawn by our Solicitor, Francis Berry and is offered on behalf of all the delegates from the City of Pittsburgh, County of Allegheny:

In the Constitutional Convention,

WHEREAS, Thomas L. Fagan is a delegate to this Convention from the City of Pittsburgh, County of Allegheny; and

WHEREAS, By the unanimous vote of the Mayor and the Council of the City of Pittsburgh, Thomas L. Fagan has been selected to take the post of City Councilman in the City of Pittsburgh; and

WHEREAS, Thomas L. Fagan shall succeed his father, Patrick T. Fagan, the former President of City Council, as a Councilman of the City; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Constitutional Convention hereby extends its sincere congratulations to Thomas L. Fagan on his appointment to the City Council of the City of Pittsburgh. The hope of the Convention is that Thomas L. Fagan will have a long, useful and happy tenure as a Councilman of the City of Pittsburgh, where he will be able to bring to the City the benefit of his experience, ingenuity and courage.

DELEGATE COSETTI. The hope of the Convention is that Thomas L. Fagan will have a long, useful and happy tenure as a Councilman of the City of Pittsburgh, where he will be able to bring to the city the benefit of his experience, ingenuity and courage.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the resolution?
It was agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The resolution is unanimously adopted. The chair is requesting that a copy of the resolution be sent to Thomas L. Fagan.

DELEGATE FAGAN. Mr. President, I would like to take this opportunity to thank you and all the delegates for your recognition here today.

I want to make it crystal clear, that I will not accept any position until our duties are finished at the Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Councilman, I just want to say that I am sure I am expressing the feelings of your fellow delegates when I say that we are proud and happy, and we have enjoyed having you with us. You have done a wonderful job and deserve congratulations, and I think Pittsburgh has gained with having you as a councilman.

CALENDAR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 20, entitled:

A Proposal Repealing article five of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to the Judiciary and adding a new Judiciary article.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now, we are ready to take up the calendar, and today we are going to continue with Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 7, and I am going to ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee and his Co-Chairman to resume their positions of leadership up forward.

REA AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think you will all remember, except perhaps those that departed before we adjourned last night, that we had a motion to reconsider the Rea amendment and that motion carried, so we now have before the House this morning the Rea amendment.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, what are we voting on?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are voting on the Rea amendment.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. It was my understanding on the motion to reconsider that it was as if the Rea amendment had never been passed and we are relegated back to the original proposal. If I am wrong, I am ready to vote on it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. What we voted on was to reconsider the vote by which the Rea amendment was adopted. The motion was carried and we are now going to reconsider.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I think the Chair should give Mr. Huggins leave to change his amendment to be in line with what will happen as a result of this vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No question about that.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, fellow Delegates:

There was something said last evening that was so fundamental that I think some observations are required. I shall not repeat what I said last night. We are here now examining residual powers in government. There has been a great deal of talk during this Convention about residual powers and we have given residual powers, to some extent, down to the lowest level.

However, in each case, we have reserved the fundamental residual power to the Commonwealth. I want to comment on that. I want to give a few illustrations of instances where the few must give way to the many.

After the First World War, it was believed that one of the main things we did was to break up the Austro-Hungarian Empire. This we did, only to discover in a few years that we made a great mistake, because the Austro-Hungarian Empire was fundamentally an economic unit and it was the shield of Europe against the hordes from Asia.

In the American Civil War the rights of the Southern States to decide their own local problems was at stake. Yet the North went to war to put down this minority view. "The Union must be preserved," said our President, "and we must operate on this cancer in the South." And we did.

We may in our lifetime and maybe not so far away have viewed hostile submarines with nuclear warheads off our eastern coast. The first of those weapons fired will bring a demand from the eastern coast that we make peace at all costs, and no one can blame us. Nevertheless, the interests of the country as a whole may require that we go into conflict.

Will you now go back in your minds to the great Convention of 1787? The two great firebrands of the agitation prior to the Convention were Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry. Nevertheless, neither Samuel Adams nor Patrick Henry had anything notable to do with the adoption of our Constitution. They opposed it because it was an infringement of those great, inalienable rights of the South, of the states. They could not be interfered with. So there is sense in which Samuel Adams and Patrick Henry—give me liberty or give me death and all—slunk off the stage and were not heard from any more. It was the practical men who stayed and made the great Constitution for us.

To apply this to our own situation, the bad situation of the minor judiciary in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties has been known for many years. I do not know the facts in Philadelphia, I only know it from the newspapers. I have some slight knowledge of it in Allegheny County, but I take it from the newspapers. The newspapermen usually know the facts. They may not be as much on the historical and sentimental side as I am, but they are seldom deceived about their facts. They say this thing has been a notable fraud and a notable imposition on the public. We quickly moved in this Convention against them. The Philadephia magistrates section was adopted and other changes were made in the Philadelphia judicial system. The claim has been that the minor judiciary was beloved by all its neighbors, that they were the friendly, helpful people of the neighborhood. The only place where that has surfaced during this Convention has been in Allegheny County, and in Allegheny County there was a demonstration of the feeling of the neighbors about the minor judiciary, but, according to all reports in the paper and from those who were there, it was fundamentally hostile to the minor judiciary because they practiced impositions on them.

We finally succeeded in having the Allegheny and the Philadelphia minor judiciary under the same rule. Both were abolished. A technical error in the second amendment led to a wrangle. People began to go home. The motion to consider passed and here we are at this moment. Is all we have done to do nothing with the minor judiciary? If this passes, that will be the effect. Upon reconsideration, if this amendment is rejected, that will mean that the minor judiciary returns as heretofore in Philadelphia and in Allegheny Counties. I can see how the people in Philadelphia will feel better if they know that this rule of the majority over the minority has been exercised to the same degree against the people of Allegheny County.

I want to ask this: We are going to decide what may be the critical question in this Convention. I will ask this: What have the adroit and eloquent men who moved us into this situation in this broken field ever done to improve the status of the situation with respect to the minor judiciary in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties? What have they done in relief of the people who have been defrauded by the justices of the peace? What has the young member, who spoke so scathingly and eloquently with words of Holy Writ, done to relieve those imposed upon by the minor judiciary in Allegheny County? What do any of these men propose to do in the future if this resolution is rejected? What do they propose to do about the minor judiciary in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties? They say we may leave it to the people.

Nevertheless, this same group has knocked down and defeated a resolution authorizing an immediate vote on this resolution. They say wait until the people move. In other words, leave this situation in Philadelphia and Allegheny as it is, when they wonder if they prosper by this disturbed and bad situation.

What are we to do? I think, Mr. President, that the duty of this Convention is to support the action which we took on this Rea amendment. I think we ought to pass the Rea amendment. Then we will, alike, remove the minor judiciary in Philadelphia and Allegheny Counties and will have done first the things which the people expected us to do. If we do not do that, if we go home having turned back this meritorious attempt, people will say we, indeed, did nothing and, indeed, sought nothing except the status quo.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now, before recognizing the next delegate, I just want to point out, so there will not be any misunderstanding, that when we have debate on amendments you can speak twice and no more than twice, and that applies to the proposers of the amendment. The total length of time that anyone may speak cannot exceed 10 minutes.

With that, I recognize Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, I want to point out to you and to the floor that the remarks just made are certainly appropriate, considering the source. However, I think it is mandatory for the Convention to realize that it was not but a five-vote margin between the two on the first vote for this Rea amendment, that only 10 of the 24 delegates from Allegheny County supported it. I think it is even more important to realize that the objectives raised against this minor judiciary were not raised throughout the county, but only the City of Pittsburgh by Pittsburgh groups and organizations. We must realize there is a great deal more to Allegheny County than the City of Pittsburgh, and there are a great many more problems and solutions going on in local government through home rule within the county that are really being satisfied for many people who have been butchered by minor judiciary in the City of Pittsburgh.

The basic issue here is: Are we writing a Constitution for the City of Pittsburgh and Philadelphia, or are we going to offer an option to the people of the Commonwealth to select their own law, their own means to law enforcement?

Admittedly, some questions were raised to the solution. I am certainly no seer. I wish I were sometimes. I wish all of the answers and problems of life could be so easily solved. It would be nice to offer an amendment and stuff it down throats, let people do it and say, "Look, it is all solved." I am not too sure anything that is untried will really solve the problems we are talking about, because we are talking about problems beyond law in the area of moral apathy and ineptitude for people who become so accustomed to the status quo that they do not think the status quo can ever be improved upon, even in the least way.

I think the article in the continuation here presented by the Judiciary Committee is an honorable article. I think the solutions are there if truly enforced and followed and supported. But I do not think they are going to be truly enforced, and followed and supported by catering to two cities—pardon me, a city and a county.

In the name of justice, I dare say, Mr. President, that I do not think I would want to try to force a community court system on Potter County, and I doubt if it would go over big in Butler and Lawrence Counties. If we determine it this way in this Convention and specify paragraph—in the name of law—come now, we are here for something more than this, I hope, not a gigantic step backward in the name of forward direction.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Morton.

DELEGATE MORTON. Mr. President, I think today we have two basic issues. One, is there a difference between the rest of the Commonwealth and the City of Philadelphia and the county of Allegheny, and two, should we mandate something for the people?

On issue No. 1, it is quite obvious that in 1874 the delegates to the Convention recognized the difference because they voted a different magistrate court for the City of Philadelphia. And for the City of Pittsburgh, which was in excess of 50,000, they voted a different system of JPs. Everyone else had two JPs per municipality, but not a city in excess of 50,000. Only one alderman. In 1874 they recognized the difference. Already this Convention has recognized the difference in these municipalities.

You remember, in Local Government we spent days carving out Philadelphia's tax exemption, putting the school district in and then at the request of Philadelphia taking it out. We also devoted hours on how to preserve Philadelphia's status of giving money to certain groups. But the most enlightening one we have, we spent, to me, innumerable hours debating on the public utility exemption as to words that were put in by technical amendment and taken out, and the sole import of those was to preserve that the City of Philadelphia and the City of Pittsburgh can tax railroads, because they are the only ones who can do it today.

Yes, there are differences. The Reverend Huggins says maybe the difference is the City of Pittsburgh instead of the City of Philadelphia, but I would like to point out to you and show you how many differences there are.

There is a justice of the peace outside the City of Pittsburgh and in the county who as of November of this year had handled 3,556 criminal cases. I think this is probably more than are handled in many of the counties throughout the Commonwealth. That was one justice of the peace outside of the City of Pittsburgh. But for you people who are not familiar with it, let us face the problem.

Like Delegate Fineman, let us start calling a spade a spade. I will tell you what we are talking about. We are talking about 32 aldermen in the City of Pittsburgh who are 32 political bosses. That is what we are talking about now.

Read in the Post Gazette where one of the aldermen coming down here is a Senator who gave up his county job and got his pension. This is the real issue, ladies and gentlemen. As Brother Conley said yesterday—and he will speak against this today—these people help the area and their community, but they are not helping them only for help. They are dispensers of patronage, not dispensers of justice.

I say that we have to remove them from the political system, and the present proposal does not go far enough in that respect because it says that judges and justices cannot hold political office. But it says nothing about justices of the peace or aldermen. This is why I say that there is a vast difference in the City of Pittsburgh and the City of Philadelphia compared to the rest of the county.

You may not be aware of what are the abuses used here. It is typical in Allegheny County that when you have a suit you frame it as a criminal action so the person has to post bond, even though he lived there all his life, to appear at the hearing. It is held over for court and he posts another bond to appear in court, even though he may be a property owner and may have lived here all his life. He has to pay for two bonds to get it before a court where it can be heard by someone learned in the law.

In fact, let me just relate to you two personal experiences. It rather shocked me. In the enforcement of a borough ordinance outside of the City of Pittsburgh by a justice of the peace in the county at 5:00 o'clock Saturday afternoon, he wanted to put one of the residents of his community in jail, someone who lived there about 12 years, because he had committed a violation of a borough ordinance, and he sent a constable over. Unless he posted bond he was jailed. These are the abuses we have, which I am sure you do not have in your outlying communities, because we have such complicated and such a volume of problems that the JPs normal reaction is to bring a criminal action to enforce a civil remedy.

As to item No. 2, should we mandate something for anyone? I have found it is a very philosophical thing that if you are for something, this is good, and if you are against something, you are mandating it. Let us look at what we have mandated so far for the people without giving them the right to vote on it themselves.

We have mandated a reapportionment committee of five people, we have mandated stronger tax exemptions and we have mandated looser tax exemptions to be provided for industrial growth, for residential and commercial growth.

On the PUC we have mandidated that the State Legislature and the State must return $20 million to the local communities. Yes, we mandated that. We did not go and ask the Governor or the State Legislature. We told them to do that.

On local government, what have we mandated? We mandated the Legislature to pass uniform laws. We have mandated they must provide home rule for everyone. We have mandated they must pass uniform laws on boundary changes and we have mandated that there must be a new arrangement on tax debt limitation, adoption of a sliding scale program.

No matter what you call them, these are mandates and you cannot say that we had to go back to the people to find out what they wanted on this.

But I think the greatest thing we have mandated—and I say mandated—we have mandated in the Constitution that there be a public defender, not elected by the people, but to be determined by the Legislature how he will be appointed.

Delegate Irvis, who, by the way, was a law school classmate of mine, who has the greatest powers of debate and who, in a sense, to me has epitomized why the Legislative leaders, if they were active in this Convention, could accomplish so much. It is because they can be so effective at these microphones and because they are here day after day, while novices like me stand here and shudder and are unaccustomed to it. They take their side of the floor for a public defender and they lose. Now it is not a mandate for the people. Delegate Irvis then waxes eloquently, and we become like puppets and we vote for a public defender for the good of the people. We do not even let them be elected by the people, he will be chosen as the Legislature determines.

But this is not a mandate, this is what the people want. I say to you: Is there any difference in mandating a public defender? Let us go all the way and give that public defender a trial court in Allegheny where he can start. I think that yesterday probably was the top of what we were looking at when Reverend Huggins said a government of the people, by the people and for the people. I agree 100 per cent and I can only say this: Thank God that Abraham Lincoln did not go to a referendum of the people before he issued the Emancipation Proclamation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Conley.

DELEGATE CONLEY. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this Rea amendment. I will state that I am not here to defend 32 aldermen in the City of Pittsburgh, I am not here to defend any of the aldermen in the City of Pittsburgh. I think there is an issue which should be made clear.

There is before this Convention three possible alternatives which are being confused. Let us look at what they are and not be affected by the label. There is the community court. There is the present system, and there is the system of JPs as modified by the Committee.

I, myself, can entertain this group with stories about abuses from aldermen. I think I have been before the alderman's court as often as anyone here, or as often as many of you here, anyway, but the issue is not the present system.

If I were to rank these three alternatives, I would put the present system for the JPs last. Then, next to last I would put the community court, and first I would put the JPs as modified.

The committee has decided they will give in their proposal the other counties in the Commonwealth the option to take that alternative, which I think is best, and, if it does not work, they can take the second alternative. They have that privilege.

All I am asking is that the same privilege be given to Allegheny County, that is, that they take the first alternative which is the JPs as modified and, if they do not like that, they can move to the second alternative.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Horne.

DELEGATE HORNE. I respectfully move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The proposer of the amendment should have an opportunity to speak, that has been our procedure. If you sum up, we will then vote.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. May I have the floor for a moment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I will recognize Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. The issue has been highly confused and so is this conversation. The issue before us now is simple and it is clear cut. Do we wish to adopt the Judiciary Committee proposal for a brand-new, wholly revised system of minor judiciary in Pennsylvania, including Allegheny County, or do we wish to mandate a wholly untried, absolutely untested community court experiment in Allegheny County.

I urge you to support the Judiciary Committee proposal and vote no.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Mr. President, I know the other gentlemen were at the microphone first, but I wonder if one of them would answer one brief question. I am a bit confused as to what we are voting upon. I shall direct my question to Delegate Rea.

Are we voting exclusively on Allegheny County, or are we also voting on the Philadelphia magistrates?

DELEGATE REA. This amendment has nothing to do with Philadelphia, this is solely Allegheny County. It rises and falls solely on Allegheny County.

DELEGATE BUTERA. The amendment to the amendment which was distributed last night has not be offered.

DELEGATE REA. It has not been offered. Just Allegheny County's.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I only have this to say, I resent being called a puppet by the learned gentleman, Mr. Morton. However, I do not desire to have an apology, just so he does not get that message back home, that is all I ask.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I have been at the microphone for many long years now, and I have never before been paid such a high compliment as my law schoolmate, Jim Morton, paid me here a few moments ago. If I am a puppetmaster, that makes all the rest of you puppets. I think maybe I ought to be proud, but you ought to be resentful. I have never been able to mesmerize anybody, including myself, into believing anything that he did not want to believe in the first place.

I have operated always in the hall of the House, and I have operated here, on one basic assumption, that most individuals if you will appeal to their sense of right or wrong, eventually will make a balanced judgment. It may not agree with yours, but it will be a balanced judgment.

I stand here in an unenviable position. I wish I could stand here as the pure-blooded crusader, out to defend the rights of the people in Allegheny County, crying all over the place about the imposition of unequal justice on the backs of the poor of Allegheny County. That would sound wonderful. That is a very simple position, but it is not a position I can here take.

I defy anyone here in the hall of this House, or anyone visiting it, to challenge my right to this position which I now assume, and it is a very simple one at that.

I am unalterably opposed to the system of the JP courts as it now exists, and I was opposed to it before some of these "spokesmen" even knew it existed, and I will continue to be so opposed.

I think it has become corrupt and corrupting.

I think if some of the noble sentiment that we have had at this microphone were to be followed out by action, these same men would be on their feet urging that we get rid of this corrupt and corrupting system across this entire Commonwealth, but these men are compromisers. These men, while they can cry the politicians are, are themselves politicians. These men have been influenced by editorial writers, and they think they see a cause. If they are sincere in this cause, then let them speak for the cause of the people of the entire Commonwealth, for what I say here today is what I said here yesterday.

I am absolutely ready to discuss and to vote on a proposition which would eliminate the JP system across the entire Commonwealth and, if that proposition is put before this House, I will vote for it, but I am absolutely and irrevocably committed to the position of opposing the treatment of the people of Allegheny County in any way, shape or form differently than the way the people are treated across the rest of the Commonwealth.

I am going to try to keep my temper, because I have been known for losing it, and I do not like to, as I always feel ashamed afterwards, but I am getting very irritated with people who come to me and tell me they know what is best for the people. There is one phrase which irritates me beyond all measure and that is talking about the "common man," because the person who uses it is always meaning somebody different from me. I am uncommon and all the others may be common. There is not any such animal as a common man. Every single man is a different individual.

There is not anyone in this House who can say with absolute certainty today what is good for the people of Allegheny County or what the people of Allegheny County want.

I do not know what they want, but I do have an abiding faith in their ability to speak. I know what I want, and I think I know what some of these men here who have spoken want, but I do not know what the people of Allegheny County want, and there are over two million of them. All I am asking is that they be given a chance, if this is a chance we are going to offer to the rest of the State, to state their wishes.

I have said this before and I have had this answered. "Oh, we don't dare put this on the ballot because those aldermen and JPs will take the poor people and march them to the polls."

That is an arrogance that I will not stand for.

On one hand, we have these people who claim to be the leaders of the people, they have great faith in the people, they believe in the democratic principles, but, on the other hand, they say the people are so stupid, they are sheep. They do not know what is best for them, and the aldermen and the JPs will march them to the polls and control their votes. I do not subscribe to that sort of identification of people.

I want the people in my constituency to be able to go and say, "Lee Irvis, you are wrong as hell." Or "Lee Irvis, you are right." I do not know which they will say as I stand here, and I live in a ghetto area. Some of you have not even seen a ghetto area, unless you have driven through it in your Lincoln Continentals. I live there and I have lived there for the last quarter of a century of my life, and I say to you that I cannot speak for what these people want, but I do know that they have enough integrity and enough interest in their own future to decide for themselves what they want.

I am willing to gamble if the rest of you are willing to gamble. As Mr. Morton talks about mandating, I am willing to mandate that we get rid of the JP system across the State. Are the rest of you willing to gamble with me? If you are, let us sit down and do it now. But I am not willing to compromise and say we will get rid of it in Allegheny, and we will change it slightly in Philadelphia, and we will let it stay almost the way it is in those beautiful counties in between. I do not think the people in those beautiful counties in between are one bit different from the people of Allegheny and the people of Philadelphia. I think they were conceived the same way, I think they live the same way. They die and have the same diseases, and they end up the same way.

Now, in the last two minutes let me say something to Delegate Morton. I do not know what you meant by the remark about Abraham Lincoln and the Emancipation Proclamation. I will not venture a guess at this microphone of what you may have meant, but I will say this to you, Jim, the Emancipation Proclamation was issued in 1863, and this is 1968, and there are a lot of white people in this Commonwealth who have not heard of it yet, and not until they hear of it will the Emancipation Proclamation really be an emancipation, and you better believe it. If you do not know that, come and live with me for a month and we will prove it to you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Welsh.

DELEGATE WELSH. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I would like to go on record as saying that I do think that I know what the citizens of Allegheny County want. They want us to take the system that we are talking about and adopt the Rea amendment for community courts.

I have been at this Convention now for two and a half months. I have received lots of telephone calls, telegrams, and letters. There has not been one that advocated the retention of the JP system in Allegheny County, not one.

So I make this prediction, I was sent here as a delegate and I am taking this responsibility in my own hands. I have maintained this position ever since I started practicing law, that the justice of the peace system—not because it is corrupt, I am not talking about corruption, I am talking about cases decided by men who are not judges.

Would you vote, for example, to have a judge on the Pennsylvania Supreme Court who was not learned in the law?

Would you vote to have a judge sit on the Superior Court of this State, listening to your case, who was not learned in the law?

Would you vote or would you stand for a mandated thing that we did yesterday in this commonwealth court?

Would you stand to have seven JPs on that court?

I would not, and I do not subscribe to a pharmacist operating on people. I do not subscribe to having non-judges decide legal issues.

I do not care whether we are talking about a $2.00 case, or a $200 case, or a $25,000 case. It is all the same, and I think we have to be consistent about it, and I am going to vote in support of the Rea amendment, which I subscribed to, and I am glad to be a part of it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now, for summing up, the Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. Mr. President, I am probably a little shaky right now because I finally went to bed at 4:30, but at 1:30 this morning I stood in my apartment talking on the phone and it is the first time in years that tears ran down my eyes, so if I get a little emotional, please forgive me, because I am emotional.

When I got home last night my phone began to ring with calls from Pittsburgh, and it was the people in the ghetto areas that live where Mr. Irvis lives, and they spoke to me for four hours, until 2:00 o'clock, this morning, and they told me why the optional system will not work. They told me why there is not a chance of ever getting 27,000 votes on a petition. This is not going to the polls where you pull a curtain and you can vote the way you want. You are giving to Allegheny County a system where they must go out and get on a piece of paper in public 27,000 signatures.

In the ghetto area you cannot do it, because they say, "My father works for the Sanitation Department of the City and, if I put my name down there, he will lose his job." You know what that Sanitation Department is.

Another one calls up and says, "The aldermen are in charge of the food stamps, they run housing in the ghetto areas and, if we would ever sign a petition like this, we would be thrown out in the street."

Are you giving the people in these ghetto areas a chance by saying, "Yes, you can put your name down if you are brave enough, if you want to lose your job, if your brother is going to be thrown out of a city job." Yes. If they are brave enough, they can do that, but you are talking about 27,000 names for the City of Pittsburgh.

The last woman that called me last night said her son has been in jail and, if she ever signed this, the aldermen would put him back in jail. She did not, I do not believe, realize that that was not true, but this is the control that the aldermen have.

If you do not live in the city, as I do, you may not understand the control that the alderman has, but he has this control over the people, and I can guarantee you, as sure as I am standing here, there is no way that the ghetto areas can get 27,000 names in public. It is one thing to vote in a closed booth, and it is another thing to put your name down where the aldermen can review it and know who did it.

Mr. Irvis and Mr. Huggins say give the people a choice. We will give the people a choice. The Redick amendment gave them the choice.

Mr. Conley said the JPs are terrible in Pittsburgh. Mr. Irvis said the JPs are terrible in Pittsburgh. Believe him, they are. But the police can be there because they can go back from the community court to the JP system if they want. This is the choice you can give them. This is the true choice.

If the system is bad—and everybody admits it—not one person has ever gotten up in this Convention, not one, and said that the JPs are good in Allegheny County. If they all admit they are bad, why do we not change the system, still giving the people the right to go back in the community courts under the Redick amendment? Is that not the fair thing to do? If we know it is wrong, let us not vote to keep it wrong. Let us vote to make it right, with the option to go back.

Let me tell you what you are going to give if you vote "no" on this. Let me tell you what you are going to give Allegheny County. You are going to give them exactly what Philadelphia got 15 or 20 years ago when they got their 28 magistrates on salary. Under the present plan that is before this Committee, you are going to create 26 magistrates in Allegheny County on a salary of $12,000 a year, which is almost comparable to the 28 magistrates on salary in Philadelphia and, if any of you know what happened in Philadelphia with those 28 magistrates on salary, you know that they had corruption that forced a State investigation.

This, my fellow delegates, is exactly what you are voting to give to Pittsburgh, 28 magistrates on salary. It did not work in Philadelphia, and it will not work in Pittsburgh. So when you say we do not want this amendment, you are saying we want to give to Allegheny County the same corruption, the same basis for corruption that has existed in Philadelphia for years.

Pittsburgh needs more than justice on Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 7:00 to 9:00 o'clock at night, and that is the JP system. We are mature in Pittsburgh. We need a mature system, but if you vote "no" on this amendment, you are not giving the people a choice. Do not delude yourself into thinking that 27,000 names are easy to get when the politicans say "no." You have a chance, and I urge you to take it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is the Convention agreed to vote on the amendment?

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Huggins, I want to say that it was understood that this was a closing, and it would not be fair to let you speak, because that would just continue the debate.

Are you ready for the question?

The question is: Will the Convention agree to the Rea amendment? We will unlock the voting machine and proceed to vote.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Rea?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—46

Amsterdam	Clark	Laputka	Rea
Baldus	Curran	Lee, L.	Ruth
Bloom	Dumbauld	Leinbach	Scranton
Braham	Feather	McGeary	Shoemaker
Brennan	Fohl	Michael	Sprogell
Broderick	Forster	Michener	Tate
Brown	Gabreski	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Buck	Gouger	Morton	Welsh
Bunting	Himes	Nelson	Whittum
Burkholder	Hocker	Otto	Wilcox
Caron	Johnson	Pelletier	Woodring
Casey	Keller, J.

NAYS—93

Aberman	Fawcett	Leonard	Rovner
Aurentz	Fay	Levin	Sahli
Bagenstose	Filson	Mangery	Scales
Baldrige	Fineman	Markley	Scarlett
Baldwin	Goldstein	Mattioni	Sebastian
Banes	Gray	Meyer	Shapiro
Barron	Griffith	Miller, D.	Sharp
Barry	Hannum	More	Shettig
Bashoff	Harding	Murray	Shively
Benedict	Hatter	O'Donnell	Shrager
Benfield	Henderson	Orban	Silverman
Butera	Heyburn	Orbin	Solomon
Cain	Hook	Pasquerilla	Stout
Caputo	Horne	Percey	Strickler
Clinger	Hostetler	Popil	Stroup
Conley	Huggins	Pott	Swope
Corey	Irvis	Powell	Thomson
Cortese	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Tully
Croop	Kauffman	Rappaport	Van Sant
Dailey	Kelly	Redick	Waldron
Desmond	Krill	Reynolds	Warman
Devlin	Leach	Richter	Westerberg
Erwin	Lee, K.	Roberts	Woodside
Fagan

NOT VOTING—24

Allison	Fleming	King	Musselman
Camardella	Fortney	Kline	Pechan
Cosetti	Gehrlein	Lane	Quiles
Cunningham	Gerber	Manderino	Scott
Donaldson	Goldman	McGlynn	Tomascik
Donatow	Keller, M.	Miller, R.	Wilmarth

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

THORNBURGH AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30, by inserting after "than": the City of Pittsburgh and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 26, by inserting after "than": in the City of Pittsburgh and

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, the effect of the amendment which I am offering here would overcome some of the objections to the similarity between the City of Philadelphia and the County of Allegheny. I think a great many people here are troubled by the fact that, in addition to the City of Pittsburgh, Allegheny County contains 128 other separate municipalities, boroughs, townships and third class cities. I think this amendment, which speaks only of the City of Pittsburgh and would provide a community court for the City of Pittsburgh, would restore an absolute parity in the treatment of the City of Philadelphia and the City of Pittsburgh.

The effect of this amendment would be to mandate a community court for the City of Pittsburgh, leaving to the other municipalities, the balance of the judicial district, the local option referendum, and I would urge very much that the remarks that have been made during the course of the debate on this entire question, most of which I submit apply to the conditions within the City of Pittsburgh, be very carefully considered, because this, it seems to me, while overcoming the objections which some may feel about the surburban or rural areas of Allegheny County, goes to the heart of the matter by speaking to the heart of the problem, which is in the heart of the City of Pittsburgh.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President and members of the Convention, I have sat in my seat and I have heard words come out of the mouths of delegates condemning the magistrate or JP system in the City of Pittsburgh. I have heard this before and I have talked to some lawyers in this room and I have asked them whether or not any prosecution has taken place in the last five years because of the acts that these men are supposed to have committed, and I have been definitely told, "no."

There are on our books statutes, of course, which say that a public officer who is guilty of a misdemeanor in office or a malfeasance in office can be prosecuted. If they are so bad and if they have done so many wrong things, where has the district attorney of Allegheny County been and where has the courts of Allegheny County been when these things are going on? Is this nothing else but a sham? Can you come up with the goods and show and prove to the people that these magistrates or all the justices of the peace in Allegheny County have been crooked and are a disgrace to the people of that particular county, or is just this a bunch of words?

Where I come from, we have no trouble. In my neighboring county of Lehigh, we have no trouble. I remember when I was in the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, the same matter came up and at that time I said if it was a local problem, then that particular area should take care of its own housekeeping.

What has Allegheny County done in cleaning up this situation if it does exist? What has the district attorney done? If it exists as you say it does on this floor, then I say serve notice upon the DA of Allegheny County to immediately start an investigation of that condition which does exist.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Mr. President, I usually try to approach the microphone a little better prepared. I have to speak on this particular amendment.

I, too, attended that meeting last Saturday in the city council chambers where many of our people, especially those representing some of the people who are particularly oppressed by the present JP system, were well represented. I think most of our hearts went out to them. One of the problems they mentioned, and which was particularly described to us, was this problem of venue.

It seems in our county, and I suppose in all the other counties in the State, when you particularly want to harass someone, you bring the charge before a JP in some distant corner of the county. This is particularly difficult for some of our poor who do not own automobiles and who find it extremely difficult to travel to these distant places in the county. I think most of them were not willing to say that the aldermen in the city alone were causing the problem. As a matter of fact, I think the consensus of their objections was that they were brought before a magistrate in various places in the county, quite often a distance from their own homes and quite often without advice of counsel, and this is part of the problem.

I do not see that mandating a community court in the City of Pittsburgh without a statement as to the venue of this court is going to solve the problem. I also would like to say that I do not think the problem is alone the problem of the aldermen in the City of Pittsburgh.

If there are any vices which exist in the JP System in Allegheny County, I think it is throughout the county and, therefore, oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President and fellow delegates, as I promised Delegate Amsterdam when this debate first came up, I would be a friend of the court and keep my mouth shut. But, as a delegate from Allegheny County and as a person who was born in the City of Pittsburgh and who has lived there a good part of my life, I feel it would be very inappropriate and disastrous to a unified court system and to the courts of Allegheny County if we had one system in the City of Pittsburgh and another in the boroughs and townships surrounding Pittsburgh. Philadelphia is one city and one county. Pittsburgh is a city, but it is only part of a county, only about half of the population of Allegheny County.

I think it would be unfortunate if we had a community court in Pittsburgh and a record court and a non-record court of a different nature outside of the City of Pittsburgh and, therefore, I say briefly that I think as a lawyer, practicing in Allegheny County with experience, I must speak against this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think that Delegate Thornburgh will answer any questions.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, is it the intention of this amendment to mandate a community court for the City of Pittsburgh?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Yes.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. May I ask the gentleman to explain how it does that?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. I refer to page 2, line 30, the introductory clause to Section 7 (a).

"In judicial districts other than the City of Philadelphia in which a majority of the electors voting thereon have adopted a community court, there shall be one community court."

7 (a) as it is now written "excepts" the City of Philadelphia.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Would you read the language as it will be with the amendment?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. "In judicial districts other than the City of Pittsburgh and the City of Philadelphia in which a majority of the electors voting thereon have adopted a community court, there shall be one community court, the divisions, number of judges, and jurisdiction of which shall be provided by law."

In other words, in the City of Pittsburgh, there shall be one community court in the City of Pittsburgh and there shall be one community court in judicial districts other than the City of Philadelphia in which the majority of the electors voting thereon have adopted it. Those two categories are where the community court will be.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I suggest you read it again because I do not think it has the effect which you indicate. I would like to point out that the City of Pittsburgh is not, in my opinion, a judicial district.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. No, it is part of a judicial district.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, to back up my distinguished colleague, Mr. Barry, I would like to state that the population of Allegheny County is greater than 1.6 million people. The population of Pittsburgh is only 600,000 people, or 6/16ths of the population of Allegheny County.

The area of Pittsburgh is only 55 square miles. The area of Allegheny County is 730 square miles or, therefore, about 7 per cent of the total area of Allegheny County. If there is one thing on which the subcommittee which considered this was absolutely certain, it was the undesirability of trying to run a bifurcated system in one judicial district, that is to say, a system in which you have one kind of court in one part of the judicial district and another kind of court in another part of the judicial district. It is just impossible, and I urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. Chairman, I think you know that I have never tried to cut off debate. Heaven knows, we never tried to cut it off in the Judiciary Committee and some of you are beginning to understand what we have been doing every day for 10 weeks.

May I just make this comment? We have gone all through this in Pittsburgh, Allegheny County, and all parts of the United States of America in the sub-committee, in the full committee, and now you are doing it in the Convention.

May I kindly move the question?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Thornburgh? We will unlock the voting machine. Those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment and those voting "no" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Thornburgh?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—30

Bloom	Feather	Pelletier	Tate
Braham	Himes	Popil	Thomson
Buck	Hocker	Pott	Thornburgh
Bunting	Michael	Rea	Tomascik
Burkholder	Michener	Ruth	Welsh
Caron	Moorhead	Scranton	Wilcox
Casey	Morton	Stout	Woodring
Dumbauld	Otto

NAYS—100

Aberman	Devlin	Kauffman	Redick
Amsterdam	Erwin	Kelly	Reynolds
Aurentz	Fagan	Krill	Richter
Bagenstose	Fawcett	Leach	Roberts
Baldrige	Fay	Lee, K.	Rovner
Baldus	Filson	Lee, L.	Sahli
Baldwin	Fineman	Leinbach	Scales
Banes	Fleming	Leonard	Scarlett
Barron	Forster	Mangery	Sebastian
Barry	Gabreski	Markley	Shapiro
Bashoff	Goldstein	Mattioni	Sharp
Benedict	Gouger	McGeary	Shettig
Benfield	Gray	Meyer	Shively
Broderick	Griffith	Miller, D.	Shrager
Brown	Hannum	More	Silverman
Butera	Harding	Murray	Solomon
Cain	Hatter	Nelson	Strickler
Clinger	Henderson	O'Donnell	Stroup
Conley	Heyburn	Orban	Swope
Corey	Hook	Orbin	Tully
Cortese	Horne	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Croop	Huggins	Percey	Waldron
Curran	Irvis	Powell	Warman
Dailey	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Westerberg
Desmond	Johnson	Rappaport	Woodside

NOT VOTING—33

Allison	Fohl	King	Musselman
Brennan	Fortney	Kline	Pechan
Camardella	Gehrlein	Lane	Quiles
Caputo	Gerber	Laputka	Scott
Clark	Goldman	Levin	Shoemaker
Cosetti	Hostetler	Manderino	Sprogell
Cunningham	Keller, J.	McGlynn	Whittum
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Miller, R.	Wilmarth
Donolow

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

HUGGINS AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HUGGINS offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, lines 29 and 30, by striking out "; Philadephia Municipal Court and Traffic Court"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30, by striking out "other than the"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 1, by striking out "City of Philadelphia"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, lines 21 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Huggins to speak on his amendment.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. I think, Mr. President, a great deal has already been said about having an effective government run by the people in a local situation and, at the same time, much has been said about maintaining and mandating an equality of law throughout the Commonwealth without signifying any particular city or county as a prodigal child who needs to be corrected by a particular mandate within an amendment within a Constitution for all people. It is for this reason I offer this amendment, and that certainly goes hand in hand with the one that this body has just supported by eliminating the City of Pittsburgh from the prodigal son category. I feel strongly about this. I think the two largest cities in the Commonwealth should be free enough to correct their own abuses. I certainly think they should be free enough to mandate whether or not they want a community court, and I think what is good for one is good for all.

I do not think one necessarily needs to be singled out to bear the brunt of what the entire Commonwealth is suffering from, a tremendous apoplexy in regard to the minor judiciary. I urge the delegates to walk tall, as tall as you have on the two amendments we just passed. I think we need to support and encourage support from all of you from throughout the Commonwealth to support this which will better all of the Commonwealth.

I urge your support on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair will recognize Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, in conformity with your request to the leadership of the Judiciary Committee, I will simply speak one or two sentences about this.

The Judiciary Committee went into this at interminable length and great detail and overwhelmingly subscribed to the present article as we have presented it to you, and are overwhelmingly opposed to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, many things come in here under the guise of reform. I would like to point out what the Judiciary Committee provided the City of Philadelphia. They come here in the guise of reformers and are going to clean up the magistrates in Philadelphia. I say to you, the magistrates in Philadelphia need cleaning up. The magistrates in Philadelphia must be abolished. There is no question about it in my mind, and I shall campaign in Philadelphia that they be abolished at the proper time.

I will call your attention to an editorial which appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer: "The magistrate system should be abolished completely." What they are further talking about is the enshrinement of the traffic court in this constitution. By this proposal that has come out of the Judiciary Committee, six of these magistrates, six of the men that you have been hearing about, received constitutional office in perpetuity in this traffic court. In other words, it is going to be retained by this so-called reform.

The Inquirer said, "The one sure means of eradicating the defects in that system lies in the complete abolition, certainly not in its extension or preservation in any modified form. The traffic court happens to be the one with which hundreds of thousands of our citizens come in contact throughout the year. It is surely in the public interest to have this court reflect high standards of judicial excellence."

Occasionally being as all other mortal men, I have had to appear in the traffic court in Philadelphia. It is a disgrace, it is a travesty. If you have a parking ticket, you show up and you are discharged because the police are never there on parking tickets. It is in chaos. It is the worst example of how not to run a court. Yet the so called reformers want to maintain that, and this is despicable.

In a few moments a proposal is going to come to this floor mandating community courts for the whole State and I shall support that, but I ask you, do not enshrine this cancer of Philadelphia in this Constitution. The proposal of Delegate Huggins would eliminate this from the present proposal of the Committee and it would permit us in Philadelphia to vote and get rid of the whole system once and for all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Mr. President and fellow delegates, I ask to stand here, because I find it very uneasy to turn my back to my friends.

About six weeks ago I came before you and I presented a proposition or a proposal to construct a modern Judicial system for the City of Philadelphia. I asked for your help on this floor and I spelled it out in detail for you, and we had committee hearings, subcommittee hearings and full committee hearings, and now we are before the committee as a whole, and you are my friends. We were able to move this particular proposal 1204 as it was known, with a great deal of effort and work on behalf of many people, we moved it to a position where we can really say we have something to be proud of.

Someone from Philadelphia mentioned yesterday that he does not like to have people from another county tell Philadelphia how to run its business. I do, you know it.

I can look through this audience right here and point out to each and every one of you that I spoke to personally, Philadelphia is our city, Pennsylvania's city, it is not my town. The concern of the people in any town is our business when we are meeting in a Convention like this or where the legislative body meets. I need your help as I needed it six weeks ago. I need your help to defeat this amendment that was presented by a delegate from Pittsburgh.

To make the record perfectly clear, I did not vote for the Rea amendment, nor would I. I think it was a shotgun approach to a problem that is very delicate. I think, perhaps, if first they had given a little more thought to their problems in Allegheny County and came to this Convention, some work would have been done.

I do not think you should attack the judicial system with a shotgun or guessing approach. I came to this Convention to do something constructive for the people of Philadelphia, and we have not in this proposal. What would happen if this particular amendment would go through would be simply this, that the judicial backlog that we have in Philadelphia would become more enormous and, instead of needing perhaps 24 judges, as the Bar Association says we need, we would need 44.

To answer another question, we are not abolishing the magisterial system in Philadelphia per se and we are not writing, as some people say, writing the courts in the Constitution. These courts were written into the Constitution. What we have done is extended their jurisdiction to take care of all the minor offenses that clog up the common pleas court, that they can be tried on this municipal court level and disposed of.

The magistrate's authority is still vested in this municipal court, sitting as committing magistrates and performing all the functions that magistrates now perform. The biggest difference that we have in this particular court is that in the future it will be manned by lawyers and the present magistrates that are now serving. Thanks to the graciousness of the subcommittee and the committee, the Judiciary Committee, they will allow these lay magistrates to serve out their present term, plus one more six-year term, and you are being very gracious and I thank you for it.

The problem that we have with some individuals is that they do not want to see the lay magistrates leave the judicial bench. I feel sorry for them, too. As the Chairman of the Republican Party of Philadelphia, I have a few responsibilities. I have a responsibility to do what is right for my party as my conscience guides me. I have 13 Republicans who will be ushered out of the judicial system eventually and there will be 14 Democrats who will be ushered out. You might say that this might be a Democratic and Republican problem. Well, it is not.

I had the good fortune yesterday of sitting down with five Democratic magistrates in the back room and explaining what we are doing for them. I need not mention their names because it will not mean anything to most of you outside of those from Philadelphia. They said when they were finished, Bill, I did not know you did this for us. They were perfectly happy and satisfied with taking care of their tenure, and there was no opposition as to them being ushered out of the judicial system.

If this amendment goes through, you will take the building block that we have in the unified judicial system of this State and pull it from under the entire structure. The backlog of cases will continue. The uniformity of the common pleas courts, as we now see it embodied in this Proposal No. 7, will not be able to carry out its duties. We will not be able to feed into the backlog of cases. We will not have judicial administration of the courts which will give us flexibility of court rooms and judges. We will not have an opportunity to continue to put more men learned in the law in the municipal court to serve the people.

May I say this, if this particular amendment goes through, you will never have a unified court system in Philadelphia for many, many years. I will tell you why. Last year we put through the House of Representatives, with help from our friends on the Democratic side, a magistrates reform bill which is doing almost exactly what we are doing in the municipal bill, in this Proposal No. 7, and it died in the Senate.

We had a bill in the House of Representatives to consolidate our county court with our common pleas court and it died, too.

We have been trying to make tremendous strides to serve the people of Philadelphia in the judicial system and we have done it in this article. You did it for me. You people from Schuylkill, Lackawanna, Wayne and Beaver Counties, you who were strangers to me, did it for me.

I am going to count on that continued friendship that we can do something constructive for our State and for my city and for our towns in this Commonwealth.

I ask you to continue to support this judiciary article as written and vote this amendment down.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I dislike disagreeing with the gentleman from Philadelphia. He is in politics in Philadelphia. He is a very decent human being. I learned that about him since he has been here. He certainly knows more about Philadelphia than I ever shall. But I, perforce, must disagree with him as I have disagreed with those who spoke for the people of Allegheny County. I do not think he knows what is best for Philadelphia any more than those of us from Allegheny know what is best for Allegheny.

I speak again in defense of the proposition that the people know what is best for themselves and, given an opportunity to choose, they will choose what is best for themselves. I submit that this is a basic proposition of the form of government to which we are dedicated and the philosophy of government upon which it is structured.

I do have a great deal of faith in the people of Philadelphia. I have been told of the corruption in the magisterial system in the City of Philadelphia. I do not know it first hand, but I have heard of it. If it exists, as it very well may, then it must be gotten rid of, but, unlike the last speaker, I believe the people of Philadelphia are aware of this corruption, as aware of it as he is, and I believe that, if given the choice, they will get rid of it. I support again the proposition that they shall be given that choice, that they shall be treated precisely the same as the rest of the citizens of the Commonwealth, in no way different from the rest of the citizens of the Commonwealth. I do not subscribe to the proposition that corruption is so rampant in the City of Philadelphia that the people cannot eradicate it, that it must be done for them.

I do not subscribe to that proposition any place in the continental United States, or beyond. That is part of the problem that we are facing in the Far East, that many of us do not now recognize that the people of the world have decided that they will make decisions for themselves, and there are people in high government positions who do not yet know that.

I say here that we should recognize that proposition and be governed by it. It is very easy for those of us who have had the advantage of training, and education, and position, and status, and money, to stand here and say we know what is best for these poor people, these poor beleaguered, these poor bedeviled individuals, who cannot decide for themselves. We betray our own belief in democracy if we have this philosophy.

This is the theory of kingship, not democracy. This is a theory of dictatorship, not democracy. Of course, the people may decide differently from what we believe is right for them, but, if you believe in the democratic principle, you believe in giving the people the right to make this choice. I firmly believe the people of this Commonwealth are sufficiently intelligent and well-informed to make this choice and I do not think the people of Philadelphia are less intelligent, or less informed, or less interested in their own welfare, than the people across the rest of the State. Therefore, I rise in support of the amendment.

Let us treat all the citizens of this Commonwealth alike. Let us give the people of Philadelphia the same choice as we give the rest of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Let us support this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. Mr. President, all I will say at the moment, in view of what has happened, is that I have been ready ever since this Convention opened to vote to abolish the justice of the peace system throughout the Commonwealth, but, as a member of the committee of the judiciary article, I believe half a loaf is better than no bread, and we have been ready to take improvement all down the line where we could get it.

The strange thing to me is that this has not come up earlier. I would be inclined to condemn Mr. Irvis. If he had these views, why has he not presented them earlier? The same with Mr. Rappaport.

However, when I apply that logic, I must apply it to myself. Why did I not do it earlier? Oh, maybe because we are all too timid to approach a difficult subject. I am reminded, as I think of the justice of the peace system, of the childhood rhyme, "Half a dozen tailors went to fight a snail, The best man among them dare not touch its tail."

We have been much more frightened about the justices of the peace then we have a right to be. Here they are, only one of four of them going to be retained, and yet they are the group that have, more than any other, controlled the course of events in this Commonwealth.

I will not say anything more, except I am going to oppose this amendment because I take half a loaf instead of no bread. I would vote for abolishing it all over the State, we may not get it, so I will take the half loaf right here and now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Keller.

DELEGATE J. W. KELLER. Mr. President, I think Delegate Jirolanio made a very excellent point when he rose to speak a few minutes ago. He pointed out there had been no prosecutions, no scandal in Allegheny County. I think the same point is equally applicable here.

There has been a dreadful scandal in Philadelphia. This last and most recent uproar was certainly not the first. This is something that the people of Philadelphia have been living with, and why, I do not know. I am not from Philadelphia nor Allegheny County, but I say there must be a growing cancer in the City of Philadelphia's judicial system.

Therefore, I will oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment.

I speak as a delegate from Philadelphia and I was sent here as a delegate from Philadelphia, but I sit in this room as a delegate prepared to write a constitution for all of Pennsylvania and not just for Philadelphia.

Let there be no mistake that this vote we are about to take is an important vote. It will establish the principle, in my opinion, as to whether we are prepared to write a constitution here today, and next week, and the next week, which is for all of Pennsylvania or just for parts of Pennsylvania.

I am in favor of reform of the minor judiciary in Philadelphia, but I believe that if we are given the system that the rest of the State is given, we can do so in Philadelphia. I do not think we need special justice, whether it be better justice or worse justice, in Philadelphia. I think we are entitled to the same justice in Philadelphia that the rest of the State is entitled to.

Therefore, I think this very important principle upon which we are now about to vote is quite simply: Are we to deal across the State in a like manner, or are we to have specialized constitutional provisions for special parts of the State?

I support this amendment and urge your vote in behalf of it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Reynolds.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. Mr. President, I rise to oppose this amendment.

I am a living example of what the magistrates should be and have been in Philadelphia because I served six years as a magistrate. I do not subscribe to some of the theory that all good is in lawyers and all bad is in laymen, whether it be in the courts or out of the courts. I believe that the people of Philadelphia have given us a mandate to come here to change the minor judiciary in the City of Philadelphia. I do not think they sent us here to send them word back what they should do in a vote in the county.

If that were true, we would not need to spend all the State's money and all the time we have been here just to tell Philadelphia, and Allegheny and all the other counties what they should do back home. I believe we are here to legislate for the whole State. Mr. Irvis says that he does not know what is best for Allegheny County. I believe that the City of Philadelphia has told us what they think is best for Philadelphia, and we have come here to get the help of the entire State to eradicate something that we know has been bad.

I do not think it is because of non-lawyers. I want to make that simple and clear. I think a bad lawyer-judge is just as bad as a bad non-lawyer-judge, and I do not think that you can get Christianity or righteousness because you have a legal degree. I think an educated and bad lawyer is worse than an ignorant layman, because he knows more about how to circumvent the law.

I heard this morning something about favors being asked of magistrates and JPs. In the six years that I was a magistrate I had more lawyers come and ask me not to do the right thing than I did laymen. Every morning the lawyers lined up to see me before I got in, and I told them this is not the way we dispense justice. I said "Come in and try your case and get it right." He would say, "Well, I will see somebody." I said "Go see them, then come back and see me because I will be gone."

I say to you that we in Philadelphia are here trying to eradicate a wrong. We come here with clean intentions to help to make Pennsylvania what it ought to be, and I can say to you, that if we send this back to the City of Philadelphia to vote on, we are going to lose this part of it when it comes to a vote.

In Philadelphia they expect us to give them something out of this Convention. They could have gone to the Legislature and asked for special privileges, or something. I subscribe to the theory that we ought to stand up and be men and women here and be counted, let us vote this amendment down and do what we have been talking about in this Judiciary Committee for the last two months. We have talked about it, we have come up with it, we have done the best we could, and I will stand on the merits of it.

Let us vote this down and go and tell the people of Pennsylvania that this has been a real Convention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bashoff.

DELEGATE BASHOFF. Mr. President, Delegate Julian King has a similar amendment to that of Delegate Huggins and he has asked me to make a statement on this.

Mr. President, the purpose of this amendment is to allow the City and County of Philadelphia to do that which the remainder of the Commonwealth has been given the opportunity to do by this committee proposal, that is, to exercise a choice concerning whether or not the people of Philadelphia wish to have community courts or retain the present system as it presently exists.

I cannot believe that I, as an elected delegate, can say or sanction any proposal which implies that the people of Philadelphia cannot determine whether they want magistrates or justices of the peace to be lay people or learned in the law. It would be arrogance to say that they are not equipped mentally to make a choice. If the system needs changing, let the people say so by local option.

Moreover, the question of abolishing magistrates in Philadelphia County was not formally dealt with in committee and comes in the proposal as a non-debated item. I might add, Mr. President, that Delegate King is a member, as am I, of the Judiciary Committee.

I understand further, Mr. President, that there are seven amendments pending of a similar nature and that a vote of "yes" on this amendment will eliminate four of those amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Roberts.

DELEGATE ROBERTS. I feel this has been adequately discussed and I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

You will have an opportunity to close.

All right, Delegate Cain, he will yield to you.

DELEGATE CAIN. It is difficult for me to believe after all of the meetings that the Judiciary Committee held—and I understand that Delegate Scranton kept this Committee in too many nights and many early mornings—that this matter was not fully discussed in the Committee itself.

I cannot believe it was not given a thorough study and I think the people who come in with this proposal at this time should have been there, should have expressed themselves at that particular time, so we would not have this continuous debate on the floor.

I am in opposition to this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Aberman.

DELEGATE ABERMAN. In reference to the remarks of the last speaker, I want it clearly understood there was testimony in front of the subcommittee on Proposal 1204 which spoke in favor of a unified court system for the entire Commonwealth of Pennsylvania without an exception for Philadelphia. That position has been made clear from as late as the latter part of December.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I will now recognize Delegate Huggins. As heretofore, when we have the closing speaker sum up, who is the proposer of the amendment, the question comes automatically and the Chair cannot permit anyone else to speak.

DELEGATE HUGGINS. Mr. President, some of our young people today have a saying which they use quite a lot. They use it everywhere. They look at life like it is, and life like it is, is not always as pretty as we paint it in our mind's eye or even from our experience.

I feel that this amendment must be passed for the basic reason that people still have the right to change life like it is.

I have great respect for political people, I have great respect for those in the Legislature, I have great respect for any man who demands authority and support from his people in a local area, but I do not feel and I have never believed that any phase of governmental life, be it the courts or that which we find in Harrisburg, is to be controlled by a couple, or one, or two, at the expedience of other people. I do not care how secure it is, and this is like it is, is it not?

What we are voting on right now is what we talked about in Pittsburgh and Allegheny County. What we are talking about here is the way it is in Philadelphia. Are we going to demand a housecleaning, and a unification and a solidity in our court system, or are we going to maintain individual little things all over the place and say this is the way it is. If they cannot clean house, we better do it for them. If that is the way it is, we really cheated this Convention, my friends.

Let us vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question is—I will now unlock the voting machine—will the Convention agree to the Huggins Amendment?

Those voting "yea" vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Huggins?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—57

Aberman	Gerber	Murray	Scarlett
Aurentz	Gouger	O'Donnell	Shapiro
Baldus	Henderson	Orbin	Sharp
Bashoff	Hocker	Pelletier	Shettig
Benfield	Hook	Percey	Shrager
Brown	Hostetler	Popil	Silverman
Caputo	Huggins	Prendergast	Solomon
Conley	Irvis	Rappaport	Sprogell
Cosetti	Kelly	Rea	Stout
Dumbauld	Laputka	Redick	Swope
Fay	Mattioni	Roberts	Tate
Feather	Michael	Ruth	Thornburgh
Filson	Michener	Sahli	Tully
Fineman	Miller, D.	Scales	Welch
Gabreski

NAYS—84

Allison	Clinger	Hirnes	Otto
Amsterdam	Corey	Horne	Pasquerilla
Bagenstose	Cortese	Jirolanio	Pott
Baldrige	Croop	Johnson	Powell
Baldwin	Curran	Kauffman	Reynolds
Banes	Dailey	Keller, J.	Richter
Barron	Desmond	Krill	Rovner
Barry	Devlin	Leach	Scranton
Benedict	Erwin	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Bloom	Fagan	Leinbach	Shively
Braham	Fawcett	Leonard	Strickler
Brennan	Fleming	Levin	Stroup
Broderick	Fohl	Mangery	Thomson
Buck	Forster	Markley	Tomascik
Bunting	Goldstein	McGeary	Waldron
Burkholder	Gray	Meyer	Warman
Butera	Griffith	Moorhead	Westerberg
Cain	Hannum	More	Whittum
Caron	Harding	Morton	Wilcox
Casey	Hatter	Nelson	Woodring
Clark	Heyburn	Orban	Woodside

NOT VOTING—22

Camardella	Goldman	Manderino	Quiles
Cunningham	Keller, M.	McGlynn	Scott
Donaldson	King	Miller, R.	Shoemaker
Donolow	Kline	Musselman	Van Sant
Fortney	Lane	Pechan	Wilmarth
Gehrlein	Lee, K.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

MIFFLIN COUNTY HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS WELCOMED

DELEGATE BARRON. I am pleased to advise the Convention, if I have the privilege, Mr. President, that we have with us today 50 selected senior high school students from the four high schools of Mifflin County who are here as my guests and guests of the Convention today.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If they will stand, I am sure we will be happy to give them our usual cordial greeting and welcome.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Fleming.

DELEGATE FLEMING. Mr. President, I, too, rise to a point of personal privilege.

I would like the record to show that I am in attendance. I did not get here until 10:00 o'clock, but I am here.

Also, if I am in order, I would like to ask for a leave of absence for Delegate Donaldson from Allegheny County, who is ill at his home. He was scheduled to fly in with me this morning and he couldn't leave his house.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am happy to advise Delegate Fleming that he has been marked present and that the leave of absence for Delegate Donaldson has been approved.

Be at ease until we get amendment process taken care of.

REMARKS BY DELEGATE SCRANTON

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. If the delegates would sit down, I would like to give them about two minutes of encouragement.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very good. We need some encouragement. I do not know whether two minutes will be sufficient.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, may I just speak to you briefly about where you are and where you are going.

All of us who have for the last two and a half months been on the Judiciary Committee have seen this happen once. We went all through almost exactly what you people are going through in kaleidoscopic time. You will not believe that, but it is true. You are doing in a couple of days what happened for at least 10 days in the Judiciary Committee, every day and almost every night.

Now, in this whole article there are three main things:

One is the unified judicial system;

The second is the problem of the minor judiciary;

The third is the selection of judges.

These are the three hurdles, these are the three problem children, these are the kernels of the whole article. Despite the fact that you now have an obnoxious number of amendments—and I sincerely hope that some of you will think before you keep putting them in—you have already passed the unified judicial system. The overwhelming majority of you, time and time again, have spoken in favor of it on amendment, after amendment, after amendment. You are now in the process of going over the second hurdle, which is the matter of what you do about the minor judiciary, and you are almost at the end of that. You discussed it in many various ways having to do with various judicial districts, and parts of the State, and all the rest of it. We did all this, too.

Now, the third major hurdle is not yet before you. It is the next one. It is the most contentious and the most difficult of all.

After that you are home. So far we have only five amendments on the rest of the thing. I am sure some of you will think of some more, but at the moment there are only five. All I am trying to say to you is that if you will be as patient as the 42 members of the Judiciary Committee were who went through all of this, you are now over hurdle one; you are almost over hurdle two; and you have one big one yet to go. When that is through, you can raise a red, white and blue flag.

TATE AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 1), page 1, lines 11 and 12 by striking out "municipal and traffic courts in the City of Philadelphia,"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, lines 29 and 30 by striking out "; Philadelphia Municipal Court and Traffic Court"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, lines 21 to 24 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: (c) In the City of Philadelphia, there shall be a community court. The divisions, number of judges and jurisdiction of which shall be as provided by law.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 26 by striking out ", other than the City of Philadelphia,"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 18 and 19 by striking out "except the judges of the traffic court in Philadelphia." and inserting a period

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 7, lines 2 to 4 by striking out "except that the present judge of the traffic" in line 2, all of line 3 and "Governor." in line 4 and inserting a period

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 9, lines 22 and 23 by striking out "municipal court and traffic court judges in the City of Philadelphia and of"

Amend Schedule, page 15, lines 11 and 12 by striking out "the City of Philadelphia and"

Amend Schedule (Sec. 4), page 16, lines 7 and 8 by striking out ", except as hereinafter provided for the City of Philadelphia,"

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 21, line 27 by striking out "Twenty-two" and inserting: twenty-eight

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 21, line 28 by striking out "municipal" and inserting: community

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 21, lines 29 and 30 by striking out all of line 29 and "shall become judges of the traffic court, and" in line 30

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 22, lines 21 to 30; page 23, lines 1 to 13 by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 14 by striking out "(j)" and inserting: (h)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 17 by striking out "(k)" and inserting: (i)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 20 by striking out "(l)" and inserting: (j)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 23 by striking out "(m)" and inserting: (k)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 25 by striking out "(n)" and inserting: (l)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, lines 26 and 27 by striking out "except those cases assigned by this schedule to the municipal court and to the traffic court." and inserting a period

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 24, line 9 by striking out "(o)" and inserting: (m)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 24, line 14 by striking out "(p)" and inserting: (n)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 24, lines 27 to 30; page 25, lines 1 to 30; page 26, lines 1 to 5 by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, line 6 by striking out "(s)" and inserting: (o)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, line 12 by striking out "(t)" and inserting: (p)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, lines 14 to 18 by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, line 19 by striking out "(v)" and inserting: (q)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, line 26 by striking out "(w)" and inserting: (r)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 27, line 1 by striking out "(x)" and inserting: (s)

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 27, line 6 by striking out "(y)" and inserting: (t)

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

AMENDMENT LAID ON TABLE

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I move that the Tate amendment be laid on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

TATE SECOND AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I submit a second amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, lines 29 and 30, by striking out "; Philadelphia Municipal Court and Traffic Court. —(a) In" and inserting: .—In all

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30; page 3, lines 1 and 2, by striking out "other than the" in line 30, page 2; all of line 1 and "thereon have adopted a community court," in line 2, page 3

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, lines 5 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, lines 25 to 30; page 4, lines 1 to 8, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 15, by striking out "(a)"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 15 and 16, by striking out "justices, judges, and justices of the peace" and inserting: justices and judges

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 18 and 19, by striking out "except the judges of the traffic court in Philadelphia"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 22, by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 25 to 29, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 4, line 30, by removing the comma after "Justices" and inserting: and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 4, line 30; page 5, line 1, by striking out "and" in line 30, page 4 and "Justices of the Peace" in line 1, page 5

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, lines 25 to 30, by striking out all of lines 25 to 29 and "(g)" in line 30 and inserting: (f)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 7, lines 2 to 4, by striking out "except that the present judge of the traffic" in line 2, all of line 3 and "Governor" in line 4

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, line 11, by removing the comma after "Justices" and inserting: and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, lines 11 and 12, by striking out "and Justices of the Peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 9, lines 22 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 9, line 25, by removing the comma after "Justices" and inserting: and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 9, lines 26 and 27, by striking out all of line 26 and "of the peace" in line 27 and inserting: .—(a) Justices and judges

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 1, by removing the comma after "Justices" and inserting: and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 1 by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 2, by removing the comma after "justices" and inserting: and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 3, by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 5, by removing the comma after "justice" and inserting: or

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 5, by striking out "or justice of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 14), page 10, line 23, by striking out "justice, judge or justice of the peace" and inserting: justice or judge

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 11, line 3, by striking out "Justices, Judges and Justices of Peace" and inserting: Justices and Judges

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, lines 13 to 15, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, line 16, by striking out all of said line and inserting: (d) Any justice or judge who shall

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, line 22, by striking out "(f)" and inserting: (e)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, line 25, by striking out "(g)" and inserting: (f)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 16), page 13, lines 27 and 28, by striking out "justice, judge or justice of the peace" and inserting: justice or judge

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 3, by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 5, by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 14, by striking out "and justices of the peace"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 22, by striking out "or justice of the peace"

Amend Schedule, (Sec. 6), page 16, line 21, by inserting after "In": all

Amend Schedule (Sec. 6), page 16, lines 21 and 22, by striking out "which establish community courts"

Amend Schedule (Sec. 11), page 18, line 17, by striking out "no" and inserting: the

Amend Schedule (Sec. 11), page 18, lines 19 to 21, by striking out "any officer" in line 19, all of lines 20 and 21 and inserting: the community court.

Amend Schedule (Sec. 12), page 18, lines 22 to 30; page 19, lines 1 to 30; page 20, lines 1 to 22 by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 21, lines 27 to 30; page 22, line 1, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 22, lines 21 to 30; page 23, lines 1 to 13, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 16, by striking out "municipal court," and inserting: community court.

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 19, by striking out "municipal court." and inserting: community court.

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 23, line 27, by striking out "schedule to the municipal court and to the traffic court." and inserting: Constitution to community courts.

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 24, lines 27 to 30; page 25, lines 1 to 30; page 26, lines 1 to 5, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 14), page 26, lines 14 to 18, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Schedule (Sec. 19), page 29, lines 17 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate for a statement in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, let all the delegates be sure that the amendment we are now talking about is the four-page Tate amendment. It was the three-page amendment that we just tabled.

This amendment, Mr. President, is co-sponsored by a number of fellow delegates and because of the time pressures under which we are operating the distributed copies were not able to have on them the signatures of the co-sponsors, so, with your indulgence, I will read the last names of the delegates co-sponsoring this amendment. They are Delegates Irvis, Solomon, Thornburgh, Huggins, O'Donnell, Rea, Laputka, Rappaport, Casey, Buck, Pelletier, Aberman, Michener, Percey, Gabreski, Clinger, Braham, Welsh, Silverman, Shrager, Hook, Bunting and Swope. Delegate Fineman is indicating he would like to also be a co-sponsor of this. I am sure there are many others. I hope those who wish to associate themselves with this will do so from the floor.

Mr. President, quite simply, this amendment would mandate community courts as set forth in the committee proposal across the State.

I think it is time we separate the mice from the men. I am not sure which are the mice and which are the men. Those who came here prepared to accept the responsibility to decide how some of the basic essentials of Pennsylvania's Constitution should be set forth, I think, are now given the opportunity to say that the minor judiciary needs radical change and that we should so state that radical change for the entire State across the State without any difference between Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Dauphin, or any of the other 64 counties. Excuse me, I did not mean to elevate Pittsburgh to a county, I should have said Allegheny.

Quite simply, this gives all delegates an opportunity to vote for a mandated community court just as set forth in the committee proposal as to the operation of the community courts across the State. I think we have heard a great deal about what the community courts are all about and the pros and cons of the present minor judiciary as it exists in various parts of the State.

I do not wish to belabor the point, except to urge your support for this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard on this?

Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I would be pleased, Mr. President, if I could interrogate the sponsor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation. You may proceed with your question.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, this is rather a voluminous amendment and I am a little bit confused, as I suppose some others may be. I would like to know what effect this amendment has on those sections of the committee proposal which outline the present or, rather, the revised JP system, that is, these districts and so forth. What effect would this amendment have on this revised system?

DELEGATE TATE. That revised system would no longer be in the committee proposal.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Would the option to go backwards to the JP system still be in the proposal?

DELEGATE TATE. I will have to ask the advice of counsel on that. This is a complicated amendment in its technicalities and I would like to ask counsel to answer that. My impression is that that opportunity would not be in the proposal, but I would like the opinion of counsel.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I am happy to wait until we get that answer if it is forthcoming.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. In the meantime, several delegates have asked me what the committee position on this is. I think the committee position is quite clear from the documents that the committee brought in. They felt that the magistrate system should be handled on an optional basis. The majority of them did, except in the City of Philadelphia, where they thought they should be eliminated and replaced by the municipal court and the traffic court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would Delegate Shoemaker yield until we have had an answer to the question supplied to Delegate Tate, and then we will recognize both of you again.

So we will not have to hold up the proceedings, would you mind yielding?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Not at all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair will recognize Delegate Clinger.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the sponsor of this amendment.

Mr. President I am very attracted to this amendment, but, coming from a rural area, I do have some problems with the mechanics of this and how it will work particularly in the rural areas. The problem, of course, is one of geography, that is, we have large areas which would have to be serviced by this community court system. Would it be the gentleman's thought that there would be one community court in each judicial district?

DELEGATE TATE. I believe, Mr. President, that is the impact of the committee proposal, insofar as it is now proposed. It is an optional system, yes, sir.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Would it also be the delegate's feeling that this could be, in the old-time fashion, a circuit riding court? In other words, would the courts sit in various parts of the judicial district?

DELEGATE TATE. I think this would be a very important aspect of this, and it is important not only in the rural areas, but in some of the metropolitan areas, too.

My understanding is that the community courts as established in the committee proposal would be able to do this, and in all probability would do this.

DELEGATE CLINGER. My final question is, one of the arguments in favor of the maintenance of the JP system, particularly in rural areas, is their closeness, their proximity to the people whom they are serving in a number of ways, advice and handling their various minor matters. As I understand it, would this proposal include the proposal which was included in Proposal No. 1,000, providing for commissioners to carry out these functions which JPs are now performing, in addition to their judicial functions?

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, the actual work of the commissioners is something with which I am personally not too familiar and that question was raised informally with me about five minutes ago. I have not had an opportunity to get an answer to it. I wonder if Mr. Thornburgh might speak with regard to that.

I yield to Mr. Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Would Delegate Clinger repeat the question?

DELEGATE CLINGER. Yes, Mr. President. I am interested in whether or not this amendment would include the concept of commissioners as a part of the community court in the judicial district who would be able to perform many of the functions which the JPs are now performing of a non-judicial nature in servicing the people in their localities.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I can speak only to the concept of Proposal No. 1,000, which I introduced and which covered this problem. Whether or not the language here needs to be adjusted is one thing.

The concept of Proposal No. 1,000 was the following, that there should be a community court within each judicial district, that it should operate two divisions, so that it would not be a centralized court within the district in which everyone would have to travel, but instead would be geographically located so that it would be acceptable through our modern means of highways and transportation, so that persons would not have to travel farther, in fact, than they do to the present minor judiciary. These divisions could be located in the office of the existing municipal building and in other structures throughout the particular judicial district.

In addition, Proposal No. 1,000 spoke of the concepts of commissioners who would be an adjunct to the community court judges. They would, in effect and quite possibly in action, be performing the functions, the non-judicial functions, if you will, that the present aldermen, justices of the peace and magistrates perform. The thought was that there are, indeed, many non-judicial functions, salutary functions, performed by the present aldermen, justices of the peace and magistrates. We have heard them described in detail by those people who believe fervently in the present minor judiciary system. No one quarrels with the advocacies of these functions. It is needed at the community level, such things as straightening out domestic quarrels, the idea of being able to avoid litigation, but the idea of the community court is to deal with the consideration of judicial problems, of cases, matters of law, to give the community court judges trained in the law, that function. The commissioners the adjunct would be in all probability for an extended period of time be those persons who now perform the homey, if you will, functions that have been described to us.

Does that answer your question, Delegate Clinger?

DELEGATE CLINGER. Yes, Mr. President.

So, as I understand it, then, all we would be removing, in effect, would be the judicial functions. The other functions that a JP very probably performs in services to his area would still be continued to be performed by the commissioners and only the judicial functions would be removed from him, is that correct?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. That would be the concept which I would support and would urge the delegates to support.

DELEGATE CLINGER. Certainly I would rise in favor of this amendment, because I feel that it would have a very beneficial effect on the administration of justice throughout the State, and I can see that many of the fears that I had in terms of how the system would work in a rural area will be answered. If we have this two-prong attack, we maintain the advantages of the JP on the local level, and yet remove the judicial functions from him.

MOTION TO TABLE SECOND TATE AMENDMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, you have before you an amendment which appears to be what we would call a group of bills. We have heard a lot of arguments pro and con on the justices of the peace. I would say that 99 per cent of us here have made up our minds as to just exactly how we are going to vote, so, in order to save time, and so the work can proceed smoothly, I now move to lay this amendment on the table.

DELEGATE BARRON. I second that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Jirolanio, seconded by Delegate Barron, that the Tate amendment now under discussion be laid on the table.

DELEVATE IRVIS. Mr. President—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I am opposed to the motion to table.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I ask that I be recognized.

This motion is not debatable, and I am sure that the learned gentleman at the microphone knows that rule.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you be at ease for one second while the Parliamentarian gives the Chair a ruling?

Pursuant to our rules, Rule 20, a motion to lay on a table is not debatable, cannot be amended and requires a majority of the vote of the delegates present, so I would say that it is not debatable.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, may I point out to the President that I sought the floor before the second of the motion was made, and that was the precise reason for my calling the attention of the President to me.

My intention was to speak before there was a seconding of the motion, therefore, before there was a motion on the floor.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair can only say he regrets he did not see you, but he looked for the seconder, and the seconder was Delegate Barron. The Chair has difficulty recalling Delegate Barron's name. It was seconded practically immediately.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I do not think I have to say any more. I think the Convention knows what is behind this move, anyway.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. This is not debatable. We are going to have to put it to a vote.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I did not rise to debate this motion. I came down here because this is a spot I am accustomed to being in, and I wanted to see how it felt. I just want to add my voice to Mr. Irvis' in urging the defeat of the motion to table.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. This is out of order.

We are going to open up the machine and vote on the motion.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I think we are entitled to an explanation of what is involved in laying the motion on the table. I understand that practically kills it for this Convention. Will the Parliamentarian tell us what is the significance of laying the motion on the table?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised that it stays on the table until it is called up.

Now we will unlock the voting machines, and the question is on the motion placed by Delegate Jirolanio and seconded by Delegate Barron, that the Tate amendment be placed on the table.

All those voting "yea" will vote to put the Tate amendment on the table. Those voting "nay" will vote to reject the motion.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, when you anounce the vote, I should like to be recognized.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the motion to table the second Tate amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—61

Allison	Dumbauld	Keller, J.	Powell
Baldwin	Erwin	Krill	Reynolds
Barron	Fagan	Leach	Richter
Bashoff	Filson	Lee, K.	Rovner
Benedict	Fleming	Lee, L.	Sahli
Burkholder	Fohl	Leonard	Scales
Butera	Forster	Mangery	Scarlett
Cain	Goldstein	Markley	Shoemaker
Conley	Gouger	Meyer	Stroup
Corey	Hatter	More	Thomson
Cortese	Heyburn	Nelson	Tully
Croop	Himes	Orban	Van Sant
Cunningham	Horne	Orbin	Westerberg
Curran	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Desmond	Kauffman	Pott	Wilcox
Devlin

NAYS—74

Aberman	Casetti	Mattioni	Sebastian
Amsterdam	Dailey	McGeary	Shapiro
Aurentz	Fawcett	Michael	Sharp
Bagenstose	Feather	Michener	Shettig
Baldrige	Fineman	Miller, D.	Shively
Baldus	Gabreski	Moorhead	Shrager
Barry	Gerber	Morton	Silverman
Benfield	Griffith	Murray	Solomon
Bloom	Harding	O'Donnell	Sprogell
Braham	Henderson	Otto	Stout
Brennan	Hocker	Pelletier	Strickler
Broderick	Hook	Percey	Swope
Brown	Hostetler	Pupti	Tate
Bunting	Huggins	Prendergast	Thornburgh
Caputo	Irvis	Rappaport	Warman
Caron	Johnson	Rea	Welsh
Casey	Kelly	Roberts	Woodring
Clark	Laputka	Ruth	Woodside
Clinger	Leinbach

NOT VOTING—28

Banes	Gehrlein	Lane	Quiles
Buck	Goldman	Levin	Redick
Camardella	Gray	Manderino	Scott
Donaldson	Hannum	McGlynn	Scranton
Donolow	Keller, M.	Miller, R.	Tomascik
Fay	King	Musselman	Waldron
Fortney	Kline	Pechan	Wilmarth

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the motion to table the second Tate Amendment was not agreed to.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, I now rise to speak in favor of the Tate amendment.

There are times, Mr. President, at this Convention, and I am sure you agree with me, when a man must take his courage in his hands, and this is one of the times. There is not any cave, there is not any hiding place and there is not any parliamentary defense. Those of us who have said we are here elected to represent the people and to draft a basic document for the benefit of the people must here and now this morning face that challenge. Those of us who say they are opposed to the JP system, that it is inherently wrong, that it is corrupt and corrupting, that it must be changed, must here and now put their money where their mouth is.

Those of us that say that community courts should be established in this Commonwealth now have the opportunity to say yes. Let us establish them. Those of us, like this speaker at the microphone, who have been yelling for fair and equitable treatment of all the people of the Commonwealth, must now put our votes where our voices were.

I am prepared to do that. I think from the results of the motion to lay on the table, perhaps the majority of you are also prepared to do it.

I say here before the vote, I do not castigate anyone who votes in the negative. I do not challenge anyone's motive who is against it. Honest men may disagree about whether or not the JP system is inherently wrong and ought to be revised or eliminated. Honest men may disagree as to whether the community courts system is good, or bad, or ought to be instigated at all, but at least here and now honest men and women will say what they believe and will vote what they believe.

This motion purely and simply says that the community court is a good idea, then let us have it for all the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and let us say "yea" now to it or "nay" now to it, and let that be the end of it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. President, I must apologize, possibly for interjecting the opinion of a layman into what seems to be a lawyer's province. I am not a barrister, I am not an attorney, I am not even a lawyer, but I do have some opinions on this particular subject, and I have spent considerable time on this subject as a member of the Scranton Commission on constitutional amendments.

At that time this particular subject was studied and discussed for at least two full days and I might say at that time one of the rather interesting developments was after the testimony of the gentleman from Ohio—I do not recall his name—who gave us the statistics from the community courts system of Ohio. Projecting that into the Pennsylvania picture, we very definitely arrived at the figure that the community court system in the State of Pennsylvania would cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania an additional $32 million a year. This, I think, should be given due consideration by this Convention. There is no desire, there is no agitation, outside of Philadelphia for the establishment of community courts.

I personally cannot see any God-given authority, any God-given superiority to the attorney over the intelligent layman and the administration of justice at the local level. I think the office of the justice of the peace in rural Pennsylvania has justified itself for its continuation, and I believe that this Convention can and should safeguard the entire future of these convention proceedings, because, believe me, my friends, knowing the sentiments of rural Pennsylvania on this subject, I will predict that should community courts be inflicted upon all of Pennsylvania by this Convention, this Convention is automatically putting 150,000 to 200,000 votes down against the entire proceedings of this Convention. I say we should not run that risk.

I say right now, gentlemen, support your committee on their recommendations which have been clearly discussed and, to my knowledge, approved practically for all of Pennsylvania. I think it is a safe thing to do, and I think this particular amendment should be overwhelmingly defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I perceive there is a cloud of inconsistency pervading the atmosphere of this assembly. On one hand we contend that the voice of the people shall be heard; on the other hand, we now attempt to mandate a community court throughout the entire Commonwealth. This I cannot subscribe to.

Already this delegation has spoken with relation to the City of Pittsburgh and Allegheny County, with relation to Philadelphia County, and that matter should now be settled and determined, but apparently it is not, for now we face an amendment which establishes community courts willy-nilly throughout the entire Commonwealth.

I call your attention, ladies and gentlemen of this Convention, to the excellent work of the Judiciary Committee, to the procedure by which eventually and possibly, if the electorate in the judicial districts so determines, they might have community courts. This is their choice.

In the interim time we now have in this marvelous work of our Judiciary Committee a method whereby the falls and evils which are the instruments of errors on their face will and can be corrected, and I maintain that opportunity should be given to the minor judiciary, particularly in the 65 counties of Pennsylvania to which this amendment now primarily applies.

I ask you, ladies and gentlemen, for consistency, for the right of the people to speak eventually one way or the other, to vote down this amendment.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. In the course of the Judiciary Committee work, we always found that when something new came up we had to figure out precisely where we were.

I would like to know the following three things:

If this amendment passes, first of all, does the Redick amendment still stand, which is that the people can at some later date in any given five-year period determine in their judicial district that they will not have the community court?

Secondly, what does it do to Allegheny County after the actions that have been so far taken there?

Three, what does it do to Philadelphia County and the propositions in the judicial article concerning the municipal courts, the traffic court and the other scheduled items?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You have asked three questions of the Chair. Those three questions, I think, the Chair would have to refer to counsel and would have to rely on counsel for the Judiciary Committee and counsel for the Convention. I can say that we will be happy to have counsel give you an answer to those three questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Leach.

DELEGATE LEACH. While the learned counsel is producing the answers to the three questions proposed by Delegate Scranton, may I speak on the subject?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may. I think it would be in the interest of saving time.

DELEGATE LEACH. Mr. President, there may or may may not have been some reason for the names of the sponsors of this bill not appearing on it when it came out, but as I listen to them being read off, and my memory may be faulty, I have reason to believe that they are all members of the bar. Earlier today one of those members set up a classification, and I believe that was, are we men or are we mice? I do not know about the rest of you, but us country boys do not like to be called mice. Rats.

In the action of this Convention today we have substantially supported the recommendations of the other three committees, and I say to you and the other delegates that if the other country folks resent as much as I do being placed in the mouse category, we forget the subject and go back and follow the advice of our committee, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I am informed that at least three or four of the sponsors are not lawyers, and perhaps we do know what the problems are in the administration of justice. I do not pretend to be as expertise as some of the country lawyers here as to what goes on in the country. Three or four of my friends and neighbors from Philadelphia got up on this floor about 10 minutes ago and cried for reform. Of course, they want to keep the 600 jobs in the traffic court. We will not talk about that, but they cried for reform. They want to get rid of this bad system.

Well, I challenge them now. Let us get rid of it for the whole State.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, I along with Delegate Leach represent, perhaps, a parochial view, but I am not so young or so naive that I recognize that matters of principle are not governed by parochialism. Mr. President, I have a feeling here in what I have heard this morning that some Machiavellian force has been at work in this group.

I have been a member of the Judiciary Committee these many weeks and many days and have heard this subject discussed completely and fully. I have deliberately not inserted myself as any portion of the prey here between the two titans, the tiger of Philadelphia and the lion of Pittsburgh, feeling that their knowledge of their individual problems would contribute more wisdom than my poor ability to do so.

However, in this Convention in the hearings and in the deliberations in the Judiciary Committee, we of the parochial areas were given to believe, particularly by the City of Philadelphia, that Philadelphia was an area apart to itself because of its problems. We heard the report of the esteemed District Attorney of Philadelphia, and that there were evils in Philadelphia to be eradicated and, therefore, Philadelphia deserves special treatment.

As occurred yesterday, the County of Allegheny, through the Rea amendment, stated that they, too, in common with Philadelphia have problems that require change.

So, consequently, we have now come almost to a full circle, where we have heard delegates from the Philadelphia area state that Philadelphians were not to be considered second class citizens and that they should have the right to vote on their own destinies. We heard the spirit vehemently expressed of the right of the people to decide their own destinies insofar as their intimate contact with justice should not be bargained away by a mandate, and yet I am surprised that those very persons, Mr. President, who so loudly espoused this principle, now wish to impose a mandate upon the rural areas. Mr. President, may I assure you, as the people of Philadelphia are not second class citizens, we of the rural areas are not second class citizens, and we deserve the right to determine our destinies likewise insofar as our judiciary system is concerned.

Mr. President, to be factual, I wonder how much of the present amendment that is on this floor has been conceived out of good thinking and how much out of anger. This deliberate body in a very few minutes is going to decide a very important question, and yet in the interrogations I heard on this floor, I am not satisfied that, No. 1, the Redick amendment will apply, nor, likewise, have I heard the slightest indication on this floor as to what the cost of this mandated system might be or how it will work, or even if it is necessary or good for the people of Potter County, or Forest County, or my own beloved Centre County. I have not heard any details from this floor as to how this will be implemented, as to how it shall be funded, and I have not heard the slightest indication of what the total cost might be.

It would seem to me, Mr. President, that mandating is a word that is easily said, but with dire and consequential implications. It is so easy to state that we cannot be ominiscent and mandate what is best, but I dare say as my good friend, Delegate Irvis has said, we are now placing ourselves in the position of deciding what is best for the entire State of Pennsylvania, not just what is best for the people of Pennsylvania.

We have just completed work on a local government article in which section after section we were content to entrust to the people of Pennsylvania the right to govern themselves, that we were content to entrust the form of government and their choice of government, and yet now we will deny the same people that we entrusted the right to govern to decide those who shall administer their justice on the local and most personal level.

It would seem to me that we are being false to principle here if we support this amendment. It would seem to me that we are acting in haste if we support this amendment. It would seem to me, Mr. President, that we are not searching our souls to decide what is best for the people of Pennsylvania if we blindly vote aye for this amendment.

I, therefore, Mr. President, rise in opposition to it.

COUNSEL OPINION No. 32

Question: Is there an inconsistency in the provisions of Section 17(c) of Committee Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 20 (Judiciary Article) which confer upon the Supreme Court the power "to provide for assignment and reassignment of classes of actions or classes of appeals among the several courts as the needs of justice shall require"; but prohibit the court from altering "the jurisdiction of any court"?

Answer: Yes.

Discussion: The jurisdiction of a court has two connotations; jurisdiction over the parties and, more importantly, jurisdiction over the subject matter, or the classes of actions which the court can adjudicate. Strank v. Mercy Hospital of Johnstown, 376 Pa. 305 (1954); Greensburg School District Appeal, 403 Pa. 243 (1961); Simpson v. Simpson, 404 Pa. 247 (1961); McWilliams v. McCabe, 406 Pa. 644 (1962). The power to assign or reassign classes of actions among the several courts, therefore, must include the power to alter the subject matter jurisdiction of the courts.

Similarly, the jurisdiction of an appellate court refers to its jurisdiction over classes of appeals, Weinbach's Appeal, 316 Pa. 333 (1934); Kungsgaten, Inc. v. Philadelphia, 416 Pa. 352 (1965);

Jackson Appeal, 191 Pa. Super 455 (1960); Rowswell Appeal, 191 Pa. Super 473 (1960); and the power to assign and reassign classes of appeals also includes the power to alter the jurisdiction of appellate courts.

It is our opinion therefore that the grant of such power of assignment and reassignment on the one hand and prohibition thereof in the same paragraph are inconsistent.

MARVIN COMISKY
Counsel for the Constitutional Convention

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before the Chair recognizes the next delegate, there were three questions that were posed to the counsel for the Convention by Chairman Scranton, I believe, and I will read off the counsel's opinions.

The first question was in connection with the Redick Amendment, and the answer of counsel is the Redick Amendment will stand, but will be ineffective because the procedure for voting will have been deleted.

No. 2, as to Allegheny County, the community court would be mandatory.

No. 3, as to Philadelphia County, the community court would be mandatory and there would be no municipal or police court.

This is the opinion of counsel in connection with the questions that were asked by Chairman Scranton, which I would like counsel to give to the Judiciary Committee, since those answers were formulated by counsel for the Convention and counsel for the Judiciary Committee, and they are just directory in response to the questions.

The Chair is happy to recognize Delegate Powell.

DELEGATE POWELL. Mr. President, I am from Bucks County, and in Bucks County I happen to know, in general, that this proposal will cost the voters, if the county commissioners have to pay for it or in any way they have to pay for their county government or local government, over $1 million, which is two mills.

During the campaign while I was running for election I researched this, and I found out that this type of expense should be weighed against the type of courts we wanted, and was willing to come up here and take the referendum point of view in giving the people of local governments the opportunity to vote whether they wanted a community court or to maintain the JP system. One of the factors in determining this, in any vote, is to find out what the cost is. Is it going to cost more than we can expend?

In Bucks County it is going to cost more than $1 million, and, furthermore, my final point is that in this amendment produced by Delegate Tate it has not been determined what it will do. In the interrogation of Delegate Tate and Delegate Thornburgh, questions were asked Delegate Tate and Delegate Tate was unable to answer a number of them, and Delegate Thornburgh referred to a bill he put in, a proposal he put in, over two months ago.

For those reasons, No. 1, I do not think they know what this is going to do, and, No. 2, the cost is atrociously high. I oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scarlett, who has been standing for a long time.

DELEGATE SCARLETT. Mr. President, you may know this is the first time I have been on my feet to either favor or oppose an amendment. My fellow delegates; Delegate Sharp has said more eloquently than I can say my feeling as far as this amendment is concerned. I feel, coming from the northwest section of Pennsylvania, many times referred to as the forgotten section of Pennsylvania, that I have a clear mandate from the people of Erie County that they want to be able to vote on the kind of a court system that they should have in that community. Therefore, I would like to oppose this amendment and ask for the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Swope.

DELEGATE SWOPE. Mr. President, I desire to clarify my position on this whole series of amendments. Much has been said about our great national leaders of the past believing in the wisdom of the people to decide the questions for themselves. It was because of my own belief, conforming to the beliefs of the great leaders of the past, that the people are able to decide their own questions, that I have voted to permit the people of Pittsburgh, or Allegheny County, and of Philadelphia to decide for themselves. A great deal has been said here that we have a mandate to change, but it appears that the mandate to change was peculiarly held to mean only Philadelphia and Allegheny County. If it is good to have this system in those cities, it is good to have it in other cities.

I know the cities of Central Pennsylvania, and I assure you, Mr. President, that the discrepancies and the evils that have been painted here as attaching to the modern judiciary in the two greatest population centers of this State will attach to the modern judiciary in the smaller cities of this State in time, if not in degree.

Therefore, I hope that I am going to vote consistently on my position by supporting this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Wilcox.

DELEGATE WILCOX. Mr. President, I think it is time Potter County is heard from. I represent Potter County, in fact, I represent five counties. More than 40,000 voters sent me here to represent them. Three of the counties I represent are larger in area than the State of Rhode Island, each of those three. I do not think the people in downtown Philadelphia understand what this means in the country areas. I think you should give us the local option as everybody else.

I move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. There have been delegates standing and I know we are anxious for the question. Let us try to keep it short.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Benfield.

DELEGATE BENFIELD. Mr. President, since December 1st I have been on the floor opposed by attorneys. I am getting to the point that I am much like your President was last evening. I hope, Mr. President, you will forgive me for using your words. When he left last night, he said, "I don't think I am the pine on the top of the hill. I may be a shrub, but I know I'm bushed."

Well, that is just what I am, I am bushed.

I have received, and I am not exaggerating, several hundred letters. I have received petitions from people requesting that the magistrates be left as they are. Mr. President, I knew this was impossible, so we made changes, we reduced the number, we abolished the fee system. We have come and we have tried to reform, but I assure you that if we mandate this bill the vote on April 23rd will be "no."

You know, it all depends how we look at things. That is what makes the difference. We attorneys look at it, it may be a selfish way, anyway, getting back to looking at things differently is like a certain fellow who passed an antique shop. On the outside of the antique shop he saw a chair on which there was a price tag of $11. He grabs the chair, takes off the tag, carries it into the antique shop and says to the proprietor, "What is this chair worth?" The proprietor looked at it and he said, "Well, the seat is cracked, the legs are bad, $3.00." The fellow says, "I thought there was something wrong, you had it sitting on the outside marked $11."

Fellow delegates, let us look at this the way most of the people do in Pennsylvania. I am sure that all of you will want to oppose this amendment. I know just the simple reason of making changes is not the answer. If you think making changes, installing community courts is going to solve the problem, I ask you to think of one thing, and, if you never tried it before, do it right away before you vote. Go to a public restroom and try to dry your face in one of those warm air things, but that is the modern thing.

I am sure that after due consideration, you will all agree that we should oppose this bill.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. Mr. President, I would like to make just a brief statement of bipartisanship.

One delegate has already spoken from Centre County and I think everybody agrees it was very eloquent, although we happen to be of different parties but I would like to endorse him 100 per cent. I felt that the JPs needed improvement. I think the committee has given them very definite improvement and, therefore, I oppose the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, we have heard from the country boys and heard from the city boys. We of the suburbs of southeastern Pennsylvania have gone into this matter in great detail. I think it is rather interesting to note that in the 17th Senatorial District, when four delegates ran for this office, one had an open mind because he was not an attorney and he stated he was going to come here and hear the debate and make his decision as a gentleman. There were three attorneys, two stated that they were for the type of reform the Proposal No. 3 has produced. The fourth was for ripping out the justice of the peace system, a system that he did not know anything about. He was defeated. He was defeated because he did not know what he was talking about. He did not have the experience that those of us who practice law in the counties before the squires have, which is, that we know there are honest men and we know many of them work hard.

We also were aware that there were certain evils such as the fee system and Proposal No. 7 abrogated that. We also knew in certain areas there were too many, and Proposal No. 7 helps resolve that problem. We also knew many were insufficiently trained and Proposal No. 7 has made every effort to solve that problem.

To impose upon us, in our area, a system of justice which we do not want because we voted against the individual who said he wanted a community court, would be to defy the will of the people.

Proposal No. 7 goes one step further. It gives the people of each judicial district the opportunity to select their own system of justice in the minor court. If we here are to be consistent and follow the splendid lead of the Committee on Local Government which has given each municipality an opportunity to select how it should govern itself, then I think it is incumbent upon us to be fair and consistent here and permit each judicial district to determine what form of minor judiciary they want to administer justice in their area.

Finally, I would like to add one thing. Who is going to man the community courts? Certainly not a successful lawyer; he could not afford it. What you are going to find is either some young lad fresh out of law school who would like to be called judge for a while. Without the experiences of life and without the knowledge of the people in his community, his decisions may be legally correct, but they are certainly not going to be tempered with the humanity, kindness, compassion and understanding that our squires in our counties give today. What are you going to have on the other hand, an older lawyer who could not cut the mustard in the competitive field of the practice of law.

If you are going to turn out a system of justice that is tried and is true and is not evil and is not corrupt, for something that you do not know anything about, I submit, Mr. President, this is a mistake. This is not reform. Delegate Tate's and Delegate Thornburgh's amendments are certainly not reform. It is interesting to note from whence they come. They come from big cities, big law firms who do not know how we practice law out in the counties. Just as Philadelphia and Allegheny, and as Delegate Irvis said, should be able to select their own destiny, certainly we in the suburbs and we in the country should be able to select our own destiny. I think if we vote for this amendment, we are telling the people we do not trust them.

The people's courts have been successful. They have been manned by ladies and gentlemen. To abolish them for a system we do not know anything about is to throw asunder and do violence to a splended proposal conceived in the Committee. Let us give it an opportunity to work. I think it can work and I think most of you think it can work, so let us give the people a chance.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Casey.

DELEGATE CASEY. Mr. President, I will be brief.

I just want to say as a matter of record, the day before yesterday after I sat down someone physically removed the microphone that was next to my desk. I think someone was trying to tell me something, but I think that is going a little bit too far. I hope when I sit down today they do not remove the one I am speaking from right now.

This is an extremely difficult and personal issue for all of us. It would be far easier for each of us as individuals to let this one pass, to say nothing about it, and I am sure many of us here have been waiting for the day since the 1st of December when this issue would confront us, but I do not believe that this issue will go away. In some respects, it is the central issue of the Convention. It is the issue which is most on the minds of people from one end of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the other and, believe me, my fellow delegates, I do not rise to try to impose my will or my views upon any of you or even to suggest how you should vote on this issue.

I rise merely to make my own views a matter of record. I rise because on this issue I do not think I can enjoy the luxury of silence, and I rise on this issue because I think it transcends the rural versus urban interests that are so ably represented in this Convention. I think it goes to the central issue of the type of judicial system we are to have in Pennsylvania in the years ahead.

It seems to me to be one of the most fundamental tenets of a democracy that the people have confidence in their judicial system. Speaking from my own experience, and I can only speak from that vantage point, I think there are many people in Pennsylvania who do not have confidence in the minor judiciary system as it exists now in Pennsylvania. I want to make it very clear when I make that statement that I am not speaking of any individuals or personalities. There are many fine upstanding individuals in the minor judicial system in this State. I rise to address myself to the system itself.

It is a system with which, in my opinion, based upon my experience in political life, as a lawyer and as a citizen of a community which lies neither in Philadelphia or Pittsburgh, I think we can do better in Pennsylvania than the system we now have.

I think a system of community courts, while not guaranteeing progress—no one can do that—in the long run I think gives us a better chance to fashion a system of justice from one end of the Commonwealth to the other, than does the present system and, while each of us here are representing a sectional viewpoint and a sectional interest, we meet as a group which speaks for all of Pennsylvania.

I want to see the day when we have in Pennsylvania, not a good judicial system, but the best judicial system that we can find, because I suggest to each of you that confidence in the integrity of the judicial process is essential.

To those young people who are now seated in the balcony of this chamber and the countless thousands like them across this Commonwealth who perhaps are tempted to be cynical about politics, and political life and government generally, say this amendment, in my view, gives us an opportunity to restore the faith of the people in the judicial system of Pennsylvania. I believe this very deeply and I respect the viewpoint of those who feel differently, but I expect them also to respect my viewpoint, because I feel it just as deeply and just as strongly as they feel theirs. I submit to you that we should not be intimidated by those who tell us if we vote one way or the other this Convention will not be a success. I think it is time the lines were drawn on this issue, and no one is mandating anything, I might remind you. Every person in this Commonwealth registered to vote will have an opportunity to vote on the 23rd of April. We will have a referendum on this issue. It will be a gigantic referendum on which each person in all the counties of Pennsylvania will be given an opportunity to speak.

I say to each of you, search your own conscience. To me, the choice is clear. I intend to vote in favor of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orbin.

DELEGATE ORBIN. Mr. President, it is rarely that I get up on this floor and it will be rare when I do get up, but I feel rather deeply on this amendment, and I would suggest to Delegate Benfield that he not criticize all of the lawyers. He has friends in this Convention. By the same token, I and his friends do no criticize all of the JPs.

I am satisfied we need reform. I want to make one thing clear, in my county in my senatorial district, we do not have corruption, and I cannot see why the Pennsylvania Bar Association wants to force this onto our county.

I want to counsel those who are not lawyers. I am satisfied in my own mind this is the Pennsylvania Bar plan, Delegate Thornburgh told you it was. I ask you this: Who is the Pennsylvania Bar to tell us that this is the thing for the people of this Commonwealth. Who are they to tell us that we are the ones that should put this through for them? Let me point out one other thing to you. The Pennsylvania Bar Association does not represent all of the lawyers. If you pass this amendment, you will lose the right to vote which is in the judiciary article at the present time on the optional basis.

I would like to ask the lawyers who presented this amendment, as complex and complicated as it is, whether they would pass upon their own clients' business in such a short time, in such a complicated manuscript. I would not. Yet they ask you to do this. Frankly, I do not understand it.

I would also point out to you one other matter. Later on, you will have in the judiciary article, the "yes" and "no" vote. If my memory serves me well, it was not too many years ago that the news media and the public condemned the fact that in the communistic countries and in Germany there was one name on the ballot, which is the equivalent of a "yes" and "no" vote. If that goes through and this part goes through, you will have not only the Pennsylvania Bar plan on the community court, but you will also have the Russian ballot. I say to the Pennsylvania Bar Association, if this amendment goes through, if it contains the Russian ballot, this will kill the judiciary article before the voting public. If they want to kill it, let them put it through. If they kill it, what will you have? Nothing. You will be without the unified court system. You will be without the reform which are in the proposal of the Judiciary Committee.

I, therefore, say to you that you should vote against this amendment at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Will the Chair yield to me on the point of personal privilege for about three seconds?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair will yield for three seconds.

DELEGATE CROOP. I do not think Delegate Orbin meant to say that I was spokesman for the Pennsylvania Bar Association. If he meant that, boy, is he wrong.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I would like to yield to Mr. Barron.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Thank you, Mr. President, and thank you fellow delegates for being sufficiently patient to hear me. I will not be lengthy. I would like to say that most of what Senator Casey said, I agree with his thinking. However, I came directly to the opposite conclusion as to what should be done here.

I am one of I am sure a number who came to this Convention feeling we were going to sit down and write a constitution. I was in Committee disappointed that the best effort we could do was to provide this optional system. I am satisfied, in considering the wishes that were expressed in the committee, that these are most wise and I support them fully. I would like to point out, however, the major fallacy that those who have indulged in the concept of community courts have put themselves in, and, it is briefly this.

Look at our schedule that came along with this proposal. Look particularly at magisterial districts. Look very carefully that we provided an opening arrangement as to what the salary was going to be, an opening arrangement as to what the population concepts were going to be, all subject to change by the legislature, but carefully worked out. A full and complete plan for the continuation of the justice of the peace system has been given to this Convention. No full, no complete, no decent, understandable, workable plan in connection with community courts has been proposed to this Convention, either in the Proposal No. 1,000 or in the present effort for the community court system. I am for reform and for improvement. As Shakespeare put into the language for Hamlet, "I do not care to fly into a land from whose boar no traveler returns."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, I am afraid too many who think they know the respectability, the authority and the help that a good JP can do in any community have not observed them for a long enough period of time, because I feel certain, if they had at a close distance, they would not speak against them.

The old story of one rotten apple in a barrel does not spoil the whole barrel. Certainly, when we are dealing with humanity, we are not dealing with all perfect human beings. I trust we are all self-conscious enough and truthful enough to acknowledge this.

I know there have been bad justices of the peace. For every bad one, there have been a lot of good ones. I made a survey of 44 justices of the peace in a little five county area that I represent in my senatorial district. The costs to the taxpayer of those 44 JPs was approximately $100 a year, or $4,400.

I do not even know where we would get a community judge, to be frank with you. As recent as the recent Pennsylvania Bar Association's Convention in this city, I sat down at the table with my President Judge, and we only have one judge, who represents the counties of Columbia and Montour. He wants to retire. This might sound peculiar to you. The reason he cannot retire is that he does not know where to find a replacement.

If we cannot find a replacement—and, remember, this judge that I speak of has been nominated for three successive terms on both tickets, so it is not politics. This was his expression to me. He said, "Where are you going to find any? I cannot. I have looked up and down the list of the few practicing attorneys that we have in my jurisdiction," and he says the ones who should take it will not take it, and the others we would not care to have. This might be your condition with a community judge. My county is 55,000. Montour County is 22,000. He represents that this is a Judicial District. What would we do? How would we get a community judge? How would we use him? This is one problem which we have to face and another is the cost of one.

For many, many years, and I have to give it away, the baldness of my head to tell you that it was many, many years, that I had two different justices of the peace in an adjoining office to mine where the door was normally open all the time. I heard a great deal of the work that went on there in the idle moments I was not working at my own vocation. It is unbelievable the good these two justices of the peace administered. Many were family and domestic problems and many things of this nature which did not get into the courts and which did not bring in the police.

I remember an old saying that my domestic relations professor at Dickinson taught me. He said, "If you have a domestic relations problem, never take sides because in ten minutes they will both be against you."

Here is the justice of the peace sitting in the middle, settling these problems which go to the structure of our Commonwealth, the family. This is the man whom they look to. Maybe the husband works at hours that he cannot get in when the judge would be sitting. They go in at 8:00 or 9:00 o'clock, at night or maybe it is 7:30 or 8:00 in the morning. The JP will meet them. This might sound like long hours, something like we are spending here. This is a fact. I have seen so many of these cases, so many examples of them were families, that if they landed in court and the publicity reached the newspapers, and their neighbors and friends, the family might be torn asunder and no longer be permitted to be a family because of the neighbors' reactions. These matters have often been settled.

May I say to the members of the Bar Association for whom I have the greatest respect, I do not think the Bar Association's recommendation represented 100 per cent or, possibly, even 50 per cent. You know how these things are obtained. They send questionnaires out. The fellow who is busy throws it away in the waste paper basket and the fellow who does not have too much to do, maybe he fills it out and sends it back. I found lawyer after lawyer in this Convention who did not endorse that, and I think there are many here. I think it narrows itself down to a case of reality, what you know, what your community wants, and what the families in your community want.

I think the JP has to be upgraded. I do not argue this, and they do not argue it if you please. They know they need a little training in legal work, they admit that. But the vast majority of the duties they discharge is not legal work, it is just ordinary common sense, if you please. This is the thing they use in the discharge of their office and of the many billions of little things that the families can go into, cannot afford from the stand-point of legal fees to retain an attorney and go into court with these things. Certainly, this would be the pattern if we had community judges.

I say to you, in my opinion, by the vast majority every dollar that a JP gets he fully earns and these are not any of the rural JPs, I cannot speak of the city because I do not know about that, but I assure you there are none of the rural JPs retiring on any vast amount of money they ever made in office. They are lucky, if you please, if they can pay their overhead and many of them have to have some other job on the side in order to support their families and live a very normal way of life. I say to you, to take these people away from the family, from the public, is something that you will regret for many, many years.

I have to stand here and defend them from my personal knowledge, and I have to end up because I do not want to talk a long time, but my great great grandfather was appointed a JP by the great and honorable William Penn and, to his memory and credit, he served his lifetime, an admirable job. I think the majority of your JPs today are doing that same job and will continue to do so with a little supervision. I would have liked to see this supervision under a committee of the Bar Association of these local counties. I thought that here we would give the discipline that was needed for these chaps. I would have been for that 100 per cent. But may I say to you, do not pass this, do not knock all those dozens and dozens of people that the families of the State of Pennsylvania want. Keep them in.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Dailey. I see that we have some additional delegates that have gotten up.

DELEGATE DAILEY. This is my maiden voyage. I have sat here and listened to a lot of this. I will not say what it sounded like sometimes. I am not a lawyer, but I have a pretty fair education and I like the men of the law profession.

I think the saddest thing I have to say is that I disagree with my friend Bob Casey, but I was man enough to tell Bob and I know he will not get me thrown out of the Democratic Party, because I expect to split my vote this fall, so, you Republicans, maybe I made a couple of more friends here. I hope so.

I was fortunate to be on the Local Government Committee. There has been enough said on that matter. I will not dare build a fellow up too big. I hope he wins with about 20,000 and Bob wins by about 250. I feel that the justices of the peace in my county and in our surrounding counties have been a credit to us. There has been no scandal. They have never had to arrest any of them. Their accounts are many times audited, I think at least three times a year. I would be amiss if I did not get up and say a few words in their favor.

I represent five counties and I do not want Delegate Wilcox to go back and tell all those good Democrats and good Republicans that he stuck up for them and I did not. I feel the justices of the peace in the small areas are doing a good job.

I met Governor Scranton for the first time here, and I have learned to like him and respect him. It is the first time I met Mr. Amsterdam. I have enough faith in their judgment to listen to them as far as this part goes, feeling we will do all right.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Filson.

DELEGATE FILSON. Mr. President, I think at this point I have heard enough to make some sort of a determination and I certainly do not want to bore you by standing before this microphone. However, I should like to say that the proposal which came out of the Judiciary Committee, I submit to you is sound and workable.

Let us have what ever court system we have in Pennsylvania a matter of evolution rather than revolution.

There is nobdy in this august body who can say whether or not the community court system will work throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I submit to you, I believe there are areas which will vote for a community court system, and if this be the will of the people, be that as it may. Let us accept the article which came out of the Judiciary Committee. Let us do it by a process of evolution, and I submit to you, if the community courts in any area are established, let us profit from their experience without diving into this thing head first, not knowing whence we go. Give it an opportunity to work and if it is a workable system, it will be developed and adopted throughout the rest of the Commonwealth.

If it is superior to the system, it should have an opportunity to work in the justice of the peace system with the corrections which have been made in that system. If it turns out to be superior to that, let it be adopted, but I submit to you the proposal which came from the Judiciary Committee is sound, it is workable and it presents an opportunity for the courts of the minor judiciary of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to evolve to the satisfaction and the benefit of all the pepole in this Commonwealth.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, as a practicing trial lawyer, I am so anxious to vote against this amendment, I cannot wait any longer, and I move for the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In conformity with our custom, we recognize Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I am one of the co-sponsors of this amendment and I am voting against it. I co-sponsored it solely for the purpose of having it brought to this body's attention. Let us vote now and dispose of this question once and for all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate. No one will be heard after Delegate Tate's summation.

DELEGATE TATE. Let me try briefly to answer some of the points. First, as to cost. It has been said the cost would be excessive. There is reliable evidence before the Judiciary Committee, which was ignored by those making these statements, that the cost of the system would be approximately $45,000 per court, or a total of $6,255,000 for the State, and that the total of fees which would be coming in, and are now received, as a result of the operations of the minor judiciary are $6,170,000, so the additional statewide cost would be about $75,000 or $85,000. That, however, while it is a small sum, is not the final answer as to cost.

The cost here must be measured in terms of human misery which is imposed on those who suffered from the present system, wherever there is such misery, and I think there is a great deal of it in many quarters. Secondly, this is not the plan solely of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. Such eminent authorities and commissions as the Scranton Commission, a few years ago, and the President's Commission on Law Enforcement just last year, proposed exactly what this amendment proposes.

Thirdly, it has been said that we ought not to mandate something like this. Why are we afraid to mandate something if we think it is right? Are we afraid to mandate that there should be a Supreme Court in Pennsylvania? Are we afraid to mandate that there should be a unified court system in Pennsylvania? I think our clear answer to that has been "no." Likewise, we are not afraid to mandate a system of state debt, and on down the line. There comes a time when we have to realize we must be ready to say some things must be mandated.

Let me draw the attention of the Convention to the fact one of the principal reasons, if not the principal reason, for the calling of the Convention last year was because there was widespread movement for wide reform of the minor judiciary throughout the State. I think we must keep this in mind, and I think as to the fear which has been spoken of here this morning that if we vote in this amendment the voters will disapprove of our efforts on April 23rd, the answer is that I believe the voters will vote "yes" on this if we vote for it and the experience of Illinois and Colorado, where this exact question has been passed upon in recent years by the voters, is that approximately 70 per cent of the voters voted for this.

Finally, if we believe as a body that this question is so controversial, it could be stated separately on the ballot so the voters would have an individual choice on this question, as opposed to the other questions which we will be posing.

In my opening report I made a remark about mice and men. Let me make clear what I meant by that.

There will be men in this Convention right now who will be voting on both sides of this question. Before you put your finger on that switch, I ask each one of you to ask yourselves, are you voting because you think it may affect your personal interests? Are you voting because you think it may affect the personal interests of your clients? Are you voting because you think it may affect the personal interests of your political colleagues or your friends? Or are you voting because you think your vote is what is best for all of the people in Pennsylvania? The men will be in the last category, regardless of which side of the question they are on.

I ask this body to accept the responsibility which has been placed upon it to face this question clearly and I urge a "yes" vote on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The question before the Convention is, will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate. We will unlock the voting machines. Those voting "yea", vote to support the amendment and those voting "nay" will vote against the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the second amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—39

Aberman	Clinger	Mattioni	Rappaport
Amsterdam	Cosetti	McGlynn	Rea
Baldus	Feather	Michael	Shapiro
Banes	Fineman	Michener	Shrager
Bloom	Gabreski	Mortun	Silverman
Braham	Huggins	Murray	Swope
Brennan	Irvis	Otto	Tate
Bunting	Johnson	Pelletier	Thornburgh
Caron	Kelly	Percey	Welsh
Casey	Laputka	Popil

NAYS—104

Allison	Dumbauld	Krill	Rovner
Aurentz	Erwin	Leach	Ruth
Bagenstose	Fagan	Lee, K.	Sahli
Baldrige	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Scales
Baldwin	Fay	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barron	Filson	Leonard	Scranton
Barry	Fleming	Levin	Sebastian
Bashoff	Fohl	Mangery	Sharp
Benedict	Forster	Markley	Shettig
Benfield	Gerber	McGeary	Shively
Broderick	Goldstein	Meyer	Shoemaker
Brown	Gouger	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Buck	Griffith	Moorhead	Stout
Burkholder	Hannum	More	Strickler
Butera	Harding	Nelson	Stroup
Cain	Hatter	O'Donnell	Thomson
Caputo	Henderson	Orban	Tomascik
Clark	Heyburn	Orbin	Tully
Conley	Himes	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Corey	Hocker	Pott	Waldron
Cortese	Hook	Powell	Warman
Croop	Horne	Prendergast	Westerberg
Curran	Hostetter	Redick	Whittum
Dailey	Jirolanio	Reynolds	Wilcox
Desmond	Kauffman	Richter	Woodring
Devlin	Keller, J.	Roberts	Woodside

NOT VOTING—20

Camardella	Gehrlein	Kline	Pechan
Cunningham	Goldman	Lane	Quiles
Donaldson	Gray	Manderino	Scott
Donolow	Keller, M.	Miller, R.	Solomon
Fortney	King	Musselman	Wilmarth

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

DELEGATE ORBIN. Point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. State your point of personal privilege.

DELEGATE ORBIN. I would like to assure Delegate Irvis that I did not include him and still do not include him as a spokesman for the Pennsylvania Bar Association. I would also like to say that Delegates Dumbauld and Nelson join in the remarks that I made on the issue.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS EXTENDED TO DELEGATE CAPUTO

DELEGATE CARON. I would like to raise a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. What is your point of privilege?

DELEGATE CARON. In the last few weeks I have had the pleasure of sitting next to the youngest old man in this group and I would like to share with you a very happy occasion. Tomorrow is Mr. Caputo's birthday, he will be 69, and you will never realize how young he is until you sit next to him. May I suggest we congratulate him on his birthday.

DELEGATE CAPUTO. It surprises me to have someone present the delegation with my birth date, but I want to make one correction: I am 38 going on 69 tomorrow.

MEETING OF JUDICIARY COMMITTEE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President—I have the authorization of the President to make this statement—according to the best calculation, we worked two days on these particular sections of the judiciary article and we started out with 15 amendments, we now have 14. They are sponsored by Delegates O'Donnell, Rea, Irvis, Shoemaker, Bagenstose, Barron, Bloom, Jirolanio, Tate, Baldrige, and Levin.

The Judiciary Committee and its Co-Chairman, Mr. Amsterdam, is inviting—indeed, if we could, we would demand—your presence at a luncheon on the Judiciary Committee—on the Chairman—in Room 615, which is on the fifth floor of this building, that is, O'Donnell, Rea, Irvis, Shoemaker, Bagenstose, Barron, Bloom, Jirolanio, Tate, Baldrige and Levin. We want you to go over with them the amendments.

We will recess now. We will then come back, all of us, at 2:00 o'clock. We will finish these 14 amendments, we will finish this session today and then we will go home. Is that clear?

STUDENTS FROM MALVERN PREP WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Before we disband for the luncheon recess, the Chair would like to call your attention to the fact that we have six students here today from Malvern Prep and one of them is the son of our delegate, Delegate Caron, his son, Richard. He is here with his teacher, Mr. Sullivan. They are the guests of Delegates Hannum, Thomson and O'Donnell. Let us have them stand.

WIFE AND FAMILY OF DELEGATE SHOEMAKER WELCOMED

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I would like to also say that I have a delegation of my two sons with their mother.

My sons, Daniel and William.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. If they will stand up I am sure we will be happy to give them our warm greetings and say we are very happy to have you and proud to have your dad with us.

RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It is now 12:30 and, unless there is objection, we will recess until 2:00 o'clock. The Chair is willing to hear objections to that, if there are any.

The Chair hears none, and the Convention is now in recess until 2 p.m.

AFTER RECESS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The time of recess having expired, the Convention will come to order.

MOTION TO TAKE TATE AMENDMENT FROM THE TABLE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I move that the Tate Amendment be taken from the table. Mr. President, this amendment is the amendment which had previously been distributed, and is composed of three pages, and which was laid on the table this morning. I am not certain this requires a great deal of discussion and I certainly do not plan to spend much time discussing it, except to explain briefly what it is.

This amendment would, instead of a municipal and traffic court in Philadelphia, provide Philadelphia with a community court. This Convention has made it clear, as the result of its last vote, that it wishes to deal differently with Philadelphia than with the rest of the State. So be it, but if we are going to be dealt with differently, I see no logical reason why we should have two courts, a municipal and traffic court, which is completely different from anything else anywhere else in the State. If we are going to have a different minor judiciary, let us have a community court just like those other judicial districts which may opt to have such a court.

I am sure that our judicial business at the minor judiciary level can be handled well by such a court if we are to have a mandated court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there anyone else who wishes to speak on this amendment, or are you ready for the question?

Ready for the question?

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, there has been so much confusion and noise on the floor, and as this is the opening piece of business since our recessing for lunch, I frankly did not have an opportunity to fully hear the explanation by Delegate Tate and I think, perhaps there are other delegates similarly situated. I would like him to, if he would, once again explain the intent and effect of the purpose of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Tate?

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I will be happy to. Quite simply, this amendment provides for Philadelphia a community court just like the community courts that will exist in any other judicial district of the Commonwealth where the option is taken under the committee proposal, instead of the municipal and traffic Court. It is the desire, obviously, as a result of the last vote we took in this Convention, that Philadelphia be treated differently at the minor judicial level. If that be the will of this Convention, then so be it.

I ask, quite simply, that we not proliferate the different types of courts we have, that we not provide something for Philadelphia which is so alien and foreign to the rest of the judicial system that we have to provide a municipal and traffic court which will not be found anywhere else anywhere in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be recognized, Delegate Fineman?

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I do, Mr. President.

I rise in support of this amendment. Earlier in the course of this year, I would like the delegates to this Convention to know, there was a Legislative proposal that came before the General Assembly for its consideration dealing with magisterial reform. During the course of the debate on that proposal, I labeled that proposal to be exactly what I thought it to be, viz., not reform, but rather the pretense of reform. The proposal was offered not because there was sincere intent to bring reform to the minor judiciary in Philadelphia County, but rather to serve as the ploy for an individual then seeking public office in Philadelphia County.

Those who advocated its passage dressed themselves in the gown of reform, but, in fact, were doing nothing more than perpetuating those evils that do exist in the minor judiciary system. For instance, that proposal provided, among other things, that although magistrates had to be learned in the law, this change did not become effective until after the expiration of the then current term of those men holding office, plus two more additional six-year terms, or a total average of about 17 more years before the requirement was put into effect that those who hold office in the magisterial system be learned in the law.

We offered an amendment on the floor of this House, the essence of which was to bring about the reform forthwith and to say that magistrates must be learned in the law and that this provision would become effective at the expiration of the then current terms of the magistrates. If there was such a crying need for reform, why defer the so-called panacea? The bill also provided that the chief magistrates, under no circumstances and without time limits, did not have to be learned in the law. The very chief legal officer of this body that eventually was to be comprised of only lawyers, he, himself, did not have to be a lawyer.

The bill, in essence, was nothing but a patronage grab. We offered an amendment, for instance, to put all employees of the magisterial system under the civil service system. This was rejected. The bill even went so far to say that the chief magistrate, who did not have to be a lawyer and who would be appointed by the Governor of the State, could even appoint the personal assistant of each magistrate just to insure that politics and patronage would be the order of the day, even though great fanfare was being made on the seeming reform of this bill.

I am afraid much of this seeming reform is here present in the proposal that is advocated for Philadelphia. The maintenance of the traffic court system is nothing but a patronage grab. I have got to call these shots as I see them. If there is going to be reform, let us not provide that magistrates who are not learned in the law can continue not only until the expiration of their present terms, but for another six years, so that there will be an average of nine years before we have men learned in the law. I want to say I subscribe to the view that magistrates should be learned in the law. Not because an attorney is posessed of any more integrity than any other person, to so say is ridiculous, but because the decisions of our Supreme Court today on the rights of individuals and the decisions of long standing dealing with the property rights of persons are indeed complex, so complex that it takes an attorney four years of schooling and four years of college work to become educated to the point where the common law and the community considers them able to deal with these problems.

I think that magistrates should be attorneys, but the present proposal does not so provide, except in futura. I say that if there is genuine concern for the quest for reform, as I have heard so much of this morning, I believe there is among the preponderant number of delegates to the Convention a sincere concern to bring reform to the minor judiciary, because this is the one court where the greatest number of persons have their first exposure to our system of jurisprudence. If we are so concerned about reform, then let us talk and act reform.

This proposal is not reform. There is no need to phase them out over an average nine-year period. There is no need to perpetuate the spoils system or to leave any traces of the evils that everyone is crying about.

It is for these reasons, Mr. President, I would hope that this body would bring itself, in the interest of reform, to vote for this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Although I propose personally to vote in favor of the amendment, I must point out to this group that the Judiciary Committee voted against it by a rather substantial plurality, both in the case of the municipal court and the traffic court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Mr. President, the distinguished minority leader, my good friend Herbert Fineman, spoke so eloquently on patronage grab, and he spoke about the continuation of the nine laymen, or the laymen we have in the magistrate court, for nine years. In truth, it will be 12 years.

He talks about the bill that the Republican delegation in the House of Representatives presented to this assemblage, as they did in another patronage grab. We were doing nothing whatsoever to improve our judicial system in Philadelphia, it was only for political purposes, a patronage grab.

Certainly you all know that in our judicial system of Pennsylvania there is patronage. Mr. Fineman knows how the patronage in the traffic court operates. Under two Democratic Governors, the patronage went with the Democratic chief magistrate, who was appointed by the Governor. It is true today. I never denied that, sir, and I don't think it is bad or wrong. I am not against patronage. I am not too much in favor of a strong civil service, either, for personal reasons we will not go into.

The blemish that he has placed upon the judiciary article as not being a movement towards a unified judicial system in Pennsylvania is a false statement. Read the article in its full context. Where were these opponents who were running around the floor today and saying do not let us have a municipal court in Philadelphia? Where were they when the Judiciary Committee was having its hearings?

I appeared before them. I talked to you, my friends, and asked you for help. I knew what I was going to run into. This becomes no great mystery to me, but I know this, that I cannot and will not say to the law magistrates in Philadelphia, you are corrupt. I will not say that about any judicial person, and I said it to you when I spoke on No. 1204.

Those lay people who have come into public life, who are in their middle age, or above, like the five Democratic magistrates whom I spoke to yesterday. Their concern was their tenure, their pension. If it would mean, my friends, that if you would say to me, Bill, cut off the magistrates right now and we will pass that entire package, the judiciary package, we will give it to you, that I would say, I gave my word to those magistrates that I would protect their tenure, and I will not go back on my word come hell or high water.

The municipal court that we are creating with an evolution, as Mr. Caron said today, an evolution of men trained in the law to take over, not because they are better than lay people, but because we extended the jurisdiction. There is more work to be done. You have to have trained lawyers. It is a way in which we are going to cut down on our backlog in the common pleas court in Philadelphia, besides the use of the county court judges, who are now in those courts and will be in the CP court, and the fact that we will have an administrative judge who can order people around and use court rooms heretofore denied us.

The municipal court is the heart and the soul of a unified system, judicial system, in Philadelphia. That system is going to depend on a sound community court, if you want to call it that, we are calling it the municipal court. It is going to dispose of cases immediately. It is going to allow the civil cases that are being backlogged in our CP court to be heard. It is going to provide an avenue where people can go before a trained lawyer and have their cases adjudicated, the lawyer being the judge now.

Patronage, patronage, traffic court, that is all I heard all morning. Sure they train lawyers to sit in traffic court and be paid $15,000, $18,000 a year to make a determination on a $2.50 parking ticket or a left-hand turn. The truth of the matter is that there is politics involved in this decision, I am sorry to say.

Do you want the traffic court and its patronage? I will give it to you. It is a commitment. Give me my unified judicial system.

Mr. Fineman, you have that commitment. They are yours.

Do not let it be destroyed because someone is trying to motivate political insecurity in this Convention. I feel so deeply concerned about our Philadelphia judicial system that I would be willing to do anything to straighten it out, and Mr. Tate's amendment is doing nothing more than taking us 15 steps backwards. This I do not want and you do not want. I am asking you, my friends, to defeat this amendment, and I am asking you to support me, so that I can say that we did something constructive for this City.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. Mr. President, I want to say that prior to coming to this Constitutional Convention I never had the pleasure of personally saying hello to Bill Devlin. I have had that pleasure since, and I have a very fond regard for the gentleman and a very high respect for him, but I think he is totally wrong.

Most assuredly, because of my involvement in partisan politics I can be accused of partisan politics in the expression of my views at this microphone, even though they may not be so motivated. Certainly no one can accuse Mercer Tate of being motivated by partisan politics in offering this amendment, and it so happens that I subscribe and equate my views to those expressed by Mr. Tate.

If we are talking in terms of a unified court system, heavens to betsy, providing a community court like you are providing in all other jurisdictions certainly makes for a unified court system, not the kind of hodge-podge that this proposal seeks to set up, a traffic court, a municipal court, and elsewhere we have community courts.

I must point out that the question of the magisterial system has not a thing in the world to do with the backlog in our courts, because very few, very few, if any cases, are appealed to our higher courts from the magisterial system, at least, not in the number that would account for the making of any backlog.

I want this clearly understood, too, that my position cannot be equated to a statement that I believe magistrates are corrupt. Nothing could be farther from the truth. You are either corrupt or not corrupt, not because you are or are not a magistrate, but because of the man you are, because of the rearing you have had, because of the things you have been exposed to in your lifetime, because of the weaknesses in your character, not because you are or are not a magistrate.

There are many splendid, fine men sitting on our magisterial system in Philadelphia who are not corrupt, whose integrity is beyond reproach, but I say that when you are dealing with the property rights of people, when you have to make a determination as to whether or not a prima facie case of a conviction of a commission of a crime has been made out. This calls for some expertise by people who are learned in the law. This is why I move Mr. Tate's proposal.

It is unbecoming, Mr. Devlin, to suggest that I hold my viewpoint because I have taken the position the magistrates are corrupt. Nothing could be farther from the truth. As a matter of fact, I think in all honesty there is more room for improvement in the JP system, than there is in the magistrate system, simply because under existing law the justices of the peace are entitled to participate in politics, which magistrates are not. Justices of the peace have to deal with matters that go up to $500. Magistrates of the City of Philadelphia are limited to $100, and the greater you increase the amount of jurisdiction the more complex becomes the matter of property rights.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I had not planned to say anything about this subject, because I think all of you know where the Committee stands on it.

Personally, however, I would like to say the following, I know nothing about a political commitment and I personally have made no political commitment to anyone concerning this Constitutional Convention, and I shall not, but I do think you ought to know about the Committee with regard to this.

The No. 1204 plan was looked into very thoroughly by the Committee, and I may add, on a very non-partisan basis and it was very thoroughly discussed, and you know what the Committee has recommended.

I happen to be a firm believer in civil service, as my record as Governor indicates. I may add that there is an important thing here which may be out of focus with what has been said. It has been indicated on the floor, for example, that it might not be wise to allow the magistrates of Philadelphia to remain in being for another full term. That is not, in my opinion, a matter in any connotation to this particular amendment. It can be taken care of when you get to the schedule, which is where this is, and if you wish to change that, then, you have every right to and may. It is important, however, when you are putting in a whole new system of courts that you have a period of transition and that this period of transition is handled carefully and well, and that was the Committee's opinion.

I say again, in the Committee, at least, in the hearings that were held and in the various deliberations we had, there was no sign of partisanship with regard to this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Mr. President, the reason we have a separate traffic court outside of the municipal court is for this reason: If we should put the traffic court in the municipal court, those judges, instead of handling judicial matters which are clogging our common pleas court up to date, because their jurisdiction was extended, would be sitting and wasting a tremendous amount of their judicial time handling almost clerical type jobs.

So, we took the traffic court out completely and we kept in our 20 municipal court judges.

Mr. Fineman says that the magistrate system does not cause the backlog. It did cause the backlog, sir, because the present magistrate system does not have the jurisdiction to go beyond what you mentioned, and what we are trying to do is create a court that they will not have that jurisdiction and, instead of the CP court now being backed up with a number of cases, liquor violations, simple assaults, these would be handled in the municipal court. So the magistrate system, as it is today, is archaic and does not meet the needs of the modern judicial system.

If we put the traffic court in there, we are fouling up the judicial time of those municipal court judges. That is why we are separate. But most important of all, wreck this municipal court and the whole unified system of justice in Philadelphia is no better off with the orphans' court in there and the county court in there than they are today. The key to this is, how do you stop cases going into the common pleas court? This is fouled up, and Mr. Tate's proposal wants to foul it up, we go back to the old sad story of an archaic antiquated system commonly known as the magistrate system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I recognize Delegate Tate for summing up before we put the question.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, lest there be any doubt, let me first say I am not in the patronage game and I am not interested in patronage.

Furthermore, lest there be any doubt, this is my own proposal. No one suggested to me or requested me to have this proposal prepared and presented.

Thirdly, Governor Scranton mentioned transition. I recognize the importance of transition and I subscribe to his views on transition. It is of small consequence to me whether the community court proposed by this amendment comes into being next year, or several years from now, or maybe even nine years, as has been suggested here. The point is that we are working on a constitution that will last a lot longer than that and I am looking a lot further ahead. Whatever transitional period may exist here, the transitional period will be established, as I understand it, by the schedule which is yet to be adopted by this Convention and we can deal with that problem in due course.

Finally, I would just like to read a single paragraph from a letter which I believe every delegate received. It was a letter dated February 13th, to the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee from the Committee of 70 in Philadelphia. Parenthetically, let me say I overheard one of our distinguished delegates the other day say that the Committee of 70 was just a bunch of ADA people in Philadelphia. Nothing could be further from the truth. They are, by and large, a well respected cross section of the community and not aligned at all with any other group.

They say, as you may recall, "The traffic court is the one court that hundreds of thousands of our citizens come in contact with each year and it is imperative that this court reflect the highest standards of judicial excellence and integrity."

The committee proposal providing for a municipal court and a traffic court gives to Philadelphia not only a minor judiciary but a minor minor judiciary. It is my opinion that we do not need this. We will be perfectly well served and satisfied with a single minor judiciary and by my amendment it will be established in the form of the community court, which I think will be a great, great step forward for Philadelphia.

I urge your support of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now the Chair will unlock the voting machine. The question is: Will the Convention agree to the amendment being offered by Delegate Tate? Those voting "yea" will support the amendment. Those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—56

Amsterdam	Cosetti	Johnson	Redick
Aurentz	Dumbauld	Kelly	Ruth
Bagenstose	Fay	Mattioni	Scales
Baldus	Feather	McGeary	Shapiro
Banes	Filson	McGlynn	Sharp
Barry	Fineman	Michael	Shettig
Benfield	Gabreski	Michener	Shrager
Brown	Gerber	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Bunting	Gouger	Murray	Stout
Burkholder	Harding	O'Donnell	Swope
Caputo	Hook	Orbin	Tate
Casey	Hostetler	Percey	Thornburgh
Clark	Huggins	Prendergast	Tomasclk
Clinger	Irvis	Rea	Welsh

NAYS—69

Baldrige	Devlin	Leach	Rovner
Baldwin	Erwin	Lee, K.	Scranton
Barron	Fagan	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Benedict	Fawcett	Leinbach	Shively
Bloom	Fleming	Leonard	Shoemaker
Braham	Fohl	Mangery	Silverman
Broderick	Forster	Meyer	Strickler
Buck	Goldstein	Moorhead	Stroup
Butera	Griffith	More	Thomson
Cain	Hannum	Morton	Tully
Caron	Hatter	Nelson	Van Sant
Conley	Heyburn	Orban	Warman
Corey	Horne	Otto	Westerberg
Cortese	Kauffman	Pott	Whittum

Croop	Keller, J.	Powell	Wilcox
Curran	Krill	Reynolds	Woodring
Dailey	Laputka	Richter	Woodside
Desmond

NOT VOTING—38

Aberman	Goldman	Levin	Quiles
Allison	Gray	Manderino	Rappaport
Bashoff	Henderson	Markley	Roberts
Brennan	Himes	Miller, R.	Sahli
Camardella	Hocker	Musselman	Scarlett
Cunningham	Jirolamo	Pasquerilla	Scott
Donaldson	Keller, M.	Pechan	Solomon
Donolow	King	Pelletier	Waldron
Fortney	Kline	Popil	Wilmarth
Gehrlein	Lane

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

REA AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE REA offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 5 by striking out "(b) The" and inserting: (b) At the primary election held in the year 1969, a referendum shall be held in every judicial district except the judicial district comprising the City of Philadelphia, on the question of whether a community court shall be established in said judicial district. Thereafter the

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate McGlynn.

DELEGATE McGLYNN. I came in after the Huggins amendment was voted on this morning. I would like the record to show I was in favor of that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, we will have that spread on the record.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. As a parliamentary inquiry, is this amendment not, in fact, the same or similar to the Hook amendment of yesterday?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I can only say that it is not the same. Whether it is similar, or not, I will have the Parliamentarian and the attorneys look at it.

May we see Delegate Hook a minute, please?

DELEGATE IRVIS. Mr. President, the amendment being offered is essentially the same as the Hook amendment, but the question which has been disturbing some of the delegates is: May you offer such an amendment twice? The answer I think the Parliamentarian will be prepared to give us. The Hook amendment went down. Therefore, there is no need for a motion to reconsider anything. If the Hook amendment had been entered and we sought to re-amend in that fashion, there would have to be a motion to reconsider. But this is not a question of a motion to reconsider, because the Hook amendment failed yesterday.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Irvis, we are going to query the Parliamentarian. I want to ask Delegate Rea if he will come forward, please.

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would like to make an announcement first, please.

A question was raised, fellow delegates, concerning whether or not a motion to reconsider would have been necessary in connection with this amendment. The Chair does not think a motion to reconsider is necessary, because the Chair considers this amendment, the Rea amendment, to be different than the Hook amendment. I want to point out that there are three differences:

One, it pertains to a different place in the proposal;

Two, it has different language; and

Three, it does not affect Allegheny County—the Hook amendment did not affect Allegheny County because it came after the Rea amendment yesterday.

The Chair will recognize Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Mr. President, I raised this question originally because, to me, although the language may well be different, the substantial effect in both cases, is exactly the same and the difference in language is as follows:

In the Rea amendment the primary election for the option is mandated to the year 1969, in the Hook amendment it was at the next primary election, which, in point of time, are exactly the same.

I think if we are now down to the point where each time an amendment fails we then go to the Convention Bureau and draft the same substantive amendment in different language and we must take up our time not only speaking but voting on these exact same similar amendments, we are well heading for danger.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rea who has presented this amendment.

DELEGATE REA. Mr. President, I think the amendment is self-explanatory.

I would yield to Delegate Cosetti to explain and give the reasons behind the introduction of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cosetti.

DELEGATE COSETTI. Mr. President, I think the issues by this time, on this issue particularly, are clearly drawn. I do not think we have to spend much time in debating it.

This would merely put the issue on the ballot at the next primary election. Much has been expressed that we should give the people a choice, and this is in line with that sentiment. It will give the people a choice at the next primary election if they adopt this constitution.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, was the proposed referendum drawn with the idea that the referendum would be held prior to the effective date of the constitution so that the election would be decided by the time the changes in the magistrate system would be put into effect?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. That is a question I think can be answered by Delegate Rea, who offered the amendment.

DELEGATE REA. Delegate Barron, this will be effective after the change had been made. In other words, under the Constitution all changes in the judiciary will be effective January 1, 1969. This vote will be taken in May of 1969.

DELEGATE BARRON. Then the import would be that we would have a change from the 1st of January of 1969, we would then have an election at the primary of 1969, which might work a second change within a period of but one year, is that the thrust of this? Is that your intent?

DELEGATE REA. The intent is to give the people the choice because they know what the JP system is. You are not changing it really by the judiciary article. They will then have a clearcut decision.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Gouger.

DELEGATE GOUGER. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment. I feel somewhat timid in intruding into what our illustrious Delegate Scranton yesterday called a lawyer's love feast, although I have not seen a great deal of love being scattered around. I am hesitant, too, because I am not a lawyer and the phrase "the thrust of this" is a little new to me. The only vest I own is an old, red thing I wear at Christmastime, so I am at a great disadvantage to start with.

Specifically, I rise in support of this amendment. Yesterday and this morning I stoutly supported the rights of the communities to determine whether or not they should have a community court. I stand stoutly by that now. I do feel there are three reasons why this should go on an early ballot.

These three reasons are:

The need for participation by the people in vital matters of this sort. The apathy that exists in the country today that has been spoken of most eloquently here is there and this, indeed, would get them to participate in something which is vital to their interest and welfare;

Secondly, the very practical reason which Delegate Rea pointed out, that there is a great fear on the part of many people to signing their names to a petition. This makes it comfortable for them so to do;

Three, the physical job, the awkwardness of trying to get in some cases 26,000 to 30,000 signatures to simply get a matter on the ballot does not promote good voter participation, which is the essence of democracy.

I, therefore, urge you to vote for this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Mr. Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. I would call Mr. Rea's attention to page 19 of Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 20, which, of course, is led into from page 18 wherein it says that the Supreme Court shall fix the number and boundaries of magisterial districts of each class within each judicial district by January 1, 1969, and these magisterial districts, except where a community court has been adopted, shall come into existence on January 1, 1970.

This, I believe, creates a problem. I appreciate everyone wants to get to the main issue, which may not be here, but what I am really interested in knowing is whether or not the delegate's proposed amendment will give the revised magistrates a chance to operate, or whether it is planned deliberately to foreclose it before it ever has a chance.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is that a question to Delegate Rea?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, it is. It was stated in the alternative, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Rea.

DELEGATE REA. This is planned to give the people at the earliest opportunity the choice of what they want. They will know what this Convention decides when they pass on it in April of this year and they will have one full year to know the system they are to operate under, or the community court system, so that they will have a year to study, think about and be prepared to intelligently vote on the choice that they want.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran.

DELEGATE CURRAN. I do not think the gentleman has answered the question, Mr. President. I think what Delegate Barron is indicating is that as of January 1, 1969, the new magistrate system will come into effect if this constitution passes. If, in this constitution, is mandated an option for the community court system in the spring of 1969, in effect, we would have the chaotic situation of the new JP system being in effect for one year and, if the option passes on the ballot, in January of 1970 the community court system would come into effect.

Is that or is that not Mr. Barron's point, and are you or are you not going to answer it?

DELEGATE REA. Yes, I will answer him and you, the people now only know on paper what a community court is. They will know on paper, if they pass this in April of this year what the new magisterial system is and they will have a choice between the two. They can see, and read, and study, and learn about the two choices. The fact that neither of them has ever been in operation does not mean the people are so foolish, and so unintelligent, and unlearned that they cannot understand and make an intelligent decision.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

Delegate Michener, I recognize you.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, this morning we heard a tremendous flood of oratory from the brilliant country lawyers who are in our midst. It is hard for me sometimes to realize that these extremely polished gentlemen have marvelous command of the English language—much better than my command of it, I say—with their thrust and their parry are the country bumpkins that they insist they are, so I shall take them at their word.

They plead with us to give them and their people the right of choice. I think we have here something of a moral problem. Either they meant that their people should have the right of choice, or they did not mean that. I would hold that all who spoke this morning are more or less obligated to vote in favor of this amendment.

The second point is this:

This is not only good philosophy, but it is good politics.

I think, if we are going to offer this as a choice to the people, it is an empty promise unless at some point we do so offer it. If there are numerous ways by which the choice can be deferred, or frustrated, or truncated, then it is not really a choice and we are really using only words.

I would suggest, therefore, that there are two reasons why this amendment should be supported. All the good reasons that we heard this morning in favor of giving everyone in this State, except the people of Philadelphia, a right to choose their own courts, and, secondly, if we are in this document offering a choice, let us indeed do offer a choice.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are you ready for the question? Do we want to go on? All right. We open the voting machines and the question is:

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Rea?

Those voting "yea" will agree to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will agree to reject it.

The question recurs,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—63

Amsterdam	Clark	Irvis	Ruth
Bagenstose	Clinger	Laputka	Sebastian
Baldus	Cosetti	Levin	Shapiro
Baldwin	Dumbauld	Mattioni	Shettig
Banes	Feather	McGeary	Shively
Barron	Filson	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Barry	Fineman	Michael	Shrager
Bloom	Gabreski	Michener	Silverman
Braham	Gerber	Moorhead	Sprogell
Brennan	Gouger	Murray	Stout
Brown	Henderson	Orbin	Swope
Buck	Himes	Otto	Tate
Bunting	Hocker	Percey	Thornburgh
Burkholder	Hook	Popil	Tomascik
Caputo	Hostetler	Rea	Welsh
Casey	Huggins	Roberts

NAYS—63

Aurentz	Erwin	Krill	Reynolds
Baldrige	Fagan	Leach	Richter
Benedict	Fawcett	Lee, K.	Rovner
Benfield	Fleming	Lee, L.	Scales
Broderick	Fohl	Leinbach	Scranton
Butera	Forster	Leonard	Sharp
Cain	Goldstein	Mangery	Strickler
Caron	Griffith	Meyer	Stroup
Conley	Hannum	Miller, D.	Thomson
Corey	Harding	More	Tully
Cortese	Hatter	Nelson	Warman
Croop	Heyburn	Orban	Whittum
Curran	Horne	O'Donnell	Wilcox
Dailey	Jirolanio	Pott	Woodring
Desmond	Kauffman	Powell	Woodside
Devlin	Keller, J.	Redick

NOT VOTING—37

Aberman	Goldman	Markley	Rappaport
Allison	Gray	Miller, R.	Sahli
Bashoff	Johnson	Morton	Scarlett
Camardella	Keller, M.	Musselman	Scott
Cunningham	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Solomon
Donaldson	King	Pechan	Van Sant
Donolow	Kline	Pelletier	Waldron
Fay	Lane	Prendergast	Westerberg
Fortney	Manderino	Quiles	Wilmarth
Gehrlein

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHAPIRO AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 2, line 30 by striking out "other than the"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 1 by striking out "City of Philadelphia"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 21 by striking out "in lieu of" and inserting: unless and until a majority of the electors of the City of Philadelphia voting thereon have adopted

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the Amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will recognize Delegate Shapiro, sponsor of the amendment.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Mr. Chairman, I have heard a lot of amendments presented here. I want all of you to know that this is the first amendment that has no thrust. This amendment is not intended to thrust anybody, shove anybody, or push anybody out of office. This amendment is intended solely to give the voters of Philadelphia a choice which is exactly the same choice that the voters of every other community, every other judicial district, in this State will have under the committee's proposal.

I would also like to suggest to the Chairman and the members of the committee, if they will think back, they will not recall a single vote on this issue in the committee. I suggest this was not voted on in the committee and, therefore, it does not do violence to the committee's report.

The committee's proposal as it presently reads provides in Section 7(a):

"In judicial districts other than the City of Philadelphia in which a majority of the electors voting thereon have adopted a community court, there shall be one community court, the divisions, number of judges and jurisdiction of which shall be as provided by law."

The proposal as it presently reads in section 7(c) reads:

"In the City of Philadelphia, in lieu of a community court, there shall be a municipal court and a traffic court. The number of judges and the jurisdiction of both shall be as provided by law."

Section 7(b) presently provides that in all communities other than in Philadelphia there may be a referendum on the question of whether or not the justices of the peace, the existing minor judiciary, shall be supplanted by a community court.

If my amendment is adopted, these same sections will read as follows, Section 7(a) will read:

"In judicial districts in which a majority of the electors voting thereon have adopted a community court, there shall be one community court, the divisions, number of judges and jurisdiction of which shall be as provided by law."

Section 7(c), as amended, if my amendment is adopted, will read as follows: "In the City of Philadelphia, unless and until a majority of the electors of the City of Philadelphia voting thereon have adopted community courts, there shall be a municipal court and a traffic court. The number of judges and jurisdiction of both shall be as provided by law."

I emphasize that I am not changing the municipal court, I am not changing the traffic court, I am simply endeavoring to provide for the voters of Philadelphia, if they find that Mr. Devlin is wrong, if they find that they are not satisfied with the municipal court and the traffic court, an opportunity to do something about it at that time and without waiting for another Convention to be convened or the tedious and difficult process of amendment of the Constitution by passage in the General Assembly twice and a referendum. This simply eliminates the need for passage in the Assembly twice, and the four-year delay that is inherent in that if the voters of Philadelphia wish to have a vote on this subject than the change in method Mr. Devlin has suggested for them.

There is no matter of patronage involved here. I was told today a quote by one of the members of the Judiciary Committee to the effect, in explaining the actions of the Judiciary Committee, that there is a majority, there is a minority and then there is Shapiro. This is the Shapiro amendment, it is not the Fineman amendment, it is not the Devlin amendment, it is not anyone's amendment but mine, but I do suggest that the voters of Philadelphia should be given the same choice that the voters of the rest of the State are given.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Irvis.

DELEGATE IRVIS. I shall speak with extreme briefness and I am sure that you will appreciate that, because I am as tired listening to me as you must be at this time.

I speak in favor of the amendment for precisely the same reason as I have spoken in favor of every other similar amendment. I believe I respect Mr. Devlin's opinion, he is knowledgeable about Philadelphia, I am sure. As I said before, he knows far more about it than I ever shall, but I do not think Mr. Devlin or anyone else on the floor can really speak the minds of the people of Philadelphia and I can see no objection to giving the people of Philadelphia the right to make their own decision on such an important point as this.

I, therefore, urge you again not to do what we did the last time with that 63-63 business. Let us give this amendment a majority vote and let the people of Philadelphia pass on their own system of minor judicial courts.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. I have several questions I would like to ask Delegate Pelletier, Mr. Scranton or Mr. Amsterdam through the Chair.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure they will stand for interrogation. I see Chairman Amsterdam at the microphone.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Does the judicial article as presented to the Convention to date provide that in the future, the court structure of Pennsylvania and in particular this municipal court, the common pleas court of Philadelphia comprised of three divisions, can be changed or altered by the Legislature with the advice of the Supreme Court or consent of the Supreme Court? Do we have that machinery available to satisfy the needs of the future?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I will ask the Chairman of the sub-committee, but my recollection is that it does. It is Section 9.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. That is correct.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. May I ask Bill O'Donnell who was the draftsman in this area?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. May I be heard?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro. I want to inform Delegate Shapiro that you have been up once and you can only speak twice, and I am sure you want a closing. I do not want to deprive the delegate of a closing.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. The difficulty, Mr. President, is there have been some amendments which affect this question. Therefore, we would like a minute or two to check what effect the amendments have had on the judiciary article.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. While they are checking on that, perhaps any other delegate who wanted to speak can have this opportunity, because we want to move along. We only have ten more to go.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. The proposal as it stands provides the Legislature, with the Supreme Court's approval, may change jurisdiction and matters of that kind as among the courts, but it may not eliminate either the municipal court or the traffic court.

Does that answer the question, Delegate Devlin?

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Yes. That leads me to the second question:

Since the Legislature cannot eliminate the municipal court, or the traffic court, or the common pleas court, sir, what would the people be voting on at that particular time that Mr. Shapiro is suggesting? What is the need to vote if you cannot change something by the vote?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is this question directed to Delegate Shapiro?

DELEGATE DEVLIN. It is directed to Mr. Amsterdam through the Chair.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Mr. Amsterdam has delegated Vice Chairman O'Donnell to answer that question.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, the constitution as drafted here in this article, absolutely mandates the listed courts, whether that be Supreme, Superior, Commonwealth or common pleas. In addition, in the City of Philadelphia it mandates the existence of a municipal court and of a traffice court. The jurisdiction of those courts may be changed by the Legislature.

If I understand Mr. Shapiro's proposal correctly, he says in the case of the municipal and traffic courts in the City of Philadelphia he would like the opportunity to have that placed on the ballot and have the citizens of Philadelphia take those courts out of existence and replace them with a community court. Am I correct, Mr. President?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may answer the question without being charged with a time up.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. That is correct.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. My question to you, Mr. President, is:

The statement that Mr. O'Donnell gave to me seems inconsistent with the Constitution and I raise the question again. Once our courts in Philadelphia are established, or community courts or other courts in some other district, can the people by vote alter the Constitution? He has not answered that. They cannot change it unless you have a referendum, etc., etc. I say the provision that Mr. Shapiro is offering is isometric in nature and it will be an appendage on this Constitution that cannot be fully exercised, and I raise these constitutional questions:

Can the people of Philadelphia change their courts?

Can the people of any other judicial district change their courts?

Is the Redick amendment really an amendment that will meet the test of constitutional consistency?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I assume you addressed the question to the Chair and that is a question of constitutional law that the Chair can only refer to counsel. I will be happy to have counsel look that up and have them give you an answer through the counsel of the Judiciary Committee, if they will just join together. The Chair does not assume the prerogative of being the constitutional arbiter and my Parliamentarian tells me I cannot rule on constitutional questions. I am glad to hear that. Where were you a couple of minutes ago?

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Is the proposal in order if it is inconsistent with the Constitution?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I have asked the attorney to confer with the attorney for the Judiciary Committee and through them I think they will endeavor to answer your question. The Chair itself is not ruling on it.

Does anyone else wish to be heard?

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. I would like to interrogate Delegate Shapiro.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure he will stand for interrogation. Proceed.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. How would this matter be determined by the electorate; how would it get on the ballot?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. It would get on the ballot in exactly the same manner as the question of elimination or replacement of JPs in other judicial districts, by a community court would get on the ballot in those districts.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Do you say that in this amendment?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. What I am trying to do by this amendment is put Philadelphia in the same position with respect to Section 7(b) as is every other judicial district in this State. I should like to point out in answer to what has been raised here if there is a question as to the constitutionality or propriety under Act 2 of this amendment, there is an equal question with respect to the referendum for replacement of JPs by community courts in other districts, because under the committee's proposal JPs have apparently the same standing in Section 1(a) of the proposal as has the municipal and traffic courts, and the replacement of those courts with a community court by way of a referendum, it seems to me, would stand on the same footing as the replacement of the municipal and traffic courts in Philadelphia by community courts—as the result of a referendum.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. So the record is clear, you would expect 5 per cent of the voters voting for the office receiving the highest number of votes in the last general election would be required on a petition?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. The last general or municipal election under 7(b).

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. That is what you intend?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Yes.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. You intend the question shall then be raised only one time in any five-year period?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Exactly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair inquires, does anyone else wish to be heard before we have this summed up?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. I would like to interrogate Mr. Shapiro.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. Shapiro, it is my understanding that yesterday Mr. Redick's proposal took care of all other judicial districts as far as the option to remove an existing court system such as the community court system and the understanding, also, was that this did not affect Philadelphia. Is it your intention with your proposal to bring Philadelphia in along with Redick's amendment?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Yes, it would be my intention. I have not bothered to do it because Mr. Redick's amendment is not in print and will have to be altered in any event. We made a change with respect to Allegheny County. We passed Mr. Redick's amendment after we had voted in favor of the community court for Allegheny. Mr. Redick then offered a second amendment to take care of the fact that he had not mentioned Allegheny in the first amendment.

Now, we have defeated the community court for Allegheny and we are going to have to again alter Section (c), as amended, that was injected by the two amendments offered by Mr. Redick and, when we do that, I propose to offer an appropriate amendment to take care of Philadelphia, if we adopt this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. Chairman, I would like to speak in favor of Mr. Shapiro's proposed amendment. I believe if you gentlemen and ladies from the Philadelphia area will give this serious thought you are going to realize that this suggestion is not only practical but vital. I am going to tell you two reasons why I think that is so.

If you freeze into Philadelphia a municipal court and freeze for all time into Philadelphia a traffic court, I wager to say that within five years the citizens of Philadelphia will be back here in Harrisburg asking for a two-year referendum to change the Constitution to take those courts back out and make a change in them because they are building an inflexibility into the scheme of jurisprudence in the City of Philadelphia.

Let me give two examples. Right now under the Federal Highways Act of 1966, which gives 90 per cent contribution for the interstate highway system, there are as Deputy Attorney General Bolla pointed out, presently on the books, proposed regulations under that act which would require a uniform system of traffic enforcement and a uniform system of traffic courts throughout the State.

If our Federal funds, 90 per cent highway funds, are going to become contingent upon a statewide, uniform traffic court, the City of Philadelphia is going to be cooked and the State of Pennsylvania is going to be cooked right with it until we can two years later amend the Constitution of Pennsylvania to bring the traffic court in Philadelphia into conformity with the Federal requirements.

A second reason, of course, is this, I read Arlen Specter's report which he prepared for former Attorney General Alessandroni, which, in turn, was submitted to the governor. I read the report very carefully and I recommend that report to everyone. That report indicates that the Legislature year, after year, after year, has been writing tighter and tighter restrictions on the office of magistrate in the City of Philadelphia to give them less, and less, and less, discretion, particularly in the areas of numbers cases, racket cases, bootlegging, liquor and bookmaking. In those areas, this present proposal would permit the municipal court to handle those cases in their totality.

The municipal court, for example, instead of the situation now where a magistrate can discharge a numbers writer and the district attorney of Philadelphia can move to rearrest that numbers writer, instead of that system, now the magistrate who is now going to be called a judge of the municipal court will be entitled to try that numbers writer, acquit him. He, therefore, becomes entitled to the double jeopardy provisions of the Pennsylvania and Federal Constitutions, as a result of which he is acquitted for all time and the district attorney's office is paralyzed. I suggest Mr. Shapiro has a marvelous way of eliminating a potential roadblock.

If those officers behave themselves while in office, they will have no problems. If they do not, or if the City of Philadelphia finds that its system is not in conformity with the uniform traffic court system throughout the State, then the City of Philadelphia by the action of its own electors can change that system to some other. I think there is a lot of merit in that proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Mr. President, I was satisfied by the opinion of able counsel that Mr. Shapiro's amendment indeed will stand the test of law. I am so certain, so positive, of the people of Philadelphia not wishing to change these courts in the foreseeable future and so happy to allow this flexibility to change them as time passes on, that I would like to see all the green lights go up in support of Mr. Shapiro's amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I want to thank Delegate Devlin for making my closing speech.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the question.

We will unlock the voting machines. All those voting "yea" will vote to support the Shapiro amendment, those voting "no" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shapiro?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—119

Amsterdam	Dailey	Keller, J.	Richter
Aurentz	Desmond	Krill	Rovner
Bagenstose	Devlin	Laputka	Ruth
Baldrige	Erwin	Leach	Scales
Baldus	Fagan	Lee, L.	Scranton
Baldwin	Fawcett	Leinbach	Sebastian
Barron	Feather	Leonard	Shapiro
Barry	Filson	Levin	Sharp
Benedict	Fineman	Mattioni	Shetlig
Benfield	Fohl	McGeary	Shively
Bloom	Forster	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Braham	Gabreski	Meyer	Shrager
Broderick	Gerber	Michael	Silverman
Brown	Goldstein	Michener	Solomon
Buck	Gougler	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Bunting	Hannum	Moorhead	Stout
Burkholder	Harding	More	Strickler
Butera	Hatter	Murray	Swope
Cain	Henderson	Nelson	Tate
Caputo	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Thomson
Caron	Himes	Orban	Thornburgh
Casey	Hocker	Orbin	Tomascik
Clark	Hook	Otto	Tully
Clinger	Horne	Percey	Warman
Conley	Hostetler	Popil	Westerberg
Corey	Huggins	Pott	Whittum
Cortese	Irvis	Powell	Wilcox
Cosetti	Jirolanio	Rea	Woodring
Croop	Johnson	Redick	Woodside
Curran	Kauffman	Reynolds

NAYS—1

Griffith

NOT VOTING—43

Aberman	Fleming	Manderino	Rappaport
Allison	Fortney	Mangery	Roberts
Banes	Gehrlein	Markley	Sahli
Bashoff	Goldman	Miller, R.	Scarlett
Brennan	Gray	Morton	Scott
Camardella	Keller, M.	Musselman	Stroup
Cunningham	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Donaldson	King	Pechan	Waldron
Donolow	Kline	Pelletier	Welsh
Dumbauld	Lane	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Fay	Lee, K.	Quiles

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Popil. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE POPIL. I rise to a question of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE POPIL. I was not here to vote on the Tate amendment regarding the traffic courts of Philadelphia. I would like the record to show that if I was here I would have voted "yes."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Your remarks are being placed on the record.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, the delegates will be pleased to know we are now on the last amendment for Section No. 7.

THORNBURGH AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec 1 (Sec. 7), page 3, line 11 by striking out "five" and inserting: two

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. The effect of this amendment would be only to reduce from five per cent to two per cent of the total votes cast for all candidates, etc., the number of names necessary to place the question of the community courts on the ballot. It is an attempt, consistent with other expressions from the floor, to free up the process. I remind the delegates, the matter of this being brought up once in every five years remain in the proposal. It must remain because otherwise we might be flooded with these matters. This would apply, I would suggest, to the Redick amendment as well, so it is a two-way street that I would suggest that we would be providing, in particular the situations that have already been referred to where there may be some difficulty in getting signatures, a more facile way of dealing with this problem.

I would urge its adoption.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question? Does the committee have any position?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. The Committee discussed numbers in this field and at one point it had 10 per cent, then it votes five per cent. We are ready for the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Kauffman.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Mr. President, I take it the gentleman intends this amendment to apply only to the question on the ballot with regard to optioning to take community courts? It has nothing to do with the selection of judges, or anything of that nature?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Absolutely not, Mr. President.

DELEGATE KAUFFMAN. Just in this one particular area?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Yes, for the moment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. Chairman and fellow delegates, I rise in opposition to this amendment. We have in other places in the Constitution, as proposed, set forth a requirement of five per cent.

Specifically, in the tax article there is a five per cent figure which was already approved on this floor. I have been counsel for the Department of Elections, County of Allegheny, and I believe this small number of voters would be too sparse an introduction to having this on the ballot at every whipstitch. I believe five per cent, or the 27,000 that Mr. Rea thought would be necessary when he talked on the subject is not too large a figure.

There are over 27,000 people living in Mr. Rea's home municipality, and I suggest if it is not possible to get that many people on a petition in Allegheny County, it should not go on. The electorate and the public officials in that county should not be harassed by a lesser number on a petition. Therefore, I suggest the amendment be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

We will unlock the voting machine and the question is, will the Convention agree to the Thornburgh Amendment?

Those who vote "yea" will vote for the support of the amendment, those who vote "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Thornburgh?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—42

Amsterdam	Cosetti	Mattioni	Shapiro
Baldus	Fawcett	McGlynn	Sharp
Bloom	Fealher	Michael	Sprogell
Braham	Filson	Michener	Stout
Brennan	Fineman	Murray	Swope
Buck	Gabreski	Otto	Tate
Bunting	Hook	Percey	Thornburgh
Burkholder	Horne	Popil	Welsh
Butera	Hostetler	Rea	Whittum
Casey	Huggins	Scales	Wilcox
Clinger	Laputka

NAYS—74

Aurentz	Dailey	Johnson	Pott
Bagenstose	Desmond	Kauffman	Powell
Baldrige	Devlin	Keller, J.	Redick
Baldwin	Erwin	Krill	Reynolds
Barron	Fagan	Leach	Rovner
Barry	Fohl	Lee, L.	Ruth
Benedict	Forster	Leinbach	Scranton
Benfield	Gerber	Leonard	Sebastian
Broderick	Goldstein	Levin	Shettig
Brown	Griffith	McGeary	Shively
Caln	Hannum	Meyer	Solomon
Caputo	Harding	Miller, D.	Strickler
Caron	Hatter	Moorhead	Thomson
Clark	Henderson	More	Tomaselk
Conley	Heyburn	Nelson	Tully
Corey	Himes	O'Donnell	Warman
Cortese	Hocker	Orban	Woodring
Croop	Irvis	Orbin	Woodside
Curran	Jirolanio

NOT VOTING—47

Aberman	Gehrlein	Markley	Sahli
Allison	Goldman	Miller, R.	Scarlett
Banes	Gouger	Morton	Scott
Bashoff	Gray	Musselman	Shoemaker
Camardella	Keller, M.	Pasquerilla	Shrager
Cunningham	Kelly	Pechan	Silverman
Donaldson	King	Pelletier	Stroup
Donolow	Kline	Prendergast	Van Sant
Dumbauld	Lane	Quiles	Waldron
Fay	Lee, K.	Rappaport	Westerberg
Fleming	Manderino	Richter	Wilmarth
Fortney	Mangery	Roberts

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

SHOEMAKER AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 26, by striking out "(a)"
Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 3, line 30; page 4, lines 1 to 8, by striking out all of said lines

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. I have a question here. Has this section been discussed, Section 8?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am advised by Chairman Amsterdam that it has been discussed.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, we have listened to a lot of debate concerning mandate to the people. We have listened to a lot of debate concerning what is legislative, what is administrative, what is a judicial function. We have all through woven what our discussions have been skirted around, the problem that pokes its head into Section 8 (b), which is the section that I would eliminate from this Constitution as it is proposed.

I would ask you to examine Section 8 (b) and tell me, if you can, what we mean by saying and writing into a constitution that the future of a judicial system, a minor judiciary, shall be solely on this basis. I ask you whether we are ready now to mandate to the people whether they like it or not, we are not giving them a referendum on this; whether we are ready to mandate a salary to the justice of the peace.

I ask you now, gentlemen and ladies of this delegation, whether or not we are ready to have the Supreme Court and the court of common pleas butcher up the judicial districts and carve out what will be the minor judiciary. Is this a judicial function?

I have talked to the four Judges of my Judicial District, and they have told me that they want no part of the political arena in carving up the minor judiciary system. I believe that we cannot in good conscience pass a proposal that places maybe a legislative and maybe an administrative function in the hands of the court. I would challenge any judge here who has ever sat on the bench to tell me now that they think this is a judicial function.

If you examine the Federal Constitution, you will find that right up front it says the courts of the United States shall have the power of jurisdiction, the ultimate power shall be in the Supreme Court, and the Congress shall set up such other courts as shall be necessary.

If that be our guideline, if the Federal Constitution is the best Constitution that ever was, then let us look at that guideline. Let us follow it. Let us not say the Supreme Court shall be the ultimate power and the Supreme Court shall set up the courts. I could describe how I could cut up my county, York County, into minor judicial districts to favor either political party and any personality within that county merely by juggling the boundaries and the lines.

I say to you, Mr. President, that the courts do not want this job, it is not part of their function, and this section has no place in our Constitution.

Look at Section 8 (a). Section 8 (a) says, "As provided by law." That is the way it ends.

Section 8 (a) says the Legislature shall have this job, but Section 8 (b) turns around and says, despite what the Legislature may from time to time do, we are mandating that the courts have the veto, we are mandating that they are going to set up these districts. We are giving to the Supreme Court an ultimate right to veto and the court of common pleas the right to veto and carve up the very things that they themselves are going to have to review on appeal. Gentlemen, it is wrong. It is wrong.

It would be unfair for me to stand here and argue about this one section of this proposed constitutional revision without telling you that on the broad base, I believe, first, that we need to improve the courts and we need to have an ultimate goal in mind. Perhaps, that ultimate goal is in the presently vague expression, the community court, and, if that be so, fine. It would be, also, unfair if I did not tell you that I think and I believe we should give the people a choice between what we have now and an alternative, not a choice between what we may have on paper and another thing on paper. I am going to be coming back to you later when we get to later sections to talk to you on that subject and it would be unfair of me just to make my argument now on the basis of the single question as to whether the Supreme Court and the court of common pleas should have the right to carve up these districts. But that in and of itself is sufficient reason to strike this unneeded and unnecessary section from this proposed draft. There is nothing to stop the Legislature from passing that very same language if they want to, if that is what they believe.

Gentlemen, we look at practicality next. Let me tell you that it is my sincere and honest belief that if we as a Convention want this judicial article to pass, then we better clean it up a little bit. What I am saying is practical "gut" politics, if you will, because I do not believe we can sell an unknown as well as we can sell a chance for an ideal system as against the status quo.

I do not question for one minute that the justices of the peace in this State are not going to like; well, they probably will not like anything we do, but you can rest assured if we are cutting them into districts that are mandated to be cut up by the county courts they are going to rise up and fight it down the line.

Those people that talked about giving the people a fair choice, a fair chance, better look twice at what they are doing in Section 8 (b), because we are not giving them a choice there. We are saying this is the way it is going to be, no ifs, no ands, no buts, it is either this or you may option. It is either this or it is a community court. That is what we should give them the right to do.

I have heard a lot of speakers on this floor skirt around this issue, and I ask you all now to examine what was said, what you yourself said in prior discussions when we looked at the philosophy behind Section 8 (b).

I have no endorsers, I have no sponsors, I did not go around and get a lot of people to sign this. I did not try to sell it to the committee, but I think the committee should recognize that it is ill-conceived.

I ask for your support.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, the Judiciary Committee went into this quite thoroughly. It was because of the very substantial change in the system, whereby the magisterial districts were being set up, that we felt it was necessary for the electors, if they were going to vote intelligently upon this matter, have some idea of how this would be set up. Therefore, we provided that the General Assembly should establish the various classes of magisterial districts, based on population and population density, and that they should also fix the salaries to be paid in those various classes.

We also provided, because we wanted to have the magisterial system as closely and as much a part of the total judicial system as possible, that the number and boundaries of magisterial districts should be fixed by the court system itself, viz., either by the Supreme Court or by the Supreme Court through the court of common pleas in which the magisterial districts were located.

This was gone into very, very carefully, and this represents the considered judgments of the Judiciary Committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, if there was anything on which the Judiciary Committee was unanimous, this was it.

When we came here to Harrisburg there were those voices who said abolish the justices of the peace, because there are certain defects in the system. We discovered that we could not abolish them because of the fantastic differences that exist throughout the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, between the needs of your sparsely settled and densely settled areas of the State.

Those areas which were most subject to criticism were the fee system, for one; the lack of educational qualifications, for two;

The fact that the justices of the peace were not a part of the unified system, three; and four, and perhaps more important than any other, is this matter of proper jurisdiction and venue in a magistrates court.

Electors, voters and interested citizens all over the State see the fallacy, see the wrongdoing that is involved in the matter of magistrates, in effect, soliciting business, rather than merely accepting the court business which comes before them. We read here even in Dauphin County of two justices of the peace who apparently are trying to see who can move their house trailers closer to a certain exit on the Turnpike to secure that business.

These provisions in the judiciary article are part and parcel of the program, the total program to correct all of the known deficiencies in the magisterial system in Pennsylvania. These reforms are needed. These reforms are excellent, and Mr. Shoemaker's proposal just takes and rips these reforms right out of the judiciary article, and I vehemently protest.

I ask for a vote of "no."

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are you ready for the question?

I want to say that Delegate Shoemaker has a right to close, but he just has one minute left.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, this will not take very long.

Mr. President, Mr. O'Donnell's statements, as I understand, he is the artisan behind this section. If you said and can say honestly that we came here with a mandate to get rid of the JP, but we found we could not do it, so then we set up the community court out in the future, and, in turn, he is telling me we are not getting rid of the JP, but, in fact, we are getting rid of the JP and I am saying what is going to happen, the people that rose up against just plain abolition of the JP are going to vote down this judicial article, if we let it ride through in this fashion.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We are ready for the question, and the question is, will the Convention agree to the amendment being offered by Delegate Shoemaker?

The voting machine is open. Those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Shoemaker?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—14

Banes	Irvis	McGlynn	Shoemaker
Cortese	Jirolanio	Rea	Tulty
Devlin	Johnson	Shettig	Welsh
Erwin	Mattioni

NAYS—96

Amsterdam	Corey	Horne	Powell
Aurentz	Cosetti	Hostetler	Rovner
Bagenstose	Croop	Kauffman	Ruth
Baldrige	Cunningham	Keller, J.	Scales
Baldus	Curran	Krill	Scranton
Barron	Dailey	Lee, L.	Sebastian
Barry	Desmond	Leach	Shapiro
Benedict	Fagan	Leinbach	Sharp
Benfield	Fawcett	Leonard	Shively
Bloom	Feather	Levin	Silverman
Braham	Filson	McGeary	Solomon
Brennan	Fohl	Meyer	Sprogell
Broderick	Forster	Michael	Stout
Brown	Gabreski	Michener	Strickler
Buck	Gerber	Miller, D.	Stroup
Bunting	Gray	Moorhead	Swope
Burkholder	Griffith	More	Tate
Butera	Hannum	Murray	Thornburgh
Cain	Harding	Nelson	Tomasetik
Caputo	Hatter	O'Donnell	Warman
Caron	Henderson	Orban	Whittum
Casey	Himes	Orbin	Wilcox
Clark	Hocker	Popil	Woodring
Clinger	Hook	Pott	Woodside

NOT VOTING—53

Aberman	Goldman	Mangery	Redick
Allison	Goldstein	Markley	Reynolds
Baldwin	Gouger	Miller, R.	Richter
Bashoff	Heyburn	Morton	Roberts
Camardella	Huggins	Musselman	Sahli
Conley	Keller, M.	Otto	Scarlett
Donaldson	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Scott
Donolow	King	Pechan	Shrager
Dumbauld	Kline	Pelletier	Thomson
Fay	Lane	Percey	Van Sant
Fineman	Laputka	Prendergast	Waldron
Fleming	Lee, K.	Quiles	Westerberg
Fortney	Manderino	Rappaport	Wilmarth
Gehrlein

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

DELEGATE MICHENER. Mr. President, I am glad that the vote was to that degree of finality, because it was brought to my attention that a delegate who sought permission to go home some time ago and is now many miles from this hall is registered as voting.

I think we had better start being rather careful about this, please.

WIFE AND FAMILY OF DELEGATE WOODSIDE WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, while the Convention is more or less at ease, I would like to rise just a moment on a question of special personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Would you state your question of personal privilege, please?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Today my son and law partner, Robert J. Woodside, and his wife and my grandson, Michael Woodside, and now Mrs. Woodside and my daughter, Jane Woodside, have all visited the Convention. Delegate Hocker said that they knew it was pay day.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think it would be very nice if they would stand so we could recognize them, because we are very happy to have the Woodside family with us.

Would you all stand and give them a long round of applause?

I think they came over to check to see if you were really working late on Friday afternoon.

BAGENSTOSE AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bagenstose.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 4, line 5, by striking out "the Supreme Court or by"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 8), page 4, line 6, by striking out "please under the direction of the Supreme Court" and inserting: pleas

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bagenstose.

DELEGATE BAGENSTOSE. This will be short, Mr. President.

The Supreme Court is not familiar with the areas to establish these classes of magisterial districts. Therefore, this amendment will give the local court of common pleas the duty of designing and fixing the magistrate districts within the counties after the Legislature has set the sizes by population per square mile and density that it should be.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I rise in opposition to this amendment. So does the Judiciary Committee oppose this.

Frankly, if you are going to put into the Supreme Court the operation of the unified judicial system, and this is the essence of this whole thing, you have to give them the power to do some of these things.

Perfectly clearly, much of it will be done by the court of common pleas. We have given them that alternative, but they have got to have some over-all say about the administration of the whole system for which they, and they alone, are accountable. All this is clearly charted out in this.

I plead with you to turn this one down. Here goes another one to hit the unified judicial system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question? Unlock the voting machine.

The question before the Convention is, will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bagenstose. Those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will reject it.

The question recurs,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bagenstose?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—9

Bagenstose	Mattioni	Michael	Shoemaker
Baldrige	McGlynn	Michener	Tully
Leinbach

NAYS—99

Amsterdam	Curran	Kauffman	Ruth
Aurentz	Dailey	Keller, J.	Scales
Baldus	Desmond	Krill	Scranton
Baldwin	Devlin	Laputka	Sebastian
Banes	Erwin	Leach	Shapiro
Barron	Fagan	Lee, L.	Sharp
Barry	Fawcett	Leonard	Shettig
Benfield	Feather	Levin	Shively
Bloom	Fikson	McGeary	Shrager
Braham	Fohl	Meyer	Silverman
Brennan	Gabreski	Miller, D.	Sprogell
Broderick	Gerber	Moorhead	Stout
Brown	Griffith	More	Strickler
Buck	Hannum	Murray	Stroup
Bunting	Harding	Nelson	Swope
Burkholder	Hatter	O'Donnell	Tate
Butera	Henderson	Orban	Thornburgh
Cain	Heyburn	Orbin	Tomascik
Caron	Himes	Popil	Warman
Casey	Hook	Pott	Welsh
Clark	Horne	Powell	Whittum
Clinger	Hostetler	Rea	Wilcox
Corey	Irvis	Redick	Woodring
Cortese	Jirolanio	Richter	Woodside
Croop	Johnson	Rovner

NOT VOTING—55

Aberman	Fleming	Lane	Quiles
Allison	Forster	Lee, K.	Rappaport
Bashoff	Forney	Manderino	Reynolds
Benedict	Gehrlein	Mangery	Roberts
Camardella	Goldman	Markley	Sahli
Caputo	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Scarlett
Conley	Gutger	Morton	Scott
Cosetti	Gray	Musselman	Solomon
Cunningham	Hocker	Otto	Thomson
Donaldson	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Donolow	Keller, M.	Pechan	Waldron
Dumbauld	Kelly	Pelletier	Westerberg
Fay	King	Percey	Wilmarth
Fineman	Kline	Prendergast

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

BARRON AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I rise to offer an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 9), page 4, lines 9 and 10, by striking out ", with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court,"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 9), page 4, line 12, by striking out ", with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court,"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 9), page 4, line 13, by inserting after "statute.": Courts hereafter created by the General Assembly shall be a part of the unified judicial system and subject to the provisions of this article.

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 18), page 14, line 27, by striking out "shall" and inserting: may

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 18), page 14, lines 28 and 29, by striking out "only with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court"

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I would point out to this body that there are two sections covered here, Section No. 9 and Section No. 18. There are two different concepts involved, even though the thrust of both is to take out only "with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court."

Before proceeding on, Mr. President, I would respectfully ask leave to divide the discussions on Section 9 and Section 18. I would say in explanation, Mr. President, these were combined at the behest of the committee which met at noontime for luncheon today in order that we could, at least, argue the concepts at the same time, hopefully, however, that we could move things on by presenting the idea of where and in what areas advice and consent of the Supreme Court is required.

Accordingly, Mr. President, I would ask if we might have such a division in the discussion of this matter? May we have a division of discussion and vote on Section 9 followed by a division—

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me speak to the Parliamentarian. We have a question to the Chair as to whether or not we can divide this amendment and vote on it as two amendments. Is that, in effect, your question?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Unless we have an objection, then we will consider this as two amendments.

Now, the first part of this would be what, Delegate Barron?

DELEGATE BARRON. It would be the first three paragraphs, each one of which is introduced by the words amend Section 1, Section 9.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In other words, it does not include "Amend Section 1, Section 18, and thereafter."

DELEGATE BARRON. Correct. That would be the second part.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Unless the Chair hears an objection, we will consider it as two amendments, and you will speak now to the first amendment.

DELEGATE BARRON. By way of background, I would ask the delegates' attention to look at Section 1 of Printer's No. 20 that we are now discussing.

Please notice that in section 1(a) the committee proposal creates certain specific constitutional courts, which are hereby created and ordained if this proposal is passed. As has been explained before, these courts cannot be abolished by the General Assembly. They can only be changed in that justices of the peace can be taken out or put back in, and the same with the municipal and traffic courts in favor of community courts. By voter action they will, nonetheless be, constitutional courts.

Anticipating the future, this Section 9 was put in with the idea purely that any courts in the future, in addition to those provided constitutionally, can be created by the General Assembly and can be removed by the General Assembly, that is, if the General Assembly creates a particular court to handle a particular situation, or situations, as it did the Superior Court, it may do so, and, in turn, if the need, necessity, or whatever of this court becomes extinguished, the court may be abolished, as well.

In committee, the concept that this should be done with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court was carried on and perpetuated in this Section 9.

Considering that this assembly had understood the thrust of the proposition of amending Section 1(b), which limited the removal, change, and so forth, of jurisdiction of the constitutional courts only by approval of the Supreme Court, and this we took out, it is an effort here to parallel that idea, that which the General Assembly creates, and endows with jurisdictions, it may likewise remove.

Notice, however, that we want to make it crystal clear that any court hereafter created by statute—and this is the third paragraph in the topics under Section 9—shall be a part of the unified judicial system, and this, we believe, is stated beyond a fair adventure.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chairman recognizes Delegate Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, I cannot speak for the whole committee, but this goes again to the problem of the unified judicial system, which everybody in the commmittee knows I feel very strongly about.

May I say to you, I think what they want to do with regard to Section 9 does not interfere with the unified judicial system whatsoever. In fact, I do not think it is even necessary to add the additional information, or additional paragraph, which they put in, because it is already taken care of in the first paragraph, Paragraph A of Section 1 on page 1. So far as I personally am concerned, if the other committee members would be agreeable, this first division of their change I agree to.

I want to make it very clear, however, I do not agree to what they want to do in Section 18, which comes next, because I think that goes to the heart of the unified judicial system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I take it we are ready for the question. We are ready for the question now.

Remember, we are only voting on the first part, the portion of this amendment that includes the first three paragraphs. It does not include the portion that starts "Amend Section 1, Section 18, page 14." From then on it is the second amendment.

Now, unlock the voting machines and all those voting "yea" will vote to support the first part of the Barron amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the first portion of the amendment offered by Delegate Barron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—68

Aurentz	Filson	Keller, J.	Richter
Baldrige	Fohl	Laputka	Rovner
Banes	Gerber	Leach	Ruth
Barron	Gouger	Lee, L.	Scales
Barry	Hannum	Leinbach	Scranton
Broderick	Harding	Leonard	Sebastian
Brown	Henderson	Mattioni	Shapiro
Buck	Heyburn	McGeary	Sharp
Cain	Himes	McGlynn	Shively
Corey	Hook	Miller, D.	Shoemaker
Cortese	Horne	More	Shrager
Crnop	Hostetler	Nelson	Silverman
Curran	Huggins	Orban	Swope
Dailey	Irvis	Orbin	Thomson
Desmond	Jirolanio	Pott	Tully
Devlin	Johnson	Powell	Welsh
Fawcett	Kauffman	Redick	Westerberg

NAYS—41

Amsterdam	Caron	Hocker	Sprogell
Baldus	Casey	Kriti	Stout
Baldwin	Clinger	Levin	Strickler
Benedict	Erwin	Michael	Stroup
Benfield	Fagan	Michener	Tate
Bloom	Feather	Moorhead	Thornburgh
Braham	Forster	O'Donnell	Tomasetik
Brennan	Gabreski	Popil	Whittum
Bunting	Griffith	Rea	Wilcox
Burkholder	Hatter	Shettig	Woodring
Butera

NOT VOTING—54

Aberman	Fineman	Mangery	Quiles
Allison	Fleming	Markley	Rappaport
Bagenstose	Fortney	Meyer	Reynolds
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Roberts
Camardella	Goldman	Morton	Sabli
Caputo	Goldstein	Murray	Scarlett
Clark	Gray	Musselman	Scott
Conley	Keller, M.	Otto	Solomon
Cosetti	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Cunningham	King	Pechan	Waldron
Donaldson	Kline	Pelletier	Warman
Donolow	Lane	Percey	Wilmarth
Dumbauld	Lee, K.	Prendergast	Woodside
Fay	Manderino

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the first portion of the amendment was agreed to.

JUDGE JAMES S. BOWMAN WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would like to take this time to point out that we have a guest with us in the rear sitting in one of the delegate's seats. It is Judge James S. Bowman of the Common Pleas Court of Dauphin County.

Judge, would you stand up so we can show you a welcome?

I do not think I have to point out to you that he is a big man in judicial circles.

BARRON AMENDMENT (PART 2)

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will recognize Delegate Barron in connection with the second part of his amendment.

DELEGATE BARRON. I fondly hope and pray that this is the last section to be discussed under which the advice and consent of the Supreme Court is involved. I recognize immediately that this is much more controversial, and, as tired as we may be, please take a look at it. My own feelings are kind of mixed, and we put these together with the idea of presenting them in this fashion. I hope to make it more understandable.

The gist of this amendment is this, we provide now that the number and boundaries of the judicial districts shall be changed by the General Assembly.

This is current law, subject only to a limitation that any county having more than 40,000 people then becomes entitled to its own independent judge. However, the Committee decided to go on and provide, as they had before, that this should be done, meaning the number and the boundaries of the districts should be changed only with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court.

I did not originally prepare an amendment on this, and I do not feel fully qualified to speak on it. I suggest that the dividing line is this, if you believe that this is an administrative function, you would be persuaded to vote against this amendment. If you believe the financial impact of the changing of districts, the problem involved between the State paying for the people, the judges, the counties which presently build court houses and pay for all of the staffs and members thereof, is important and should be a matter for the General Assembly, you will be in favor of it.

I am sure that the proponents who have more direct feelings, more positive approaches to this, will speak accordingly.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, Mr. Barron has said this better than I could. Quite frankly, the proposition from the standpoint of the committee is that this is both a financial and an administrative function, and that is precisely why we put both groups into it, the Legislature and the Supreme Court.

The Legislature should have jurisdiction concerning judicial districts, because they partly pay for same, and the boundaries thereof, and, likewise, the Supreme Court under the new unified system for the first time in Pennsylvania has the responsibility for the administration of same and, therefore, they should be a part of it.

That is precisely why we did this, and I earnestly hope that you will not support this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. I would like to ask Governor Scranton one question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE HOOK. I have been bothered by this language, Mr. President, and I have raised this question before. What happens if the General Assembly goes ahead and does this without the consent of the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I assume you have a court case and the Supreme Court decides it.

DELEGATE HOOK. That is the answer I wanted, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question, or does Delegate Sharp wish to be recognized?

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, I wonder if I might interrogate Governor Scranton a moment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure Chairman Scranton will stand for interrogation by Delegate Sharp.

DELEGATE SHARP. Mr. President, I am interested in the exact meaning of these words "advice and consent of the Supreme Court." I wonder if this speaks of before the Assembly acts or subsequent to the Assembly acting. In other words, under the words "advice and consent," as we well know them in connection with the Senate of the United States, this is an act after the President. Is it to be thought here, then, that the Supreme Court, if the General Assembly should pass an act, and the Governor should not veto it, it would then have the power of veto even though the Governor did not?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. No. I think it is quite clear that Judge Woodside's answer to the same question the other morning is a proper one and that is clearly, the Legislature itself, for example, the head of the appropriate committee, which would be the judiciary committee of the Legislature, would get a certification from the Supreme Court on the bill.

DELEGATE SHARP. Would it not be better, then to state, as we did in Section 1, using the words "prior approval" rather than "advice and consent," or do these mean one and the same as far as you are concerned?

DELEGATE SCRANTON. As far as I am concerned, they can do it any way they want to. As long as you have both units in it, which I think properly belong there. If you want Style and Drafting to change it into words that are better, I have no objection.

DELEGATE SHARP. This is my point. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, I voted for the Barron amendment, the first one we passed, because I viewed that to be a proper amendment because, as drafted, in my view this was an encroachment on the legislative function and, therefore, to be consistent, we should not encroach on the legislative function.

I concur in the view of Governor Scranton with respect to the second proposal, that this is an administrative function and not an encroachment on the legislative function and would, therefore, suggest that this body decline the second amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Mattioni.

DELEGATE MATTIONI. Mr. President, I consider this one of the most important amendments that has come before the delegates. I agree with Governor Scranton that it is administrative, but, at the same time, it is legislative.

When I went to school—and this is not too many years ago—I learned a simple concept of separation of powers and a checking function of the General Assembly, along with the other checking functions interdependent between the executive and the judiciary.

I think this found its genesis even earlier than the Magna Charta, but it is primarily indigenous to this country of ours and, if you go back to the 16th and 17th centuries, you will find that the separation of powers with the checking functions built within it were found in the early charters in that colonial period.

I am not opposed to a unified judicial system, and yesterday, when someone said what did we do, I said we really did something very great. We did unify the courts. It was very important. I am not opposed to an independent judiciary, but I am opposed to an independent judiciary to the sacrifice of an independent General Assembly.

I urge that we adopt this amendment and I say it most sincerely.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. For the same reasons ensigned by Delegate Mattioni, I urge this amendment be rejected. It would do violence to the warp and woof of the entire scheme of the judiciary article.

Consider this: In judicial district which has opted, or adopted, if you will, a community court system for that judicial district. Let us suppose that the disabused and disaffected justices of the peace take issue with that and they have enough strength in the Legislature to have the Legislature now change that judicial district by drawing a line down through the middle of it, or making it part and parcel of two adjoining districts which still have the justices of the peace system, or, conversely, a district which has elected to retain the justice of the peace system, could become a community court system by having the Legislature blend it with other districts. What I am trying to get across is, it would permit the Legislature to tamper with the judicial functions and with the entire court scheme.

From the very arguments on this floor, it is obvious that an approach could be made to the Legislature, for example, to make the City of Pittsburgh a single judicial district of its own, and there may be merit in that, or the balance of Allegheny County be made a judicial district of its own, and there may be merit in that. But, since it is going to affect the entire unified system and the entire court scheme, the Supreme Court should have the final say as to whether or not a change of district lines is acceptable, and I urge that this amendment be defeated.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are you ready for the question? We will now unlock the voting machine and the question is on the second part of the Barron Amendment: Will the Convention agree to the second part of the Barron Amendment?

All those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the second portion of the amendment offered by Delegate Barron?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—17

Baldrige	Gerber	Johnson	Shoemaker
Banes	Himes	Mattioni	Tate

Barron	Irvis	McGlynn	Thornburgh
Benedict	Jirolanio	Orban	Tully
Corey

NAYS—93

Amsterdam	Devlin	Lee, L.	Ruth
Aurentz	Erwin	Leinbach	Scales
Baldus	Fagan	Leonard	Scranton
Baldwin	Fawcett	Levin	Sebastian
Barry	Feather	Mangery	Shapiro
Benfield	Filson	McGeary	Sharp
Bloom	Fohl	Meyer	Sheltig
Brennan	Forster	Michael	Shively
Broderick	Gabreski	Michener	Shrager
Brown	Gouger	Miller, D.	Silverman
Buck	Griffith	Moorhead	Sprogell
Bunting	Hannum	More	Stout
Burkholder	Harding	Murray	Strickler
Butera	Hatter	Nelson	Stroup
Caln	Henderson	O'Donnell	Swope
Caron	Heyburn	Orbin	Thomson
Casey	Hocker	Popil	Tomascik
Clark	Hook	Pott	Welsh
Clinger	Horne	Powell	Westerberg
Cortese	Hostetler	Rea	Whittum
Croop	Kauffman	Redick	Wilcox
Curran	Keller, J.	Richter	Woodring
Dailey	Krill	Rovner	Woodside
Desmond

NOT VOTING—53

Aberman	Fineman	Laputka	Prendergast
Allison	Fleming	Leach	Quiles
Bagenstose	Fortney	Lee, K.	Rappaport
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Manderino	Reynolds
Braham	Goldman	Markley	Roberts
Camardella	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Sahli
Caputo	Gray	Morton	Scarlett
Conley	Huggins	Musselman	Scott
Cosetti	Keller, M.	Otto	Solomon
Cunningham	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Van Sant
Donaldson	King	Pechan	Waldron
Donolow	Kline	Pelletier	Warman
Dumbauld	Lane	Percey	Wilmarth
Fay

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the second portion of the amendment was not agreed to.

BLOOM AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. Mr. President, I submit an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BLOOM offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 5 by inserting after "of" where it appears the first time: justices,

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 6 by inserting after "another": and to a court other than that for which he was selected or elected

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bloom.

DELEGATE BLOOM. All the other amendments in connection with the unified system wanted to do something to lessen its strength. This amendment that I have offered strengthens the unified system. It gives the court administrator the right to move a judge to any other court than the one to which he was selected or elected. That gives him great freedom.

We had testimony here, I heard this honorable gentleman by the name of Carl Rolewick testify before the committee and I know the committee decided otherwise, because they talked to my good friend, Judge Woodside, who does not agree with my position in this, but I thought we should have the full benefit of Illinois' practical solution to their administrative unified court system.

In that system the administrator, being under the direction of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, can move a judge from one class to another and thereby reduce the cases that might be causing a two-year delay or a three-year delay. In this way it creates great efficiency. I will leave it to the body. I think I stated the position of Judge Woodside and he feels that this court may be attacked by the Supreme Court administrator. I have no fear of the Supreme Court administrator, because I feel that he will be an honorable gentleman under the direction of the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court and I have the greatest respect for our courts.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I feel very badly about having to again oppose my good friend Delegate Bloom, but I think this is a very serious amendment and, if I understand what it does, it would permit a court administrator to say to a justice of the peace—or, at least, to a judge of the community court—"They are short a judge on the Supreme Court. You go up there and sit for a while." Or, "They are short a judge on the Superior Court. Go up there and sit for a while."

It may transfer judges back and forth between the different courts. I think the mere thought of what could happen as a result of that is sufficient reason to have everybody vote "no" on this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there anyone else who wants to be heard?

DELEGATE BLOOM. All I want to say is that I do not think any administrator would move a justice of the peace up to a court of record like the court of common pleas or any other court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will unlock the voting machines.

The question before the House is, will the Convention agree to the amendment being offered by Delegate Bloom? All those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Bloom?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—13

Banes	Burkholder	Harding	Scales
Bloom	Clinger	Michener	Shapiro
Braham	Cosetti	Rea	Swope
Brennan

NAYS—92

Aurentz	Fawcett	Leach	Rovner
Baldrige	Feather	Lee, L.	Ruth
Baldwin	Filson	Leinbach	Scranton
Barron	Fohl	Levin	Sebastian

Barry	Forster	Mangery	Shettig
Benfield	Gerber	Mattioni	Shively
Broderick	Gouger	McGeary	Shoemaker
Brown	Griffith	McGlynn	Silverman
Buck	Hannum	Meyer	Sprogell
Bunting	Hatter	Michael	Stout
Butera	Henderson	Miller, D.	Strickler
Cain	Heyburn	Moorhead	Stroup
Caron	Himes	More	Tate
Casey	Hocker	Murray	Thomson
Clark	Hook	Nelson	Thornburgh
Corey	Horne	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Cortese	Hostetler	Orban	Tully
Curran	Irvis	Orbin	Welsh
Dailey	Jirolanio	Popil	Westerberg
Desmond	Johnson	Pott	Whittum
Devlin	Kauffman	Powell	Wilcox
Erwin	Keller, J.	Redick	Woodring
Fagan	Krill	Richter	Woodside

NOT VOTING—58

Aberman	Fay	Laputka	Quiles
Allison	Fineman	Lee, K.	Rappaport
Amsterdam	Fleming	Leonard	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Fortney	Manderino	Roberts
Baldus	Gabreski	Markley	Sahli
Bashoff	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Scarlett
Benedict	Goldman	Morton	Scott
Camardella	Goldstein	Musselman	Sharp
Caputo	Gray	Otto	Shrager
Conley	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Solomon
Croop	Keller, M.	Pechan	Van Sant
Cunningham	Kelly	Pelletier	Waldron
Donaldson	King	Percey	Warman
Donnelow	Kline	Prendergast	Wilmarth
Dumbauld	Lane

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CHAIR WELCOMES DAVID THORNBURGH

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I would like to call the attention of our fellow delegates to the fact that Delegate Thornburgh has with him today his son, David, age 9. David, where are you? Stand up, Dave. We just want to welcome you here.

We want you to know your dad is doing a great job and we are glad he is with us.

TATE AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I submit an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1, (Sec. 17), page 14 by inserting between lines 25 and 26: (d) The Supreme Court may prescribe a merit system for appointment, promotion, removal, discipline, and suspension of nonjudicial personnel in the judicial system and may provide for exempt categories. The Supreme Court may administer the merit system through an administrative director, or may provide for its administration by other appropriate agencies of the Commonwealth or its political subdivisions, who shall be required to render necessary assistance to the court.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Tate for his statement.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I know we are all getting tired and we are tired of hearing speeches, and probably particularly tired of hearing speeches from me, so I will not make a speech, I will just briefly explain what this is. I think this is important, but I do not think it requires a great deal of discussion.

Quite simply, this would give to the Supreme Court what, in my opinion, are additional powers which will strengthen the unified judicial system, additional power to create a merit or civil service system for nonjudicial personnel. It does not mandate anything. It merely provides the open door, or the mechanism, whereby nonjudicial personnel could be placed under a civil service system.

I happen to be one who believes in the civil service system insofar as possible. I believe that it is possible to make a civil service system applicable to the judicial system as far as nonjudicial personnel is concerned, and I have every confidence the Supreme Court will be able to work out a system which will take into account all the individual preferences of judges for their own court clerks, and so forth.

Therefore, I would like to see the Supreme Court have that power and I would like to ask for a "yes" vote for this addition to the committee proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. This, to me, seems to be nothing but legislation. If the Legislature in its wisdom feels it should grant this power to the Supreme Court, its staff, I am sure it can do it. I think this is burdening the Constitution with more words and phrases that the committee in its wisdom saw fit not to include.

I think we ought to vote "no."

DELEGATE BUTERA. Along the same lines, while Delegate Tate is tired of speeches, I am tired of legislation. Let us oppose this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

We will unlock the voting machines.

The question before us is:

Will the Convention agree to the amendment being offered by Delegate Tate? Those voting "yea" will vote to support the amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—16

Baldus	Bunting	Hook	Rea
Banes	Casey	Michael	Silverman
Bloom	Clinger	Michener	Swope
Buck	Cosetti	Popil	Tate

NAYS—84

Amsterdam	Devlin	Kauffman	Richter
Aurentz	Erwin	Keller, J.	Ruth
Baldrige	Fagan	Krill	Scales
Baldwin	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Scranton
Barron	Feather	Leinbach	Sebastian
Barry	Filson	Levin	Shettig

Benedict	Fohl	Mangery	Shively
Benfield	Forster	Mattioni	Shoemaker
Brennan	Gerber	McGlynn	Sprogell
Broderick	Gougler	Meyer	Stout
Brown	Griffith	Miller, D.	Strickler
Burkholder	Hannum	Moorhead	Stroup
Butera	Harding	More	Thomson
Cain	Hatter	Murray	Thornburgh
Caron	Henderson	Nelson	Tomascik
Corey	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Tully
Cortese	Himes	Orban	Welsh
Croop	Horne	Orbin	Westerberg
Curran	Hostetler	Pott	Wilcox
Dailey	Irvis	Powell	Woodring
Desmond	Jirolanio	Redick	Woodside

NOT VOTING—63

Aberman	Fortney	Lee, K.	Reynolds
Allison	Gabreski	Leonard	Roberts
Bagenstose	Gehrlein	Manderino	Rovner
Bashoff	Goldman	Markley	Sahli
Braham	Goldstein	McGeary	Scarlett
Camardella	Gray	Miller, R.	Scott
Caputo	Hocker	Morton	Shapiro
Clark	Huggins	Musselman	Sharp
Conley	Johnson	Otto	Shrager
Cunningham	Keller, M.	Pasquerilla	Solomon
Donaldson	Kelly	Pechan	Van Sant
Donolow	King	Pelletier	Waldron
Dumbauld	Kline	Percey	Warman
Fay	Lane	Prendergast	Whittum
Fineman	Laputka	Quiles	Wilmarth
Fleming	Leach	Rappaport

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

O'DONNELL AMENDMENT TO COMMITEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, I offer an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 14, by striking out "and" and inserting a comma

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 17), page 14, line 14, by inserting after "peace": and all officers serving process or enforcing orders, judgments or decrees of any court or justice of the peace

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Mr. President, the only reason this does not contain the signatures of every member of the Judiciary Committee is that we just did not have time to circulate it and get all their signatures. I believe I can say without fear of contradiction that this represents the intent virtually of the unanimous Judiciary Committee.

The fact is that we overlooked including those officers who enforce court orders and serve process as being persons who should be subject to the rule-making power and supervision over the conduct of those officers.

In other words, this is the first place in the judiciary article in which the office of sheriff and the office of constable comes under a system whereby the Supreme Court can prescribe rules of procedure for it.

I do not believe there is any opposition to this in the Convention, as far as I know.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Butera.

DELEGATE BUTERA. I would address one quick question to the gentleman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE BUTERA. Could this amendment give the Court any other powers other than those just enumerated over the process servers, etc.?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, indeed. If you compare it to the proposal itself, the Committee Proposal No. 7—in other words, if you turn to page 14 it would simply say this, "The Supreme Court shall have the power to prescribe general rules governing practice, procedure and conduct of the courts, justices of the peace and all officers serving process or enforcing orders, judgments or decrees of any court or justice of the peace."

You will note it says nothing about selection, election, appointment, nothing at all. In other words, it leaves it to the Supreme Court to determine whether a constable can or cannot operate a collection agency on the side, or what have you. That is the purpose of this, to bring the constables under the unified judicial system and to make the conduct of their office and their practices and procedures subject to Supreme Court rule, and nothing else whatever.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Baldrige.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. I would like to interrogate Delegate O'Donnell, too.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will be interrogated.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. Delegate O'Donnell, would you say if this amendment is adopted that the Supreme Court could not order the sheriff of Allegheny County to start serving papers in Philadelphia?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, sir, Mr. Baldrige, not at all. I trust that, at least, most of the attorneys in the room are aware that the Supreme Court now has general rules governing—notice the word "general," that word "general" was put in there after hard argument. To order the sheriff of Allegheny County to go to Philadelphia would, of necessity, be a special rule.

DELEGATE BALDRIGE. The article says it provides for the assignment, reassignment. I certainly would think it would.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. If I can answer the question:

The Supreme Court now has prescribed general rules governing practice, procedure and conduct of the sheriff's office already, everywhere in Pennsylvania. All this really does is bring the constables into those very self-same general rules.

You will notice it does not say a thing about assigning a sheriff from one county to another, or even a constable from one district to another, not a word about that. You can reassign cases, but you cannot transfer an officer other than a judge.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. I would like to query Delegate O'Donnell on his proposal.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He is standing for interrogation.

DELEGATE THOMSON. I would like to know if, under this proposal, the Supreme Court could issue instructions or regulations that would stop the constables from acting as traffic officers, special police, speed traps, and such abuses as the situation exists today?

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No, sir, and I would like to show you why my answer is correct.

Every police officer, as you know, Mr. Thomson, in local government is ex officio a constable having to do with arresting and traffic violations, and the like. You will notice that we did not say that in the areas in which they are acting otherwise, we are talking about enforcing orders, judgments and decrees of the courts and in the service of process in the court system. That is all we are talking about.

DELEGATE THOMSON. Mr. O'Donnell, I am not opposed to your idea. I am merely trying to expand the idea and do something that this Convention should have done from the start, and that is to do something about the constable situation in Pennsylvania. We have a lot of debate and a lot of complaints and a lot of publicity from our brothers of the press about the way certain justices and magistrates have abused their privileges, but I want to tell you that all I have seen in that field has not even approached what has happened in the constable field. I would be perfectly satisfied to see any amendment put in there that would abolish completely the police power of the constable.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. This amendment leaves it to the Supreme Court to decide all of the questions which you have just referred to, in this sense, for example, it permits the Supreme Court to determine by general rule what would be an incompatible activity, say, for a constable. This would eliminate 90 per cent of the criticism in Philadelphia. In other words, the Supreme Court could readily adopt a rule prohibiting a constable from having a collection service on the side or operating as a collector.

Rather than write all the detailed rules that would cover every conceivable abuse by a constable, this proposal leaves the Supreme Court in the future to write the rules as the need arises to make sure these people behave themselves well in office.

DELEGATE THOMSON. It would be a pleasure for me to support your proposal.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I want to say for the Judiciary Committee that this is entirely compatible with the section which we brought before this body. We realize there was a lack with regard to the process servers as constables. Unfortunately, the exigencies of time did not permit us to get this in earlier.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question?

We will unlock the voting machines. All those voting "yea" will vote to support the O'Donnell amendment, those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate O'Donnell?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—104

Amsterdam	Cosetti	Irvis	Redick
Aurentz	Croop	Jirolanio	Richter
Baldrige	Curran	Kauffman	Scales
Baldus	Dailey	Keller, J.	Scranton
Baldwin	Desmond	Krill	Sebastian
Banes	Devlin	Leach	Shapiro
Barron	Erwin	Lee, L.	Shettig
Barry	Fagan	Leinbach	Shively
Benedict	Fawcett	Levin	Shrager
Benfield	Feather	Mattioni	Silverman
Bloom	Filson	McGeary	Sprogell
Braham	Fohl	McGlynn	Stout
Brennan	Forster	Meyer	Strickler
Broderick	Gabreski	Michael	Stroup
Brown	Gerber	Michener	Swope
Buck	Gouger	Miller, D.	Tate
Bunting	Griffith	Moorhead	Thomson
Burkholder	Hannum	More	Thornburgh
Butera	Harding	Murray	Tomaselk
Cain	Hatter	Nelson	Tully
Caron	Henderson	O'Donnell	Welsh
Casey	Heyburn	Orban	Westerberg
Clark	Himes	Orbin	Whittum
Clinger	Horne	Popil	Wilcox
Corey	Hostetler	Powell	Woodring
Cortese	Huggins	Rea	Woodside

NAYS—2

Hocker	Shoemaker

NOT VOTING—57

Aberman	Gehrlein	Manderino	Rappaport
Allison	Goldman	Mangery	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Goldstein	Markley	Roberts
Bashoff	Gray	Miller, R.	Rovner
Camardella	Hook	Morton	Ruth
Caputo	Johnson	Musselman	Sahli
Conley	Keller, M.	Otto	Scarlett
Cunningham	Kelly	Pasquerilla	Scott
Donaldson	King	Pechan	Sharp
Donolow	Kline	Pelletier	Solomon
Dumbauld	Lane	Percey	Van Sant
Fay	Laputka	Prendergast	Waldron
Fineman	Lee, K.	Pott	Warman
Fleming	Leonard	Quiles	Wilmarth
Fortney

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

CHAIR THANKS DELEGATES

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair would like to say thank you, fellow delegates, for what I think was a very productive afternoon because we have now run out of amendments.

RECOGNITION OF PAGES

At this time I know that you are in a hurry to get out, but there is one function we have gone through every week and I think you enjoy it as much as I do, and that is recognizing the wonderful service that these honor students have been given us by our pages here. I would like them to stand as I call their names.

Kenneth Nichols and Mark Simeral from Conestoga Valley Senior High School in Lancaster;

John K. Kerr, III, Lancaster County Day School of Lancaster;

Jennifer Hoffer and Gregory Rutter of Lancaster High School in Lancaster;

Denise Witwer and Stephen Kraybill of Warwick Junior-Senior High School in Lititz;

Dolores Rhoades of Central Dauphin Senior High School in Harrisburg;

Christopher Lynn and Ronald Lauer of York High School in York;

Deborah Turner and Christopher Burns from Southwestern Junior-Senior High School in Hanover;

Scott Jackson from Central Dauphin East Senior High School in Harrisburg;

Joseph Layser from Cedar Crest Senior High School in Lebanon;

Jean Spence and Keith Stump from Red Lion Area Senior High School in Red Lion.

MEETING OF COMMITTEE CHAIRMEN AND OFFICERS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have one announcement, please.

The CLERK. There will be an important meeting of the co-chairmen and officers on Monday, February 19th, at 11:30 a.m. in Room 615, Main Capitol Building. Please make every effort to attend.

ADJOURNMENT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gabreski for the adjournment motion.

DELEGATE GABRESKI. Mr. President, I move that the Convention do now adjourn until Monday, February 19, 1968, at 1:30 p.m., e.s.t.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. It has been moved by Delegate Gabreski, seconded by Delegate Irvis, that this Convention do now adjourn until Monday, February 19, 1968, at 1:30 p.m., e.s.t.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 4:40 o'clock p.m., e.s.t.) the Convention was adjourned.

PENNSYLVANIA CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION 1967-1968

JOURNAL

Volume 1 Monday, February 19, 1968 Number 46

The Convention was called to order at 1:30 p.m., e.s.t.

THE PRESIDENT (Raymond J. Broderick) IN THE CHAIR

PRAYER

THE REVEREND GLENN L. STAHL, pastor of the Evangelical Lutheran Church, Waynesboro, Pennsylvania, offered the following prayer:

O God, who by the gracious Providence didst lead our forefathers to this land wherein they sought and found refuge from oppression and established freedom to worship thee, we beseech Thee to guide us, yet a pilgrim people, in the way of truth, brotherhood and peace. Enlighten our hearts and minds that we may always honor our citizenship as a sacred trust and so guard, defend and employ it in accordance to Thy will.

We remember before Thee this day the blessings that have crowned our history. For the courage and foresight of those who left the security of home for the insecurity of an unknown frontier; for the steadfast endurance of those who won liberty and signed its documents in their own blood; for the wise counsel of those who shaped our laws and forged them into a pattern of life which made each man responsible to his brother in love; we bring to Thee our praise. Grant now strength and good understanding to Thy servants upon whom rests the special responsibility of creating new instruments of law and fashioning relevant forms of constitutional government. Guide their hearts and minds as well as the hearts and minds of all citizens of the Commonwealth that we may not be tempted to offend against Thee by forsaking Thy will in favor of our own. Amen.

APPROVAL OF JOURNALS

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. There are no Journals to be approved this morning.

LEAVES OF ABSENCE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes the secretary, Delegate Michener.

SECRETARY MICHENER. Mr. President, the following members have made requests for leaves of absence:

The delegate from the 42nd District, DELEGATE FAGAN.

The delegate from the 48th District DELEGATE CARON.

The delegate ex officio, DELEGATE MANDERINO. They all had to be absent on business.

DELEGATE FLEMING. Mr. President, I would like to ask for a leave of absence for my colleague, Mr. Donaldson for the balance of this week.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Secretary Michener and Delegate Fleming.

Is there any objection to the leaves of absence?

The Chair hears none, and the leaves are granted.

QUORUM CALL

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now call the roll for the purpose of determining a quorum. The delegates will please record their presence by voting "aye."

The roll was recorded as follows:

Allison	Desmond	Keller, J.	Reynolds
Amsterdam	Devlin	Keller, M.	Richter
Aurentz	Dumbauld	Kelly	Roberts
Bagenstose	Erwin	Kline	Rovner
Baldrige	Fawcett	Krill	Ruth
Baldus	Fay	Leach	Sahli
Baldwin	Feather	Lee, K.	Scales
Banes	Fineman	Lee, L.	Scarlett
Barron	Fleming	Leinbach	Scott
Barry	Fohl	Markley	Scranton
Benedict	Forster	Mattioni	Sebastian
Benfield	Fortney	McGeary	Shettig
Bloom	Gabreski	McGlynn	Shively
Braham	Gehrlein	Michener	Shoemaker
Brennan	Gerber	Miller, D.	Silverman
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, R.	Solomon
Brown	Goldstein	Moorhead	Sprogell
Bunting	Gouger	More	Stout
Burkholder	Gray	Morton	Strickler
Butera	Griffith	Nelson	Swope
Camardella	Hannum	O'Donnell	Tate
Cain	Harding	Orban	Thomson
Caputo	Hatter	Orbin	Thornburgh
Casey	Henderson	Otto	Tully
Clark	Heyburn	Pelletier	Van Sant
Conley	Himes	Popil	Waldron
Corey	Hocker	Pott	Warman
Cortese	Hook	Powell	Welsh
Cosetti	Horne	Prendergast	Westerberg
Croop	Huggins	Quiles	Whittum
Cunningham	Irvis	Rappaport	Wilcox
Curran	Johnson	Rea	Wilmarth
Dalley	Kauffman	Redick	Woodring

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The electric roll call tabulator indicates there are 132 delegates present, which constitute a quorum.

The Chair also notes the presence of the following delegates:

Aberman	Jirolanio	Meyer	Sharp
Bashoff	King	Michael	Shrager
Buck	Leonard	Murray	Stroup
Clinger	Levin	Pasquerilla	Tomascik
Filson	Mangery	Shapiro	Woodside

RULES COMMITTEE REPORT

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gabreski.

DELEGATE GABRESKI. Mr. President, some question was raised with regard to the rules as to the electric roll call voting procedures, and we wanted to call it to the attention of the delegates to this Convention that the rule on page 18, Rule No. 19 in Paragraph 4, indicates that no delegate shall vote on behalf of another delegate except as hereinafter provided.

Meaning in effect, should we have to be in our seats whenever we wish to vote on any issue at the time the question is raised, and perhaps if we could abide by this rule in strict conformity, it may create some inconvenience for some of the co-chairmen and some of the committee members who are in front of the convention hall, but I understand the procedure will be, they will be going back to their individual seats to make a vote on the particular question by themselves individually.

Thank you, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Chairman Gabreski.

BISHOP ALFRED DUNSTON WELCOMED

First of all, we have with us today as the guest of Delegate Gray, Bishop Alfred Dunston of the AME Zion Church. I understand the Bishop is a former Philadelphian and now resides in West Africa as the Bishop of Nigeria.

Bishop Dunston, would you please stand up so we can give you our cordial greeting of welcome?

WIFE OF DELEGATE BANES WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Also today, we have with us the wife of Delegate Banes from Allegheny, Mrs. Gay Banes.

We are happy to have you with us Mrs. Banes.

FAMILY OF DELEGATE KAUFFMAN WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. In addition, we have the children of Delegate Kauffman of Montgomery County. With him he has his children Bradley and Marjory.

I am advised that Robert who is 4, could not be with us today so you tell Robert that we miss him.

PARENTS AND CHILDREN OF DELEGATE O'DONNELL WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand that Delegate O'Donnell's parents as well as his children are with us today.

We are happy to have you with us.

WIFE AND CHILDREN OF DELEGATE BUNTING WELCOMED

DELEGATE BUNTING. I am embarrassed, Mr. President. My wife and five children are here today and I did not have the foresight to advise you and I cannot very well go home after the introductions the other families have received without straightening this out.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I want you to know that I have a wife and five children and I understand your problem. We will ask them to stand up and be recognized and we will tell Mr. Bunting and the Bunting family how happy we are to have them with us.

WIFE AND CONSTITUENTS OF DELEGATE CROOP WELCOMED

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Now we have Delegate Croop who wishes to be recognized.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, in addition to my wife, who is with us almost constantly, I have two of my constituents: Mrs. Hupp and her daughter, a student at my own seminary in Wilkes-Barre. They are seated in the rear.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I wish they would stand so we can given them recognition and tell them how happy we are to see them. It is good to have you with us.

CALENDAR

COMMITTEE PROPOSAL ON SECOND CONSIDERATION

Agreeable to order,

The Convention proceeded to the second consideration of Committee Proposal No. 7, Printer's No. 20, entitled:

A proposal repealing article five of the Constitution of Pennsylvania relating to the Judiciary and adding a new Judiciary article.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I understand we are about ready to proceed with the judiciary article. The Chair wishes to explain that on your desks you have what is labeled Committee Proposal No. 7. You will notice that there is no printer's number on this and it is our understanding that this is a clean copy of the proposal as it now reads with the amendments up to the present time. You will find that there are no numbers on the lines because this is just an unofficial printing which we wanted you to have so you could see how far we had gone and how the article now reads. We will proceed to amend the original, which is on the calendar, which is Committee Proposal 7, Printer's No. 20. We will work from No. 20 copy for purpose of amending.

RESOLUTION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Benedict.

DELEGATE BENEDICT. Mr. President, I offer the following resolution and ask for its immediate adoption.

In the Constitutional Convention

WHEREAS, On February 19, 1890, J. W. and Clara Thomson were blessed with a bouncing baby boy; and

WHEREAS, Said bouncing baby boy grew up to become First Class advocate for Second Class Townships; and

WHEREAS, Said advocate for Second Class Townships later became Freshman Delegate to the Constitutional Convention of Pennsylvania from Chester County; and

WHEREAS, Said Constitutional Delegate is loved and admired by all Convention Delegates; therefore be it

RESOLVED, That the Secretary of said Convention record this Convention's expression of Happy Birthday Cappy Thomson.

BIRTHDAY GIFT PRESENTED BY SECRETARY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Secretary M'chener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. The Convention had some trouble trying to decide what to give Delegate Thomson, our youngest and most vital member as a birthday present and we decided upon a copy of the Holy Bible—the St. James version—with one innovation. We went to the publisher and told him we wanted this Bible but in Genesis 2, verse 2, we wanted a slight change. It presently reads: "On the sixth day, God finished the work he had been doing and he rested on the seventh day from all the work he had done." We wanted that last sentence changed to read: ". . . and he rested on the eighth day from all the work he had done," because we all know that God would never have rested until he had created a second class township.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair again recognizes Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. This merely adds to the pleasure that I expressed before. I am not going to take any more time because I have visions of a late session again this evening.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Some people may get the idea we do not have much work to do, since we have been having so much fun for these first 15 minutes.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I second the resolution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes the birthday boy, Delegate Thomson.

DELEGATE THOMSON. First, Mr. President, permit me to thank you for that adjective "boy" and permit me further to say that I do really appreciate this resolution and, more than that, the sentiment back of it and the source from which it comes.

I have greatly enjoyed two and a half months of association with 163 dedicated Pennsylvanians and, because of this resolution, the source—namely, the 163 Pennsylvanians—is very much appreciated and I am sure the whole Thomson family thanks you.

(Applause.)

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I think we should first have the resolution adopted.

Is there any objection to its being up for consideration?

Those in favor of the adoption of the resolution please say: "aye." All the dissenters please say: "no." I just want to report that this was unanimous.

PRINTING CORRECTION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes. In connection with the so-called clean copy of Proposal No. 7, I would like to bring to the attention of the Chair and this body the fact that I believe there is an error in this.

In Section 9, appearing on page 4 of the clean copy, the words "with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court" were repeated. I believe that in each case where the words "with the advice and consent of the Supreme Court" appear in Section 9, those words should have been deleted.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will have that checked and report back to you on that copy.

I understand, Delegate O'Donnell, that you are correct, that should have been stricken out in both places. That was Delegate Barron's amendments. It will be taken care of.

THORNBURGH AMENDMENT TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will now get busy on our amendments, and we have quite a few this afternoon, so as not to delay any further, the Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh for an amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 2, lines 19 to 21 by striking out all of said lines and inserting: Section 5. Rights of Appeal.—There shall be such rights of appeal to courts of record and appellate courts as shall be provided by law.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. Mr. President, to refresh the recollection of this body with respect to this amendment, Section 5, as it appears presently, in Committee Proposal No. 7 provides there shall be a right of appeal in all cases to an appellate court of statewide jurisdiction. There was some concern expressed in the Judiciary Committee at the time this amendment was adopted, and other concern expressed since then, that we may have created a problem here so far as the clogging of the channels of the appellate process.

My amendment would provide that there shall be such rights of appeal to courts of record and appellate courts as shall be provided by law.

In effect, this would leave the status of appellate jurisdiction as it is at present. I would particularly remind the delegates of this fact, because some of the debate last week which surrounded the introduction of this amendment seemed to treat it as if it said there shall be no rights of appeal.

This merely carries forward the present constitutional provisions respecting rights of appeal and, parenthetically, I think of no little significance, it is essentially the same as the rights of appeal provision of our Federal Constitution, Article III, Section 2, which provides for the Federal system that the Supreme Court shall have appellate jurisdiction, both as to law and facts with such exceptions and under such regulations as the Congress shall make.

I would point out that this section, as amended, would provide to two levels of appellate jurisdiction, if you will. It would deal with the problem of certiorari from courts not of record, and it would deal with the problem of appeals from courts, trial courts of record, to the appellate courts.

I would submit that the amendment which has been offered by myself, Delegate Butera and Delegate Fohl, would give the Legislature the right to adjust such problems as may come up in the future dealing with a potential clogging of the appellate process, and would be consonant with the laws that exist at the present time and with the provisions of the counterpart of the Federal Constitution. I would, therefore, urge the adoption of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. Will Delegate Thornburgh consent to be interrogated?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I am sure he will. Proceed with your question.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, will the gentleman advise the delegates of the Convention or give an example of a court not of record under the judicial article as proposed?

DELEGATE THORNBURGH. My understanding is that the justices of the peace are not intended to be courts of record under the proposal as it presently stands. Perhaps the committee chairman might be able to give you a more authoritative answer than I could.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, I think it is a rather pertinent question since the magistrates or the justices of the peace courts will be under the unified judicial system. Whether or not they are courts of record is a matter that should be clarified, and I ask that question and direct it to Co-Chairman Amsterdam, who is now taking the microphone.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. All of the courts set up by the amended Article V, with the exception of the justices of the peace that are continued, are clearly courts of record.

As far as the justices of the peace are concerned, since they will be under the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court for rule-making purposes, they can also be made by the Supreme Court courts of record or, at least, their proceedings can be made of record.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there any further debate on this, or are we ready for the question?

The Chair recognizes Delegate Shoemaker.

DELEGATE SHOEMAKER. Mr. President, I would like to comment on this. I rise in support of the amendment.

I would call to this body's attention that presently I understand there is no constitutional right of appeal, either State or Federal, nor is there any question but what there should necessarily be an absolute right of appeal. The Federal and State decisions have universally held that there is no constitutional right here, and before we create any constitutional right which is, as I understand the present committee proposal when they say "court of record or appellate," or I think it is the appellate court, this would mean that in every case where you have spitting on the sidewalk, or catching a fish out of season, or some such thing, you would have an automatic right to appeal through the Superior Court, which I think is highly undesirable.

I would strongly support the present right of appeal as it now exists, which would basically be embodied in the amendment.

I would support the amendment.

POINT OF INFORMATION

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber. For wnat purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE GERBER. I rise to a point of information.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE GERBER. As I understood the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee to state that only justice of the peace courts, as they would be continued, would not be courts of record. Would the traffic court of Philadelphia be a court of record? This is only a point of information.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We will ask the Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, Chairman Amsterdam, to answer that question, if he will.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That will depend on whether the Supreme Court under its rule-making power determines that the traffic court in Philadelphia shall be set up in a way that will make it a tribunal of record. It may be under the rule-making powers of the Supreme Court, since it is all part of a single judicial system.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair wishes to recognize Delegate Barron, who is at the microphone.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, as I indicated to this body last week, this subject lies very close to my heart. I will take a risk here that I may bore some of those who are not learned in the law and, perhaps some of those who are, by a brief recitation of how the law now stands regarding one's right to have a particular case reviewed by a second court, one other than a court of first jurisdiction.

When any case is brought into court, Mr. President, there is a problem both of fact and of law. The facts are considered by the judge. The law is interpreted by him, and a ruling comes out as a result.

In certain cases a jury is brought in to review both the facts and the law, and at present where there is a jury trial the results of that trial are subject to an outright unlimited appeal. It may seem obvious to many here that an appeal is so fundamental that the idea that it should be denied or limited in any way casts some reflection on the ability of our courts of justice to handle the problem.

However, let me again take the risk of losing the interest of some of you by explaining this. At present the right of appeal takes two forms, one we call an appeal, the other we call a writ of certiorari. The writ of certiorari is a constitutionally protected writ. However, it is limited in what it can do by way of review. Certiorari permits the record, in whatever situation it may be, to be brought up to a higher court and the record only reviewed.

We have gotten into such a problem with this use of the writ of certiorari, because it is constitutionally guaranteed, that our appellate courts have been obligated to split it into two concepts, which they call broad certiorari and narrow certiorari. It, perhaps, is a bit too broad in generalization. However, may I suggest this to you, if the court wishes to take the lower court's findings, the record is reviewed narrowly and the lower court's opinion is upheld. If, on the other hand, it does not wish to do so, it looks into the record by applying what is called a broad writ of certiorari. Both, however, ladies and gentlemen, I suggest to you beg the question. The proposition should be clearly that in any given instance one court alone should not be permited to sit in judgment without having its deliberations reviewed both as to the facts and as to the law. This process is called an appeal.

For example, your youngster may be out at a junior prom, or something similar, with a group of youngsters where there is some liquor being passed around. At present he is arrested before a justice of peace, subjected to a fine between $25 and $100, or 30 days in jail, or both. An appeal on the facts is denied you at the present time, unless a judge of the court of common pleas will grant what is known as an allocatur, an allowance, a permission, not a right to have the matter as to whether the youngster is guilty or whether he is not.

This is also true and, perhaps, astonishingly so in fish and game laws. We have cases where fines up to $4,663 have been levied by a justice of the peace in game law violations without any right of appeal.

By the way, the alternative, and this is a reported case in 207 Superior Court 374, indicates defendant could not pay and consequently was sentenced by the justice of the peace to 4,663 days in jail—4,663 days in jail and the man did not have a right to appeal his conviction.

Some of you have had experience in election laws. Do you know if you are denied the right to register to vote, if you are denied a vote, if you are involved in a contested election, the review is not as to all the facts that surround the situation, but you can only use this writ of certiorari as a constitutional matter at this time.

This, Mr. President, I suggest to you, involves something as plain and as fundamental as being the only substantive right proposed to be given to the people of Pennsylvania by virtue of this new constitutional provision. We have worked considerably with the machinery and the mechanics as to how this court system shall operate. Curiously, we have only in these three lines touched that fundamental known as substantive law as to how a litigant will be treated in the courts of this Commonwealth.

I would like to point out, in addition to the example which I have given to you, an appeal does not lie in adoption cases, only a review of the record is permitted.

In matters of extradition, zoning, civil trials without a jury, labor relations, workmen's compensation, unemployment compensation, decisions of the Public Utility Commission, annexation of boroughs, decisions of the Board of Finance and Revenue, the Philadelphia Commission on Human Rights, banking law and the Board of Arbitration, the claims are reviewable only on the record created below and not both on the facts and the law.

Moreover, the Supreme Court by rule 68½ has elected that it shall be the sole arbiter in all matters relating to certiorari, because whether the statute says there shall be a righ of certiorari, whether there is no expression in the statute, the Supreme Court has assumed the power that it can refuse the right to hear matters on even certiorari.

There has been a very recent constitution in the State of Illinois. Some of the mechanics and machinery this Constitution where they use a circuit court rather than Pennsylvania judicial article are provided in that Illinois Constitution where they use, a circuit court rather than a court of common pleas as we do. It is plainly provided in Section 7 of their judiciary article in all cases, other than those appealable directly to the Supreme Court, appeals from final judgment of the circuit court lie as a matter of right to the appellate court in the district in which the circuit court is located.

Mr. President, I promise you two things. One, I will urge you as vigorously as I know how to give to the people of Pennsylvania a plain, understandable right of appeal in all matters.

No. 2, that if this present motion is defeated, I shall present to you appeal language which will make this right as clear as I know how to do.

One final word about the clogging proposition. I very carefully checked in the Superior Court reports concerning motor vehicle violations. These under present legislation are appealable first to the court of common pleas, the court of quarter sessions actually which will be merged in common pleas, and secondarily to the Superior Court. In Volumes 204, 205, 206, 207 and 208 Superior Court, those which have been most recently found which cover a period from June 11, 1964, to November 17, 1966, there was not one motor vehicle case appealed when this right was now provided.

I suggest to you that the concept of clogging, if there is any, is not unlike the situation of a sewer. If it is clogged up, now is time to open it up.

I suggest that we do this at this time by defeating this proposed amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. Chairman, I will yield to Delegate Hannum.

DELEGATE HANNUM. Mr. President, there is no one in this hall who has more respect for Delegate Barron than I do, but Mr. President and ladies and gentlemen, what Delegate Thornburgh's amendment does is, as I understand it, the view of all the judges of the Appellate Courts of Pennsylvania, and I have a telegram here which I think some of you other delegates have, urging that the Section 5 as Delegate Thornburgh proposes be amended, and the very simple thing here which I suggest makes the utmost sense and Delegate Irvis and Delegate Fineman, and many others have spoken of it much more effectively and eloquently than could I, and that is this separation of power.

Mr. President, with respect to the right of appeal, this in most instances rests with the Legislature and the present Article V is, in my judgment, a clear encroachment on the powers of the Legislature and the Thornburgh amendment takes care of this.

Also, I would suggest that insofar as the present Article V, it is an encroachment on the executive branch and I can only say this, that from conferences with a great many lawyers whom I have known, judges whom I have known, I strongly urge this delegation to adopt the Thornburgh amendment because it corrects what in my view is an improper section, being Section 5 of the proposed Constitution, that is, in short, my suggestion and request.

There is one more thing that I forgot to say, and please forgive me. Secretary Michener earlier said insofar as this judiciary article is concerned he, among others, needs the wisdom and the guidance of the Bar and of the judges with respect to the proper thing. I have been wrong before and maybe I will be wrong again, but, in my judgment, the Thornburgh amendment is what is proper and what should go in the revised Constitution.

DELEGATE STROUP. Mr. President, the discussion which has been presented by Delegate Barron and Delegate Hannum clarifies the situation considerably. As I understand the amendment, it will be either by statute or by rule of the Supreme Court as to exactly what a court not of record would be. This would not be in our Constitution, but will be determined by law. Secondly, the type of appeal that could be taken, whether it be to the merits of the case or as a matter of law, would be determined by the statute or by a Supreme Court rule. I think this is cleared up and I want to be sure exactly what this amendment was doing.

I spoke on behalf of the amendment when it was placed on the floor before. Since now, I have that clarification and I am in favor of the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barry.

DELEGATE BARRY. Mr. President, in response partially to Senator Stroup's remarks, I believe the intention of this amendment was to allow first of all, an appeal from a court not of record to common pleas court, and, second of all, to allow an appeal from common pleas court to an appellate court, so that in all cases there would be what Judge Woodside referred to as getting your two days in Court. I say that you do not have your one day in Court unless you have a right of appeal to an appellate court.

The Federal system has been cited as an example of how you do not have an absolute right of appeal to a court. However, I call the delegates' attention to the fact that there is a right of appeal to a circuit court or to a supreme court of a state, before the supreme court would turn down a person from having a right of appeal to that highest court of the land. So that when our Supreme Court adopted a rule that you had to petition it to have the right of appeal in certain cases and did not have the right of appeal, it is different from the Federal system where there is an absolute right of appeal to a circuit court. Delegate Barron talked about his problems in his county where there is one judge and where you have to go to that judge to find out whether you are going to have a right of appeal to common pleas court. He talks about the problems of appeal from liquor laws, suspension laws, summary convictions, where you must go and appeal to the grace discretion of the lower court before you go up to that court. We do not have that problem in Allegheny County, and I think it is because we have in our county court where these cases go, and in our new common pleas division where it will go, six judges and they all tend to be as liberal as the most liberal judge. In other words, you can wait two days and, if a judge would turn you down, you can go back to another judge, so that multi-judge counties do not have the same problem of appealing to the grace of one judge who gets rid of cases where you could not in a bigger county.

I say to Delegate Barron talk to the one court judgeship to a county, talk to Mr. Solomon, talk to Mr. Keller, and talk to those lawyers from the counties where there is only one judge and see if very often there is not an injustice done where there is not an absolute right of appeal to the common pleas court. I am not saying the judges turn down appeals willy-nilly. I think most of them want to listen to every appeal and they very rarely make a mistake. It is like saying one innocent man was hanged. It should not be that in our system at all, at a lower level, and certainly not on a higher appellate level.

I would like to talk a minute about that. A couple of years ago the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania adopted a rule with a sort of crazy minicker, Rule 68½ of the Supreme Court.

If the statute does not provide that there is a right of appeal, you have to petition the court for that right of appeal, as in the Supreme Court of the United States, where it has not gone up to a court of appeal in the meantime, and that means the Legislature has not specifically said there is a right of appeal. You run a risk of the court not hearing it. I know our court is a fine court and it reads all these petitions, but it does not hold oral argument on any of them. There are a lot of cases, zoning cases, different types of tax appeals, which never get up to oral argument before the court because the court has the right to determine in its own mind whether it wants to hear it, or not. Probably, this disposes of a lot of cases that are before the court. I say one case that should be heard in full with oral argument and with an opinion written by the court and is not heard is an abuse of our judicial process. As a practical matter, they have to read all these papers, and the only thing they do not do is hold an oral argument and write an opinion.

In a lot of the cases that Mr. Barron has cited there are a lot of other ones in the court of arbitration in claims. In the Commonwealth there is no absolute right of appeal from a decision relating to claims against the Commonwealth. The courts held a couple of years ago there was no right of appeal when the State Harness Racing Commission granted a license to one person rather than another. It was an unappealable action. In the City of Philadelphia where there was an appeal from a ruling of the Human Relations Commission, the Court held there was no right of appeal. I am not saying the courts would not listen with attention to a petition to have an appeal in cases like that. I feel the abuses probably would be rare, but one abuse is too many.

Delegate Hannum talked about how Delegate Irvis and Delegate Fineman talked about the separation of power, but I was thrilled when Delegate Fineman got up and said, "This is an absolute right. If we have to have more courts, then we are going to have to get them." You do not get rid of somebody's right by saying it is going to create business for people, too much business for them to handle, any more than you call off a Constitutional Convention because it ties up 163 people.

We are going to have a Commonwealth Court and more appellate court judges. If there is more business for these courts, surely we have all the substance to provide these courts. We have 14 appellate court judges now for approximately 12 million people, one appellate court judge for approximately 1 million people. Pennsylvania has enough on the ball that it can afford the right of appeal to every litigant. As I say, it is not a second day in court. You do not have your day in court unless you have a right to appeal to one of the higher courts of this Commonwealth.

I urge the defeat of this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Gerber.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, without wanting to be redundant in any way and speaking humbly before the statement of His Honor, Judge Hannum, it seems to me that this is one of the issues that we have heard at this Convention, one of the issues that we are really talking about is the rights of people and one of the issues that is constitutional and legislative. I do not think there is any more important right than a right for an individual to be heard. It seems to me one of the critical points that Delegate Barron addressed himself to that cannot be passed over lightly is, in my opinion, there must be a right of appeal from a decision in any election dispute.

To permit the present law to stand as it is and to permit this to be legislative rather than constitutional, I think is a situation where we are running away from a problem under the guise which is legislative not constitutional.

It amuses me when I see amendments come forth that are specifically legislative from the pen of certain people and then turn around and to deny rights that are constitutional. If an individual does not have a right to appeal as to whether or not they may register to vote, if an individual does not have a right to appeal when a common pleas court can determine who fills a vacancy, and a board of commissioners in a first-class township, a board of supervisors in a second-class township, or a borough council, I think that is a deniable right. It certainly seems to me when we are talking about rights, that of one of the "gut" issues of this Convention, this is one of them. To permit their denial through this amendment, I think, would be a retrogressive step on the part of this Convention.

I think it is incumbent upon us to analyze what are really rights of the people and what are guidelines. This is not a guideline. This is a determination of whether an individual does, in fact, have vested within him, or within her, the right to be heard by a different tribunal.

With all due respect to our common pleas courts, I must repeat what Delegate Barry has said, that unless that individual has a right to appeal on the most important question of whether they have a right to be heard as a voter or whether or not the absentee ballot questions that are determined on merit on a lower level can go up on appeal, or whether or not who is seated to fill vacancies in municipal government.

I submit to you, these are rights, and these are rights to determine self-government and to be heard as an elector in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. If we support this amendment, we are then denying these rights as to legislation. I do not think this is a responsibility of the General Assembly. I think it would be unfair to burden them with this responsibility. I think it is beholden upon us to assume those responsibilities which are ours as delegates to a constitutional convention. And as one who has fought against legislation in the constitution from the beginning of the debate, I submit this is not legislation.

We are talking about whether or not human beings have a right to be heard by a different court other than the one in their county or the judicial district. To deny them this right, is to deny them a voice. To deny them a voice, is to deny them participation in our democratic republic.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gabreski.

DELEGATE GABRESKI. I rise in opposition to the Thornburgh amendment and in support of Delegate Barron's position with regard to the absolute right of appeal. May I kindly add that in our County of Venango, which has a population of 65,000, our courts are not flooded with appeals, and if this is any indication to take these figures into your respective areas and to apply them to the population base of this Commonwealth, may I suggest to you that in 1962 there were in a population of 65,000, five appeals to the county court from the minor judiciary in civil cases. This was, in effect, an absolute right that was being exercised by the people. In 1963 there were six cases; and in 1964 there were nine cases; in 1965, three; in 1966, four; in 1967, six; a total of 33 cases in six years' time.

It would not have taken more than possibly an hour of the court's time to determine all 33 of these cases.

This is true with regard to quarter sessions petitions, in other words, defendants or parties coming into court and requesting that their cases be heard upon special allowance to the court on an a la carte Magna Carta that was referred to here. There were no more than 33 cases in that particular aspect of the law.

We are not talking about summary convictions in the motor vehicle cases. They were treated separately. We are talking about this one field of specific rights, the rights that are in existence at the present time under the law and under our Constitution. There is no cluttering up of the courts of record, as may be proposed by the Thornburgh amendment, if this is the fear that is being generated.

I feel very strongly about this issue. I request your support of Delegate Barron. I request your turning down the amendment as proposed by Delegate Thornburgh.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, on Tuesday of last week I spoke in support of the amendment submitted by Mr. Barron. He still has an amendment to present to this body so, consequently, before we are cut off, I would like to speak against the present proposed amendment.

It is surprising to me that so many of you who seemed to mark the fact that you are not lawyers would sit still and remain quiet when an absolute human right not only is being taken away from you, but is being legislated away. Truthfully, this amendment—if I am any kind of a lawyer—takes away the rights of appeal, it leaves it up to the Legislature.

We are talking about the right of appeal. Mr. President and members of this convention, in the judiciary section of this amendment to the Constitution, the right of appeal was passed. It was a close vote but, nevertheless, the arguments given there were fully tested. I say this to you, our present Pennsylvania Constitution, Article V, Section 14, in cases of fines and penalties, permitting an appeal upon cause shown, has been whittled away from the people of Pennsylvania by the action of our Appellate Courts and our Legislators.

Yesterday I read a volume of approximately 270 pages that was captioned "Appeals." Why, it is the rottenest obstacle course in our law. This is what we are saying when we bring this to you. This is what Delegate Barry said, this is what Delegate Gabreski said, this is what Delegate Barron said. Somewhere along the line the people ought to know that from the top—not from the bottom—has come down this doctrine that you are not entitled to a hearing, that you cannot get your hearing if the judge does not want to give it to you.

This is not the kind of society that I would like to continue living in nor have my children live in. Lawyers normally are not permitted to express their opinion when we go before a jury, but in this hall I can tell you that if my professional life is worth anything—it has been brief, but it is 30 years—this amendment is worthless.

I want to say to you, Judge Hannum, when you get into that Superior Court, look at those cases Delegate Barry speaks about and throw them out.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have two delegates still standing, Delegates O'Donnell and Filson.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I would like to address myself to the question for one minute. There has been great confusion in this discussion. The right to appeal is being confused with the right to take a case to an appellate court. They are different. Every citizen of this Commonwealth now has a right to take a case to an appellate court as on certiorari, which means the appellate court takes a look at the record and looks at the briefs prepared by counsel to determine whether there was any error committed by the court below.

A right to appeals is a much vaster right and requires the appellate court to consider the entire case from the lower court which, in the main, means not a second time but a third time, and would involve the appellate courts in so much litigation and so much involvement that we will have to create four other courts of intermediate appellate jurisdiction.

The point is that the right to be heard has with it the correlative right to get an answer, and when non-meritorious cases—cases in which counsel cannot point to an error—are being brought up on this alleged right of absolute appeal, I say to you that claimants having cases of merit will be denied.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Filson.

DELEGATE FILSON. Mr. President, I was going to say something else, but I shall move the question.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Very well. We will unlock the voting machine. The question is: Will the Convention agree to the amendment being offered by Delegate Thornburgh?

All those voting "yea" will vote to support the Thornburgh amendment. Those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Thornburgh?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—32

Bashoff	Fohl	Mangery	Shrager
Braham	Griffith	Morton	Tate
Buck	Hannum	O'Donnell	Thomson
Butera	Hatter	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Casey	Hook	Pelletier	Waldron
Corey	Huggins	Rea	Welsh
Dailey	Irvis	Sebastian	Woodring
Fleming	Lee, K.	Shoemaker	Woodside

NAYS—108

Allison	Curran	Keller, M.	Rappaport
Amsterdam	Desmond	Kelly	Redick
Aurentz	Dumbauld	Kline	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Erwin	Krill	Richter
Baldrige	Fawcett	Leach	Roberts
Baldus	Fay	Lee, L.	Royner
Baldwin	Feather	Leinbach	Ruth
Banes	Filson	Markley	Sahli
Barron	Fineman	Mattioni	Scales
Barry	Forster	McGeary	Scarlett
Benedict	Fortney	McClynn	Scranton
Benfield	Gabreski	Meyer	Shapiro
Bloom	Gehrlein	Michael	Sharp
Brennan	Gerber	Michener	Shettig
Broderick	Goldman	Miller, D.	Shively
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Silverman
Bunting	Gouger	Moorhead	Solomon
Burkholder	Harding	More	Sprogell
Cain	Henderson	Murray	Stout
Caputo	Heyburn	Nelson	Strickler
Camardella	Himes	Orban	Swope
Clark	Hocker	Orbin	Tully
Clinger	Horne	Otto	Van Sant
Conley	Jirolanio	Popil	Warman
Coretti	Johnson	Pott	Westerberg
Croop	Kauffman	Powell	Wilcox
Cunningham	Keller, J.	Quiles	Wilmarth

NOT VOTING—23

Aberman	Fagan	Leonard	Prendergast
Caron	Gray	Levin	Scott
Cortese	Hostetler	Manderino	Stroup
Devlin	King	Musselman	Tomascik
Donaldson	Lane	Pechan	Whittum
Donolow	Laputka	Perrey

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

QUESTIONS OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. This is a matter of personal privilege. I sat in the wrong seat and pushed the wrong button.

Furthermore, Mr. President, after hearing the discussion, I reversed my opinion as far as the amendment is concerned and voted "nay." I do not think this amendment went far enough. I am not exactly in favor of the amendment as it came out of the committee. I am hopeful something more clarifying will be brought to our attention.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Those remarks will be placed upon the record and we hope the delegate can find his right seat.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I was unable to be here at the opening of the session. I would like to be recorded as present.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You are recorded as present. We noted your presence when you came in.

BARRON AMENDMENT No. 1 TO PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron who has two amendments to offer. Which one will be presented first?

DELEGATE BARRON. The longer one of the two which is being distributed, Mr. President.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 2, lines 20 and 21 by striking out "There shall be a right of appeal in all cases to" in line 20 and all of line 21 and inserting: (a) In all cases of summary conviction, judgment is a suit for a penalty, or judgment in any civil suit before a court not of record, a party shall have the right of appeal, with trial de novo on all matters, to such court of record as may be designated by law.

(b) In all cases of conviction before a trial court of record, a defendant shall have, and in all other cases of final judgment before a trial court of record, excepting interlocutory orders and decrees, a party shall have the right of appeal on all matters, but without trial de novo, to a court of Statewide jurisdiction as may be designated by law.

(c) The Supreme Court shall not abridge or deny the right of appeal granted in this section by the exercise of the powers conferred upon it in subsection (a) of section 2 of this article.

(d) Nothing contained herein shall be construed to forbid the imposition of reasonable court costs or the adoption of reasonable rules of court relating to the exercise of the right of appeal granted herein.

(e) Nothing contained herein shall be construed to deny a writ of certiorari to any party as heretofore.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron for a statement in connection with his amendments.

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I had two amendments sent out at one time in the interest of conservation of time, as suggested by the President. The language in either one of them is acceptable to me. However, I am urging for your consideration the first and, unfortunately, the longer of the two because it states—in as tight and as sharp legal and common sense language as I and the Legislative Reference Bureau know how to state—the various rights involved. I would like to point out only three things, and I will do it very briefly.

Subsection (a) of the proposed amendment takes care of the situation relating to summary convictions and provides for one appeal, with trial de novo, with the evidence and the law to be presented to a court of record for its consideration.

Subsection (b) provides one right of appeal after the trial court level to a—not too many but to a—court of statewide appellate jurisdiction.

Paragraph (c) is for clarification so there would be no conflict between this proposed amendment and the language set forth in Section 2, subsection (a), of the article as it now reads.

Subsection (d), I would like to dwell on this just at short length. One of the great hurdles which any appellant has to get over and which discourages many appeals and gives our courts considerable range and latitude of control is the matter of requiring costs to be put up in advance and, also, to require certain forms, printed matter, and otherwise, to be made a part of the records. This I do not intend to touch or destroy in any way, but to keep the orderly progression of cases as it now exists.

Finally, since the writ of certiorari can be a matter of considerable right and should run hand in hand with it, I provide that it shall not be extinguished.

I respectfully submit to you that, as a lawyer, I prefer the language that is here. I would urge its adoption and ratification by this convention because I think it has that essential of clarity.

I may say, if it does not succeed, I am perfectly content with the language which now appears in Section 5 and this would be acceptable.

I would, however, in the interest of clarity state that when the committee voted upon the language that appears in its report, we were under the extreme pressure of time at that particular moment and the detailing of the right involved was not fully expressed, as I consider it. Accordingly, I would urge ratification and continuation of this language.

The second amendment, the short one which has been passed out to you, was an effort to show you perhaps a method by which this present language could be shortened. However, so that everyone may know exactly what I and many of the supporters of this concept have in mind, I urge the amendment as presented.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I would like to interrogate Delegate Barron.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Barron will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Under the long amendment, there is no appeal from the action of the Secretary of Revenue on license appeals, is there?

DELEGATE BARRON. No, sir.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Under the short form, there would be?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, there would be.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Thank you.

DELEGATE BARRON. If I may just amplify that in one fashion, I am sure Delegate Orban, being the fine lawyer that he is, appreciates that the right of appeal on license suspensions to the Superior Court is legislative at the present time.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Is it not a fact that under the present setup, it is impossible to appeal from the Secretary of Revenue to the common pleas court on the point system?

DELEGATE BARRON. That would be a matter of legislation.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. I apologize for coming to this microphone so frequently. A problem has been brought to my attention which I think should be expounded upon to the delegates of this Convention.

The right to appeal under the new point system was attempted to be preserved by the Legislature when that Act was passed. We were sure that right to appeal was preserved. However, under certain technical considerations in some county courts that right has been denied under a motion to quash and, as a consequence, the Department of Justice today and the Department of Revenue say you do not have that right of appeal. In order to correct that, our Senate by a vote of 48 to 0 passed a bill to the House to make certain that such interpretation would not be allowed, but it still rests over here in this body and, as Delegate Orban has pointed out, that right of appeal from the point system by our citizens is now in many of our jurisdictions being denied. I believe it should be preserved.

BARRON AMENDMENT NO. 1 TO PROPOSAL NO. 7 WITHDRAWN

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I would like to ask the sponsor whether he would not agree to an amendment to his amendment. The amendment I would suggest would be the short form that he has proposed, striking out his amendment and inserting therewith the short form that he has proposed.

DELEGATE BARRON. That is acceptable, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. What we are saying, in effect, is that you will withdraw your first amendment and you are going to substitute for it your second amendment.

BARRON AMENDMENT No. 2 TO PROPOSAL No. 7

DELEGATE BARRON. At the request of Delegate Jirolanio, I will withdraw the first one and put in the second one, the so-called short one.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. All right. We understand we are now going to vote on what I will refer to as the second. Has it been distributed?

It has been distributed.

So that there is no mistake, I will ask the Clerk to read this short form.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE BARRON offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 5), page 2, lines 19 and 21, by striking out both of said lines and inserting: Section 5. Right of Appeal.—There shall be a right of appeal in all cases to a court of record and from such court to an appellate court.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Woodside.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate Delegate Barron concerning this.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Barron will stand for interrogation. Proceed with your questions.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. We are proceeding very rapidly here on a matter which is of extreme importance to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the judicial article. I do not know of anything more important than this. I would like to know how this provision would affect an appeal from the Public Utility Commission.

I call attention to the fact that cases before the Public Utility Commission are often referred to masters and in some of the cases may last as much as six months in the taking of testimony and, after the case is heard before the Public Utility Commission and argued before that body, it is appealable to the Superior Court. This provides there shall be a right of appeal in all cases to a court of record and from such court to an appellate court. I would assume from this that there would then have to be set up an appeal, not to the Superior Court, from the Public Utility Commission, but to some other court of record, and then an appeal to the Superior Court, which would seem to me to be a very undesirable thing.

If I am not correct, I wish Delegate Barron would point out to me wherein I am not correct.

DELEGATE BARRON. My understanding of the language, Judge Woodside, is that the appeal coming from the Public Utility Commission, as it now does, in broad certiorari, it would under legislation be permissible to be stated that the appeal to the Superior Court would be the appeal to the court of record as an appellate court.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. But this proposed amendment here says that the appeal shall be to a court of record and from such court to an appellate court. Now, that is two separate courts. The Public Utility Commission is not a court.

The original language which was used in the report of the committee that Mr. Barron proposed before might not have the same result, but this, it seems to me, certainly has that result. I think it is an extremely dangerous amendment.

DELEGATE BARRON. I would suggest that that is not the intent, and I do not believe that the language is in any way in conflict. Frankly, it has been my long-cherished idea that the present appeal in workmen's compensation matters to the court of common pleas is entirely unnecessary, and I would hope for immediate legislation on that to do away with it. You went right from the workmen's compensation board to the Superior Court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. I apologize for delaying the Convention, but in another way I do not apologize.

Frankly, I think that this is one of the most important things that is before us. To the best of my knowledge, there is no such provision in any other state constitution in the United States. This is charting a brand new track here.

I do not understand it, I have admitted this in committee and I admit it now, and I am simply trying to get some information. I would like to get it from both Mr. Barron and Judge Woodside, both of whom are very well versed in this subject.

What I would like to know, first of all, is on the short amendment, the one we are now about to vote on, the gentleman's second amendment, in his opinion, will this somewhat cut down the number of appeals as compared to what is in the proposal from the committee?

DELEGATE BARRON. No, Mr. President.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. The delegate thinks it will be approximately the same?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, sir.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Then, why do we have it?

DELEGATE BARRON. As I believe, you will recall when the language was suggested in committee, it was dictated by the very able Delegate Barry off the top of his head.

I would like to say with great pride of authorship that this is mine alone. It is not. We looked this thing over very carefully for several days and determined that this language was an improvement of what appears in Section 5, as printed.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I ask one other question? What would be the difference, in the gentleman's judgment, in the number of appeals comparing the long amendment with the short one?

DELEGATE BARRON. None.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. None?

DELEGATE BARRON. My intent in presenting both is the same. The shorter one has brevity as its principal merit; not entirely its sole one, but its principal one.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. May I ask a question of Judge Woodside?

Does Judge Woodside prefer the long amendment or the short one in comparison to the committee statement?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, as Governor Scranton well knows, I am not exceedingly happy with any one of the three, but after a hasty consideration of it, which I just made from reading it right now, it would indicate that I would prefer of the three the long amendment.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, for one who does not know what to do, I would like to say that my reaction is that probably the thing to do is to approve the short amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Strickler.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Mr. President, may I interrogate Delegate Barron?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes, indeed. Proceed with your questions.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Speaking in connection with the short amendment, the last one, do I understand we are talking about the right of appeal as two separate propositions, the right of appeal to a court of record, and then, also, guaranteeing the right of appeal from the court of record to an appellate court? In other words, it does not have to be a continuous proposition under the utility cases, and others, they could appeal directly to the Superior Court, if the legislature so desired?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, that is my understanding.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. In other words, it would not prevent them from going directly to an appellate court, which is the court of record, is that correct?

DELEGATE BARRON. That is correct.

This language was especially hewned, if I may say, to give to Pennsylvania law as a matter of right, the same concepts which the Legislature has in its wisdom, and it is the only place, to my knowledge, the Legislature has done it. Where there is a summary conviction under the Motor Vehicle Act, one is entitled to waive the hearing, which is called an appeal, and have one's case tried de novo in a court of record, in a court of quarter sessions of the county. From that there is also given the right of appeal to an appellate court.

This was in broad strokes the proposal we sought to embrace in as tight and, we hope, sharp language contained in the short amendment.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. In other words, what he is telling me is that he considers an appellate court a court of record, is that correct?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes, sir, that is my understanding.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. Therefore, if the Legislature so provided that an appeal could be taken from a decision from one of the agencies, or the Public Utility Commission, or something of that nature, it could go directly to the appellate court, is that correct?

DELEGATE BARRON. Yes.

DELEGATE STRICKLER. That is all.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Braham.

DELEGATE BRAHAM. It is distasteful to me to feel that I ought to speak on this, because everybody is attracted by the right of universal appeal. However, we must remember nothing has been said here that appeals mean delays, and the public is constantly becoming more and more apparent of the danger, and difficulty and bad results of delay.

Secondly, I have noticed the statement as though all prompt decisions are wrong and I noticed reference made to the election laws. The judges on election day are required to make prompt decisions immediately, and the idea that there has to be an appeal from those decisions is all wrong, because in 999 cases out of a thousand the rising of the sun the next morning makes the decision that the judge made on election day entirely academic and entirely immaterial.

I do not believe we ought to saddle the courts with this general provision. The very first one indicates that all appeals must be heard and all the evidence must be heard. I would say, in conclusion, that there are cases where this is true.

If there is a defect in the game laws, if there ought to be a more definite right of appeal, let the Legislature fix that up.

If in any of these cases there is needed a more generous right of appeal, fix it up, but do not grant this right to impose upon the courts the obligatory appeal in every case.

Remember what is being done in the criminal law by the over-generous allowance of appeals in habeas corpus and similar cases. There are cases in which 50 appeals have been made in the same case, and we do not want to make that mistake again.

I believe this ought to be controlled by an application of the statutes to individual cases. Give more generous appeal where it is allowed, but do not put this burden on the court.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I hate to delay this matter any longer, but I do consider it very important. I would like to ask Mr. Amsterdam some questions pertaining to the committee on this. This matter of appeal is a very important matter to any litigant, and I feel that we should have some of the benefits of what the committee did in this area and what they considered.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed with your questions.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, could he tell us exactly what types of appeals he considered? I do not oppose Mr. Barron's proposal, the short form, but there is one question that bothers me here right now, and that is, I take it that an appeal to the Superior Court the decision will give the right of appeal to the Supreme Court by right, and the Supreme Court cannot refuse to accept this appeal. Will this be true? Will this result from this amendment?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I think the delegate is asking several questions. Why do I not try to give you a little background and see if this helps us at all.

This came very late in the committee's proceedings. As a matter of fact, the subcommittee came up with no recommendation in this area at all, and it was presented to us as we were completing the judiciary article. There was a feeling on the part of a number of the members that there should be an absolute right to have an appeal taken to an appellate court, which right does not exist today. There were many of us that had qualms about this, particularly about clogging up the courts, and there was a vote, and the vote was rather substantial. It was about two to one in favor of having a right of appeal to an appellate court, and we felt that there were dangers here, as I have indicated, a volume in the courts. On the other side you have a feeling that there should be an absolute right, to take care of the citizens of the Commonwealth who ought to have their full day in court, and they might not be having a full day by having the matters decided at a lower level and not by an appellate court.

Now, that is about all that happened at the committee level.

I must say that from all the dicussion I have heard, it seems to me that there is a very definite feeling that there should be an appeal in the first instance from tribunals not courts of record, to a court of record that seems to be essential in every single instance.

Secondly, there was a further feeling that in situations where there was not presently a provision for an appellate court, where an appellate court could refuse to take jurisdiction, that that ought to be tempered.

Now, whether Delegate Barron's language adequately does that, I do not know.

It seems to me that Judge Woodside has raised the problem that is a serious one, viz., what type of appeal should be accepted in this context from a non-judicial body, from an administrative body.

It seems to me from the discussions that we had in our committee it was felt that if there was an appeal from such a body to any of the appellate courts, that meant all of the requirements that any of us felt were necessary to be fair and equitable. I notice Delegate Barron is shaking his head "yes." If his amendment does provide for that, then it seems to me that the amendment covers all of the things we talked about in our committee. If it does not, then the language ought to be corrected.

I suggest, Mr. President, that we might as well approve this, unless somebody can point out that the language is inadequate. Since he points out that this is his desire, we might as well approve this and then let our drafting people go to work and see whether they can make sure that the language does what is intended as a result of our discussions here today.

DELEGATE HOOK. My only question, Mr. President, on this is that I had a vast amount of work in the past ten years involving certain administrative agencies, and you have answered this question. I have had a hard time with the Superior Court. I am being very truthful about this. On workmen's compensation cases the appeal is to the Court of common pleas at your local level, whereas in the unemployment cases you have to appeal directly to the Superior Court, and I agree with Mr. Barron's philosophy here, but I do not know whether this is a field of legislation or whether this is a field for the Constitutional Convention. I have a definite feeling on this, that most of the appeals should be to your court of common pleas where it pertains to the facts, and so forth, that arise out of your own locality, and not directly to the Superior Court.

I do not feel Delegate Barron goes far enough in his right of appeal. I definitely agree that all cases should be able to be appealed. I agree with you at one stage, but, basically, I do not know whether this language clarifies the situation sufficiently. I know a lot of long-time legal people here have asked me this same question.

If we do not understand it, how are they supposed to understand it?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I believe in both the committee's proposal and in Delegate Barron's proposal the right to appeal from an unemployment compensation board to the Superior Court would be the same, but there is an absolute right of appeal in either one of those cases.

DELEGATE HOOK. That is true, but, what about the appeal to the local court of common pleas? Would this now be a right in your own locality, and then can we skip to the Superior Court in these particular cases?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is the very thing that troubles me, that is why when Delegate Barron answered that it was his intention that the appeal to the Superior Court should meet all the mandates of his paragraph, I thought it was simply a matter of language. If it is not clear that that is enough, it ought to be made clear.

DELEGATE HOOK. What I am afraid of is that it is going to eliminate the local court of common pleas, and I do not like to come to Harrisburg all the time or go to Pittsburgh to try my cases.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me recognize Delegate O'Donnell, who has been standing at the microphone a long time.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. I would like to interrogate Delegate Barron.

While Delegate Barron is preparing to come to the microphone, Mr. President, from Delegate Amsterdam's observations, apparently this was not considered at all in subcommittee, it was considered once-over lightly in the judiciary committee and that does comport with my recollection as well. It seems to me we are dealing with an extremely important area. We are under some time restrictions here, but I do believe we have time enough to write a good constitution, and I think we have a duty to stay until we do.

In this regard, Delegate Barron, if he would consent to be interrogated, I would like to know just what the mechanic would be if I object to a decision from the Unemployment Compensation Board.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. I wonder if Delegate O'Donnell would yield to me? I want to make a motion if I may.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. Yes, Mr. President.

MOTION TO TABLE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fineman.

DELEGATE FINEMAN. It seems to me there has been enough dialogue on the floor to establish two things. No. 1, that the overriding sentiment of the Convention is that the right of appeal be constitutionally preserved and protected;

No. 2, that the Legal Eagles in the Convention are not in any kind of substantial agreement as to the language needed to be adopted to implement this right.

I have spoken to Delegate Barron about this suggestion. He has agreed that I may state this motion, so I move in order to give those interested in this amendment an opportunity to work out the language, that it be placed upon the table.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. In seconding this amendment, I would like to point out, that as a man who has spent his life with words, I simply cannot be convinced by any evidence so far given on this floor that this so-called short Barron Amendment does not mean three specific steps; an original case, from that an appeal to a court of record, and from the court of record to an appellate court. If it does not mean what this says here, then we better clean up the words as words.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. All those in favor of the motion which has been made by Delegate Fineman, seconded by Delegate Michener, placing this amendment on the table, please say "aye."

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the motion?
It was agreed to.

We will consider the amendment on the table for the purpose of working out the words to take care of the intentions of the Convention.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron. For what purpose does the delegate rise?

DELEGATE BARRON. Mr. President, I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The delegate will state it.

DELEGATE BARRON. I believe we are now about concluded on the first section of the judiciary article. Do I understand that the matters now laid on the table need not be recalled from the table until the entire article is subject to consideration?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. They can be recalled, I think, at any time here in order to take care of this. This is not going to limit you and when you can recall them.

DELEGATE BARRON. Thank you, Mr. President.

SECTIONS 10, 11 AND 12 OF COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We have completed our business as far as the amendment process is concerned, with regard to the consideration of Sections 1 to 9 and 17 and 18. Now, as I understand the suggestion of the Judiciary Committee, it was and I hope still is, to now take up Sections 10, 11 and 12, is that correct?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We may proceed with that.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I will remind the delegates that Section 10 deals with the qualifications of justices, judges and justices of the peace, Section 11 sets forth the number and methods of selection of those officers and Section 12 sets forth the characteristics of a qualifications commission on the assumption that that commission is a part of the selection process.

We would like to present to the delegates Section 10 for such amendments as may be suggested in connection with qualifications, when it comes to Section 11, which deals with the method of selection of members of the judiciary, we would like to suggest that Section 11 be taken up first, which is the method of selecting judges in the various judicial districts, as distinguished from the statewide selection of justices and judges. The reason we are suggesting that is because we found out from our discussions in our committee that the decisions which are made at the local level are the ones that trouble most of the delegates. We feel that if those decisions could be ascertained in the first instance, there would be relatively little problem about what happens on the matter of statewide judges, although we may have some amendments.

Our experience would indicate that it would be relatively easier to handle it if we do it that way, and we, therefore, recommend it to you, Mr. President. If that is satisfactory, I would suggest that we go forward with Section 10 at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Yes.

The Chair now recognizes Delegate Bunting.

DELEGATE BUNTING. Mr. President, before we leave this section, I wonder if the committee would spend just a few more minutes in explaining how it intends the office of register of wills is to be considered under our unified court system.

Our present register of wills office has original jurisdiction on the probate of wills, and our orphans' court has, in a sense, appellate jurisdiction over the question of probate. I am concerned as to whether this is a matter which is intended to be left up to the Legislature to determine by statute as to whether the original jurisdiction can be established by statute in the orphans' court or by rules of the orphans' court, should the need arise in the event the register of wills should pass out of our local government system.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, may I suggest that this is a matter that is covered in the interim period by the schedule. I think when we get to the schedule you will find that most of the answers with respect to the register of wills is set forth. There is one answer in the City of Philadelphia, for instance, there is another answer in the balance of the Commonwealth.

So I think if we would hold that up until we get to the schedule, you will find it is covered. If there is any dissatisfaction, it can be corrected at that point.

DELEGATE BUNTING. That will be fine, sir.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. I hear no objection to the suggestion you made, Chairman Amsterdam, so you may proceed with your discussion.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. Do I understand from the last statement that this is not the time for a presentation of amendments to the schedule, that they are to be handled after the completion of the article itself?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct.

Mr. President, I might indicate that at the beginning, that the schedule for the most part would follow what was done in the article itself and, therefore, we suggested that all questions regarding the schedule be held up until the article itself has been completed. I believe at that point most of it will fall into place.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. All right.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Shapiro indicates that he agrees with your answer.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I do not know that we need any period of time on the items set forth in paragraph 10.

The delegates will notice that the qualifications are as follows, that the justices, judges, and justices of the peace must be citizens of the Commonwealth.

As far as justices and judges are concerned, they must be members of the bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, except for the judges of the traffic court in Philadelphia, who need not be learned in the law.

The justices of the Supreme Court and the judges of the Superior Court and the Commonwealth Court must reside within the Commonwealth and the other judges must reside within the various judicial districts in which they serve.

If there are amendments, we can take them up at this point, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Let me inquire of Vice President Casey and Vice President Orban whether they would sit down with the amendment committee, of which they are members, together with the attorneys and see if we have any amendments to this particular section.

DELEGATE ORBAN. I would like to interrogate Delegate Amsterdam. As I understand it, you are on Section 10(a)?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. We are on Section 10, yes, sir.

DELEGATE ORBAN. According to Section 10(a), a judge appointed or elected need not be a resident of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I do not think that is correct. I believe we provided in Section 10(a) that all justices and judges shall reside within this Commonwealth, that is statewide. In the case of other judges and justices of the peace, they must reside within the district which they serve.

DELEGATE ORBAN. That is prefaced with a remark, during their continuance in office. This does not say they must be in the State or in the county at the time of their election or appointment.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct, during their continuance in office.

DELEGATE ORBAN. According to this provision, as it now stands, a judge from another county could be appointed to the courts of Dauphin County, is that correct?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. There is nothing in this article which requires them to be a resident at the time of election, yes, sir.

DELEGATE ORBAN. As to statewide judges, all they need be is citizens of the Commonwealth, and citizenship and residence is not synonymous, is that correct?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No, I do not believe so. We say, starting on line 19, "the justices of the Supreme Court, the judges of the Superior Court and the Commonwealth Court during their continuance in office shall reside within this Commonwealth."

DELEGATE ORBAN. That is restricted during the continuance in office, is that correct? It does not say at the time of their appointment or election, depending on what we decide. Is that it?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct, sir.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Therefore, an attorney who is a citizen of Pennsylvania could be a resident of Florida and could be appointed to the Supreme Court, could he not?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is right, provided he must reside in the Commonwealth during the entire period of his continuance in office.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Scranton.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Mr. President, that is exactly the same phrase that is used in the present Constitution, "during their continuance in office." The reason for it is, technically, that if somebody was elected to Congress, or if he was appointed an Ambassador to the Philippines, or if he was somewhere else around the world, and was technically residing there for a period of time and was appointed, we did not think he ought to be thrown out as a possibility.

DELEGATE ORBAN. In those cases they do not change their residences. That is just a temporary leave.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. Some of them do, and this is why it was done in the present Constitution and this is why we have continued.

DELEGATE ORBAN. My feeling is that if the old Constitution was bad, we should not make this one bad.

DELEGATE SCRANTON. All I can say to you is, there has been no problem with it on that score.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Reynolds.

DELEGATE REYNOLDS. It seems to me we are trying to get these people who are interested in these various items together. I remember when the Home Rule Committee was reporting they had two leaders sitting up there and explaining this as we went along, and we got through quickly and congratulated the committee.

I believe if ex-Governor Scranton will go up there with the other eminent Chairman, I believe we can do the same thing. They are fully prepared to give us the necessary information, they can tell what the committee did, but it seems that somehow or other the Judiciary Committee does not have the same focus that we had with the Home Rule Committee. Those two fine leaders sat there, and each time they explained what it was. We did not have much trouble.

I see Governor Scranton sitting over here conferring with everybody who wants to talk with him, because he is congenial, but I believe we need him up here where we can have the weight of his influence and his leadership, even though he says once in a while he does not understand. I bet you all the tea in China he knows more about all these things better than any other man in this room because he has studied them. Certainly, Co-Chairman Amsterdam is sitting there, and I think they ought to be together and the whole subcommittee ought to be there like the Rule Committee was to explain it. We would not have so many arguments, and we can adjourn for them to get together.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The only thing I can say, Delegate Reynolds, is that you have Chairman Scranton on the move now.

Chairman Amsterdam, we have some amendments on

Section 10. Those amendments on Section 10 are in the process of being duplicated and it will be a minute or two before they are distributed.

Would you like to go ahead and explain the next section?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, sir, I would be glad to do so.

Starting with Section 11, we come to the method of selecting justices, judges and justices of the peace.

Of course, when we use the word "justice," I am sure everybody understands that we are talking about justices of the Supreme Court as distinguished from judges of the various other courts in the Commonwealth. In the one case of justices of the peace the term we are using is the term that we have always used in the Commonwealth, and where we mean justices of the peace we use that term.

We have provided in Section 11(a) that whenever a vacancy shall occur in the office of statewide courts, whether it be a justice of the Supreme Court, or a judge of the Superior Court, or Commonwealth Court, that the Governor shall fill the vacancy by appointment from a list of persons qualified for that office, and set forth in the report of the State Judicial Qualifications Commission which will be referred to in some detail a little later.

So for the purpose of an initial appointment of a statewide judge or justice, the Governor is the appointing authority from a list, and you will see later that that list must be at least 10, and not more than 20, for each and every one of the openings on the Court, whether it be Supreme, Superior or Commonwealth. Such an appointment is not required to have the consent of the Senate.

In Section 11(b) we then come to the method of selecting nonstatewide judges, which are judges in the various judicial districts, and here we have maintained the present method of selection of judges, which is by election.

In the first instance, judges in all the judicial districts are required to be elected in the same manner in which they are elected today. However, we do provide that in any judicial district by a plebiscite with a majority of the electorate voting in favor of that type of method of selection of judges, there may be a district judicial qualifications commission similar to the one provided in the case of the statewide courts. There the Governor will appoint based on accepting one of the names given to him by the district judicial qualifications commission. But I must point out very clearly that after such an election by the electorate in any district, the present system for the selection of judges continues in the first instance.

When it comes to a second election, after a judge has been elected in a particular judicial district for the first time and his term of office is terminated by the time period of 10 years, which we have fixed later in this Constitution, then we provide for a retention election. If that same judge desires to continue in office, he files a declaration of candidacy, and then the vacancy is filled at a municipal election by the electors who decide whether that judge is qualified, or not, to continue in office. So he does not run against anyone else in a normal type of political election, he merely runs on his record and the electorate in the particular judicial district decides whether on his record he may be continued for an additional period of 10 years as a judge in that particular judicial district.

In those cases where the qualified voters have elected to fill vacancies by panel selection, the provision for election of judges, will, of course, cease, and the district judicial panel, which we have provided for in Section 12(b), will give names to the governor from which he shall select the judge for that particular judicial district.

We have also provided in Section 11(e) that any question with regard to placing upon the ballot the question of whether judges should be selected by the panel method as against the elective method shall be placed on the ballot when five per cent of the total votes cast for all candidates for the office receiving the highest number of votes shall have been the number of electors equal to that five per cent and shall have asked for that item to be put upon the ballot.

When that is done, there is an election to determine whether the qualifications commission shall be adopted as a means of selecting judges in that judicial district and, if approved by a majority of the electorate, that continues until such time as the judicial district at a later election upon the same five per cent of the electorate shall determine that it once again be put on the ballot and, if it is put on the ballot a second time, and the electorate decides, by a majority vote that there will no longer be such a judicial selection, then you go back to the election method once again.

In other words, you can go from the present election method to the selection by panel method and then back to the election method as often as there is an election, provided, however, an election may not be held for that purpose more than once in any five-year period. So we have tried to provide that the electors in a particular judicial district shall have the option of determining their own method of selecting their judges by either the election method or the qualification method.

Then we have provided that the chief justice and the president judge—and I am now reading from paragraph (g) on the bottom of page 6—shall be selected for five year terms by the members of their respective courts, except in the case of the president judge of the traffic court of the City of Philadelphia, and in that case, since they are not lawyers in that court, we have provided that the selection shall be made by the Governor.

In Section 12(a) we set up the make-up of the qualifications of the statewide qualifications commission. You will note that it is made up of four nonlawyer electors and three nonjudge members of the bar of the Supreme Court, and of these seven members no more than four of whom can come from the same political party, must afford to the Governor a series of names not less than 10 nor more than 20 for each vacancy.

In the case of the district qualifications commission, this is made up of three nonlawyers and two lawyers, all of them must be residents of the district, and they serve for a term of five years.

We provided, of course, on page 8 of Section 12(c) that the members of the commission may not hold political office. This is simply to make sure that they are not putting the political process into the judicial selection.

That, I think, Mr. President, is the highlight of what these provisions are.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Chairman Amsterdam.

We are ready to take up the amendments now to Section 10, and I might add that we have four, and possibly five. We will proceed with the amendments on Section 10.

POINT OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Henderson. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE HENDERSON. I rise for a point of personal privilege.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE HENDERSON. May I speak on a point of personal privilege in opposition to the committee's proposal before the amendments are started? I would like to speak in opposition to the qualifications commission approach to the selection of judges.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Henderson, I am advised by the Parliamentarian that you may not speak on a point of personal privilege in connection with something that we are now considering. You may be heard, there is no question about that, at any time we come to that.

DELEGATE HENDERSON. We are on this right now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Do you wish to be recognized in connection with Section 10?

DELEGATE HENDERSON. That is right, Mr. President.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Henderson in connection with Section 10.

DELEGATE HENDERSON. The basic premise of American democracy is based on the fact that we, as a people, consent to be governed and governed in a three-fold plan of separation of powers—

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, may I just suggest to Delegate Henderson that what he is talking about comes up really in Section 11, and it would help us all, I think, if he would give us the benefit of his remarks at the time we are taking up Section 11.

DELEGATE HENDERSON. I yield to the Co-Chairman.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you, Delegate Henderson.

AMSTERDAM AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 21, by removing the comma after "Commonwealth" and inserting a period

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 22, by striking out "and the" and inserting: The

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 24, by removing the period after "serve" and inserting: , except as otherwise provided in this article for temporary assignments.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, in a number of the sections in Article V we provided for the temporary assignment of judges and justices in accordance with the rules and prescription of the Supreme Court. Unfortunately, we provided in Section 10 that a judge may only serve in the judicial district, in which he resides and, therefore, we have to have an exception if we are really to make the provisions as flexible and as desirable as has been intended by the committee. We must provide that in the case of temporary assignment judges need not live in the judicial district in which they are serving. This is simply to take care of that one situation, in order to gain the flexibility that was intended by the entire committee.

I do not believe that this is controversial.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. If it is not controversial, do we have the feeling of the body that we should move the question right now?

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Amsterdam?

The roll call is as follows:

YEAS—125

Allison	Devlin	Krill	Richter
Amsterdam	Dumbauld	Leach	Ruth
Aurentz	Erwin	Lee, K.	Sahli
Baldrige	Fawcett	Leinbach	Scales
Baldwin	Fay	Leonard	Scarlett
Barron	Feather	Mangery	Scott
Bashoff	Filson	Markley	Scranton
Benedict	Fineman	Mattioni	Sebastian
Benfield	Fleming	McGeary	Sharp
Bloom	Fohl	McGlynn	Shettig
Braham	Fortney	Meyer	Shively
Brennan	Gerber	Michael	Shrager
Broderick	Goldman	Michener	Silverman
Brown	Goldstein	Miller, R.	Solomon
Buck	Gouger	Moorhead	Sprogell
Bunting	Griffith	More	Stout
Burkholder	Hannum	Morton	Strickler
Butera	Hatter	Murray	Stroup
Camardella	Henderson	Nelson	Swope
Caputo	Heyburn	Orban	Tate
Casey	Himes	Otto	Thomson
Clark	Hocker	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Clinger	Hook	Prendergast	Tulty
Conley	Irvis	Popil	Van Sant
Corey	Jirolanio	Pott	Waldron
Cortese	Johnson	Powell	Welsh
Cosetti	Kauffman	Quiles	Westerberg
Croop	Keller, M.	Rappaport	Whitlum
Cunningham	Kelly	Rea	Wilcox
Curran	King	Redick	Wilmarth
Dailey	Kline	Reynolds	Woodring
Desmond

NAYS—0

NOT VOTING—38

Aberman	Forster	Laputka	Pelletier
Bagenstose	Gabreski	Lee, L.	Percey
Baldus	Gehrlein	Levin	Roberts
Banes	Gray	Manderino	Rovner
Barry	Harding	Miller, D.	Shapiro
Cain	Horne	Musselman	Shoemaker
Caron	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Donaldson	Huggins	Orbin	Warman
Donolow	Keller, J.	Pechan	Woodside
Fagan	Lane

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

TATE AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I now present an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 22 to 24, by striking out all of said lines.

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, this amendment is designed to do one simple thing and that is to eliminate the residence requirement within the district in which a judge serves from the committee proposal. To the best of my knowledge this is an amendment which will have practical effect only in Philadelphia County.

There are two sides to this question, and I do not wish to deny that fact. This has been a problem in Philadelphia because of the fact that many of the lawyers who practice in Philadelphia, a very large number of the lawyers who practice in Philadelphia, which has a Bar of over 5,000 members and who are eligible to become judges and do become judges in Philadelphia, actually live outside Philadelphia, or may during their term in office desire, as many people do from time to time, to move outside the limits of Philadelphia, but within the metropolitan area.

Under the present Constitution and under the committee proposal, such people would be prohibited from serving in judicial office in the County of Philadelphia. Because of the fact that their professional lives have been located in the County of Philadelphia, they would, of course, not normally be named or elected as judges in the counties of their residency, wherever that might be.

There are arguments, and I recognize them, that a judge ought to live close to where he is going to have to serve and understand the community in which he is going to serve. Those arguments I recognize as having some validity.

However, when you come to a large metropolitan area such as Philadelphia, there is very little difference between living in a suburban area within the County of Philadelphia and living a couple of blocks farther in Montgomery, Delaware or Bucks County. The neighborhoods are approximately the same. We all in the metropolitan area, share the same problems and the same understanding. Therefore, I think what the present amendment's language and the committee proposal actually does is to encourage people to maintain fictitious residences in the County of Philadelphia, when actually they live outside the County of Philadelphia.

I am advised this has happened on a number of occasions, and I think will be happening in the future if the committee proposal stands in this respect.

I think this will be a wise amendment and urge the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, it is with some regret I must disagree with my learned friend of Chestnut Hill, Mr. Tate. I must speak against this amendment. I live in the City of Philadelphia and I practice law in the City of Philadelphia. It so happens that of my three law partners not one of them lives in the County of Philadelphia, they all live in the suburbs, but I must state to this Convention that if a man is too good to live in his district, if he cannot find some place in his district that meets with his approval as a place to live, then he is too good to be a judge and in any way represent that district.

I think the concept of absentee politicians must come to an end, and this is especially true in the field of the judiciary. After all, a lot of the problems that come into our criminal courts are social problems. We already have some small difficulty with visiting judges from upstate who really do not understand our problems. Some of these judges will give out prison terms for "numbers writing," which just does not happen.

To be serious about this, Mr. Butera has just reminded me that Philadelphia, in order to give representation to the suburbs, that pay wage taxes sometimes elect city councilmen from Montgomery County. This is just a matter of courtesy to Delegate Butera so that his people cannot claim taxation without representation.

Seriously, I think a judge especially should live in the district in which he is a judge. The people of that district have a right to somebody who lives there, and only a man who lives in his district can understand the problems of the district.

It is for this reason in the upstate counties, the smaller counties they have lay judges to acquaint visiting judges with the problems. We in any county must insist on having judges who live in the county. Any man who wants to be a judge can move back into Philadelphia County and, if he is not willing to make that sacrifice, then, perhaps, he is too good to be a judge and we should let him remain a lawyer.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Curran. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE CURRAN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE CURRAN. Would the Amsterdam Amendment which we just passed, which pertains to lines 22 and 24, prohibit the consideration of the Tate Amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. No, not according to our Parliamentarian because they refer to an entirely different subject.

Are we ready for the question?

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Tate?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—10

Buck	Cosetti	Shapiro	Swope

Bunting	McGlynn	Sprogell	Tate
Burkholder	Rea

NAYS—129

Allison	Dumbauld	Keller, M.	Rappaport
Amsterdam	Erwin	Kelly	Redick
Aurentz	Fawcett	King	Reynolds
Bagenstose	Fay	Kline	Richter
Baldrige	Feather	Krill	Roberts
Baldus	Filson	Leach	Ruth
Baldwin	Fineman	Lee, K.	Sahli
Banes	Fleming	Lee, L.	Scales
Barron	Fohl	Leinbach	Scarlett
Barry	Forster	Leonard	Scott
Bashoff	Fortney	Levin	Scranton
Benedict	Gabreski	Mangery	Sebastian
Benfield	Gerber	Markley	Sharp
Bloom	Goldman	Mattioni	Shelhig
Braham	Goldstein	McGeary	Shively
Brennan	Gouger	Meyer	Shrager
Broderick	Griffith	Michael	Silverman
Brown	Hannum	Michener	Solomon
Butera	Harding	Miller, R.	Stout
Cain	Hatter	Moorhead	Strickler
Camardella	Henderson	More	Stroup
Caputo	Heyburn	Morton	Thomson
Casey	Himes	Murray	Tulty
Clinger	Hocker	Nelson	Waldron
Conley	Hook	Orban	Warman
Corey	Horne	Otto	Welsh
Cortese	Huggins	Pasquerilla	Westerberg
Croop	Irvis	Popil	Whitmm
Cunningham	Jirolanio	Pott	Wilcox
Curran	Johnson	Powell	Wilmarth
Dailey	Kauffman	Prendergast	Woodring
Desmond	Keller, J.	Quiles	Woodside
Devlin

NOT VOTING—24

Aberman	Gebrlein	Miller, D.	Percey
Caron	Gray	Musselman	Rovner
Clark	Hostetler	O'Donnell	Shoemaker
Donaldson	Lane	Orbin	Tomasclk
Donolow	Laputka	Pechan	Thornburgh
Fagan	Manderino	Pelletier	Van Sant

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

ORBAN AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Orban.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, I wish to offer an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE ORBAN offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 20, by inserting after "Court," where it appears the last time: at the time of their election or appointment and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 22, by inserting after "peace,": at the time of their election or appointment and

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Orban to speak on behalf of the amendment.

DELEGATE ORBAN. Mr. President, the purpose of this amendment is to add to the resident requirement during the term of office of the judge, whether he be elected or appointed. It will require that he be a resident of the State of Pennsylvania as to the appellate court judges, and in the counties he shall be a resident of the county in which he may be elected or appointed.

I think the remarks of Delegate Rappaport go to the same issue and in reply, as I indicated in the exchange with Governor Scranton, if a congressman is to be appointed or elected, he does not change his residence, it is a temporary move and he comes back to vote, his residence is back in his district. I submit that any man who wants to be a judge in any county, or in the State, should feel that that county is good enough for his residence.

There was a remark made by Delegate Tate that in Philadelphia the man sets up a fictitious residence. If he sets up a fictitious residence, then I do not think he deserves to be a judge. I think he should show where he lives.

These people will be dealing with the people in that county. These are the people who know the man when he is a candidate for election, or whenever he is appointed or designated by the nominating commission, if that is in effect.

I feel that this amendment should be passed by this body.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Gerber. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

DELEGATE GERBER. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The gentleman will state it.

DELEGATE GERBER. Mr. President, on this amendment does Delegate Orban mean line 22 in the second part rather than line 20?

DELEGATE ORBAN. I am sure that is right, Mr. President. That is correct, they passed out the wrong sheet.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. I would like to ask Delegate Orban a few questions.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. He will stand for interrogation.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, does not the gentleman think a period of time, rather than just to say "residence," would be a great improvement? For instance, in the Act that permitted this Convention to be here, in order to confine ourselves to people who were residents of the senatorial districts, we had to be residents for a period of one year, or more.

I suggest that this be a part of the amendment, that the time of residence or the time of appointment should be one year, or more, because I can visualize that somebody might be elected and then move in in time to pick up their commission or their appointment. I would like the gentleman's reaction to this?

DELEGATE ORBAN. It appears to me, Delegate Croop, that the Legislature could set the period of time he must be a resident of the county and, if such an amendment was offered to my amendment, I would have no objection. I do feel the Legislature can set the time limit.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. This was considered by the subcommittee and Judiciary Committee, and I should like Delegate Shrager to give the points of view of the committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shrager.

DELEGATE SHRAGER. Mr. President, as a practical matter, this provision is the same as the provision in the present Constitution. We found it caused no difficulty whatsoever, as long as the judge lives in the district, when we are talking about the judicial district, after he has been elected and served as a judge, or appointed. That seemed to take care of any qualms that any members of the committee had on any information that anyone had given them as to whether or not this provision should be changed. The majority of the committee felt that the provision as written should be the one that should be placed in the present Constitution.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fleming.

DELEGATE FLEMING. Mr. President, for the information of Delegate Orban, I have an amendment somewhere, which was the first one I offered, in which I do insert the words "qualified elector."

DELEGATE ORBAN. What is your intent? Where would you insert it?

DELEGATE FLEMING. Line 16.

I am not sure that takes care of what you are doing, Mr. Orban. I am afraid it does not, now that I look at this. I do not want to consume the time. I will prefer not to agree to the amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question on Delegate Orban's Amendment? I will ask the clerk to unlock the voting machine and proceed to vote.

All those that vote "yea," support the amendment and those who vote "nay" reject the amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Orban?

QUESTIONS OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN. Mr. President, I intended to vote "yea" on that amendment and I inadvertently voted "nay." Will you change my vote?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may change your vote, because it has not been announced yet and we will see that it is so recorded.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Barron.

DELEGATE BARRON. Please record me as voting "yea" on this proposition.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Barron also wishes to be recorded as voting "yea."

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—110

Allison	Fenlin	Kline	Prendergast
Aurentz	Fawcett	Krill	Rea
Bagenstose	Fay	Leach	Redick
Baldrige	Feather	Lee, K.	Reynolds
Baldus	Filson	Lee, L.	Richter
Baldwin	Fineman	Leinbach	Roberts
Banes	Fleming	Leonard	Rovner
Barron	Fohl	Levin	Sahli
Bashoff	Forster	Mangery	Scales
Benedict	Gerber	Markley	Scarlett
Bloom	Goldman	Mattioni	Scott
Braham	Goldstein	McGeary	Sharp
Brennan	Gouger	Meyer	Shettig
Broderick	Griffith	Michener	Shively
Brown	Harding	Miller, D.	Solomon
Butera	Hatter	Miller, R.	Stout
Cain	Henderson	Moorhead	Strickler
Camardella	Himes	More	Stroup
Caputo	Hocker	Murray	Swope
Casey	Hook	Nelson	Tully
Conley	Horne	Orban	Van Sant
Cortese	Huggins	Orbin	Waldron
Croop	Irvis	Otto	Westerberg
Curran	Jirolanio	Pasquerilla	Whittum
Dailey	Keller, J.	Popil	Wilmarth
Desmond	Keller, M.	Pott	Woodring
Devlin	Kelly	Powell	Woodside
Dumbauld	King

NAYS—26

Amsterdam	Cosetti	McGlynn	Sprogell
Barry	Fortney	Morton	Tate
Benfield	Gabreski	Ruth	Tomasclk
Bunting	Gehrlein	Scranton	Warman
Burkholder	Hannum	Sebastian	Welsh
Clark	Johnson	Shapiro	Wilcox
Clinger	Kauffman

NOT VOTING—27

Aberman	Fagan	Michael	Rappaport
Buck	Gray	Musselman	Shoemaker
Caron	Heyburn	O'Donnell	Shrager
Corey	Hostetler	Pechan	Silverman
Cunningham	Lane	Pelletier	Thomson
Donaldson	Laputka	Percey	Thornburgh
Donolow	Manderino	Quiles

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

TATE AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. Mr. President, I rise to offer an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE TATE offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 18 and 19, by striking out "except the judges of the traffic court in Philadelphia." and inserting a period

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Tate.

DELEGATE TATE. This amendment, quite simply, would require that judges of the traffic court, as other judges throughout the Commonwealth as this Convention has decided, be members of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania.

This Convention had decided already last week that it wishes to deal differently with Philadelphia in connection with the minor judiciary than other parts of Pennsylvania, and I accept that decision as the decision of the Convention. However, this provision would mean that we are going to have two kinds of minor justice in Philadelphia. We will have one kind dispensed by the municipal court, which will be composed of men learned in the law, members of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, and then we will have traffic justice, which will not be dispensed by such persons.

In my opinion, the traffic problem is one where perhaps more citizens will come in contact with the law than in any other single place. If we need respect for law and justice, we should begin, in my opinion, where it hits most of the people. I think that more people come in contact with the law in connection with traffic violations than any other place.

I do not propose for a minute that lawyers have more character than other people, and I do not propose that, therefore, the traffic court in Philadelphia should be composed of lawyers because they are going to be better men.

I do propose, however, that with the complications which we all know are coming into our law—and they come in at the traffic court level just as they come in at other levels, because traffic court violations are subject to many of the same personal rights that other violations of law have, as far as defendants are concerned—that is where we ought to begin, not end, the effort to bring respect for the conduct of the judiciary. So I think we ought to man our traffic courts in Philadelphia, as long as it is the decision of this Convention to have such a court, with persons who are able to interpret legal decisions and the decisions of our higher courts.

Therefore, I ask this Convention to approve this amendment which would, with respect to qualifications, put the judges of Philadelphia's traffic court on the same plane as the rest of Philadelphia's minor judiciary.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Rappaport.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Chairman of the committee on the language to which this is an amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed with your questioning.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Was the language in the proposal as it reads now, "except the judges of the traffic court" from being members of the Bar, in the proposal passed by the committee on February 2nd?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Yes, it was. The date is the only thing that confuses me. This was a part of what was in the proposal that was approved. Now, whether it was that date, or not, I do not know. Whatever date it was adopted, this language to my recollection—let me just check and make sure. I am told that that is correct that this was in it at the time of approval.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I have before me what purports to be a copy of the proposal that was before your committee on February 2nd, and it states that all justices and judges shall be members of the Bar of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania—period, with no exception.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. President, I am assured—and it is my recollection, also—that this was a part of what was approved. The only thing unclear to me is whether this was in the schedule or in the article itself. I am trying to get some confirmation whether it was in one or the other.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I ask Delegate Rappaport if he will yield until that is ascertained, and we will recognize you again.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. I think I made my point. I am sure Delegate Amsterdam will have a reply to the floor as to what happened in the committee, and I will yield the floor back to the Chair to recognize any other delegate.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Thank you.

The Chair recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. I am speaking in opposition to this particular amendment simply because if Mr. Tate would want all of the JPs throughout Pennsylvania to hear the same cases that appear before the traffic court in Philadelphia to be lawyers, then I would think he would have substance to his argument that he presented to you.

But by virtue of the fact that he has singled out the traffic court of Philadelphia, which just hears summary cases involving the Motor Vehicle Code and does not hear indiefiul cases which go before the common pleas court, we feel this is a nonlawyer's job similar to the hearing examiners that the vote license which is far above the jurisdiction of our traffic courts in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh and JPs throughout this Commonwealth. They are laymen in the Department of Revenue and they do a good job.

I think that there is room in our judicial system for lay people for many reasons. I do not think this Commonwealth has enough lawyers in every county and in every section to man the courts as they properly should be manned. Until that time I am in favor of the lay magistrate or the lay justice of the peace, so that the judicial business of the court may continue to process and take place.

We feel that having a nonlawyer in this job does several things. It allows us to put laymen in quasi-judicial positions and it allows us to run a traffic court at a salary commensurate to the work and the effort that is put in it. To me, it would be simply ridiculous to pay a lawyer —of course, I am speaking objectively, perhaps 68 of you would disagree with me—but it would be ridiculous to pay a lawyer $20,000 a year to sit in traffic court to hear summary offenses.

I, for one, believed we had settled this last week. I was perfectly willing—and so were our Democratic magistrates, and I talked with all of them over the weekend, as well as our Republicans—to let the people decide. We let the Shapiro amendment go through and I was happy to have that amendment go through. This attack upon the judicial standing of the traffic court in Philadelphia in the way Mr. Tate presented it is really an attack upon Philadelphia only and not upon the system of the justices of the peace throughout Pennsylvania.

I ask you not to support this amendment and to support Proposal No. 7 as it has come out of committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Shapiro.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I think there is much merit in what the last speaker has said, but I wonder if he is aware of the fact that the following subsection of Section 10 makes provision with respect to the justices of the peace and with regard to their qualifications that do not apply in the case of the Philadelphia traffic court judges.

Section 10 (b) provides that justices of the peace shall be members of the Bar of the Supreme Court, or shall complete a course of training and instruction in the duties of their office and pass an examination prior to assuming office. The course of study and examination shall be as provided by law.

So far as I have been able to ascertain, there is nothing in the article as proposed by the committee—Proposal No. 7—which would place any similar requirement on the judges of the traffic court. I would like to first check as to whether or not I am correct on that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Chairman Amsterdam, would you answer Delegate Shapiro's question?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Would you restate it, please?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. My question is whether there is any requirement in Proposal No. 7 with respect to the training of judges of the traffic court similar to the provisions with respect to the training required of justices of the peace in Section 10 (b).

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. Mr. O'Donnell would be glad to clarify that.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate O'Donnell.

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. This was a matter which was very lightly covered, Delegate Shapiro, but I gather from speaking to Mr. Devlin that he would not object, after the grandfather clauses and what have you that are in it, that men in the future—in other words, men who are not magistrates now at all—would then take the usual justice of the peace qualifying test and would be examined. Am I correct?

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. That is not my question. The question is whether the proposal presently has any requirements—

DELEGATE O'DONNELL. No. It was an oversight, I believe.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Devlin.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. I would go one step further. I think it is right that these men should be trained in the law whatever law they deal with, whether it be motor vehicle law only or other jurisdictional matters pertaining to the justice of the peace. I think you have a good point, Delegate Shapiro, and, if you take the time to prepare the proper amendments, then the magistrates that are going to continue on in Philadelphia, either in the municipal court or in the traffic court, should come under the same type of training that now applies to the justices of the peace, magistrates, etc., as contained in this Proposal No. 7.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. I was going to suggest that perhaps Delegate Tate would be willing to accept some form of amendment to his proposed amendment so that the judges of the traffic court would be accorded the same treatment or the same requirements as justices of the peace, with exception, as you point out, that perhaps their training should be something different. But that is a matter, I think, for the Legislature.

I think the article, as presently providing for justices of the peace, would permit that if we included in Section 10 (b) the judges of the traffic court.

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Mr. Chairman, I think that Delegate Shapiro's approach to this is rather tangential. I think a direct approach would be more becoming to this article if we would take Section 9 (b) and make it apply to the magistrates in Philadelphia, both in traffic court and municipal courts.

DELEGATE SHAPIRO. All right, I will withdraw my suggestion for an amendment to Delegate Tate's amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. We have been checking the question posed a while ago and we find the provision that was asked about—exempting the traffic court personnel from the provision about being members of the Bar of the Supreme Court—was in the proposal that was dated February 2, 1968, but it was actually revised on the 5th day of February, 1968, and there was taken out of the schedule those portions of the schedule which the committee felt should be in the article, itself.

This was one of the items taken out of the article and put into the schedule and approved, according to our records, by the entire committee on February 5th.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we now, therefore, ready for the question?

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. In view of what Chairman Amsterdam just said, I was wondering by what vote the committee approved this. The votes are a matter of public record under the rules of the Convention, I understand.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. I do not know what the vote was and I do not know that in each specific instance a vote was recorded. We provided, if you will recall, when we came to the final proposal there had to be at least 22 votes for it to go to the floor. There were 22 votes minimum in order for it to go to the floor.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. When was this final vote taken?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. On or about the 5th of February.

DELEGATE RAPPAPORT. Thank you.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question? The question is: Will the convention agree to the amendment now being offered by Delegate Tate?

We now unlock the voting machine. All those voting "yea" will vote to support the Tate amendment. Those voting "nay" will vote to reject it.

Now the question recurs,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—40

Allison	Conley	Huggins	Roberts
Amsterdam	Cosetti	Irvis	Shapiro
Banes	Dumbauld	Mattioni	Solomon
Baldus	Feather	Michael	Sprogell
Bloom	Filson	Michener	Swope
Brown	Fineman	Popil	Tate
Bunting	Gabreski	Prendergast	Thomson
Burkholder	Gehrlein	Quiles	Thornburgh
Caputo	Hook	Rappaport	Welsh
Casey	Horne	Rea	Whittum

NAYS—100

Aurentz	Fawcett	Krill	Rovner
Bagenstose	Fay	Leach	Ruth
Baldrige	Fleming	Lee, K.	Sahli
Baldwin	Fohl	Lee, L.	Scales
Barry	Forster	Leinbach	Scarlett
Bashoff	Fortney	Leonard	Scott
Benedict	Gerber	Mangery	Scranton

Benfield	Goldman	Markley	Sebastian
Braham	Goldstein	McGlynn	Sharp
Brennan	Gouger	Meyer	Shettig
Broderick	Griffith	Miller, D.	Shively
Buck	Hannum	Miller, R.	Shrager
Butera	Harding	Moorhead	Silverman
Cain	Hatter	More	Stout
Camardella	Henderson	Morton	Strickler
Clark	Heyburn	Nelson	Stroup
Clinger	Himes	O'Donnell	Tomascik
Cortese	Jirolanio	Orban	Tully
Croop	Johnson	Orbin	Van Sant
Cunningham	Kauffman	Otto	Warman
Curran	Keller, J.	Pott	Westerberg
Dailey	Keller, M.	Powell	Wilcox
Desmond	Kelly	Redick	Wilmarth
Devlin	King	Reynolds	Woodring
Erwin	Kline	Richter	Woodside

NOT VOTING—23

Aberman	Fagan	Levin	Pechan
Barron	Gray	Manderino	Pelletier
Caron	Hocker	McGeary	Percey
Corey	Hostetler	Murray	Shoemaker
Donaldson	Lane	Musselman	Waldron
Donolow	Laputka	Pasquerilla

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

JIROLANIO AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, I submit an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE JIROLANIO offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 25 by striking out "shall" and inserting: may

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, lines 27 and 28 by striking out "and pass an examination prior to assuming office"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 28 by striking out "and examination"

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio in connection with his amendment.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. Mr. President, the amendment which I just offered would eliminate the question of passing an examination.

The reason for that, of course, is this, first of all, last year the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania adopted an amendment to the Constitution which now requires that JPs shall undergo 90 days training before they assume their office.

Second, if you look at the words "a course of study and examination," and the type of examination, nothing is said as to what particular type of examination would be given to the justices of the peace. Presumably, it could be so hard that it could accomplish the same thing as those who want to get rid of the justices of the peace in the entire State.

Third, the justices of the peace, when they run for office, do submit themselves to a searching examination of their own individual character and integrity because they go before the people and ask the people to vote for them for that particular office.

Fourth, elections are usually held and could be held, let us say, on the 8th day of November. The election board would not certify their election until possibly the 18th. When would the course of study be given and when would the examination be given? You would run into the period of Christmas, you run also into the question of New Year's. There is no time set. In all consideration I do not think it would be possible to have him ready for the first Monday of January when his term of office would actually take place.

I submit to this Convention that what some people are trying to do is, they are trying to blow hot and cold. One minute they say yes, they will give the people an opportunity to vote for the JP if they want it. If they want to keep the JP we have laws on the books, and we have enforcement officers that, if they do anything wrong, those JPs can be prosecuted. In this particular judiciary article, provision is made that if you do not want the JP system, you can have the referendum and put in your community court. Therefore, I say the restriction attempted to be put on this particular office is unfair and uncalled for.

I reiterate the words of Delegate Devlin, this is an old office and a very good office. Laymen can fill that office well. This is the place to have men of good reputation and character. If they are no good, if they are guilty of various crimes, if they do not have the necessary integrity, then the people of that particular district should not return them to office.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does anyone else wish to be heard in connection with the Jirolanio amendment?

The Chair recognizes Delegate McGeary.

DELEGATE McGEARY. I would like to oppose this amendment. A few years ago I took one of these courses, so-called, for the justice of the peace. I was not a justice of the peace, but I wanted to be sure I knew what I was talking about when I talked about the justice of the peace. Twenty-five JPs and I took a 24-week course in criminal law.

Now I thought it was a very good course, but there were some justices there—most of them took the course and benefited from it, but there were a few there who paid no attention. They took the course, but I think an examination was needed to prove that they got something out of the course.

I hate to see this lifted out of the proposal from the committee.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Michener.

DELEGATE MICHENER. On no other matter that will come before this Convention did I do more work prior to coming here. I assembled a board of justices to give me advice. I went over all their testimonies. Members of the Judiciary Committee will remember that I brought before their committee a summary of the recommendations of the justices themselves. Not my opinion at all, but the record of their recommendations to this Convention as to what they wanted done. They had, in total, nine recommendations. Some of these are in print in the appendix to your splendid manual on the judiciary. These are all statements by justices of the peace. Some of them are by organizations of justices of the peace.

On nine of those specific recommendations there was this degree of unanimity. On three of them, only one of the major organizations approved. On three, two of the major organizations approved. On three, all of them approved. The one thing that they approved of most unanimously was the requirement that they themselves wanted an education course before they took office. There was no dissent from this at all that I can remember. They also wanted the numbers cut. They also wanted better quarters.

The things that your committee has brought onto the floor are things which go far to reach and solve all the problems which the justices have posed in the matter of justice in this State. I think that the committee report is a fine one because it does maintain the justices where they are needed, and it does provide for better justices throughout.

I think this would be a body blow to the record of this Convention if Senator Jirolanio's amendment were accepted. I think it would be a denial of all we agreed upon. I think it would be a step backward and I think we would be ashamed of ourselves tomorrow morning if we saw in the papers that we had gone back on one of the most fundamental principles of this Convention.

I, therefore, must speak rather sharply against this amendment and advise all of us not to accept it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Scales.

DELEGATE SCALES. Mr. President, I rise in opposition to this amendment. I have had the privilege in the past of being able to act as an instructor at some of the squires' courses that Delegate McGeary talked about.

It seems to me we make a great mistake in lumping these justices of the peace together under one label. There are many excellent men in the squires' association. At the same time, just as in our own bar association, there are many men who could do much better. I found, from my own experience, in teaching these courses that there were men taking the courses, coming to all of the lectures and meetings, who knew more about law on that level than any of the instructors did. There were other men, Mr. President, who, regardless of the amount of instruction, could not possibly pass even the most fundamental type of examination.

It seems to me that this amendment does a disservice not only to the public, but also to the squires themselves. I have talked to many squire groups and organizations. The leaders of those organizations, the men in those organizations who care about their jobs, want the committee proposal and do not want this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Stroup.

DELEGATE STROUP. I rise in opposition to this amendment and endorse completely and in toto the comments of Delegates Michener and Scales.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. The only point I wanted to make —and I rise in opposition, also—was that this matter was a constitutional amendment in 1966 and it was approved by the people of the State of Pennsylvania by a very heavy vote. I think it would be a mistake to take it out of the Constitution at this time.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Jirolanio.

DELEGATE JIROLANIO. I believe I do have some time to answer the arguments from the other side.

It seems to me, regardless of how the delegation feels, there are some delegates in this Convention who feel, whenever some amendments are offered, that the end of the world is going to come because it does not meet the approval of one or two. May I say to this Convention that the end of the world is not going to come and that there is no delegate in this hall who is interested in destroying the rights of the people. I certainly want to give to the people of my district and to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania the best that is in me and the best I think I can possibly offer. If at any time I am attempting to make an amendment, I do it because I think it will serve the best interests, not because I am doing it with a selfish motive or with any other motive whatsoever.

I firmly believe that the justices of the peace are interested in educating themselves and that is why we passed the constitutional amendment last year. Certainly, I agree they should better themselves and they will better themselves by getting 90 days training, but this particular language in the judiciary article will work a hardship to those men who will be and are your justices of the peace.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment offered by Delegate Jirolanio?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—22

Allison	Erwin	Kline	Qulles
Baldwin	Goldstein	Krill	Redick
Benfield	Hatter	Markley	Reynolds
Cain	Hocker	Orbin	Van Sant
Cortese	Jirolanio	Prendergast	Warman
Devlin	Keller, M.

NAYS—115

Aberman	Fawcett	Leach	Sahli
Amsterdam	Fay	Lee, L.	Scales
Aurentz	Feather	Leinbach	Scarlett
Bagenstose	Filson	Levin	Scott
Baldrige	Fineman	Mattioni	Scranton
Banes	Fleming	McGeary	Sebastian
Barry	Fohl	Meyer	Shapiro
Bashoff	Forster	Michael	Sharp
Bloom	Fortney	Michener	Shettig
Braham	Gabreski	Miller, D.	Shively
Brennan	Gehrlein	Miller, R.	Shrager
Broderick	Gerber	Moorhead	Silverman
Brown	Goldman	More	Sprogell
Buck	Gouger	Morton	Stout
Bunting	Griffith	Murray	Strickler
Burkholder	Hannum	Nelson	Stroup
Butera	Harding	O'Donnell	Swope
Caputo	Henderson	Orban	Tate
Camardella	Heyburn	Otto	Thornburgh
Casey	Himes	Pasquerilla	Thomson
Clinger	Hook	Popil	Tomascik
Conley	Horne	Pott	Tully
Corey	Huggins	Powell	Waldron
Cosetti	Irvis	Rappaport	Welsh
Croop	Johnson	Rea	Westerberg
Cunningham	Kauffman	Richter	Wilcox
Curran	Keller, J.	Roberts	Wilmarth
Desmond	Kelly	Rovner	Woodring
Dumbauld	King	Ruth

NOT VOTING—26

Baldus	Donolow	Leonard	Pelletier
Barron	Fagan	Manderino	Percey
Benedict	Gray	Mangery	Shoemaker

Caron	Hostetler	McGlynn	Solomon
Clark	Lane	Musselman	Whittum
Dailey	Laputka	Pechan	Woodside
Donaldson	Lee, K.

Less than the majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the negative and the amendment was not agreed to.

CROOP AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Croop.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, I read in place and present to the Chair the following amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE CROOP offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 20, by inserting after "Court," where it appears the last time: for a period of one year preceding and

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 20, by inserting after "peace,": for a period of one year preceding and

On the question,
Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Croop in connection with this amendment.

DELEGATE CROOP. Mr. President, this is merely extending and cleaning up, or putting a period of time on the amendment and I am happy to say that Senator Fleming joins with me in this amendment. He and I had an idea which I mentioned before, and it is merely putting a period of one year preceding the appointment or the election of the respective judge, so that we have something definite in there and do not have carpetbagging by jumping across judicial district lines.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Is there any further discussion in connection with this?

Does the committee have anything to say in connection with this? Chairman Amsterdam?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No. This follows along with the one that was already adopted, contrary to what we had had in it.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Judge Woodside, did you want to say something on the Croop amendment?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. Mr. President, in going over it this Sunday, it seemed to me that it would be well to add right at this place these words—I did not prepare an amendment because I did not think it was absolutely necessary, but in order to provide for future contingencies, I thought it would be well to say, "The justices of the Supreme Court, the judges of the Superior Court and of the Commonwealth Court and of any other statewide court hereafter created." This is to take care of the possibility raised by Delegate Irvis and others that there may be in the future some other statewide courts and there is no provision relating thereto. I did not think it was terribly important. Therefore, I did not prepare an amendment. If there is anyone else who feels that should be in, this is the place it should be put in, with an amendment attached to the one that is proposed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair has a question of Judge Woodside. Were you speaking to the Croop amendment in front of us?

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. I was. I was talking about an amendment to the amendment, because this is the place where that ought to go in as an amendment to the amendment. It is right at this point.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May I suggest that if you think there should be an amendment, we could get one prepared. That might be easier.

DELEGATE WOODSIDE. If no one else in the Convention thinks this is important enough, I will not insist upon it, but I thought it should be called to the attention of the Convention that there is no provision for any other statewide court created by statute.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Fleming.

DELEGATE FLEMING. Mr. President, I am sure my co-sponsor agrees with me that this would be in the best interests of the Commonwealth. We have no objection at all to having this amendment added if Judge Woodside would care to have it run off and added.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. May the Chair suggest that we could vote on the Croop amendment and we can still take care of the Woodside amendment if that is the desire of the Convention.

On the question recurring,
Will the Convention agree to the Croop amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—110

Aberman	Dumbauld	Jirolanio	Powell
Aurentz	Erwin	Johnson	Prendergast
Baldrige	Fawcett	Keller, J.	Quiles
Baldwin	Fay	Kelly	Rea
Banes	Feather	King	Reynolds
Barry	Filson	Kline	Richter
Bashoff	Fineman	Krill	Roberts
Benfield	Fleming	Leach	Sahli
Bloom	Fohl	Lee, L.	Scales
Braham	Forster	Leinbach	Scarlett
Brennan	Fortney	Mangery	Scott
Broderick	Gabreski	Markley	Sharp
Brown	Gehrlein	Mattioni	Shively
Buck	Gerber	Meyer	Solomon
Butera	Goldstein	Michael	Strickler
Cain	Gouger	Michener	Swope
Camardella	Griffith	Miller, D.	Thomson
Caputo	Hannum	Miller, R.	Tully
Casey	Harding	Moorhead	Van Sant
Clark	Hatter	Murray	Waldron
Clinger	Henderson	Nelson	Warman
Corey	Heyburn	Orban	Welsh
Cortese	Himes	Orbin	Westerberg
Croop	Hocker	Otto	Whittum
Cunningham	Hook	Pasquerilla	Wilmarth
Curran	Horne	Popil	Woodring
Desmond	Huggins	Pott	Woodside
Devlin	Irvis

NAYS—18

Bunting	Morton	Sebastian	Stout
Burkholder	O'Donnell	Shapiro	Tate
Kauffman	Rappaport	Silverman	Thornburgh
Keller, M.	Rovner	Sprogell	Wilcox
McGlynn	Scranton

NOT VOTING—35

Allison	Dailey	Lee, K.	Percey
Amsterdam	Donaldson	Leonard	Redick
Bagenstose	Donolow	Levin	Ruth

Baldus	Goldman	Manderino	Shettig
Barron	Fagan	McGeary	Shoemaker
Benedict	Gray	More	Shrager
Caron	Hostetler	Musselman	Stroup
Conley	Lane	Pechan	Tomasclk
Cosetti	Laputka	Pelletier

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

HOOK AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Delegate Hook.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I submit an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE HOOK offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 10), page 4, line 25, by inserting after "peace": and judges of the traffic court in Philadelphia

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Hook, we are still duplicating copies. Do you want to stand by or talk on your amendment? You have the option. I do not know whether it will be to your advantage or disadvantage to have it in front of the delegates.

DELEGATE HOOK. Mr. President, I believe this proposal will bring in line some of the discussion that was had here when the Mercer-Tate proposal was made and this will bring in line with the request of many of the delegates that the members of the traffic court in Philadelphia must meet the same qualifications as the other justices of the peace of the State of Pennsylvania must meet. They must be qualified and take a training course and be qualified in accordance with this particular section. This is the only purpose for this. I believe other delegates, if they had an opportunity, would join in with this. This is just a matter to bring everything in line with this particular section, I believe.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Chairman Amsterdam for a comment.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. This was not voted upon separately by the committee. It would certainly be consistent with everything we have in the judiciary article. I understood from what Delegate Devlin and the others said that this was generally satisfactory to the delegates. I wonder whether we cannot go to a fairly prompt vote?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Does Delegate Devlin wish to be heard on this?

DELEGATE DEVLIN. Let us vote.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Are we ready for the question? Has everyone received a copy?

DELEGATE HOOK. This proposal has been joined in with me by Mr. Shapiro, so it is both his and my amendment, together.

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the amendment?

The roll was recorded as follows:

YEAS—135

Aberman	Erwin	Leach	Sahli
Amsterdam	Fawcett	Lee, L.	Scales
Aurentz	Fay	Leinbach	Scarlett
Baldrige	Feather	Levin	Scott
Baldus	Filson	Mangery	Scranton
Baldwin	Fineman	Markley	Sebastian
Banes	Fleming	Mattioni	Shapiro
Barron	Fohl	McGeary	Sharp
Barry	Forster	Meyer	Shettig
Bashoff	Fortney	Michael	Shively
Benedict	Gabreski	Michener	Shoemaker
Bloom	Gehrlein	Miller, D.	Shrager
Brennan	Gerber	Moorhead	Silverman
Broderick	Goldstein	More	Solomon
Brown	Gouger	Morton	Sprogell
Buck	Griffith	Murray	Stout
Bunting	Hannum	Nelson	Strickler
Burkholder	Harding	O'Donnell	Stroup
Butera	Hatter	Orban	Swope
Cain	Henderson	Orbin	Tate
Camardella	Heyburn	Otto	Thomson
Caputo	Himes	Pasquerilla	Thornburgh
Casey	Hocker	Pelletier	Tomasclk
Clark	Hook	Popil	Tully
Clinger	Horne	Pott	Van Sant
Corey	Irvis	Powell	Waldron
Cortese	Johnson	Prendergast	Warman
Cosetti	Kauffman	Quiles	Welsh
Croop	Keller, J.	Rappaport	Westerberg
Cunningham	Keller, M.	Rea	Whittum
Curran	Kelly	Reynolds	Wilcox
Desmond	King	Richter	Wilmarth
Devlin	Kline	Rovner	Woodring
Dumbauld	Krill	Ruth

NAYS—5

Braham	Jirolanio	McGlynn	Redick
Huggins

NOT VOTING—23

Allison	Donaldson	Lane	Musselman
Bagenstose	Donolow	Laputka	Pechan
Benfield	Fagan	Lee, K.	Percey
Caron	Goldman	Leonard	Roberts
Conley	Gray	Manderino	Woodside
Dailey	Hostetler	Miller, R.

The majority having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative and the amendment was agreed to.

PROPOSAL No. 7, SECTION 11

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Those are all of the amendments we have prepared at this time in connection with Section 10. We will now move on to Section 11. We wish to report that in accordance with your suggestion, Chairman Amsterdam, we have no amendments in connection with the (b) Section.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No amendments.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. We received none. We will not encourage any more.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Henderson, do you want to be heard in connection with this Section?

DELEGATE HENDERSON. I rise in opposition to the qualification commission philosophy in the selection of judges. I would like to make a statement of my feelings.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed and you will be limited, of course, to 10 minutes.

DELEGATE HENDERSON. It will only take two minutes.

The basic premise of American democracy is based on the fact that we as a people consent to be governed, governed by a three-fold plan of separation of powers. We consent to have laws enacted by the legislative process of a General Assembly, of a House and of a Senate. We consent to have these laws administered by an administrative branch. We also consent to be judged in accordance with the law of the land. Each area of the separation of powers consists of legislators, administrators and judges, all nominated and elected by the people.

By utilizing a selection process with a "blue ribbon panel," we would be diluting or disenfranchising a segment of our democratic form of government, viz., the judicial branch. By utilizing a list of selectees, we would be developing a hierarchy of a chosen few. Hypothetically, many would not be chosen because of a varied and sundry reason. The manner in which a lawyer either prosecuted or defended a certain case may eliminate him. The blue ribbon panel could be influenced by those wanting special favors. Many would be eliminated because they graduated from the "wrong school," many would be eliminated because their names may end in the "wrong syllable," many would be eliminated because their skin may not be of the "right color."

By adopting a panel system of selection, we are saying, in effect, that the judges—past and present—elected by the people are not capable.

This is not the case. We can be proud of the choice that the people have made in all areas of our judicial branch of government. When a young lawyer passes the bar, he should have the right, after he gains the experience, to progress up the judicial ladder by the elective process and not the selective process. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania would be losing a basic freedom, won in 1776, of having a government elected by the people in all three areas, separation of powers of the administrative, the legislative and the judicial.

The will of the people must be realized in all areas. We consent to be governed and we have a voice in this. We consent to be legislated and we do have a voice. We consent to be judged, and I say that we must keep this voice if we are going to keep the democratic form of government as we know it now.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Warman.

DELEGATE WARMAN. I would also like to make a statement concerning the selection of judges.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may proceed.

DELEGATE WARMAN. The major concern of any citizen in a democracy is that his right of franchise is preserved from the lowest level to the highest. The choice of men who will sit in judgment should remain with those who are to be judged. We cannot delegate this responsibility to a small group of persons, no matter how high-minded.

We are told that "selection" would remove judges from politics. We are not told—and the voters have no way of knowing—who will ultimately make these selections. We are not told for a single, simple reason:

Try as it did, the Judiciary Committee could not devise language to guarantee that the selectors will be totally removed from political, or personal, or human motivations, for the original appointers of a selection panel are themselves political.

I, for one, cannot visualize who these selectors would be. For where can we find men who are not influenced by their environment? No matter how high-minded, would not this selection panel ultimately place men on the bench who reflect their own attitudes? The selection process —as opposed to free elections—would replace the judgment and wisdom of a few men for the judgment and wisdom of thousands of voters. Whatever the "mistakes" that might be made at the ballot box, we must allow the individual voter to name the men who will judge him.

Moreover, the attitudes of men "selected" for lifetime terms will change. And we should not compare the work of the Supreme Court with the day-to-day decisions of a lower court. The Supreme Court deals with broad philosophies and with technical challenges. The lower courts deal with the daily lives of people.

Removed from the workaday, competitive world, a judge loses a certain public awareness—the need for tempering justice with mercy. The mere promise of a lifetime tenure can lead to indolence on the part of appointed judges. Even at present, under 10-year terms, there are instances where judges rule as autocrats. Longevity on the bench is no guarantee of wisdom. In many instances just the opposite is true. Many a jurist becomes set in his ways and domineering. He loses a certain intellectual flexibility and responsiveness to the needs and motivations of the individuals he judges.

This Convention has spent nearly three months searching out the ideal. We are not here to make changes simply for the sake of change. And the ideal is a democracy —or a republic, if you please—a government of, for and by the people. We in this Convention must not participate in a procedure which in any way will dilute the voting rights of the citizens of Pennsylvania.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Cain.

DELEGATE CAIN. I would like to express myself on the subject. As Delegate Henderson has put the question very strongly, I would like to say at this Convention that I certainly would oppose any blue ribbon panel for the selection of judges for the many reasons that he gives, plus many more. We have been talking here about letting the people make a decision. I think this is one area where the people should certainly make a decision and not leave it to a hand-picked group of blue ribbon panels to decide on the selection of judges.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Tomascik.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. May I interrogate Delegate Amsterdam?

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Amsterdam will stand for interrogation. You may proceed.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Mr. President, is it the intent of this Committee proposal to terminate the right of any lawyer in good standing in the Commonwealth to make it impossible for him to run for public office such as justice of the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. This provides in Section 11(a) that states when a vacancy occurs the appointment shall be by the Governor in the case of the statewide courts, and the Governor shall choose from among a list of names supplied by a qualifying commission. Does that answer the question?

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. No, I want to find out whether, in spite of the qualification commission, any good lawyer in good standing could, nevertheless, run for the office to the Supreme Court?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. No, there is no provision for election in the first instance. It is by the Governor's appointment.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Will you clarify for me the rationale of the committee in coming to the conclusion in recommending a judicial qualifications commission?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. The committee was of the opinion from the testimony that was given to it over a period of time and the information supplied by the various studies that have been made, that there was relatively little likelihood that the electors across the State would be familiar with the persons who would be running for the office of justice of the Supreme Court or judge of the other two statewide courts. They were of the opinion, in the first instance, the nominee was chosen by the political chairman in the various instances, that is the way their names were put on the ballot in the first case, and, thereafter, their chance of success or failure depended on whether the ticket as a whole was successful or unsuccessful. Therefore, they felt in no true sense on a statewide election was this an election by the electorate. They felt this was, in effect, an appointment, in the first instance, by those who were charged with the responsibility for putting up political candidates and, in the second instance, the fact of whether they won or lost was dependent not on their own qualifications, but on whether the ticket as a whole was successful or unsuccessful. Therefore, they agreed that this nominating panel be made up of lawyers and nonlawyers giving the Governor an opportunity to make a choice from a very wide group of names, which would result in getting, according to the committee, the best qualified justices and judges for statewide courts.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. Would you say, Delegate Amsterdam, the committee's proposal really amounts to giving up some of the personal sovereignty of the individual candidate in favor of the collective judgment of the qualifications commission?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. When you say "candidate," I am not sure I understand. The candidate's name could, of course, be brought up before the commission.

DELEGATE TOMASCIK. I mean the applicant for the position. In other words, you are substituting the collective judgment of the qualifications commission for election by the people, is that right?

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. That is correct.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Murray.

DELEGATE MURRAY. Mr. President, I rise in support of this amendment. Until 10 years ago I never knew what the word "wasp" meant and I am glad a blue ribbon panel did not pick us to come to this Convention.

I think the political balance of a two-thirds Senate guarantees minority representation to people of all ethnic, racial and religious backgrounds. I think it is very important the people do not lose this right to a hand-picked blue ribbon panel. I think it tears down some of our basic philosophies of government.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. Delegate Murray, the Chair just wants to say there is no amendment before the Convention at the present time. The delegates have been making statements generally, not in reference to any specific amendment.

DELEGATE MURRAY. I thought this amendment had been placed. I will repeat myself later.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. You may do that, or we will remember what you said now.

Is there anyone else who wants to be heard generally, because we are getting ready now to call an amendment?

I made a statement that we did not have any amendments in connection with 11(b). We do have an amendment in connection with 11(b). We have the Ruth amendment and, in accordance with the suggestion of the committee chairman, we will take up the Ruth amendment first.

RUTH AMENDMENT TO COMMITTEE PROPOSAL No. 7

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Ruth.

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. President, I rise to offer an amendment to Committee Proposal No. 7.

On the question recurring,

Will the Convention agree to the proposal on second consideration?

DELEGATE RUTH offered the following amendment which was read by the clerk:

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 5, lines 8 to 15, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 5, line 16, by striking out "(c)" and inserting: (b)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 5, lines 16 to 18, by striking out "other than a judicial district which has elected to have the judges in that district appointed as provided in section 11(b)"

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, lines 2 to 24, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, line 25, by striking out "(f)" and inserting: (c)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 11), page 6, line 30, by striking out "(g)" and inserting: (d)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 7, line 9, by striking out "Commissions" and inserting: Commission

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 7, lines 21 to 30; page 8, lines 1 to 3, by striking out all of said lines

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 8, line 4, by striking out "(c)" and inserting: (b)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 8, line 5, by striking out "any" and inserting: the

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 8, line 8, by striking out "(d)" and inserting: (c)

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 12), page 8, line 8, by striking out "any" and inserting: the

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, lines 17 to 19, by striking out "or in any court" in line 17; all of line 18; and "of judges provided in section 11 (b)," in line 19

Amend Sec. 1 (Sec. 13), page 8, line 29, by striking out "or 11 (b)"

On the question,

Will the Convention agree to the Amendment?

DELEGATE RUTH. Mr. President, I will try to keep both my original presentation and summary to about five minutes.

This amendment basically removes the local option of appointment of your local county judges and would retain the election system of local judges as we now have it.

The judiciary is the third branch of government, is the defender of citizens' rights and liberties against encroachment by either the legislative or executive branch, as well as the arena for the settlement of disputes of citizens. It is in our local courts that issues affecting life, liberty and property of the people are first resolved, thus, the people should have the right to say how courts can best serve them, how they should be run, and who should administer justice on the people's behalf. It is the right of the people who are going to be judged to elect their judges.

I campaigned on this very issue and I can guarantee you, and even you Delegate Irvis, that the people from my county want to elect their judges. They do not want an option, they do not need an option. Certain pressure groups and blind editorial writers push a plan on the people they do not want.

The Philadelphia Inquirer late last week by editorial said the Pennsylvania Bar Plan removes judges from politics. I say to you delegates to take this with a grain of salt. This plan is the "Missouri Plan," that they would push on you, supposedly the panacea for the judiciary. The so-called reformers devised a new label and gave the "Missouri Plan" a misnomer, they called it the "Non-Partisan Merit Selection Plan," an idealistic and altruistic approach.

This is nothing more than labeling a plan by the results you hope it will achieve and then proceeding to sell it as a cure. This guise is more commonly known in the legal profession as pulling one's self up by his own bootstraps. Saying a thing is so does not make it so.

The appointment system does not eliminate politics, it only changes the battleground and the type of war to be fought on that battleground. It involves Bar Association politics and gives priority to the select few who have the ear or the rear of the appointing power, whether it be the Governor or the panel. In other words, palace politics or house of lords politics, and merit be hanged.

We came here to protect people's rights and not to take them away. The courts do not belong to the palace or house of lords. They belong to the people.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Solomon.

DELEGATE SOLOMON. Mr. President, I am afraid I cannot top the last speaker, but I would like to speak on this.

At the time this was discussed in the judicial section, it was discussed at length and possibly covered the greater part of two days. I will not be granted the same privilege on this floor as I was in the committee. Nobody rang any bell and I do not want you to ring a bell, just raise your hands, the cows will not come home.

But truthfully, in taking out this selection panel and permitting the people of our trial court to be elected by the people only reaffirms what we know to be our Pennsylvania system. The Missouri Plan I will not spend too much time on, but you would be interested to know that this plan is not in effect in the State of Missouri, with the exception of one county, Jackson County, which contains Kansas City, one city, St. Louis, and it does not cover St. Louis County.

It came about because of a breakdown in law and order, not only of judges, but of district attorneys, sheriffs and police departments. It came about as a result of the terrible Union Station Massacre in 1934, in which it was found that all branches of the government, judicial, legislative, police, were fleecing the public. Missouri had only one way to go and they took this system.

Just within the past two weeks the Wall Street Journal, and I quote the Wall Street Journal, stated, "In St. Louis where the mayor now appoints municipal judges, the leader of Pipefitters Union," and I do not want any of the union fellows to get mad, "the leader of the Pipefitters Union has named the last several judges, even though this man is out on bail and awaiting trial."

The appointive system for trial court judges does not comport with what we understand is the best system yet devised. I would like to say to you that our judicial system in this State has been lambasted from one end of the State to the other for the past several years, perhaps in preparation for this Convention. Many untruths have been said. Charges were made but never proven, and they were proven to be groundless and unfounded. Those of us who have served in the Judiciary Committee say this to you, that in the section of incompatible judges and discipline and removal of judges we have given this Convention and the people of the State a chance to take care of their senile judges, their drunkards, their dullards, so that much of the evils that have been spoken about the judiciary system would be obviated by the right of any citizen who feels himself aggrieved to take his complaint ultimately to the Supreme Court of the State and see that that person is either disciplined or removed.

We in Pennsylvania, too, in the 1830s, and shortly thereafter, arrived at this point. Until the American Revolution, Mr. President, kings ruled and princes ordained judges. This was according to the 8th Chapter of Proverbs. But following the Revolution when we found that men did not rule by the divine right of kings and legislatures were made free, it took a number of years before those who were self-appointed and had all the goods and wherewithal of the Commonwealth to remove, perhaps, from their ranks those who were appointed as judges for life.

If you will just listen to me for a moment, please? In the 1830s this Commonwealth established the first public school system in the world. In the 1830s this Commonwealth established the principle that a workingman's wages would be free from garnishment. At the same time they protected the family by setting up the estate by the entireties in which a man's home could not be taken from him solely for his own debt.

They also promoted what had not been known in the United States and in the state, they finally approached a point where they had universal suffrage where workingmen, and others who did not, perhaps, have property, got to vote. Then they found out and they looked and said that we are not being judged by princes, we are revolted by the fact that a man can be appointed for life as a judge. They had their belly full of the midnight judges appointed by John Quincy Adams.

They had this picture, and in 1838 they elected their justices of the peace and in 1851 they then elected their judges, and they have done so for nearly 120 years. This is the Pennsylvania plan. This is a good plan.

What good is it to have a system of universal education to raise and train our men and women in our State schools, our State universities, to live within the framework of Jefferson's dream for universal education, and then run into the gentlemen's agreement.

I told the committee that under no system devised by panel could I ever be a judge and I am 58 and I do not want to be a judge. I told the boys to forget about me, because I do not need it. I do not want to be a judge. I ran and was defeated, and I am still sore.

Truthfully, Mr. President, in my county we have not elected a Democratic judge since 1925, but I say this to you, that if you have any integrity, if you honestly look back and see, and read and remember the things you learned, this nation was based on the hope that a man given an equal start could rise as high as he would. This is all that I can ask. I am not asking this for myself, but for my children and my children's children, even if it means breaking into the garbage heaps. This nation has given men and women from common and low origins, who perhaps did not sit too well with those forces which rule our community and could only but serve on this panel. I am opposed to the gentlemen's agreement.

I say this to you. Take a look at Delegate Ruth's amendment, as he has lived with this thing for nearly a year, long before I came to the Convention. I ask you to read his statement. I am sorry he only took five minutes, and I want you to listen to him on the last five minutes.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair now recognizes Chairman Amsterdam.

DELEGATE AMSTERDAM. May I say to the Convention, we had the benefit of this eloquence before in the Judiciary Committee and I must say many were persuaded by the excellence of the argument. It was for that reason we did not provide for a panel to operate throughout the various districts, as such. We simply provided in each judicial district where there was a plebescite and the electors wished to have such a means of appointing their judges, instead of electing them, this would be done, and in those judicial districts where they chose to keep their present system of electing judges, this also shall be done.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Clinger.

DELEGATE CLINGER. I cannot hope to match the eloquence of Delegate Solomon. I do rise in support of the committee's proposal here and against the amendment. It seems to me the issue here is this, will we foreclose, perhaps forever, any possibility for change in the method of selection of judges which we now have in our judicial district, or are we going to be farsighted enough, as we have been in all of the other areas with which we have been concerned about in this Convention. Are we going to be farsighted enough to provide that measure of flexibility which it seems to me is the very crux touched on of a workable constitution.

I already indicated that I come from a rural Republican district and I admit I am a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association. At the same time, this seems to be almost tantamount to admitting that one is a communist. I would hasten to add that I have never attended one of their meetings, and I do not think that I am any more a spokesman for them than Delegate Irvis or Orban. I am convinced in my district the people do elect good judges, they have elected good judges in the past and will continue to do so in the future, the reason being that they know their judges, they know their qualifications and they take a good deal of interest in them. They know them generally, personally. They have some measure of their character, of their leadership ability, and of their general judicial qualifications and they have some reasonable basis on which to elect their judges. I am sure this system will continue to be in effect in my district for some time to come.

I am by no means sure that the elective system will remain workable in my district, or other districts, 50 years or even 15 years from now. The fact is, we live in an era of population explosion, we live in an era of rapid urbanization, and it is entirely conceivable in my mind that in my very rural district, what is a very rural district now, we may become urbanized to the point where the people, the electorate, will not know these candidates for judges, will not know their qualifications and will not be able to intelligently vote on the best possible man for the office of judge. It is for this reason that I am unauthorably opposed to locking in. This is what we are saying we are going to do, we are going to lock in the elective method as the only method by which we can select our judges.

We are willing to say we trust the electorate in every other field, we have given them the referendum in almost every other field that we have entered into here, but we are saying here, if we adopt this amendment, that we are not willing to trust the electorate in this vital matter. As I have pointed out, the committee's approach is precisely the same as the approach utilized by the Committee on Local Government in the matter of optional forms of local government. The change will only occur by the people. The elective system will continue unless and until changed by the people, not by the Governor, not by the Legislature, not by the Bar Association and not by the politicians, but by the people.

I submit to you, that this change will only occur when the people themselves are in a position where they cannot vote intelligently and do not know the qualifications of their candidates for judges. I suggest to you at that point change should occur; otherwise it seems to me we begin to play Russian roulette with our judicial system. Throughout this Convention we have said time and time again that we should entrust the people to chart their own destiny in the century that lies ahead.

Time and time again we have provided the means by which they can charter this destiny. I certainly hope we are going to be consistent in this vital area and provide them with this option for change. It is not going to occur overnight or next year. It is giving them the same choice that they have in the other areas we have dealt with here.

While I am on the subject of people, I would like to say one other thing here. This is on another theme that has been echoed continually in this hall over the past two months. We are going to have to go to the people with a constitution which we can sell and which they are going to buy. I could not agree with this more, but I want to point out, whether we like it or not, the Pennsylvania Bar Association is people, the League of Women Voters is people, and it was these people who went out and sold the rest of the people on calling this Convention in the first place.

I very much doubt whether we would be here had not these interested and concerned people gone out and convinced the people to call this Convention, in the first place. I suggest to you that we are going to need their help in selling our work or in getting the people to approve our work come April 23rd. I doubt very much if help is going to be forthcoming if we lock in the only system, the system which we now have, and provide no possibility for change in the future, or if we change to a system which will permit political tampering with the judiciary any more than now exists.

One final point: This was a close vote in our committee. It was a razor thin vote. It is also true that after this proposal was accepted by the committee, those who are arguing, many of those in the Judiciary Committee, who would now like to rip it out of our proposal, tried on at least five different occasions to rip out this provision in committee and failed on every occasion. I ask you, think very carefully before you repudiate the committee on this matter. I would remind you, you have not overturned any other committee on a major issue which has been recommended to you by that committee. I think, on the contrary, in almost every area you have expressed your confidence both in debate and in your voting for the recommendations of the committee. This particular issue is one of three major issues in the judiciary article. You have already approved in substance the committee recommendation on the other two major issues. I assure you, this issue received just as much, in fact, more consideration, and detailed and thoughtful study than the other two.

I would beg you, I would implore you, that the Committee is deserving of your support in this area and I urge you to defeat this amendment.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Caputo.

DELEGATE CAPUTO. Mr. President, I rise in support of the amendment. I adopt by reference the arguments and debates presented by Delegates Henderson, Ruth and Solomon. I, too, am a victim of the election processes.

Two years ago, a little over two years ago, I was defeated in a Democratic county by the electorate of Beaver County for the office of judgeship. I am not speaking because of my own personal failings, but because the people have a right to vote for offices, for candidates. Since I went to school, and throughout my career in politics, in this very assembly room and other places, I have been told and taught that the right of the people to vote is sacred. I have been told that we should make it easy for the people to vote and not place obstruction in their path.

I had the privilege during my career in this legislative hall to help to abolish the requirement of poll tax for voters in Pennsylvania, because that made second class citizens out of those people, people who could not afford to pay the tax.

Therefore, throughout my life, I have supported any movement which helped the voters to gain the right to vote, and not to deprive them of that right.

We have three branches of government and they are all supposed to be separate and apart. We vote for President of the United States and I am sure most of us do not know the candidates personally. We vote for congressmen and we do not know them personally. We vote for senators and we do not know them personally. We vote for governors and we do not know them personally. Now they tell us we are not qualified to vote for a judge because we are not personally familiar with those candidates.

I say that is not true and I say, furthermore, the people of Pennsylvania, the people of my county, are good enough to vote for me, and they should be good enough and smart enough to vote for a judge locally.

In the matter of retention of judges, we are proceeding closer and closer to the Russian philosophy, do not permit the people to vote for two candidates, or three, or four; do not permit them to have a choice but listen to them. You either vote for the man on the ballot or you do not vote at all, and that is the effect of the retention provision of the article.

Last week we saw the results of the Local Government Committee reports. In many instances we have given the people back home the right to vote on certain features of that article. We come back here today and say to them, "Yes, you may vote for annexation, you may vote for a president, you may vote for a governor, but you cannot vote for a judge because you are not qualified."

Are the people of Pennsylvania to allow the proposal of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, an unofficial organization not representing all of the lawyers of Pennsylvania, but only a small portion of the lawyers? I say to you people here, we ought not to deprive the people of a right to vote under any circumstances. As a matter of fact, we should increase their right to select the people, because they are the government. We should not permit anyone to deprive them of the consent to be governed.

PRESIDENT BRODERICK. The Chair recognizes Delegate Sprogell.

DELEGATE SPROGELL. I would like to look, just look, at the concept which we have before us when we say we have an option and try and see clearly what this option is and how it differs from what we have now if the people were to select a selection commission.

You may be interested to know that at the appellate level, at least half of the judges who are there now were not primarily elected, were not first elected, they were appointed. The Governor appoints these men and I think there is something to be looked at when he has to go back to the Senate for approval. From what I can gather, there are at times reciprocal backtracking, which is not always advisable. Even when the Governor does appoint under our present system, I believe there or in a direct election, very often it can be the committee chairman who chooses or passes upon the selection of a candidate to come before the public, and sometimes I think that he confuses the value of votes with the value of quality.

